The involuntary commitment ward of a mental hospital is an exceedingly difficult place from which to escape. The doors are locked with key cards and number pads and there is an airlock system in which only one door is unlocked at a time. In the eighteenth century, a philosopher from Scotland effected a daring escape from a mental hospital called Western Culture and told civilized people who had also managed to escape and run for their lives all that he had seen and experienced as a probing, critical philosopher inside. He told them this as a warning and lesson of what happens when a culture founded upon false philosophic premises is allowed to grow and develop through the corridors of time and allowed to bear its bitter fruit. He told them this as a counsel and admonition to check the philosophic premises of their culture and sweep them away as false gods. As opposed to the philosophic premises of Classical Culture as an evil nightmare is opposed to a radiantly beautiful dream, the philosophic premises of the West are those of subjectivism and idealism, the doctrines that the objects of perception are mental in character and that the nature of reality is mental in character. These are the doctrines which animated the thought of a German astronomer and necromancer who sold his soul to the Devil and became the preeminent symbol and representative of the West: Johann Faust. A key player in the Royal Society of Edinburgh and the Scottish Enlightenment and the founder of the Scottish School of Common Sense, Thomas Reid challenged the Faustian doctrines of subjectivism and idealism and when he escaped from the Faustian madness sought to help others find their way out of the darkness. Civilized people listened attentively, listened wholly inspired and listened with gladness coursing through their hearts to all that Reid had to say. He proclaimed that a return to common sense is the only way to deal with the problems engendered by the skepticism of Descartes, Locke, Berkeley and Hume. He proclaimed that the Cartesian doctrine of ideas is a poisonous well at the base of the theory of knowledge. He proclaimed that the good sense and sound judgment of sane people affirms that when we perceive, we perceive something, which something is a world of physical objects. He proclaimed that an act of perception which is held to be of nothing more than our own ideas is an act of nonperception and is a contradiction in terms. He proclaimed that the sheer act of perception and nothing else provides immediate, irrefutable proof and demonstration that there exists a world which is independent of consciousness. He proclaimed that the philosophy of subjectivism is a philosophy of unconsciousness and has no place in the philosophy of those who are mentally stable and balanced. He proclaimed that if all we can directly and immediately perceive is just the contents of our own minds, we can achieve no certainty whatever about the nature or existence of reality. He proclaimed that the common fund of intelligence of mankind and the opinions expressed by those who possess normal mental equipment affirm that human beings acquire knowledge through the empirical observation of the external world, through the direct perception of physical objects, and are not confined to know only the contents of their own minds. He proclaimed that acceptance of the fact that we perceive physical objects is a precondition for the possibility that sane, civilized human beings can communicate and reason with each other. He proclaimed that physical objects are the subjects of qualities and the latter cannot exist floating in space independently of things of which they are qualities. He proclaimed that objects are not qualities but are things which have qualities and objects without qualities are as impossible and inconceivable as qualities without objects. He proclaimed that the litmus test of fundamental human sanity is the acceptance of two beliefs: that when we perceive, we perceive physical objects, and physical qualities are qualities of objects and cannot exist apart from objects. Now listen to Reid describe the raging psychosis which plagues Western philosophy. Listen to him describe its rejection of the self evident existence of physical objects. Its view that the sun, the stars, the mountains and the oceans may be specters of man's imagination. Its view that the things which people of sound mind have always believed existed, the things which are perceived in the world of nature, may not in fact exist at all. Its view that there is no rational reason, proof, argument, warrant or evidence which establishes a world of existence outside of consciousness. Its view that we can be certain of nothing beyond the existence of ourselves and our own minds. Condemned by Reid, the sons of Satan, the princes of darkness, the sworn enemies of wisdom and knowledge, the false gods preaching at the altars of ignorance and folly, are the reigning monarchs of Western philosophy. Condemned by the Reid, the vandals of mental peace and security, the terrorists ranged against common sense, the malignant cancers of the human soul, are the riders of an apocalypse. They have engulfed the culture in a cloud of mental sickness and halted the progress of thought with a phantom and ghost called subjectivism: "Descartes, Malebranche and Locke have all used their talents and skill to prove the existence of a material world; and with very little success! Poor uneducated folk believe unquestioningly that there is a sun, moon and stars; an earth that we inhabit; country, friends and relations that we enjoy; land, houses and furniture that we possess. But philosophers, pitying the credulity of the vulgar, resolve not to trust anything that isn't founded on reason. These philosophers ask philosophy to supply them with reasons for believing things that all mankind have believed without being able to give any reasons for doing so. One might expect that in matters of such importance the proof would be easy; but in fact it is the most difficult thing in the world. For these three great men, with the best good will, have not been able to draw from all the treasures of philosophy one argument that is fit to convince a thinking man of the existence of anything other than himself. Admired Philosophy! Daughter of light! Parent of wisdom and knowledge! If that's what you are, then surely you haven't yet risen and started to shine on the human mind, or blessed us with more of your rays than are sufficient to cast a 'darkness visible' on the human faculties, and to disturb the peace and security enjoyed by happier people who never approached your altar or felt your influence! But if indeed you aren't able to dispel those clouds and phantoms that you have revealed or created, withdraw this skimpy and malignant ray: I despise philosophy and renounce its guidance; let my soul dwell with common sense." (An Inquiry Into The Human Mind by Thomas Reid). Now listen to Reid condemn Western philosophy's war against sanity and common sense. Condemn its attacks against those who affirm the validity of perception and the existence of physical objects. Condemn its chains of pseudoreasoning which purport to prove that we perceive only our own ideas but which in point of fact prove only its own defects and deformities. Condemn its rejection of philosophy as a discipline predicated upon rational judgment and mentally healthy attitudes. Condemn its campaign to dethrone the authority of plain people who are in their right mind and able to reason clearly; its campaign to conquer the territory of wisdom and knowledge upon which mankind has trod and advanced to the heavens; and its campaign to bring both under the dark rulership of the disordered and the deranged. Condemn the deniers of truth and objectivity under whose aegis the kingdom of thought has been disgraced and dishonored and Western civilization has withered, wilted, rotted and died: "It may be observed that of all the defects and blemishes in the accepted philosophy concerning the mind, the ones that have most exposed it to the contempt and ridicule of sensible men have chiefly come from this: The adherents of this philosophy, led by a natural prejudice in her favor, have tried to extend her jurisdiction beyond its proper limits by setting her up as a judge of the dictates of common sense. But these dictates refuse to be judged in this way; they despise the trial of reasoning, and disown its authority; they don't look to reason for help or fear its attacks. In this unequal contest between common sense and philosophy the latter will always come off with both dishonor and loss; nor can she ever prosper until this rivalry is dropped, philosophy gives up encroaching on the territory of common sense, and a cordial friendship is restored; for the fact is that common sense doesn't need philosophy's permission to say what it does, nor does it need philosophy's help. On the other side (if I may be permitted to change the metaphor), philosophy's only root is the principles of commonsense; it grows out of them, and draws its nourishment from them; when it is cut off from this root its honors wither, its sap is dried up, it dies and rots. The philosophers of the recent past whom I have mentioned did not attend to preserving this union and subordination as carefully as the honor and the interests of philosophy required; but philosophers of the present time have openly waged war with common sense, and hope to make a complete conquest of it through the subtleties of philosophy—as audacious and futile as the attempt of the giants to dethrone almighty Jove!" (An Inquiry Into The Human Mind by Thomas Reid). Promoting the Classical, common sense philosophy of direct realism which affirms that the objects of perception are things in the world and not ideas in human minds, Thomas Reid is a buried and blotted out voice today. Banished from classrooms, textbooks and from the pages of encyclopedias and dictionaries, his philosophy is kept alive in the vanishing societies of civilized thinkers who value the standards and methods of sane thinking.

DOCTOR OF CULTURES

In the early part of the twentieth century, an unknown teacher in Munich laid down his pen. He had just written over a half a million words and would soon give the world its most definitive, authoritative work on the nature and evolution of human cultures. With the publication of The Decline Of The West in 1918, Oswald Spengler was catapulted from obscurity to world renown for two achievements which in civilized communities made him an intellectual hero of the first order. The first achievement consisted in the following. He was the first historian to identify cultures as coherent, unified, spiritual totalities and not mere random collections of intellectual achievements occurring in certain geographic locales. If cultures were the latter, Spengler argues, then Western culture would encompass the achievements of ancient Greece and Rome. Spengler was the first to point out that such a proposition is facially incoherent. If the achievements of the West and the achievements of ancient Greece and Rome could be subsumed under the same culture, Spengler argues, then the term culture would vanish into meaninglessness. Spengler's argument stands unrefuted in civilized circles. Spengler was the first to show that a single cultural entity could not subsume the thought of an Aristotle and the thought of a Kant. It could not subsume the belief of Aristotle that when we perceive, we perceive something, which something is a physical object, with the belief of Kant that when we perceive, we perceive nothing beyond the forms and categories of our own consciousness, nothing beyond our own delusion of physical objects existing in space and time. It could not subsume the belief of Aristotle that primary existence is the perceived world of physical objects with the belief of Kant that primary existence is an unperceivable world of nonphysical, nondimensional, nonlocational, nontemporal entities. It could not subsume the belief of Aristotle that all knowledge comes from experience and is produced by abstraction from the data of man's senses, with the belief of Kant that all knowledge is produced by deduction from the categories of the mind independently of all experience. It could not subsume the belief of Aristotle that man's good resides in the performance of his distinctive function and means of survival, the use of his faculty of reason and intelligence, with the belief of Kant that man's good resides in categorical obedience to the principles of his will, obedience without regard to objects, interests, justice or the rule of reason and common sense. It could not subsume the belief of Aristotle that man's good is produced by consequences, and is the state of a rationally ordered and organized life, with the belief of Kant that man's good is produced independently of consequences, and is the performance of duty for the sake of duty, and obedience to the principles of his will for the sake of obedience to the principles of his will. It could not subsume the belief of Aristotle that beauty is a property of physical objects and is the condition of order, harmony, coherence and complementarity of parts, with the belief of Kant that beauty is pure subjective taste or preference and exists only in the eye of the beholder. It could not subsume the belief of Aristotle that art is a recreation and representation of reality in a physical medium which seeks to portray an ideal, essentialized condition, with the belief of Kant that art is the free play of pure forms, sensations, feelings and imagination unmoored to the facts of reality or to the natures, essences and conditions of things. Spengler subsumes the culture of the ancient Greeks and Romans under the figure of Apollo, son of Zeus, god of reason, knowledge, light, reality, definition and determination. He subsumes the culture of the West under the figure of Faust, German astronomer and necromancer, symbol of will, emotion, power, freedom, license, subjectivity, expression and disorder. Spengler points out as self evident and demonstrates beyond a shadow of a doubt that the world of Apollo could never coexist with the world of Faust without a redefinition of the term culture to refer to a mere assemblage of human achievements within a given geographical locale, an assemblage without rhyme or reason or unifying principle of any kind, and without an obliteration of the concept of culture as students of history have known and understood it for thousands of years. Spengler identifies two separate and independent cultures developing on the same continent, an Apollonian culture which sprang from the noonday light of the Aegean Islands in the tenth century BC, and a Faustian culture which sprang from the twilight and gloom of the German forests in the tenth century AD, and he identifies that one and the same geographical locale gave rise, in an irony of ironies, to the two most antithetical cultures the world has ever witnessed, cultures which are as far apart spiritually, intellectually and philosophically as a radiant, beautiful, static, sun drenched, meadowland scene stands removed from a dark, churning, tearing, storming mass of trees and undergrowth. Listen to Spengler describe the fundamental difference between the Classical Apollonian world view and the Western Faustian world view. The difference between an ontology of physical objects and an ontology of pure space. The difference between an ontology of matter and an ontology of pure consciousness. The difference between the exaltation of reason and common sense and the exaltation of a driving, dynamic, force field of the will to power. Summarized by Aristotle and Kant respectively, it is the difference between the philosophy which affirms that perception is the perception of external existence and the philosophy which proclaims that perception is the perception of a subjective, apriori nullity and is an act of nonperception: "The actual designation of the Faustian principle, which belongs to us and to us alone, is a matter of indifference. A name is in itself mere sound. Space, too, is a word that is capable of being employed with a thousand nuances—by mathematicians and philosophers, poets and painters—to express one and the same indescribable; a word that is ostensibly common to all mankind and yet, carrying a metaphysical under meaning that we gave it and could not but give it, is in that sense valid only for our culture. It is not the notion of will, but the circumstance that we possess it while the Greeks were entirely ignorant of it, that gives it high symbolic import. At the very bottom, there is no distinction between space as depth and will. For the one, and therefore for the other also, the Classical languages had no expression. The pure space of the Faustian world picture is not mere extension, but efficient extension into the distance, as an overcoming of the merely sensuous, as a strain and tendency, as a spiritual will to power. I am fully aware how inadequate these periphrases are. It is entirely impossible to indicate in exact terms the difference between what we and what the men of the Indian or the Arabian Culture call space, or feel or imagine in the word. But that there is some radical distinction is proved by the very different fundamentals of the respective mathematics, arts of form, and, above all, immediate utterances of life. We shall see how the identity of space and will comes to expression in the acts of Copernicus and Columbus—as well as in those of the Hohenstaufen and Napoleon—but it underlies also, in another way, the physical notions of fields of force and potential, ideas that it would be impossible to convey to the comprehension of any Greek. 'Space as the apriori form of perception,' the formula in which Kant finally enunciated that for which Baroque philosophy had so long and tirelessly striven, implies an assertion of supremacy of soul over the alien; the ego, through the form, is to rule the world." (The Decline Of The West by Oswald Spengler, Chapter IX). Spengler's second achievement consists in his correct prediction of the decline and fall of the West. Spengler foresees the onset of the decline occurring in the twentieth century. He foresees the revival of religion. This has come to pass in the proliferation of gender, race and class politics, radical environmentalism and the doctrine of transgenderism which, one and all, reject the world of reason, truth, science, liberal order and human enlightenment. He foresees the degeneration of Faustian subjectivism into formalist decadence and the transformation of painting, music, sculpture, literature and architecture into expressions of license and disorder. This has come to pass and can be observed in the obliteration of the arts as these have been known and understood by civilized people for thousands of years. He foresees the rise of caesarism. This has come to pass in the rise of an executive, administrative state enforcing statism and socialism. It has come to pass in the rise of the Mussolinis, the Hitlers, the Roosevelts and the imperial presidencies enacting welfare entitlement states, mob rule, majoritarian tyranny, and sweeping away the liberal constitutional order. Students of history have discussed and debated Spengler's views in support of cultural determinism and cultural relativism and found them wanting. But they have praised Spengler's two unassailable empirical achievements. They have praised his identification of cultures as internally coherent units and been convinced by his portrayal, based upon a wealth of empirical data, of Western Faustian culture of the driving, relentless, subjective will, Classical Apollonian culture of reason, sanity and physical reality, Arabian Magian culture of the mystical, domed, overarching cavern, Chinese culture of the endless, aimless, wandering garden, Egyptian culture of the resolute march in two dimensions down the path of death, Russian culture of the boundless, horizontal steppe without upthrust or individuality of any kind, and Indian culture of the wet monsoon with its dreamy withdrawal from the outer world. They have praised Spengler's prediction of the doom of the Faustian West and have braced themselves for the crash.

TITLE DEED OF THE REDS

Ownership is defined as the general act, state or right of possessing something with or without qualification. In the West, the ownership of personal property such as a bicycle or an automobile, in contrast to the ownership of land, is absolute, unqualified and not subject to the rules of the state. Since the early years of the twentieth century, America has been the personal property of its red majority and has seen the reduction of its constitutional order to a dead letter. This is an ownership without rules, restraints, regulations or limitations of any kind and has transformed a constitutional republic predicated upon the rights of the individual into a mob controlled amphitheater presided over by an untrammelled caesar figure intent upon feeding the mob the raw flesh of envy, hatred, victimization and vengeance. Caesarism and mob rule: such is the fate of all civilizations in a state of decline and as it robbed the Roman world of its spirit and soul and ground its laws and institutions into dust, so it has descended upon the West and razed to the ground the West's preeminent arsenal of liberty, the American City Upon A Hill. The twenty first century has seen the culmination of the reds' attack on America's constitutional system and a look at the new dispensation is a look into a future which will see the physical collapse of the nation. The present century will be the final century of America and the forms and lineaments of the nation's coming collapse inundate the portals of the senses. This century has seen the presidential candidate of the Democratic Party, Joe Biden, receive 80 million votes, or 52 percent of the voting population, the largest majority ever given to a candidate openly advocating a "reset" to socialism and statism. It has seen the Republican Party lose the popular vote for the seventh time in the last eight presidential elections. It has seen the Democratic Party's reconstruction of its Blue Wall by winning back the 18 states it had won in the presidential elections from 1992 to 2012. The bulwark of red power, this Blue Wall consists of the following states plus the District of Columbia: California, New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Michigan, New Jersey, Washington. Massachusetts, Maryland, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Oregon, Connecticut, Hawaii, Maine, Rhode Island, Delaware and Vermont. It has seen the number of American who are beneficiaries of federal government programs, such as Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, the Affordable Care Act, food stamps, student loans, housing subsidies and affirmative action, expanding by the hour and by the minute. It has seen the top 50 percent in income of the population paying 97 percent of federal income taxes and the bottom 50 percent paying 3 percent. It has seen the onset of a virulent class war between the givers and the takers of wealth and value, between the producers and dynamos and the leeches and parasites of society. This dismal culmination of democratic mass civilization into the swamps and jungles of proletarian spoils and plunder was foreseen

by John C. Calhoun in the nineteenth century: "It must necessarily follow, that some one portion of the community must pay in taxes more than it receives back in disbursements; while another receives in disbursements more than it pays in taxes. The necessary result, then, of the unequal fiscal action of the government is, to divide the community into two great classes: one consisting of those who, in reality, pay the taxes, and, of course, bear exclusively the burden of supporting the government; and the other, of those who are the recipients of their proceeds, through disbursements, and who are, in fact, supported by the government. Or in fewer words, to divide it into taxpayers and tax consumers." John C. Calhoun, 1810). This century of America's collapse has seen campaigns to double the membership of the United States Supreme Court and pack it with radical judges and thereby neutralize and blow up the third branch of government. It has seen campaigns to grant citizenship and voting rights to illegal aliens. It has seen the proliferation of programs which mandate racial and gender discrimination in employment, education and contracting and the disenfranchisement of white males in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. It has seen the consolidation of an imperial presidency in which presidents have usurped congressional law making authority and created laws via executive orders and sent troops into foreign countries without a constitutionally mandated congressional declaration of war. It has seen the state in the name of social progress aspire to control the life of the individual, control the economy and intervene in the affairs of the world. It has seen the pervasive violation of private property rights in the transformation of private businesses into public property and places of public accommodation and the denial of the right of private business owners to trade with, employ and associate with whomever they choose. It has seen individual liberty placed under lockdown, shutdown, house arrest and government invasion of private homes in the name of protecting public health. It has seen a socialist antiindustrial revolution packaged as Medicare for All and a Green New Deal. Listen to the reds' attack on freedom of speech in the twenty first century and hear the sounds of totalitarian tyranny rising. Hear the voice of America, the voice of liberty, the beacon of freedom for Europe and the world, suppressed by red calls for censorship and speech controls. Hear the reds enforce politically correct speech as official government media policy. Hear the reds prohibit, as forms of hate speech and as incitements to hate, criticisms of the red hate universe, the red netherworld of radical feminism, black nationalism, Black Lives Matter, Antifa, Marxist class war, Islamic fanaticism and Islamic terror. Hear the reds laying down guardrails surging with 50,000 volts of government power, slicing through homes, schools, offices and businesses, and incinerating all those who challenge red narratives, red ideologies, red religions and red lies. Hear the reds launch an onslaught against one thousand years of liberal order, wipe out free speech from continent to continent, and place America into the model of Soviet style suppression. Hear the reds declaim that what the people need is less free speech and more ideological lockstep in the name of achieving social and political harmony. Hear the reds prevent the people from accessing the antired opposition and being exposed to truth and right condemning the march of unbridled power. Hear the reds denounce free speech offline, free speech online, free speech among friends, free speech next door, free speech around the corner, free speech at the other end of the earth, and free speech whenever and wherever they can find it, and empower their global agencies and global media empires to raze to the ground the shining legacy of the Enlightenment: a free world: "For those of us who have been critical of the growing antifree speech movement in the Democratic Party, the Biden transition team just took an ominous turn. The New York Post reports that Biden tapped Richard Stengel to take the 'team lead' position on the US Agency for Global Media, including Voice of America, the Middle East Broadcasting Networks and Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty. As I previously addressed in a column, Stengel has been one of the most controversial figures calling for censorship and speech controls. For a president elect who just called for everyone to 'hear each other,' he picked a top aide who wants to silence many. Since it would be difficult to select a more antifree speech figure to address government media policy, one has to assume that Biden will continue the onslaught against this core freedom as president. This is not the first Biden aide to indicate a crackdown on free speech in the new Administration and Biden himself has called for greater censorship on the Internet. Last year, Stengel wrote a chilling Washington Post op-ed that denounced free speech as a threat to social and political harmony. Like a number of liberal and Democratic figures, Stengel struggled to convince readers that what they need is less freedom: 'All speech is not equal. And where truth cannot drive out lies, we must add new guardrails. I'm all for protecting thought that we hate, but not speech that incites hate.' It is the European view that has destroyed free speech on that continent. It is a trend that seems now to be find support in the media, which celebrated the speech of French President Emmanuel Macron before Congress where he called on the United States to follow the model of Europe on hate speech. In January, Biden called for greater speech controls on the Internet and denounced Twitter for allowing others to speak freely. In insisted that tolerating such views in the name of free speech is same as 'propagating falsehoods they know to be false.' " (All Speech Is Not Equal': Biden Taps Anti Free Speech Figure For Transition Lead On Media Agency by Jonathan Turley). America is unique in the world. It is the only country founded upon moral and political ideals and not upon ties of blood or ethnicity. These moral and political ideals are the principles of limited government and man's individual rights as enshrined in a written constitution. If these principles and this constitution are rejected and swept away, the physical collapse of the nation will soon follow. In the twenty first century, after one hundred years of sustained bombardment and attack on America's founding document and ideals by ascendant red majorities, this nightmare reality has reared its evil head.

GENERAL LUDD AND HIS GREEN PARTY

In 1779 in Anstey, England, near Leicester, a weaver named Ned Ludd, shouting "death to machines!", took a hammer and smashed two stockingers. Beating these new mechanical knitting machines into a tangled mass, he banged his Devil's gavel and called to attention, called to order and commenced a fearsome and terrifying movement in the West. This was a movement of romanticism and reaction ranged against the march of science and technology and its leader is revered by his followers in the present day as a heroic captain, general and prophet of a religion which has captured the hearts and minds of masses. This is a religion whose temple is the air, the water, the trees and the animals and its infamous career began with the depredations of Ludd's people two centuries ago. The Luddites met at nights on the moors surrounding industrial towns, swore secret oaths, practiced military drills and maneuvers, and planned their attacks. Their first target was Nottinghamshire in 1811, followed by West Riding of Yorkshire in 1812, and Lancashire in 1813. Armed with sledgehammers, they smashed knitting machines, lacemaking machines and cropping frames, and attacked magistrates and food merchants. In 1817, armed with pykes, scythes and guns, they attacked the village of Pentrich in Derbyshire and smashed every machine they saw. In the wake of six years of Luddite attacks, thousands of machines were destroyed, thousands of factories were burned down, and dozens of factory owners were shot dead while trying to defend their sites. The majority of the British people supported the march of industrial progress and demanded that the British government suppress the Luddite movement. In response, in 1812, parliament passed the Frame Breaking Act which made industrial sabotage a capital crime. In 1813, the British government sent 14,000 army soldiers to fight the Luddites at Lancashire and held a mass trial of Luddites at York. The Luddites were found guilty and were hanged or sent to Australia for penal servitude. In the face of popular opposition and resolute government action, the movement soon dissolved. Listen to a newspaper account of the murder of factory owner William Horsfall at the hands of Luddites in the village of Marsden in West Yorkshire in 1812. Listen to an act of savagery committed in cold blood on a public road. Listen to the pistol shots of cultural retrogression assassinating the voices of manufacturing and modernity. Listen to barbarians smashing shearing machines and assaulting the people who work at them. Listen to machine destroyers attacking persons, property and the existence of civilization. Listen to the rampagers against mills, the perpetrators of crimes against humanity, the sworn enemies of a world which had ascended to undreamed of heights of prosperity and well being on the shoulders of reason, science, industry and technology: "On Tuesday evening last, about half past six o'clock, as Mr. WILLIAM HORSFALL, a very extensive Woollen Manufacturer, at Marsden, about seven miles from Huddersfield, was returning from the market at that place, he was assassinated on the public road, on Crossland Moor. The circumstances as stated to us by an eyewitness of this most barbarous Murder are these: Mr Horsfall and a Manufacturer of the name of Eastwood, had left Huddersfield together, and at a short distance before they came to the fatal spot, Mr Eastwood stopped to water his horse, while Mr. Horsfall rode leisurely along the road; soon after he had part the Warren Inn, a distance of about a mile and a half from Huddersfield, on the Manchester road, four men, each armed with a horse pistol, appeared in a small plantation, and placed the barrels of their pistols in apertures in the wall, apparently prepared for that purpose; the muzzle of two of these pieces Mr Horsfall distinctly saw, but before he had time to extricate himself from his perilous situation, they all four fired, and inflicted four wounds in the left side of their victim, who instantly fell from his horse, and the blood flowed from the wounds in torrents. A number of passengers, both horse and foot rushed almost instantly to the spot, and, after disentangling his foot from the stirrup, he was with some difficulty got to the Inn. The Murderers, after they had perpetrated the sanguinary deed, walked to the distance of some yards, and soon after briskening their speed, they ran towards Dungeon Wood, and entirely escaped undiscovered, no pursuit or search having been made after them, till the arrival of a troop of the Queen's Bays about three quarters of an hour afterwards. One of the Assassins is described to us as about 6 feet high, another as a low portly man, and the two others as about five feet six or seven inches high, and rather slender; they all wore dark coarse woollen cloth coats, and appeared to be working men. From a professional Gentleman, who was called in to visit Mr. Horsfall, we learn, that three of the wounds, out of the four, were slight, and unattended with danger, but the fourth, which was made by a musket ball, proved fatal to him. The ball struck the lower part of the belly on the left side; but did not appear to have entered the cavity. It passed behind the integuments, on obliquely downwards towards the right groin; and then penetrating the thigh, passed behind the bone towards the skin, whence it was extracted. He was much exhausted at first, by the loss of blood but on the following day (Wednesday,) was so far recruited as to afford some slight hopes of his recovery. In the course of Wednesday night, however, a fresh bleeding seemed to have taken place, and saw the thigh become largely swollen, with some appearance of incipient mortification. On Thursday morning, between eight and nine o'clock, he expired, having retained, till within a short time of his death, the perfect possession of his faculties. Mr Horsfall had a very large Woollen Manufactory at Marsden, wherein about 400 work people were employed; and in a part of his premises there are Shearing Machines, which have been erected about seven years and have attained considerable perfection; this circumstance, with the additional one of his unremitting activity in detecting, and bringing to justice the persons engaged in the attack at Rawfolds, and other Mills, had rendered him obnoxious in a high degree to the machine destroyers, who knowing his premises were too well defended to justify an attack on his property, committed a crime against his person, that will embitter every future day of their existence, and that will, in all probability, through the retributive justice of that Being, from whom no secrets are hid, bring the blood stained perpetrators of this worst of crimes, to an ignominious end. A reward of £2000 will, we understand, be offered immediately to any person who will give such information as will lead to the conviction of any one or more of the four men concerned in the murder of Mr. Horsfall." (April 30, 1812). In the late eighteenth century, Ned Ludd led his followers on a mission of mass destruction. Supported by Lord Byron and the romanticist worshipers of blood and soil, the Luddites rampaged across Britain and smashed their way down the corridors of history. Their specters and manifestations have appeared with increasing violence and intensity as the West moves closer to its collapse. They are the voices which condemn the march of progress as a regime of pesticide poisoning, radiation exposure, deforestation, urban sprawl, land and fishery depletion, and aggression against the earth. They have proclaimed that modern technology has run wild and must be eliminated. They have proclaimed that modern technology is a regime of toxic wastes, poisonous food irradiation, carcinogenic asbestos contamination and ecological devastation. They have proclaimed that industrial civilization is a dark, satanic chimney belching out carbon emissions which are incinerating the planet. They have proclaimed that modern technology is a juggernaut which frightens and threatens the people. They have proclaimed that modern industrial civilization has desacralized man's connection with the cosmos. They have proclaimed that modern industrial civilization has severed man's link with the earth and its wild roots. They have proclaimed that modern industry and technology have murdered the special, mystical life force which coursed through the soul of primitive man. They have proclaimed that human society must copy animal organization and sweep away all forms of civilization in order to save the environment. They have proclaimed that in order for any forms of life on earth to survive, all forms of advanced industry and high technology must be obliterated. They have proclaimed that the progress of industrialization, automation and digitalization has made virtuous, right thinking people unemployed, miserable and angry. Published in 1812 by Messrs Walker and Knight of London, a hand colored etching of Ned Ludd leading and his followers was a picture of reactionaries and romanticists fighting and clamoring against the legacy of the Enlightenment. Riding on ghostly rays through the passage of the decades, this picture has landed in the twenty first century and is an emblem of the decline and fall of the West.

REDS STEAL THE ELECTION

Transparency International is a nongovernmental organization whose purpose is to take action to combat global political corruption. The organization publishes the Global Corruption Barometer, which tracks public opinion on corruption, and the Corruption Perceptions Index, which ranks countries by their perceived levels of corruption. Fair minded, nonpartisan observers of corruption in the public sector have brought to the attention of the organization an operation which dwarfs all previous instances of corruption and ranks as the greatest criminal conspiracy to corrupt a political system in the history of nations. They have found the following facts which have filled their minds with fear and foreboding concerning the future of their nation and its continued viability as a legitimate, law based political entity. They have found a case of corruption which has composed a tragic inscription on the tombstone of a nation which once shined throughout the world as a model and exemplar, first among nations, of political integrity and liberal constitutional order. They have set forth their findings to their fellow citizens and to the people of every nation and have offered a sad, dismal, negative judgment concerning the survival and success of truth and justice in the political affairs of the world. They have found that the presidential campaign of Joe Biden stole the 2020 election. They have found that eight states, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan, Wisconsin, Arizona, Nevada, New Mexico and Virginia, were scenes of vote irregularities. They have found that there was an electronic manipulation of the vote through private contractors working for local and state election officials. They have found that large blocks of votes were entered into systems in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin and Georgia which eliminated or diminished Donald Trump's lead. They have found that fraudulent, defective ballots for Joe Biden were introduced after the election in Philadelphia, Detroit, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh and Atlanta and were counted illegally. They have found the operation of algorithms in vote tabulation software which produced fractional voting in favor of Biden. They have found the operation of Trump to Biden software in tabulation machines, and found that in Antrim County, Michigan, the software shifted 6,000 votes from Trump to Biden. They have found in Wisconsin and Michigan large dumps of votes cast exclusively for Biden, dumps which had been placed at the same time at 4 AM on November 4. They have found voter update logs which gave Trump and Biden equal numbers of votes in batches counted, which is a statistical impossibility. They have found in Michigan the application of an algorithm which discounted Trump votes and made him underperform in Republican precincts. They have found that the signatures on ballots did not match the signatures on file. They have found that Republican poll watchers were refused entrance into polling stations to examine the ballot counting. They have found that batches of ballots were run through voting machines multiple times to increase Biden totals. They have found the counting of votes of out of state residents which resulted in a 300 percent overcount of votes. They found that in Wisconsin, 100,000 illegal votes were cast as result of fraudulent use of the mail in ballots. They have found widespread intimidation of Trump voters. They have found truckloads of Biden only ballots arriving in the early hours of November 4 through the back doors of counting houses. They have found multitudes of ballots with the signatures of dead people. They have found absentee ballots coming from people who never requested them. They have found that voters for Biden were given the opportunity to correct flawed ballots while voters for Trump were not given the same opportunity. They have found that this unequal treatment of Biden voters and Trump voters to be in clear violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. They have found that Trump voters in Pittsburgh who arrived at the polls on November 3 were told that they had been listed as having already voted. They have an affidavit from an election worker in Michigan who said that she had been ordered by her supervisor to illegally backdate absentee ballots, to disregard signatures on absentee ballots, and to ignore disqualifying deficiencies in the ballots. They have an affidavit which claims that election workers were ordered not to request state mandated photo identification from Michigan voters. They have an affidavit which claims that election workers in Philadelphia had been ordered to randomly assign names to unidentified ballots with the result that people seeking to vote were told that their votes had already been cast. They have found that because of pervasive electronic and paper fraud in the vote counting, the election results in eight disputed states, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan, Wisconsin, Arizona, Nevada, New Mexico and Virginia, cannot be certified. Look at scenes from the 2020 presidential election and see a picture of crime splashed in dazzling technicolor. See ballots opened up and completed by Democratic Party operatives. See Democratic Party operatives preventing independent poll watchers from performing their duties. See ballot machines programmed to produce a Biden victory. See tabulation centers receiving bins, boxes and containers of forged ballots for Biden by the thousands in the dead of night while rejecting legitimate ballots cast for Trump. See a portrait of fraud and corruption which has incurred the opprobrium of honest people as it has placed election integrity in vaults with metal seals and cast it into the dustbin of failed states: "What might constitute even stronger evidence are the 400 affidavits submitted by eyewitnesses in swing states whose vote results are in dispute. These affiants have placed their observations on paper, from the fishy to the fraudulent. And, crucially, they have sworn that their statements are true, signed these documents, and notarized them—all under penalty of perjury and potential imprisonment. 'Affidavits are routinely accepted as evidence in federal courts,' said former Justice Department election integrity official J. Christian Adams, Esq. This is particularly true when affiants offer to bolster their affidavits through courtroom testimony. • 'I personally witnessed two people handing multiple unopened mail in ballot envelopes to two other people who then opened and filled out the ballots against the side of the Biden/Harris van,' said one Nevada affidavit. The name of the affiant, an employee of the Clark County Election Department, was redacted. 'The same two people who marked the ballots then put the marked ballots in official pink and white envelopes. These people were not poll workers.' Soon, the affiant swore, 'there were five or six additional people who formed a human wall, which moved as I walked by, apparently in an attempt to block my view of the four people who were opening envelopes, marking ballots, and placing those ballots in the pink and white return envelopes.' • 'On Tuesday, November 3, 2020 approximately 4:00 to 5:30 pm' John C. Palmer III recalled, 'I watched ten or more vehicles with out of state license plates drive up to the loading dock areas. I remember seeing Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Virginia, etc.' Palmer was a 'volunteer observer' stationed just outside Detroit's Department of Elections Building. 'I was shocked to see that the ballot machines were controlled by these individuals and not Michigan and/or Detroit residents,' Palmer continued. 'Many of these out of state people carried boxes with Dominion written on them from their vehicles.' • 'At approximately 4:03 am, a poll worker announced that 50 boxes of ballots were coming in. Election workers loudly cheered this announcement,' Republican challenger Articia Bomer swore. She was stationed at Detroit's TCF Center, where plenty seemed amiss. Especially in the wee small hours after Election Day—Michigan's most pivotal tabulation facility resembled a crime scene. • 'Large quantities of ballots were delivered to the TCF Center in what appeared to be mail bins with open tops,' poll challenger Daniel Gustafson affirmed. 'These ballot bins and containers did not have lids, were not sealed, and did not have the capability of having a metal seal. The ballot bins were not marked or identified in any way to indicate their source of origin.' • 'On Wednesday, November 4, 2020, Detroit election officials told us that they were going to process military ballots last,' challenger Robert Cushman observed. 'I was surprised to see numerous new boxes of ballots arrive at the TCF Center in the evening. I first noticed these boxes in the distribution area after many of the military ballots had been distributed and processed. I estimate these boxes contained several thousand new ballots when they appeared.' " (No Evidence of Vote Fraud! At Least 400 Affidavits Swear Otherwise by Deroy Murdock). In the presidential election of 2020, two colleges rendered their decisions. Drawn from the ranks of backdated ballots, systematic overcounting, blocked polling station inspections and dishonest vote counting systems, the Electoral College has chosen Joe Biden as president. Consisting of four hundred affidavits from Americans who witnessed or were asked to participate in criminal acts, the moral college has given victory to Donald Trump. Launched by the reds, a nationwide attack against two hundred years of free and fair election in America has made the early decades of the twenty first century the time of the nation's death rattle.

THE REDS OF SHERWOOD FOREST

An exemplar is a person who serves as a model of excellence of something. In any organization, the leader should serve as a model and exemplar of the organization's guiding principles and ideals. The proof positive of the constitutional affinity of the masses for socialism and their inbred contempt for the system of liberty is the story of a man whom the masses revere as one of their preeminent moral leaders, guides, representatives and exemplars. It is the story of an outlaw who lived in Sherwood Forest in the thirteenth century and fought for the rights of the proletarian underworld and outwitted the Sheriff of Nottingham, symbol of liberal, constitutional law and order. Dressed in garments of Lincoln green, Robin Hood was skilled in archery and his arrows of red agitation, red tub thumping and red ideological rectitude sailed through the towns and countryside of a free land, the only free land in Europe, captured the hearts and minds of those who hated their land of freedom and longed for a land of equality, sailed through the decades and centuries, speeded down the corridors of time and history, galvanized the refuse and riffraff rising to power in country after country, and landed in the twentieth century, at the end of its journey, to the wild acclaim of the new establishment which had finally assumed control over the West: the radical left mob. Sharpened at the front on the whetstones of gender, race and class politics and bristling with the feathers and vanes of red totalitarian terror at the back, the arrows shot eight centuries before from the bow of the Prince of Thieves in the royal forest of Nottinghamshire set forth the program and manifesto of a mass religion which has ruled the West for the past one hundred years. The best known figure in English folklore, Robin Hood pitched his appeal to the malcontented and discontented classes of English society; he was a faithful socialist and champion of redistribution; and in the forests fighting the royal sheriff protecting English liberty, his soul time traveled a millennium forward in history and merged into the soul of Karl Marx. This leader of the English peasant rabble, this crusader on behalf of the vengeful and hate filled cesspools of society, this political revolutionary, this socialist, this communist, this Marxist named Robin Hood has proclaimed the following. He has proclaimed that a progressive society is a single class society, a society in which only the proletariat are allowed to exist, and in which those who are skilled, talented, intelligent, ambitious and successful have been exterminated. He has proclaimed that a progressive society has eliminated private ownership of property and mandated state ownership of the people. He has proclaimed that a progressive society exalts equality above liberty and has reduced human beings to the level of rightless resources and means of production in the service of the state. He has proclaimed that a progressive society has transformed all property into communal property, all labor into communal labor, and placed the life and thought of the individual under the surveillance and control of the government. He has proclaimed that the true working class is the class of unskilled, bestial, muscular laborers and this class must rise up and take back the profits stolen from them by the skilled, entrepreneurial bourgeois. He has proclaimed that a progressive society is a slave society in which everyone is forced to support the state and receives from the state his bare subsistence. He has proclaimed that a progressive society is a dictatorship of the mob which has seized control over all businesses and estates and over all aspects of life and has suppressed the voices of dissent. He has proclaimed that a progressive society has nationalized the soil in the name of land reform and indoctrinated the people in the name of education for all. He has proclaimed that in a progressive society nobody has claim to anything, the fruits of all labor and production are given over to the state, and the class of moral filth and vermin are supported on the backs of the producers in the name of social justice and welfare entitlement. He has proclaimed that a progressive society has established public ownership over the mind and body, instituted class war to eliminate those who seek to think and work for themselves, and has forced everyone to work for the state according to his abilities and has paid him the minimum amount necessary to satisfy his vegetative needs. He has proclaimed that capitalism is a system of poverty, immiseration and exploitation of the working class and must be replaced by a regime of state control over all thinking, feeling, creating, producing, distributing, trading, living, walking, talking and breathing. Look at the exploits of Robin Hood and see a vivid prefigurement of the communist party line. See an outlaw who robs from the producers and gives to the nonproducers and calls it the justice for the oppressed. See a populist who has declared war against law and order and individual rights. His war has shot and blasted its way through the ages, flooded the streets of civilized societies with rivers of blood and tears, composed hymns of praise for the killing of the innocent, and placed them on the pages of the reds' textbooks and on a gravestone marked: Western Civilization: "There is a communist directive in education now to stress the story of Robin Hood because he robbed the rich and gave it to the poor. That's the communist line. It's just a smearing of law and order and anything that disrupts law and order is their meat. To take from the rich and give to the poor is a favorite communist policy. Because I'm trying to get communist writers out of textbooks, my name is mud. Evidently I'm drawing blood or they wouldn't make such an issue out of it." (This Day In History, November 13, 1953, in history.com, quoting Ada White, Indiana Textbook Commission). Look at the bold and daring feats of Robin Hood. See a campaign of proletarian violence centuries before the world knew the word proletarian. See a campaign to establish a system of serfdom in the name of the people which would dwarf all previous systems of serfdom. See the most evil and most vile of fruits hanging in the gardens of Satan. These are the fruits marked friends and comrades in murder and robbery, criminals let loose from jail cells, raids conducted on private homes and businesses, the solidarity of sociopaths and psychopaths ranged against the armies of justice and right, the flotsam and jetsam of the town and country burying liberal rules and ideals, underworld rebellions staged against good government and independent brigades of outcasts and wanted criminals pushing the law off its throne and assuming the station of lords and masters of the earth. These products of moral and psychological degeneracy raised in the hothouses of Robin Hood grew to frightening, monstrous proportions over the centuries. The bows and arrows shot by the Grand Archer of Sherwood Forest have evolved in the present day into the bombs and missiles of gender, race and class politics. The latter's hammers, sickles and swastikas are the intensified swords of Robin Hood and have cut out the soul of civilization: "Bows Against the Barons is deliciously of its time. When Trease said it was a Marxist account of Robin Hood as a people's rebellion, he wasn't joking. I've not read the 1934 edition before. The serfdom Trease describes is closer to the slavery of the American South, and he easily drops in a reference to the strange fruit hanging from the trees at the edge of the forest. Robin Hood asks Dickon to call him 'comrade' and the outlaws plan a raid on the town jail, while the castle figures as a Bastille. The townsfolk preach the solidarity of Norman and Saxon against the Masters, and country and town against all. When the outlaws begin their attack, it looks much like the guerrilla warfare of the Italians which Trease was to fictionalize in Follow My Black Plume. In chapter eight, Hammers and Sickles, when Dickon is rescued from the Foresters, it is by the people of the village who rise up, 'Thank these people,' grinned the outlaw. 'It was hammers and sickles did it today.' says Alan-a-Dale. 'Ay, hammers and sickles,' broke in the blacksmith, 'and if every man who used hammer or sickle used it as we've done, there's soon be an end of masters.' 'And an end of swords, too,' said a woman. 'It's the masters who make the wars, not us.' I know this book was reedited but I wasn't sure for what edition, so ordered the 1948 as it claimed to be a New Edition, not a reprint. In the edition of 1948 which I have to hand, chapter eight has been retitled, Friends in Need and that last section reads as follows: 'Thank these people,' grinned the outlaw. 'It was they did it, today, not the bows and bills of Sherwood.' 'Ay, the people,' broke in the blacksmith. 'and if every man who used tools used it as we've done, there's soon be an end of masters.' 'And an end of swords, too,' said a woman. 'It's the masters who make the wars, not we.' I begin to see why Trease doesn't seem to have had much of a following in the US." (treaseproject.livejournal.com). In Dives And Pauper, a commentary on the Ten Commandments written in the fifteenth century, the author complains that "people would rather listen to tales and songs of Robin Hood than attend Mass." The Master of Sherwood Forest had indeed established a new religion of Society which displaced God in heaven as the dictator of mankind and won the allegiance of the lower classes. Born in the forests of free ranging criminality packaged as progressive politics, Robin Hood's black gospel of state power and confiscation is the defining ethos of our time and the dismal epitaph of the West.

ENGLAND'S EARLY REDS

A negative is a photographic image on film which shows the light, darkness and color values reversed from the original. In the inexpressible tragedy of cultural senescence, in the fearsome and terrifying picture of the decline and fall of the West, the present century presents a negative image, a stark and unequivocal reversal, of an original exposed during the springtime, youth and vibrancy of the culture. In the present century, submerged in the sewers of mass politics and overtaken by the currents of red totalitarian tyranny in all of its varieties of gender, race and class factionalism, the voices of dissent are the upholders of liberal democratic order whose fulcrum and centerpiece is the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual. In the seventeenth century in England, by contrast, the moral and political establishment upheld and enforced the traditional Anglo-Saxon system of liberty, while the voices of dissent were the various movements of socialism. Declaring war against the world of traditional England, against the world of private right and private property protected by the Royalists, the Stuarts, the Cromwells and the Fairfaxes of the time, these early English reds set forth a program and manifesto for the establishment of a society successfully popularized and proselytized centuries later by a German refugee with a pass to the reading room of the British Museum: Karl Marx. These seventeenth century preMarxist reds proclaimed that a progressive society has smashed the chains of capitalism and reclaimed the freedom of tribal submission. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system of slavery to property and must be replaced by the use of force and violence which will seize private lands and transform the individual into a slave of the common good. They proclaimed that a progressive society is a one class, proletarian, collectivist society which has rejected the liberal order of human rights established by the Norman Conquest. They proclaimed that a progressive society is a radical democracy and people's commune which has defied the landlords, the army and the law and placed its inhabitants under the control of a private government. They proclaimed that a progressive society is a people's liberation labor army which has crushed individual liberty beneath its brutal, blazing charges and stampedes. They proclaimed that a progressive society is a mutiny of the underclasses against the authority of morality and the law. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is a band of radicals who have overthrown reason, truth and liberty in the name of free thought and secular values. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is an agreement among the people to do away with private spheres of existence and establish common ownership of the mind and body. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is a people's republic constituted of the lowest social classes which are steeled and disciplined to brutally suppress the voices of capitalist deviation. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is an alliance of radical idealists for the cause of universal enslavement and rejection of the modern capitalist economy. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is a primitive communist society in which every thought, feeling, blood pulse and heart beat of the individual is held in common by the people. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has abolished the freedom of the individual and enforced the rule that every person and his property belong to all people as a right. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is a commonwealth of the mob which wields absolute power without the intervention of the law, the courts or officers of the peace. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has made it a crime against humanity to be talented and successful and seized all private property and redistributed it into the hands of the inept and the incompetent. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is formed when a spontaneous outbreak of mob rule has placed republican commissars in charge of the state and economy. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is governed by a people's constitution which consists in a series of demands that the class of talented, ambitious, dynamic, intelligent people hand over all their wealth and property to the shiftless, bacterial scum who have been installed upon the thrones of power. They have proclaimed that people who manage their own businesses constitute a class of parasites, leeches and exploiters of the people and must be ruthlessly put down and expropriated in a civil war. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is a socialist imperialist society which has overthrown the power and authority of liberal constitutions and established a global dictatorship in the name of freedom and equality. Listen to the voices of England's early reds and hear their demands that the moral vermin and filth of the world live well and comfortably on land seized from the creators and producers. Hear their demands that those without purpose or ambition become the landlords of the earth and feed off the honest toilers. Hear their demands that the principles of justice and morality be turned on their head and criminals be set free from jails, the producers of wealth be placed behind bars, and the state be granted a license to ransack and plunder in the name of making the planet the commons of the people and safeguarding rights of the poor. Hear their program of socialist tyranny and oppression marching under the banners of freedom, community and Mother Earth: "Take notice, That England is not a Free People till the Poor that have no land have a free allowance to dig and labor the Commons, and so live as comfortably as the landlords that live in their enclosures. For the people have not laid out their monies and shed their blood that their landlords, the Norman Power, should still have its liberty and freedom to rule in tyranny, but that the Oppressed might be set free, prison doors opened, and the Poor People's heart comforted by an universal consent of making the Earth a Common Treasury, that they may live together united by brotherly love into one spirit, and having a comfortable livelihood in the Community of one Earth their Mother." (The True Levelers Standard Advanced by Gerard Winstanley). Listen to the voices of England's early reds and hear their demands that the worthless, contemptible dregs of society become the lords of the manor and the lords of the earth. Hear their demands that beggars and thieves become dukes and barons and those who earn their daily bread become their servants and slaves. Hear their demands that the earth be dug up and plowed over by human appearing swine and reduced to a moral, spiritual and economic wasteland. Hear their demands that the society bow down before the King of Evil and the Prince of Darkness, banish justice and righteousness from the land, and make rivers flow with the blood of the innocent in the name of social justice and the rights of the working class: "We whose names are subscribed, do in the name of all the poor oppressed people of England, declare unto you who call yourselves Lords of Manors and Lords of the Land, that the King of Righteousness, our Maker, has enlightened our hearts so far as to see that the Earth was not made purposely for you to be Lords of it, and we to be your Slaves, Servants and Beggars, but it was made to be a common livelihood to all. And further, the King of Righteousness has made us aware of our burdens, and the cries and groanings of our hearts have come before Him, we take it as a testimony of love from Him, that our hearts begin to be freed from slavish fear of men such as you are, and that we find Resolutions in us, grounded upon the Inward Law of Love one towards another, to dig and plow up the Commons and Waste Land through England. And that our conversations shall be so unblamable that your Laws shall not reach to oppress us any longer, unless you by your Laws will shed the innocent blood that runs in our veins." (A Declaration From The Poor And Oppressed People Of England by Gerard Winstanley). In seventeenth century England, a counterculture emerged which challenged the nation's founding principles and ideals. It dug a dark road and paved it with the asphalt of envy, jealousy, hatred and victimhood. It covered it with the stones of community ownership and the bricks of self immolation. Its unholy engineers in the service of communist slavery were the Diggers and the Levelers of the realm. This was the road not taken and the revolution not commenced by the English. It faded into oblivion before the people's cheering adulation of freedom. For three centuries, the vitriol peddled by this movement led by Gerard Winstanley and William Everard was an object of national mockery and scorn. Then in the twentieth century, this satanic sulfuric acid wafting down the corridors of history from England's first malarial fever swamps burned up the nation. Making common cause with their Marxist fellow travelers, England's first socialists have come alive and composed the final act of their land.

MINISTER ERHARD

A miracle is an event which is not explicable in terms of law. It is an improbable, impossible and amazing development which is cheered on and welcomed by the people. On August 14, 1949, the day of the first free elections in West Germany after the era of the Third Reich, a miracle occurred. On this day, in the district of Baden-Wurttemberg, a staunch, principled antired was elected to the federal parliament and was appointed federal minister of economic affairs. He held this position for the next fourteen years and during this time, he spread freedom throughout a land which for centuries had known only various stripes of red philosophy and been sullied by the rule of the Bismarckian redshirts, the Marxist redshirts and the national socialist redshirts. During this postwar period, Minister Ludwig Erhard established the most extensive program of liberalization and deregulation in modern times and transformed Germany into the freest nation in Europe. Erhard sought to enact his vision for the future of Germany, a future in which free individuals would prosper and flourish through their energy and initiative untrammelled by the chains of slavery to social justice and social responsibility. Abolishing price controls, rescinding tariffs, reducing corporate and personal income taxes, championing a sound currency and creating the deutsche mark, and unleashing a wave of business deregulation, Erhard inspired the voices of liberalism throughout the world and gave them spirit and courage against the rising tides of a red onslaught, in the form of welfare statism, Third Wayism, and gender, race and class politics, which would soon engulf them. Listen to the voice of a historic champion of the capitalist system. Listen to his rejection of economic restrictions championed by the reds and his songs in praise of personal freedom and private markets. Listen to his rejection of cradle to grave welfare security as a policy which enslaves the individual from the moment of his birth and reduces him to a ward of the state. Listen to his worship of the individual, with all his rights, freedoms, dignity, energy, effort, enterprise, intelligence, initiative and foresight, and his condemnation of public policies which subordinate the individual to a social economy and to a red totalitarian monolith: "I have repeatedly stressed that I consider personal freedom to be indivisible. With this conviction I have worked since 1948 to reduce all economic restrictions. A free economic order can only continue if and so long as the social life of the nation contains a maximum of freedom, of private initiative and of foresight. If, on the other hand, social policy aims at granting a man complete security from the hour of birth, and protecting him absolutely from the hazards of life, then it cannot be expected that people will develop that full measure of energy, effort, enterprise and other human virtues which are vital to the life and future of the nation, and which, moreover, are the prerequisites of a social market economy based on individual initiative. The close link between economic and social policy must be stressed; in fact, the more successful economic policy can be made the fewer measures of social policy will be necessary." (Prosperity Through Competition by Ludwig Erhard). Listen to the voice of a preeminent defender of a free social, spiritual, material and economic order. Listen to his radiant love of liberty and liberty's world of private markets, private initiative, private planning, private provision and private responsibility. Listen to his exceptional wisdom which taught the world, the wisdom which understands that the system of socialism, social security, social insurance and social distribution is a system of compulsion and coercion of the individual and has no place in a civilized, law based, human order: "If we desire to guarantee a permanent free economic and social order, then it becomes essential to achieve freedom with an equally freedom loving social policy. That is why, for example, it is contradictory to exclude from the market economic order private initiative, foresight and responsibility, even when the individual is not in a material position to exercise such virtues. Economic freedom and compulsory insurance are not compatible." (Prosperity Through Competition by Ludwig Erhard). Listen to a voice of conscience and hear its condemnation of socialism as the destroyer of rational happiness and rational well being. Hear its condemnation of social solidarity as a social danger and the path to an aggressive, omnipotent, all pervasive state. Hear its condemnation of mass politics with its sacrifice of freedom upon the altar of security and its regime of total enslavement. Hear its condemnation of the welfare state with its abolition of self responsibility, self management, self direction, self care, self help and a human way of life: "This danger must be energetically countered. More differences of opinion exist on this point than on any other problem. Some say that the happiness and well being of the people are based on some form of general solidarity, and that one should progress along this path at the end of which, of course, stands the power of the state. The calm and comfortable life so pursued might not perhaps be luxurious, but it would be all the more secure. This form of living and thinking is visibly expressed in the so-called welfare state. On the other hand, the natural efforts of the individual to be thrifty on his own account and to think of his future, his family and his old age cannot be abolished—even if great efforts have been made indirectly to kill the human conscience." (Prosperity Through Competition by Ludwig Erhard). Listen to a sworn enemy of welfare security and an implacable foe of slavery in the social sphere. Listen to him champion liberty and self responsibility and declare war against the dark and gloomy swamplands of collectivism. Listen to his condemnation of the mass enthusiasm, the mass excitement, the mass obsession, the mass blindness, the mass ignorance, the mass delusion, the mass fever and the mass mental illness which deny the existence of flesh and blood individuals with rights, freedoms and dignity all their own and with responsibilities toward nobody except themselves. Listen to his condemnation of the reds' exaltation of a mystical state which floats far above the individual and is granted the right to expropriate the individual, confiscate his wealth, regiment his thoughts and actions, and reduce him to a ward and slave of the social organism. Listen to his exaltation of the virtues which make man human, the virtues of purpose, planning, production, achievement, self empowerment, self responsibility, self provision and self perfection, and his condemnation of the moral antiuniverse of the reds. This is a universe in which the mob has placed its paws around the wealth of the producers, and ground and crushed the streets of civilized societies, and exalts hatred of talent, ability, work and success as the highest virtues known to man. This is a universe based upon proletarian class supremacy and is without humanity, soul, freedom or conscience of any kind. This is a universe expressed in the form of a relentless, fire breathing, triple headed monster, marked gender, race and class politics, which has incinerated liberal constitutional order and defined the term disaster in the final days of the West: "In recent times I have frequently been alarmed by the powerful call for collective security in the social sphere. Where shall we get to and how are we to maintain progress if we increasingly adopt a way of life in which no one wants any longer to assume responsibility for himself and everyone seeks security in collectivism? I have drastically described this flight from responsibility when I said that if this mania increases we shall slide into a social order under which everyone has one hand in the pocket of another. The principle would then be: I provide for someone else and someone else provides for me. The blindness and the intellectual inertia which are pushing us towards a welfare state can only bring disaster. This, more than any other tendency, will serve slowly but surely to kill the real human virtues—joy in assuming responsibility, love for one's fellow being, an urge to prove oneself and a readiness to provide for oneself—an in the end there will probably ensue not a classless but a soulless mechanical society." (Prosperity Through Competition by Ludwig Erhard). It is said that miracles occur only once in a lifetime. In the lifetime of postwar Germany, a miracle occurred and will be the final miracle in the nation. This was the miracle of a public figure who fearlessly championed libertarian philosophy and ascended to the heights of political power. He sent out a message which the mob did not want to hear and would soon shout down. He sent out a message which proclaimed that collectivism is vicious nonsense, that social responsibility is a superstition, that social justice is a fiction, that central planning is a state yoke around the people, that business regulations are an act of state invasion, that welfare support payments are products of state aggression, that state enterprises have no place in a free society, and that envy, jealousy and wealth redistribution are the essence of evil. This message was the official policy of Germany under the guidance of its minister of economic affairs, Ludwig Erhard. The policy would last for fourteen years, Erhard's tenure in office, from 1949 to 1963. After this, Germany fully joined the welfare states of the West and accelerated down the path of the West's decline.

THE REDS' BIG THREE

Triplets are one of three children or animals born at the same birth. They are extremely rare, occurring in one in 10,000 pregnancies. During World War II, to the shock and dismay of civilized people throughout the world, something happened which they hoped and prayed and never imagined in their worst nightmares would ever happen. Triplets were born in the heart of the Europe, born of a red mother and a red father, and they went on to make a mockery of the war and make it the most meaningless and evil war ever fought in the history of mankind. These triplets were America, Britain and the Soviet Union, and they formed a Grand Alliance to defeat Germany. They were born of the same parents, the red mobs which had assumed control over the world at the dawn of the twentieth century, and they shared the same political and ideological aims: the destruction of human freedom within the charnel houses of proletarian class politics. These satanic triplets formed a natural alliance against their rival brother socialist power in Germany, which championed totalitarian terror in the name of the race and not the class. Civilized people who studied the nature and character of the members of the Allied powers knew exactly why they had joined together. They saw what the Soviet Union was and always had been, and saw what America and Britain had recently become under the pressures of the mob, and they saw behind them and looming over them the shadow of their fearsome and terrifying progenitor: the figure and spirit of Karl Marx. The founder of communism reigned from day one in the Soviet Union. Civilized people listened to his words and heard the clacking footsteps and the rattling chains of Satan who had come to earth looking for souls to snatch. They listened to the words of Marx's premier henchman, Joseph Stalin, leader of the Soviets during the time of the Grand Alliance, who set out a program and manifesto for the overthrow of the magnificent legacy of the Enlightenment: the order of human reason and human liberty. Stalin proclaimed that a progressive society is a collectivist society which has cut down the individual with its firing squads, its people's farms and its five year plans. He proclaimed that a progressive society is a plundering society which seizes the wealth flowing from the springs of intelligence and ability and hoards it in its people's warehouses, grain stores and silos. He proclaimed that a progressive society is a radical society which has rejected the bourgeois system of individual liberty and turned toward socialism, slavery and government regimentation. He proclaimed that a progressive society is an army of people's hoodlums on the field and in reserve who triumphed over the forces of law and morality. He proclaimed that a progressive society is a stateless, lawless society which is guided and controlled by the people's mobs, the people's bosses, the people's soviets and the people's parties who have committed mass depredations, mass terror, mass upheavals and mass murder in the name of justice for the working class:

"The Soviet government's successes in the sphere of the collective farm movement are now being spoken of by everyone. Even our enemies are forced to admit that the successes are substantial. And they really are very great. It is a fact that by February 20 of this year 50 per cent of the peasant farms throughout the USSR had been collectivized. That means that by February 20, 1930, we had overfulfilled the five year plan of collectivization by more than 100 per cent. It is a fact that on February 28 of this year the collective farms had already succeeded in stocking upwards of 36,000,000 centners, i.e., about 220,000,000 poods, of seed for the spring sowing, which is more than 90 per cent of the plan. It must be admitted that the accumulation of 220,000,000 poods of seed by the collective farms alone—after the successful fulfillment of the grain procurement plan—is a tremendous achievement. What does all this show? That a radical turn of the countryside towards socialism may be considered as already achieved. There is no need to prove that these successes are of supreme importance for the fate of our country, for the whole of the working class, which is the directing force of our country, and, lastly for the Party itself. To say nothing of the direct practical results, these successes are of immense value for the internal life of the Party itself, for the education of our Party. They imbue our Party with a spirit of cheerfulness and confidence in its strength. They arm the working class with confidence in the victory of our cause. They bring forward additional millions of reserves for our Party." (Dizzy With Success by Joseph Stalin). Civilized people listened to the words of President Franklin Roosevelt who proclaimed the primacy of state power over individual freedom. Who advocated government ownership of the individual and the advancement of majoritarian tyranny in the name of social inclusion and a progressive people's democracy. Who advocated government control of the business system in the name of the liberty for the proletariat. Who advocated equal distribution of income, earnings, goods and services in the name of social justice. Who advocated community ownership of labor and capital in the name of social equity. Who advocated government control of planning and production in the name of economic effectiveness. Who advocated guaranteed lifetime state employment and make work for all. Who advocated the concentration of power and wealth into the hands of the state and the repeal of one thousand years of liberal constitutional order as the path to securing the rights of the sewers, the cesspools, the rabble and the riffraff of society: "Unhappy events abroad have retaught us two simple truths about the liberty of a democratic people. The first truth is that the liberty of a democracy is not safe if the people tolerate the growth of private power to a point where it becomes stronger than their democratic state itself. That, in its essence, is fascism--ownership of government by an individual, by a group, or by any other controlling private power. The second truth is that the liberty of a democracy is not safe, if its business system does not provide employment and produce and distribute goods in such a way as to sustain an acceptable standard of living. Both lessons hit home. Among us today a concentration of private power without equal in history is growing. This concentration is seriously impairing the economic effectiveness of private enterprise as a way of providing employment for labor and capital and as a way of assuring a more equitable distribution of income and earnings among the people of the nation as a whole. Today many Americans ask the uneasy question: Is the vociferation that our liberties are in danger justified by the facts? Today's answer on the part of average men and women in every part of the country is far more accurate than it would have been in 1929 for the very simple reason that during the past nine years we have been doing a lot of common sense thinking. Their answer is that if there is that danger, it comes from that concentrated private economic power which is struggling so hard to master our democratic government. It will not come, as some of the possessors of that private power would make the people believe--from our democratic government itself." (Message To Congress On The Concentration Of Economic Power by Franklin Roosevelt, April 29, 1938). Civilized people listened to the words of Winston Churchill who rejected the indigenous liberalism of his Anglo-Saxon nation and championed the omnipotent state of socialism. Who exalted state enterprise above private enterprise and peddled political tyranny packaged as social effort. Who proclaimed that a progressive society is a red totalitarian nightmare which has abolished individual rights and enacted universal enslavement in the name of help for the poor, the young, the sick, the aged, the shiftless and the idle: "And we are all agreed, every one in this hall who belongs to the Progressive Party, that the state must increasingly and earnestly concern itself with the care of the sick and the aged, and, above all, of the children. I look forward to the universal establishment of minimum standards of life and labor, and their progressive elevation as the increasing energies of production may permit. I do not think that liberalism in any circumstances can cut itself off from this fertile field of social effort, and I would recommend you not to be scared in discussing any of these proposals, just because some old woman comes along and tells you they are socialistic. If you take my advice, you will judge each case on its merits. Where you find that state enterprise is likely to be ineffective, then utilize private enterprises, and do not grudge them their profits." (Liberalism And The Social Problem by Winston Churchill). While the capitals of America, Britain and Russia were separated by thousands of kilometers, nothing whatever separated the ideologies which ruled these nations at the time of the Grand Alliance. Communicating by telephone, telegraph and rare in person meetings, Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin formed a single, monolithic being which loomed across the sky. This being was the mob with its passion for equality above liberty, its exaltation of welfare above freedom, its worship of security above dignity, and its dark, swirling currents of envy and hatred directed toward the doers, the dynamos and the achievers of the world. On New Year's Day in 1942, this mighty mob sky being composed of three nations signed the United Nations' Declaration, which pledged to defeat the fascist Axis Powers. What ensued was a classic internecine struggle. It was a struggle conducted between two brother collectivist ideologies: between the Allied powers championing communist collectivism, and the Axis powers championing racialist collectivism. The victory of the Allies brought about the world wide victory of communism: communist welfare statism, enacted in America and Britain, and communist totalitarianism, which ruled over the Soviet Union. The conclusion of World War II brought about the collectivisation of the planet under the terrifying symbols of the hammer and sickle and the welfare state. Civilized people understood that victorious communism had written the epitaph of the West.

FRAUDULENT ELECTION IN A FAILED STATE

A failed state is defined by political scientists as a state whose political system has become so weak that the law is no longer in control. A failed state has disintegrated, is no longer sovereign and no longer functions properly. America in the twenty first century has followed in the footsteps of all great nations in decline throughout history and descended into the senescence of a failed state. Civilized people have seen the past and future of America telescoped in the present period, in the first instance as a tragic culmination of past developments, and in the second instance, as a terrifying prediction of a future soon to come, and are awaiting the imminent arrival of the final act and bracing themselves for a violent collapse. Civilized people have heard the dismal theme of America played over and over again during the past one hundred years, played in every corner of the state and society, and blasted into the mind and heart of every man, woman and child. This is the theme which has guided the dark, satanic symphony accompanying and heralding the implosion of all civilizations throughout history. This is the theme of lawlessness. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, it has risen in a crescendo across America and climaxed in the present day in a deafening din and racket of unconstitutional state actions, pervasive street violence and national electoral fraud. Civilized Americans have seen lawlessness in the rise of social regulations on business peddled as progressivism and in violation of the constitution's substantive due process clauses protecting freedom of contract and enterprise. They have seen lawlessness in the rise of welfare entitlements and social security peddled in the name of a New Deal and in violation of the constitution's substantive due process guarantees of liberty and property. They have seen lawlessness in the rise of antidiscrimination laws which violate the constitution's substantive due process guarantees of freedom of association and private property. They have seen lawlessness in the rise of feminist star chambers in which men accused of sexual assault are presumed guilty as charged, are convicted on the basis of an accusation or a series of accusations, and are sentenced to life imprisonment on the charge of improperly touching adult women. They have seen the rise of feminist ideological chambers masquerading as courts of law which violate the constitution's guarantees of a fair trial and its prohibition of convictions of false and frivolous charges. They have seen lawlessness in the rise of speech codes and the enforcement of politically correct thought and opinion, which violate the constitution's guarantees of freedom of speech and expression. They have seen lawlessness in the rise of affirmative action programs which give preferential treatment to women, nonwhites, homosexuals and transgenders in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion, which violate the constitution's prohibitions on discrimination and its guarantees of equal protection under the law. They have seen lawlessness in the rise of rampages of arson, looting, shooting, vandalism and street occupations conducted with impunity in cities from coast to coast by Antifa and Black Lives Matter, organizations promoting Marxist and national socialist hate ideologies. They have seen, amidst the screeching, jarring cacophony and hubbub of present day lawlessness, the greatest act of political corruption ever committed in the history of the nation. Committed in order to ensure that government by the reds, for the reds and of the reds shall be consolidated forever and that the reds' rule of the mob shall enjoy untrammelled sway over the American republic, this act was the theft of the 2020 presidential election by the Democratic Party. Civilized people have studied documents and dossiers describing electoral irregularities which have dwarfed all previous acts of fraud committed in the history of mankind, acts which have inscribed the distilled essence of lawlessness and corruption upon the tombstone of the American nation. They have seen in that Georgia that 140,000 ballots were cast by people who did not reside in the state, 44,000 legal ballots cast by Republican voters were not counted, and Dominion voting machines and Smartmatic software manufactured votes tens of thousands of votes for Joseph Biden. They have seen in Arizona that election observers were prevented from verifying the ballots being counted. They have seen affidavits from certified poll watchers in Pennsylvania which state the following: USB drives, containing data from precinct scanners, were uploaded to computers with no outside oversight; Republican poll watchers were prevented from entering counting centers; envelopes were separated from ballots and placed at the back of counting rooms in an attempt to render impossible recounts to certify the validity of the votes; warehouse supervisors uploaded thousands of votes for Joe Biden; and fifty USB drives and tens of thousands of mail in ballots went missing. Civilized people have seen the pretense of an election staged by the reds in November 2020. They have heard witnesses attest that they were prevented from observing the vote counting. They have seen that more mail in ballots were returned than were sent out. They have seen that hundreds of thousands of ballots cast for Biden appeared suddenly out of nowhere, while hundreds of thousands of ballots cast for Trump suddenly vanished into nothingness. They have seen that hundreds of thousands of mail in ballots were processed without third party observation, oversight, opportunity to challenge decisions, or proper chain of custody protocols enforced. They have seen an election managed and conducted to produce a result favorable to the reds in their quest to sweep away two hundred years of constitutional fairness, honesty, integrity and law: "Yes, there was serious, widespread fraud in the 2020 Pennsylvania election. 'The time for dithering and politics is over,' declared Senator Mastriano, who quickly introduced the Trump campaign's legal counsel, former New York Mayor Rudy Giuliani. Giuliani began with a blunt summary: 'Your election was a sham. A disgrace.' Giuliani then introduced the list of over a dozen witnesses, with groups of three appearing on a series of panels. The witnesses had been stationed in counting centers in Philadelphia, Allegheny, Montgomery, and Delaware counties. (Allegheny is home to Pittsburgh, Montgomery and Delaware are suburban Philadelphia). Members of the committee followed with questions, the hearing lasted almost four hours. The common thread with all the witnesses were repeated details of allegedly being blocked from observing the vote counting, and also the revelation that allegedly more mail in ballots were returned than were sent out, that hundreds of thousands of ballots suddenly appeared in a spike while others suddenly disappeared. For example, in Delaware County, said a witness, all chain of custody data had mysteriously vanished. Another witness, this one from Philadelphia, said 'The Philadelphia board of elections processed hundreds of thousands of mail in ballots with zero civilian oversight or observation. The board of elections erected a fence about 50 feet into the hall that ran the length of the room, all observers were corralled behind the fence. More than a hundred board workers processed and opened mail in ballots on the other side of fence. Due to the distance of the workers from the erected fences, it was impossible for me or any observer to see what the workers were doing with any type of specificity. The observers were not able to challenge any decision or determination being made about the processing of these mail in ballots.' When he called in, the President said this to his supporters: 'If you were a Republican poll worker you were treated like a dog. Our poll watchers were pushed out of the building.' And in a reference to the threats that have been made against both his legal team and witnesses he said 'don't be intimidated by these people.' One Trump lawyer had to have protection after being threatened by, you can't make this up, a lawyer at another firm. The president made it absolutely crystal clear that he was about overturning a fraudulent election. He added that there were 'many, many cases of fraud. They cheated. It was a fraudulent election. This election was rigged and we can't let that happen. We can't let it happen for our country. And this election has to be turned around, because we won Pennsylvania by a lot and we won all these swing states by a lot.' Senator Mastriano closed out the hearing by directly addressing the media, 'The truth is out there, media you should have found these witnesses—do your job.' " (Are Over A Dozen Witnesses Wrong About Vote Fraud in Pennsylvania? by Jeffrey Lord). Red agitators making public incitements in the streets and marketplaces in violation of the law. Mass demonstrators and street gangs allowed to loot, kill, vandalize, terrorize, take over cities and do whatever they pleased in the name of social justice and in violation of the law. Elections rigged, fixed and abolished in favor of dictatorial rule by the reds' caesars and emperors. Gargantuan governments guaranteeing welfare for all while rescinding the people's constitutional rights and liberties. Civilized observers have seen in this dismal portrait two societies, two failed states, two cesspools of moral corruption, and two jungles of bestial lawlessness, separated by a span of two thousand years. They have seen a portrait of the last generations of Roman civilization, and a portrait of the last generations of American civilization. They have seen what nobody else has chosen to see and amidst the uproar and clamor of red lawlessness, they have run for their lives.

THE BIG BROWN BOOK OF THE REDS

Known internationally as The Little Red Book, Quotations From Chairman Mao Zedong is a book of statements taken from speeches and writings of the former communist leader. It has been regarded as a canonical work of Marxism by true believers throughout the world since it was first published in 1964. Over the past four decades, another book has risen to prominence among the reds and inspired them in their campaign to overthrow liberal democracy with the hoodlum's clubs of gender, race and class politics. Known among its followers as The Big Brown Book, it was written a century ago by the leader of the National Socialist German Workers' Party and its themes are racial philosophy, racial politics, racial propaganda, racial revolution, racial movements, racial parties, racial wars, racial alliances, racial personality, racial defense, racial will, racial power, racial terror, racial purity, racial conspiracy, racial fronts, racial states and racial extermination. Since its publication in 1925, Adolf Hitler's Mein Kampf has inspired tens of millions of reds throughout the world in their campaign to smash the legacies of the Enlightenment and has taken its place on the reds' list of sacred books alongside of The Communist Manifesto and Quotations From Chairman Mao. Springing from the pages of Mein Kampf is a program and manifesto for a race and gender based neuordnung and lebensraum which has composed a portrait of Western cultural collapse and the engulfment of the planet in firestorms of chaos and violence. The new Mein Kampfists of today, Hitler's restless children agitating in the malarial swamplands of the twenty first century, have set forth their aims and policies with stark, unequivocal, terrifying clarity and made civilized people see the explosions of global doomsday detonating all around them. Under the impact of Hitler's new reds, the nations of the West have abandoned their founding principles of liberal equality and nondiscrimination and through the imposition of diversity, equity and inclusion programs, have become systemically racist and sexist. Rendered intoxicated and febrile from round the clock injections of Marxist, communist and national socialist identity theory, today's neoHitlerites have proclaimed that a progressive system of higher education has the following terms at the top of its lexicon: diversity, inclusion and tribal representation. They have proclaimed that a progressive university fills its student body in accordance with a race and gender quota system which gives preferential treatment to women and nonwhites. They have proclaimed that a progressive university is a tribal university which has rejected the principle of meritocracy and allowed unqualified members of underrepresented groups, women and nonwhites, to graduate with the highest honors. They have proclaimed that a progressive university has established a balkanized campus marked by racial and gender segregation, chauvinism, theological disputation and victimization politics. They have proclaimed that a progressive university has abolished freedom of speech and the free interchange of opposing points of view and established a regime of censorship and speech codes to protect the rights of women and nonwhites. They have proclaimed that the belief in the existence of truth and objectivity is a product of invisible racism and implicit bias against blacks and must be replaced by a system of racial subjectivism and black supremacy. They have proclaimed that capitalism is a system of white privilege and aggression against blacks. They have proclaimed that a progressive university forces all students and faculty who uphold the liberal principles of equal rights and equal opportunity without respect to race to undergo sensitivity training sessions, join the Black Lives Matter movement, and demand the exclusion of all whites from campus. They have proclaimed that a progressive university has replaced liberal arts programs with ethnic studies and race focused courses and replaced the liberal system color blind advancement with the recruitment of black students and teachers. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is officially racist and promotes the ideology and behavior of hatred and violence against whites. They have proclaimed that those who reject the system of special treatment given to women and nonwhites in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion are racist, sexist and bigoted and must be drummed out of the state and society. They have proclaimed that a progressive university has replaced the liberal principle of academic excellence with the reds' principle of diversity and inclusion and made race and gender determining factors in the selection of scholars, academics, postdoctoral researchers, professional staff, administrators and students. Look at the program of the Hitlerite reds and see its war to abolish liberal meritocracy. See its campaign to dissolve society into a jungle of racial, gender and sexual identities. See its blatant promotion of discrimination in the basis of race and sex. See its quotas for tribal groups established in the name of diversity and inclusion. See its reduction of flesh and blood human beings to the level of phantom group abstractions. See its prohibition on selecting job candidates on the basis of personal achievements and qualifications. See its rejection of the liberal assignment of jobs to the best and the brightest and in favor of assignment to racial and sexual orientation groups: to blacks, homosexuals, bisexuals, gender dysphorics and gender psychotics. See its sacrifice of individual ability upon the altars of proportional representation and diversity statistics. See its abolition of civil liberties, equal protection under the law, and job selection in accordance with individual characteristics by state mandates to install race, gender and sexual orientation groups upon thrones of power and privilege. See its reversal of five centuries of Western progress and enlightenment through the boards, commissions, officials and directors of a new national socialist order: "Nasdaq wants to require listed companies to include on their boards at least one woman and one person from an underrepresented racial minority or someone who is lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, gender-queer, or identifies with the myriad of sexual identities activists include under the rubric of LGBTQ+. Nasdaq, the second largest US stock exchange, filed a proposal with the Securities and Exchange Commission that would mandate listed companies to have a minimum of two 'diverse directors,' including one who 'self identifies as female and one who self identifies as either an underrepresented minority or LGBTQ+.' The practice of requiring a quota for preferred sexual orientation and racial groups could run afoul of US laws prohibiting discrimination based on race and sex. The quota rule would require an massive churn of corporate boards. According to Nasdaq, over the past six months, more than three quarters of its listed companies would have fallen short of the woke quotas. The new listing rules would require all companies listed on Nasdaq's US exchange to publicly disclose consistent, transparent diversity statistics regarding their board of directors. The rule would let foreign companies off easier than US companies. Foreign companies would be able to fill the quota with two female directors, ignoring the requirement for an underrepresented racial minority or LGBTQ+ director. Companies that do not meet the quota would be forced to explain why they did not have directors with the preferred racial and sexual identities. If the proposal is approved by the SEC, Nasdaq listed companies would be required to disclose board diversity statistics within a year. Trump appointed SEC chairman Jay Clayton has said he will step down from the post at year's end—which would likely mean Joe Biden will appoint the next head of the commission. Nasdaq said that all companies will be required to have at least one diverse director within two years. Time frames to meet the requirement for the second preferred diversity director will vary depending on the market tier of the companies. A Nasdaq official described the new requirements and diversity quotas as an 'opportunity to make progress.' 'This proposal and partnership gives companies an opportunity to make progress toward increasing representation of women, underrepresented minorities, and the LGBTQ+ community on their boards,' said Nelson Griggs, president of Nasdaq Stock Exchange. The announcement of the proposal included an endorsement by Anthony Romero, the executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union." (Nasdaq Wants To Require Racial And Sex Identity Diversity Quotas For Corporate Boards by John Carney). Since its publication a century ago, Hitler's Mein Kampf has been studied by tens of millions of reds throughout the world, has been translated into a dozen languages, and has gone through multiple editions. Its latest edition is subtitled: Diversity, Equity And Inclusion Politics In The Last Days Of The West.

FRITZ LANG DIRECTS FOR THE REDS

In Germany in the early decades of the twentieth century, as the Weimar Republic was being consumed by a rising tide of chaos fueled by radicals of all stripes and varieties, a director commenced his career in film studios in Berlin and became one of the few German filmmakers to achieve international renown. But his large audience throughout the world was of a special kind. It was an audience composed exclusively of dedicated reds which cheered on and gave standing ovations to his dissemination of red propaganda and saw him as a supremely skillful, creative cinematic soldier in the reds' war against the values and ideals of liberal democratic society. Delighting his special audience, he utilized films as a medium of magic, expressionist, spectacular red shows which exalted the inverted moral universe of Marxism as they condemned the civilized values laid down by the Enlightenment. His first major political assignment from the reds was Dr. Mabuse: The Gambler. In true Marxist fashion, he condemns capitalism as a system of fascist master criminals and their network of operatives who manipulate the masses with the strings and wires of greed, paranoia, hatred and rage. To the wild applause of red theaters throughout the world who were swept up in fervor following the communist revolution in Russia, Lang's Metropolis depicts capitalism as a system in which wealthy industrialists and business magnates in pleasure gardens rule over vast armies of underground dwelling slave workers. A system in which workers are endlessly sacrificed in a temple of Moloch and ceaselessly fill its brimming coffers. A system of hellish machine rooms supervised by idle, privileged elites. Look at the world of Metropolis and see its red meanings, red qualities, red colors and red connotations. See its depiction of capitalism as a system in which the working class is immiserated, exploited, downtrodden and reduced to the round the clock clacking of marching machines. See its depiction of capitalism as a system of oppressed, slave laborers and poor, starving children under the whip hand of a wealthy aristocracy and its Club of

Sons. See its depiction of capitalism as the face of a grotesque monster in whose fiery maw the workers are fed, one by one. See its depiction of capitalism as a system of crass materialism presided over by the whores of Babylon. See its depiction of capitalism as a system of ruthless oppression, commodification and robotization of the poor the only antidotes to which are the people's commissars, preachers and narcotic powders of red totalitarian tyranny: "From the opening scenes, Marxist overtones dominate the story. Workers are shown marching into the factory. They look depressed and overworked: their heads are down, their shoulders are slumped, and they march in a robotic fashion. This is reflective of the 'oppressed, slave like' condition of this poor class of workers. In contrast, the film then shows scenes of the Clubs of Sons, which is a wealthy elite class enjoying recreation and the outdoors. It is at this point that Master Freder notices a young woman with a saintly appearance, surrounded by poor and starving children. This event sets Master Freder on his journey of finding this woman, whose name is Maria. As Freder enters the factory, he is horrified by the working conditions. After a brief explosion, he visualizes the giant face of Moloch, and the factory workers then begin walking into his fiery mouth. This religious symbolism comes from the Bible, and the connotations were clear—the elite wealthy were essentially sacrificing these poor workers' health and livelihood in the pursuit (worship) of materialism and wealth. This is not the only religious symbolism in the film, either. The wealthy city is referred to as Babylon, and capitalists are clearly connected with this Babylonian system. Maria is always portrayed in a saintly way, and she preaches to the poor. A whore of a woman rides a beast in this film as well—a clear reference to the whore mentioned in the book of Revelation. It is interesting that this film used such imagery, for Karl Marx often said that religion was the 'opiate of the masses' and that it was a means for the wealthy rulers to oppress the poorer classes. Eventually, a scientist/inventor by the name of Rotwang creates a robotic version of Maria, and this robot temporarily holds Freder back from assuming his mediator role. Drawing from Marxist philosophy, the ruler tells Rotwang to make this robot in the image of Maria so that he could use the robot as a tool to keep the poor in oppression. However, in the end, Master Freder fulfills his role of mediator, and he successfully bridges the 'head and the hands.' " (Marxism In The Film 'Metropolis' by registerednurses.com). Causing an international sensation among the reds, Lang's M is screening of empathy for the murderers of children and a plea to abolish criminal responsibility. Look at the upside down world of M and see its refusal to hold murderers accountable to the bar of justice and its excusing of depravity on the grounds of physical compulsion and medical sickness: "But I, I can't help myself! I have no control over this, this evil thing inside of me, the fire, the voices, the torment! It's there all the time, driving me out to wander the streets, following me, silently, but I can feel it there. It's me, pursuing myself! I want to escape, to escape from myself! But it's impossible. I can't escape, I have to obey it. I have to run, run down endless streets. I want to escape, to get away! And I'm pursued by ghosts. Don't want to, but must! And then a voice screams! I can't bear to hear it! I can't go on! I can't! I can't!" (M, the character Hans Beckert). Look at the world of M and see its sympathetic treatment of monsters who stalk the earth. See its defense of all that is ugly, frightening, cruel and inhuman and its joyful excursions into a killer's mind. See its protection of those who kill innocent children and make their mothers drown in sorrow and tears. See its rejection of reason and conscience and all that raises man from the bestial swamplands and its desire to blacken the human soul with the stain of cold blooded torturers. See its dismissal of courts of justice, bars of accountability and verdicts of punishment and its exaltation of the barren, windswept plains of moral ambiguity, moral corruption, moral perversion and moral evil: "But while the film shows the court preparing to declare its verdict, it never lets that verdict be heard. Instead, Lang cuts to a group of weeping mothers, one of whom says, 'This will not bring our children back. One has to keep closer watch over the children.' Justice has been done, and one man responsible for monstrous acts has been apprehended, but there remains much to fear in the world. In that moment, the story of one particular murderer in one corner of the world takes on universal implications. That partly explains why M has lingered so long, and why other creators keep coming back to it for inspiration. Its influence can be felt in film noir, a genre almost unthinkable without Lang's film, police procedurals, and in every film that dares plumb the depths of a killer's mind and look for humanity beneath the monstrous actions." (The Long Shadow of M by Keith Phipps). In theaters throughout the West, the reds raised the curtain on Lang's Scarlet Street to the wild cheering, whistling and bravos of the audience. Look at the world of Scarlet Street and see its subversion of justice and morality by allowing a murderer to walk free. See its granting to criminals immunity from prosecution, judicial accountability and apprehension by the police. See its incitement to wrongdoing and its assassination of respect for the law with the reds' rifles of moral obscenity, moral indecency, moral dirt and moral sleaze: "On January 4, 1946, the New York State Censor Board banned Scarlet Street entirely, relying on the statute that gave it power to censor films that were 'obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, sacrilegious' or whose exhibition 'would tend to corrupt morals or incite to crime.' As if in a chain reaction, one week later the Motion Picture Commission for the city of Milwaukee also banned the film as part of a new policy encouraged by police for 'stricter regulation of undesirable films.' On February 3 Christina Smith, the city censor of Atlanta, argued that because of 'the sordid life it portrayed, the treatment of illicit love, the failure of the characters to receive orthodox punishment from the police, and because the picture would tend to weaken a respect for the law,' Scarlet Street was 'licentious, profane, obscure and contrary to the good order of the community.' " (A Tale of Three Cities: The Banning of Scarlet Street by Matthew Bernstein). In 1933, Reich Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels called Lang into his office, praised his films, and offered him the position of head of the German Cinema Institute. Lang declined the offer and soon after the meeting fled the country. Goebbels had misidentified the world famous director. He was a communist red and not a national socialist red and carrying his director's chair, marked communist inspired moral decadence, to America, he launched his Hollywood career. He became a naturalized American citizen, had his films preserved in the Academy Film Archive, and received a star on the Hollywood Walk Of Fame. Buried in the Hollywood Hills Cemetery, he left a legacy of moral inversion on the silver screen which has inspired red filmmakers throughout the world screening the last days of the West.

REDS REPEAL FREE SPEECH

On December 10, 1948, the United Nations General Assembly adopted a resolution which filled reds throughout the world with feelings of anxiety and foreboding. This was Resolution 217, entitled The Universal Declaration Of Human Rights. This declaration was adopted by forty eight nations, while the Soviet Union led the communist bloc in opposition to it. Among the focal points of red opposition to the declaration were Articles 18 and 19, which guaranteed freedom of thought, conscience, speech and expression: "Everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion; this right includes freedom to change his religion or belief, and freedom, either alone or in community with others and in public or private, to manifest his religion or belief in teaching, practice, worship and observance." (Article 18). "Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers." (Article 19). Proclaiming the primacy of the state over the individual and society above the self, reds of all stripes and varieties have been intrinsically opposed to the right of an individual to articulate his opinions and ideas without fear of official censorship or sanction. In the twenty first century, reds throughout the world have launched a campaign to rescind legal guarantees of free speech, sweep away this precious legacy of the Enlightenment, and establish a regime of totalitarian control over mental processes and activities. In the name of promoting progressive politics, the reds have set forth a program and manifesto of speech limitations, speech controls, speech criminalization and speech prosecution whose virulence and intensity have broken the bounds of all legal and moral customs and traditions and are without precedent in the annals of Western political history. Effecting a headlong plunge into the icy waters of thought crimes and thought transgressions, the reds have rolled back a right recognized by civilized people since civilized people first trod the face of the earth thousands of years ago: the right of an individual to own his own mind and to dispose of the products of his mind, his language, words and speech, as he deems fit, without seeking permission or suffering reprisals from the state. Driven by an insatiable desire to achieve total control over the individual down to invading and occupying the innermost precincts of his spirit and soul, the reds have donned the mantle of thought police and undertaken to suppress all ideas which deviate from the way of thinking they have judged to be politically correct. They have proclaimed that a progressive society violates the right to private property and punishes individuals who in the privacy of their own homes criticize transgender ideology. They have proclaimed that a progressive society punishes people who dissent from transgender values in private conversations with their spouses, families and friends. They have proclaimed that a progressive society punishes people whose political views depart from the values and beliefs held by the majority. They have proclaimed that a progressive society makes people afraid to express their support for reason and science and their opposition to transgender psychosis anywhere in public, anywhere on the internet, and in the smallest and most intimate circles of their companions and associates. They have proclaimed that a progressive society places speech controls among its core values and brings down the guillotine of pervasive, relentless state censorship in the name of combating hate speech. They have proclaimed that a progressive society rejects the liberal free speech values of Europe and America and follows in the red totalitarian footsteps of the Soviet Union. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is a hermetically sealed, ideological echo chamber which prohibits all forms of speech and expression which challenge the people's party line of gender, race and class politics. They have proclaimed that a progressive government is an anticonstitutional, antifree speech administration which has demanded that individuals relinquish the sanctity of their inner spiritual life and march down the road of mental slavery. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is a tranquil society which has locked up the opponents of socialism in the dungeons of forced silence. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has outlawed all opposition to red ideologies in the name of tolerance and pluralism. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has prohibited all controversial political and religious viewpoints, all viewpoints which run afoul of the orthodoxy of the red establishment, in the name of protecting social peace and harmony. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has prohibited all forms of speech which provoke or humiliate communists, terrorists, the peddlers of religious superstition, and the citizens of subhuman cultures. Look at the world of the reds and see its ban on free speech in the name of promoting diversity and coexistence. See its rejection of the right to speak one's mind and to anger those who peddle the gospel of violence sweeping across the moral wastelands of the Middle East. See its rejection of the right to condemn primitive peoples and cultures which promote mass murder in the name of sharia and jihad. See its rejection of the right to call savages savages and to champion the values of civilized man. See its granting to governmental authorities the right to delay, postpone and prevent the posting of controversial viewpoints which violate red taboos. See its prohibition of the right to incite hatred and violence against Marxists, Muslims and all red totalitarian tub thumpers, and the right to breach the peace of lockstep enforced by the reds. See its rejection of all speech to which the reds have negative, violent and hate filled reactions. See its ejection of liberal constitutional order onto the arenas of amphitheaters crowded and overflowing with reds shouting Death To Free Speech! See its rejection of the right to talk about subjects which the reds do not want to talk about and its imposition of criminal penalties on those who so provoke the reds. See its regime of intolerance and censorship directed against speech which the reds have condemned as inflammatory, discriminatory, intimidating, aggressive, a nuisance and a source of irritation. See the Klan riders of the reds burning crosses on private lands, crosses upon which hang the right of free speech, and crosses whose raging fires have scorched the foundations of Western civilization: "A willingness to confine free speech in the name of social pluralism can be seen at various levels of authority and government. In February, for instance, Pennsylvania Judge Mark Martin heard a case in which a Muslim man was charged with attacking an atheist marching in a Halloween parade as a 'zombie Muhammed.' Martin castigated not the defendant but the victim, Ernie Perce, lecturing him that 'our forefathers intended to use the First Amendment so we can speak with our mind, not to piss off other people and cultures—which is what you did.' Of course, free speech is often precisely about pissing off other people—challenging social taboos or political values. This was evident in recent days when courts in Washington and New York ruled that transit authorities could not prevent or delay the posting of a controversial ad that says: 'In any war between the civilized man and the savage, support the civilized man. Support Israel. Defeat jihad.' When US District Judge Rosemary Collyer said the government could not bar the ad simply because it could upset some Metro riders, the ruling prompted calls for new limits on such speech. And in New York, the Metropolitan Transportation Authority responded by unanimously passing a new regulation banning any message that it considers likely to incite others or cause some 'other immediate breach of the peace.' Such efforts focus not on the right to speak but on the possible reaction to speech—a fundamental change in the treatment of free speech in the West. The much misconstrued statement of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes that free speech does not give you the right to shout fire in a crowded theater is now being used to curtail speech that might provoke a violence prone minority. Our entire society is being treated as a crowded theater, and talking about whole subjects is now akin to shouting 'fire!' In the United States, hate speech is presumably protected under the First Amendment. However, hate crime laws often redefine hateful expression as a criminal act. Thus, in 2003, the Supreme Court addressed the conviction of a Virginia Ku Klux Klan member who burned a cross on private land. The court allowed for criminal penalties so long as the government could show that the act was 'intended to intimidate' others. While the conviction was vacated, the intention factor was a distinction without meaning, since the state can simply cite the intimidating history of that symbol. The very right that laid the foundation for Western civilization is increasingly viewed as a nuisance, if not a threat. Whether speech is deemed inflammatory or hateful or discriminatory or simply false, society is denying speech rights in the name of tolerance, enforcing mutual respect through categorical censorship. (The Death Of Free Speech by Jonathan Turley). In the Palais de Chaillot in Paris, decorated with eight gilded figures symbolizing the rights of man, a foundational text in the history of human rights was ratified by forty eight out of fifty eight members of the United Nations. In the twenty first century, the Universal Declaration Of Human Rights, with its guarantees of freedom of the mind and intellect, has been rendered null and void in the fearsome and terrifying social justice universe of the reds.

REDS DECLARE WAR ON AMERICA

A declaration of war is manifested in two ways. It is first a formal act by which one nation goes to war against another. But in addition to this, nonstate organizations and ideological movements can declare war against nations when breaking their laws, engaging in violent acts or subverting their institutions. Since the early decades of the twentieth century, the international movement of the reds has been conducting a war against the liberal democratic nations of the West, war against everything liberalism represents, a war against reason, science, enlightenment and a form of government which recognizes and protects the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual, and in the twenty first century, it has celebrated a final victory in the destruction of human order and civilization. The war of the reds against America offers a case in point of this movement of destruction, for America for centuries had been the preeminent beacon of hope and inspiration for those oppressed and exploited by red regimes, and America's downfall offers the most tragic and terrifying picture possible of the suicide of the West at the hands of its red majorities. This wave of red lawlessness has seen riots, looting and violence committed by Antifa and Black Lives Matter descending on cities and campuses from coast to coast. It has seen social agitators smashing windows and pulling down monuments of American heroes and statesmen. It has seen mayhem and breakdown dissolving families, homes, neighborhoods and schools. It has seen produced breaking levels of gun sales and concealed carry applications made by law abiding, antired Americans. It has seen the cancerous growth of the welfare state, business regulations and antidiscrimination laws which violate constitutional due process guarantees of private property, economic privacy, and freedom of contract, enterprise and association. It has seen the reds' destruction of businesses driving down demand for commercial property. It has seen the reds' covid 19 regime of nationwide lockdowns and shutdowns devastating small businesses, putting millions of Americans out of work and making them homeless, unable to afford rent and mortgage payments, and placing constitutional rights under permanent confinement in the jail cells of the people's health and welfare police. It has seen reason, truth, objectivity and science condemned as forms of hate speech and burned at the stake by the reds' inquisition of speech code enforcers. It has seen President Obama weaponize the Department of Justice, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and national intelligence agencies to spy on Republican presidential campaigns. It has seen members of the Obama administration illegally surveil General Michael Flynn's telephone calls, order the FBI to illegally entrap him, and illegally withhold exculpatory evidence at his trial. It has seen the failure to prosecute Hillary Clinton for illegally managing thousands of classified documents, illegally using her personal email server to conduct government business, and illegally destroying tens of thousands of emails, computers and cellphones which were under subpoena. It has seen the most egregious act of electoral fraud committed in the annals of modern politics: the theft of the presidential election of 2020 and the illegal election of Joe Biden as president. The reds' electoral crime of the century was as follows. Four states, Georgia, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Wisconsin, violated Article II of the Constitution when their governors, courts or local officials changed the rules of the election. According to Article II, each state "shall appoint its electors in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct." It is the state legislatures alone, and not the state executives, state courts or local officials, which have the authority to set the rules for a presidential election. This sole authority of state legislature was reaffirmed in the Supreme Court decision McPherson v. Blacker: "Whatever provisions may be made by statute, or by the state constitution, to choose electors by the people, there is no doubt of the right of the legislature to resume the power at any time." In Pennsylvania, the state supreme court extended by three days the deadline for receiving mail in ballots, in violation of the law passed by the state legislature. In Georgia, the secretary of state changed the signature verification requirements for mail in ballots, in violation of state law. In each of the four states, counties changed the manner in which they would receive and evaluate ballots, in violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. In the landmark case Bush versus Gore, the Supreme Court held that voters in a state have a constitutional right to have their ballots treated equally. In Wayne County, Michigan, election officials denied poll watchers the right to observe vote counting, in violation of state law and in violation of the right of voters in the county to be treated equally with voters in all other counties under the Fourteenth Amendment. In Milwaukee, Wisconsin, the administrator of the elections commission ordered election workers to write in the addresses of witnesses on the envelopes of the mail in ballots which lacked them, in violation of state law and the Fourteenth Amendment, because ballots without witness addresses were judged to be invalid in all other jurisdictions in the state. The purpose of these illegal changes to the election rules was to allow the commission of voter fraud and hand victory to Joe Biden. Look at the tactics of the reds and see their shameless violation of state and federal election laws. See their attempt to deform and contort the Constitution. See their attempt to disenfranchise millions of people who voted for Donald Trump by predetermining the outcome of the election in favor of Biden. See their attempt to misrepresent, pervert and falsify the processes and results of the election and reduce election integrity to a dead letter. See their campaign of electoral fraud and their contempt for the rule of law, a campaign which has outraged constitutional scholars and ordinary citizens throughout the nation. This vanishing community of law abiding Americans has witnessed a staged election, an election conducted under the auspices of lawless reds for whom the end justifies the means, and an election the likes of which had never before been recorded in the annals of modern Western history, and it has seen the face of an American future blemished by electoral insecurity and red totalitarian politics: "Six states have formally joined Texas in its Supreme Court lawsuit seeking to overturn the results of the 2020 election. Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton said Thursday that Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Utah have intervened as plaintiffs in its suit against the battleground states of Georgia, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. All four of the defendant states have filed their replies to Texas, meeting the deadline set by Associate Justice Samuel Alito of 3 pm Thursday. Texas alleges the four states exploited the coronavirus pandemic to 'justify unlawfully enacting last minute changes and ignoring both federal and state election laws, thus skewing the results of the 2020 General Election.'

Missouri filed a friend of the court brief Wednesday afternoon that was joined by Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah and West Virginia. The District of Columbia filed a friend of the court brief on Thursday on behalf of the defendant states that was joined by 20 states and the territories of Guam and the Virgin Islands. And 106 House Republicans have signed a brief presenting their 'concern as Members of Congress, shared by untold millions of their constituents, that the unconstitutional irregularities involved in the 2020 presidential election cast doubt upon its outcome and the integrity of the American system of elections.' Paxton said in a statement Thursday that Texas 'continues to lead the fight to protect election security and integrity, and today I gladly welcome Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Utah to this historic endeavor. By flouting state and federal election laws, the defendant battleground states have tainted the integrity of citizens' votes across the entire nation.' In a brief on behalf of President Trump requesting he join the case, constitutional scholar John Eastman argued it's not necessary for the plaintiff 'to prove that fraud occurred, however; it is only necessary to demonstrate that the elections in the defendant States materially deviated from the manner of choosing electors established by their respective state Legislatures. By failing to follow the rule of law, these officials put our nation's belief in elected self government at risk.' Eastman, a constitutional scholar at the Claremont Institute, said in a Fox News interview Tuesday that the 'underlying issue there is a terrific one for the Supreme Court, because it doesn't turn on proof of the allegations of fraud, the Dominion machines and all these other things that are huge evidentiary matters.' Eastman said the case 'turns on a very simple legal question: Did these states conduct an election in violation of their state law?' He explained that Article II of the US Constitution says the state legislatures have the sole authority to create the manner for choosing presidential electors." (Six States Formally Join Texas In Supreme Court Election Challenge by Art Moore). On December 11, 2020, the United States Supreme Court dismissed a suit filed by Texas which sought to invalidate the election results in Georgia, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. The suit argued that the four states illegally made changes to voting rules through courts or local officials instead of through legislatures, in violation of Article II of the Constitution. The suit also argued that different voting rules in different state counties treated voters unequally and thus violated the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. In its dismissal of the suit, the court stated that "Texas has not demonstrated a judicially cognizable interest in the manner in which another state conducts its elections." Constitutional scholars and ordinary citizens stood aghast at a decision which stated that one state has no "judicially cognizable interest" in exposing another state's malfeasance and violation of the law. They stood in shock and horror at the advancing lawlessness, reaching up to the highest levels of the government, in the reds' war against America.

COURT GREENLIGHTS ELECTORAL FRAUD

Citizen X witnesses a robbery committed down his block and notifies the police. The court later dismisses his intervention on the grounds that he lacks legal standing and is not a party to the case. Citizen X is outraged and refuses for a moment to believe that he lives in America. He wants to believe that he is experiencing a dark, frightening dream and looks forward to waking up into the placid, civilized, noonday light. On December 12, 2020, the United States Supreme Court issued a ruling which plunged the nation into the nightmare world inhabited by Citizen X. It dismissed a lawsuit filed by Texas to invalidate the results of the 2020 presidential election due to the unconstitutional actions of four states on the grounds that "Texas has not demonstrated a judicially cognizable interest in the manner in which another State conducts its elections." The court stated that citizens in states outside these four were not harmed by these states' actions and thus lacked legal standing to sue. The court's decision filled constitutional scholars and ordinary citizens throughout the nation who still upheld the rule of law with feelings of shock and dismay. They recognized that voters throughout the nation had legal standing to challenge the illegal actions of officials in the four states on two grounds. First, on the general grounds that they were witnesses to crimes committed by state officials, in this case the crimes of acting unconstitutionally, and had standing to sue just as witnesses to ordinary street crimes have standing to sue the perpetrators. Second, on the grounds that voters throughout the nation were in point of fact harmed by the actions of the election officials in these four states because their right to vote in a fair and honest federal election, in an election in which all legal votes are counted and all illegal and fabricated votes are excluded, was denied. The right to vote means the right to vote in a fair and honest election or it means nothing whatever. The authority to manage federal elections is a collective, nationwide authority which is governed by the federal constitution and must ensure that all voters are protected by a fair and honest electoral process. The Texas suit recognized that four states, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan and Wisconsin, unconstitutionally made changes to their voting rules through the courts and local officials and not through the state legislatures, in violation of Article II of the Constitution: "Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct [emphasis added], a number of electors, equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress." The exclusive right of state legislatures to determine the rules for appointing electors of the president and vice president is reaffirmed in the Supreme Court decision McPherson v. Blacker (1892): "Under the second clause of Article II of the Constitution, the legislatures of the several states have exclusive power to direct the manner in which the electors of President and Vice President shall be appointed. Whatever provisions may be made by statute, or by the state constitution, to choose electors by the people, there is no doubt of the right of the legislature to resume the power at any time." The Texas suit also stated that differences in voting rules from county to county violated the Fourteenth Amendment, which provides that all voters throughout the state be treated equally: "All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws [emphasis added]." The suit recognized that officials in the four states exploited fears of an outbreak of Covid 19 as a pretext to violate the Constitution's Electors Clause and Equal Protection Clause with the real aim of facilitating electoral fraud and ensuring the victory of Joe Biden. Seventeen states and one hundred and twenty members of the House of Representatives joined the lawsuit. By a vote of 7 to 2, the Court ruled that Texas had no legal standing to launch the suit and the two dissenting judges, Samuel Alito and Clarence Thomas, ruled that the Court should hear the case as a mere formality and then quickly dismiss it and refuse to do its duty and uphold Article II and the Fourteenth Amendment: "TEXAS V. PENNSYLVANIA, ET AL. The State of Texas's motion for leave to file a bill of complaint is denied for lack of standing under

Article III of the Constitution. Texas has not demonstrated a judicially cognizable interest in the manner in which another State conducts its elections. All other pending motions are dismissed as moot. Statement of Justice Alito, with whom Justice Thomas joins: "In my view, we do not have discretion to deny the filing of a bill of complaint in a case that falls within our original jurisdiction. See Arizona v. California. I would therefore grant the motion to file the bill of complaint but would not grant other relief, and I express no view on any other issue [emphasis added]." The Supreme Court's refused to get involved in the election and to send a legal, judicial, constitutional message to the nation. It instead chose to send a message of red politics and the American majority's detestation of Donald Trump: "This Supreme Court decision sends a message. The majority included the three justices appointed by President Trump, and they all said, 'We're not going to hear the Texas case. We're not going to get involved in this election.' 'I think this sends a message. It's not a legal message, but it's a practical message: the Supreme Court is out of this game.'" (Dershowitz To Newsmax TV: Supreme Court Just Didn't Want to Get Involved by Brian Trusdell, quoting Alan Dershowitz). Look at the Supreme Court and see its refusal to recognize that voters throughout America were witnesses to the crimes committed by election officials in Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan and Wisconsin and on that ground had standing to sue them. See its refusal to recognize that voters throughout America were harmed by the unconstitutional actions of Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan and Wisconsin because through these actions, which altered the outcome of the election, they were effectively deprived of their right to vote. See its refusal to decide cases of unconstitutional state actions on their merits, to give the plaintiffs a fair and honest hearing, and its dismissal of these cases on spurious grounds of no standing. See its refusal to protect the constitutional rights of American citizens everywhere to vote in federal elections: "Rudy Giuliani, President Trump's personal attorney, said Friday on Newsmax TV's Stinchfield that the president's legal team will continue filing lawsuits even after the Supreme Court dismissed a lawsuit by Texas, which was backed by 17 other states and 126 House Republicans, to overturn the election results in four swing states. Giuliani said, 'The case wasn't rejected on the merits, the case was rejected on standing. So the answer to that is to bring the case now to the district court by the president, by some of the electors, alleging some of the same facts where there would be standing and therefore get a hearing.' Host Grant Stinchfield said, 'Mr. Mayor, I know you talked to the president just after this ruling came down. What's his reaction, and how's he doing through all this.' Giuliani said, 'The president's reaction is to look at other options. I mean, we always knew that this was an option, that we would have to convert this into—in fact, originally, we thought about this as possibly four or five separate cases. So that is the option we are going to have to go to. There's nothing that prevents us from filing these cases immediately in the district court in which the president, of course, would have standing, some of the electors would have standing in that their constitutional rights have been violated.' He added, 'We're not finished. Believe me.' " (Giuliani Says Trump Team 'Not Finished' After Supreme Court Defeat by Pam Key). Look at the Supreme Court and see its granting to states permission to act unconstitutionally, to do violence to federal elections, and to nullify the constitutional rights of all Americans to rely upon and participate in undamaged and untainted national electoral procedures. See its failure to hold states who violate the Article II of the Constitution and the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution accountable for their actions. See its failure to protect a constitutional republic, a union of law abiding states, from the illegal actions of state election officials whose goal was to subvert a federal election and disenfranchise Trump voters throughout the nation:

"The Supreme Court, in tossing the Texas lawsuit that was joined by seventeen states and 106 US congressman, has decreed that a state can take unconstitutional actions and violate its own election law, resulting in damaging effects on other states that abide by the law, while the guilty state suffers no consequences. This decision establishes a precedent that says states can violate the US constitution and not be held accountable. This decision will have far reaching ramifications for the future of our constitutional republic. Perhaps law abiding states should bond together and form a Union of states that will abide by the constitution. The Texas GOP will always stand for the Constitution and for the rule of law even while others don't." (Chairman Allen West's Response to SCOTUS Decision, Republican Party of Texas). Texas had no "judicially cognizable" standing to sue four states which violated the Article II of the Constitution and the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution during the presidential election of 2020: thus spoke a politically controlled and compromised Supreme Court in the final days of the American republic.

THE PRESS ORGANS OF RED REVOLUTION

On December 1, 1936, twenty five communist lawyers met at the City Club of New York to discuss the creation of a new legal organization to counter the American Bar Association. A year later, at the Hotel Washington in Washington DC, the National Lawyers Guild was founded and became the foremost legal bulwark and mouthpiece of the Communist Party. In America in the twenty first century, the national media establishment has become the faithful media organ of a campaign to sweep away the values, ideals, traditions and institutions of the liberal democratic order and establish in its place the red totalitarian tyranny of gender, race and class politics. Over the past two decades, students of journalism and ordinary citizens alike have observed the transformation of the media into a columnar space of biased reportage and an editorial cesspool of red propaganda and lamented the fact that there is no longer in the mainstream media any place to read fair and honest reportage and upright, antired viewpoints and commentary. In articles, reports, analyses, features and opinion pieces, the misinformation peddlers and white hot agitators in charge of the national media establishment have composed a program and manifesto for the overthrow of the Enlightenment legacies of reason, truth, objectivity and liberty which for decades had defined the character of America and made it flourish like no other nation in the history of mankind. The new red establishmentarians have proclaimed that progressive journalism is unconstrained by demands for objectivity and is motivated exclusively by the search for social justice. They have proclaimed that progressive journalists have liberated themselves from the bourgeois ideals of truth and knowledge and serve as activists and moralists for the cause of socialism. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism is yellow journalism which traffics in exaggeration and sensationalism in the service of political extremism. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism manufactures news to fit its red agenda and treats its readers as subjects to be indoctrinated and stirred up rather than educated and informed. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism rejects the goal of traditional journalism to report to people about recent, noteworthy events and seeks instead to disseminate red moral messages with the crystal clarity of street corner slogans. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism recognizes that so-called objectivity is a view from nowhere and is thus impossible and that all so-called factual news presentations are in reality expressions of gender, race and class interests. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism recognizes that there are no objectively correct, empirically determined descriptions of reality but only subjective, apriori gender, race and class based screens and filters. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism is the voice of social justice warriors and proselytizers for red movements and is unencumbered by the traditional ideals of objective, unbiased reporting. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism never presents all sides of an issue, and never lets the reader reach his own conclusions, but functions as a hermetically sealed, ideological echo chamber which screams out one viewpoint, and one viewpoint alone, into the reader's face: the viewpoint of the reds. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism rejects the limitations of neutrality and feels free to misrepresent facts and concoct things out of whole cloth in the service of the people's political imperatives. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism rejects the Enlightenment notion of factual truth and is an overt promoter of red causes, red systems of government and red political activity. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism recognizes that such things as journalistic integrity and honest reportage are Enlightenment phantoms because all so-called truths and facts have been hammered and forged on the anvil of political advertising, political promotion, political blogging and political bias on behalf of genders, races and classes. They have proclaimed that progressive journalism rejects the Enlightenment inspired notion that reportage should be a scientific process of discovering objective truths rooted in facts, evidence and proof and recognizes that reporters should not report on anything which is real, or on anything which has happened, but should fight to achieve for social and political change by the propagation of myths, legends and narratives whose only value resides in their pragmatic and expedient functions. Look at the world of today's journalism and see the heavy hand of the red censor. See the silencing of all forms of speech which exposes the reds' commission of fraud in the presidential election of 2020. See the blatant propaganda which fills all channels and crowds all videos with the red party narrative that the 2020 presidential election was conducted freely and fairly. See the use of digital platforms to purge the voices of those who witnessed pervasive corruption and nationwide vote rigging in the 2020 presidential election. See the suppression of all discussion and debate about whether the 2020 presidential election was honest and above reproach and the inculcation of the official red line, in the face of overwhelming eyewitness evidence to the contrary, that it was not stolen. See the red publishers, the red hardware, the red companies and the red editorialists acting round the clock to prevent the dissemination of unfavorable news about Democratic Party officials, candidates and their families and to prohibit the free and open exchange of ideas and opinions. See the transformation of news and information agencies into publicity and promotional towers pulsating a plain and open message of red politicization of journalism: "Harvard Law School professor emeritus Alan Dershowitz is daring YouTube to censor him for interviewing Breitbart News Senior Editor at Large Joel Pollak Thursday about his new ebook, Neither Free Nor Fair: The 2020 U.S. Presidential Election. In his book, Pollak argues that the 2020 election fell short of international standards for a 'free and fair' election, and he discusses the possibility that fraud could have taken place. As Breitbart News reported Wednesday, YouTube has announced that it will remove all videos questioning Joe Biden's victory in the 2020 presidential election. Dershowitz, a lifelong civil libertarian and free speech advocate, was outraged. Dershowitz interviewed Pollak on the Dershow, his semieponymous podcast. He noted news reports of YouTube's termination of over 8,000 channels alleging widespread voter fraud in the 2020 presidential election. He described the purge of such channels as 'disenfranchising' of Americans by 'denying them the right to express a view on an extraordinarily influential platform like Google YouTube.' Dershowitz asked, 'Can you imagine anything more inconsistent with the spirit and culture of the First Amendment than to stop a debate about a presidential election?' Pollak noted, 'A huge portion of the electorate—let's say close to 100 million people, in the ballpark—believe that the election was stolen. Now, that doesn't mean it was actually stolen, but a lot of people believe that it was or may have been.' Dershowitz remarked: 'So YouTube, here's my message to you. You've just heard an extremely distinguished journalist, a man who has enormous credibility, a man who has enormous influence over tens of millions of Americans who reasonably believe him. You've just heard him fit the criteria that you have set out for taking down channels. He has alleged—not in direct dramatic terms, but he certainly as alleged—that there is a substantial possibility that this election may have been influenced, determined, the outcome changed by systemic errors, by the ability to vote by mail. Is it true or isn't it true? That's for Americans to debate. So YouTube. I challenge you, take down this show. I challenge you, take down this channel. I challenge you, do not allow Joel Pollak to express his views on my show, and if you do, there will be a response. There will be response, because you will have lost your exemptions under Section 230. You are no longer, at that point, a platform. You are making editorial judgments. Why are you being treated more favorably than the New York Times or the Washington Post or Breitbart? Why do you get an exemption if you're making these kinds of decisions?' Pollak said Google and YouTube 'have long since proven themselves to be publishers and not platforms, and the same is true of Twitter and Facebook.' Pollak added, 'The news today and yesterday that Hunter Biden is under investigation for financial crimes—we don't know the full extent of the investigation—but that news confirms the legitimacy of the New York Post story about Hunter Biden's laptop and his emails, but that was suppressed by the major tech platforms. Increasingly, YouTube, Google, Facebook, Twitter, these other companies [are] interfering in political debates and yet claiming exemption under Section 230.' " (Alan Dershowitz Dares YouTube To Censor Him For Interview With 'Neither Free Nor Fair' Author Joel Pollak by Robert Kraychik). The transformed character of the American media establishment in the twenty first century is epitomized in its reports on Donald Trump's legal challenges to the 2020 election results. These reports describe Trump's case using such terms as "baseless", "unproven" "fictional" and "unsubstantiated". Students of journalism and ordinary citizens alike have blown the whistle on these reports and condemned them on two grounds. Firstly, they have pointed out that such terms represent opinion and commentary and have no place in news columns. Secondly, they point out that such terms happen to be false and they provide one thousand reasons why they are false. This is the number of affidavits filed by citizens throughout the nation attesting to criminal activities committed by Democratic Party operatives to fix the election in favor of Joe Biden. False information, inaccurate information, misleading information, distorted information, deceptive information, exaggerated information, sensational information, political advocacy contaminating news spaces, biased reporting tainting news platforms, and megaphone blasts of red propaganda masquerading as editorials, opinions and analyses. Such are the building blocks of a sinister edifice called the American media establishment, loyal mouthpiece and broadcaster of the reds' revolution against the West.

REDS PROVOKE SECESSION

The most famous monument in Washington DC is that of Abraham Lincoln. Sitting silently and majestically in judgment over the nation, Lincoln delivered a speech in Springfield, Illinois in 1858 which serves as an eerily prescient statement and a fearsome and terrifying warning to America in the twenty first century. Lincoln stated that "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently, half slave and half free." Since the dawn of the twentieth century, a clock of secession has been ticking in America, set into motion by the red majority's takeover of the nation under the guise of progressive politics. In the present century, this clock has struck zero hour and an operation among a dwindling community of civilized Americans to commence a moral and spiritual separation from the nation has commenced. This moral separation will eventuate in a political separation, in obedience to the logic and dynamics of moral separation, and the divided house which is America will finally come tumbling down into the dustbin of failed states and nonfunctioning societies. Civilized Americans have beheld a monster in the room, a monster breathing out a malarial fever of gender, race and class politics, and have stamped their exit passports to leave the country in their spirit and soul and never to return. This monster has roared out a program and manifesto for a red state, a red society, a red environment and a red economy which has forced civilized Americans to run for their spiritual lives as far away as they can from this fully grown, fire breathing menace. Developing into its present evil, inhuman form over a period of a hundred years, it has proclaimed that human industrial activity is a major contributor to catastrophic climate change and this activity must accordingly be stamped out. It has proclaimed that a progressive society marches in service to communal objectives and has repealed individual liberty in order to fight the covid 19 pandemic. It has proclaimed that a progressive society bans all travel to jurisdictions which do not recognize the truth of transgenderism, the position that gender can be chosen at will and has nothing whatever to do with genes or chromosomes, and do not recognize the rights of its psychotic adherents and practitioners. It has proclaimed that progressive corporations do more than simply manufacture commodities, but manufacture as well, as the crowning glory to their products, red political statements. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a hyperpartisan society which has recruited workers, coworkers, neighbors, mothers, fathers sons, daughters, husbands and wives in a mighty crusade to tax, fine, regulate, supervise and collectivize every aspect of human existence and place the individual in the service of a gender, race and class leviathan. It has proclaimed that a progressive society prohibits all dissemination of the empirically grounded fact that forest fires are caused by incompetent forest management and mandates that the red myth that forest fires are caused by man made global warming be taught in every home, school, office and factory. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a rainbow coalition colored in the shades of national socialism whose storm troopers have smashed shop windows and bloodied innocent passersby with the bludgeons of tribal ideologies. It has proclaimed that black lives matter and only black lives matter and white people exist to serve the needs and interests of blacks and are completely expendable. It has proclaimed that America was founded in 1619, the year African slaves were brought to the English colony of Virginia, and has been a slave owning, racist state ever since. It has proclaimed that a progressive society hates America, loves communism, and recognizes that the number one enemy of the working class is the global system of free movement of goods, services, labor and capital. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a black racist society whose calling cards are chaos, incivility, smoldering cities and the bloody hand of anarchy. It has proclaimed that capitalism is a lash of systemic racism and white privilege and must be replaced by a regime of black totalitarian tyranny. It has proclaimed that a progressive media establishment has filled its airwaves and internet transmissions with screaming red monologues demanding that every white person plead guilty to the crime of existing and submit himself as a rightless subaltern in the service of his black masters. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has dispensed with the liberal notion of equal protection under the law and established a regime of preferential treatment on the basis of race, gender and sexual orientation. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has rejected the liberal notion of race blind, gender blind, meritocratic selection and established a regime of race and gender proportional representation in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a socialist society which confiscates private wealth at a rate of one hundred percent, authorizes round the clock, stratospheric social spending, and worships at the altar of a civic religion of self sacrifice and self immolation. Look at America in the twenty first century and see a rigged presidential election which disenfranchised millions of voters for Donald Trump. See red controlled voting processes cheat Donald Trump of the votes he received and give Joe Biden votes which were illegally cast or else outright manufactured. See the counting and collection of ballots performed by the reds fabricate a massive victory for Joe Biden. See a red majority and its establishmentarian operatives allow battleground states, such as Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Michigan, Georgia, Arizona and Nevada, to commit electoral fraud, violate the Fourteenth Amendment and Article II of the Constitution, and give the presidency to Joe Biden. See a red Election Day, a red certification day, a red Electoral College vote, red lower court and Supreme Court abdication and a red Inauguration Day commit an act of political corruption without precedent in the annals of Western democracies and install Joe Biden as 46th president of the United States. See an America divided into two nations and two cultures separated by a gulf as wide as the universe. See one of these nations, the nation established at America's founding, the nation dedicated to constitutional liberty and the rule of law, separate in spirit from the other nation, and assume its station to preserve the lights of civilization: "When the Electoral College meets Monday, it will almost surely certify former Vice President Joe Biden as the 46th president of the United States. And he will take the oath of office Jan. 20. There is, nationally, a growing if grudging realization of that reality. Yet millions of Americans will refuse to accept the legitimacy of that election and its outcome and will continue to believe, with President Donald Trump, that it was rigged. 'Was the 2020 election stolen by the establishment to get rid of a president, Donald Trump, whom it loathed?' will be debated decades hence. That perception that something was afoot first arose in the minds of millions in the hours after the election on November 3, when 83% of Republicans polled by Gallup said they did not believe reports of Trump's defeat. Things perceived as real are real in their consequences. And there was justification for that perception. Who was not stunned to learn that as Trump seemed to be pulling ahead in the voting count on November 3, suddenly, around midnight, the vote counting appeared to stop in the crucial swing states, and we were told it would begin again early the next morning? Why the halt? Again, things perceived as real are real in their consequences. The Washington Post reports this week that, midway between Election Day and Inauguration Day, only 27 congressional Republicans would acknowledge Biden's win. Some 220 GOP members of the House and Senate—88% of Republicans serving in Congress—would not say who won the election. And Trump continues to fight on, millions behind him, to persuade public officials in such battleground states as Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Michigan, Georgia, Arizona and Nevada to withdraw their certifications. He is said to be working the phones to get Republicans in Congress to reject the designation of Biden as president. He has joined a suit by 17 states' attorneys general to have the Supreme Court accept Texas' argument that late alterations in the voting processes in four swing states be declared unconstitutional and illegal. Among the more credible charges is that, due to the pandemic, late changes were made in the voting processes of states, especially with mailed out and mailed in ballots. The contention is that votes cast as a consequence of changes done contrary to state laws or constitutions should be thrown out. Most of those votes came from the urban precincts where Biden's margins were massive. While some 50 lawsuits filed in Trump's cause may have been rejected in courts, the hourly allegations of fraud in the collection and counting of ballots have given credence to a generalized belief that Trump was cheated of votes he received and Biden received votes that were illicitly cast. Where will this leave us Jan. 20? We are two nations, two peoples seemingly separated indefinitely. Can a nation so divided as ours, racially, ideologically, religiously, still do great things together, as did the America of days gone by, to the amazement of the world?" (Our Second Civil War--Also A 'Forever War'? by Patrick Buchanan). No society can function in the absence of a moral consensus and shared foundational assumptions. The founding creed of America was the Enlightenment creed of free minds, free markets and man as a free born agent endowed with human rights and human dignity. In the twentieth century, a regime of red mobocracy replaced the American constitutional republic and set into motion the wheels of a secessionist movement led by the friends of liberty. In the twenty first century, a countdown has commenced. After one hundred years of red majoritarian violations of property rights, free speech rights, associational freedom, economic privacy, and liberty of contract and enterprise, the bomb of secession was finally detonated by the reds in the 2020 presidential election. Witnessed by hundreds of election workers throughout the nation who deposed what they saw in sworn affidavits, a fraudulent, dishonest, unfair, inaccurate, systematically flawed election system produced votes unworthy of ratification, stole the election from Donald Trump, and installed into power an illegitimate president from the Democratic Party. The last seconds have speeded by, the final moments have concluded, the rocket of secession has taken off, and the civilized Americans who have lost control over their government and society have formed a new union in their hearts dedicated to the cause of human freedom.

THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION OF 2020: ANATOMY OF A CRIME

A political scandal is a public event which people have judged to be morally and legally wrong and outrageous. In the United States presidential election of 2020, the greatest political scandal in modern times occurred when the greatest democracy in the history of the world was unable to conduct a fair and honest election and cheated Donald Trump out of victory. This was a scandal engineered by red political operatives representing the red majority which had assumed control over the nation and had been ruling the American state and society for the past century. Civilized people have seen evidence of voter fraud, ballot mishandling, process violations, equal protection clause violations and voting machine irregularities which have defied their imagination, descended below the level of their worst nightmares, and compelled them to the conclusion that the 2020 election voted law and integrity out of power and hurled them into the dustbin of failed states. Civilized people have seen a weight of evidence which has established beyond a reasonable doubt that the reds destroyed a level electoral playing field, manipulated the electoral process, stuffed ballot boxes from coast to coast, and brought about the fraudulent victory of the Biden-Harris ticket. They have seen dozens of photographs, voluminous reels of surveillance video footage and hundreds of sworn affidavits attest to the following. The Biden campaign offered bribes to Native Americans in form of jewelry and Visa card gifts in exchange for their votes. A truck driver in New York picked up voluminous crates containing 100,000 fake ballots cast for Joe Biden and delivered them to a polling station in Pennsylvania. A poll worker in Pennsylvania used an unsecured USB flash drive to transfer tens of thousands of fake Biden votes into vote tabulation machines, making the resulting tabulations far greater than the mail in ballots scanned into the machines. At the State Farm Arena polling station in Atlanta, Georgia, poll watchers and media observers were ordered to leave in the middle of the night on the pretext that a water leak had to be repaired. After the room was cleared, election workers pulled out from underneath a draped table large boxes filled with tens of thousands of fake ballots cast for Biden and proceeded to tabulate and process them. In Arizona, over 75,000 absentee ballots cast for Trump were falsely reported as unreturned and were destroyed and replaced by fake ballots completed by elections workers for Biden. In Georgia, the family of an elderly resident in a nursing home discovered that a mail in ballot cast for Biden had been falsely submitted under his identity. In Pennsylvania, the parents of a person with Downs Syndrome discovered that a mail in ballot cast for Biden had been falsely submitted under her identity. In Wisconsin, thousands of Biden voters, with the encouragement and complicity of election clerks, falsely registered as "indefinitely confined" in order to evade identification checks. In Georgia, over 90,000 votes for Biden were cast by ineligible voters. In Pennsylvania, 100 votes for Biden were cast by ineligible out of state voters. In Nevada, 15,000 mail in votes for Biden were cast by ineligible out of state voters. In Pennsylvania, 8,000 mail in ballots for Biden were cast under the names of dead voters. In Georgia, over 12,000 mail in ballots for Biden were cast under the names of dead voters. In Michigan, thousands of ballots were cast for Biden under the names of dead voters. In Nevada, a widower discovered that a ballot for Biden had been cast under the name of his dead wife. In Wisconsin, poll workers ran ballots cast for Biden through tabulation machines multiple times. In Michigan, ballots cast for Biden were run through vote tabulation machines four times. In Pennsylvania, a resident voted for Biden twice on the same day by changing her appearance, residents voted twice for Biden by queuing up on different lines, and a resident voted twice in rapid succession on different machines. In Michigan, the head of a polling station allowed two Biden supporters to vote without presenting proper, state mandated, voter identification. In Nevada, unregistered Biden supporters were allowed to vote by presenting an appointment with the Department of Motor Vehicles to obtain a driver's license as proof of identity. In Georgia, the secretary of state lowered signature matching tests for mail in ballots to one verification instead of two, which resulted in 1.2 million votes cast for Biden. In Nevada, election officials used a machine to conduct signature matching checks, contrary to state law, which resulted in thousands of votes for Biden. In Wisconsin, election officials eliminated voter information certifications for mail in ballots, contrary to state law, which resulted in thousands of votes for Biden. In Pennsylvania, the secretary of state ordered that mail in ballots which lacked an outer envelope with the voter's signature on it be counted, contrary to state law, which resulted in thousands of votes for Biden. Look at the 2020 presidential election and see an operation of election abuse without precedent in the history of modern democracies. See red operatives in Pennsylvania, Georgia, Wisconsin and Michigan violate state laws and abolish ballot security measures. See ballots with no mailed date, ballots returned on or before the mailed date, ballots impossibly returned one day later, ballots without matching signatures, ballots with missing information, ballots with inaccurate information, ballots without registration numbers which were manufactured by tabulation machines, more ballots cast than voters who registered, and ballots cast for Trump declared to be lost or missing. See a pervasive campaign of ballot fraud which produced hundreds of thousands of votes for Biden, deprived Trump of hundreds of thousands of votes, and made the 2020 presidential election a predetermined exercise in red coronation: "Attorneys general of eighteen states that joined a Texas lead in a lawsuit presenting compelling evidence of widespread election abuse in four battleground states that Biden claims to have won failed to gain standing in having their legal pleadings heard by the US Supreme Court. The Texas authored arguments asserted that the presidential elections as held (and as directed by government officials outside the legislature) in Pennsylvania, Georgia, Wisconsin and Michigan all flagrantly violated their own election laws by materially weakening or doing away with security measures. The lawsuit lists the violations in each of the defendant states and provides evidence of fraud (the number of ballots handled unconstitutionally) in each of the states sufficient to change the outcome of the ballot counts. 1. Pennsylvania: 9,005 ballots with no mailed date or evidence they were sent to a voter; 58,221 ballots returned on or before the mailed date, and 51,200 returned only one day after (highly unlikely). 2. Georgia: The mail in ballot rejection rate for missing or inaccurate information or for nonmatching signatures decreased from 6.42% in 2016 to 0.36% in 2020. Rejecting 2020 ballots at the same rate as 2016 would have resulted in a net gain of 25,587 votes for Trump—twice the number needed to overcome Biden's count. A six-fold increase in the number of mail in ballots would indicate that the rejection rate should increase, or at least stay the same, with so many first time mail in ballots. 3. Michigan: 174,384 mail in ballots in Wayne County had no valid registration number, indicating they likely resulted from election workers running the same ballots through the tabulator multiple times, as documented in numerous legal declarations. 71% of Wayne County absent voter counting boards were unbalanced, where the number of people who checked in did not match the number of ballots cast. 4. Wisconsin: One hundred thousand ballots were supposedly missing and directed to be found after Election Day. Cited in the legal brief, Managing Director at Berkeley Research Group Charles J. Cicchetti calculated the odds of Joe Biden winning the popular votes in those four states given President Trump's early leads in each at 3 AM on November 4th at less than one in a quadrillion, or 1 in 1,000,000,000,000,000. Cicchetti then calculated the odds of that event occurring collectively in all four states would decrease to less than one in a quadrillion to the fourth power (ie, 1 in $1,000,000,000,000,000^4$)." (Election Legitimacy Faces Biggest Trial In Court of Public Opinion by Larry Bell). Hoisting the white flag of surrender before the political pressure of red mobs who are the masters of America in the twenty first century, governors, state legislatures, state courts and the United States Supreme Court have abdicated their constitutional responsibility to protect the right of the people to vote and to vote in fair and honest elections, as established by the Fifteenth, Nineteenth and Twenty Sixth Amendments. Civilized, law abiding Americans were shocked and dismayed when the Supreme Court ruled that Texas lacked legal standing to sue Pennsylvania, Georgia, Wisconsin and Michigan for violations of Article II and the Nineteenth Amendment of the Constitution. They understood that when a group of states changes its election laws by executive fiat or court rulings, in violation of Electors Clause of Article II, or authorizes the counting of votes differently in different counties within the same state, in violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the Nineteenth Amendment, every state has standing to sue because every resident of every state, every citizen in every town and city in the nation, has a constitutional right to vote in a fair, honest and constitutionally sanctioned national election. Anatomists dissect animals to discover their bodily structure and internal parts.

Civilized people have dissected the presidential election of 2020 and discovered the putrefying flesh and cancerous organs of the red collapse of America.

THE REDS' FINAL SOLUTION AGAINST TRUMP

The Final Solution was a national socialist plan for the extermination of the Jews during World War II. The complete code name was The Final Solution to the Jewish Question and its mission was the murder of all Jews within the reach of the German government. Today's reds in control of America have launched a campaign to eliminate the current preeminent hate object of socialists throughout the world, Donald Trump, together with his friends, allies, supporters and sympathizers. These socialist exterminators, like their national socialist predecessors, see in Trump, as their predecessors saw in the Jews, the symbol of a world which they hate and detest down to the core of their being, the world of reason, enlightenment, freedom and capitalism, and they are determined to eradicate every last trace of Trumpism from the face of the earth. Today's reds hate Trump for everything he has accomplished in the way of resisting a fire breathing red leviathan enforcing gender, race and class politics, and containing its fearsome advance. They hate Trump because he has reduced taxes across the board and created a record breaking, noninflationary economic expansion. They hate Trump because he has opposed the redistribution of wealth and the socialization of health care. They hate Trump because he has made the vast majority of Americans economically better off than they were during the Obama years. They hate Trump because he has reduced regulations on businesses, eliminating eight regulations for every new regulation imposed, reducing regulatory costs by 50 billion dollars, increasing annual incomes by 40 billion dollars, and saving households 3,000 dollars per year. They hate Trump because he has established energy self sufficiency and ended oil imports through the encouragement of fracking. They hate Trump because he has ended illegal immigration. They hate Trump because he has held back the advance of radical environmentalism and its campaign to rollback the industrial revolution through a program of zero carbon emissions enshrined in the Paris Climate Accords. They hate Trump because he has opposed on grounds of principle, on grounds that in a free society the end does not justify the means, the regime of lockdown, shutdown and invasion of private homes established in the name of fighting the covid 19 pandemic. They hate Trump because he has opposed red political violence perpetrated by Antifa and Black Lives Matter in cities from coast to coast, which has seen murder, arson, vandalism, looting, riots and over two billion dollars in property damage. They hate Trump because he has sought to deploy the National Guard and the armed forces to quell the red urban disorder. They hate Trump because he has opposed the reds' campaign to dismantle and defund the police. They hate Trump because he has opposed red pseudoscholarship which places race and gender at the center of society. They hate Trump because he has opposed the red authoritarian cult of social justice. They hate Trump because he has opposed those who reject the virtues of limited government and the existence of universal human rights. They hate Trump because he has opposed the reds who deny the right of free speech and the right to express politically incorrect views. They hate Trump because he has opposed social justice warriors who reject reason and empiricism and worship at the altars of critical race theory and identity politics. They hate Trump because he has opposed the doctrine of cultural relativism and stood up for the superiority of Western liberal, rationalist culture. They hate Trump because he has opposed the reds' doctrine that truth and morality are culturally constructed and that there exists no world of physical objects and no objective human good. They hate Trump because he has opposed the reds' doctrine that truth is socially manufactured by means of language games and is relative to particular cultures and serves the will to power of gender, race and class groups. They hate Trump because he has opposed the reds' doctrine that capitalism is a system of patriarchy, white supremacy, homophobia and transgender phobia. They hate Trump because he has opposed the reds' doctrine that only whites can be racist and only men can be sexist. They hate Trump because he has opposed all forms of discrimination on the basis of race and gender and the reds' regime of proportional race and gender representation and special treatment given to women and nonwhites in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. They hate Trump because he has opposed the doctrine that gender can be changed at will and has nothing whatever to do with the existence of genes or chromosomes. They hate Trump because he has opposed the reds' doctrine that the purpose of education is not to transmit knowledge but to promote revolutionary social change. They hate Trump because he has opposed the reds' doctrine that philosophies which recognize the natural law rights of the individual against the state and society are complicit with systemic bigotry and must be outlawed. They hate Trump because he has opposed the reds' doctrine that a progressive university bases its courses, curriculum and departments upon the six pillars of postcolonial theory, queer theory, race studies, ethnic studies, gender studies and feminist studies which one and all deny the existence of universal, absolute, empirically established truths. Look at the world of America's red exterminationists and see their Schutzstaffel, Security Police, Gestapo, Kriminalpolizei, Sicherheitdienst, Order Police battalions, Waffen SS and Wehrmacht forces at work on a campaign of political mass murder code named the Trump Accountability Project. See left wing Democrats and Never Trump Republicans searching determinedly for Trump supporters and shooting them down in cold blood. See democratic socialists, democratic fascists and democratic communists firebombing courthouses in which Trump appointees preside. See red columnists and red commentators leading an operation to persecute, segregate, disenfranchise and discriminate against Trump supporters, deprive them of their livelihoods and careers, disqualify them from existing as persons with freedom and dignity, remove them from the ranks of society, and drum them out of the human race. See red commissioners of political correctness pursue today's political dissidents, composed exclusively of Trump supporters and those who affirm the fraudulent character of the 2020 presidential election, place them in police custody, subject them to round the clock torture, electrocute them for the crime of promoting truth, morality and the rule of law, brand them with the Yellow Badge of enemies of the people, hang them a thousand and one times, and submerge their human rights within the black waters of legal nonexistence: "Left wing Democrats and Never Trump Republicans appealed Friday for assistance in compiling lists of Trump supporters to they could be held accountable for supporting President Donald Trump after the election. Democratic socialist Representative Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-NY) tweeted: 'Is anyone archiving these Trump sycophants for when they try to downplay or deny their complicity in the future? I foresee decent probability of many deleted Tweets, writings, photos in the future.' Michael Simon, who describes himself as a former staff member in Barack Obama's administration, replied in the affirmative, linking to what he called the Trump Accountability Project. The database at the site includes a list of federal judges appointed by the president. Jennifer Rubin, a Washington Post columnist and Never Trumper, tweeted that anyone challenging the 2020 election results should not only be disqualified from holding public office, but ostracized from society. 'Any Republican now promoting rejection of an election or calling to not to follow the will of voters or making baseless allegations of fraud should never serve in office, join a corporate board, find a faculty position or be accepted into polite society. We have a list.' Prior to the election, some left wing commentators called for a South Africa style Truth and Reconciliation Commission for Trump supporters. The original Truth and Reconciliation Commission dealt with gross abuses of human rights, primarily by the apartheid regime, which imposed racial segregation and tortured and murdered political dissidents in custody." (Leftists, Never Trumpers Begin Compiling Lists of Trump Supporters by Joel Pollak). In the implementation of its campaign of cultural genocide directed against everything and everyone connected in any way, shape or form with Donald Trump, the red system which rules America has sent out its einsatzgruppen into every corner of the nation. Commanded by red civil servants, red state officials, red state legislatures, red election workers, the red political media, the red academic establishment, red think tanks, red corporations, the red private sector, the red Democratic Party, the red faction in the Republican Party, and red judges presiding in state and federal courts, these cultural death squads have assassinated the voices and values in support of liberal democracy and dumped them in mass graves marked Western Civilization. Burning down cities, pulling down statues, renaming buildings, rewriting textbooks, occupying streets, taking over campuses, indoctrinating students, silencing the voices of dissent and stealing the presidential election of 2020 by mail in ballot fraud attested by thousands of sworn affidavits submitted throughout the nation, a holocaust express train operated and stoked by the reds has arrived on the shores of the New World. It has deported Donald Trump and his movement to cultural gas chambers and annihilated the spirit and soul of America.

A RED CANCER SPREADS THROUGH SOCIETY

Cancer is a disease caused by an uncontrolled division of abnormal cells in an organ of the body. If left unchecked, a cancerous tumor will spread to other parts of the body and overwhelm and destroy the organism. Over the past century, a social and political cancer has been spreading across West and in the twenty first century, it has blackened and consumed every Western liberal democracy created by Anglo-Saxon culture in conjunction with the Enlightenment. This is the cancer of socialism and it is a product of mass psychology just as surely as blazing combustion is a product of intense heat. The mass mind is a barbarian mind which values tribalism and equality above freedom and dignity and has declared eternal war against political systems which treat people as individuals and guarantee the rights of the individual against spurious claims made by the state and community. In place of liberty, common ownership over the mind, the body, thoughts, feelings, decisions, actions, production, distribution and exchange: this is the attitude and ethos of the uncivilized, the uncultured, the savage and the brutish, and during the declining stages of a civilization, it has come to the fore again, having been suppressed for centuries, and invaded the minds and hearts of every member of society without respect to gender, race, age, class or station. When a civilization is on its way down and on its way out, every member has a predilection for socialism, every member young and old, white and nonwhite, male and female, rich and poor, employed and unemployed, educated and uneducated, skilled and unskilled, professional and vocational, every member from the Bill Gateses and the George Sorosés to the paupers and street sweepers who inhabit the gloomy inner cities, and this preference and special liking for a system which outlaws the right of the individual to live, work and flourish for himself is the tragic affinity which has killed and buried the West in the twenty first century. Civilized people have performed an autopsy on the West and observed the inroads of a metastatic growth which has left nothing and no one anywhere unharmed. They have observed red rioting, red looting and red statue smashing committed in cities from coast to coast with the approval of mayors and police. They have observed mayors and city councils defund and dismantle police operations. They have observed red occupiers set up autonomous zones in cities from which the law has been evicted and in which warlords terrorize the streets. They have observed the enactment of a Green New Deal which has rolled back the progress of science and technology in the name of reducing greenhouse gas emissions. They have observed the dissolution of national borders and the establishment of an open immigration policy for the Marxist and Muslim contaminated sewers of the world. They have observed the dissolution of liberal arts education into a red curriculum of gender, race, ethnicity, class and environmental studies. They have observed the red political weaponization of professional sports. They have observed the final takeover of the Democratic Party, after a one hundred year development, by a communist faction led by Bernie Sanders, Kamala Harris, Elizabeth Warren, Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, Ilhan Omar, Ayanna Pressley, Rashida Tlaib, Black Lives Matter and Antifa. They have observed the world of Big Tech, Silicon Valley and Wall Street placed under the control of red millionaires, red billionaires and red trillionaires. They have observed a national media establishment placed in the service of red activism. They have observed corporate boardrooms partnering with the forces of global socialism. They have observed chief executive officers subsidizing radical agendas in support of identity politics, red culture wars, and anticapitalist violence. They have observed white males cheated out of job positions and student placements at the hands of diversity, equity and inclusion jackboots. They have observed the transformation of the internet and social media from information delivery platforms into active instruments of red ideological indoctrination. They have observed the electronic accessing of knowledge, retrieval of information and communication across the world placed under the control and supervision of red corporate digital experts. They have observed the condemnation of the liberal democratic order as a regime of systemic racism which must be replaced by a black totalitarian dictatorship. They have observed the take over of society by radical formations of women, nonwhites, homosexuals and transgenders, proclaimed by the reds to comprise a "rainbow coalition of victims of capitalism". They have observed the supporters of liberal democracy condemned as "deplorables", "dregs", "scum" and "irredeemables". They have observed a president of the United States, Barack Obama, weaponize the Internal Revenue Service to target conservative foundations which opposed his red political agenda and observed him place press reporters who opposed his agenda under round the clock surveillance by the Department of Justice. They have observed the greatest political scandal in the history of Western democracies: the theft of the 2020 presidential election and the fraudulent victory of Joe Biden. They have studied over 1000 affidavits attest to the following: voting machines were programmed to allocate votes for Biden; tens of thousands fraudulent mail in ballots were cast for Biden in Milwaukee, Detroit, Philadelphia and Atlanta; vote counting was stopped in the middle of the night in Pennsylvania, Georgia, Wisconsin and Michigan and poll watchers were ordered to leave in order for the reds to prepare fraudulent mail in ballots cast for Biden and enter them into the vote count; votes for Biden were cast by deceased voters, unregistered voters, out of state voters, back dated ballots, mail in ballots never placed in envelopes, and ballots which exceeded the number of registered voters. They have observed the United States Supreme Court, cowed by red threats of nationwide riots and red threats to pack the court, dismiss on spurious procedural grounds a lawsuit launched by Texas which challenged the election results in Pennsylvania, Georgia, Wisconsin and Michigan. The suit recognized that the four states had unconstitutionally made changes to their voting rules through the courts and not the state legislatures, in violation of the Electors Clause of Article II of the Constitution, and had unconstitutionally allowed counties to change voting rules, resulting in different voting rules in different counties, in violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the Nineteenth Amendment. The court stated that "The State of Texas's motion for leave to file a bill of complaint is denied for lack of standing under Article III of the Constitution. Texas has not demonstrated a judicially cognizable interest in the manner in which another State conducts its elections." Constitutional scholars and ordinary Americans who read the court's decision saw the ferocious advance of a social and political cancer in the court's reasoning that the people of Texas had no standing to sue. They understood that the people of Texas have a constitutionally guaranteed right to vote in a national election, which means the right to vote in a fair and honest national election or it means nothing whatever, and were thus harmed by the unconstitutional actions of officials in the four states and were deprived of their right to vote, and had solid standing to sue. Look at the West today and see a red campaign to brand as racists statesmen who fought to expand the reach of freedom and civilization into savage regions. See a campaign to defend and exalt indigenous tribes of primitive subhumanity which worshiped at the altars of superstition and sacrifice. See renaming committees and commissars of political correctness hard at work erasing and expunging the words and deeds of progress and enlightenment and establishing the slogans and slavery of red totalitarian rule in their place: "A so-called renaming committee in San Francisco is erasing the name the 16th president of the United States from a school because Abraham Lincoln lived a life 'stained by racism.' 'Uprooting the problematic names and symbols that currently clutter buildings, streets, throughout the city is a worthy endeavor,' Jeremiah Jeffries, chairman of the committee and a first grade teacher in that California city, said. 'Only good can come from the public being reflective and intentional about the power of our words, names and rhetoric within our public institutions.' The president who ended slavery is now being called a racist, according to a report in the San Francisco Chronicle, which asks if Lincoln's true character has been 'whitewashed' to hide misdeeds toward Native Americans." (San Francisco Wants To Rename Abraham Lincoln High School: Former POTUS 'Stained by Racism' by Penny Starr). Civilized people have applied the probing knife of reason and sanity to the decaying body of the West. They have cut into the cancer, the abscess, the foulness and the putrescence. They have discovered malignant red cells multiplying by the minute and consuming mankind.

DECADENCE KILLS THE DEATH PENALTY

Among the preeminent characteristics of a society in a state of decline is the abolition of the death penalty for murder. The notion that no murderer should ever be put to death runs contrary to the code of proportional punishment adopted by civilized people since time immemorial. Civilized people have always understood that a society which is not prepared to take the life of somebody who taken the life of an innocent person is neither a just nor a moral society. Plato upheld the death penalty for murder because he saw it as means of purification of the disease and defilement of the crime. Aristotle upheld the death penalty on the grounds that every person is responsible for his actions, criminal actions are free, voluntary actions and must be compensated by the perpetrator, and the grievous crime of murder can only be paid for by the murderer's forfeiture of his own life. In ancient Rome, the death penalty was held to be the proper and just expiation for the killing of an innocent person. In the Enlightenment, the death penalty was upheld on the grounds of the natural right of the state to exact just retribution. The twentieth century saw the onset of a movement throughout the West to abolish the death penalty; this movement was a direct consequence of the general moral deterioration of the culture; and in the present day, the abolitionists, supported by a groundswell of public opinion, have achieved total victory in virtually every nation, while in nations which still allow the death penalty, such as America, its use is declining and under sustained attack. The avatars of a movement of cultural senescence in which people can no longer distinguish right from wrong, can no longer understand the value of an innocent human life, and no longer know what just punishment is or demands, today's abolitionists have set forth a program and manifesto for the downplaying and excusing of murder and in so doing established an unbridgeable gulf between themselves and civilized people. They have proclaimed that those who torture and strangle people who have done them no harm, douse them with gasoline and set them on fire, do not deserve to die. They have proclaimed that the death penalty is wrong because an innocent person may be executed. Civilized people have pointed out in response that this argument is a sheer pretext because the judicial process can always be changed to require absolute proof and certainty of guilt, in the form of videos, multiple eyewitnesses and fingerprints, before an execution is carried out. They have pointed out that when absolute proof of murder is in fact available and presented, the abolitionists still stand opposed to the death penalty. Today's abolitionists have rejected the imposition of justice and proclaimed that those who are serial killers, those who rape and torture their victims before they kill them, those who kill multiple children, and those who kill thousands of innocent people in acts of terror, do not deserve to die: "There are good reasons to maintain capital punishment in our state. The paramount goal of sentencing is the imposition of justice. Sometimes, justice is dismissing a charge, granting a plea bargain, expunging a past conviction, seeking a prison sentence, or—in a very few cases, for the worst of the worst murderers—sometimes, justice is death. A drug cartel member who murders a rival cartel member faces life in prison without parole. What if he murders two, three, or 12 people? Or the victim is a child or multiple children? What if the murder was preceded by torture or rape? How about a serial killer? Or a terrorist who kills dozens, hundreds or thousands? The repeal of the death penalty treats all murders as the same. Once a person commits a single act of murder, each additional murder is a freebie. That is not justice." (Coloradans Should Have the Final Say On The Death Penalty (And I'd Hope They Keep It) by George Brauchler). Today's abolitionists have proclaimed that even when there is irrefutable evidence established of murder, even when surveillance cameras and telephone data have established guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, the perpetrators do not deserve to die. They have proclaimed that there is no crime in the world which is so dreadful and causes so much horror that it deserves to be punished by death: "Sometimes, there is no doubt that people are killers because their sins are recorded by surveillance cameras or bystanders' phones. With that evidence, other than mental illness, there's no reason not to execute those who commit the most horrific crimes. While executions are rare, having the death penalty can be a bargaining chip for authorities as they investigate crimes. It's also necessary to have capital punishment because some crimes simply are so horrific that any other punishment, including life in a cage, is insufficient." (Pennsylvania's Death Penalty System Should Be Strengthened, Not Abolished, Amid Newly Raised Concerns by Paul Muschick). Today's abolitionists have proclaimed that they neither want nor seek justice for murderers. They have proclaimed that the spectacle of murderers being released from jail and allowed back onto the streets should not in any way, shape or form outrage or offend a progressive society. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is dedicated to the correction and rehabilitation of murderers and to favoring them with clemency and commutation of their sentences, and has renounced the achievement of justice in punishment: "In our experience, most survivors want justice for the murderers of their family members. Repealing the death penalty will not heal these peoples' wounds; it keeps them permanently open. Moreover, victims' families will always be haunted by the specter that an inmate sentenced to life without parole will suddenly ask the governor to reduce a sentence—as happened recently in the case of a Fresno murderer who waited 36 years and applied for clemency. As long as an inmate sentenced to life without parole lives, the governor could reduce the sentence and a murderer may be released on the street. It is dead wrong to assert that the death penalty has been conclusively shown not to deter crime. Experience and common sense confirm a deterrent effect." (California's Broken Death Penalty System Can Be Fixed by Anne Marie Schubert). Today's abolitionists have proclaimed that a progressive society has renounced the goal of achieving justice for the victims of crime and their families. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has abolished the death penalty for murder, refused to achieve proper resolution of monstrous acts, coddled the most heinous and depraved criminals, shattered the peace enforced by just laws, and allowed fear and cruelty to stalk the streets: "Giving up on the death penalty would mean giving up on justice for crime victims and their families. The prisoners currently on California's death row have murdered more than 1,000 people. Of those, 229 were children, 43 were peace officers, and 294 of the victims were sexually assaulted and tortured. Having a functional death penalty law will help us protect the public from society's worst criminals and bring some measure of closure to the families whose loved ones were cruelly taken from them" (Reform, Don't Repeal, the Death Penalty by the Los Angeles Airport Peace Officers Association). Today's abolitionists have proclaimed that the death penalty is unjust and immoral because the lives of murderers possess equal value and dignity with those who do not murder. They have proclaimed that people who behave like predatory animals, people who are devoid of moral sense, conscience and compunction and wantonly take innocent human life, are entitled to equal protection under the law and do not under any circumstances deserve the penalty of death for their misdeeds: "Abolitionists may contend that the death penalty is inherently immoral because governments should never take human life, no matter what the provocation. The death penalty honors human dignity by treating the defendant as a free moral actor able to control his own destiny for good or for ill; it does not treat him as an animal with no moral sense, and thus subject even to butchery to satiate human gluttony. Moreover, capital punishment celebrates the dignity of the humans whose lives were ended by the defendant's predation." (Individual Rights and Responsibility--The Death Penalty, But Sparingly by Bruce Fein). Civilized people in the present day have cried out in their hearts, in their minds and in their entire being for justice and fairness in this world and demanded the execution of murderers. Shrouded in a black cloak and wielding a scythe by which he separates souls of the dead from their bodies, the skeletal figure of the Grim Reaper stalks the West during its dying hours. He has seized the Goddess of Justice, blindfolded and holding a balance and a sword, marched her up to the gallows, fastened a noose around her neck, and released the trap door.

A SHAM CALLED JUDICIAL REVIEW

A weather vane is a revolving pointer used for indicating the direction of the wind. The word vane comes from the Old English word for flag and the weather vane typically sits like a flag at the highest point of a building. In America over the past one hundred years, the Supreme Court has abandoned its constitutionally mandated role of enforcing the constitution and serving as a check on executive and legislative power and has degenerated into a political weather vane dedicated to rubber stamping the will of the majority. As America became engulfed in the raging fires of mob rule, the Supreme Court renounced the principle of judicial review, and sweeping itself into the firestorm, transformed itself into a mob held device for inking and imprinting a message of automatic approval of the mob's red political demands. The past one hundred years have seen a process of rank politicization of the Supreme Court in which judges have provided spurious constitutional justification to whatever it is which the red mob of the day has demanded that it justify and allowed Congress and state legislatures free, unfettered rein to enact a blatantly unconstitutional red political agenda. The litany of unconstitutional decisions handed down by the Supreme Court, in obedience to the wishes of the majority, is one hundred years long, but ten cases stand out as landmarks of judicial abdication and illegality and as signposts of the decline and fall of the nation into the fever swamps of red mob dictatorship. These ten cases are United States versus Butler (1936), West Coast Hotel Company versus Parrish (1937), United States versus Darby Lumber Company (1941), Wickard versus Filburn (1942), Shelley versus Kraemer (1948), Heart of Atlanta Motel versus United States (1964), Meritor Savings Bank versus Vinson (1986), Grutter versus Bollinger (2003), National Federation of Independent Business versus Sebelius (2012) and Texas versus Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan and Wisconsin (2020). In United States versus Butler, the Court held that Congress has the power to violate the Constitution and to lay taxes in support of activities not enumerated in Article I and to establish a national welfare entitlement state. Article I specifies the sole permissible purposes of taxation, and includes among them the regulation of interstate commerce, the regulation of foreign commerce, and the support of the military, and does not enumerate the provision of welfare services. The General Welfare Clause of Article I is simply the statement of a truism that the purpose of the national power to tax is the achievement of the good of all citizens and not the good of some, and does not authorize Congress to tax and spend in support of unenumerated, unspecified welfare programs. In West Coast Hotel Company versus Parrish, the Court held that the Constitution empowers the states to restrict liberty of contract on the grounds of protecting public health and safety. The Court held that "The principle which must control our decision is not in doubt. The constitutional provision invoked is the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment governing the states, as the due process clause invoked in the Adkins case governed Congress. In each case the violation alleged by those attacking minimum wage regulation for women is deprivation of freedom of contract. What is this freedom? The Constitution does not speak of freedom of contract." (Charles Evan Hughes). In point of fact, the Constitution protects freedom of contract in the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments' provision that no person shall be "deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law." This provision possesses a substantive dimension inasmuch as the mention of the rights to life, liberty and property entails their existence; this clause would not be found in a socialist constitution in which these rights are on principle not recognized. In the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment, the phrase "life, liberty and property" to the right of the conjunction represents the substantive meaning of the amendment, while the phrase "without due process of law" to the left of the conjunction represents the procedural meaning. In the substantive meaning, the right to liberty entails liberty of contract or it entails nothing whatever, for liberty of contract cannot be separated away from all other liberties, such as the liberty to procure an abortion, in any coherent, consistent, nonarbitrary manner. In United States versus Darby Lumber Company, the Court upheld the Fair Labor Standards Act (1938) and held that the Commerce Clause empowers Congress to regulate the employment conditions of each and every business in the nation. In point of fact, the Commerce Clause does not empower Congress to regulate the employment conditions of businesses which engage in activities which are originally local and intrastate in character. The Commerce Clause empowers Congress to regulate activities which are intrinsically interstate, such as interstate shipping and transportation, and not any and every business which may be at some point produce goods which are shipped interstate. In Wickard versus Filburn, the Court held that production quotas established under the Agricultural Adjustment Act (1938) were constitutional even when applied to agricultural production consumed within a state, because its effect upon interstate commerce placed it within the power of Congress to regulate under the Commerce Clause in Article I of the Constitution. The Court held that "Whether the subject of the regulation in question was production, consumption, or marketing is, therefore, not material for purposes of deciding the question of federal power before us. That an activity is of local character may help in a doubtful case to determine whether Congress intended to reach it. But even if appellee's activity be local and though it may not be regarded as commerce, it may still, whatever its nature, be reached by Congress if it exerts a substantial economic effect on interstate commerce and this irrespective of whether such effect is what might at some earlier time have been defined as direct or indirect." In point of fact, the Commerce Clause says what it says and only empowers Congress to regulate commerce "among the several states" and does not additionally empower Congress to regulate activities which only have an effect on interstate commerce and which themselves are not activities of interstate commerce. A plain, straightforward reading of the phrase interstate commerce establishes that it means nothing more than interstate commerce and does not also encompass activities which only affect interstate commerce. The regulatory power granted to Congress by the Commerce Clause is not carte blanche but is limited by the rights to life, liberty and property guaranteed by the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments under the doctrine of substantive due process. A private business which engaged in interstate commerce would still have the right to set its own employment conditions under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments' guarantee of private enterprise and private property. A private farmer who engaged in interstate commerce would still have the right under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to produce and consume whatever crops he desired. In Shelley versus Kraemer, the Court held that the state enforcement of racially restrictive housing covenants constitutes state action and is therefore prohibited under the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. In point of fact, a private agreement is a private agreement and its enforcement by the state does not magically or mystically transform it into a state agreement. The Equal Protection Clause prohibits state agreements which discriminate on the basis of race and not private agreements. The Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment's protection of the right to private property, guaranteed under the doctrine of substantive due process, protects the right to discriminate on private property. In Heart of Atlanta Motel versus United States, the Court held that the Commerce Clause gives Congress the power to force private businesses whose activities affect interstate commerce to abide by Title II of the Civil Rights Act (1964), which prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin in places designated as public accommodations. In point of fact, the Court's unconstitutional interpretation of the Commerce Clause in Darby and Wickard was repeated in Heart of Atlanta Motel. The motel in question did not itself engage in interstate commerce; its profits were derived from intrastate transactions. Furthermore, a private motel which did in fact engage in interstate commerce would still have the right to discriminate under the substantive Due Process Clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. The Civil Rights Act defines public accommodation in such a manner as to include both publicly and privately owned accommodations. In point of fact, a public accommodation is a publicly owned accommodation, such as a public library or a public concert hall, and is not a privately owned accommodation, such as a private motel or a private restaurant, and the Act's illicit, expansive definition of public accommodation violates the right to private property guaranteed under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. In Meritor Savings Bank versus Vinson, the Court held that sexual harassment is a form of sex discrimination and is thus prohibited under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. In point of fact, the Court repeated the error in Heart of Atlanta, for there is right to discriminate on the basis of sex under the Due Process Clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. In Grutter versus Bollinger, the Court held that student admissions processes in public universities which discriminate on the basis of race or sex do not violate the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. The Court held that "the Constitution does not prohibit the law school's narrowly tailored use of race in admissions decisions to further a compelling interest in obtaining the educational benefits that flow from a diverse student body." (Sandra Day O'Connor). In point of fact, the Equal Protection Clause prohibits state discrimination committed for any reason and commands that state actions be at all times and in all respects race blind and gender blind. In National Federation of Independent Business versus Sebelius, the Court held that the individual mandate under the Affordable Care Act (2010) to purchase health insurance is a constitutional exercise of Congress's taxing power under Article I of the Constitution. In point of fact, the difference between a penalty and a tax is as plain as daylight and can only be conflated by doing violence to words. A penalty is a punishment for breaking a law, while a tax is a compulsory contribution to state revenue levied upon legal goods and services. Furthermore, Congress has no authority to force an individual to purchase a product, for such a mandate violates the right to liberty guaranteed under the Due Process Clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. In Texas versus Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan and Wisconsin, the Court held that Texas had no legal standing to sue Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan and Wisconsin over the manner in which they conducted the presidential election of 2020. The suit recognized that these four states had unconstitutionally made changes to their election rules through their executives and courts rather than their state legislatures, in violation of the Electors Clause of Article II of the Constitution, and that they allowed different counties to establish different voting rules, in violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. The Court held that "The State of Texas's motion for leave to file a bill of complaint is denied for lack of standing under Article III of the Constitution. Texas has not demonstrated a judicially cognizable interest in the manner in which another State conducts its elections. All other pending motions are dismissed as moot." In point of fact, Texas has standing to sue on two grounds. Firstly, on the general grounds that it was a witness to unconstitutional acts committed by other states and thus had standing to sue as a witness to any crime has standing to sue. Secondly, it was specifically harmed by the unconstitutional actions of the four states inasmuch as its citizens were by these actions deprived of their right to vote in a fair, honest and constitutionally sanctioned national election. Over the past century, red mobs have assumed control over the American state and society and stormed the fortress of the United States Supreme Court. Rampaging down the Great Hall and into the Court Chamber, these mobs have removed judges, jurists and scholars of the law and replaced them with black robed underlings and henchmen of the mob. Rejecting the constitutional guarantees of private property, private liberty, private action and private association, the mob lawyers on the Supreme Court have decided unanimously to rewrite and dissolve the Constitution.

AMERICA LEAVES THE WEST

The legal definition of a sham election is one which is held purely for show and with a predetermined conclusion. Examples of sham elections are the 1929 and 1934 elections held in fascist Italy, elections held in Germany during the Third Reich, the 1940 parliamentary elections held by communists in Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, elections held in postrevolutionary Iran, the 1995 and 2002 presidential elections held in Iraq, and elections held in North Korea. The staging of sham elections had been the exclusive preserve of authoritarian states up until the United States presidential election of 2020. At this time, in a tragedy of monumental proportions and a catastrophe which political scientists will write about for decades to come, the greatest and most inspirational democracy in the history of mankind held a sham election which resulted in the defeat of Donald Trump and the victory of Joe Biden. On November 3, 2020, the United States election system fell under a coordinated assault and siege by reds who were determined to cheat Trump out of victory and restart the radical march of the nation which had commenced under Barack Obama. Goose stepping under the banners of gender, race and class politics, this radical march was the climax of a hundred year crescendo which commenced at the dawn of the twentieth century as a movement of social regulation packaged in ribbons marked progressivism. Trump's crime was that he halted this one hundred year movement and its acceleration under Obama and rolled back most of Obama's legacy. The exception to this roll back was the Affordable Care Act, which Trump was unable to repeal by virtue of the resistance he encountered from reds within his own party, and was unable to have overturned by the Supreme Court, by virtue of the Court's degenerated role as a judicial rubber stamp of the will of the majority. The record of voter fraud and irregularities committed during the presidential election of 2020 is as clear and unequivocal as the reds' contempt for the rule of law and their sinister doctrine that the end justifies the means. Look at the evidence and see the guilt of the reds, the guilt of the nation, the guilt of the neighbors next door who have filled the ranks of a one hundred year movement to expunge mavericks like Trump who had dared to challenge the new totalitarian orthodoxy, and see the guilt established beyond all uncertainty and beyond a reasonable doubt. Look at the criminal, unconstitutional acts committed by a red political machine operating from coast to coast and see the dissolution of a nation's moral and political credibility. Unable to hold a fair and honest national election, America on November 3, 2020 became a corrupt nation, and a corrupt nation, from a moral point of view, is no longer a nation. Look at the evidence and see a relentless effort to print and mail out tens of millions of mail in ballots and send them to unknown parties without safeguards of any kind. See Democratic politicians and judges, without the consent of legislatures and thus in violation of the Electors Clause of Article II of the Constitution, change election procedures to benefit Joe Biden. See Nevada and California send millions of ballots to voters who had not requested them and to voters who were dead. See Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin send absentee ballot forms to every adult in the state, including people who were dead, who had moved out of the state, and who were not citizens. See sixty seven counties in Michigan which had more registered voters than voting age citizens. See the refusal of the Wisconsin Board of Elections to remove from the voter lists the names of 100,000 people whose residency could not be confirmed because they were not American citizens. See a massive dump of fraudulent ballots for Biden in Wisconsin occurring at 4 AM, giving him a 20,000 vote lead and awarding the state to him. See hundreds of thousands of fraudulent votes counted when Republican poll watchers were excluded and locked out of buildings. See voters who had not voted by mail in ballot turned away from polling stations on Election Day and told that they could not vote because they had already voted by mail in ballot. See dials turned, buttons pressed and computer chips changed in Dominion voting machines and hundreds of thousands of votes manufactured for Biden. See Michigan County in which Dominion machines manufactured 6,000 votes for Biden. See Michigan at 6:30 AM on November 4 when a vote dump of 150,000 fraudulent votes for Biden occurred and gave the state to Biden. See Georgia where election workers refused to check signatures on the envelopes of mail in ballots. See how Pennsylvania, Michigan, Nevada, Georgia and Arizona allowed people to obtain absentee ballots without showing identification. See voters across Pennsylvania receiving two ballots in the mail and receiving ballots for which they never applied. See Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, where mail in and absentee ballots were processed illegally and in secret: Republican poll watchers were evicted from the polling station and windows were boarded up. See Fayette County, Pennsylvania where voters received ballots which had been completed for Biden by election workers and thousands of ballots for Trump were not counted. See Montgomery County, Pennsylvania where unregistered voters were told by election officials to vote under a different name. See tens of thousands of voters across Pennsylvania being treated differently based on their party affiliation: Democratic voters who submitted flawed ballots were given a chance to correct them, while Republican voters were not given this chance, in violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the Constitution. See Detroit, Michigan where city workers did not ask for voter identification, did not validate signatures, illegally backdated ballots received after the deadline, and coached voters to vote Democrat and then watched them vote. See Wisconsin where election officials encouraged 250,000 voters to improperly register as indefinitely confined, and 70,000 absentee ballots did not have matching ballot applications, as required by law. See Detroit where election officials counted the same batches of ballots multiple times, duplicated ballots, and counted boxes of ballots bearing the same signature. See Wayne County, Michigan where election workers entered fake birth dates into the records in order to manufacture votes for Biden, and tens of thousands of ballots without envelopes were counted for Biden. Look at the 2020 presidential election and see a level of ballot fraud without precedent in the history of the United States. See the total collapse of election integrity. See informants swearing out affidavits and giving video interviews attesting to massive electoral illegalities. See hundreds of thousands of completed absentee ballots for Trump illegally transported across three state lines. See trailers filled with ballots for Trump disappearing in Pennsylvania. See over one million votes for Trump, spread across Arizona, Michigan, Georgia and Pennsylvania, excluded from the vote counting. See the operation of a coordinated, multistate campaign to influence the election and ensure the victory of Joe Biden: "A top civil liberties group has released bombshell new evidence of voter fraud in the 2020 presidential election, including an eyewitness report that up to 280,000 ballots 'disappeared' from a trailer in Pennsylvania. At a news conference on December 1, the Amistad Project unveiled multiple whistle blower accounts and sworn testimony pointing to 'massive ballot fraud' in the 2020 election. The Amistad Project is an initiative of the Thomas More Society that works to defend constitutional liberties and election integrity. 'Evidence from these whistle blowers in the form of affidavits and video interviews are being used in litigation by the Amistad Project to ensure election integrity and to uphold election laws in key battleground states,' the Amistad Project said. They stated that the accounts, largely from postal workers, 'reveal multistate illegal efforts by USPS workers to influence the election in at least three of six swing states. Details include potentially hundreds of thousands of completed absentee ballots being transported across three state lines, and a trailer filled with ballots disappearing in Pennsylvania. Experts retained by the Amistad Project in sworn declarations state that over 300,000 ballots are at issue in Arizona, 548,000 in Michigan, 204,000 in Georgia, and over 121,000 in Pennsylvania.' " (Experts Flag Over 500k ballots In PA With New Evidence Of Major 2020 election Voter Fraud by Raymond Wolfe). On December 11, 2020, the United States Supreme Court did the bidding of the red mobs which control the nation and refused to condemn unconstitutional state actions or see the massive proof assembled of electoral fraud. Masquerading as judges and jurists, the mob's nine henchmen sitting in the Court trotted out a pretext and ruled that there was no standing to sue. Civilized people and defenders of the law understood that in point of fact everyone has standing to sue when a country's national election system has been harmed and damaged to such an extent and has descended into such severe levels of corruption that the country has, in a substantive sense, become a nonstate actor. Before Election Day, November 3, 2020, there were seventy eight nations in the world which were able to hold free and honest national elections. After Election Day, this number decreased by one. A nationwide operation which saw fake signatures, illegal immigrant voters, the exclusion of Republican poll watchers, more votes cast than actual voters, massive late night ballot drops, double voters, dead voters, and ballot stuffing caught on video, pushed America out of the community of democratic nations and hurled it into a savage jungle marked Failed and Fraudulent States.

INDIAN REMOVAL: THE CONQUEST OF SUBHUMANITY

On December 15, 2020, a renaming committee in San Francisco voted to erase the name of the sixteenth president of the United States from a public school. Abraham Lincoln's crime in the eyes of the committee was that he had led a life "stained by racism" because he identified Native Americans as savages and took steps to protect the advance of civilization from their savagery. Lincoln's Homestead Act and Pacific Railway Act of 1862 brought about the construction of a transcontinental railroad which eliminated savage lands, savage lifestyles and savage cultures. In 1863, Lincoln removed the Navajos and Mescalero Apaches from New Mexico Territory and thereby cleansed the territory of savagery. When the committee's vote was taken, a mighty bomb exploded whose shrapnel and debris shattered homes, schools and offices throughout the city and moved the reds' cultural war and campaign against America to the next level. Civilized Americans picked up the shrapnel and read the multifarious reasons why the reds hate Lincoln and sought to expunge the name of the greatest and most consequential president in American history. The reds hate Lincoln because he condemned aggressive, warlike tribes who raided and massacred their rivals. Because he condemned savage nomads who lived in bison skin tents folded and carried everywhere. Because he condemned savage tribes who survived by hunting, gathering and raiding their neighbors for crops. Because he condemned savage tribes who lived in houses made of mud and bark. Because he condemned savage nomads who foraged for roots, seeds and nuts and hunted snakes and lizards. Because he condemned savage tribes who lived in houses made of willow poles, saplings, leaves and brush and had no stable settlements or leadership of any kind. Because he condemned savage tribes who survived like animals by means of hunting and raiding expeditions. Because he condemned savage tribes who were organized as family bands of hunters and gatherers. Because he condemned savage nomads who followed animal herds from place to place. Because he condemned savage tribes for whom the concept of human dignity was unknown and who determined a person's worth by his closeness to the village chief and by the number of blankets, shells, skins, canoes and slaves he possessed. Because he condemned savage cultures which had no notions of private property, private families or private labor and for whom the individual existed to serve tribal needs and interests. Because he condemned savage cultures whose medicine men had visited the spirit world and the Supreme Being, and foresaw the end of the world and the coming of the Red Christ. Because he condemned savage cultures which exalted a supernatural reality reached by meditation, prayer, singing and dancing. Because he condemned savage cultures which beheld visions of the Great Spirit of the Earth which would kill everybody on the planet and resurrect the believers in its revelations. Because he condemned savage cultures whose members danced in a shaking and twitching fashion to brush off their sins. Because he condemned savage cultures which exalted the Peyote Road to the realm of the Great Spirit. Because he condemned savage cultures which worshiped peyote as medicine for spiritual healing. Because he condemned savage cultures which ingested hallucinogenic plants to behold supernatural visions. Because he condemned savage cultures which sang peyote songs with gourd rattles and water drums and traveled into otherworldly dimensions. Because he condemned savage cultures which entered sweat lodges, conducted purification ceremonies, endured hours of intense heat, engaged in prayer, fasting, meditation, singing and sacrificial offering, and received mystical revelations. Because he condemned savage cultures which embarked upon vision quests and communed with their grandfathers and spirit ancestors. Because he condemned savage cultures whose members danced around poles to which they were fastened by rawhide thongs pegged through their chests and sacrificed themselves for the sake of the family and tribe. Because he condemned savage cultures whose shamans possessed supernatural powers of curing diseases and controlling spirits. Look at the world of the Indians and see ancient, fiery waters blazing with rank superstition. See barren wastelands thundering with furious gallops of liars, thieves, marauders, murderers, cannibals, the most bloodthirsty of savages, the cruelest of psychopaths, bacterial hordes swarming out of the entrails of animals, and tribal warriors boasting endlessly of their endless lists of victims. See wild, shouting, dancing, remorseless beasts of prey merging into darkness and night, smeared with the waste of centuries of stagnation. See the distilled essence of swinishness, ignobility, inhumanity, nonvirtue, nonflourishing and monstrous evil, which shocked the conscience of decent, civilized people and placed before their disbelieving eyes a picture of unmitigated hell on earth. See irredeemable, incorrigible blemishes upon mankind who were unfit to live and fit only to be exterminated: "To come to the point at once, I beg to say that I have not the least belief in the Noble Savage. I consider him a prodigious nuisance, and an enormous superstition. His calling rum firewater, and me a pale face, wholly fail to reconcile me to him. I don't care what he calls me. I call him a savage, and I call a savage a something highly desirable to be civilized off the face of the earth. He is a savage—cruel, false, thievish, murderous; addicted more or less to grease, entrails, and beastly customs; a wild animal with the questionable gift of boasting; a conceited, tiresome, bloodthirsty, monotonous humbug. Yet it is extraordinary to observe how some people will talk about him, as they talk about the good old times. There was Mr. Catlin, some few years ago, with his Ojibbeway Indians. Mr. Catlin was an energetic, earnest man, who had lived among more tribes of Indians than I need reckon up here, and who had written a picturesque and glowing book about them. With his party of Indians squatting and spitting on the table before him, or dancing their miserable jigs after their own dreary manner, he called, in all good faith, upon his civilized audience to take notice of their symmetry and grace, their perfect limbs, and the exquisite expression of their pantomime; and his civilized audience, in all good faith, complied and admired. Whereas, as mere animals, they were wretched creatures, very low in the scale and very poorly formed. It is not the miserable nature of the noble savage that is the new thing; it is the whimpering over him with maudlin admiration, and the affecting to regret him, and the drawing of any comparison of advantage between the blemishes of civilization and the tenor of his swinish life. To conclude as I began. My position is, that if we have anything to learn from the Noble Savage, it is what to avoid. His virtues are a fable; his happiness is a delusion; his nobility, nonsense. The world will be all the better when his place knows him no more." (The Noble Savage by Charles Dickens). In the mid nineteenth century, the field of soil chemistry was born and scientists discovered the chemical composition of dirt. Its content is forty five percent mineral, five percent organic matter, and fifty percent void, water and gases. Four centuries before, civilized people had encountered a species of moral dirt which they had never encountered before. In their voyages to the New World to spread the blessings of civilization, a new, sinister and savage form of dirt, the most sinister and savage dirt they had ever encountered, swept into their faces and blinded and paralyzed them in horror and incredulity. This dirt carried a tomahawk and knife. It strung around its body the scalps of men, women and children. It rejected reason and science and exalted mysticism as the path to spiritual enlightenment. It roamed the land like a wild animal. It was evil, savage and backward beyond all measure. It went on vision quests with medicine men in an attempt to escape from the bounds of physical reality. It stole food, raided its neighbors, communalized the land, and killed the settlers who planted the banners of law and order. It was restless, vengeful and loved the conduct of war. It was cunning, devious, deceitful, ungrateful, unfeeling and unrepentant. It consumed food which was uncooked and unclean. It gave no thought for the future and had no foresight of anything beyond the range of the moment. It had no desire for knowledge, was averse to education, and was incapable of engaging in abstract reasoning. This was the dirt driving and rampaging across the plains under the name of the Native American Indian. Its expulsion and elimination from the New World was among the preeminent victories of European civilization.

THE BOXER WAR AGAINST THE WEST

In the summer of 1900, the civilized world was plunged into a state of suspense and agitation over something which happened far away at the other end of the planet. This type of event had occurred countless times in the past and was the terrifying fate suffered by civilized people throughout history and was the very price of civilization itself: the price of suffering attack and assault again and again by the forces of barbarism and regression. This time around, at the dawn of the twentieth century, the fearsome wheel of destiny stopped in China and placed new protagonists upon the stage of war. They were called the Fists of Righteous Harmony and they declared war against the West and sought to drive out Western progress from the nation. Achieving skill and proficiency in the martial arts, the members of this society were nicknamed the Boxers and they shouted out and shadow boxed a program and manifesto which demanded the extermination of yangren, yangwu, yanghuo and yangjiao: "Western people", "Western matters", "Western goods", "Western ideas" and the "Western world of railways, telegraphs, ships and modern weapons." Rejecting the cultural transformation of China brought about by the West, the Boxers proclaimed that China must smash the alien shackles of law and civilization and return to the rule of corruption and reaction. They proclaimed that the traditional Chinese society established by Confucius, marked by the exaltation of social harmony above individual freedom, must be given back to the people after the West is pushed out. They proclaimed that the ideal Chinese society is an uncivilized, unenlightened yellow peril which will cast a shadow across the West and raze it to the ground. They proclaimed that the ideal Chinese society has expelled Western values and ideas and reestablished the rule of the primitive, tribal village. They proclaimed that the ideal Chinese society is ruled by a society of Long Knives whose members drink dissolved ashes of paper which recorded magic formulas to achieve invincibility. They proclaimed that China must achieve moral and spiritual purification by launching a bloodbath which will claim the lives of all Western foreigners together with all Westernized Chinese. Listen to the Chinese voices of hatred of the West. Hear them condemn science as a foreign devil and demand the destruction of the tracks and wires carrying the rays of modern progress. Hear them exalt human stagnation as the will of heaven and worship the satanic gods of zero growth, zero activity and zero development. Hear them condemn rational thought as the greatest of all evils and demand the decapitation and desouling of man and the deprivation of his energy and vitality: "Disturbances are to be dreaded from the foreign devils; everywhere they are starting missions, erecting telegraphs, and building railways; they do not believe in the sacred doctrine, and they speak evil of the gods. Their sins are numberless as the hairs of the head. The will of heaven is that the telegraph wires be first cut, then the railways torn up, and then shall the foreign devils be decapitated." (Boxer poster). Look at the world of Chinese resistance to the West. See the abject fear of modern progress and the religious condemnation of material innovations. See savage country folk lament the course of science and technology and behold its marvels with uncomprehending eyes. See barbarians of the wind and sky terrified at the sight of tracks and wires surging with the currents of human liberation. See the spirits of mysticism and the monsters of the steppes rain down destruction upon the harvest of human reason. See primitive, uncivilized people standing athwart the march of human flourishing and demanding that it halt in its tracks and reverse direction. See the Western monuments of scientific production smashed and desecrated, placed on sacrificial pillars and ignited. See the gods of the dirt, the filth and the fields build churches for the wicked and the ignorant who cannot deal with the advance of civilization, who find it impossible to inhabit and succeed in, who hate and detest it down to the core of their being, and who seek to submerge it in seas of blood and violence: "Alongside churches and other Christian symbols, technical innovations from the West also caused religious reservations with the Chinese. Above all, railways caused mistrust and resistance. Hardly a mile of tracks could be laid without the burial place of some predecessor of a Chinese, arbitrarily placed in the countryside, being desecrated. The telegraph lines also caused fear and desperation. Their purpose was unfathomable and their sight terrifying for the simple country people, whose tapestry of fields the big pillars crossed. When the wind blew, a quiet, pitiful plaint came out of the wires, and when they went rusty, the rain falling down from them was dyed red and reinforced the belief that the spirits were being tormented by this new invention of the 'foreign devils.' " (Revolt Against The West: A Comparison Of The Boxer Rebellion of 1900-1901 And The Current War On Terror by Sven Lange). Look at the Chinese war against the West and see a vortex of destruction and a cloud of antienlightenment sweeping across the nation. See a philosophy of fear and superstition placed back upon its throne to the wild acclaim of the people. See devils in human form promote a return to primitivism in the name of the renovation of Chinese society. See the expulsion of human liberty and the suppression of human progress. See the rejection of Western patterns of behavior marked by a concern for personal autonomy and private space. See a nationwide movement of rebellion against the policies brought by Western foreigners, the policies established by free people, the policies which alone can achieve the liberation of mankind. See a nationwide campaign to still the rising tides of reason, freedom, science and industrial development and return China to the swamplands and stagnation ruled by the caliphs of Confucianism: "The ideas of the Boxer movement spread by word of mouth and at an unusual speed--a Chinese chronicler compared it with a tornado--although the Boxers had no leader and no organizational structure. Such a group of gods in human form needed no leader and also would not have accepted a leader. This made suppression of the Boxer movement by the authorities more difficult. The policy successfully used in the past by which the leaders of uprisings were executed, but the large mass of the uprisers was spared and requested to spread out, no longer worked. We can say that the Boxers, parallel to al-Qaeda and the Taliban, enjoyed wide support in the population--at least for their prime concern--expulsion of the foreigners and suppression of the Western influence and way of life. In addition, their political objective--the renovation of Chinese society--remained just as vague as al-Qaeda's promise to unite all Muslims in a new caliphate." (Revolt Against The West: A Comparison Of The Boxer Rebellion of 1900-1901 And The Current War On Terror by Sven Lange). Look at the Chinese attacks on the West and see vandals from the morasses of moral, political, scientific, technological and industrial illiteracy blow up the ailway lines carrying the glorious freight of human vigor and human development. See the slaves of unseen, mystical powers sabotage the machines and engines of human mastery. See the officers, soldiers and armies of anticivilization on a mission of mass murder and mayhem. See diplomats and ambassadors representing Western nations embodying the rule of law mauled in the streets. See the preachers and evangelists of savage customs storm the gates of cultural betterment, storm the outposts of modern conditions, storm the embassies of constitutional government, and storm the capitals of forward intellectual movement established in their land, and burn down the house which the West had built: "When they heard news of attacks by Boxers on the railway lines between Tientsin and the capital, the embassies in Peking decided to request their own soldiers for their protection on May 28. Even if all the powers except Japan sent more soldiers than the Chinese government had officially admitted, the international military force of more than 400 officers and soldiers which arrived in Peking on May 31 appeared still seriously small to the diplomats in the embassy quarter. Their worries were not without reason: more and more news about further attacks by Boxers on missionaries and Chinese Christians occurred. After an attack on Belgian engineers near Paoting, to the east of Peking, and the murder of two missionaries by Boxers, it was the burning of the stands at the foreign race course outside the gates of the Chinese capital--which was comparatively harmless in the heated situation--that caused the ambassadors to demand further troops." (Revolt Against The West: A Comparison Of The Boxer Rebellion of 1900-1901 And The Current War On Terror by Sven Lange). Attacks on civilization will necessarily happen, and will happen again and again, so long as the monster of barbarism stalks the earth. In 1900, the Boxer uprising against civilization was defeated by Western military forces led by American troops which scaled the walls of Peking. One of the most heroic and exciting episodes known to civilization, the liberation of Peking gave unqualified victory to the West. Destiny would strike again, the attacks against civilization would continue with other actors, but this high water mark would never again be reached. In the period of liberal democracy's decline and fall over the past one hundred years, the victories of Marxist gender, race and class politics together with the forces of Islamist terror have made the West's victory over the Boxers a distant and fast receding wave in the waters of time.

LIBERTY: BANNED BY BRUSSELS

A tidal wave is an immense ocean wave caused by an underwater earthquake or volcanic eruption. In 1960, a monster tidal wave called a tsunami leveled the Hilo Bay area of Hawaii, damaging hundreds of homes and offices and causing hundreds of millions of dollars in damage. In 1987 and 1992, two monster political tidal waves struck Europe and transformed a free trade community into a continental superstate dedicated to the social regulation of people, services, labor and capital. It was a tidal wave launched by the forces of destiny, by the spirit of the times, which had decreed that all political efforts, undertakings, projects and institutions bear the imprint of red mob ideologies and have as their primary aim and mission the repeal of liberal democratic rights and freedoms. The two tidal waves were the Single European Act of 1987 and the Maastricht Treaty of 1992 and they established the political integration of the members of the free trade community and the formation of a federal system of European wide governmental intervention and control. Building upon the Single European Act, the Maastricht Treaty established an entity called the European Union and made Brussels the capital of a political and economic union whose agenda was headed by the word social and included the goals of social development, social markets, social labor, social capital, social transfers, social charters, social responsibilities and social justice, and excluded the traditional European concern for the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual against the claims of the state, as enshrined in law books, philosophic treatises, parliamentary speeches and political constitutions composed during the Age of Enlightenment. Drafted by the European Convention in 1999, solemnly proclaimed by the European Parliament, the Council of Ministers and the European Commission in 2000, and made legally binding on all European Union member states by the Treaty of Lisbon in 2009, the European Charter of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms enshrines the reds' attack on the liberal, capitalist, laissez faire order which for centuries had been the crown and glory of Europe as it tamed savage nations, conquered savage cultures, and spread the gospel of liberty to the farthest corners of the earth. Marching under red banners marked "social and economic rights and entitlements", the Charter is a program and manifesto for the subsumption of private existence into articles, titles, stipulations, provisos and clauses proclaiming the moral and political primacy of communitarian values and ideals. A walk through the Charter is a descent into a netherworld of cultural decadence which has negated everything Europe has traditionally stood for in the eyes of those oppressed by tribal creeds and religions, and is a downward climb into a pseudoliberal, quasiliberal, antiliberal document which is in substance and essence statist and socialist. Listen to the voices of the European Union laws proclaim that the right to life is absolute, unqualified and exists independently of justice and morality and that no specimens of depravity and corruption ever deserve to die: "1. Everyone has the right to life. 2. No one shall be condemned to the death penalty, or executed." (Article 2). Listen to the laws proclaim the right of an individual to receive an education paid for by other people" "Everyone has the right to education and to have access to vocational and continuing training." (Article 14, Section 1). Listen to the laws reject the right of an individual to own and dispose of private property without the sanction of social needs and interests: "The use of property may be regulated by law in so far as is necessary for the general interest". (Article 17). Listen to the laws proclaim the right of the state to invade private establishments and deprive their owners of freedom of association: "Any discrimination based on any ground such as sex, race, color, ethnic or social origin, genetic features, language, religion or belief, political or any other opinion, membership of a national minority, property, birth, disability, age or sexual orientation shall be prohibited." (Article 21). Listen to the laws reject the right of private establishments to set the terms and conditions of employment: "Equality between women and men must be ensured in all areas, including employment, work and pay." (Article 23). Listen to the laws proclaim the right of the state to mandate preferential treatment on the basis of gender in all admissions and employment: "The principle of equality shall not prevent the maintenance or adoption of measures providing for specific advantages in favor of the under-represented sex." (Article 24). Listen to the laws reject the right of a private establishment to employ those whom it wishes to employ: "Every worker has the right to protection against unjustified dismissal, in accordance with Union law and national laws and practices." (Article 30). Listen to the laws reject the freedom of contract of employees and the freedom of enterprise of employers: "1. Every worker has the right to working conditions which respect his or her health, safety and dignity. 2. Every worker has the right to limitation of maximum working hours, to daily and weekly rest periods and to an annual period of paid leave." (Article 31). Listen to the laws proclaim the right of the state to force private establishments to provide paid maternity leave: "To reconcile family and professional life, everyone shall have the right to protection from dismissal for a reason connected with maternity and the right to paid maternity leave and to parental leave following the birth or adoption of a child." (Article 33). Listen to the laws establish a welfare entitlement state and proclaim the duty of the individual to pay for comprehensive, cradle to grave welfare security for his neighbor and to provide maternity care, health insurance, accident insurance, unemployment insurance, old age pensions, housing, food and clothing through slave labor and confiscatory taxes: "1. The Union recognizes and respects the entitlement to social security benefits and social services providing protection in cases such as maternity, illness, industrial accidents, dependency or old age, and in the case of loss of employment, in accordance with the rules laid down by Union law and national laws and practices. 2. Everyone residing and moving legally within the European Union is entitled to social security benefits and social advantages in accordance with Union law and national laws and practices. 3. In order to combat social exclusion and poverty, the Union recognizes and respects the right to social and housing assistance so as to ensure a decent existence for all those who lack sufficient resources, in accordance with the rules laid down by Union law and national laws and practices." (Article 34). Listen to the laws proclaim the right of the incompetent and the unsuccessful to receive health care and medical treatment on the backs of the competent and the successful: "Everyone has the right of access to preventive health care and the right to benefit from medical treatment under the conditions established by national laws and practices. A high level of human health protection shall be ensured in the definition and implementation of all the Union's policies and activities." (Article 35). Listen to the reds proclaim the right of the individual to be supported by other people's money in the name of achieving social cohesion: "The Union recognizes and respects access to services of general economic interest as provided for in national laws and practices, in accordance with the Treaties, in order to promote the social and territorial cohesion of the Union." (Article 36). Listen to the reds proclaim the necessity of rolling back the Industrial Revolution and sending the hands of time spinning backward in the name of achieving environmental protection and sustainable development: "A high level of environmental protection and the improvement of the quality of the environment must be integrated into the policies of the Union and ensured in accordance with the principle of sustainable development." (Article 37). On December 31-January 1, 2020-2021, at 11 PM UK time, 12 AM European time and 6 PM Eastern Standard Time in America, the Big Ben clock rang out and marked the moment Britain left the European Union. During the accelerating free fall of the West into the roiling fever swamps of collectivism and state invasion, a stand for liberty was taken by "This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England." In a little world on the North Atlantic ocean, the former capital of a global empire of human freedom, a defensive moat was thrown up against an immense, dark and frightening tide wave of red radicalism roaring out from Brussels. Inside this fortress, this lone rock set in the sea, the reds were in truth advancing. But on New Year's Day 2021, their advance was slowed by a modicum.

HORST WESSELS ON THE MARCH

In April 19, 1926, Horst Wessel enrolled in the University of Berlin to study law. He represented a new breed of student which had just arisen in Germany: a student political activist. Ostensibly studying the origins and nature of the law and seeking to become a lawyer, Wessel was in reality a campaigner to bring about social and political change along the lines of a red ideology of national socialism, which like its rival Marxism sought to sweep away all forms, institutions and processes of the law and establish in their place the lawless, totalitarian rule of a mob intent upon collectivizing and controlling every aspect of human life. The Horst Wessel figure, the square circle of a student/nonstudent, a student/agitator, a student/zealot, a student/fighter and a student/thug, would become a permanent fixture on university campuses throughout the world and would place them under a state of round the clock siege and attack. Today's Horst Wessels have taken up the relay baton handed to them by their predecessors, and in true red fashion which would have done the real Horst Wessel proud, launched an attack on free speech and academic freedom and commenced a campaign to shut down a liberal society and its educational institutions. Shouting out a red program of speech suppression and thought control under the banners of gender, race and class politics, today's generation of Horst Wessels is the last generation before the end; its members are the final, fearsome, terrifying avatars of the decline and fall of the West. Assuming control over every institution of higher education in the world, they have proclaimed that the defenders of liberal order are the promoters of racist and homophobic dialogues and must be suppressed. They have proclaimed that free speech should not in justice exist and what should count as permissible speech is what progressive societies, states and social contexts have decreed is permissible speech. They have proclaimed that free speech is a lash of oppression wielded by the force of white power and must be repealed. They have proclaimed that a progressive society suppresses speech which is unacceptable, controversial or harmful to the reds. They have proclaimed that all criticisms of gender, race and class identity theory, and all words in support of the liberal constitutional order of free speech, are forms aggression against women, transgenders, nonwhites and the poor, and are sexist, homophobic, transphobic, racist and classist, and must be outlawed. They have proclaimed that the institution of free speech negatively impacts upon the health, well being and educational success of women, homosexuals, transgenders and nonwhites and has no place in a progressive society. They have proclaimed the free speech leads to the marginalization of minority groups and must be repealed. They have proclaimed that a world which censors and silences those who oppose socialism, a world which controls and regulates the speech of those who doubt or deny the truth of the people's social religions of gender, race and class, is the most just and progressive world imaginable. They have proclaimed that the notion that free speech is a universal human right to expression is a Western, capitalist, white male construct which ignores the ontological primacy of women, nonwhites and the poor and their natural right to control all speech. They have proclaimed that a progressive society places definite limits on freedom of speech and prohibits all speech which criticizes nonWestern, illiberal cultures, the dogma of cultural relativism and its corollary multiculturalism, Islamist violence and terror, and the mob's gospel of gender, race and class. They have proclaimed that antitribalist, antisocialist and anticommunist speech constitutes hate speech and must be criminalized. They have proclaimed that speech which denies the validity of social justice and upholds the principle of individual justice in its place makes women, nonwhites and Muslims feel unsafe and must be prohibited. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, the members of the intelligentsia, the writers, editors, commentators and academics, have advocated one and all for the abolition of free speech and for the state ownership, control and weaponization of the channels of communication in the name of advancing the interests of women, nonwhites, nonethnic Europeans, transgenders, Muslims and indigenous cultures. They have proclaimed that the First Amendment to the United States Constitution must be repealed because it allows the dissemination of the false and dangerous views that freedom is superior to slavery, that individuals have intrinsic rights which society cannot take away, and that individuals have a natural, infeasible right to live work and flourish for themselves without obtaining permission from the state or community. Look at the Horst Wessels in command of today's campuses and see them call for a regime of pervasive censorship. See red student editors and student government leaders hound, pressure and intimidate those who oppose the march of statism and socialism. See college presidents and deans don the uniforms of the red thought police and take over the channels of campus communication. See student committees drive out and expel the opponents of black racism, feminist sexism and communist violence. See student leaders and student representatives demand the expunging of liberal voices and the ousting of the enemies of tribal politics. See student assemblies silence those who oppose discrimination against white, heterosexual, nontransgender individuals, cancel their academic and professional careers, pursue them to the ends of the earth, attack them in cold blood, publicize them as global enemies number one, and expel them from the ranks of humanity. See campus radicals blow up the foundations of the liberal arts academy. See student organizers disarm, defund and disband the forces of law and order and forge the shackles of red oppression. See student seditionists spilling columns of red ink in support of gender, race and class politics and condemning the right of dissent and disputation. See campus hoodlums masquerading as journalism professors advocate the politicization of the news business and the placing of newspaper, magazines, news websites and news broadcasts under the iron heel of the commissars of political correctness. See faculty members, administrators and student mobs pass resolutions condemning free speech, freedom in the academy, and one thousand years of liberal civilization: "We have been discussing student editors and student government leaders using their positions to retaliate against the exercise of free speech by other students with the support of faculty. This trend is hardly surprising as journalism deans call for censorship and journalism professors call for the rejection of neutrality in the media. Universities have generally remained passive as students and faculty harass and punish those with opposing views. The latest such example was detailed in a column on the site College Fix on how students at Cornell University moved to oust student representatives who voted against disarming and defunding campus police. What concerns me most is the silence of the university on the controversy. According to the report, students failed to pass a resolution calling for the defunding and disarming of the Cornell Police Department. After the measure failed, student leaders called for the removal of opposing leaders from committees or the student government as a whole. Uchenna Chukwukere, the Student Assembly vice president of finance declared 'These 15 student assembly members watched us pour out our traumas and fears on the floor practically begging them to vote no, and finally send a message to the university that we can no longer allow these oppressive institutions to keep us down. Many of these assembly members are white-cis-het men and women who quite literally laughed and danced in our faces when the resolution failed. Their faces are all over social media. We will never forget their campus careers are over. We must disarm, defund, and disband the Cornell University Police Department.' Eventually, after a series of failed votes, the student organizers were able to pass Resolution 30, calling to disarm campus police by two votes. Student Dakota Johnson, a Marine veteran, recounted a confrontation with a government leader where he was allegedly told that 'As a white man, you cannot be the arbiter of what is and isn't racist and who is a good or bad person. You will never be the arbiter because you are a white man.' The question is the responsibility of universities when students use their positions to deny the free speech of other students or punish those who hold opposing views. There has been a conspicuous silence from faculty and administrators as both free speech and academic freedom has been attacked in recent years. It is a disgraceful failure to protect the foundational values for academia." (Their Campus Careers Are Over': Cornell Student Representatives Targeted For Opposing Efforts To Defund And Disarm Campus Police by Jonathan Turley). Rioting, organizing, vandalizing and hating, today's Horst Wessels are advancing the political agenda of red totalitarianism. Ruffians and antiintellectuals parading as university students, they are revered as national heroes during the twilight age of the West, marked Marxist and NeoMarxist Insurrection.

FREEDOM FIGHTERS STORM WASHINGTON

A patriot is defined as someone who supports his country and defends it against all enemies domestic and foreign. In America, a patriot defends what America has traditionally stood for, individual rights under the rule of law, and does not defend the nation conceived in any other way. An American patriot defends ideas and principles and not mere ties of blood and ethnicity. On January 6, 2021, America witnessed something not seen since the American Revolutionary War of 1775–1783: a vast formation of patriots, defending the America they knew, and an America past generations knew, storming and occupying the Capital in attempt to rectify a crime, the most monumental political crime committed in the history of the nation, and return the nation to its founding principles. The crime was the theft of the presidential election of 2020 and the fraudulent victory of Joe Biden. The patriots who stormed and occupied the Capital had two fundamental facts on their side, two fundamental facts which burnished their cause to a radiant glow of maximum righteousness, and made them supreme national heroes in the eyes of their patriotic countrymen. Fact number one: the existence of massive, overwhelming evidence of widespread electoral fraud and unconstitutional actions committed by states. Fact number two: the principle, acknowledged by civilized people throughout history, that when peaceful means of rectifying criminal acts committed by a state are not available, the use of violence to rectify them becomes justified and imperative. Honest, fair minded people throughout the world have looked at the evidence of fraud and unconstitutional state actions and have seen proof established beyond a reasonable doubt that Donald Trump was cheated out of victory by the efforts of Democratic Party operatives at work in every state in the nation. They have seen massive increases in mail in and absentee ballots and zero scrutiny of these ballots. They have seen states inundated with illegal ballots. They have seen changes in election rules made by courts or state officials and not by state legislatures, in violation of Article II of the Constitution. They have seen the sending out of absentee or mail in ballots to every voter in a state. They have seen the illegal use of secured receptacles or drop boxes. They have seen illegal ballot harvesting. They have seen corrupted voting machines manufacturing tens of thousands of votes for Joe Biden. They have seen the abolition of voter identification registration. They have seen the abolition of signature matching requirements. They have seen the illegal counting of ballots without outer envelopes. They have seen the abolition of poll watching. They have seen secretaries of state in Georgia, Michigan, Nevada and Pennsylvania unconstitutionally circumventing state legislatures and allowing the counting of illegal ballots. They have seen Michigan's secretary of state decide that all voters would receive mail in ballot applications automatically. They have seen Georgia's secretary of state decide that all voters would do so as well. They have seen the State Election Board in Georgia decide that voters can cast ballots in drop boxes around the clock, in violation of state law which prohibits the collecting of ballots outside the normal business hours of election offices. They have seen poll watchers prevented from observing the counting and processing of ballots collected from these drop boxes. They have seen the Wisconsin Election Commission rule that mail in ballots with missing addresses can be fixed, in violation of state law: "If a certificate is missing the address of a witness, the ballot may not be counted." (Wisconsin statutes 6.84 and 6.86). They have seen Pennsylvania's secretary of state decide that local election officials may not conduct on the spot signature verifications of absentee or mail in ballots. They have seen Pennsylvania's secretary of state decide that voters who used mail in ballots without identification would be able to fix their ballots by November 12 or eight days after the election. They have seen Pennsylvania's secretary of state extend the deadline for mail in ballots. This action to sway the election in favor of Joe Biden was described by Senate Majority Leader Jake Corman: "The issue is the secretary trying to influence this process by sending out guidance at the eleventh hour." They have seen a United States District Court judge in Arizona order an extension period for absentee ballots and allow missing signatures to be added during five business days after the election. Look at the 2020 presidential election and see an act of judicial abdication without precedent in the history of the nation. See the United States Supreme Court surrender to the threat of red violence and refuse to enforce the Constitution. See Article II, Section 1, Clause 2 of the highest law of the land rendered null and void by a court evenly divided between red operatives masquerading as judges and abject weaklings masquerading as judges. See members of the highest court in the land renounce their oath of office, refuse to protect and preserve the rule of law, and decline to do what should have been done to restore soundness and legality to the government: "Consequently, in each of these four battleground states—and there were others—whether through executive fiats or litigation, key, if not core, aspects of state election laws were fundamentally altered in contravention of the explicit power granted to the state legislatures and, therefore, in violation of the federal Constitution and the process set forth for directing the selection of electors. And this is before we even get to the issue of voter fraud. That said, in many instances, ballots that would have been rejected or, if counted, evidence of fraud, were now said to be legal—not by state legislatures but by those who unilaterally changed the election laws. The United States Supreme Court had an opportunity before the election, and in this general election cycle, to make clear to the states that they must comply with the plain language of Article II, Section 1, Clause 2 of the Constitution. Indeed, when a federal district judge in Michigan altered that state's election laws, a closely divided US Supreme Court overturned his order. Justice Gorsuch pointed out that the state legislature writes election laws. However, when a case was brought to the Court involving the Pennsylvania Supreme Court's interference in state election laws, the US Supreme Court was paralyzed. Chief Justice Roberts attempted to distinguish between federal and state courts, which is irrelevant; in another instance, Justice Alito ordered the Pennsylvania secretary of state, not once but twice, to segregate certain mail in ballots, but nothing came of it. A court divided against itself cannot stand, to paraphrase Abraham Lincoln. Its failure to enforce the Constitution (and by that I don't mean make law or intervene in legitimate state election decisions) has contributed mightily to our current plight. It is not asking too much for the Republicans to uphold the United States Constitution—which they all took an oath to do—and to fight to preserve and protect the plain words set forth in Article II." (On January 6, We Learn Whether our Constitution Will Hold by Mark Levin). For thousand of years, civilized people have known and affirmed the fundamental truth that violence is the language of the unheard. In a March to Save America, formations of decent, upright, hard working, law abiding citizens were the unheard. Surrounded on all sides by coalitions of craven cowards and radical reds, they chose the only option which remained open to them. They had been told by the courts that allegations of electoral fraud were unproven. They knew that the allegations were supported by thousands of sworn affidavits, by thousands of reels of video footage and by thousands of photographic stills. They had been told by the Supreme Court that they had no standing to obtain redress. They knew that when state governments violate the Constitution, a national election becomes illegal and illegitimate and every honest citizen is harmed and disenfranchised. They had been told by legislators from both parties, at both state and federal levels, that their eyes were deceiving them and that A was not A and that substantial physical evidence of fraud was not substantial physical evidence of fraud. They had been told by the vice president of the United States that he would not perform his constitutional duty, would not act for the good of the country, would not reject fraudulent electoral votes, and would not restore election integrity. So they stormed the barricades outside Congress and occupied the capital of a country which had lost all moral and political legitimacy. They were the voices of the unheard and violence was their only recourse. They were inspired and uplifted by the words of Donald Trump. He told them that the stolen election was the most serious assault on democracy in the history of the nation. He told them that they could not restore the rule of law against this unprecedented attack by the reds with moral and physical weakness. Led by

Donald Trump, this movement of resistance to an act of subversion, an act which defined the meaning of the word subversion, was as noble as it was doomed during the collapsing hours of America.

ASSAULT ON THE CAPITAL: TRUMP'S GREATEST LEGACY

A legacy is anything which is handed down by a predecessor, any consequence or effect of a predecessor's actions. The legacy of the British Empire was the institution of freedom and law in the savage lands it conquered. The assault on the United States Capital building on January 6, 2021 by members of a movement who could not obtain legal redress for a fraudulent election was a legacy. It was a display of people power in the service of the Constitution and in the face of the opposition from the establishment without precedent in the history of the nation. This empowerment of civilized, law abiding citizens against the depredations of the red political and cultural ruling class was the greatest legacy of Donald Trump. Though the efforts of the protesters were doomed to fail by virtue of an entrenched red majority which rules the nation, and has been ruling it since the dawn of the Progressive Era, a dam has nonetheless been breached. This was the dam which discouraged, condemned and prohibited large scale violence conducted against the reds. This violence will now continue by a movement of resistance created by Trump to the red establishment, and while the republic descends deeper and deeper into the dungeons of red totalitarianism as destiny decrees that it must, the violent efforts of these courageous freedom fighters will long be remembered and cherished by civilized people in America and throughout the world. The protesters who stormed the barricades of Congress and occupied the Capital building were legitimized by two fundamental facts. They were legitimized by the worthiness of their cause, and they were legitimized by the fact that they had been unable to obtain justice for their cause by peaceful, legal means and therefore had a right and a duty to seek justice by means of violence. They understood and affirmed, as civilized people have understood and affirmed for thousands of years, and have known and affirmed since the time when political organization was first established in the earliest cultures, that if a cause which is morally right and proper cannot be defended peacefully, then doing so by means of violence becomes morally imperative. The American revolutionaries knew this truth, the revolutionaries who opposed communist governments throughout Eastern Europe knew this truth, the members of the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising knew this truth, and the protesters who stormed the Capital building carried this truth with them, emblazoned upon their flags of bravery and heroism. Civilized people saw in the 2020 presidential election a jungle of political corruption without precedent in the history of modern democracies, and saw that the refusal of governmental authorities to redress this fraud established the rightness of the protesters' use of violence. They saw a pressure campaign to violate the Constitution, state laws and federal laws and change mail in voting rules to bring about mass illegal and invalid certifications of Biden victories. They saw testimony from election security experts and first hand witnesses that the election had been stolen in contested states. They saw Dominion voting machines hacked to change vote totals in favor of Democratic candidate Joe Biden. They saw voting tabulators and scanners manufactured by Dominion, Election Systems & Software and Hart InterCivic connected to the internet from which votes for Biden were manufactured. They saw truckloads of ballots cast for Biden arriving in the middle of the night in the exact numbers necessary to give Biden victory. They saw criminals hiding evidence: Trump's legal team was not allowed to look at paper ballots or examine voting machines. In Arizona, they saw that Maricopa County election officials did not allow Republican observers to observe the verification of mail in signatures. They saw that six minutes after the polls closed in Maricopa County, Biden received 143,000 votes. They saw a cyber security expert testify that this increase was a mathematical impossibility inasmuch as there was an insufficient number of machines to process that number of votes in six minutes. In Georgia, they saw state officials allow over 100,000 unqualified individuals to register and cast votes, including 66,000 underage individuals; 9,000 deceased individuals; 2,500 felons; 2,400 unregistered individuals; 2,500 individuals who had registered in another state after moving from Georgia; 1,000 individuals who registered using a post office box and not a physical address, as required by state law; 16,000 individuals who had filed a national change of address with the United States Postal Service stating that they had relocated to another state prior to election day; and 40,000 individuals who had moved to another county without reregistering. They saw that four states, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan and Wisconsin, had unconstitutionally made changes to their voting rules through election officials or courts instead of through state legislatures, in violation of the Electors Clause of Article II of the Constitution, and allowed voting rules to vary from county to county, in violation of Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution. They saw the Supreme Court dismiss on grounds of lack of standing a lawsuit brought by Texas which challenged the election results in these four states. They saw that, in point of fact, Texas had standing to sue because the constitutional crimes committed by these four states had deprived the voters in Texas, and deprived voters throughout the nation, of their right, under the Nineteenth Amendment's Privileges and Immunities Clause, to vote in free, fair and honest elections, and their right to inhabit an uncorrupted political system. They saw Vice President Mike Pence state that he would not seek to decertify the electoral college votes cast for Joe Biden. They saw him state: "It is my considered judgment that my oath to support and defend the Constitution constrains me from claiming unilateral authority to determine which electoral votes should be counted and which should not." They saw that, in point of fact, under the Twelfth Amendment, the vice president has the right to check the validity of electoral votes. They saw that his responsibilities under the amendment include opening and counting the votes in public, in the presence of Congress, and that this transparency is meant to ensure that the votes are counted correctly, which means that only true, bona fide and correct votes are counted, only votes which are not tainted by error or fraud. On January 6, 2021, Donald Trump incited a mass movement to commit acts of violence because violence was the only recourse which logically remained to the movement. Peaceful efforts to reverse the results of a fraudulent election had one and all failed, being met by a constant, round the clock, back and forth refrain of no evidence and no standing, and no standing and no evidence, drummed out by local, state and federal officials, legislators and judges. Civilized people, guided by their plain eyesight and by their plain knowledge of the constitution, knew that one thousand sworn affidavits from eyewitnesses, one thousand reels of secret surveillance footage, one thousand photographic stills, and one thousand depositions from expert witnesses constituted a body of evidence which established proof beyond a reasonable doubt that the presidential election of 2020 had been stolen. They knew that every voter in the nation has standing to sue states which violate the Constitution and deprive the people of their right to vote, which means their right to vote in a meaningful manner, which means their right to vote in elections which are free of fraud, dishonesty and corruption. When peaceful means had failed to secure election justice, logic demanded acts of violence. Logic demanded that Donald Trump tell the movement gathered in the Capital that they will never secure election justice through physical weakness but only through physical strength. Logic demanded that he tell them that they must never surrender and never concede when the theft of a national election has been perpetrated. Logic demanded that he tell them that they cannot fight like a boxer with one hand tied behind his back. Logic demanded that he tell them to fight like hell for the sake of preserving a politically and morally legitimate country. Speaking to a March To Save America rally gathered in the nation's capital, a rally representing seventy five million defrauded voters, Donald Trump unleashed a mighty whirlwind of righteous violence. He unleashed it against a nation which had turned red from top to bottom, from its red political, cultural and academic establishment to its red neighbors living next door, and had become in its red coloration fanatical, unscrupulous, lawless, dangerous and mentally unbalanced. Donald Trump's creation of a movement of physical demonstration and physical pressure to combat a nation which, through the perpetration of a stolen presidential election, had evicted itself from the ranks of the civilized community, will live forever in the annals of free and decent people.

REDS SWEEP THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT

A trifecta is a run of three wins, grand events or desirable developments. The word is a combination of the prefix tri with the Spanish word perfecta, which refers to a horse racing bet in which those who finish first and second are chosen correctly. Students of American history correctly predicted a political trifecta on January 6, 2021. On that day, the Democratic Party achieved majority control in three chambers of government, in the presidency, the Senate and the House of Representatives, displacing the Republican control in the Senate and the White House. Students of American history were not in the least bit shocked by this development, for they had seen it coming for decades. Way back at the dawn of the twentieth century, prescient students of American history had correctly predicted this. They saw then that the commencement of an agenda of social regulation of business, packaged in bright red boxes marked progressivism, would culminate at a point where it had of necessity to culminate, in the establishment of a red totalitarian tyranny the likes of which the nation will never have witnessed before. They saw that the nationwide trend toward the left which had just commenced, establishing a grassroots vortex of red power sweeping round and gathering human debris from home to home, school to school, neighborhood to neighborhood and coast to coast, would develop, by the logic and dynamic of a mass movement which is not stopped, into a call by the mothers, fathers, wives, husbands, sons, daughters and childless, single folk next door for the establishment of a raging sea monster. This was an immense, omnipotent form which would consume free minds and free markets within a maw marked socialism and statism. Students of American history today have seen these prognostications come to pass in the red takeover of the national government in the year 2021 to the wild acclaim of the red mobs who are now firmly in control of the nation. The presidency: Democrat controlled; the Senate: Democrat controlled; and the House of Representatives: Democrat controlled. Three points of victory ignited by a democracy degraded and run amok. Three points of victory which together compose a portrait of a nation locked in a death spiral and a nation which has hit rock bottom. Framed and encapsulated by President elect Joe Biden, this is a portrait in which one thousand sworn affidavits, one thousand meters of secret surveillance footage, one thousand photographic stills, one thousand petitions from state and federal legislators, one thousand pages of live testimony, and one thousand depositions given by cyber security experts have born witness to the greatest political crime committed in the history of modern democratic nations: the theft by the reds of the 2020 presidential election from Donald Trump and the fraudulent inauguration of Joe Biden. This is a portrait in which Donald Trump is impeached and convicted of incitement to violence during mass protests against the stolen election, an incitement which he was morally and logically compelled to commit, inasmuch peaceful redress had been impossible to obtain at the hands of red judges and cowardly judges and red legislators and cowardly legislators. This is a portrait in which the Supreme Court is packed with red ideologues, and the Senate is packed with four new red senators from the new states of Puerto Rico and District of Columbia. This is a portrait in which the Senate filibuster is eliminated in order to facilitate the enactment of the red agenda. This is a portrait in which Big Media, Big Tech, Big Education, Big Hollywood and the Democratic Party incite violent Marxists in Antifa and Black Lives Matter to riot, vandalize, plunder and burn down cities throughout the nation. This is a portrait in which reds encourage people to "transition" to the opposite sex, which is an ontological, scientific, logical and empirical impossibility, inasmuch as gender is determined by genes and chromosomes and not by human decision. This is a portrait in which reds use the covid pandemic as a pretext for imposing unprecedented totalitarian control over the people in the form of lockdowns, shutdowns and limitations on home visitors. This is a portrait in which businesses throughout the world have severed relations with Donald Trump and those who support him and purged the voices of the antired opposition. This is a portrait in which reds utilize the internet to promote the supremacy of the state and community over the rights of the individual and to foment violence and hatred against the voices of liberal enlightenment. This is a portrait in which social media platforms have expunged antired, conservative, libertarian, proTrump, politically incorrect content. This is a portrait in which Facebook has forbidden all content which challenges or denies the validity of the 2020 presidential election. This is a portrait in which Google, Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, YouTube, Snapchat, Pinterest, Reddit, TikTok, Twitch and Discord have banned Donald Trump and his supporters from their platforms. This is a portrait in which Apple has banned the antired social platform Parler from its store and Amazon has expelled Parler from its hosting service. This is a portrait in which antired Ron Paul has been prevented by Facebook from managing his page. This is a portrait in which the Facebook page of the antired Walkaway Campaign has been banned. This is a portrait in which the payment processing service Stripe no longer processes payments for Donald Trump's website. This is a portrait in which the ecommerce platform Shopify has banned TrumpStore.com. This is a portrait in which the electronic marketing firms Salesforce and ExactTarget have banned Donald Trump and the Republican Party from using their services. This is a portrait in which Deutsche Bank and Signature Bank have closed down Donald Trump's accounts and will no longer lend money to him. This is a portrait in which Deutsche Bank has refused to conduct business with members of Congress who supported Trump in his fight against the certification of the electoral college vote. Look at the world of the 2021 red electoral sweep and see a consolidated leftist establishment carrying out the destruction of free speech. See the red political sphere, the red media giants and the red educational system join hands to throw gasoline into the house of liberal democracy, set it on fire, and celebrate a blazing inferno which has criminalized opposition to a social justice totalitarian state. See reds of all stripes and varieties, communists, fascists, national socialists and gender, race and class tribalists, converge upon the dead body of American constitutional order and brawl for power on streets and campuses. See the determination of reds of all stripes and varieties, the

Mussolinists, the Hitlerites, the Stalinists and the Maoists, to destroy every last trace and remnant of individual freedom, make abject slavery the centerpiece of their sinister agenda, and make America the global capital of red conspiracy and subversion. See a nation founded upon the majestic hills of law and order reduced to a dark, churning arena of bloody violence in which the enemies of authoritarian rule have been hacked to death by machete wielders marked Antifa and Black Lives Matter. See a burning, high temperature red majority distill the quintessence of human evil, place it in canisters marked identity politics, and firebomb two hundred years of capitalist freedom and development in a republic called America: "The destruction of the freedom of speech in America today is being carried out by the leftist establishment that dominates the political sphere, the social media giants, the establishment media, the educational system--virtually everything, really. The left is using the Capitol riot of January 6 as its Reichstag Fire moment to criminalize, silence, and destroy utterly not just President Trump, but all Americans who still dare to oppose its sinister woke totalitarianism. In doing so, leftists are revealing themselves, for all their rhetoric about how Trump and his supporters are fascists, to be quintessential fascists themselves. This fact is all too often waved away by those who insist, quite correctly on one level, 'They're not fascists, they're communists.' The national socialists of Germany strongly identified with Mussolini's fascists in Italy, and brawled on the street with the communists. Hitler made his determination to destroy communism in Europe a centerpiece of his agenda. So many assume that Leftists today, carrying the banner of Antifa, an organization that was born in 1920s street fights with the national socialists, could not possibly be fascists. Yet they can be and they are. Contrary to what many believe, being a communist and a fascist is not a contradiction in terms, like being a Republican Democrat or an honest journalist. Communists and national socialists were bitter enemies in Weimar Germany in large part because they were competitors in the same arena: in the late 1920s and early 1930s, they were the two major German parties that wanted to destroy the Weimar Republic and impose authoritarian rule. They just disagreed over who would be in charge." (Fascism Comes To The US by Robert Spencer). Students of world history have supplemented the observations of their American history colleagues and seen the red sweep of 2021 as a tragic illustration of a truth known for thousands of years by political and moral philosophers. It is the truth that in any society where the masses are listened to, socialism and statism will eventually and ineluctably be established as the supreme laws of the land. The masses hate liberty. They hate individuality. They hate personhood. They hate self responsibility. They hate rational human flourishing. Imprinted upon the mental character of the masses as genes are imprinted upon strips of chromosomes, these satanic hatreds have bludgeoned America to death in the twenty first century.

THE RED CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION

In the field of political science, the term front is used in two senses: to refer to an organized political group, and to an organization which serves as a cover for subversive activities. An example of the former would be the Palestine Liberation Front, and an example of the latter was the National Lawyers' Guild, which served as a front for the Communist Party USA. It is rare that an organization assume both roles at one and the same time. Founded by red activist Roger Baldwin in 1920, the American Civil Liberties Organization is one such organization, serving both as an active political campaign, marching under the banners of People Power, to resist conservative and libertarian policies and ideas, and a front for efforts by the reds to overthrow the government by means of force and violence. A look at the world of the ACLU is a look at a practice of deception in place from the very first day of the organization's existence, for in not one moment since that day has it ever promoted the cause of civil liberties, and for the past one hundred years, it has served as a faithful, effective political and legal weapon of the reds' campaign to sweep away American civil liberties and establish in its place the iron heel of red totalitarian dictatorship. Look at the nightmare reality of the ACLU and see a red organization in action. See its staging of mass rallies and weekend parties in which participants receive nine point plans to defy the law and set up "freedom cities" in which gender, race and class politics are comprehensively enacted. See its public endorsement of Islamic activist Keith Ellison who calls for mass rallies to stop Donald Trump's proWestern, proAmerican agenda. See its rally of 2,000 people at the University of Miami to whip up a nationwide malarial fever for socialist revolution. See its executive director praising the rally as a successful mass recruitment drive for the reds: "We've seen this exponential growth in people becoming card carrying members of the ACLU. They're younger. They're in every state around the country. The biggest danger was in not doing something like this, where people get apathetic and they fall asleep." (Anthony Romero). Listen to the words of Roger Baldwin and hear him advocate the disarmament of the West, the dissolution of the law, the abolition of private property, the extermination of property owners, and the subjugation of the people by a communist jackboot shod in the iron nails of violence and compulsion: "I am for socialism, disarmament and ultimately for abolishing the state itself as an instrument of violence and compulsion. I seek the social ownership of property, the abolition of the propertied class, and sole control by those who produce wealth [the proletariat]. Communism is, of course, the goal." (Quoted in The ACLU On Trial by William H McIlhany). Listen to the words of Baldwin and hear him construct a front organization festooned on the outside with the bright shining flags of liberal institutions and civilized order, and concealing within a dark, cruel, coldly determined core of socialist invasion and communist terror: "Steer away from making it look like a socialist enterprise. We want also to look like patriots in everything we do. We want to get a good lot of flags, talk a good deal about the Constitution and what our forefathers wanted to make of this country, and to show that we are really the folks that really stand for the spirit of our institutions." (Quoted in America Adrift by Jim Nelson Black). Look at the world of the ACLU and see an organization with a deadly and dangerous plan. This is a plan to erase the history, culture and institutions of freedom, which for centuries have defined the aim and essence of America, and to establish a communist and socialist narrative, value system and reign of fear in their place: "They have an agenda that is antithetical to the USA. This organization was started at the turn of the last century and is today perpetuated by communists/socialists who wish to destroy just about everything that makes our nation great only to have it remade on a communist/socialist model. This aim of the ACLU is antithetical to all our interests as well as our culture and history." (Is The ACLU Evil? by Warner Todd Huston). Look at the world of the ACLU and see an organization which defends the free speech rights of reds and nobody else, the freedom of conscience of reds and nobody else, and advocates the banishment of the human spirit to a prison house marked political correctness in the service of marginalized groups. See its promotion of gender politics and the repeal of the due process rights of men accused of sexual assault. Accusations without evidence. Allegations without witnesses. Accusations without the name or identity of the accusers revealed. Expulsions and suspensions without grounds or proof. Investigations without justice. Hearings without fairness. Crimes without substance. Trials without the right of the accused to conduct cross examination. Trials without the right of the accused to confront the evidence against him. Trials without the right of the accused to obtain the assistance of counsel. Trials without the right of the accused to defend himself and prove himself innocent. Trials without the presumption of innocence of the accused. Campus tribunals transformed into campus star chambers. Such is the fearsome and terrifying regime advocated by the ACLU in its campaign to undermine civil liberties, subvert the foundational principles of all civilized legal systems, the principles of truth and objectivity, and in the name of women, nonwhites, transgenders and homosexuals, implement the red agenda of partisan political combat and totalitarian control: "By now, the ACLU's retreat from the First Amendment is well documented. It will not defend the First Amendment rights of prolife pregnancy centers or small religious businesses. It no longer defends religious freedom, although it once did. And in a leaked internal memo, the ACLU takes the position that free speech denigrating 'marginalized groups' should not be defended. Sadder yet, however, is the ACLU's recent abandonment of the right to due process. For a group founded to help the powerless, this is a repudiation of its founding ideals. Consider the new Title IX rules designed to restore the due process rights of those accused of sexual harassment on college campuses. The rules are meant to restore protections that were erased under the Obama regime. Under the old rules (which remain in effect until August), colleges may expel students based on nothing more than the word of their accuser or even the word of a third party who witnessed nothing. The accused often is denied the right to cross examine, the right to counsel, the right to see the evidence against him or her, and the right to present exculpatory evidence. It's so bad that in one case, after two students got drunk and had sex, one of them rushed to report his sexual partner to the Title IX officer simply because he was worried that she would report him first. Because he got there first, she was found guilty of sexual assault and suspended. The new rules restore some due process protections. The American Civil Liberties Union should be happy. In fact, the ACLU ought to have been fighting for them. After all, it was only two years ago that the ACLU opposed a victims' rights bill because it would 'undermine a bedrock principle of our legal system—the presumption of innocence.' Instead, the ACLU is suing to block the new rules. It claims that they 'dramatically undermine students' civil rights.' The ACLU's logic is as backward as are its priorities. The organization says it is concerned that the new rules—in particular a requirement that victims report assaults to a Title IX official before an investigation may begin—would 'inflict significant harm on students who experience sexual harassment or assault.' The lawsuit does not clearly explain why that is so, but asserts that the new rules would interfere with students' right to 'equal educational opportunities' especially for students of color, LGBTQ students, and other minority groups. Never mind that under the old rules, men of color are accused and suspended or expelled with alarming frequency. There is no way for the ACLU to explain its decision to fight against due process, except that it has abandoned its principles to advance the trendy partisan agenda of the day." (The ACLU Loses Its Way by GianCarlo Canaaparo). Two headed animals have been observed in nature from time to time. Known as bicephalics, these monsters have been observed primarily in shark populations. One hundred years ago, a two headed monster was born in America in response to the Palmer raids which saw hundreds of communist subversives arrested and deported back to Russia. Founded to defend these communists and to advance the agenda of the reds throughout the nation, this two headed monster was called the American Civil Liberties Union. At once a public political organization and a covert revolutionary organization, the ACLU has filed the legal briefs, staged the rallies and manned the assassins' nests for the dissolution of America.

REDS PURGE SOCIETY

Students and scholars of political science use the term purge to refer to the removal of people or ideas deemed to be undesirable by those who are in power. The paradigm of political purges was conducted in the Soviet Union when Joseph Stalin silenced, arrested, tortured, imprisoned, enslaved and executed millions of antireds during the 1930s. The purge is the stock in trade of the reds and is proclaimed to be a moral and political imperative required to cleanse society of toxic, antisocial thoughts and ideas which promote the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual. In the twenty first century, after a one hundred year development, the reds have achieved total control over states and societies throughout the West and in archetypal red fashion have launched a purge campaign to consolidate their power. Inspired by the Soviets, today's reds have initiated a reign of terror which seeks to silence and extirpate the voices of the opposition. Look at a systematic effort underway to eliminate every last trace and element, present anywhere in society, of people or beliefs which in any way, shape or form pose a threat to the new red order, and see the establishment of a totalitarian monolith whose precedents go back to the Soviet Union, Maoist China and Pol Pot's Cambodia. See the promotion of a program and manifesto of expulsion and exclusion which has made nations of the West, once liberal minded, tolerant, pluralistic and free, morally and culturally unrecognizable. The new red purge campaigners have proclaimed that a progressive society has impeached and convicted Donald Trump on the charge of incitement to insurrection during the protests at the Capital on January 6, 2021, and has prevented him from ever running for office again. Patriotic Americans have pointed out the such a conviction would violate a precept known and affirmed by civilized societies since civilized societies first step foot on the face of the earth thousands of years ago. This is the precept that if the peaceful redress of legitimate grievances is not possible, then the use of force and violence to redress them is morally defensible, necessary and imperative. Donald Trump had a grievance. It was that the presidential election of 2020 had been stolen from him and given to Democratic Party candidate Joe Biden. He had 5,000 exhibits to support his claim and establish beyond a reasonable doubt proof of election fraud: 1,000 sworn affidavits, 1,000 reels of surveillance footage, 1,000 photographic stills, 1,000 pages of testimony from cybersecurity experts and 1,000 records of illegally cast ballots. Lower courts and state legislatures refused to redress this grievance. The Supreme Court, Congress and the Vice President refused to redress this grievance. Trump's recourse to violence was his final recourse, demanded by the principles of justice as enshrined in the Declaration of Independence: "That whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends [the protection of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness], it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to a institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness." The new red purge campaigners have proclaimed that in a progressive society, Twitter has removed Donald Trump's personal account and canceled his official government account. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, Donald Trump has been banned from Facebook, Pinterest, Snapchat, Reddit, Instagram and You Tube. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, Google and Apple have banned the free speech, antired platform Parler from their app stores. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, Amazon has banned Parler from its cloud service. Look at the banning of Parler and see a war against antired speech designed to kill and uproot a thousand times over the American ideal of freedom: "This was a coordinated attack by the tech giants to kill competition in the marketplace. We were too successful too fast. You can expect a war on competition and free speech to continue, but don't count us out." (John Matze, Chief Executive Officer, Parler). The new red purge campaigners have proclaimed that in a progressive society, Twitter has blocked platform users from linking to reports in the New York Post which exposed Biden family corruption relating to Ukraine, in which Biden's son was paid hundreds of thousands of dollars for a no show board position with a Ukrainian natural gas company, and Biden threatened to cancel billions of dollars of military aid and demanded that the prosecutor investigating his son be removed. The new red purge campaigner have proclaimed that in a progressive society, Facebook has removed all content which contains the phrase "stop the steal" in reference to the fraudulent election of 2020. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has launched an authoritarian crackdown on antired speech, an antired press, antired liberty and antired political candidates. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has banned Donald Trump's emails, tweets, texts and posts. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has banned the use of modern digital technology to communicate antired messages. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, Twitter and Amazon have ensured that all content sent out from their platforms conform to the dictates of political correctness. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, publishers have refused to publish books which promote antired viewpoints. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, cable television news stations which expose the fraudulent character of the 2020 presidential election are boycotted and banned. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, people who criticize red public officials are sued for defamation and bankrupted. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, individuals who challenge the 2020 presidential election and condemn its fraudulent character are guilty of sedition and imprisoned. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, membership in antired organizations such as the Republican Party has been criminalized and their members thrown into jail. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, opponents of the red party line and the tenets of gender, race and class politics are prosecuted and suppressed as aliens and rebels among the people. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, the Bill of Rights has been repealed and every citizen and organization which opposes the Democratic Party has been silenced. They have proclaimed that individuals who oppose Joe Biden and the Democratic Party's agenda of socialism and statism are dangerous to society and must be immediately removed. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has banned Senator Josh Hawley's antired book The Tyranny of Big Tech on the grounds that opposition to the reds poses a grave danger to the success and survival of freedom and democracy: "We take seriously our larger public responsibility as citizens, and cannot support Senator Hawley after his role in what became a dangerous threat to our democracy and freedom." They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, the content officers of media companies have prevented aides to Donald Trump from gaining employment or acquiring book contracts: "Do not let the chronic liars cash in on their dishonesty. Trump's liars don't merit that same golden parachute. Hire any of Trump's fellow fabulists, and Forbes will assume that everything your company or firm talks about is a lie." (Randall Lane, Forbes media). They have proclaimed that a progressive society has launched a Final Solution against the supporters of Donald Trump and fired up the people's gas ovens for them: "We just launched the Trump Accountability Project to make sure anyone who took a paycheck to help Trump undermine America is held responsible for what they did. " (Hari Sevugan, Barack Obama's campaign aide). They have proclaimed that a progressive society has launched a campaign to hunt down and eradicate the supporters of Donald Trump from every continent and corner of the earth: "At @ProjectLincoln we are constructing a database of Trump officials & staff that will detail their roles in the Trump administration & track where they are now. They will be held accountable & not allowed to pretend they were not involved." They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, United States senators, such as Ted Cruz and Josh Hawley, who supported the people's right to resort to violence to obtain election justice when election justice by peaceful means was denied to them, are immediately expelled from office and drummed out of the human race. They have proclaimed that in a progressive society, universities have rescinded the degrees of officials and supporters of Donald Trump, such as White House Press Secretary Kayleigh McEnany, Senator Ted Cruz and Representative Dan Crenshaw, on the grounds that they challenged the fraudulent electoral votes cast for Joe Biden in the 2020 election. A gallop is defined as the fastest pace of a horse in which all feet are off the ground at the same time in each stride. The current purge campaign conducted by the reds is galloping faster than the speed of light in opposite directions of time. It has at once galloped into the Marxist Great Terror launched by Stalin a century ago, and into the red totalitarian nightmare which awaits the West after the liquidation of freedom.

WANTED: AN INSURRECTION

In a vanishing corner of America, a windswept copy of a dissident newspaper, The Light Of Freedom, lies on the pavement, dishevelled, unkempt and unread. A page lies exposed as the tragic token of the last reader who studied its columns long ago. This page is the classified section. Frantically and urgently circled in bold, black lines is an advert entitled Wanted: An Insurrection. A man walks by and picks up the newspaper and begins reading this marked advert, curious to know its contents. The advert runs as follows. Wanted: an insurrection against pervasive voter fraud perpetrated in the presidential election of 2020, attested to by 5,000 documents, objects and exhibits: by 1,000 reels of closed circuit surveillance footage, 1,000 sworn affidavits from eyewitnesses, 1,000 photographic stills, 1,000 depositions from cybersecurity experts and 1,000 records of illegally cast ballots. An insurrection against the inaction of judges and politicians who abdicated their duty to overturn the fraudulent election results and protect the people's constitutional right to vote in fair and honest elections. An insurrection against a red controlled Congress which has impeached and punished Donald Trump for his incitement of freedom fighters to go to war and seek recourse by the only option available to them, and attack the Capital to end the congressional certification of the election, and commit acts of violence against a government which had refused to restore election integrity and peacefully redress their grievances. An insurrection against Joe Biden's executive order to grant legal recognition to transgenders. An insurrection against the enforcement of an ideology which rejects reason, science and fundamental sanity and proclaims that sex has nothing whatever to do with genes or chromosomes and is a product of pure human decision. An insurrection against the establishment of transgender rights positions at the State Department and National Security Council. An insurrection against the enactment of the Equality Act which grants equal rights to transgenders in housing, public accommodations and public services. An insurrection against allowing transgenders to gain access to the bathrooms, locker rooms and sports teams of their choice. An insurrection against a regime which encourages children to become transgender and to revel in the black gardens of mental illness: "I like the idea that an eight year old child, a ten-year-old child, decides, 'You know, I want to be transgender. That's what I think I'd like to be. It'd make my life a lot easier.' There should be zero discrimination." (Joe Biden, ABC Town Hall). An insurrection against a regime which proclaims that the granting of legal recognition to individuals who have denied the biological facts of reality is the preeminent human rights struggle of our time: "Let's be clear: Transgender equality is the civil rights issue of our time. There is no room for compromise when it comes to basic human rights." (Joe Biden). An insurrection against a regime which will restore the reds' religion of subjective gender identity and gender psychosis as a fundamental civil right: "On his first day in office, Biden will reinstate the Obama-Biden guidance revoked by the Trump-Pence Administration, which will restore transgender students' access to sports, bathrooms, and locker rooms in accordance with their gender identity. He will direct his Department of Education to vigorously enforce and investigate violations of transgender students' civil rights." (joebiden.com). An insurrection against a regime which rejects the existence of facts, empiricism and two biological sexes and outlaws discrimination against individuals who have created their own gender status and their own gender identity: "The Obama era guidance dismissed the science of two biological sexes by allowing 'sex discrimination' in Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (Title IX) to include 'discrimination based on a student's gender identity, including discrimination based on a student's transgender status.' " (Joe Biden Day 1: Order On Transgender Rights In Sports and Bathrooms by Susan Berry). An insurrection against the establishment of transgender agencies, departments, defenders, judges, coordinating committees, national legislatures and state legislatures to ensure that gender psychosis is enacted and protected as the supreme law of the land: "Question: What sort of policies are you hoping to see out of the Biden administration that could help the community? Answer: I think, one, we have to have trans people at every single department who know about all of the ways in which the federal government has been weaponized against trans people over the last four years to be there involved in those policies. I believe that those people have to be grouped in a White House coordinating committee to be able to tackle those issues. And I think that we need to have a Justice Department that takes the murders of us seriously and communicates that to police departments across the country. The last thing we need to do is that we need to stop the antitrans bills that are in over nearly half the state legislatures that are going to come up next year regardless of who's in the White House." (Imara Jones interviewed on All Things Considered, National Public Radio). An insurrection against Joe Biden's executive order which eliminated the Devos Title IX rule which mandated adherence to due process and fairness in campus hearings into sexual assault, and restored the Obama 2011 directive which transformed campus sexual assault hearings into star chambers. These were hearings in which accusations were treated as evidence, the accused was presumed to be guilty as accused, and the accused was denied the right of confrontation and cross examination. An insurrection against a regime which has rejoined the Paris Climate Accord, condemned human progress as a threat to the existence of the planet, established a zero carbon emissions policy, and banned airplanes, automobiles, factories and fossil fuels in the name of fighting environmental inequality, protecting marginalized communities, preserving wildlife and promoting biodiversity. An insurrection against a regime which has canceled the permit for the Keystone XL pipeline, running from Alberta to Nebraska, and has thereby jeopardized America's energy security. An insurrection against a regime which has returned to the 2015 Obama nuclear deal with Iran and given the greenlight to Iranian nuclear aggression. An insurrection against a regime which has lifted the sanctions imposed by Donald Trump against a rogue gang in the Middle East called Iran which wears the mantle of political power and has enriched its sources of violence. An insurrection against a regime which through its surrender to Iran has forced other nations in the Middle East to arm themselves with nuclear weapons. An insurrection against a regime which has empowered a criminal state called the Islamic Republic and its campaign to plan and direct mass killings throughout the world and plunge civilized communities into a nightmare: "The Biden administration has already unrolled its plan to return to the 2015 nuclear deal and has begun holding quiet talks with Iran, an Israeli TV station reported Saturday. Officials for the incoming administration have also updated Israel about the conversations, Channel 12 News said. A separate report by the Israel Hayom daily said Israel, wary of Biden's promise to return to the deal, is crafting military options to 'undermine Iran's nuclear efforts or, if need be, counter Iranian aggression, which will soon be presented to the government.' The paper also quoted Defense Minister Benny Gantz as saying: 'Israel needs to have a military option on the table.' President Donald Trump withdrew from the deal with Iran in 2018 and has since imposed crippling sanctions on Tehran. During the Obama administration, which spearheaded the deal known as the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), Israel on occasion threatened to act militarily to prevent Iran from acquiring the bomb. Last week, Netanyahu last week warned against the returning to the deal. 'If we just go back to the JCPOA, what will happen and may already be happening is that many other countries in the Middle East will rush to arm themselves with nuclear weapons. That is a nightmare and that is folly. It should not happen,' Netanyahu said, speaking alongside US Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin in Jerusalem. Iran last week announced that it was resuming enriching uranium to 20 percent, in violation of the accords and a move Israel has warned prove the Islamic Republic is seeking nuclear weapons. The enrichment is part of a wide reaching campaign to avenge the November killing of Mohsen Fakhrizadeh, the mastermind behind the country's nuclear weapons program, which Tehran blamed on Israel as well as in response to sanction imposed by the US." (Biden Team Already In Talks With Iran Over Return to Nuclear Deal by Deborah Brand). For thousands of years, civilized people have known and affirmed a fundamental precept of politics: that political violence is justified when peaceful means of redress of legitimate grievances are no longer available. Civilized Americans have utilized this precept as a premise in an argument which has impelled them to commits acts of political violence. The argument runs as follows. Premise one: the use of political violence is justified when peaceful means of redress of legitimate grievances are no longer available. Premise two: these grievances are a stolen presidential election, the punishment of Donald Trump for leading freedom fighters to attack the Capital to take back a stolen election, the institutionalization of gender, race and class politics, and the iron heel of statism and socialism brought down upon the people. Premise three: these grievances are one and all incapable of being redressed by peaceful means. Conclusion: the violent overthrow of the United States government is morally and politically justified in order to return the nation to constitutional rule and restore the constitutional right to vote in fair and honest elections and restore the constitutional right to live in liberty. The man finishes reading this advert and throws it back onto the pavement. This American, on this street, in this twenty first century, knows that insurrection will never see the light of day in a land overrun from top to bottom, penetrated in every corner, and dyed down to the core of its being, by the reds.

MERKEL'S PHARMACY

The phrase hitting rock bottom is commonly used with reference to drug addiction. It refers to the lowest point in an addict's life in which his existence has been irreparably damaged and there is nothing good left to destroy. In Germany, Europe's most powerful nation, a drug dispensed by the reds called socialism and statism has been consumed in such vast quantities over the past two decades that the addiction has destroyed the moral and cultural basis for the continuance of freedom in the country. The overdose has occurred during the chancellorship of Angela Merkel and civilized people who have seen the record of Germany's chief pusher, panderer and trafficker for the reds have seen the tragic deterioration of a nation which decades before had championed the libertarian policies implemented by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard. They have seen a nation decline into a shooting gallery which has enacted an open borders policy inviting over one million refugees from the Middle East to settle in its cities and towns. A shooting gallery which has forced German taxpayers to support these refugees. A shooting gallery which proclaims that those who defend Western liberal values against Islamic fundamentalism are stoking the fires of hatred and bigotry and must be suppressed. A shooting gallery which promotes the dogmas of multiculturalism and moral relativism in the name of tolerance and openness. A shooting gallery which has settled 21 million residents, or over a quarter of the population, with a migrant background, residents who are dedicated to the destruction of the West. A shooting gallery which advocates mass migration from the moral sewers of the planet in the name of diversity and inclusion. A shooting gallery which has organized the return and settlement of recruits from the terror group the Islamic State, recruits who committed crimes against humanity in Syria, on humanitarian grounds. A shooting gallery which has blanketed the nation with lockdowns, shutdowns and unprecedented restrictions on human rights, and set into a motion of wave of corporate bankruptcies and economic collapse, in the name of fighting the covid pandemic: "Chancellor Merkel has suggested that the new, harsher lockdown restrictions will last until at least January 10th, but Bloomberg reports she may extend them for much longer, possibly linking an easing of restrictions to the immunization of over 60 per cent of the population. Marcel Fratzscher, of the DIW economic institute, has predicted 'a wave of corporate bankruptcies next year' as the economic impact of the pandemic and associated lockdowns bites, saying: 'It's not the question of whether it's going to come. It's more a question of when exactly companies will fail.'" (Fist Waving Merkel Warns Germans of 'Last Christmas with the Grandparents' Amid 'Winter Failure' by Jack Montgomery). A shooting gallery which has transformed Germany into a cesspool of migrant criminality. A shooting gallery which has granted citizenship to asylum seekers and issued them passports to commit murder and mayhem. A shooting gallery which has placed knives in the hands of savages from North Africa and told them to go out and stab children. A shooting gallery which has reduced city centers to arenas of bloody violence and reigned down darkness upon the noonday light. A shooting gallery which has set up areas in which scum streaming in from the distant corners of the world, without homes or habitations among human beings, are assembled, processed, fed, clothed, housed, looked after and unleashed upon the citizens of civilization: "The mayor of a German city has said locals are afraid to let their children out alone because of growing criminality at an asylum seeker center housing hundreds of migrants. Andre Knapp, the mayor of the city of Suhl in Thuringia, said that locals are on edge due to the rampant criminality at a reception center that currently hosts around 600 asylum seekers. Mr Knapp has also come out against suggestions that the city should take in even more migrants. Police said that from January to mid May there had been at least 200 reported crimes involving residents of the asylum home, Focus reports. 'Problems usually concern young men from North Africa, especially after excessive consumption of alcohol,' Knapp told the magazine. He mentioned particular concern for children walking through the city center after a recent stabbing. 'Many people are critical of the recurring and sometimes increasing crime in the city center,' the mayor said. 'I get calls from parents who, in view of the most recent incident, a stabbing in broad daylight, are concerned about letting their children walk through the city center alone.' " (Mayor Says Parents Fear For Children After Migrant Center Becomes Crime Hotspot by Chris Tomlinson). A shooting gallery which has violated freedom of contract and mandated a national minimum wage. A shooting gallery which has violated freedom of enterprise and placed wage levels under the direction of the state. A shooting gallery which has replaced productive wages by political wages and market wages by luxury wages. A shooting gallery which has placed Europe's largest economy under the iron heel of the red's wage police. A shooting gallery which has rejected free market mechanisms for the determination of wages and denied the right of free people to work at the wages they deem fit and to freely negotiate the price of their labor with rights, dignity and autonomy all their own: "German Chancellor Angela Merkel has approved the country's first minimum wage, at 8.50 euros an hour (£7; $11.75), to start in 2015. At the moment, the country is one of seven in the 28 nation EU without a minimum wage level. Germany has relied on trade unions and business groups to fix pay instead. Mrs Merkel's conservative Christian Democrats approved the change as part of a power sharing deal with the Social Democrats (SPD). The SPD was in favor of the move, but the conservative CDU and CSU parties had been keen to keep the status quo. Parliament is expected to debate the proposal this summer. It will then move to the upper house for approval in September. Economists said higher wages in Europe's biggest economy could help people spend more and stimulate the economy, promoting economic growth. The SPD's labor market policy spokesperson, Katja Mast, said: 'Labor has got its dignity back with a fair payment of 8.50 euros, whether in the East or West and with no industry exceptions.' " (Angela Merkel Approves Germany's First Minimum Wage, BBC News, April 2, 2015). A shooting gallery which has shut down Germany's nuclear power plants and bid farewell to the only possible technology which can sustain an industrial civilization. A shooting gallery which has abolished a miraculous modern producer of power in a movement of uncontrolled excitement to turn back the clock to the year zero. A shooting gallery which has effected the greatest policy reversal in the history of Germany and made opposition to human progress the supreme course of the nation and a fundamental principle of action. A shooting gallery which has draped a pall over the nation, transformed the nation into a coffin and a tomb, and emblazoned on this pall the words nuclear phaseout, nuclear decommissioning, nuclear closure, and the free fall regression of human society fueled by solar panels and wind turbines: "When Chancellor Angela Merkel called up the boss of Germany's biggest power producer RWE two days after the first explosion at Japan's Fukushima nuclear plant, there was no mention of a u turn in her energy policy. Twenty four hours later, Juergen Grossmann learned through the media that Merkel was planning to shut down the country's oldest nuclear plants and bid farewell to a technology she had vowed was critical just six months earlier. 'There was great hysteria,' Grossmann, RWE's CEO until 2012, said during a hearing at the state of Hesse parliament this year. 'The government thought at the time that Germany was close to a nuclear disaster,' said Grossmann, according to transcripts of the hearing seen by Reuters. The decision, one of the biggest policy turnarounds in Germany's history, lays bare a lack of coordination untypical for Merkel, a physicist by training and known for her disciplined step by step approach. Half a decade on, it shows. As the Fukushima disaster approaches its fifth anniversary, Germany's utilities are in crisis and struggling to shoulder the shutdown bill. There are fears the government may have to bail them out. The main problem is the lack of planning in how to tackle the up to 80 billion euros ($88 billion) cost of decommissioning Germany's atomic reactors. 'This should have been tackled much earlier,' said Claudia Kemfert at Berlin based DIW economic institute. 'Together with the decision to phase out nuclear power they should have found a way or come up with some legislation to deal with the cost.' (Exit Now, Pay Later: Germany's Rushed Farewell To Nuclear Power by Christoph Steitz). National convulsions, national agitations, national seizures, national paralysis, national fever and national delirium: such are the symptoms of Germany's fatal overdose of a drug called red politics. Serving as the nation's chancellor for almost two decades, Angela Merkel marketed drug addiction with her trademark cry Wir Schaffen Das (Yes We Can!). She was the chief cultivator, manufacturer, distributor and seller of the mob's opium during the final hours of Germany's life.

ALBERT SPEER: ARCHITECT OF A NEW MOVEMENT

Students of history know that nations are replete with ironies and that the greatest contributions to humanity have arisen out of the most evil regimes. The first man made earth satellite, Sputnik 1, was launched in 1957 by the Soviet Union, the most evil regime in history. In the horrors of the Third Reich and in the person of one of its morally compromised senior officials, students of history have been able separate form from content and art from propaganda and identify the greatest architect in the past one hundred years. Rejecting Modern architecture and its antiworld of zero mass, zero gravity and zero functionality, this architect's name was Albert Speer and he led a movement of classical revivalism which gladdened the heart and soothed the conscience of rationalist architects if it had no effect whatever upon developments in their field. The Olympian torch bearers in ancient Greece sped through the corridors of time and space; they sailed through Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Slovakia, Poland and Czechia; and when they landed in Germany, they handed Speer the light of reason and told him to design buildings in the spirit of antiquity, animated by the principles of physical substance and physical reality. The classical world of Speer is a world of monumental architecture which emphasizes strength and durability. It is a world of universal and rational architecture. It is a world of tectonic soundness and constructional stability. It is a world of rational essences and the rejection of buildings as ideological statements. It is a world of buildings which are comfortable and well designed. It is a world of grandeur, elegance, integrity and solidity. It is a world of civilized, well mannered buildings. It is a world of harmony, firmness and utility. It is a world of real, rooted, flesh and blood human establishment. It is a world of timeless monuments, stasis and peace. It is a world of rational authority and rational dignity. It is a world of monumentalism tempered by proportion, colossalness tempered by scale, and grandness framed by gravity and logic. It is a world of buildings which are imposing but earth centered, and majestic but grounded in mass. It is a world of articulation, correctness, calculation and balance. It is a world in which buildings and settings exist in correspondence and correlation. It is a world of buildings marked by limit, measure, rational quality and rational style. It is a world of efficient, functional and beautiful buildings. It is a world of rational culture, rational skills, rational standards and rational taste. It is a world of solid construction and human experience. It is a world of rational structure, rational orders, rational dispositions and rational plans. It is a world which has been distilled and essentialized as the product of pure rational intelligence devoid of all nonutilitarian elements and admixtures: "Stripped Classicism is Classical architecture from which moldings, ornament, and details have been elided, leaving visible only the structural and proportional systems. Speer, Speeth, Stern and Troost, among many others, experimented with stripped Classicism. It is a feature Neo Classicism, as well as of Rational architecture, notably works by Grassi and Rossi. Sometimes Classical ornament is merely suggested or implied, as when incisions are used instead of moldings. With most stripped or diagrammatic Classicism the orders are only alluded to in the most subtle way, but could be added, as the proportions and dispositions of elements would permit this. Soane's Dulwich Picture Gallery and Mausoleum, London, are examples." (Dictionary of Architecture and Landscape Architecture, Encyclopedia.com). The world of Speer is a world of rational building arts and urbanism managed by rational scale and rational dimensions. It is world of traditionalism in which architecture is an exercise in functionalism and not an arm of politics. It is world which exalts the concern for comfort and utility as the supreme concern of architecture and does not condemn this as a form of snobbery. It is world which gives man, real, physical man, man who lives, breathes and walks on earth, a place in the universe. It is world in which buildings possess matter and weight and do not float endlessly through space. It is world in which buildings are characterized by load and support and do not soar into the infinite. It is world of beautifully shaped and styled buildings which serve as anchors, heavy objects and sources of stability in town squares, city centers and street scapes, and not as otherworldly vaultings into the distant reaches of outer space. Known and appreciated by a vanishing minority today, it is world in which buildings possess rational charm, provide rational delight, offer rational utility and represent people's ordinary perceptions of natural, gravity bound existence: "The traditional classical architect is a lonely figure at the start of the twenty first century. Now, with the blessing of longstanding enthusiast Prince Charles, the classical architects have regrouped under the banner of the rather teutonic sounding Intbau (International Network for Building Art and Urbanism). Chaired by Robert Adam, architect of the new Sackler Library in Oxford, Intbau was launched at the end of last month with a conference at the Prince's Foundation in London. 'We've already contacted architects working in Japan and New Zealand as well as Europe and the United States,' says Matthew Hardy, an Australian architectural historian who runs the organization's website. They feel like renegades because they believe in traditionalism. Perhaps some of the revived classical architecture of recent years has been a little clumsy. It's early days yet, and perhaps it's been connected in some people's minds, particularly in Britain, with old fashioned snobbery. What Intbau proves is that traditional and classical architecture has a wide global base of support. It's time for these architects and lobby groups, whatever their backgrounds, aspirations and politics, to stop feeling that they're alone.' A lonely hearts' club? 'Well, in a way,' says Robert Adam, one of the most successful modern British classicists. 'Take an architect like Pim Hiemens in Holland, whom we have only met recently. He works in a culture that has seen modernism become institutionalized. For him to have designed and built a new Palladian-style villa [Villa Zegwaard in Haantje, near The Hague] is not only unheard of, but anathema to the Dutch profession. He feels vilified; but, now, through Intbau, he's meeting likeminded colleagues.' 'There's nothing wrong with being modern or up to date,' says the Prince of Wales in his letter of support to the first Intbau conference, 'but the idea that we should just cast off all the traditions that give us our place in the world is very damaging indeed.

Traditional building and traditional places have lessons for us all.' Few people will disagree with the prince's sentiment. In terms of revived traditional architecture, however, two key questions are: is it relevant, and is it any good? Adam points to the Millennium Pavilion, a garden temple his practice designed for the grounds of Lord Sainsbury of Preston Candover's country house. He worked with Anthony Hunt, a structural engineer more normally associated with ultramodern architects such as Norman Foster and Richard Rogers. Adam's lightweight pavilion attempts to 'blend classical architecture with cutting edge structural engineering'. A copper clad dome, supported by filigree stainless steel supports, appears from a distance to float above limestone Corinthian columns with sharply defined bronze capitals. The pattern of the aluminum vaulting decorating the underside of the dome is bit like that of a crop circle--unintended, yet appropriate perhaps for a folly in a field. This is an undeniably charming structure--traditional architecture seen through modern designer specs--but of little relevance to the everyday design of workaday buildings and city centers. So what's the point in pursuing classicism? There does seem to be a point in creating beautifully wrought traditional style buildings in the sensitive streetscapes of old European cities, as award winning Intbau member Pier Carlo Bontempi has done successfully in Fornova di Taro, near Parma. With the Parisian architect Maurice Culot, he has built a convincing new town square surrounded by brand new traditionally styled buildings. Even more convincing is the work of any number of state employed architects who have worked since the second world war to restore Warsaw and St Petersburg." (Hooked On Classics by Jonathan Glancey). In 1966, Albert Speer, Reichminister and organizer of the German war economy, was released from Spandau prison. But Albert Speer, classical architect, was kept in confinement. The oblivion to which classical architecture has been sentenced has been as deep and enduring as the dynamite blasts destroying Speer's works have been loud and thunderous. Zeppelinfeld; the New Reich Chancellery; the German Pavilion at the 1937 International Exposition in Paris, Prachtstrasse or the Street of Magnificence; Volkshalle; the Prora tourist resort; and the street lanterns on Berlin's East-West Axis. These are the works of an individual described by architect and historian Leon Krier as the founder of classical revivalist architecture. They have been hurled into the dustbin of history along with the sane thinking which demanded that buildings be gravitationally bound, practical in wind, water, sun, heat, cold, rain and snow, and comfortable and correct for human existence. Rejecting these classical principles of architecture, the Faustian architecture of the West has substituted a pure ascent into infinite space for physical, tectonic, constructional buildings, and rendered Speer and his world null and void. \

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY, 1854-1940, RIP

The death of an organism is rarely a sudden event but is preceded by a long period of decline and senescence. During this period, the digestive and respiratory systems begin to shut down, circulation slows and blood pools, and breathing becomes sporadic and shallow. The death of an organization is similarly preceded by an extended process of dying. In one of their most unpleasant tasks, students of American politics have studied one of the most tragic deaths of an organization ever to take place in the history of the nation, a death which betokened the death of American liberty itself and the death of a constitutional republic. This was the death of the Republican Party in 1940. Like the death of an organism, the death of the party was preceded by a long period of decline. This period commenced around 1900 and the party went on a four decade long ignominious descent before it reached its final death rattle, gasp and collapse. In 1854 in a little schoolhouse on 305 Blackburn Street in Ripon, Wisconsin, the Republican Party was born, the name paying homage to Thomas Jefferson's Republican Party, and like its forerunner, dedicating itself to the consolidation and expansion of liberty throughout the land. The party opposed the Kansas-Nebraska Act, which created the territories of Kansas and Nebraska and repealed the Missouri Compromise by allowing slavery to be established in these territories and allowing them to become future slave states. The party opposed the expansion of slavery outside the South and in 1861 led the war to destroy the Confederate States of America which defended slavery, and fought to abolish slavery across America. The party's commitment to the defense of human liberty and constitutional government was reflected in its banners and standards which were emblazoned with the words Free Soil, Free Labor, Free Men. The party led the ratification of the Thirteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution which abolished slavery in the nation. Listen to the words of Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican president, as he orders all slaves to be freed and allows them to work for fair wages like free people and to serve in the nation's armed services defending the cause of freedom. As he proclaims an act of justice, conscience, human civilization and constitutional law: "I do order and declare that all persons held as slaves within said designated States, and parts of States, are, and henceforward shall be free; and that the executive government of the United States, including the military and naval authorities thereof, will recognize and maintain the freedom of said persons. And I hereby enjoin upon the people so declared to be free to abstain from all violence, unless in necessary self defense; and I recommend to them that, in all cases when allowed, they labor faithfully for reasonable wages. And I further declare and make known, that such persons of suitable condition, will be received into the armed service of the United States to garrison forts, positions, stations, and other places, and to man vessels of all sorts in said service. And upon this act, sincerely believed to be an act of justice, warranted by the Constitution, upon military necessity, I invoke the considerate judgment of mankind, and the gracious favor of Almighty God." (Emancipation Proclamation by Abraham Lincoln, issued January 1, 1863). Called by political scientists a realigning election, the 1896 presidential election saw the abandonment by the Republican Party of its founding platform of liberty and its realignment toward the policies of statism. Promoted by President William McKinley and after McKinley's assassination in 1901 by President Theodore Roosevelt, this new orientation of the party was an abject surrender to the power of the mob and marked the ascendancy of mob politics in America, and marked the beginning of the end of the Republican Party as the nation's premier voice of liberty. Packaged as Progressivism in the bright ribbons of the reds, the voices of the new Republican Party proclaimed that capitalism is a system of plutocracy, predatory wealth, oppression of wage workers, and market competition which cruelly crushes the incompetent, and these social evils can only be eliminated through regulation by the state. Listen to the words of Theodore Roosevelt which promote statism in the name of fair terms and fair dealing. Which advocate the abolition of private companies and private capital. Which advocate the enslavement of private individuals, private employees and private corporations to a leviathan called The Public. Which advocate the supervision of private commerce and private labor by the bureaus and departments of the state. Which seek to place interstate business in the iron grip of federal commissars. Which advocate the social removal of the highways and thoroughfares of freedom and liberty. Which seek to suppress the voices of constitutional rights and keep the political paths clear for red totalitarian planners. Which declare war against private goods, private markets, private producers and those with great property and seek to place wealth and people in the service of the state. Which reject the notion that the individual is the owner of his life and property and command self sacrifice and self immolation in the name of community, patriotism and good of the nation: "In his turn, the capitalist who is really a conservative, the man who has forethought as well as patriotism, should heartily welcome every effort, legislative or otherwise, which has for its object to secure fair dealing by capital, corporate or individual, toward the public and toward the employee. Such laws as the franchise tax law in this State, which the Court of Appeals recently unanimously decided constitutional--such a law as that passed in Congress last year for the purpose of establishing a Department of Commerce and Labor, under which there should be a bureau to oversee and secure publicity from the great corporations which do an interstate business--such a law as that passed at the same time for the regulation of the great highways of commerce so as to keep these roads clear on fair terms to all producers in getting their goods to market--these laws are in the interest not merely of the people as a whole, but of the propertied classes. For in no way is the stability of property better assured than by making it patent to our people that property bears its proper share of the burdens of the state; that property is handled not only in the interest of the owner, but in the interest of the whole community." (A Square Deal by Theodore Roosevelt, 1903). Deteriorating beneath the white flag of surrender to mob demands during the Progressive Era and the Square Deal, the Republican Party tolled its death knell in 1940 with the candidacy of Wendell Wilkie for president. Supporting Roosevelt's New Deal programs, supporting the expansion of Social Security, and supporting full employment through the actions of the state, Wilkie proclaimed "I pledge a new world" which would banish and exclude the American institutions of liberty enshrined in the Republican Party of Abraham Lincoln. Listen to the words of a polar opposite of Lincoln and the pall bearer of Lincoln's party. Listen as he proclaims that free enterprise cannot exist in a progressive society and economic activity, anywhere and everywhere it exists, interstate and intrastate, must be invaded, occupied and colonized by the state. As he proclaims that capitalism is a system of business monopolies and that successful companies must be broken up and dissolved in the name of helping companies which are unsuccessful and incompetent. As he proclaims that a progressive society has repealed freedom of contract and establish state control over wages and hours. As he proclaims that a progressive society has reduced the individual to a helpless, nonresponsible ward of the state and cosseted him in a blanket of cradle to grave welfare: "I believe that the forces of free enterprise must be regulated. I am opposed to business monopolies. I believe in collective bargaining, by representatives of labor's own free choice, without any interference and in full protection of those obvious rights. I believe in the maintenance of minimum standards for wages and of maximum standards for hours. I believe that such standards should constantly improve. I believe in the federal regulation of interstate utilities, of securities markets, and of banking. I believe in federal pensions, in adequate old age benefits, and in unemployment allowances." (Address Accepting the Presidential Nomination by Wendell Wilkie, 1940). Since the candidacy of Wendell Wilkie, the Republican Party has existed in name only. During the past eight decades, this spectral formation has advanced the program and manifesto of the mob and in the persons of Dwight Eisenhower, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, George H. W. Bush and George W. Bush, it has marched under such slogans of surrender as centrism, a thousand points of light, a kinder, gentler nation, progovernment conservatism and compassionate conservatism. Two Republican presidents attempted to return the party to its roots. Marching under the same slogan, Make America Great Again, Ronald Reagan and Donald Trump were two mavericks defeated and neutralized by the red mobs who run America assisted by their lackeys in the media, entertainment and academic establishments. Campaigning under two additional slogans, Keep America Great and Promises Made, Promises Kept, symbolizing his determination to take his party and his nation back to the land of liberty, Donald Trump went down to defeat in the election of 2020. Attested by tens of thousands of sworn affidavits and depositions, the greatest act of electoral fraud in the history of the United States engineered and arranged Trump's defeat at the hands of the reds. Canceled, suppressed, deplatformed, impeached, removed and run out of town by the reds in his own party and by the reds in control of the nation, Donald Trump was Lady Liberty's last lone riot and last attempt at insurrection. He stood alone before a deaf, degenerate party and a deaf, degenerate society yelling stop.

THE RED JUGGERNAUT

A juggernaut is an immense, powerful, overwhelming force. The word is derived from the Sanskrit word Jagannatha, which means "Lord of the world". In ancient Hindu practice, Krishna, the Lord of the world, was worshiped by devotees who threw themselves beneath a chariot containing his image and perished. America in the twenty first century has reached the end of its line and crashed into a final stop marked mass democracy. At this end station, it has descended into a jungle ruled by an angry red mob and this mob has launched a juggernaut which has razed to the ground every last structure supporting American freedom and liberty. The lawless mayhem of the red mob is a campaign to establish the supremacy of gender, race and class politics in every nook and cranny of society and to burn down the house of liberal enlightenment built up by the British settlers in the New World and by the blood of American revolutionary patriots. Sanctioned, nourished, empowered and stoked by eighty million reds who voted for Joe Biden as president, the national campaign of red repression has left nothing antired in its path untouched and unharmed. This crusade to silence all those who in any way, shape or form are opposed to the reds has compiled a record of success which has been the envy of red dictatorships throughout the world and is without precedent in the history of Western liberal democracies. The tragic character of the repression, committed by a nation which was once the world's greatest arsenal, bulwark, fortress and policeman of freedom, is matched only by the severity, ruthlessness and pervasiveness of its mesh, net and trap which has spared nobody and nothing and painted the nation in a fearsome and terrifying monochrome of red totalitarian tyranny. Crushing whatever lies in its path, the massive, inexorable force of the reds has seen Twitter remove Donald Trump's account. It has seen Twitter permanently suspend 70,000 accounts on the grounds that speech in favor of freedom, capitalism and Donald Trump is speech in favor of QAnon and global conspiracy. It has seen Facebook remove the Walkaway Campaign, which featured testimonials by former Democrats who had left the party due to its total domination by the reds; according to Facebook, antired speech is inherently hateful, threatening and obscene. It has seen Amazon remove the libertarian social media platform Parler on the grounds that libertarian speech is inherently violent speech. It has seen the Defense Department remove antireds from its ranks on the grounds that antired speech is speech in favor of white supremacy and far right extremism. It has seen the National Guard remove antireds from its ranks on the grounds that antired speech is a fringe political viewpoint. It has seen antired protests condemned as domestic terrorism and outlawed. It has seen the reds stalk and murder the defenders of freedom, capitalism, limited government and constitutional rights, calling them fascists and racists who deserve to die. It has seen the reds condemn the seventy five million people who voted for Donald Trump and the cause of liberty as members of a dangerous cult who must be deprogrammed, deplatformed, dismantled and censored. It has seen the reds condemn the assault on the Capital on January 6, 2020 by patriotic Americans, and these Americans' attempt at insurrection in order to obtain redress and reverse the results of a fraudulent election, an election whose fraud was attested by tens of thousands of sworn affidavits and depositions given by eyewitnesses. It has seen and the reds' campaign to silence and persecute the voices protesting this election fraud and the voices advocating insurrection. It has seen the reds condemn those who trusted their own eyes, who trusted their own reasoning faculties, and who knew a stolen election when they saw it, as detached from all reality and inhabitants of an alternative universe who need to be educated, conditioned, disciplined, indoctrinated and lobotomized. It has seen the reds take Newsmax and One America News Network off the air on the grounds that they are harmful influencers for liberal capitalist freedom. It has seen the reds launch a Trump Accountability Project which seeks to prevent former Trump administration officials from finding work on the grounds that people who worked for Donald Trump worked for Satan himself: they worked for a figure who resolutely and unwaveringly defended the antisocial, antiprogressive, satanic cause of constitutional rights and individual freedom. It has seen red publishing companies launch a No Book Deals For Traitors campaign which seeks to prevent former Trump officials from publishing their works. It has seen red students and professors at Harvard University circulate a letter demanding the revocation of degrees earned by Republican politicians who followed the facts and saw the fraud in the 2020 election and stood up and said so. It has seen the red website MoveOn.org demand that Senators Ted Cruz and Josh Hawley be excluded from all committee assignments and be expelled from the Senate because they defied the red party line, stood up for facts and reality, and called out the fraud in the 2020 election. The totalitarian forces of the reds have seen an organized course of action to eliminate the existence of free, independent minded, nonpartisan, nonindoctrinated Americans. They have seen a campaign to program the population in a deadly cult whose tenets are gender, race and class. They have seen riots and rampages through city streets stampeding the voices of reason and dissent. It has seen red mobs attacking the supporters of Donald Trump on the grounds that Trump reduced tax burdens upon the people's incomes, reduced regulatory burdens upon the people's businesses, reduced unemployment among women, blacks and hispanics to their lowest levels in the nation's history, moved the American embassy to Jerusalem and stood resolutely behind Israel's right to exist and to defend itself and defend Western civilization against terror attacks, and Trump protected the nation against the searching tentacles of theft, piracy, sabotage and subversion streaming out from the moral wastelands of China. They have seen a campaign to impeach and remove Donald Trump from the face of the earth for leading an insurrection to reverse the results of a fraudulent election which cheated him out of victory, a fraud attested by tens of thousands of sworn affidavits and depositions submitted throughout the nation. It has seen a campaign to invade the sacred precincts of man's conscience and force belief to follow the dark paths of political correctness. They have seen a campaign to stamp censorship across the pages of social media and scramble search engines, television screens, radio signals and motion picture celluloid to silence the voices of freedom and liberty and send out a declaration of war against the West: "In response to some people claiming Trump supporters need to be 'deprogrammed' Fox News contributor Mike Huckabee on Tuesday explained why people voted for the former reality TV star to lead the country. 'The first thing would be to get some of these leftist loons [to] take their boot off my neck. I don't need that, I'm supposed to be a free American with the capacity to think for myself,' Huckabee told Fox & Friends. 'If my views are as horrible as they think they are, then nobody will follow them,' Huckabee said. Liberal journalists and social media voices have stepped up their calls to deprogram, deplatform or outright threaten right leaning voices in the aftermath of the deadly Capital riot earlier this month. During an appearance Friday on Real Time with Bill Maher, former CBS News anchor Katie Couric ripped the Republicans in Congress who voted against impeaching President Trump over a charge of inciting rioters on January 6. 'The question is how are we going to really almost deprogram these people who have signed up for the cult of Trump,' Couric said. Her language mirrored that of liberal Washington Post columnist Eugene Robinson in the aftermath of the riot, when a proTrump mob stormed the Capitol building in a deadly melee. Robinson said last week on MSNBC 'there are millions of Americans, almost all White, almost all Republicans, who somehow need to be deprogrammed,' calling them members of a 'Trumpist cult.' Huckabee asserted that there is no cult of Trump supporters, but rather people who 'appreciate the many' actions that President Trump made for the country such as 'standing up for the sanctity of life, standing with Israel by moving an embassy into that country, and resetting the Middle East. I'm glad he cut taxes, deregulated for businesses so that people had the highest number of jobs among hispanics, blacks and women in the history of the country. I'm glad that he pushed back against China so we're not rolling over as these communists continue to steal everything, including our information and our data and every single secret and innovation we've created. There are some things that even a leftist ought to be able to look at and say, You know what? President Trump has done some good things, but they can't. And they're the ones who are following the cult, the cult of the left, that thinks somehow that they're always right, they're never wrong, and the rest of us are crazy.' " (Huckabee Pushes Back On Calls For 'Deprogramming' Trump Voters: 'The Cult Of The Left' by Joshua Nelson). In the final days of World War II, Hitler's senior officers and officials refused to implement his orders for a scorched earth policy as German forces retreated into the Reich. As a result of their refusal, German industries were preserved and were able to assist with the nation's postwar revival. Before the reds' present day onslaught against America commanded from the street corner by the neighbors next door, there is no countervailing force or institution which can halt the mass destruction. The final days of collapse are upon America and are as unstoppable as death.

BIDEN--ALLENDE

National destruction. This is what civilized people saw who surveyed the field of Chile during the years when Salvador Allende was in power, from 1970 to 1973. The first democratically elected Marxist president in Latin American history, Allende moved quickly to consolidate red power and lower the curtain on freedom throughout the nation. Spreading widely and rapidly, Allende's reds took over the banks, manufacturing and mining industries, and private estates. By 1972, food production had plummeted and food imports had soared. Leading his Popular Unity Party comprised of reds of all factions, Allende befriended the communist regimes of Cuba, China, Korea, Vietnam, Albania and the Soviet Union, and the latter provided substantial aid to his government. Under Allende the following symptoms of national free fall appeared: demand for goods outstripped supply; the economy crashed;

deficit spending skyrocketed; new investments dried up; foreign exchange disappeared; the government printed money to increase wages and salaries and inflation soared to stratospheric heights, reaching 500 percent; a black market thrived and stalked the land; copper sales plummeted in consequence of the seizure of private copper mines; mobs led by commissars seized control over all private enterprises; and the land was proclaimed to be a "social property area" and all private holdings were seized by state intervention, requisition and expropriation. Beholding a government which had violated the constitution, taken away the freedom of the people and destroyed the economy, concerned citizens from across the nation gathered together in August 1973 and demanded Allende's resignation. When Allende refused to resign, they demanded a military takeover of the government. Heeding the call of the people, the military, under the command of General Augusto Pinochet, removed Allende from office in September 1973. Under the leadership of Pinochet, the coup which overthrew Allende's government established a period of freedom, prosperity and protection from the reds which made Chile the envy of Latin America. Among the most unpleasant tasks with which students of history and politics are confronted is the identification of parallels of evil existing between nations. Staring at them with all the anger, fierceness, intensity and dazzling light of the noonday sun is the parallel between Chile under the leadership of President Salvador Allende and present day America under the leadership of President Joe Biden. Staring at them so that they cannot look away from it, cannot evade it and cannot deny its stark, fearsome and terrifying reality, the parallel is that of national destruction by a leader supported in his efforts by millions of reds from across the nation who are driven by a perfervid hatred of the liberal order and the capitalist system and want to see it abolished immediately. Staring at them is the record President Biden has compiled in first days of his presidency which betokens a coming train wreck and the dissolution of American freedom, culture and constitutional government. Reviving the platforms and policies of the Obama administration by the issuance of a record breaking number of executive orders and proclamations, Biden has fulfilled his campaign pledge to effect a red takeover of the nation and has cast the specter of Allende, the specter of national suicide and democratic self destruction, across the face of American society. Students of history and politics have seen Biden's flurry of executive orders and his first acts as president and wonder, as those oppressed by Allende wondered, how long the nation can survive this intense, impassioned onslaught launched by the reds. They have seen an order which rejoins America to the Paris Climate Accord and rolls back the nation's industrial and technological progress into primitive wastelands marked environmental justice and zero carbon emissions. They have seen an order which mandates preferential treatment for women, nonwhites, transgenders and homosexuals in the name of equity for the marginalized and the underserved: "Advance equity for all, including people of color and others who have been historically underserved, marginalized and adversely affected by persistent poverty and inequality." They have seen an order which lifts Donald Trump's ban on entry by residents of high risk Muslim majority nations and orders the commencement of visa processing for them, and thereby greenlights the settlement of terror threats and religious fanaticism in the name of tolerance and pluralism. They have seen an order which lifts Trump's ban on communities which shield illegal aliens from deportation. They have seen an order which lifts Trump's ban on excessive business regulations which mandated that federal agencies to discard two regulations for every one regulation proposed. They have seen an order which lifts Trump's ban on incorporating illegal aliens into the national census. They have seen an order which revokes the permit issued by Trump allowing construction of the Keystone XL pipeline and which, in the name of environmental justice and indigenous rights, will eliminate tens of thousands of high paying construction jobs and make America energy dependent. They have seen an order which bans discrimination by federal agencies against gender psychotics who claim in the face of reality to have transitioned into the opposite sex. They have seen an order which terminates construction and funding for a wall at the nation's southern border, inaugurated by Trump, which has kept out tens of thousands of illegal aliens. They have seen an order which freezes federal student loan payments and excuses financial irresponsibility and forces taxpayers to subsidize it on the grounds that "too many Americans are struggling to pay for basic necessities and to provide for their families." They have seen an order which reaffirms the Deferred Action on Childhood Arrivals program, which Trump opposed, a program which protects illegal aliens who arrived in United States as children from deportation, and a program which greenlights the illegal settlement of millions. They have seen an order which grants American Indian and Alaskan Native tribes veto power over the expansion of Western civilization on tribal lands. They have seen an order which mandates preferential treatment for Asians and Pacific Islanders in the name of achieving cultural competence and sensitivity. They have seen an order which creates an office of domestic climate policy, a national climate task force and an environmental justice council which will oversee the abolition of coal mining, power plants and human material betterment in order to "address the disproportionate health, environmental, economic and climate impacts on disadvantaged communities." Students of history and politics have looked at the world of Joe Biden and seen a president who seeks to blow up the Supreme Court with a bench packed with red dynamite. A president who seeks to abolish judicial integrity, independence and legitimacy by transforming Supreme Court judges into marionettes of red fueled mobs. A president who seeks to sacrifice the rule of law and the plain meaning of the constitutional text upon altars marked social justice and identity politics. A president who has established a commission of red hangmen sitting under banners marked court reform to pronounce a sentence of death upon individual rights and freedoms in America: "President Joe Biden has begun appointing members of a special commission that will consider expanding the Supreme Court, among other 'reforms.' Some Democrats have proposed packing the Court, by expanding the number of justices and filling the resulting vacancies with left wing judges. The goal is to eliminate the Court's current nominal 6-3 conservative majority, which Democrats like former Attorney General Eric Holder claim undermines its legitimacy. Biden dodged questions about court packing throughout the fall of 2020, until announcing his plan to create a commission to study the issue. As Breitbart News reported in late October: 'Biden confirmed to reporters in Chester, Pennsylvania, that he would create a 'bipartisan commission' to study 'reforms' to the judiciary, and that it would report to him within 180 days of his taking office in January.' Politico reported Wednesday that the 'bipartisan' commission will be chaired by Biden's former campaign lawyer, Bob Bauer, a career Democrat operative who also worked for the Perkins Coie firm. Perkins Coie was involved in the Russia dossier on then candidate Donald Trump in 2016, and its election law practice, headed by Marc Elias, led Democrats' filings throughout the 2020 presidential election and in its aftermath." (Biden Creates 'Bipartisan' Court-packing Commission Led by Democrat Election Lawyer Bob Bauer by Joel Pollak). Deploring the parallels they have seen, students of history and politics do want to see a parallel between Allende and Biden come into being. Allende was overthrown when patriotic, freedom loving communities of Chileans defied the red majority in control of the nation and knocked on the doors of the barracks when peaceful change had proved impossible to bring about. In like manner, students of history and politics today want to see patriotic, freedom loving communities of Americans employ the use of force in national politics. They want to see these communities stage an armed insurrection to depose the president and give the nation a reprieve from a self execution which is hurtling down the guillotine.

REDS ON THE COUCH

Projection is the unconscious transference of one's own ideas, desires and attributes onto others. Studied by students of human psychology for centuries, projection is an act of self defense by mentally ill people; their attribution to others of things which they do not like about themselves protects them from having to acknowledge the existence of these things within them. Over the past decades, students of human psychology have focused their attention upon a preeminent, influential group in society, and peering into their minds, they have observed a jungle of mental disorders the likes of which they have never observed before in any other group. Amidst this tangled, tragic forest of human degradation, they have observed one disorder in particular and zeroed in on it, for it has raised the decibel levels of political invective to a deafening point and shouted down the voices of dissent into a dark corner of disrepute and illegitimacy. This group is the reds and their disorder is that of projection. Students of human psychology have set forth their diagnosis and stated their case and gained the unanimous assent of the psychological community. Exhibit one: the reds accuse antireds of being opposed to objective truth and empirical science. Reality: the reds are themselves intrinsically opposed to the theory and practice of the scientific enterprise. Look at the world of the reds and see their dogma that truth and reality are products of the social construction of genders, races, classes and cultures. See their incineration of facts and logic in charnel houses marked the will to power. See their definition of political argumentation as smashing windows, setting fires, throwing rocks in the street and shouting down their opponents. See their campaign to politicize education, the media, the law and the institutions of knowledge and bring them under the control of gender, race and class commissars. See their rejection of all absolute, empirical standards of thought and reasoning and their exaltation of the demons and voodoo masters of apriorism and subjectivity. See their rejection of the existence of physical objects and their reduction of reality to a mental flux shaped by political phrases, advertising, parties and movements: "If there is no absolute truth and knowledge about reality is socially constructed by our ethnic, religious and political groups, then the attempt to appeal to a universal ethic is imperialist oppression of one culture over another. Society cannot be ruled by an agreed upon transcendent authority or criteria because there is none. In short, left wing radical theory, and by extension the Obama administration is the demonic stepchild of Nietzsche's will to power. There is no truth, just people seeking to impose their wills upon others. This is why liberals, and other left wing radicals are the juvenile kings and queens of protest and outshouting their adversaries. This is why you hear liberals reduce culture to power relations. This is why they have pursued the control of education, the media, law and government. Because they believe in the will to power as the ultimate truth. This is why they are so effective at creating slogans like Proposition Hate, and Bush Lied, People Died. Because they believe in the power of language to shape knowledge. Whoever controls the instruments and institutions of knowledge controls reality. If you change the language, you change reality to be what you want it to be rather than what your opponent thinks it is." (Language Wars: The Truth Behind Obama's Social Construction Of Reality by Dark Knight). Look at the world of the reds and see the promotion of a religion of transgenderism. See the denial of the reality that sex is determined by genes and chromosomes and not by human decision. See the assertion that gender identity is arbitrary, subjective and independent of scientific facts. See the spectacle of men claiming to be women and women claiming to be men men receiving legal recognition for their psychoses in the name of equal protection, constitutional rights and due process of law. See the walls of reason and civilization breached by a stampede of transgender activists whose agenda is to enact mental illness and crackpot antiscience into the supreme laws of the land: "A growing number of states and members of the US Congress are backing legislation to protect female athletes from competing against men who consider themselves to be transgender women. This is in contrast to President Joe Biden's focus on expanding gender identity rights, including allowing them to serve in the US military. Biden also took early action to decide executively that Title IX, a statute to protect women from discrimination because of their biological sex at schools receiving federal funds, also protects gender identity. Politico reported on the bill in at least six states and included talking points favored by LGBT activists who deny the reality of two sexes, that is, sex assigned at birth as and 'limiting opportunities for transgender athletes'. A federal judge temporarily blocked an Idaho law that limits participation in sports based on one's biological sex. Lindsay Hecox, a man who is living as a woman, filed the lawsuit challenging the law, claiming 'the law violates the equal protection and due process clauses of the 14th Amendment and the unlawful searches and seizures clause of the Fourth Amendment,' Politico reported." (States, Congress Fight To Preserve the Two Sexes From Joe Biden's Transgender Push by Penny Starr). Look at the world of the reds and see a religion of radical environmentalism which condemns scientific and technological progress. See a religion which exalts the air, trees, water and animals as manifestations of God and scintillating lights of mystical goodness and condemns man and everything he creates as emissaries of Satan and the essence of evil. See a religion which views nature untouched by man as pure and sacred and is fixated upon its goal of destroying human civilization. See a religion which has compiled an index of forbidden objects, and included in it fossil fuels, nuclear power, hydroelectric dams, genetically modified foods, consumer capitalism and modern business corporations, and consigned them to the flames of Luddite reaction and primitive regression packaged as progressive politics: "There is more, and recent, antiscience fare from far left progressives, documented in the 2012 book Science Left Behind by science journalists Alex B. Berezow and Hank Campbell. On energy issues, for example, the authors contend that progressive liberals tend to be antinuclear because of the waste disposal problem, antifossil fuels because of global warming, antihydroelectric because dams disrupt river ecosystems, and antiwind power because of avian fatalities. The underlying current is 'everything natural is good' and 'everything unnatural is bad.' Whereas conservatives obsess over the purity and sanctity of sex, the left's sacred values seem fixated on the environment, leading to an almost religious fervor over the purity and sanctity of air, water and especially food. Try having a conversation with a liberal progressive about GMOs—genetically modified organisms—in which the words Monsanto and profit are not dropped like syllogistic bombs. Comedian Bill Maher, for example, on his HBO Real Time show on October 19, 2012, asked Stonyfield Farm CEO Gary Hirshberg if he would rate Monsanto as a 10 (evil) or an 11? The fact is that we've been genetically modifying organisms for 10,000 years through breeding and selection. It's the only way to feed billions of people." (The Left's War On Science by Michael Shermer). Exhibit two: the reds accuse antireds of promoting hatred and discrimination on the basis of gender, race and other attributes.

Reality: the reds are themselves virulent advocates of racism, sexism and special treatment for people on the basis of group membership. Look at the world of the reds and see an ideology and movement of tribal power which seeks to roll back the progress of liberal enlightenment civilization. See the megaphones of nationalism blaring out the will to power of women, blacks, queers, transgenders, illegal aliens, violent criminals, and all those who are marginalized by the laws and customs of decent, civilized society. See the loud, harsh blasts of chauvinists rallying and agitating in the swamplands of social rights and demanding the abolition of equal treatment of all before the law. See the voices of collectivism streaming in from the fearsome spectrum of human madness, joining and rising together into a mighty chorus, targeting for assassination the voices of reasoned discourse and dissent, and in the name of expansiveness, inclusion, liberation and social justice, proclaiming the end of individual rights and universal rational humanity and the onset of an age of red totalitarian oppression: "We are expansive. We are a collective of liberators who believe in an inclusive and spacious movement. We also believe that in order to win and bring as many people with us along the way, we must move beyond the narrow nationalism that is all too prevalent in Black communities. We must ensure we are building a movement that brings all of us to the front. We affirm the lives of Black queer and trans folks, disabled folks, undocumented folks, folks with records, women, and all Black lives along the gender spectrum. Our network centers those who have been marginalized within Black liberation movements. We are working for a world where Black lives are no longer systematically targeted for demise. We affirm our humanity, our contributions to this society, and our resilience in the face of deadly oppression. The call for Black lives to matter is a rallying cry for ALL Black lives striving for liberation." (blacklivesmatter.com). Students of human psychology know that the prognosis of cases of severe mental illness is poor. Knowing the weakness of the psychotic's character, they know that the likely course of his illness is descent into a state of total collapse and nonfunctioning. Studying the reds' illness of projection, they forecast the dissolution of society into a cockpit of bloody violence. \

THE VOICE OF DESTRUCTION

The year is 1000 AD. In a distant corner of the universe, Satan rides through space. He approaches Earth. Coursing past snowy mountains, soaring promontories, steep rock faces and raging waterfalls, he settles in Europe, spreads his dark wings across the continent, and brings into being a new culture. In the epicenter of this new culture, in the twilight, ascending forests of Northern Germany, he fashions the form of a man who is yet to be born, but who will be born seven centuries later in Germany. He tells this specter that when he is born, he will have as his life's mission the task of telling the world the story of this new culture, delineating its ethos, attitudes and fundamental principles. On August 28, 1749, this man was born, and soon thereafter, he commenced his life's mission. This man's name was Johann Wolfgang von Goethe and the culture he described, on a mission from Satan, was a culture the likes of which the world had never before seen, a culture whose soul stood out in diametrical opposition to everything rational, intelligible, static and perfect in the world as embodied in the noonday culture of the Greeks and Romans. This new culture which Goethe set out to describe was the by turns fearsome and terrifying, magnificent and ascending, culture of the West. In spirit and soul one thousand years old, this form, this figure, this presence, this manifestation of Satan, this Goethe, who was born when the West was born and who will die when the West dissolves, painted a picture of the West which distilled its nature and essence as no other literary figure has, and students of history and culture should pay heed to his words as a warning of what happens when an inability to act and think rationally gives birth to a community and develops into a world civilization. The words of Goethe are the words of Faust, romanticism and Sturm und Drang and the reader should listen to these words attentively and order his thoughts and actions accordingly if he is survive and succeed as a rational, flourishing human being. Expressed in poems, plays, novels, treatises, letters and literary fragments, these words penned by Goethe proclaim that the good man rejects the constraints of reason imposed by the Enlightenment and exalts individual subjectivity, emotional extremes and free expression. They proclaim that the highest human condition is a state of sensation and turbulence which has liberated man from the false Enlightenment ideals of prudence, responsibility and reasonable comportment. They proclaim that the good person is a cauldron of violent expression which has triumphed over external order. They proclaim that good art aims at shocking the audience with its rejection of harmony, complementarity and intelligibility. They proclaimed that a progressive society exalts human freedom over the despotism of the human intellect. They proclaimed that the good person is driven to action, violent action, any action, and has no interest in the pursuit of noble aims or ideals. They proclaimed that the good person is an endless series of lightning storms and outbursts of irrationality. They proclaimed that the good person is a psychopath whose calling is to frighten and torment the bourgeois upholders of law and order. They proclaimed that the good person is a remorseless villain who cheats his friends and family and revels in his evil. They proclaimed that reality is jagged, angular, shadowy and unpredictable in character. They proclaimed that reality races, changes, mutates and makes leaps without rhyme or reason. They proclaimed that the good artist innovates for the sake of innovating, expresses for the sake of expressing, and conforms to nothing beyond the dictates of his own will. They proclaimed that the good artist is unbalanced and agitated, rejects logical form and unity, and is resolutely antirational in everything he creates. They proclaimed that the good man has swept away the fragile veneer of reason and civilized conduct and revealed the dark, bestial recesses of the human soul. They proclaimed that the progressive society is a state of continuous upheaval without rational fabric of any kind. They proclaimed that the good person is controlled by impulses and desires and has severed the chains of forethought and self responsibility. They proclaimed that reality is a cyclone, a shipwreck and the terror of unending ruination. They proclaimed that good art consists in the portrayal of nightmares which paralyze the audience with fear. They proclaimed that science is not possible because the objects of observation comprise an indeterminate flux without natures or essences of any kind. They proclaimed that human knowledge is limited by the senses and the study of nature is an illusion because there exist no physical objects. They proclaimed that the Enlightenment emphasis upon rational thought and inductive reasoning is cold and unfeeling and must be replaced by a program of mystical and emotional oneness with nature. Look at the world of Goethe and see the rejection of the world of physical objects. See the identification of the real with the ideal. See the projection of existence as a manifestation of consciousness. See the identification of changing objects with changing ideas. See the rejection of empiricism and multiplicity and the projection of being as the mystical oneness of pure, absolute mind: "Goethe's contemplation of the world goes only to a certain limit. He observes light and color phenomena and advances as far as the archetypal phenomenon (Urphaenomen); he tries to find his bearings within the manifoldness of the plant's being and arrives at his sensible-supersensible archetypal plant. From the archetypal phenomenon or the archetypal plant he does not ascend to higher principles of explanation. He leaves that up to the philosophers. He is content when 'he finds himself upon the empirical heights, from which he can look back upon experience in all its levels, and can at least look forward into the realm of theory if not enter it.' Goethe goes to the point in his contemplation of the real where the ideas confront him. To determine the connection in which ideas stand to one another and how, within the ideal realm, one thing proceeds from another, are tasks which first begin upon the empirical height where Goethe stopped. 'The idea is eternal and unique,' he believes. 'That we also use the plural is not appropriate. Everything of which we can become aware and about which we can speak are only manifestations of the idea.' But since the idea, in the phenomenon, arises after all as a multiplicity of individual ideas, such as idea of the plant, idea of the animal, these must then let themselves be led back to a basic form in the same way that the plant lets itself be led back to the leaf. The individual ideas are also different only in their manifestation; in their true being they are identical. It is therefore just as much in keeping with the Goethean world view to speak of a metamorphosis of ideas as of a metamorphosis of plants. The philosopher who tried to present this metamorphosis of ideas is Hegel. Through this he is the philosopher of the Goethean world view. He takes his start from the simplest idea, from pure being." (Goethe's World View by Rudolf Steiner). Look at the world of Goethe and see the projection of reality as abstract, one, archetypal and mental in character. See the rejection of empirical methods of investigation in favor of mysticism, apriorism and a spiritual sense for nature: "The simple and abstract, what you quite aptly call the archetypal phenomenon, this you put first, and then show the concrete phenomena as arising through the participation of still other influences and circumstances, and you direct the whole process in such a way that the sequence proceeds from the simple determining factors to the composite ones, and, thus arranged, something complex appears in all its clarity through this decomposition. To seek out the archetypal phenomenon, to free it from other extraneous chance surroundings—to grasp it abstractly, as we call it—this I consider to be a task for a great spiritual sense for nature, just as I consider that procedure altogether to be what is truly scientific in gaining knowledge in this field." (Letter to Goethe from Hegel, February 20, 1821). The year is 2100 AD, two millennia after the birth of the West. A fog rolls in and engulfs the world and brings in a plague. This is the plague of universal violence and destruction. Amidst this total engulfment and these dark, dreadful forces, a scholar, an alchemist and a necromancer named Goethe, named Faust, named Satan and named the West builds a pyre. He hurls into the pyre the foundations of civilized existence and a human way of life: reason, empiricism, enlightenment, understanding and common sense. Sheets of flame expand, ascend and light up the heavens. The progeny of Goethe, Faust and the West, the ideologies of will, disruption and brute force, the sinister, frightening currents of communism, national socialism and gender, race and class politics, have burned everything in sight and reduced civilization to ashes.

TRUTH AS CORRESPONDENCE: BANNED IN THE WEST

One thousand years ago in the twilight evening lands of Northern Europe, a scholar, alchemist and necromancer stood at a crossroads. Dissatisfied with his life of wisdom and knowledge, this figure named Faust turned down the fork on the left and made a pact with the Devil. In this pact, he agreed to surrender his wisdom and knowledge in exchange for infinite power. He agreed to give up the pursuit of truth in exchange for mastery and control. When he made his choice and turned down the left fork in the road, bolts of lightning and peels of thunder at once shattered the sky and a new culture appeared upon the face of the earth: the fearsome, terrifying, imagination defying, Faustian culture of the West. The ethos of subjectivity and the will would stamp itself upon every facet of the new culture and would distinguish it, as the night winds and the black waters are distinguished from the placid meadows of noonday, from the Apollonian culture of the Greeks and Romans. Racing down the left fork of the road after Faust's pact with the Devil, Western culture has, over the course of a millennium, accelerated into mental free fall and taken the study of truth and reality down with it. The foundational principle of Greco-Roman culture, and the foundational principle of all sane thinking, is the affirmation that truth is the correspondence of thought with an extramental, physical reality. This simple, plain, common sense affirmation that physical objects exist and that the truth or falsity of a statement is determined by how it relates to the world of physical objects is expressed by Aristotle in his Metaphysics: "To say that that which is, is not, and that which is not, is, is a falsehood. Therefore, to say that which is, is, and that which is not, is not, is true". In its tumultuous journey into the raging storms of Faustian midnight and into the bottomless depths of will power and subjectivity, the West has rejected the Classical definition of truth as correspondence to reality and embraced every other definition of truth. Listen to the words of Faust's heirs and descendants and see an assault on the notion of truth without parallel in the history of mankind. Listen to the words which proclaim that reality is a substance called mind and has no physical existence whatever. They proclaim that the world and its facts is nothing more than a collection of ideas in the mind of a supreme being. They proclaim that what is called physical reality is a creation of the human mind and has no existence beyond its forms and categories. They proclaim that the belief that we can know objects as they really are is a myth founded in the Age of Enlightenment and must be replaced by the recognition that we can only know objects as they appear to us and are perceived by us. They proclaim that what are called physical objects are imaginary, undefinable entities and the notion of a mind independent reality is incoherent. They proclaim that truth is a state of internal coherence within a set of propositions or ideas and has no relation whatever to anything outside this. They proclaim that truth is the proper fit of elements within a system and affirms nothing about anything physical which lies outside the system. They proclaim that reality is a single, absolute mental system and truth is the harmony of ideas within this system. They proclaim that truth is coherence and consistency and exists only inside a system and has no existence outside the system. They proclaim that truth is a state of interconnection, interdependence and interentailment and has nothing whatever to do with the world of material nature. They proclaim that the function of thought is not to describe or mirror reality but to shape and transform reality in accordance with our needs and wishes. They proclaim that a statement becomes true by virtue of its positive effects upon our emotional health and well being and has no truth outside of this pragmatic value. They proclaim that scientific theories are underdetermined by and unrelated to empirical data and are nothing more than products of our interests and desires. They proclaim that truth is an arbitrary social convention and a product of majority vote. They proclaim that truth is subjective, intersubjective and democratic in character and has no relation whatever to objective entities or structures. They proclaim that truth is determined by our language games and forms of life and there are as many different truths as there language games, no one of which may be held to be more valid or more justifiable than any other. They proclaim that truth is definitional, grammatical, semantic and linguistic in character and is completely unrelated to the nature of existence. They proclaim that truth is an antiempirical, apriori construct which serves the needs and interests of genders, races, classes and cultures and corresponds to nothing in reality. They proclaim that truth is a social convention which serves the ends of politics. Listen to the words of a Faustian philosopher and see the rejection of the world of experience. See the denial that physical objects exist. See the denial that conceptual schemes correspond to anything outside the mind. See the projection of the world of nature as a cultural posit without reality of any kind: "As an empiricist I continue to think of the conceptual scheme of science as a tool, ultimately, for predicting future experience in the light of past experience. Physical objects are conceptually imported into the situation as convenient intermediaries not by definition in terms of experience, but simply as irreducible posits comparable, epistemologically, to the gods of Homer. For my part I do, qua lay physicist, believe in physical objects and not in Homer's gods; and I consider it a scientific error to believe otherwise. But in point of epistemological footing, the physical objects and the gods differ only in degree and not in kind. Both sorts of entities enter our conceptions only as cultural posits." (Two Dogmas Of Empiricism by Willard Quine). Listen to the words of a Faustian philosopher and see the rejection of all empirical modes of investigation. See the denial that truth provides any description or explanation of the nature of reality. See the denial that thought provides any information about the extramental world. See the identification of philosophical problems with linguistic problems. See the reduction of philosophy to an internal study of words, meanings and the operations of language without reference to the world of nature: "It was true to say that our considerations could not be scientific ones. It was not of any possible interest to us to find out empirically that, contrary to our preconceived ideas, it is possible to think such and such--whatever that may mean. And we may not advance any kind of theory. There must not be anything hypothetical in our considerations. We must do away with all explanation and description alone must take its place. And this description gets its light, that is to say its purpose, from the philosophical problems. These are of course not empirical problems. They are solved, rather, by looking into the workings of our language, and that in such a way as to make us recognize those workings, despite an urge to misunderstand them. The problems are solved, not by giving new information, but by arranging what we have always known. Philosophy is a battle against the bewitchment of our intelligence by means of language." (Philosophical Investigations by Ludwig Wittgenstein). Listen the words of a Faustian philosopher and see the projection of existence as nothingness. See the denial that being is anything which is real or physical. See the denial that the senses perceive reality. See the denial that thought refers to the world which is outside of thought. See the reduction of all entities to mental entities and the projection of mind as the true being and essence of reality: "Why are there beings at all instead of nothing? That is the question. Presumably it is not arbitrary question, Why are there beings at all instead of nothing---this is obviously the first of all questions. Of course it is not the first question in the chronological sense. And yet, we are each touched once, maybe even every now and then, by the concealed power of this question, without properly grasping what is happening to us. In great despair, for example, when all weight tends to dwindle away from things and the sense of things grows dark, the question looms. The senses do not enable us to cognize any entity in its Being. They merely serve to announce the ways in which external things within the world are useful or harmful for human creatures encumbered with bodies. They tell us nothing about entities in their Being." (Being And Time by Martin Heidegger). Students of philosophy have long pointed out the contradiction involved in denying the correspondence theory of truth. They have pointed out that any other conception of truth, such as that truth consists in the coherence of a statement within a system of statements, or that truth consists in advancing man's wishes, needs, interests or desires, is held by its proponents to be true, to be simply, absolutely and unqualifiedly true, and not to be true by virtue of something else, such as coherence or pragmatic success. The opponents of the correspondence theory of truth contradict themselves when they both deny validity of the theory and assume its validity. Denying that truth is the correspondence between our ideas and the facts of reality, Western philosophy has traveled down the winding, twisting path of psychosis. When Faust stood at the crossroads and made his fateful decision, he at once brought into being a new culture, a culture founded on the rejection of truth in favor of subjectivity, and set a seal of doom upon hundreds of millions of people down through the centuries who would live as citizens of the West. This was the doom of schizophrenic disintegration and in the nightmare world of the twenty first century, the sands of time have run out on the world of Faust.

THE REDS' WALL AROUND AMERICA

Architects define a wall as structure which does four things: it defines an area; it carries a load; and it provides security and shelter for people. In the ancient world, walls were built to last for an eternity and were seen as symbols and embodiments of the ancient virtues of solidity, stability, strength and stasis. Over the course of a century, the mobs of America have been constructing a moral, spiritual and ideological wall around the nation and this wall has served four purposes: it has defined an area of oppression and isolation; it has supported the fearsome and terrifying weight of gender, race and class agitation; and it has provided security and shelter to the totalitarian haters of humanity. Decade by decade since the rays of dawn first broke across the twentieth century, this wall has been constructed by the people of America, by the neighbors next door, by the folks around the corner, by the waiters and porters across the street, by the educated denizens of the coasts, by the main street multitudes of the Middle West, by the workers in factories, and by the senior executives ensconced in corporate suites. Decade by decade the bricks and mortar have been systematically laid and in the twenty first century, the wall has been completed and mass democracy's ultimate product of pure evil has been displayed to all the world. Civilized people who live inside this wall and civilized people throughout the world who have peered into it have recoiled in shock and horror at all that they have seen and sought to run away from it physically and mentally. Asking themselves what went wrong and how it all happened, how a nation which for generations had been the world's arsenal, citadel, bulwark and policeman of freedom and liberty could degenerate into the moral sewer of red politics, they immediately came upon the answer. The answer was as plain as daylight and was provided to them by the direct, lucid, irrefutable streams of common sense. The answer was mass psychology and mass participation in political and cultural life. Civilized people knew from their study of history that this blight called the masses had brought down the Classical world and hurled it into an amphitheater where it was mauled to death by Christians and Germans; and they now beheld this same blight bring down the shining City Upon A Hill and hurl it into fever swamps filled by the radical left. Sensitive readers are hereby advised to brace themselves before seeing the kind of world the reds, the establishment, the masses have built up over the past one hundred years behind their wall encircling America. This world is frightening, disturbing, nightmarish and unpleasant and presents a picture of a nation, a culture, a civilization and a planet irrevocably caught in a downward spiral of suicidal death and flaming, storming self destruction. Behind this wall they will see one hundred years of treason against America's founding principles, ideals and written constitution. They will see the doctrine that the mind, body and soul of the individual are the property of the tribe and the community. They will see the doctrine that morality is that which serves the needs and interests of genders, races and classes. They will see independent, untired thought condemned as subversive and insurrectionist and punished by death. They will see individual rights crushed beneath the weight of a social justice leviathan. They will see statism packaged as progressivism by Theodore Roosevelt. They will see statism packaged as an administrative state by Woodrow Wilson. They will see statism packaged as a New Deal by Franklin Roosevelt. They will see statism packaged as an "organic" view of the constitution which panders to shifting ideological currents and rejects the protection of private property and economic freedom. They will see statism packaged as the New Frontier by John Kennedy. They will see statism packaged as the Great Society by Lyndon Johnson. They will see statism packaged as "centrism" by Richard Nixon. They will see statism packaged as a "kinder, gentler nation" by George Bush. They will see statism packaged as "compassionate conservatism" and "progovernment conservatism" by George W. Bush. They will see statism packaged as "something bigger and greater than the self" and as the Affordable Care Act by Barack Obama. They will see statism packaged as a public health necessity to fight the covid 19 pandemic. They will see the red thought police patrolling homes, families, neighborhoods, city streets, offices, factories and college campuses on the lookout for infractions against political correctness, which prohibits all criticisms of Marxist ideology and its race and gender offshoots, all criticisms of nonWestern cultures, all criticisms of indigenous nations, Arabs and Islam. They will see red terror movements traveling under the names Occupy Wall Street, Antifa and Black Lives Matter burn, plunder, raze to the ground and overthrow cities across the nation, shouting "eat the rich", "decolonization", "revolution by the 99 percent", "black nationalism", and "diversity, equity and inclusion". They will see indoctrination of the masses in critical race theory which teaches that the law is an instrument of white supremacy and must be replaced by a state of lawlessness and mob rule in the hands of black power gangs. They will see campaigns of vandalism launched against private residences and public institutions in the name of "wokeness" or alertness to the racist character of the capitalist system. They will see the prosecution of men on charges of sexual assault established by the conflation of an accusation with evidence, and a mass of accusation with a mass of evidence, and without an iota of proof, fairness or due process of law. They will see legal recognition granted to transgender individuals who deny the biological fact that sex is determined by genes and chromosomes and proclaim that sex can be changed by means of drugs and surgical procedures. They will see untired opponents of gender, race and class theory bullied, blacklisted, doxed, deleted, canceled and cut out of society. They will see the greatest political scandal in the history of the nation unfold during the 2020 presidential election when Donald Trump was cheated out of victory by the perpetration of a fraud attested by one thousand sworn affidavits, one thousand reels of surveillance footage, one thousand pages of testimony by cybersecurity experts, one thousand exhibits of illegal postal voting, one thousand declarations of illegal ballot dumps and one thousand photographic stills. They will see individuals who affirm the reality of this election fraud condemned as neoMansonites who are in need of deprogramming, reprogramming, reeducation and social isolation. Listen to the words of the reds in today's America and hear the sounds of unmitigated hatred toward the nation and its founding in liberty and right. Hear a project of subversion undertaken against rational human flourishing. Hear a campaign of slander and vilification launched against the capitalist system. Hear commissions of political correctness condemn America as a slave state indelibly stained and inherently programmed with the sin of exploitation and oppression. Hear the voices in defense of American freedom, progress and liberal enlightenment condemned as harmful, offensive, bigoted and at variance with the truth. Hear a regime of race and gender discrimination and the targeting of white males for destruction wrapped up in the banners of diversity, equity and inclusion. Hear individual freedom equated with abject slavery, liberal peace equated with unjust war, constitutional government equated with the oppression of the working class, race blind and gender blind meritocracy equated with the victimization of women and nonwhites, and ignorance, propaganda, falsehood and deceit paraded as the highest forms of truth, education, scholarship and understanding. Hear the president of the United States, Joe Biden, proclaim the exiting of the nation from the Western community of free nations and its descent into the ranks of red totalitarian regimes: "On his very first afternoon in office, newly installed President Joe Biden showed exactly where his priorities lie--he scrubbed from the White House website the report from the 1776 Commission his predecessor Donald Trump had established to counter the New York Times' mendacious, antiAmerican 1619 Project, and abolished the Commission itself. 'Look,' Biden stated during his recent remarks on his 'racial equity' agenda, 'in the weeks ahead I'll be reaffirming the federal government's commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion and accessibility, building on the work we started in the Obama-Biden administration. That's why I'm rescinding the previous administration's harmful ban on diversity and sensitivity training and abolish the offensive counterfactual 1776 commission. Unity and healing must begin with understanding and truth, not ignorance, and lies. Indeed, unity and healing must begin with understanding and truth, and with rejecting ignorance and lies. That is precisely what the 1776 Commission set out to do in its report summarizing 'the principles of the American founding and how those principles have shaped our nation,' and that is precisely why the Biden administration wasted no time burying it and dissolving the Commission: because it targeted the ignorance and lies promoted in the 1619 Project, which has been slammed by hundreds of scholars for its attempt to establish the country's founding not in 1776, but in the year that African slaves first arrived on the North American continent. The 1619 Project's goal was to reinforce and propagate the subversive leftist worldview that the United States was founded in slavery and that, as Barack Obama put it, racism is in our very DNA." (Trump's 1776 Report Goes Down The Memory Hole by Mark Tapsen). The wall the reds have built around America was not built by human hands but built by human destiny. This destiny is called mass culture and the stones it has laid, imprisoning the human spirit, will never be smashed unless the power behind them is defeated. America will never see freedom again until the dictatorship of the masses is overthrown.

THE BRASS KNUCKLES OF CRITICAL RACE THEORY

The term hoodlum has many synonyms, which include troublemaker, hooligan, gangster and violent criminal. Students of history and culture have been horrified and dismayed to add to this list a phrase which they have come upon in their studies of contemporary society. This phrase has a long lineage which goes back to the early decades of the twentieth century, and is an echo, a reflection and a ramification of a doctrine which began beating in the heart of the West in Frankfurt, Germany during the days of the Weimar Republic. Formulated by the Institute for Social Research, this doctrine was called Critical Theory and it proclaimed that there are no such things as empirical truths or universal truths and all truths are apriori in character and are expressions of the class will to power. Originally planned to be called the Institute for Marxism, the founders of the school decided to code name the school in order to conceal its true Marxist character. The institute was from its inception a fervent supporter of the Soviet Union and justified the Soviets' program of genocide as the highest expression of progressive politics: "He who has eyes for the meaningless injustice of the imperialist world, which in no way is to be explained by technical impotence, will regard the events in Russia as the progressive, painful attempt to overcome this injustice." (Dammerung by Max Horkheimer). The heir and descendant of Critical Theory emerged in the late 1970s and substituted race for class in its program of violence and destruction. It is from this successor school that students of history and culture have discovered another synonym for the term hoodlum: the promoters of Critical Race Theory. From the original Marxist hoodlums of class war to the present day neoMarxist hoodlums of race war, fighting and brawling under the name of Critical Race Theory, is but a short, logical, natural step, and these present day neoMarxist hoodlums have shouted out a program and manifesto of hatred and fanaticism which has added racism to the Marxist arsenal of war against the liberal enlightenment order. The promoters of Critical Race Theory proclaim that a progressive society seeks to take down all aspects of capitalist society through unrelenting criticism and violence directed against its inherently white racist power structures. They proclaim that laws cannot be written from any neutral, nonracial perspective and the present day laws governing liberal capitalist society are expressions of white power and must be replaced by laws expressing black power within a new national socialist regime. They proclaim that capitalism systemically privileges white people and must be subjected to a movement of transformation and resistance which will establish a black totalitarian dictatorship. They proclaim that capitalism is a system of bigotry, biases and power imbalances which has disenfranchised and disempowered black people. They proclaim that a progressive society rejects Enlightenment universalism and is founded upon black morality, black justice, black government and black power: "Abstract thinking smuggles the privileged choice of the privileged to depersonify their claims and then pass them off as the universal authority and the universal good." (Who's Afraid Of Critical Race Theory? by Derrick Bell). They proclaim that a progressive society is a never ending assault against liberal norms, liberal institutions, and liberal law and order which protect the right of individuals to live and work for themselves, and conducts this assault under the banners of black tribalism and black statism. They proclaim that a progressive society rejects the liberal agenda of equal opportunity in favor of a national socialist agenda of black favoritism and affirmative action. They proclaim that a progressive society rejects the Enlightenment notions of civil rights for all, color blind equality, universal legal reasoning and neutral principles of constitutional law and marches under the savage torchlights of black privilege and a black master race. They proclaim that a progressive society has outlawed freedom of speech and authorizes a regime of brawling and beating up the proponents of politically incorrect ideas in order to protect the people from the hordes of racist, capitalist, stigmatizing, KKK antireds: "Being committed to free speech may seem like a neutral principle, but it is not. Thus, proclaiming that I am committed equally to allowing free speech for the KKK and 2LiveCrew is a nonneutral value judgment, one that asserts that the freedom to say hateful things is more important than the freedom to be free from the victimization, stigma, and humiliation that free speech entails." (Who's Afraid Of Critical Race Theory? by Derrick Bell). They proclaim that a progressive society is founded upon collectivism, community, egalitarianism and total enslavement and has banished the liberal doctrine of individual rights which compels the state to stay away from the free man: "Crits [proponents of Critical Race Theory] are suspicious of another liberal mainstay, namely, rights. The more radical CRT scholars with roots in racial realism and an economic view of history believe that moral and legal rights are apt to do the right holder much less good than we like to think. Think how that system applauds affording everyone equality of opportunity but resists programs that assure equality of results. Rights are alienating. They separate people from each other—'stay away, I've got my rights'—rather than encouraging to form close, respectful communities." (Critical Race Theory: An Introduction by Richard Delgado and Jean Stefancic). They proclaim that the liberal notions of a universal humanity and universal human reason, essence and intelligence are Enlightenment fictions and have no legitimacy whatever because they deny the fundamental reality of race and the natural right of the black race to rule the world. They proclaim that the notions of objective truth and neutral, empirical science have no basis in reality. Promoted by the Enlightenment, the notion of universal truth does not and cannot exist. All knowledge is subjective and relative to race; all laws, perspectives and points of view are race based and assertions of the racial will to power; and a progressive society gives free rein to the black community and legalizes black violence and savagery in the name of the rights of the oppressed, ignored, silenced, destroyed, appropriated, commodified, and marginalized: "Charles Lawrence speaks for many critical race theory adherents when he disagrees with the notion that laws are or can be written from a neutral perspective. Lawrence asserts that such a neutral perspective does not, and cannot, exist—that we all speak from a particular point of view, from what he calls a 'positioned perspective.' The problem is that not all positioned perspectives are equally valued, equally heard, or equally included. From the perspective of critical race theory, some positions have historically been oppressed, distorted, ignored, silenced, destroyed, appropriated, commodified, and marginalized—and all of this, not accidentally." (Who's Afraid Of Critical Race Theory? by Derrick Bell). They proclaim that the world of the West, the world of scientific rationalism, liberal jurisprudence, human rights and freedoms, capitalist development and the Industrial Revolution, is an instrument and expression of white supremacy and must be swept away by a regime of black tribalism and cultural regression into the swamplands of bestial cruelty. They proclaim that the liberal Western world of freedom, political freedom, economic freedom and social freedom, is a weapon of white domination and must be replaced by a regime of black nationalism. They proclaim that a progressive society is pervaded with race chauvinism; it openly asserts the superiority of black people over white people; and it reserves all positions of power and responsibility to blacks. They proclaim a progressive society is a radical formation of black hate groups whose aim and mission is to smash the culture in which free people live. They proclaim that a progressive society is a black supremacist fever swamp dedicated to the repeal of racial equality and the extermination of white people: "White supremacy is a descriptive and useful term to capture the all encompassing centrality and assumed superiority of people defined and perceived as white and the practices based on this assumption. White supremacy in this context does not refer to individual white people and their individual intentions or actions but to an overarching political, economic, and social system of domination. Again, racism is a structure, not an event. While hate groups that openly proclaim white superiority do exist and this term refers to them also, the popular consciousness solely associates white supremacy with these radical groups. This reductive definition obscures the reality of the larger system at work and prevents us from addressing this system. I hope to have made clear that white supremacy is something much more pervasive and subtle than the actions of explicit white nationalists. White supremacy describes the culture we live in." White Fragility by Robin DiAngelo). During the Third Reich, the Volksempfänger was developed to enable the mass reception of hate messages broadcast from Berlin. The heirs and descendants of the German national socialists are the black nationalists active today marching under the banners of Critical Race Theory. Their radio receivers are located in every home, office and school in society. This final progeny of Marxism has spread a plague of hoodlum violence in the dying hours of the West.

CRITICAL LEGAL THEORY: LAWYERS FOR THE REDS

The National Lawyers Guild was established in 1937 in protest against the American Bar Association's decision to exclude communists from its ranks. It was the first American law association to admit communists and it encouraged its members to engage in communist political activities. The organization peddled red totalitarian tyranny in packages labeled progressive change and human rights: "The National Lawyers Guild is dedicated to the need for basic and progressive change in the structure of our political and economic system. To the end that human rights shall be regarded as more sacred than property interests." (National Lawyers Guild History by Peter Erlinder). In 1950, the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities identified the National Lawyers Guild as an instrument of communist strategy and world conspiracy: "The National Lawyers Guild has an overall communist strategy aimed at weakening our nation's defenses against the international communist conspiracy." (Report on the National Lawyers Guild: Legal Bulwark of the Communist Party, House Committee on UnAmerican Activities, September 21, 1950). In 1977 at a conference at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, a second legal movement of the reds was founded, one which would expand across the nation, take over every law school in the land, and become the legal arm of the reds in their campaign to sweep away the liberal Enlightenment order which European settlers had implanted in the New World centuries before and for which the blood of American martyrs was shed in the battlefields of Lexington and Concord. This movement was called Critical Legal Theory and it was an offshoot of Critical Theory which had emerged in 1923 in the Institute for Social Research at Goethe University in Frankfurt, Germany, and was the first academic communist front organization in the Western world. This child of Critical Theory and this second legal organization of the reds in America after the National Lawyers Guild, and more powerful and influential than the first, Critical Legal Theory has established a program and manifesto for the incineration of constitutional government, civilized courtroom argumentation and the rule of right and law within the charnel houses of red street corner agitation. Building upon Marxist class politics, the proponents of Critical Legal Theory have developed race and gender forms of tribalism and brought forth the final, fearsome, terrifying twenty first century of the West. They proclaim that law is nothing more than politics and the pursuit of the will to power of gender, race and class groups. They proclaim that the notion that law should be an objective, rational process of moral decision making is a delusion of Enlightenment liberalism. They proclaim that law a realm of competing, irrational gender, race and class interests in which what is held to be true and right is endlessly reworked and redefined. They proclaim that law is a political ideology whose sole justification is to advance the needs and desires of the gender, race or class party which forms it. They proclaim that liberal, capitalist law which protects individual rights, such as the right to speak freely and the right to own property, is an instrument of oppression and exploitation of women, nonwhites and the poor and must be repealed. They proclaim that judicial fairness, neutrality and objectivity are impossible to achieve because there are no facts which exist independently of gender, race and class interests. They proclaim that the laws which govern the free nations of the West are weapons of white, male vested interests and must be wiped off the books. They proclaim that legal decisions are products of social contexts and exigencies and have nothing whatever to do with proof or evidence. They proclaim that legal texts such as constitutions have no objective meaning or reference and are amenable to endless interpretations and deconstructions based upon the social requirements of the moment. They proclaim that the legal and political order built up in the West over the past one thousand years, the order which exalts the private sphere above the public sphere, the self above others, and the good of the individual above the good of the community, furthers the interests of the capitalist ruling class and must be replaced by a people's communal regime and swampland of totalitarian collectivism. They proclaim that the liberal legal system reflects male sexism and must be abolished. They proclaim that the established legal order based upon equal protection for all reflects white racism and must be abolished. They proclaim that liberal jurisprudence is an expression of a male dominated society and the sexual objectification of women. They proclaim that capitalism is a product of male orientation, male domination and the victimization of women. They proclaim that capitalism discriminates against women and ensures male control over female sexuality. They proclaim that the liberal legal heritage excludes the voices, feelings and experiences of women. They proclaim that liberal legal institutions, which guarantees to men accused of sexual assault a fair trial and due process of law, are products of male bias, male ideology and the submission of women, and must be replaced by a regime in which accusations are admitted as evidence, mass accusations are admitted as mass evidence, men are presumed to be guilty as charged and all trials eventuate in convictions. They proclaim that a progressive society has abolished the liberal distinction between public space and private space and stationed the jackboots of women's totalitarian power in every home, office and school in the land. They proclaim that capitalism is a system of domestic abuse, marital rape and the exploitation of women and must be replaced by a regime of statism and socialism ruled by women. Listen to the words of the proponents of Critical Legal Theory and hear them proclaim that the laws which govern liberal, capitalist society are police truncheons by which the ruling classes oppress and exploit the historically underprivileged and disadvantaged classes: women, nonwhites, transgenders and the poor. Hear them proclaim that laws reflect the group interests of those who write them and a progressive society allows only women, nonwhites, transgenders and the poor to write the laws, places them at the top of the hierarchy of power, and provides the legal basis for the oppression and enslavement of successful, white, male, nontransgender men: "Critical Legal Studies (CLS) is a theory which states that the law is necessarily intertwined with social issues, particularly stating that the law has inherent social biases. Proponents of CLS believe that the law supports the interests of those who create the law. As such, CLS states that the law supports a power dynamic which favors the historically privileged and disadvantages the historically underprivileged. CLS finds that the wealthy and the powerful use the law as an instrument for oppression in order to maintain their place in hierarchy. Many in the CLS movement want to overturn the hierarchical structures of modern society and they focus on the law as a tool in achieving this goal." (Critical Legal Theory, Cornell Law School). Listen to the words of the proponents of Critical Legal Theory and hear them proclaim that the rule of law is a structure of liberal, capitalist terror, a prop of support for a dictatorship of successful, white males, and must be dismantled by lawless

gangs of women, blacks and nonwhites: "Leftism aims to transform existing social structures on the basis of a critique of their injustice, and, specifically, at the injustices of racist, capitalist patriarchy. The goal is to replace the system, piece by piece or in medium or large sized blocs, with a better system." (Left Legalism/Left Critique by Duncan Kennedy). Listen to the words of the proponents of Critical Legal Theory and hear them reject the vocabulary of peaceful, civilized, moral individuals and embrace the primitive language of force and violence. Hear them lead a revolution of social and cultural regression, a movement of tribes, clans, families and factions, a rampage of women, nonwhites, homosexuals, transgenders, ecowarriors and the poor, which will tear up the landscape of individual rights and the rule of law, and grind civilization into the dust: "There is an inchoate, scattered yet gathering progressive movement that is emerging across the American landscape. This gathering now lacks both the vital moral vocabulary and the focused leadership that can constitute and sustain it. Yet it will be rooted ultimately in current activities by people of color, by labor and ecological groups, by women, by homosexuals." (Left Legalism/Left Critique by Duncan Kennedy, quoting Cornell West). In the twenty first century, the house of liberal order and Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence, constructed from the wisdom and courage of one thousand years, has been set on fire. Masquerading as scholars and professors, street hoodlums wearing the Marxist armbands of identity politics are the arsonists. The institutions of reason, truth, objectivity and human freedom and dignity are the material brought together by the incendiaries of Critical Legal Theory. Consuming every corner of the world, this blazing corpse of human progress is the funeral pyre of Western civilization.

THE FUHRER OF FEMINISM

The word fuehrer is derived from the German fuehrer which means "Leader" and was part of the title Fuehrer und Reichskanzler, "Leader and Chancellor of the Empire", assumed by Adolf Hitler in 1934. Fuehrers have been staple features of Marxist and neoMarxist movements throughout the world, from communism to fascism to national socialism to feminism. Famous communist fuehrers include Lenin, Stalin, Mao Zedong and Pol Pot; famous fascist fuehrers include Mussolini; and Hitler was the fuehrer of national socialism. Much less known among the general public, but just as powerful and influential as the other fuehrers, is the fuehrer of the feminist movement. Like her predecessors, she went to school in Marxist philosophy and like her predecessors, she draw out the implications and ramifications of Marxist identity politics. While Hitler and Mussolini derived race hatred and national chauvinism from the Marxist template, the fuehrer of feminism has filled a cesspool of hatred of men and with it has sullied the politics and public discourse of the present day. Promoting male hatred in the fields of international law, constitutional law, political theory, legal theory and jurisprudence, Catherine MacKinnon, professor of law at the University of Michigan Law School, has shouted out a program and manifesto of misandry which has served to define the word and has galvanized a virulent hate movement to lay siege to the ramparts of Western liberal order. Assuming the top ranks in the satanic universe of Marxist inspired hate movements, MacKinnon's storm troopers wear their fuehrer's pronouncements like swastika armbands as they riot down the corridors of academia and push and shove their way into every home, school and office in the land. MacKinnon's Mein Kampf is a blazing torchlight of gender tribalism which has lit up the skies of the twenty first century with one more fusion reactor of hatred and helped to burn down the house of liberal Enlightenment freedom and progress. Sprayed like graffiti across the walls of civilization and exploding like hurled gasoline bombs in neighborhoods, streets and squares, the manifesto composed by today's fuhrer of feminism proclaims that a progressive society is a lawless, power based society which allows women to dominate men. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of submission of women to men and must be overthrown. It proclaims that the only legitimate theory of knowledge is the feminist theory of knowledge which is based upon women's needs, interests, wishes and will to power. It proclaims that the only valid point of view is the female point of view and whatever women want to exist does exist, and whatever women deem to be right is right. It proclaims that the notion of an objective, universal, nonsituated reality is a product of male thinking, male speech and male perspectives. It proclaims that all reality is gendered reality, all truth is gendered truth, all standpoints are gendered standpoints, and what are called physical objects are in fact products of male ideology and do not exist. It proclaims that there exists no universe outside of gender consciousness and the belief that there does is among the false idols inherited from the Age of Enlightenment. It proclaims that the only legitimate doctrine of reality is that of gender solipsism which states that there are two realities, a male reality and a female reality, none of which possesses any real, physical, mind independent existence. It proclaims that gender determines the value of all things and the highest consciousness is women's consciousness, the highest experience is women's experience, the highest truth is women's truth, the highest culture is women's culture, the highest community is women's community, the highest history is women's history, the highest life is women's life, and the highest power is that which protects and expands the special prerogatives of women. It proclaims that male consciousness is false consciousness and women who think like men, and affirm the existence of universal truth, science and reason, the existence of physical objects, and the existence of universal human rights, are disordered and deluded and must be deprogrammed, rectified and prevented from speaking until they come around to accepting the politically correct way of thinking. It proclaims that the notion of an external ground or unsexed sphere of objective reality is a lash of male power and domination. It proclaims that all socalled disengaged truth merely repackages its own subjectivity under the guise of objectivity. It proclaims that all truth is specific, particular and contextual in character and is premised upon the primacy of gender and has no power to persuade members of the opposite gender. It proclaims that women are superior to men in character, intelligence and understanding because they alone perceive the impossibility of grasping abstract, gender neutral truths and perceive the centrality and necessity of the use of force to achieve power. It proclaims that because women comprise a master race and men a subhuman race, all sexual relations between men and women must be forbidden. It proclaims that men who look at women and touch women are guilty of sexual assault. It proclaims that all sexual intercourse between men and women constitutes rape. It proclaims that violence is integral to male sexuality toward women and there is no such thing as consensual sex between men and women. It proclaims that women are raped whenever they say or feel they are raped and must never be bound to prove their assertions by means of facts or evidence. It proclaims that men accused of sexual assault can never be acquitted in a court of law and to ensure conviction, a fair trial must at all times be prevented by the enforcement of the following safeguards: the complainants must be believed and the defendants must be presumed guilty as charged; accusations must be admitted as evidence and multiple accusations must be admitted as overwhelming evidence; accusations must be granted maximum probative weight and be deemed to establish proof beyond a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt. MacKinnon's manifesto proclaims that this master race constituted of women has the right to control all speech and thought and the right to stamp out antifeminist speech as pornographic, discriminatory, sexually harassing and politically offensive. Listen to the words of Hitler fuhrer MacKinnon and hear her condemn both capitalism and communism as forms of genderless universalism. Hear her condemn facts, logic and abstract human rights as products of male norms and the male point of view. Hear her condemn justice, fairness and neutral adjudication as machetes of male power. Hear her condemn truth and objectivity as weapons of male domination and discrimination against women. Hear her condemn the rational mind as the male mind and call for its banishment from society. Hear her exalt female life as the sole legitimate form of life. Hear her exalt the female experience of the world and demand that it become the controlling experience in society. Hear her condemn both liberal freedom and constitutional rights and Marxist class politics and class war in favor of a new version of red philosophy. This a neoMarxist tribalism which promotes a philosophy of law and government and a body of legislation effectuating the feminist will to power and destruction: "When it [the state] is most ruthlessly neutral, it will be most male; when it is most sex blind, it will be most blind to the sex of the standard being applied. When it most closely conforms to precedent, to facts, to legislative intent, it will most closely enforce socially male norms and most thoroughly preclude questioning their content as having a point of view at all. Abstract rights will authorize the male experience of the world. The liberal view that law is society's text, its rational mind, expresses this in a normative mode; the traditional left view that the state, and with it the law, is superstructural or epiphenomenal expresses it in an empirical mode. Both rationalize male power by presuming that it does not exist, that equality between the sexes (room for marginal corrections conceded) is society's basic norm and fundamental description. Only feminism grasps the extent to which the opposite is true: that antifeminism is as normative as it is empirical. Once masculinity appears as a specific position, not just as the way things are, its judgments will be revealed in process and procedure, as well as adjudication and legislation. Perhaps the objectivity of the liberal state has made it appear autonomous of class. Including, but beyond, the bourgeois in liberal legalism, lies what is male about it. However autonomous of class the liberal state may appear, it is not autonomous of sex. Justice will require change, not reflection--a new jurisprudence, a new relation between life and law." (Feminism, Marxism, Method And The State: Toward A Feminist Jurisprudence by Catharine MacKinnon). The past one hundred years are comprised of scenes from an exhibition staged in Satan's dark, underground chambers. Scene One: Lenin exhorts mobs to cleanse the earth of the filth of capitalism. Scene Two: Stalin exhorts mobs to exterminate capitalists as a class. Scene Three: Hitler exhorts mobs to exterminate the Jews, the world poisoners of all peoples. Scene Four: Mao Zedong exhorts mobs to advance the class struggle and dig the graves of the bourgeois. Scene Five: Pol Pot exhorts mobs to liquidate the Cambodian nation in the name of egalitarianism. Scene Six: Catherine MacKinnon, red professor, red scholar, red activist and red author, exhorts mobs to disenfranchise and disempower men in the name of women's will to power. Professor MacKinnon, the latest fuhrer from the Marxist fever swamps, has carried the West into the terror of the twenty first century.

A PLACE, NOT A COUNTRY

A country is defined as a nation with a government which occupies a specific territory. An individual born in an area which has no government, no rule of law and no distinct borders of any kind cannot be held to inhabit a country or to be a citizen of anything. Over the past half century, a series of events has transpired in America which has deprived it of its status as a national political entity and transformed it into a raging, formless cesspool of red politics. Students of history and politics understand that America had to arrive at this lugubrious state, that such was the natural and necessary endpoint of any country infested from top to bottom with the locust swarms of mass culture, and that the story of America since the 1960s is a story recorded on a clock wound up and set into motion by the hands of destiny, a clock whose every passing tick has been an inexorable march into the year zero and into the dark swirling currents of catastrophic collapse. The racing wheels of America's clock have emitted louder and louder ticks with each passing day and after a half a century have presently reached a crescendo of wild, deep, deafening roars coming from all directions, which have drowned out the protests made by civilized people and pushed the nation irretrievably into the abyss. Students of history and politics have set down the record of America's half century of self destruction at the hands of the mob and are scarcely able to go back and read what they have written, filled as it is with figures of soul sickness and psychosis, or show it to their friends and colleagues. Measuring the terrifying approach of doom, and raining down hours, minutes and seconds of red subversion upon a land which once had served as the world's City Upon A Hill, the clock of destiny commenced its countdown in 1964 when the reds fomented race riots in Harlem. The dials and displays of this frightening escapement next saw the year 1965, when red race riots blasted Watts in Los Angeles. They saw red race riots engulf Newark and Detroit and the reds attack the Department of Defense in 1967. They saw one hundred cities across the nation explode in red race riots, the reds stage riots at the Democratic Party convention, and the reds occupy Columbia University in 1968. They saw red mobs lay waste to the Department of Justice in 1969. They saw 50,000 bombs detonated by the reds across America in sixteen months beginning on January 1, 1969. They saw 2000 demonstrations by the reds in colleges across America in 1969-1970 which resulted in 250 arson attacks and the death of eight people. They saw red mobs rampage across college campuses in 1970 and shut them down, and the red terror group, the Weather Underground, detonate a bomb in the mathematics building at the University of Wisconsin and kill a man. They saw the reds stage six days of riots in Los Angeles in 1992, which had to be put down by the combined forces of the California National Guard, the United States military and federal law enforcement agencies, and resulted in the death of sixty three people and property damage totaling one billion dollars. They saw a wave of riots, arson and looting staged by the reds in 2020, commencing in Minneapolis and advancing to Portland, Seattle and 140 cities across the nation, resulting in the deployment of the National Guard, the death of six people, and property damage totaling two billion dollars. Look at the world of the reds and see a maelstrom of mass murder which has ravaged every town and city in the nation. See a whirlpool spraying rivers of blood into streets, malls, plazas, offices, schools, automobiles, backyards, birthday parties, barbecues, baby strollers, bedrooms and living rooms. See a weapon of mass destruction without precedent in American history spanning the length and width of the nation, pointing its monstrous barrel into every nook and cranny in society, blasting the crime rate into stratospheric heights, and submerging every man, woman and child within its nihilistic currents: "The year 2020 likely saw the largest percentage increase in homicides in American history. Murder was up nearly 37% in a sample of 57 large and medium sized cities. Based on preliminary estimates, at least 2,000 more Americans, most of them black, were killed in 2020 than in 2019. Dozens of children, overwhelmingly black, were killed in drive by shootings. They were slain in their beds, living rooms and strollers. They were struck down at barbecues, in their yards, in malls, in their parents' cars, and at birthday parties. Fifty five children were killed in Chicago in 2020, 17 in St. Louis, and 11 in Philadelphia. The anarchy of 2020 has continued into 2021. Shootings in South Los Angeles rose 742% in the first two weeks of the year. In Oakland, homicides were up 500% and shootings up 126% through January 17. In New York, murders were up 42% and shooting victims up 15% through January 17. " (Taking Stock Of A Most Violent Year by Heather MacDonald). Look at the world of the reds and see a nation whose borders have dissolved into thin air. See a nation transformed into a savage jungle screaming with migrants from foul lands building beachheads for an invasion of civilization. See a nation which has announced to those abroad who are cruel and barbaric that they need not remain in their own lands and the people, in the name of compassion and multiculturalism, will allow them to settle permanently in America. See a nation which has opened its gates to human scum and let them multiply across its vast interior. See a nation which has released alien disease agents into its communities and forbidden legal proceedings to be launched against them. See a nation which has allowed Islamic revolutionaries to call America their home country. See a nation which has granted visas and passports to the avatars of violence and intimidation and called it an immigration system. See a nation which has exposed itself to a global cancer of criminal gangs and communist hoodlums and made its law abiding citizens refugees in their own land. See a nation which has abolished its border detention centers, repealed the status of illegal foreigner, and become unsafe, uncontrolled, insecure, inhuman, unwilling to prevent social disintegration, and committed to the destruction of universal liberal order: "President Joe Biden continues rapidly dismantling former President Donald Trump's effort to secure the U.S. border with Mexico, announcing on Friday he will reverse Trump's Remain in Mexico policy for migrants seeking refugee status and will admit at least 25,000 people into the country. And not only will thousands of migrants be allowed into the interior of the country, but they will be released into American communities to await legal proceedings. Biden's policy also flies in the face of border detention policy from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) that calls for the swift return of migrants to their home country to protect Americans from further exposure to the coronavirus. 'Beginning on February 19 the Department of Homeland security will take steps to begin processing individuals who under the previous administration, has been forced to remain in Mexico,' White House press secretary Jen Psaki said on Friday. 'As President Biden has made clear, the US government is committed to rebuilding a safe, orderly, and humane immigration system,' Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas said in the ABC7 News report. 'This latest action is another step in our commitment to reform immigration policies that do not align with our nation's values.' " (Joe Biden Still Dismantling Trump's Border Security Measures: 25,000 Migrants Being Brought into US by Penny Starr). Look at the world of the reds and see an act of official lawlessness without precedent in the history of the nation. See the reds perpetrate the worst theft of an election in American history and steal the presidency from Donald Trump in the election of 2020. See governments at all levels, state legislatures, state courts, state executives, the United States Congress, the United States Supreme Court and the Vice President of the United States, abdicate their responsibility to protect the constitutional right of the people to vote in fair and honest elections and pretend that thousands of records of illegal ballots, thousands of reels of surveillance footage, thousands of sworn affidavits, thousand of depositions given by cybersecurity experts, thousands of records of vote irregularities, thousands of photographic stills, thousands of tabulations of uncertified voters, thousands of ballots cast at illegal voting places, thousands of instances of voting machine fabrications, and thousands of manufactured Biden vote spikes occurring in the early hours of November 4, did not exist. Beholding the parties which challenged the fraudulent results of the 2020 presidential election subjected to a constant drumbeat and perpetual self repeating loop booming out no standing and no evidence and no evidence and no standing, a vast formation of decent, virtuous, hard working, law abiding, patriotic American citizens, representing the 75 million voters who had cast their ballots for Trump, took hold of a political precept known and affirmed by civilized people since time immemorial, and gathered in Washington. This precept was as follows: when the peaceful redress of political grievances is prevented by a government, and the cause of the protests is righteous, the use of force to obtain redress becomes morally proper and imperative. They took hold of this precept and let it guide their actions. This precept was the mighty, majestic hand which impelled them to storm the United States Capital Building on January 6, 2020 and stop the certification of an election which the United States government had brazenly stolen from them. These gathered multitudes sought to stage an insurrection, one led, inspired and organized by Donald Trump in the best traditions of civilized, disciplined, purpose driven, revolutionary protest, against a government which had violated the constitution, breached the rule of law, transgressed the principles of election transparency and integrity, and had, in consequence, ceased to exist as a government in all but name. As these protesters against election fraud swarmed into the Capital Building and clashed with the police, students of history and politics heard the tickings of the clock of destiny amplify into ear splitting poundings which they could not block out. These were the poundings of lawlessness in the streets, lawlessness at the borders, lawlessness at the polling booth, and the final moments and final seconds of a fifty year red assault after which America ceased to exist as a country.

REDS RUN SENATE TRIAL

An insurrection is a violent uprising staged against a government. Students of history and politics have long known and grasped the fundamental principle justifying insurrections. It is a principle ratified by common sense. This principle is that if a government refuses to redress a popular grievance, and the grievance is real, then the use of force to obtain redress is morally justified, necessary and imperative. On January 13, 2020, the United States Senate acquitted Donald Trump of the charge of inciting an insurrection on January 6, 2020 after a crowd of his supporters stormed Capital Hill to stop the certification of the fraudulent presidential election of 2020 which awarded victory to Joe Biden. Students of history and politics who reviewed the verdict looked into a glass which mesmerized them and took them on a journey down through the corridors of time. On this journey they beheld many sights. They beheld a gallery of red insurrections commencing with Lenin's overthrow of the Russian czar in 1917 and his establishment of the world's first Marxist state. They beheld a record of red suppression and cancellation of free speech. This record has seen free speech canceled on streets and squares, in homes, schools and offices, in every private and public space in society, and in every nook and cranny on the planet. It has seen free speech canceled in the name of eliminating hate speech, malicious speech, offensive speech, distressing speech, abusive speech, insulting speech, inciting speech, politically incorrect speech, speech criticizing Islam, speech criticizing transgenderism, speech criticizing the doctrine of man made climate change, speech criticizing marginalized groups, speech criticizing women, nonwhites and the poor, and speech criticizing the identity politics of gender, race and class. Students of history and politics finally beheld in their glass instances of the reds' brazen weaponization of the law. These instances include President Barack Obama's misuse of the IRS to disallow tax exempt applications made by conservative and libertarian organizations and his policy to subject these organizations to special audits. Armed with these insights, students of history and politics have examined the Senate's acquittal of Trump and found it wanting. They concur with the Senate's ruling that Trump's speech to his followers on January 6, 2020 was protected by the First Amendment. They concur that the reds have a long history of delivering angry, violent, incendiary, agitating speech calling for national insurrection. That the reds have long demanded that the masses fight the government and seek to overrun and overthrow it. That the reds have long sought to persuade and impress the masses with words of combat, aggression, belligerence and physical confrontation and with the terrifying deeds to back them up. That the reds have long taken street hoodlums wearing swastika armbands and hammer and sickle caps, invested them with academic gowns, robes, chairs and credentials, and let them run riot in classrooms, indoctrinating students with a philosophy of destruction. That the reds' condemnation of Trump's advocacy of political violence to right a wrong is breathtaking in its sanctimoniousness and insincerity: "Van der Veen—a street smart Philadelphia lawyer, the perfect contrast to Raskin's academic legal pretensions—called the Democrats' argument 'constitutional cancel culture.' What Raskin and his team were trying to do was to say that political speech with provocative words like fight was perfectly acceptable if Democrats used it—even in the context of violent nationwide riots—but that every statement, every tweet, by Trump and his supporters was presumed to be inflammatory. Van der Veen and his colleagues, David Schoen and Bruce Castor, showed the hypocrisy of Raskin's position when they showed a lengthy highlight reel of Democrats—including many of the Senators sitting in the chamber—using the word fight, and the phrase 'fight like hell,' to which Raskin and the Article of Impeachment team had ascribed particular significance. Raskin's response was that only Trump's rhetoric was followed by a violent attack on the US Capitol. But Trump's lawyers pointed out that left wing rioters had attacked the White House last May, and nearly overrun it. They did so as Democrats were enthusiastically encouraging the unrest in Washington, DC, and throughout the country." (Trump's Lawyers Beat The Cancel Culture by Joel Pollak). Students of history and politics as well concur with the Senate's ruling that putting Trump on trial was blatantly unconstitutional. That the plain meaning of the text of the Constitution renders absurd the process of impeaching, convicting and removing a president who is no longer in office. That the sole penalty for conviction by the Senate is removal from office, which renders logically impossible the trial of a private citizen. That Congress is limited by the language and logic of the Constitution from placing an expresident on trial and subjecting him to penalties to which only a sitting president can be subjected. That to subject an expresident to a Senate penalty, such as disbarment from holding office again, is to enact a bill of attainder, or punishment without due process, which is prohibited by the Constitution: "The very concept of constitutional impeachment presupposes the impeachment, conviction and removal of a president who is, at the time of his impeachment, an incumbent in the office from which he is removed. Indeed, that was the purpose of the impeachment power, to remove from office a president or other 'civil official' before he could further harm the nation from the office he then occupies. The plain text of the Constitution's several Impeachment Clauses confirms this understanding of this limit on Congress' impeachment power. For example, Article II, Section 4 of the Constitution reads, 'The President, Vice President and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors.' In the same constitutional vein, Article I, Section 3 provides in relevant part: 'Judgment in Cases of Impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from Office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any Office of honor, Trust or Profit under the United States.' Only the Supreme Court can answer the question of whether Congress can impeach a president who has left office prior to its attempted impeachment of him. It is highly unlikely the Supreme Court would yield to Congress's view that it has the power to impeach a president who is no longer in office when the Constitution itself is so clear that it does not." (Once Trump Leaves Office, The Senate Can't Hold An Impeachment Trial by J. Michael Luttig). While concurring with the Senate's judgment that Trump's speech on January 6 was protected by the First Amendment and concurring with the Senate's judgment that the trial of an ex-president is unconstitutional and amounts to a weaponization of the law, students of history and politics, armed with the insight that the use of force to obtain redress of grievances is morally justified if peaceful means of redress are unavailable, have dissented from the Senate's refusal to sanction Trump's incitement to insurrection. They have studied the record of election fraud and judicial inaction with respect to this fraud and found the case for insurrection clear, convincing, compelling and irrefutable. They have seen credible witnesses step forward and sign affidavits attesting to the following: election observers were denied access to vote counts; they were denied access to the processing of absentee ballots; absentee ballots were never folded and thus never placed in envelopes; electronic voting machines changed voter selections; ballots were cast using the names of people who had moved to other states; observers were ordered to leave an election station ostensibly because of a water leak, while election workers stayed behind and were captured on surveillance videos processing ballots produced from under a table; spikes of vote totals for Biden appearing in the middle of the night suddenly and inexplicably. Students of history and politics have seen this evidence of vote fraud disregarded by courts, not on grounds of merit but on spurious grounds of standing, and have seen the United States Supreme Court declare, in Texas versus Pennsylvania et al, that no state has a right to sue any other state for its unconstitutional actions because the voting rights amendments to the Constitution, amendments 15, 19, 24 and 26, do not in fact exist, and there is no constitutional right to vote in a free and fair election. Beholding this spectacle of judicial abdication, students of history and politics have been compelled to the conclusion that Donald Trump had a moral right to incite an insurrection in order to stop the certification of a fraudulent election. They understood that if he had no such right, then the American revolutionaries had no right of insurrection, and the victims of communist oppression in Eastern Europe had no such right, and the Jews of the Warsaw Ghetto had no such right. They understood that American citizens had a right to attack their own government because their own government, by its dereliction of duty and failure to uphold the right of the people to vote in free and fair elections, had ceased to exist in all but name, and that the nation's Constitution had ceased to exist except as words on sheets of paper. The protesters who stormed the Capital Hill Building on January 6 were not terrorists and were not a mob, as the reds allege. A mob is a disorderly crowd which seeks to cause gratuitous violence. A terrorist is an individual who commits acts of violence against innocent civilians in pursuit of political aims. The protesters who stormed the Capital Hill Building targeted government officials and nobody else, and targeted government property and nothing else, and were ordered by a definite purpose, to stop the certification of a fraudulent election, and were thus the very antithesis of terrorists and mobs. If these protesters were terrorists and mobs, then the American revolutionaries were terrorists and mobs, and the participants in anticommunist uprisings in Eastern Europe were terrorists and mobs, and the participants in the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising were terrorists and mobs. Beholding the failure of the Senate to uphold Donald Trump's right to incite an insurrection, students of history and politics have seen a catastrophe looming over America and a catastrophe which has presently arrived in its fearsome and terrifying actuality. The climax of a century long crescendo of developments, this is the catastrophe of red control over the people and government of America.

JOHN KENNEDY, FASCIST

The Stone of Destiny is a rectangular block of sandstone used to crown every king and queen of England since Edward II in 1284. The Celtic name of the stone is Lia Fail, which means, "speaking stone", and the stone was held to proclaim unerringly the crowned monarch. Students of politics who have studied the course of American history since the dawn of the Progressive Era in the early twentieth century have beheld in that era a fearsome and terrifying stone of destiny. They have seen this stone crown Statist Power as the permanent monarch of the nation and have seen this coronation amply vindicated by all subsequent developments. Students of politics who have studied this stone carefully and examined its every carving and character have seen a spike in state power occurring around the middle of the twentieth century. They have seen at this time the age old mental characteristics of the masses make a leap toward total collectivism, as they have done in contemporaneous periods throughout history such as the overthrow of republican Rome at the hands of Caesar, and they have seen the masses' perennial attitudes of rejection of liberty, law and constitutional government bring forth in America an unprecedented expansion of national governmental power. The object of unbridled praise and adulation by red intellectuals up to the present day, President John Kennedy enacted this fearsome evolution of statism in America under the guise of the New Frontier, and its program and manifesto vaulted the wheel of destiny forward into the raging swamplands of rules without restraint and unchecked submission during the final decades of the nation. Commencing with Kennedy's election in 1960, the New Frontier has been a shrine at which the reds have worshiped up to the present day in their campaign to shred the constitution into swastika ribbons and tie them together with hammer and sickle belts. While the traditional American had for centuries demanded liberty for himself and for others under the rule of the Constitution, and asked at all times what he had to do for himself and how he could best live his life without the subventions and interventions of the state, Kennedy's new man of the New Frontier asked how he could best serve the state and community, what he could best do for his country, and how he could best immolate himself at the altar tables of the totality, in order to achieve the highest form of human expression and ascend to the heights of human meaning and human flourishing. Rolling back the shining borders of American freedom and liberty first drawn on the battlefields of Lexington and Concord, the New Frontier enlarged the dark borders of expansive government, devoured a nation born in the Age of Enlightenment, and made it morally unrecognizable from its original state. First using the slogan in his acceptance speech at the Democratic National Convention, and thereafter using it each and every day of his one thousand day presidency, Kennedy allowed the New Frontier to define him like no other and throughout his time in office, it unerringly pointed the way into the nation's destiny driven decline and fall like no other. Coined in mid century at the top of the cliff of America's coming free fall, the New Frontier proclaimed that a progressive society increases unemployment benefits. It proclaimed that a progressive society increases social security payments, expands their coverage, and encourages workers to retire early. It proclaimed that a progressive society increases the minimum wage and extends its coverage to every business and worker in the nation. It proclaimed that a progressive society makes cash payments to support farmers. It proclaimed that a progressive society subsidizes home building. It proclaimed that a progressive society increases welfare payments to children and parents. It proclaimed that a progressive society expands free food programs to families and establishes a food stamp nation. It proclaimed that a progressive society grants to the government the power control all wages, prices and profits. It proclaimed that a progressive society establishes affirmative action programs which gives blacks preferential treatment in all employment. It proclaimed that a progressive society orders its citizens to work abroad in poor countries and form a Peace Corps in the name of self sacrifice, social justice and service to the planet. It proclaimed that a progressive society affirms that health care is a universal human right and forces the creators and producers of wealth to subsidize the health care of the nonproducers and vermin of society. It proclaims that a progressive society fights poverty through billions of tax dollars spent on education, public works, welfare security and socialized medicine. Listen to the high priest of the red New Frontier and hear him ask his fellow Americans to sacrifice themselves for the sake of their country. Hear him reject the free man's creed of independence, autonomy and self responsibility. Hear him exalt the state as the master of the people. Hear him worship at the shrine of an oppressive and controlling government. Hear him seek to turn back the clock of history to the gloomy eons when people were surrounded and harassed from birth to death by cruel and arbitrary regimes. Hear him threaten his countrymen who dared to strive for liberty and warn them that the individual exists for the good of the community. Hear him turn morality upside down and proclaim that service to society represents the summit of human goodness, while fighting for one's freedom and dignity represents the essence of evil. Hear him condemn the doctrines of the Enlightenment contained in the Declaration of Independence as dangerous dogmas which advocate social and cultural regression into the icy waters of individual self interest. Hear him reject the world of human advancement through liberty, through peaceful, voluntary exchange and cooperation, and through respect for the rights of others. Hear him esteem the coercive power of the government and proclaim its right to punish those who seek to live, work and succeed for themselves. Hear him exalt the dictates of the state, whether right or wrong, good or evil, just or unjust, cruel or benevolent, as the supreme, unchallengeable laws of the land. Hear him reject the founding principles of America, the principles which affirm that man is a free born agent and not a beast of burden born into servitude, and seek to recast the nation into a swampland of human degradation and the collectivization of the body, mind, spirit and soul, into a dark, ugly, frightening antiuniverse which no righteous human being would ever freely, willingly or voluntarily join: "Recently, I was reminded of John F. Kennedy's most famous line, 'Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country,' when I heard it among several famous sound bites leading into a radio show segment. It also reminded me that we will hear it more soon, as we are approaching JFK's May 29 birthday. However, it is worth reconsidering what it means. Of particular importance is Milton Friedman's response that Ask not was 'at odds with the free man's belief in his own responsibility for his own destiny. It implies the government is the master, the citizen, the servant.' You can see the reason by noting that Ask not is completely consistent with what a tyrannical government—the kind that has beset people throughout most of recorded history—expects of its relationship with citizens. Governors did not exist for the good of the governed; those governed existed for the good of their governors. So citizens shouldn't waste their time asking what the government will do for them. But when John Locke argued that government should be for the good of the citizens, not for the good of the governors, he turned that historic reality upside down. And America was formed based on that idea (as illustrated by Richard Henry Lee's claim that Thomas Jefferson plagiarized the second paragraph of the Declaration of Independence from Locke). To Locke, a justifiable government would exist for the good of all. If that were so, every citizen would be willing to voluntarily join that society if given the choice. However, most aren't given that choice. So Locke used the idea of a state of nature—in which one is not automatically committed to being a member of a particular society—to ask what a government that citizens would all willingly join would do for them. That is the opposite of what JFK told us to do. And the answer—very little—is quite different from the government we have. We might actually find more useful inspiration in what Richard Nixon said we must ask and ask not: 'In our own lives, let each of us ask not what government will do for me, but what can I do for myself,' because nothing is more inspiring than what individuals can achieve by pursuing their own advancement in liberty, through peaceful, voluntary cooperation that respects others' equal rights. But when government and its special friends use its coercive power to interfere in such arrangements and impose their own dictates, it punishes rather than promotes the greatest source of societal advancement that exists. Americans need to recognize that 'ask not what your country can do for you,' beyond what advances our joint interests, is good advice, but that to 'ask what you can do for your country' has been used to rewrite our founding principles. What government now demands of us 'for our country' offers no guarantee to advance our interests." (The Folly of "Ask What You Can Do for Your Country" by Gary Gales). The stone upon which British monarchs have been invested with power for over six centuries, the Stone of Destiny has a replica in America. Studied assiduously by students of politics, it proclaimed the commencement of full fledged collectivism around mid century. In the New Frontier policies inaugurated by John Kennedy, this nightmare came to pass.

PORTRAIT OF A MUGGING

New York City has experienced a surge in crime blasting out from the depths of hell. In 2020, shootings increased by one hundred percent, murders by fifty percent, and the city was pockmarked by fifteen consecutive weeks of gunfire in the streets. Students of history and politics have exposed a spectacular crime perpetrated amidst this imagination defying surge, a crime which has dwarfed all the rest. It is a moral crime and a cultural crime and it has attacked and robbed the city's school system of its character and integrity, as it has served as a terrifying warning and signpost of the accelerating cancer of red activism which is sweeping across America and the world. In 2021, the principal of the East Side Community School sent out literature to the parents of the white students which demanded that they "reflect on your whiteness" and in reflecting, reject the liberal democratic system. It demanded that whites become "white traitors" and devote themselves to the exclusion of whites from society and to making the planet the equivalent of judenrein applied to whites. Entitled Eight White Identities and authored by Barnor Hesse, professor of African American Studies at Northwestern University and one of the top academic reds in the nation, the literature condemns capitalism as a regime of white power and advocates the establishment of an ethnic classification scheme of whites in order to identify which white groups should be exterminated: "There is a regime of whiteness, and there are action oriented white identities. People who identify with whiteness are one of these. It's about time we build an ethnography of whiteness, since white people have been the ones writing about and governing Others." Listen to the words of a red professor wearing swastika armbands and hear him condemn white people who support liberal democracy as white supremacists, white voyeurs, upholders of white privilege, and upholders of white benefit. Hear him condemn capitalism as a regime which preserves, protects, names and values white superiority, and seeks to establish and perpetuate white rule, and seeks to control the consumption and appropriation of black culture, and seeks to impose unfairness and inequality upon blacks: "1. White Supremacist. Clearly marked white society that preserves, names and values white superiority. 2. White Voyeurism. Wouldn't challenge a white supremacist; desires nonwhite because it's interesting, pleasurable; seeks to control the consumption and appropriation of nonwhiteness; fascination with culture (example: consuming black culture without the burden of blackness). 3. White Privilege. May critique supremacy, but a deep investment in questions of fairness/equality under the normalization of whiteness and white rule; sworn goal of 'diversity'." (Eight White Identities by Barnor Hesse). Listen to the words of a red professor promoting a Hitlerite program of racial extermination. Hear him condemn capitalism as a white regime. Hear him critique whites, subvert whites, dismantle whites, seek to abolish whites, proclaim whites to be the essence of evil, exhort whites to target, attack and kill each other, and seek to push whites into the sea. Hear him march under banners marked People of Color and seek to blow up the institutions which protect racial equality and to turn back the clocks to the gloomy eons of tribal war and annihilation: "4. White Benefit. Sympathetic to a set of issues but only privately; won't speak or act in solidarity publicly because benefiting through whiteness in public (some People of Color are in this category as well). 5. White Confessional. Some exposure of whiteness takes place, but as a way of being accountable to people of color after; seeks validation from people of color. 6. White Critical. Takes on board critiques of whiteness and invests in exposing/marking the white regime; refuses to be complicit with the regime; whiteness speaking back to whiteness. 7. White Traitor. Actively refuses complicity; names what's going on; intention is to subvert white authority and tell the truth at whatever cost; need them to dismantle institutions. 8. White Abolitionist. Changing institutions; dismantling whiteness; and not whiteness to reassert itself." (Eight White Identities by Barnor Hesse). Listen to the words of New York City's school reds and hear them promote preferential treatment of blacks in the name of diversity, discrimination against whites in the name of equity, and a policy of segregation of whites and violence against their persons and property in the name of conducting the people's progressive antiracist work: "Antiracism and the celebration of diversity is at the core of our work on behalf of the young people of New York City, and the East Side Community School's students, parents and staff partner together to advance equity in their community. The document in question was shared with the school by parents as a part of ongoing antiracist work in the school community and is one of many resources the schools utilizes." (New York City Department of Education statement to the New York Post). Hesse's literature is sponsored by the Slow Factory Foundation, one of the most influential red propaganda organizations in the nation. Listen to the words of the foundation and hear it ignite a swastika torch blazing with the sinister light of race hatred and chauvinism voiced for black, brown, indigenous and minority ethnic communities. Hear it reject academic standards, scholarship and liberal arts education in favor of anticapitalist agitation and indoctrination into the tribalist dogmas of blood and soil and national socialist regression: "We provide equity centered education for Black, Brown, Indigenous and minority ethnic communities, taught by Black, Brown, Indigenous and minority ethnic scholars, thinkers and educators. Equity centered education that acknowledges power structures and historical social context as a key driver of any topic. Focusing on free and open accessibility, ECE initiatives are typically offered without academic admission requirements and distributed online. Open education broadens access to learning and training traditionally offered through formal education systems or corporate programs that are inaccessible to most people." (slowfactory.foundation.com). Listen to the words of the foundation and hear it condemn capitalism as a regime of colonialism and exploitation: "Fashion And Colonialism. Colonialism and Fashion have long been intertwined. From sourcing and manufacturing to exporting waste, this class will explore current practices that reproduce colonialism and exploitation in fashion, and how we can avoid such practices." (slowfactory.foundation.com). Listen to the words of the foundation and hear it condemn capitalism as a regime of environmental degradation and opposition to social justice which ignores the higher, mystical rights of women, nonwhites, indigenous tribes and the poor: "Fashion And Culture. Sustainability is a Culture. It's not something we buy, it is how we engage with environmental and social justice. In this class we will explore best practices on how fashion can impact culture and culture can catalyze action." (slowfactory.foundation.com). Listen to the words of the foundation and hear it condemn liberty as a system of crass materialism and exalt the spirituality of socialist man: "Fashion And Spirituality. The fashion industry has taken a big position regarding spirituality in the past decades by adopting the yoga look and making polyester leggings the go-to items for anyone looking to stretch their spiritual muscles. How has spirituality been coopted by the fashion industry, and how can we do better?" (slowfactory.foundation.com). Listen to the words of the foundation and hear it condemn modern civilization as a system of oppression and exploitation which must be swept away by a people's movement of antiindustrialism and social reversion to year zero: "Fashion And Resistance. Dismantling oppressive systems through culture, history, knowledge and art. How Fashion can continue to be used as a medium for social and environmental change at scale." (slowfactory.foundation.com). Listen to the words of the foundation and hear it condemn the modern age as a weapon of war against the people's dustbowls swirling with indigenous cultures, ancient sorceries and the wisdom of savages. Hear it exalt the efforts of red entrepreneurs, red organizers, red operatives and red activists to halt the march of human progress, weave a pall compounded out of Indian savagery and Islamic terror, embroider it with the symbols of communist and fascist power, and then drape it across the coffin of civilization: "Fashion And Cultural Heritage. Preserving Indigenous Practices through Fashion and Indigenous practices such as embroidery, weaving and pattern making. In this class, fashion entrepreneur and activist from Palestine will explore anthropological and ancient wisdom related to fashion in the region for thousands of years." (slowfactory.foundation.com). In the terrifying crime wave which has struck New York City, innocent schoolchildren have been targeted in their homes and classrooms and on sidewalks and streets. They have been assaulted by red highwaymen on a fearsome mission of soul destruction during the final hours of the West.

LBJ'S GREAT STATIST SOCIETY

state. Students of history and politics have celebrated the evolution of human society from the simplest laws of the jungle to the complex state of affairs known as modern capitalist civilization, founded upon individual rights and constitutional order. Turning their attention to America, these same scholars have observed a process of social evolution at work but in this instance have been given no cause for celebration. They have observed the evolution of a nation conceived in liberty into a complex state of socialism, statism and totalitarian disorder under the pressure and impact of mass psychology. They have observed beneath this sinister complexity a deeper simplicity at work and the reversion of society into the simplest forms of tribal politics, jungle warfare and rule by brute force. They have observed that this dark evolutionary process commenced in the early years of the twentieth century and reached a high tide in the 1930s, and then another high tide in mid 1960s, and then built upon these high tides and reach still higher tides as the decades rolled by, until the final, total moral and spiritual collapse of the nation, the highest tide of all, occurred in the mid decades of the twenty first century, and spelled the definitive end of freedom in America. From the moment his presidency began after the assassination of John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson was committed to creating a high tide in the evolution of statism in America and to completing what the Progressive Era, the New Deal and the Fair Deal policies had begun. Split seconds after the assassin's shots rang out and felled the president, Johnson told his aides of his plan to take up the cause of statism anew where it had sat languishing on his desk in 1937: "You know, when I went into that office tonight and they came in and started briefing me on what I have to do, do you realize that every issue that is on my desk tonight was on my desk when I came to Congress in 1937?" Peddling his vision of a statist and socialist America in a package called the Great Society, Johnson brought the degeneration of the nation's founding system of personal liberty, a process which had commenced a half a century earlier beneath the first hammer blows inflicted by mass culture, to its highest point up to that time, and made the death knells of the nation thunder louder and louder for those who had ears to hear them. Promoting a domestic program of federally subsidized social welfare which far surpassed anything which had come before it, Johnson plunged America into a malarial swampland marked gender, race and class politics and thrust freedom, dignity and self responsibility into the backward rolling tides of the rapidly receding past. Encapsulating a state of national free fall and as unAmerican as unAmerican could be up to that point, Johnson's Great Society was passed by a national, clamoring, raging campaign following the landslide defeat of Republican candidate Barry Goldwater, who had stood up for the cause of liberty and paid a crushing price. Passed by overwhelming majorities in both houses of Congress and by a volcanic build up in every town and city in the nation, the Great Society proclaimed that a progressive society violates private property rights by forcing private business establishments to serve members of races they do not wish to serve in the name of civil rights. It proclaimed that a progressive society steals money from the people to provide health insurance for the elderly and the poor. It proclaimed that a progressive society steals money from the people to provide aid to primary and secondary education. It proclaimed that a progressive society steals money from the people to provide support for higher education. It proclaimed that a progressive society steals money from the people to subsidize antipoverty and nutritional programs. It proclaimed that a progressive society steals money from the people and launches a social justice crusade to empower the destitute dregs and the homeless vermin who crowd the streets, the squares and the dark flowing sewers: "An unconditional war on poverty. It will not be a short or easy struggle, no single weapon or strategy will suffice, but we shall not rest until that war is won. The richest nation on Earth can afford to win it. We cannot afford to lose it." (State of the Union Address to Congress, 1964). It proclaimed that a progressive society steals money from the people to feed and educate wild young animals clothed in the rags of waywardness and perversity: "A Great Society in one where no child will go unfed, and no youngster will go unschooled." (Speech at Ohio University, May 7, 1964). Look at the world of the Great Society and see the evolution of Progressivism and the New Deal into the collectivization of the nation. See the rejection of the private sector and the right of the individual to pursue his own needs and interests. See a policy of national wealth transfer and federal confiscation of job earnings paraded under the banners of Medicare, Medicaid, the Economic Opportunity Act, the Elementary, Secondary and Higher Education Acts, and the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program. See government planning of communities and government ownership of homes paraded under the banners of the Urban Development and Housing Act. See government control over charities, mass transit and natural resources. See a nation conceived in constitutional liberty and individual responsibility reduced to a crying almshouse, an institution for beggars and paupers, and a subculture of social dependents and parasites. See a nation which had exalted success and achievement reduced to a wasteland of mass equality and mass misery. See a negative, morally inverted, antiuniverse in which the doers and makers of wealth and value have become vassals, and the poorest and neediest have become their lords. See a leviathan smashing through the restraints of constitutional order, feeding on the devil's banquet of total power, launching a war of annihilation against private businesses and private markets, taking control of the financial resources of the nation, placing retirement, education, employment, healthcare, housing, marriage, children, parents, families, homes and neighborhoods under the iron grip of its ministers, commissars, bureaucrats and social engineers, making determinations regarding the quality, conditions and duration of people's lives, abolishing the American republic of free and independent people, taking away the rights of every man, woman and child, reducing a showcase of liberal affluence to a wretched, low income slave yard, and leading a mass movement of millions of Americans to sweep away the ramparts of progress and civilization: "Five and a half decades ago today, President Lyndon Johnson announced he was committed to completing the legacy of the New Deal. This included ending poverty and illiteracy, and providing housing and medical care for everyone. LBJ proclaimed the American people lacked the initiative to do this. And the private sector failed to correct these problems by disregarding national needs, in favor of their individual needs. Johnson promised to be an activist president and remake America into the Great Society. LBJ was obsessed with being remembered for his Great Society. Well, he got his wish. He is praised by progressives for his Great Society. But to others his illusion is an expensive memory. Progressives have never learned: 'There's no success like failure, and failure is no success at all.' LBJ ingrained the framework for today's progressive state. The feds seized medicine with Medicare and Medicaid. The Economic Opportunity Act guaranteed everyone a hand up, or a hand out. With the Elementary, Secondary and Higher Education Acts, education was federalized. Government became our landlords and planned our communities when he signed the Urban Development and Housing Act. He federalized charities, the environment, mass transit and water. He sealed the deal by passing the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, aka food stamps. We will pay for his gifts forever. Progressives praise LBJ for leapfrogging America into socialism. Conservatives see the Great Society as classical government overreach. One thing we can all agree on is, over a half century since he left office, we live Johnson's legacy each day. and judging what the Great Society did to our society, it had broad intended consequences. It redefined the definition of poor. Instead of helping the poor improve themselves and become independent, it sequestered them in a subclass that retarded growth and made them federal dependents. The Great Society produced a miserable society for the most needy in America. Their nuclear families became entangled by unaccountable liberal federal social engineers and bureaucrats. The collapse of marriage and classic traditional family architecture became the norm for millions of Americans in our lower income communities. The fundamental premise of LBJ's Great Society was based on political paternalism. But this belies the basic tenets of republicanism, where leaders permit the free market's use of its intrinsic ability and financial resources to solve problems within a society. The dilemma with political paternalism is: By permitting government to do everything for us, we give the government total power over us. If we let government plan retirement, education, provide healthcare, housing and other necessities for us, then government will determine and dictate the quality, quantity and conditions of our total bequests." (LBJ's Not So Great Society, An Expensive Legacy by William Haupt). Widespread, overwhelming and monstrous: a tidal wave of statism swept across American under the Great Society of Lyndon Johnson. The wave was brought by the inexorable sands of cultural evolution. These sands have filled an hourglass which has revealed the fearsome and terrifying time of history. At this time, the final hours of freedom in America have run out.

POLITICAL EQUALITY: REPEALED BY THE REDS

A cardinal principle at the basis of all civilized order is the principle of political equality. Since civilized people first walked upon the face of the earth, they have cherished the principle that all persons must be treated equally before the law and must be allowed to flourish and succeed without respect to their gender, race or class. This principle of meritocratic advancement is voiced by Pericles in his Funeral Oration: "If we look to the laws, they afford equal justice to all in their private differences. If people fall in their social standing, it is because their reputation for ability has fallen. Class considerations are not allowed to interfere with merit, nor again does poverty bar the way." Displayed in the ancient Forum for all to see, the Law of the Twelve Tables was the foundation of Roman law for centuries and established the principle of equal treatment of all citizens, plebeians and patricians, without respect to class. The principle of equal power and rights without respect to gender, race or class is set forth by John Locke in his Second Treatise of Government: "It is a state also of equality, wherein all the power and jurisdiction are reciprocal, no one having more than another. There is nothing more evident than that creatures of the same species and rank, born to all the same advantages of nature and the use of the same faculties, should also be equal one among another without subordination or subjection." The principle of universal rights, resting upon a universal human nature and essence, without respect to gender, race or class, is set forth by Alexander Hamilton in A Full Vindication of the Measures of the Congress: "All men have one common origin, they participate in one common nature, and consequently have one common right. No reason can be assigned why one man should exercise any power over his fellow creatures more than another, unless they voluntarily vest him with it". The principle of a race blind, gender blind and class blind society is set forth as a mandate of natural law by Herbert Spencer in his Social Statics: "It is natural law that every man may claim the fullest liberty to exercise his faculties compatible with the possession of like liberty to every other man. Each has freedom to do all that he wills provided that he infringes not the equal freedom of any other". As the wheel of destiny struck its appointed hour and rang out the advent of the twentieth century and the epoch of mass culture, the principle of political equality, the principle which free people had strived to achieve and had succeeded in achieving over the course of centuries, was hurled into the dustbin of history and another principle was selected to take its place. Plucked out of the moral sewers of primitive man flowing with the filth and grease of tribal politics, this was the principle of preferential treatment on the basis of gender, race and class. Under the repeated hammer blows and tectonic assaults inflicted by mass culture, a philosophical and constitutional chasm opened up in the West and swallowed up the principle that people must be judged and treated as individuals and not as members of groups, and that individuals alone possess rights and that there are no such things as group rights because there are no such actual, physical things as groups. The principle which had placed a psychic grip on people before the twentieth century, the principle that all people stand equally before the law, was bulldozed into a mass grave marked Western Civilization and a program and manifesto of tribal preferences and social justice was thundered out by a red professoriate installed by the masses as the lords and masters over society. This was a program and manifesto born of the nameless eons before time began when cavemen lived and breathed in the shadow of the tribe and crawled in the blood of the innocent shed for the sake of the tribe. This program and manifesto proclaimed that a progressive society rejects the call of the Enlightenment for the government to treat all people equally and establishes in its place the principle of social equity, which calls for the government to dispense unequal treatment to people on the basis of their membership in gender, race and socioeconomic groups. It proclaimed that a progressive society affirms that successful, white males form a class of oppressors whose victims are women, nonwhites and the poor, and these oppressed, marginalized groups must be granted preferential treatment and be invested with the robes of absolute power. It proclaimed that a progressive society orders all government agencies and departments to reject race and gender blind policies and enact in their place policies which produce outcomes favorable to women and nonwhites. It proclaimed that a progressive society issues executive orders which abolish the principle of equal protection under the law and exalt racial and ethnic equity as the supreme laws of the law: "This Executive Order refers underserved communities that have been denied such treatment, such as Black, Latino, and Indigenous and Native American persons, Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders and other persons of color." (Executive Order on Advancing Racial Equity and Support for Underserved Communities for the Federal Government, issued by President Joe Biden, January 20, 2021). It proclaimed that a progressive society rejects the liberal standard of individual merit and achievement and promotes a standard of group equity and group proportionalism. It proclaimed that a progressive society rejects the equitable treatment of individuals in favor of preferential treatment for groups and sacrifices fairness and justice upon the altars of racial percentages and racial representation: "Racial inequity is when two or more racial groups are not standing on approximately equal footing. Racial equity is when two or more racial groups are standing on a relatively equal footing. An example of racial equity would be if there were relatively equitable percentages of all three racial groups living in owner occupied homes." (How to Be an Anti Racist by Ibram Kendi). It proclaimed that a progressive society is an unconstitutional, coercive society which which violates people's rights by policies of numerical proportionalism and racist discrimination; "The only remedy to racist discrimination is antiracist discrimination. The only remedy to past discrimination is present discrimination. The only remedy to present discrimination is future discrimination." (How To Be An Anti Racist by Ibram Kendi). It proclaimed that a progressive society rejects the rights of persons and the qualities and conditions of individual existence and sees people as members of racial, gender and class categories. It has incinerated liberal constitutions, amendments and charters of rights and freedoms in blazing furnaces marked critical race theory, Marxist race theory and national socialist race theory and brought free nations under the iron heel of collectivist totalitarian dictatorships. It has prohibited the ideals and attitudes born in the Age of Enlightenment, which affirmed equal rights and equal protection for all, and sought to refill the swamplands of tribal oppression and primitive anticivilization: "Millions of Americans continue to remember that we are 'all created equal', not equitable, and the Fourteenth Amendment offers 'equal protection' under the law. Millions of Americans also don't think of themselves first and foremost as members of categories, nor as oppressed or oppressors, no matter how much Critical Race Theory training is applied. Such a mindset will never become second nature to the many who can go back to the Bill of Rights and see that it treats us as individuals, mentioning the rights of persons, not collectives." (Pushing 'Equity' Under The Guise of 'Unity' by Mike Gonzalez). Powered by the fearsome and terrifying engines of mass culture and operating beyond any person's will or control, the course of Western history commencing in the twentieth century has enacted a set of ideas and policies which have swept away the laws of free people and the jurisprudence of centuries. Rigid caste systems. Category straitjackets. White people condemned as a privileged race and targeted for extermination. The repeal of color blind adjudication by the parliaments of racial justice. Workplace advancement dictated by statisticians of gender, race and class. Educational achievement dictated by diversity timetables. Jobs for the best and the most qualified replaced by group conscious discrimination. Selection on the basis of character and ability burned at the stake by the flames of proportional representation and "avoidance of disparate impact on oppressed groups". Group rights exalted above individual rights and human beings proclaimed to be born unequal. An ideology of racism, sexism and classism voted into law and men proclaimed to be inferior to women, whites proclaimed to be inferior to nonwhites, and the rich proclaimed to be inferior to the poor. A revolution of human enslavement has overrun the world and its red commissars of gender, race and class have composed the final chapter of the West.

NINE RED JUDGES ALL IN A ROW

The phrase step up to the plate is an idiom derived from the world of baseball. When a baseball player is prepared to receive a pitch, he steps up to the plate to indicate he is ready. The idiom means the ability to rise to the occasion and accept a challenge. On January 22, 2021, the United States Supreme Court refused to step up to the plate and perform its duty to uphold the Constitution. It decided once again that it would hear none of the cases of election fraud and illegal votes in the presidential election of 2020, and it thereby sanctioned, once and for all time, the greatest political crime committed in the history of modern Western democracies: the theft of the election from Donald Trump and the arranged victory of Joe Biden. This refusal was the capstone of a history of refusals by the court to uphold the Constitution and to ensure that the election of 2020 was conducted in a fair and honest manner, and it provided final, irrefutable proof, if such proof was needed, of the red partisan, mob controlled character of the court. This sordid history of judicial abdication commenced on October 28, 2020, when the court decided in Scarnati v. Boockvar that it would not hear a request to review the decision by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court to override election rules established by the state legislature. The state legislature had established a deadline of 8 PM on election day for receiving mailed ballots. Illegally citing clauses in the state constitution, illegally because the federal constitution and not state constitutions controls federal elections, the Pennsylvania Supreme Court extended this deadline by three days. It also ordered election officials to count ballots received by the new deadline whether or not there was a postmark to prove that the ballots had been mailed before this time. Justice Clarence Thomas describes the Pennsylvania Supreme Court's blatant disregard of the federal constitution and its illegal subordination of the latter to the state constitution: "Because the Federal Constitution, not state constitutions, gives state legislatures authority to regulate federal elections, petitioners presented a strong argument that the Pennsylvania Supreme Court's decision violated the Constitution by overriding 'the clearly expressed intent of the legislature.' (Bush v. Gore) ". (Republican Party of Pennsylvania v. Degraffenreid, January 20, 2020. Clarence Thomas, dissenting). Then on November 1, 2020, the Supreme Court again refused to hear the request, this time around on the grounds that the case was now too old and the complainants had waited too long to sue. Through its inaction, the Supreme Court undermined the constitutional structure and sanction of elections. It dug a cavern beneath a law abiding society and filled it up with explosives. When it banged its gavel and issued its denial of review, it detonated the explosives and blew up election fairness, election integrity, the transparency of participatory democracy, and the confidence of the people in their processes of self governance: "Elections are 'of the most fundamental significance under our constitutional structure'. (Illinois Board of Elections v. Socialist Workers Party, 1979). Through them, we exercise self government. But elections enable self governance only when they include processes that 'give citizens (including the losing candidates and their supporters) confidence in the fairness of the election.' (Democratic National Committee v. Wisconsin State Legislature). 'Confidence in the integrity of our electoral processes is essential to the functioning of our participatory democracy' (Purcell v. Gonzalez). Unclear rules threaten to undermine this system. They sow confusion and ultimately dampen confidence in the integrity and fairness of elections. To prevent confusion, we have thus repeatedly—although not as consistently as we should—blocked rule changes made by courts close to an election." (Republican Party of Pennsylvania v. Degraffenreid, January 20, 2020. Clarence Thomas, dissenting). Through its inaction, the Supreme Court sanctioned unconstitutional election decisions made by state officials, decisions unauthorized by their state legislatures. In so doing, it distorted the national election results, destroyed the national electoral system, lowered a curtain of unmitigated disaster upon the nation, and swept away the nation's institutions of free and fair elections and the nation's shining system of self government: "Changing the rules in the middle of the game is bad enough. Such rule changes by officials who may lack authority to do so is even worse. When those changes alter election results, they can severely damage the electoral system on which our self governance so heavily depends. If state officials have the authority they have claimed, we need to make it clear. If not, we need to put an end to this practice now before the consequences become catastrophic." (Republican Party of Pennsylvania v. Degraffenreid, January 20, 2020. Clarence Thomas, dissenting). Through its inaction, the Supreme Court turned a blind eye to the United States Constitution and rendered its articles and clauses a dead letter. It proclaimed that state statutes and state constitutions override the supreme law of the land. It proclaimed that what a state legislature commands for the conduct of an election is without legal relevance or importance, the text of the Constitution notwithstanding. It proclaimed that state courts and state officials are free to defy state legislatures and the unequivocal stipulations of the Constitution and change election laws at will. It proclaimed that the rule of law means nothing and vanishes into thin air before the higher exigencies of judges and executives answering the call of partisan politics and mob rule: "I agree with JUSTICE THOMAS that we should grant review in these cases. They present an important and recurring constitutional question: whether the Elections or Electors Clauses of the United States Constitution are violated when a state court holds that a state constitutional provision overrides a state statute governing the manner in which a federal election is to be conducted. That question has divided the lower courts, and our review at this time would be greatly beneficial. In the cases now before us, a statute enacted by the Pennsylvania Legislature unequivocally requires that mailed ballots be received by 8 pm on election day. Nevertheless, the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, citing a provision of the State Constitution mandating that elections 'be free and equal,' altered that deadline and ordered that mailed ballots be counted if received up to three days after the election, Both the state Republican and Democratic parties urged us to grant review and decide this question before the 2020 election. But the Court, by an evenly divided vote, refused to do so. That unfortunate decision virtually ensured that this important question could not be decided before the election. Now, the election is over, and there is no reason for refusing to decide the important question that these cases pose. The provisions of the Federal Constitution conferring on state legislatures, not state courts, the authority to make rules governing federal elections would be meaningless if a state court could override the rules adopted by the legislature simply by claiming that a state constitutional provision gave the courts the authority to make whatever rules it thought appropriate for the conduct of a fair election." (Republican Party of Pennsylvania v. Degraffenreid, January 20, 2020. Samuel Alito, dissenting). Supreme Court justices wear black robes to symbolize that justice is blind. Refusing to uphold the Constitution and invalidate the results of the 2020 presidential election, the court has belied and disgraced this noble symbolism. In the abdication of its responsibilities, the only blind eye the court has shown is a blind eye toward the world of facts and laws. The laws: the Fifteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty Fourth and Twenty Sixth Amendments to the Constitution guarantee the right to vote without respect to race, sex, age, previous condition of servitude, or failure to pay a poll tax. They guarantee to every citizen the right to vote, which means the right to vote in fair, honest and constitutionally authorized elections, or it means nothing whatever. The facts: an infinite dimensional universe of irregularities engulfed the 2020 election in total darkness and reduced transparency to a shriveled up ghost receding, terrified and frightened, faster than the speed of light. The canopy over this great forest of gloom was constituted of the following: blatant electoral fraud; the mishandling of ballots; multiple process violations; multiple violations of the Fourteenth Amendment's guarantee of equal protection and equal treatment of all voters; and statistical anomalies which could not be explained away. The evidence for this corruption is vast, deep and delineates the darkest depths of political criminality. It is a Book of Satan between whose black covers are thousands of pages of affidavits, declarations, video footage, photographs, lawsuits, public comments, press reports, court rulings, testimony in hearings held throughout the nation, and analyses undertaken by legal centers and scholarly institutions. Wielding the hammer of Thor with a thunder and violence which signaled the end of the age, the Supreme Court sought to smash this world of facts and laws and pretend that it did not exist. Its shameless make believe, pretense, deception and denial, paraded under spurious flags marked no standing to sue, too late to sue, and a moot issue, drove law abiding citizens out of the peaceful, democratic process and into the arms of insurrection.

The diametrical opposite of the reds' description of them as a riotous mob bent on terror, a formation of citizens gathered in Washington on January 6, 2020 and sought to stop the certification of a fraudulent election. They did what moral law and moral necessity demanded that they do. Denied the means of peaceful redress of their righteous grievance, the grievance of a stolen election, they launched an attack. It was an attack against a nation, a government, a Congress and a Supreme Court which had failed to do their duty and had in consequence ceased to exist in all but name. Focused, disciplined, purposeful, sparing innocent civilians and respecting essential property, it was an attack launched in the name of a constitution which the reds on the bench had declared to be null and void.

REDS MOVE IN ON MATHEMATICS

In Russia in the 1930s, a movement swept across the scientific community which put an end to its pursuit of truth. Led by Trofim Lysenko, it was a movement to reject the science of genetics in favor of the discredited theory of Lamarckism on the grounds that the latter alone is compatible with the tenets of dialectical materialism. It was a movement to enforce the reds' dogma that all science has a class character and that proletarian science is superior to bourgeois science. In Germany in the 1930s, a similar movement swept across the scientific community. Instigated by the national socialists, it was a movement known as Aryan Physics and it proclaimed that scientific laws and theories are products of race and that the science manufactured by the Aryan race is superior to the science manufactured by the Jewish race. Ever and always turned round and round by the violent claws of the mob, the wheel of history has traveled full circle in the present day and launched another movement of the reds to abolish science. This movement has seen an attack on mathematics which has astounded civilized people who had never before imagined that this field, this shining paradigm of scientific truth and certainty, would ever fall victim to the reds' fusillades of political correctness and become one of its most tragic casualties. Undaunted by the facts of reality and without conscience or remorse of any kind, today's reds have launched a movement called racial and ethnic mathematics and set forth a program and manifesto for the dissolution of the science of number and space which for centuries had crowned the achievements of mankind and made possible the technological successes of physics and engineering. This program and manifesto for the politicization of mathematics represents the reds' final assault on the precise, quantitative sciences and sounds the definitive death knell of reason in the West. The reds' program proclaims that in mathematics the search for the right answer to a problem is an expression of white supremacy. It proclaims that the traditional requirement in mathematics education that students show their work and reasoning is the product of white infiltration of the classroom. It proclaims that the notion that mathematics is an objective science is completely false and must be replaced by the affirmation that mathematical truths are racial constructs and disagreements are settled by means of open war. It proclaims that the notion that mathematics is an empirical, neutral science is a prejudice of white, racist, Western culture and must be replaced by the affirmation that there are as many right solutions to mathematical problems as there are races and ethnicities, no one of which may be valued more than any other. It proclaims that traditional mathematics is controlled by white biases and must be replaced by the mathematics of critical race theory which teaches that mathematics is a product of the racial to power. It proclaims that Western mathematics was made by white people and reflects white needs and interests. It proclaims that traditional mathematics is a product of the systemic racism of the West. It proclaims that mathematics has nothing whatever to do with facts or reality and is a completely partisan, political system. It proclaims that mathematics is created by human beings and is therefore relative to human beings and corresponds to nothing which exists in reality. It proclaims that all mathematics is the mathematics of genders, races, cultures and classes and no mathematics can be held to be empirically established. It proclaims that in mathematics the acquisition of truth is not possible, only the pursuit of power, and mathematics has nothing whatever to do with judging the merits of arguments, and is only concerned with establishing social gains and advantages. It proclaims that mathematics has nothing whatever to do with science or scholarship, and the statement that two and two equal four is not valid everywhere in the universe, but is only valid for the white race and white civilization. It proclaims that the purpose of mathematics is not the study of reality but the pursuit of social justice. It proclaims that the notion that mathematical truths are abstractions from reality, generalizations from experience, and connect to the world of physical objects, is a weapon of discrimination against women, nonwhites, transgenders and the poor. It proclaims that mathematical equations have no real world applications and simply express group benefits and concerns. Look at the reds' movement to sweep away the science of mathematics and see schools throughout the world condemn logical argumentation as racist and oppressive. See public instruction in mathematics replaced by public instruction in ethnic studies. See the proclamation that mathematical truths are products of gender, race and class identity. See the rejection of a universal mathematical intelligence. See the proclamation that politics should hold unchecked power in the mathematics classroom. See the proclamation that there are no objectively right or wrong answers in mathematics but only answers which satisfy group interests and exigencies. See the rejection of empirically grounded, data driven processes in mathematics in favor of apriori, tribally driven processes. See the proclamation that a neutral, nonpartisan, nonpolitical mathematics lacks all meaning and legitimacy. See the condemnation of universal mathematics as an instrument of victimization, marginalization and disenfranchisement of women, transgenders, homosexuals, bisexuals, nonwhites and the poor. See the proclamation that the rejection of objectivity in mathematics alone will bring liberation to the comrades of gender, race and class. See the condemnation of mathematical axioms and inferences as weapons of war against communities of color. See the condemnation of truth in mathematics as a lash of racial discrimination and regimes of inequality. See the proclamation that mathematical truths are manufactured by the collective thinking of genders, races and classes and say nothing about an alleged physical reality. See the red educational authorities place students who want to study mathematics into political indoctrination programs and commit an act of child abuse without precedent in the history of mankind: "The Seattle public schools have created a framework to protect children from racist and 'oppressive mathematical practices.' A document made public by the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction includes the findings of an 'Ethnic Studies Advisory Committee [which] was created by the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI) as mandated by the 2019 Legislature (SB 5023) to identify and make available ethnic studies materials and resources for use in grades seven through twelve.' Included in this report is the 'Seattle Public Schools Math Ethnic Studies Framework' that is so woke it devolves into gibberish. In no particular order, here are some of the highlights:

- What is my mathematical identity?
- How important is it to be Right? What is Right? Says Who?

- What does it mean to make a mistake? In the classroom? In my home? In my community?
- How do we derive mathematical truth?
- Who holds power in a mathematical classroom?
- Is there a place for power and authority in a math classroom?
- Who gets to say if the answer is right?
- Who is Smart? Who is not Smart?
- Can you recognize and name oppressive mathematical practices in your experience?
- Why/how does data driven processes prevent liberation?
- How is math manipulated to allow inequality and oppression to exist?
- Who is doing the oppression?
- Who does the oppression protect?
- Explain how math and technology and/or science are connected and how technology and/or science have been and continues to be used to oppress and marginalize people and communities of color
- Power and oppression, as defined by ethnic studies, are the ways in which individuals and groups define mathematical knowledge so as to see Western mathematics as the only legitimate expression of mathematical identity and intelligence. This definition of legitimacy is then used to disenfranchise people and communities of color. This erases the historical contributions of people and communities of color.

And my personal favorite:

- How can we change mathematics from individualistic to collectivist thinking?

Here's my own question:

- How is placing your child in a public school these days not child abuse?" (Seattle Public Schools Seek To Expose 'Oppressive Mathematical Practices' by John Nolte).

The wheel of history is a wheel of destiny and this wheel has once again brought the reds' attack on science into the world. Inexorably moved by the agitations of the mob, this wheel visits the same plagues on mankind in periodic fashion, over and over again, without mercy and without surcease. In the latest attack, the reds have proclaimed that the notion of objective mathematical truth is a social construct, that there are no such things as mathematical data which are independent of genders, races or classes, and that the statement triangles have three sides is a product of white, supremacist, bourgeois patriarchy. The sounds tolled out by the fearsome clock of fate have announced in the present day the final destruction of science and the final descent of civilization into the dead of night.

KILLER CLOWNS AT LARGE

Serial killer John Wayne Gacy had an alter ego named Pogo the Clown. When Gacy was captured, fearful and terrified children throughout the world drew connections between killers and clowns. In the twenty first century, the killer clown phenomenon has returned to monstrous actuality in the transgender movement, whose high priests peddle the antiscience of gender changeability as they present a spectacle of the malformed, the misshapen, the mutilated and the grotesque stalking children and adolescents with a horrifying arsenal of puberty blockers, cross sex hormones, and amputation surgery of breasts and genitalia. Promoted by the red agitators of gender, race and class politics, the dogma of antiscience and its psychotic assault on truth and reality has descended to new depths of boldness and brazenness in the transgenders' denial of the biological determination and fixity of gender. Unmoored to anything which exists outside the realm of their own feelings and wishes, transgenders have set forth a program and manifesto for the dissolution of empirical science, which has established the genetic basis of sex determinations, and in so doing have trod in the sinister footsteps of their predecessors, the communist promoters of Lysenkoism and the national socialist promoters of Deutsche Physik. Embodied in the Equality Act of 2020 proposed by the Biden administration, this program and manifesto is a public declaration of the policies and aims of a violent, raging, red groundswell which has placed modern civilization into a live volcano and watched its debris scatter across the sky. Broadcast into every home, school and office in the land, this program and manifesto proclaims that the science of biological sex is an Enlightenment based construct without foundation in reality. It proclaims that subjective gender identity supersedes biological sex because the latter does not exist. It proclaims that a progressive society has ended legal recognition of the biological sexes and granted legal recognition to those who have claimed to change their sex. It proclaims that our laws and language need not be grounded in reality and need not recognize that human beings are unalterably created male or female. It proclaims that a progressive society denies the fact that biological sex constitutes a basic feature of who we are. It proclaims that a progressive society denies the fact that every cell in a person's body is programmed to produce sex cells, either female sex cells or male sex cells. It proclaims that a progressive society denies the fact that sex is a fundamental component of our genetic information. It proclaims that a progressive society denies the fact that every cell in the body has a sex and that a person's sex is determined by the genes contained in his chromosomes and by nothing else, and is not reducible to his secondary sex characteristics. It proclaims that a progressive society denies the fact that a person's sex is determined by his sex chromosomes, that females have two X chromosomes and males have an X chromosome and a Y chromosome, and that a person's sex is not reducible to any such thing as his subjective self perception or his "gender identity". It proclaims that a progressive society denies the fact that sex is an unchangeable genetic reality, that a person genetically is either male or female, and that so-called intersex conditions are developmental disorders which have no relation to the underlying genetic reality. It proclaims that a progressive society denies the fact that genetic females alone are truly females because they alone experience female puberty, become pregnant, bear children and experience menopause. It proclaims that a progressive society denies the fact that no person can define himself in or out of his sexual reality because his sexual reality is a biological, genetic reality. It proclaims that a progressive society proclaims that to be a male or female is simply to be an aggregate of male or female body parts and is not to be biologically coded male or female. It proclaims that a progressive society denies that gender has any relation to sex and affirms that gender can be changed by physical interventions. It proclaims that the biological distinction between male and female is completely irrelevant to the determination of gender. It proclaims that a progressive society recognizes that who we are is answered by our gender and not by our sex and that the former is subject to endless surgical and chemical manipulation. It proclaims that a progressive society has constructed a steamroller called gender identity and allowed it to obliterate the reality of genes, chromosomes, biology and birth sex. Look at the world of transgenders and see the facts of reality denied and gender proclaimed to have no genetic basis. See gender proclaimed to be an arbitrary social construct. See the rejection of all that biology informs us about sex. See cruel, wicked creatures preying upon children and encouraging them to undergo surgical sex mutilation and chemical interventions in a futile attempt to change their sex. See virulent religionists of unsound mind promoting the antiscience of gene nonexistence and the reduction of sex to sexual body parts. See those who maintain that sex is determined by genes subjected to cancellation, censorship, exclusion, proscription, vilification, assault and exile. See the scientific citizens of Western civilization who affirm that men are genetically men and women are genetically women, and that genetic man cannot become women, and genetic women cannot become men, taken away by left wing, transgender activists and burned at the stake. See red radicals and commissars marching under the torchlights of transgenderism deplatforming the voices of mental health, gunning down the soldiers of rational resistance, shouting down the chorus singers of civilization's anthem, trampling down the towers of human progress and enlightenment, and plunging mankind into a raging vortex of physical ruination and psychological collapse: "Dr. Ben Carson, a retired pediatric neurosurgeon, described the pushing of left wing transgender ideology upon children as child abuse on Friday's edition of SiriusXM's Breitbart News Daily with host Alex Marlow. Democrats and the broader left regularly frame human sexual dimorphism as an arbitrary social construct. Marlow recalled Thursday's confirmation hearing for Dr. Rachel Levine, a man who describes himself as a woman. 'We're being told it's scientific to allow children to change their genders, either with treatments or with surgeries,' Marlow said. 'This is not science. It's so far beyond it, but give me your sense of someone who's lived his life as a scientific person.' Carson replied, 'Well, I think they have completely neglected biology. Biology tells us that there are males and there are females, and there's a reason for that, and we also know that the human brain is an incredibly complex organ and it's not fully developed until your mid to late twenties.' 'So why would you be asking a preadolescent about these complex issues?' Carson asked. 'Why would we even be complicating their lives? Children are curious by nature, and of course they're going to ask questions and explore things. That doesn't mean that they want to change their sex. And to confuse them in that way, I think, is child abuse. It certainly has nothing to do with science. These radical things are actually going to ruin people's lives long term.' On Thursday, Levine refused to reject transgender medical treatment for children when invited to do so by Senator Rand Paul (R-KY). Such medical practices include drugs that obstruct puberty and sexual development and surgical mutilation of genitals. Marlow asked about left wing political censorship related to the left's rejection of human biology. 'It seems like this is one [issue] where people are just not being vocal enough,' Marlow remarked, 'and if you are vocal, your book gets canceled, you get thrown off of social media, you can't say a man is a man or a woman is a woman, or else you're risking cancellation. What are we going wrong here in terms of our activism?' Carson highlighted the value of courage. He replied, 'Well, you know, it's in our national anthem and the last line of the first stanza. It says, 'the land of the free and the home of the brave.' You cannot be the land of the free if you're not the home of the brave. You've got to be willing to stand up.' He went on, 'Maybe there are some consequences, so what? There were consequences for our Founders, but if they weren't willing to accept those consequences, we would still be under British rule. So stop being chickens, and get out there and fight for what we believe in. If we just allow them to have a platform and to dictate everything without resistance, then they win.' 'If they win, not only does the country lose, but the world loses,'

Carson concluded, 'because people forget what the world was like before the United States was on the stage—a bunch of despotic leaders who just trampled on anybody that they could. It will go right back to that, I guarantee you.'" (Ben Carson: 'Child Abuse' To Prey On Children's Curiosity With Transgender Ideology by Robert Kraychik). Denying the existence of genes on the grounds that they are incompatible with Marxist ideology, Lysenkoism was imposed on the Soviet Union under Stalin and set back Soviet biology by decades. Denying the existence of genes as determinants of sex on the grounds that this fact is incompatible with transgender ideology, the Lysenkoists of today have set back biology in the West by over a century and placed it in the age before Mendel. The primary test which psychiatrists administer to people thought to be suffering from severe mental illness is to have them answer the following question: "Is the statement A is A true or false?" Denying that people with two X chromosomes are immutably female and that people with a single X chromosome and a single Y chromosome are immutably male, transgenders have failed the primary test for determining sanity and have scorched the world with deceptions, delusions and death.

REDS ASSASSINATE LINCOLN

It is granted to very few people in their lives to always speak the truth. Abraham Lincoln was one of them. He spoke the truth in his condemnation of slavery and was revered as the Great Emancipator, as the savior of the oppressed, and as a placid island of reason and tolerance amidst a storming sea of racist bigotry and derangement. In 1922, the Lincoln Memorial was dedicated in Washington and in 1941, the Mount Rushmore Memorial was completed and featured a colossal sculpture of Lincoln. The equality of all races is proclaimed by the sixteenth president in his Gettysburg Address, November 19, 1863: "Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent, a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal." The second great truth Lincoln spoke was his view of the superiority of Western culture over indigenous cultures and his condemnation of Native American culture as backward, savage and uncivilized. For speaking this latter truth, Lincoln has been vilified by the reds, his name banned from public buildings and hunted to extinction, and his reputation blackened beyond redemption or repair. In their war against the liberal, Enlightenment order, the reds have made common cause with antiliberal, antienlightenment cultures throughout the world and have seen in Lincoln their mortal enemy. Lincoln's monumental crime in the eyes of the reds was that he was the architect of the American West and pushed back the frontiers of indigenous savagery into the deepest depths of the ocean. The reds hate Lincoln because he sought to populate the west with the defenders, the institutions and the technology of civilization. The reds hate Lincoln because he created the Department of Agriculture in 1862 as an agency to promote civilized farming techniques in lands which had never known them. The reds hate Lincoln because he sponsored the Homestead Act of 1862 which opened millions of acres of public land to settlement and cultivation by civilized people. Lincoln's homesteads would be established in thirty states and liberated 270 million acres from Indian savagery. The reds hate Lincoln because he sponsored the Pacific Railway Act of 1862 which created a transcontinental railroad running through Indian lands and linking the civilized east with the savage west. The reds hate Lincoln because he sponsored the Morrill Act of 1862 which created the land grant system. Under this system, states were given title deed to Indian lands to sell. The revenue generated from the sales funded agricultural and technical colleges amidst plains of darkness which had never seen light. The reds hate

Lincoln because he ordered the liquidation of the Dakota Indians in the Dakota War of 1862, ordered the execution of 38 Dakota savages, and allowed civilization to flourish in the new state of Minnesota. The reds hate Lincoln because he removed Navajos and Mescalero Apaches from New Mexico Territory in 1863 and allowed civilization to expand unmolested in this land. The reds hate Lincoln because he ordered the liquidation of the Cheyenne and Arapaho Indians in the Sand Creek Massacre of 1864 and allowed civilization to flourish in Colorado Territory. Look at the world which Lincoln saw and see why the reds hate him. They hate him because he saw a world of night walled in by ax marks and arrowheads. Because he saw packs of foraging animals searching the land for food while appearing to the world in human form. Because he saw wolf clans raiding and battling each other around the clock and fighting to the death for scraps of garbage. Because he saw skeletons roaming the American West, terrifying figures cloaked in black, bearing scythes and beckoning civilized people come on in to the distant past, and return to the murderous ages of tribal warfare. Because he saw despicable subhumans organizing tribal societies as roving extermination squads and boosting body counts as high as they can. Because he saw populations of fierce, violent and uncontrollable monsters threatening civilization like forces of nature and not abating until they were defeated by the determined forces of free people: "Contra leftist anthropologists who celebrate the noble savage, quantitative body counts—such as the proportion of prehistoric skeletons with ax marks and embedded arrowheads or the proportion of men in a contemporary foraging tribe who die at the hands of other men—suggest that pre state societies were far more violent than our own. It is true that raids and battles killed a tiny percentage of the numbers that die in modern warfare. But, in tribal violence, the clashes are more frequent, the percentage of men in the population who fight is greater, and the rates of death per battle are higher. According to anthropologists like Lawrence Keeley, Stephen LeBlanc, Phillip Walker, and Bruce Knauft, these factors combine to yield population wide rates of death in tribal warfare that dwarf those of modern times. If the wars of the twentieth century had killed the same proportion of the population that die in the wars of a typical tribal society, there would have been two billion deaths, not 100 million." (A History of Violence by Steven Pinker). Look at the world which Lincoln saw and see why the reds despise him. They despise him because he saw a storm of savage hunters sweeping across the land. Because he saw governments at all levels under ceaseless attack from the forces of atavism, reversion and degeneration. Because he opened up vast tracts of western territories to the energy and vitality of civilized populations. Because he ended Indian occupancy and desecration of pristine lands and allowed civilized wealth, economies and power to flourish throughout them. Because he repelled invasions of barbarian hordes and established borders and settlements for progress and enlightenment. Because he protected civilization from contamination by Indians and segregated them in wild sanctuaries where they belonged. Because he defended American communities from the dark powers of moral and cultural vermin which had stagnated on the land for thousands of years. Because he expanded the wisdom, the counsels, the guidance, the direction, the habits, the aims, the plans, the programs, the policies, the influence, the education, the institutions, the authority, the government, the morality and the happiness of free people into indigenous lands enveloped in tyranny and ignorance for countless, nameless eons, and expanded them across the length and breadth of America, and let the bells of truth and reason ring out from the highest mountain tops and from the lowest lying plains: "The consequences of a speedy removal will be important to the United States, to individual states, and to the Indians themselves. The pecuniary advantages which it promises to the government are the least of its recommendations. It puts an end to all possible danger of collision between the authorities of the general and state governments on account of the Indians. It will place a dense and civilized population in large tracts of country now occupied by a few savage hunters. By opening the whole territory between Tennessee on the north and Louisiana on the south to the settlement of the whites it will incalculably strengthen the southwestern frontier and render the adjacent states strong enough to repel future invasions without remote aid. It will relieve the whole state of Mississippi and the western part of Alabama of Indian occupancy, and enable those states to advance rapidly in population, wealth, and power. It will separate the Indians from immediate contact with settlements of whites; free them from the power of the states; enable them to pursue happiness in their own way and under their own rude institutions; will retard the progress of decay, which is lessening their numbers, and perhaps cause them gradually, under the protection of the government and through the influence of good counsels, to cast off their savage habits and become an interesting, civilized, and Christian community. These consequences, some of them so certain and the rest so probable, make the complete execution of the plan sanctioned by Congress at their last session an object of much solicitude." (First Annual Message to Congress by President Andrew Jackson, December 8 1820. Long celebrated as the Land of Lincoln, the state of Illinois has removed public statues of the sixteenth president on the grounds that he violated the norms of diversity and inclusion and sought to cleanse the nation of indigenous savagery. Marching under the banners of Indigenous People's Days of Rage, the reds have expunged the name and images of Lincoln from streets, squares and college campuses throughout the nation. Under the iron grip of the reds, America in the twenty first century has been placed inside Ford's Theater on the evening of April 14, 1865. Sitting in a private box above the stage, the statesman who liberated the West from the bestial yoke of indigenous retrogression has been assassinated once more, this time around by the mob voices of gender, race and class politics. Canceled by the red activists of "diversity, equity, inclusion" and rank anticivilization, Lincoln has been cast into the dustbin of history, where he presides over a nation long since deceased.

REALITY DEPLATFORMED

Empiricism is the doctrine that all knowledge is derived from sense experience. It is based upon the recognition that ideas which are not derived from reality can never make contact with reality and are nothing more than subjective ideological constructions. Supported by all people of sound mind, empiricism was the official doctrine of the Age of Enlightenment and Classical Greco-Roman culture. The sworn enemy of religion, empiricism has fallen under sustained bombardment and attack by the reds over the past one hundred years and in the twenty first century, it has been completely superseded and replaced by apriori methods of thought promoted by gender, race and class activists in their war to annihilate Western liberal civilization. Telling people that truth is that which serves political interests and is never anything which they can see with their own eyes, the reds have broadcast a program and manifesto of apriori truth and alternate reality which replicates the symptoms of schizophrenic disorder as it plants a signpost pointing inexorably downward into the collapse of civilized society. This program and manifesto is replete with exhibits which establish a case of mass mental illness and national political corruption without precedent in the annals of modern Western states. Exhibit One. In March 2020, New York's red governor Andrew Cuomo issued an order which required nursing homes throughout the state to accept

hospital patients known to be infected with covid 19. In consequence, the virus spread rapidly throughout the homes and killed thousands of residents. In true red fashion, Cuomo denied ever having issued the order, stating "it never happened". In addition, Cuomo deliberately underreported the covid fatalities by fifty percent. He denied having done this as well, stating "all deaths were always fully, publicly and accurately reported." Look at the world of the reds and see press conferences pouring forth tidal waves of false and inaccurate information. See a shadow play projected on a wall of deception whose characters, sequences and progressions of events serve to advance a narrative called social justice, tribal politics and the people's war against liberty. See a national left wing media establishment expunge such terms as failure, fraud, corruption and incompetence from the airwaves in their descriptions of their fellow reds in office, concoct an image of honest and dedicated red statesmen, and cover up the deaths of tens of thousands of people at the hands of red mayors and red governors: " 'The governor's 111 daily briefings worked so well because he effectively created television shows, with characters, plot lines, and stories of success and failure', Bruce L. Paisner, the International Academy president, said in a statement in Nov. 'People around the world tuned in to find out what was going on, and New York tough became a symbol of the determination to fight back.' Ironically, it turns out Paisner is spot on. Cuomo's briefings were entirely orchestrated by a left wing media seeking to construct the governor as an effective leader he demonstrably did not prove to be. Cuomo is currently being investigated by the federal government for his mishandling of the pandemic, notably sending an estimated 9,000 COVID-19 infected seniors back to nursing homes. A 76 page report in January authored by New York Attorney General Letitia James showed that more than 15,000 elderly citizens died in nursing homes in New York." (Governor Kristi Noem Slams Corrupt Leftist Media in CPAC Speech by Gabe Kaminsky). Exhibit Two. For the past five decades, the reds have been promoting the hoax of man made global warming. They have claimed that modern industrial civilization has increased carbon dioxide levels in the atmosphere to 410 parts per million and this will lead to catastrophically rising sea levels and the incineration of the planet in a matter of decades unless industrial civilization is dismantled. However empirical science reveals that carbon dioxide levels on Earth three millions of years ago were the same as they are today. At this distant time of global warming, there were no ice sheets covering Greenland or West Antarctica, while most of the ice sheets covering East Antarctica had melted. Global temperatures outside the poles were 3.8 degrees Celsius warmer than before and were seven degrees warmer at the poles, and sea levels were twenty meters higher than before. This phenomenon of prehistoric, preindustrial global warming was caused by outgassing from volcanoes and asteroid bombardment of the planet. The atmospheric carbon dioxide levels present at this time are measured by bubbles of air trapped in the Antarctic and Greenland ice sheets, which serve as samples of the ancient atmosphere. In addition, scientists have discovered the presence of liquid water on Earth when it was formed 4.7 billion years ago. But at this time, the output of the sun was seventy percent of what it is today. These facts prove that carbon dioxide levels were much higher at this time than they would be at any later time, and produced the greenhouse gas warming necessary to make liquid water possible at this time. Look at the world of the reds and see the perpetration of a hoax without precedent in the annals of pseudoscience. It is the hoax that human activity is responsible for high levels of atmospheric carbon dioxide. It is the hoax which denies the results of empirical research which reveal that current carbon dioxide levels were present on Earth three million years ago. It is the hoax which ascribes to the Industrial Age things which it did not and cannot do. It is the hoax of anthropogenic global warming which the reds have employed in their campaign to turn back human social, technical, scientific and cultural development and grind humanity into dust: "The far left ThinkProgress reports that scientists have finally proven that the theory of man made global warming is a total hoax. Of course, no one will admit it, but that is exactly what has happened. A new scientific study shows has revealed the following:

Current CO2 levels of 410 parts per million (ppm) were last seen on Earth three million years ago, according to the most detailed reconstruction of the Earth's climate by researchers at the Potsdam Institute for Climate Impact Research and published in Science Advances.

"Yes, you read that correctly, three million—million—years ago CO2 levels on Earth were the same as they are today, but there is one major difference between three million years ago and today. Three million years ago, we humans were not driving cars or eating the meat that requires cow belching; we weren't barbecuing or refusing to recycle or building factories; there was no Industrial Age, no plastic, no air conditioning, no electricity, no lumber mills, no consumerism, no aerosols. In fact, three million years ago, there were probably no human beings on Earth, at least not human in the way we use that term today. And yet, CO2 levels were the same then as they are now." (Scientists Prove Man Made Global Warming Is A Hoax by John Nolte). Exhibit Three. In the presidential election of 2020, the greatest act of political corruption in the history of modern democratic states was committed when the reds robbed Donald Trump of victory and awarded victory to Joe Biden. Condemning claims of election fraud as baseless, unproven and unsubstantiated, the reds have denied the mass of assembled evidence which has established proof of fraud beyond all reasonable doubt. They have denied the existence of thousands of pages of affidavits, depositions, testimony and photographs and thousands reels of surveillance videos which prove ballot fraud, ballot fouls, ballot mishandling, violations of the Fourteenth Amendment's Equal Protection Clause, the manipulation of voting machines, and extreme statistical deviations which cannot be explained away. Look at the world of the reds and see a denial of reality which is as sinister as it is pathological. See vision impaired ideologues digging a mass grave marked empirical facts and information and throwing into it evidence of fractionalized votes, counterfeit ballots, corrupt computer algorithms, compromised voting machines, and the results of nonpartisan audits, evaluations and inspections. See the reds douse this grave with the gasoline of mob power and red agitation and see them send Western civilization to its death in raging vortices of smoke and flames: "There's all kind of precedent for fixing what happened in this election from Bush vs. Gore to other cases as well. Fractionalized votes. That's exactly what we have here from a computer algorithm that we can prove in multiple counties, and it could prove across the country if anybody would issue an order allowing inspection of the machines. The very fact that Dominion and other companies are not allowing inspection of the voting machines ought to tell everybody all they need to know. Federal law calls for election records to be kept for 22 months. In this case, it requires forensic evaluations of the machines and looking at all of the paper ballots. We already know that's not going to match up. There were counterfeit ballots. People were saying, 'Oh, well they did a full audit in Georgia. Well, if you just keep running the same counterfeit bill through the same counting machine, you're going to get the same result. There is enough evidence in the cases before them or enough evidence in the public now to more than reverse the election in at least five states." (Sidney Powell: 'More than Enough Evidence' to 'Reverse Election in at Least 5 States' by Jack Murphy, quoting Powell). Armed with the greatest of all weapons of war, the weapons of truth and fact, formations of loyal, patriotic, decent, disciplined, focused Americans stormed the Capital Building in Washington on January 6, 2021 to take back an election, a government and a constitution which had been desecrated and hijacked by the reds. Listen to the words of the nation's last remaining soldiers of liberty and the rule of law stride fearlessly onto the field of battle to smash, decapitate, blow up, kick in and spill the blood of an octopus whose tentacles marked Antifa, Black Lives Matter and Gender, Race and Class Politics have strangled and suffocated America: "Congress needs to hear glass breaking, doors kicked in, and blood from their Black Lives Matter and Antifa slave soldiers being spilled. Get violent, stop calling this a march or rally or a protest. Go there ready for war. We get our President or we die. NOTHING else will achieve this goal." In the reds' war against civilization, veracity and honesty have been the first victims and casualties. Rejecting the power and primacy of empirical observation in human thought, the reds have peddled a hate blinded party political line to the people and expelled human progress from the public square.

BILL HR 1: REDS ROLL BACK DEMOCRACY

Electoral fraud is interference in the process of an election with the aim either of increasing the vote share of a favored candidate or decreasing the vote share of the candidate's rival. Prior to the 2020 presidential election in America, electoral fraud had been a phenomenon confined to nonWestern nations and sullied elections held in Argentina, Mexico, Venezuela, Nigeria, Kenya, Indonesia, Philippines and Russia. In the 2020 election in America, the nation entered the nonWestern community of corruption when the fraudulent victory of Joe Biden over Donald Trump was exposed by a big black book of shame containing ten thousand pages, a book whose table of contents includes the following items: Affidavits, Depositions, Declarations, Lawsuits, Court Rulings, Testimony at Local Hearings, Analyses Conducted by Research Institutions and Legal Centers, Video Footage, Photographic Stills, Equal Protection Clause Violations, Voter Fraud, Ballot Mishandling, Process Violations, Voting Machine Irregularities and Significant Statistical Deviations. Without precedent in the history of modern Western democracies, this level of political corruption will be institutionalized and made a permanent feature of national elections in bill HR 1, called the For the People Act, passed by the House of Representatives in March 2021. The purpose of the bill is as brazen and unabashed as were the vote rigging schemes conducted by the reds during the 2020 presidential election, and is to ensure that the rigging continues in perpetuity and that the reds never lose another national election. A massive piece of legislation passed by the Democratic Party majority on a party line vote, the bill seeks to establish dishonesty and unfairness as national electoral norms and conventions, disenfranchise the antired opposition, and place the reds in permanent control of the government. The bill's items are monstrous points of darkness on a map of subversion which will upend constitutionally mandated electoral processes for all time to come. Item. The bill proclaims that "Congress finds that it has broad authority to regulate the time, place and manner of congressional elections under the Elections Clause of the Constitution." In point of fact, the Constitution gives primary authority to the states and not the federal government to set the rules governing elections, and grants to Congress only the power to redress unconstitutional state rules: "The Times, Places and Manner of holding Elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by Law make or alter such Regulations, except as to the Places of choosing Senators." (Article 1, Section 4). Item. The bill condemns the following as "burdensome" and instruments of "racial discrimination" and "systemic racism" and seeks their repeal: voter registration procedures, the requirement that voters present photo identification in order to vote, lists which exclude ineligible voters, and restrictions on voting by mail. Item. The bill proclaims that the only courts which will have jurisdiction to hear challenges to its constitutionality are the notoriously red colored courts in Washington DC. Item. The bill establishes automatic and online registration, allows voters who have no signatures on file to supply signatures on the day they request a ballot, and prohibits states from verifying ballot applications with anything more than the last four digits of the applicant's Social Security number. Item. The bill protects from prosecution illegal aliens who seek to vote who were automatically registered and never declared in writing that they were American citizens. Item. The bill allows voters to change their address and other information at polling places and allows them to cast regular ballots and not provisional ballots on the basis of the new information. Item. The bill allows same day voter registration in order to restrict voter checking time by the state: "Each state shall permit any eligible individual on the day of a federal election and on any day when voting, including early voting, is permitted for a Federal election—to register to vote in such election at the polling place and to cast a vote in such election." Item. The bill authorizes early voting: "Each State shall allow individuals to vote in an election for Federal office during an early voting period which occurs prior to the date of the election, in the same manner as voting is allowed on such date." Item. The bill prevents states from removing ineligible voters from voter rolls through checking with other states unless they already possess extensive information proving voters' identity. It prevents third parties from challenging voters' eligibility unless they have "personal knowledge" of ineligibility. Item. The bill authorizes nationwide voting by mail without photo identification: "States may not require an individual to provide any form of identification as a condition for obtaining an absentee ballot." It does not require witness signatures for mail in votes. It provides that approved applications for mail in voting shall be deemed to be valid forever. Item. The bill authorizes early voting: "Each State shall allow individuals to vote in an election for Federal office during an early voting period which occurs prior to the date of the election, in the same manner as voting is allowed on such date." Item. The bill authorizes unlimited third party ballot collections: "States shall permit a voter to designate any person to return a voted and sealed absentee ballot to the post office, a ballot drop off location, tribally designated building, or election office so long as the person designated to return the ballot does not receive any form of compensation based on the number of ballots. States may not put any limit on how many voted and sealed absentee ballots any designated person can return." Item. The bill requires states to abolish all photo identification requirements for voter applicants: "States must allow applicants to submit sworn written statement, signed by the individual under penalty of perjury, attesting to the individual's identity and attesting that the individual is eligible to vote in the election." Item. The bill requires states to provide absentee voter boxes forty five days before an election: "In each county in the State, each State shall provide in person, secured, and clearly labeled drop boxes at which individuals may, at any time during the period described in subsection (b), [forty five days] drop off voted absentee ballots in an election for Federal office. The boxes must be available to all voters on a non-discriminatory basis and during all hours of the day." Item. The bill, in violation of the First Amendment, requires the Federal Election

Commission to ensure that all political opinions expressed during an election campaign adhere faithfully to the red party line: "The Federal Elections Commission must conduct an independent study and report on media literacy with respect to online political content consumption". Item. The bill condemns the landmark Supreme Court decision Citizens United Versus Federal Election Commission (2010), which recognized the self evident fact that restrictions on money used for speech entail restrictions on speech itself and that the First Amendment's guarantee of free speech prohibits the government from restricting expenditures for political communications by organizations. It advocates changing the Constitution to allow the government to restrict political expenditures for speech. It justifies its violation of free speech in the name of progressive politics and opposition to the poisonous moneyed interests of liberal democracy: "The Supreme Court's misinterpretation of the Constitution to empower moneyed interests at the expense of the American people in elections has seriously eroded over 100 years of congressional action to promote fairness and protect elections from the toxic influence of money. The Constitution should be amended so that Congress and the States may regulate and set limits on the raising and spending of money." On November 19, 1863, at the dedication of the national cemetery on the site of the Battle of Gettysburg, Abraham Lincoln delivered a speech which civilized people throughout the world at once noted and would never forget. He said that "this nation shall have a new birth of freedom--and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth." Moved by the hands of the mob, the wheel of history has returned full circle to the rule of primitive tribes countless eons ago and rendered Lincoln's noble words a dead letter. Transferring control of elections from cities, counties and states to Washington in violation of the Constitution, establishing mass mail in ballot as permanent, prohibiting voter identification, establishing automatic voter registration whether people want to vote or not, allowing same day voter registration and voting, thus allowing no time to check the eligibility of potential voters, authorizing third party ballot harvesting, and forcing all legal appeals into one court, the Washington circuit court controlled by the Democratic Party, the House of Representatives has established in bill HR 1 a fearsome and terrifying new regime in a land where fair and honest elections once reigned. It is a regime in which elections are fixed, arranged and predetermined and government of the reds, by the reds and for the reds has been enacted as the supreme law of the land.

REDS SET UP BANANA REPUBLIC IN WASHINGTON

Political scientists use the term banana republic to describe a state which has renounced Western liberal democratic ideals and descended into a war against civilized society. They have delineated the following characteristics of banana republics and observed them replicated in nation after nation in the twenty first century: red control over the marketplace of ideas, the enforcement of a red ideological echo chamber, and massive red fraud at the polls. Once the leader and inspiration of freedom fighters throughout the world, whose City Upon A Hill defined what it meant to be a constitutional republic, America has descended into the savage jungle of a banana republic and filled political scientists with feelings of anxiety, concern, consternation and dismay. This inexpressible tragedy called America, this spectacle of treason without precedent in the history of the nation or in the annals of modern Western democracies, has brought forth a totalitarian swampland which has made a nation conceived in constitutional liberty and forged on the battlefields of Lexington and Concord unrecognizable today. This twenty first century America, this postAmerica America, has composed the biggest, blackest playbook of red subversion in the Western world's recording book of high crimes and misdemeanors; it is a set of tactics, methods, notes and diagrams which occupy every paragraph of every page of the final chapter of the sordid story of freedom's stab in the back by the masses. Sewn and bound by the Devil himself, the narrative of a nonWestern wasteland known as America describes the proclamation from coast to coast of the doctrine of the reddest of the reds, Saul Alinsky, that the end justifies the means. It describes a plan of voter fraud, counterfeit ballots, ballot harvesting, electronic ballot box stuffing and voting machine manipulations, attested by ten thousand pages of affidavits and witness testimony and ten thousand reels of surveillance footage, which robbed Donald Trump of victory in the presidential election of 2020 and installed Joe Biden into power. It describes an election night in which vote counting was stopped at 11 PM, Republican poll watchers were told to leave their stations and go home, and election workers then manufactured 140,000 mail in ballots for Biden in Wisconsin, 200,000 ballots for Biden in Michigan and 1 million ballots for Biden in Pennsylvania. It describes the reds' derailing of Trump's America First libertarian movement. It describes the reds' taking control of the Senate. It describes the reds' mass cancellation of all those who oppose them. It describes the reds' plan to grant statehood to the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico and thereby gain four more red senators from the Democrat Party. It describes the reds' use of stimulus money to rescue cities mired in corruption and mismanagement at the hands of red mayors for the last fifty years. It describes the reds' plan to grant citizenship to millions of illegal aliens. It describes the reds' plan to dissolve the border and allow a mass influx of immigrants without selection, examination or investigation of any kind. It describes the reds' plan to pack the Supreme Court with red judges by expanding its size and thereby blow up the Court and the Constitution in one fell swoop. It describes the reds' plan, in the For the People Act, to ensure that red presidential candidates never lose another election by authorizing the following, in violation of the Article 1, Section 4 of the Constitution, which grants to states the primary authority to set the rules for federal elections: universal mail in voting, which is banned by every state in Europe; universal unsolicited mail in voting; voting without registering; allowing deceased voters and voters who have relocated to remain on voter lists; expanding voting times by months; and prohibiting requests for voter identification. The story of America on its way down describes a nation of once free people transformed into a socialized mass rioting from coast to coast to preserve its welfare benefits. It describes a nation with red political parties in total control at all levels of government. It describes a nation with a retracted and vanishing private sector in which the majority receives income from the government, as government employees or as workers under contract from the government. It describes a nation of once self reliant people transformed into a shameless almshouse in which shiftless paupers are supported by Social Security, food stamps, unemployment insurance, covid stimulus payments and covid business bailouts. It describes a nation which, in defiance of the scientifically established fact that sex is determined by genes and is unchangeable, has granted legal recognition to transgender individuals and granted them the right to use facilities and accommodations reserved for the opposite sex. It describes a nation whose universities have all black dormitories and all black graduation exercises. It describes a nation which has rejected the liberal principle that when choosing candidates for jobs, promotions or academic placements, the candidates' race and gender should be ignored in favor of their character and personality. It describes a nation which proclaims that all white people are racist and that it is impossible for black people to be racist. It describes a nation which proclaims that all men are sexist and that it is impossible for women to be sexist. It describes a nation which condemns as racist and sexist all those who admire the music of Beethoven, the paintings of Da Vinci and the plays of Shakespeare. It describes a nation which condemns its national anthem, the Star Spangled Banner, as racist. It describes a nation which proclaims that America was founded in 1619 with the first arrival of black slaves, and not in 1776, and that the American Revolutionary War was fought to preserve slavery and not to expand liberty. It describes a nation which condemns George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln as racists and has taken down statues of them and removed their names from public buildings. It describes a nation which proclaims that only evil, violent, ignorant, racist, sexist, homophobic people voted for Donald Trump. It describes a nation which proclaims that capitalism has been an irremediable blight on America and the world. It describes a nation which condemns images of Aunt Jemima as racist and images of Mia the Indian girl as racist and sexist and removes them from product packages. It describes a nation which condemns books by Dr Seuss as racist and removes them from schools, libraries and publishers' lists. It describes a nation which has relinquished control over its borders, allowed illegal immigrants to stream in by the millions, and granted citizenship to them. It describes a nation which condemns police departments as racist and has defunded and dismantled them. It describes a nation which orders schools to not to address their students as "boys and girls" because students might not identify as male or female. It describes a nation which rejects science and reality and proclaims that men can bear children. It describes a nation which invites men dressed up as women into public libraries and school classrooms to conduct Drag Queen Story Hours for children. It describes a nation which condemns as hate speech all words voiced in praise of modern liberal civilization and in opposition to savage indigenous cultures, revolutionary Islamic cultures and subversive Marxist cultures. Look at the reds at work in America today and see the nation's foremost children's author censored on the same grounds that the reds have censored every product and manifestation of capitalist culture. See the author of the most popular children's books of all time, books which have sold over 600 million copies worldwide and been translated into twenty languages, censored along with Aunt Jemima, Mia the Indian Girl, the Washington Redskins, Walt Disney, Gone With The Wind, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson. See these symbols of the West censored by the reds on the grounds that they, the West and the capitalist system are hate filled, evil, bigoted and racist. See the reds remove an author whose books have won the Lewis Carroll Shelf Award and been promoted by the National Read Across America Day and the National Education Association, and see them install in place of Dr Seuss the agitation and propaganda megaphones of the red totalitarian revolution: "Six popular Dr. Seuss books—including And to Think That I Saw It on Mulberry Street and If I Ran the Zoo—'will stop being published because of racist and insensitive imagery, the business that preserves and protects the author's legacy said Tuesday,' The Associated Press reported. 'These books portray people in ways that are hurtful and wrong,' Dr Seuss Enterprises told The Associated Press in a statement marking the late author and illustrator's birthday. 'Ceasing sales of these books is only part of our commitment and our broader plan to ensure Dr. Seuss Enterprises' catalog represents and supports all communities and families,' Dr. Seuss Enterprises said. The Associated Press reported that the 'racist and insensitive' depictions played a part in their removal. The other books affected are McElligot's Pool, On Beyond Zebra!, Scrambled Eggs Super!, and The Cat's Quizzer. The move to drop the six titles comes just twenty four hours after a Virginia school system removed children's books by Dr. Seuss from its annual Read Across America program over charges they have 'strong racial undertones,' as Breitbart News reported." (Dr. Seuss Is Canceled: Six Books Will Stop Being Published Because Of 'Racist and Insensitive Imagery' by Simon Kent). In 1904, while staying in Honduras, the American author William Sydney Porter coined the term banana republic to describe this Central American state. He saw a country in which the people were oppressed, enslaved, cheated, exploited, regimented, programmed and indoctrinated by their rulers. He called this baneful state of affairs a phenomenon pervasive in Latin America. When he died in 1910, the reds were marching on America and one hundred years later, his report on Honduras would become the fearsome and terrifying norm in the new Latin American republic headquartered in Washington.

CALLING ALL CARS: REVOLUTION IN PROGRESS

The word alarm has a vivid and graphic etymology. It comes from the French expression A l'arme, which means "To the arms!", and it told citizens to pick up their weapons and prepare for combat because the enemy had arrived. Students of history and politics who have studied developments in America since the election of Joe Biden have sounded an alarm bell about a red takeover of the nation and have warned civilized communities to prepare for combat to defend mankind's citadel and arsenal of freedom and the world's preeminent beacon of light for the oppressed. In their report on the nation's change of ownership from law abiding citizens to the reds, students of history and politics have laid out the case and the situation and pleaded to anyone, anywhere in the world, with a conscience and a sense of decency, to act and act rapidly and decisively to defeat this menace to freedom without equal in the annals of public crimes and tyrannies. The following is their report. In an election which was rigged and stolen, Donald Trump is no longer president and Joe Biden has been installed into power. The greatest election scandal ever to hit a Western democratic nation, the fraudulent character of the 2020 presidential election is attested by a ten thousand volume, multimedia library filled to overflowing with sworn affidavits, secret surveillance footage, photographic stills, local venue testimony and formal statements made by cybersecurity experts. This act of fraud saw vans filled with fake ballots for Biden, United States Postal Service trucks filled with fake ballots for Biden, and airplanes filled with fake ballots for Biden. On election night, when Republican Party witnesses had been ordered to leave their stations, these millions of fake ballots were entered into vote totals. In a coordinated effort and conspiracy spanning five states, Michigan, Georgia, Nevada, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, the official vote counting was stopped at 11 PM and these fraudulent entries were made. This act of fraud saw election workers in Georgia falsely report that a water pipe in a vote counting station had burst and caused a flood. This was used as a pretext to clear the building of independent observers. After the observers had left, suitcases filled with fake ballots for Biden were rolled out from under a table and entered into vote totals. This act of fraud was captured on video. The fake ballots rolled out had only Biden's name filled out, had not been mailed out and had been rushed from the printing presses. The reds removed Trump in an arranged election because he had given the nation the greatest economic comeback, employment statistics, improvement in middle class incomes and increase in gross domestic product in its history. With America's red revolution fully underway, President elect Joe Biden has opened the nation's borders and dissolved its border walls. He has halted deportations and allowed every specimen of depravity to settle in the land along with their relatives. He has legalized millions of illegal aliens and included them in the national census. He has eliminated all background checks on immigrants and all requirements that they be skilled and educated. He has condemned capitalism as a system of racism. He has advocated for totalitarian tyranny in the name of social justice and advocated for discrimination against white people in the name of racial equity. He has revived the Iran nuclear deal and allowed the country to develop nuclear missiles. He has canceled the Keystone XL pipeline, shut down the oil, coal, natural gas and fracking industries, and made America an energy dependent nation. He has reentered the Paris Climate Accords, decimated industrial civilization in the name of reducing global warming and achieving zero carbon emissions, and allowed India and China to expand their industrial development without limit. He has sought to have as many Americans as possible supported by welfare programs, supplemental benefits and covid stimulus payments. He has sought to increase the national debt to multitrillion dollar levels and bankrupt the country. He has promoted federal recognition of transgender individuals in defiance of science which has established that sex is determined by genes and is thus unchangeable. He has established universal mail in voting in presidential elections without voter identification required in order to ensure that no red candidate ever loses a presidential election. He has revived President Obama's 2011 Dear Colleague Letter to colleges and universities and deprived male university students accused of sexual assault the protections of due process of law, including the right to cross examine complainants, the right to have independent evidence presented against them, and the right to be presumed innocent of allegations until proven guilty by independent evidence. Look at the reds at work in America today and see a campaign against capitalism and the West conducted in the name of the savage, indigenous, marginalized people of the world. See the voices of liberal equality denounced as white racists. See social justice warriors launch a crusade of Indoctrination Across America to inspire the denizens of the streets and sewers with passionate hatred toward justice, fairness and a liberal, meritocratic society. See a leftist assault on the values and traditions of individual rights and the rule of law. See fraudulent academics and sinister specialists in gender, race and class theologies falsify the history of the West, sully the stories of liberal soldiers and statesmen, gun down liberal universality in plain sight. and kill the defenders of liberal order in cold blood. See the reds' calendar of tribal governance turn back the clock to the year zero. See the hate filled red analyses condemn the moral and intellectual achievements of the Enlightenment. See the reds' religion of antirepublicanism and anticonstitutionalism promote group power politics in the name of human liberation and crown modern radicals as kings for life. See every symbol, figure, trace and vestige of man's moral, spiritual, political, material and technological advancement condemned as racist, sexist, colonialist, imperialist, oppressive and exploitative: the European colonization of primitive lands; Jefferson's Declaration of Independence; the American Revolutionary War; the American national anthem; the American Constitution; Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation; every major American president; the liberal ideal of equality of opportunity in which all people are allowed to achieve their highest aspirations and goals; man's exploration of outer space; the interconnection of the planet through digital communications; children's stories written by the world renowned Dr Seuss which celebrate liberal freedom and equal treatment in a race blind and gender blind society; and a radiant universe filled with popular films and consumer products. See red agitators and propagandists conducting a march of subversion through liberal establishments and institutions and preparing the way for an age of totalitarian tyranny and enslavement: "Dr. Seuss, it turns out, is just another white racist who had, until March 2021, pulled the wool over our collective eyes for decades (including from the grave). Didn't you know, he was programming the youth of America to indefinitely oppress the marginalized peoples of the world? Of course, this is complete and utter woke nonsense. Even President Barack Obama once told an audience of White House interns that 'pretty much all the stuff you need to know is in Dr. Seuss.' Seuss's own stepdaughter says, 'There wasn't a racist bone in his body.' Yet here we are. On what would have been the author's 117th birthday, a day made famous by a nationwide event he helped inspire, Read Across America, it was announced that six of his books will no longer be printed. The irony of course, is that Dr. Seuss's books are designed with their morals—not racism—in plain sight. [D]eeming even a small part of Dr. Seuss's collection unsuitable for children is just the latest leftist assault on America's shared traditions and values—and really, on our entire history. Whether it's judging men who lived in in the 18th century according to rules that a bunch of academics invented in the last eighteen months or canceling Dr. Seuss for not being culturally sensitive enough for 'specialists in the field' in 2021, these critiques fail to give credit for the moral and cultural achievements these people made in their own time. Yes, Thomas Jefferson owned slaves, as many of his contemporaries did, but he wrote the Declaration of Independence, which set the course for the liberation of countless peoples across the world. Just as the French Revolutionaries adopted the French Republican Calendar—with year one beginning in 1792—in an attempt to remove all religious and royal vestiges from French culture, our modern radicals also want to remove the vestiges of America's shared stories and histories. They want to cast the future of America in their radical progressive image, but how can they do that if America is still in love with its past? The long march through the institutions thus continues, bullying all of us into repenting for daring to enjoy a children's book, a bottle of syrup, a movie, an anthem or a president. It will continue until we renounce it all. The American Dream? That is just romanticized capitalist greed. The Constitution? A document forever tainted by the Three Fifts Clause. The triumph of the Revolutionary War over British tyranny? That was just white colonists fighting over stolen land. Landing on the moon, the Emancipation Proclamation, pioneering computers and connectivity? All of it has to go until we're so disgusted by our home and our history that we're begging for a clean slate. We can start with year one as the year when we finally dealt with that pesky Dr. Seuss." (Cancel Culture Comes for Dr. Seuss by Charlie Kirk). The history and development of alarm devices has seen the use of bells, drums, whistles, buzzers, klaxons, sirens, horns and flashing colored lights. Before a movement by the reds to overthrow America's social, cultural and political order, the sounding by civilized people of all manner of alarms has been to no avail. Nothing can wake up the mob and bring them out of their feverish, intoxicated, dogmatic slumbers. The wheel of destiny, ever circling and never advancing, has brought the specter of decline and fall back onto the stage of history and appointed the twenty first century as the final century of America.

RED JUDGES COMMIT TREASON

Treason is the crime of attacking a state to which one has sworn allegiance. This crime embraces many forms of attack and culminates in the attempt to directly overthrow a government and its constitution. Students of history and politics have observed something in America which they had never in their worst nightmares ever imagined they would observe. They can scarcely believe the evidence of their senses and desperately want to believe that they are mistaken in their judgment. But the evidence is irrefutable and overwhelming and has struck them like a bolt of lightning rending the sky in half. The crime they have observed is as vast in its scope and participants as it is grave in its import and consequences, and has upended America as a nation devoted to the rule of law, and made it unrecognizable from the constitutional republic fought for and died for on the fields of Lexington and Concord. They have observed multiple acts of treason committed by federal, state and local judges across the nation in rulings related to the 2020 presidential election. They have observed, in over two dozen cases filed across six contested states plus Texas by President Trump or others on his behalf, judges abdicating their sworn duty to uphold the constitutional right of the people to vote in fair and honest elections, and in so doing allowing the constitution to be overthrown, and committing by their crime of omission and abdication an act to overthrow the Constitution. Students of history and politics who have reviewed the record of the judges' rulings have reviewed a litany of shameless disowning and renunciation of responsibility without precedent in the history of the nation, and have observed a nation descend, at the hands of its treasonous judges, into a lawless jungle of political corruption which is as brazen as it is tragic, the latter because it happened in America, once the world's citadel of constitutional liberty and law, and the last place on earth where civilized people would imagine it could ever happen. Item. In the case of Boland v. Raffensperger in Georgia, the plaintiffs reported that the ballot rejection rate in the state had decreased from 1.53 percent in 2018 to 0.15 percent in the 2020 election, and reported that 20,000 people had voted who were not eligible to vote because they were not residents. The court dismissed the suit on the grounds that the defendant, Brad Raffensperger, was an "improper party". Item. In the case of Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. v. Benson in Michigan, the plaintiffs reported that state law had been violated when election officials refused to allow access to counting stations by Republican observers. The plaintiff produced video footage of vote counters clapping as Republican observers were being removed and covers being placed over windows. The court dismissed the suit on the grounds that it was not filed until 4 PM when the vote counting had stopped and was therefore moot. Item. In the case of Metcalfe v. Wolf in Pennsylvania, the plaintiff reported that over 200,000 completed mail in ballots were illegal. The plaintiff produced testimony from a US Postal Service contractor who stated that he had been hired to transport these ballots from New York to Pennsylvania. The ballots were backdated at a postal station in Erie, Pennsylvania. The court dismissed the suit on the grounds that it had been filed on December 4, eleven days after the deadline to file. Item. In the case of Trump v. Evers in Wisconsin, the plaintiff reported that Milwaukee and Dane counties had violated state election law when the following actions took place: municipal clerks issued absentee ballots without required written applications; they completed missing information on the ballots in violation of the law; the ballots were wrongly cast by voters who claimed "Indefinite Confinement" incorrectly and provided no identification; and the city of Madison's Democracy in the Park violated election laws. The court dismissed the suit on the grounds that the plaintiffs had not gone through the lower courts. In the case of Zicarelli v. Allegheny County Board of Elections in Pennsylvania, the plaintiff reported that over two thousand mail in ballots were defective under the state's Election Code. The court dismissed the suit on the grounds that the word shall in the Election Code does not mean shall; it does not mean an instruction or command; but means what it does not mean: a mere suggestion, recommendation or piece of advice: "We agree with the Campaign's observation that the General Assembly set forth the requirements for how a qualified elector may cast a valid absentee or mail in ballot. We further agree that these sections of the Election Code specifically provide that each voter 'shall fill out, date, and sign' the declaration on the outside envelope. We do not agree with the Campaign's contention, however, that because the General Assembly used the word shall in this context, it is of necessity that the directive is a mandatory one." Item. In the case of Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. v. Boockvar in Pennsylvania, the plaintiff reported that Democrat counties had established a "notice and cure" policy for defective ballots which allowed them to be rectified and counted, while Republican counties had not established such a policy. This disparity violated the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. The court dismissed the suit on the grounds that plaintiff lacked standing to sue: "The Democrat counties had nothing to do with the denial of Individual Plaintiff's ability to vote because their ballots were rejected by Lancaster and Fayette [Republican] Counties, neither of which is a party to this case." Item. In the case of Donald J. Trump for President, Inc. v. Philadelphia County Board of Elections, the plaintiff reported that the Philadelphia County Board had refused to allow Republican poll watchers to observe the counting of ballots. The court dismissed the suit on the grounds that the law does not mandate that election observers be allowed to actually observe anything but only that they be permitted to remain in the room: "The Election Code allows the board to make rules for protecting its workers' safety from COVID-19 and physical assault. The only requirement is that one authorized representative of each candidate in an election and one representative from each political party shall be permitted to remain in the room [emphasis in the original]." Item. In the case of Ward v. Jackson et al. in Arizona, the plaintiff reported that Republican poll watchers were not allowed to observe the counting of ballots. The court dismissed the suit on the grounds that it was untimely and the plaintiff should have brought the suit earlier in August, when there was a Democrat Party primary: "The observation procedures for the November general election were materially the same as for the August primary election, and any objection to them should have been brought at a time when any legal deficiencies could have been cured." Look at the world of America's judges and see petitions denied and cases dismissed in order to allow election illegality to stand, and see the face of treason. See judges refuse to uphold the Constitution, which grants to state legislatures the exclusive right to make election rules, and prohibits states from changing their rules by nonlegislative means. See judges manufacture a reason called "lack of standing" to abdicate their responsibility to enforce the constitutional right of citizens in every state, a right guaranteed under the Fourteenth and Nineteenth Amendments, to vote and to vote in free, fair and honest elections. See judges close up shop, accede to the pressure of the majority, and replace the rule of law by the rule of the mob: "The nation's highest court showed some early inclination for involvement in the brewing election issues, such as Justice Samuel Alito's order to separate certain late ballots in Pennsylvania in Republican Party of Pennsylvania v. Boockvar. Yet it soon took a different tone. A petition to expedite a hearing was denied and later the court refused the case. In December, the court rejected a key lawsuit filed by the state of Texas (Texas v. Pennsylvania), and joined by 18 other state attorneys general, alleging that Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan, and Wisconsin violated the US Constitution by changing election procedures through nonlegislative means. The justices ruled that Texas lacked standing under Article III of the Constitution to challenge the results of the election held by another state." (Courts Repeatedly Refused To Consider Trump's Claims On The Merits by Bob Anderson). America has not been defeated by its external enemies but has been stabbed in the back by its reds at home. Assuming national presidential power through fraud and corruption, the reds have been aided and abetted by their brethren on the bench. These brethren were confronted by overwhelming evidence of ballots tampered with, mishandled, miscounted, manufactured and wrongfully accepted. They were confronted with overwhelming evidence that voting machines produced decimal totals for votes rather than whole numbers, and were designed to change votes and make an audit impossible, and were connected to the internet on election night. They were confronted by overwhelming evidence of procedural fouls and violations of the Constitution. Confronted by a world of facts and reality, they refused to take action and sold out their nation to the forces of evil.

PHILOSOPHY IN THE TWENTY FIRST CENTURY

There is a well known French expression which runs as follows: plus ca change, plus c'est la meme chose. In English this states: "the more things change, the more they remain the same". Students of philosophy who study the state of their discipline in the twenty first century have this expression ever in their minds as they survey a dark, dreary, static landscape in which only the names and faces change while the sickness and disorder remain the same. This is the sickness and disorder brought by the Germanic soul which first set the West hurtling along its fearsome and terrifying trajectory one thousand years ago when the culture was born. This Germanic soul, this Faustian soul, this romanticist soul, this soul which exalts the forces of will and power, this soul which stands opposed to the Classical soul of ancient Greece and Rome as deep, dark midnight is opposed to the bright, placid, noonday fields, is the soul of the West, and it has hovered like an ominous cloud over every stage of development of the culture. In the Christian philosophy of Augustine, in the so-called Renaissance period, in the philosophy of Descartes, in the early modern, middle modern and late modern periods of the West, students of philosophy read the same story repeated over and over again, with only the characters, the protagonists and the tellers of the story changing. This is the story of a Germanic, Faustian, romanticist exaltation of consciousness over matter and its rejection of the existence and/or perceivability of physical objects. Opening the covers of the book of philosophy in the twenty first century, students of philosophy have read this story of subjectivism once again but are convinced that this latest iteration will be the last one they read because they know that the human mind cannot be subjected to one thousand years of relentless assault and emerge intact, coherent and able to function in any intelligible manner. In this final book of philosophy in the West, students of philosophy see the same villains at work but wearing new faces and have recorded these faces and read their biographies, and identified them as the dismal avatars of the imminent collapse of civilization. The following is the students' report. It is composed of two sections and a conclusion. The first section describes the recent psychiatric pathologies which afflict Western philosophy, and the second section describes the latest professors who promote them. Section One. A. Analytic Philosophy. Proceeding from the philosophy of Kant, analytic philosophy developed around the turn of the twentieth century and packaged the subjectivism championed by Kant in a new container called linguistic analysis. Analytic philosophers were inspired by Kant's doctrine that the world of physical objects is an illusion created by our forms of perception, that when we perceive so-called physical objects, we perceive only the world of our own constructs of space and time, that when man perceives, he perceives nothing and that man is blind because he perceives, and that reality itself is that which is noumenal, nonphysical, nontemporal, unperceivable and unlocatable. On the basis of this, the analytical philosophers proceeded to develop the following points. They proclaimed that the task of philosophy is the analysis of words and not things. They proclaimed that ultimate reality is nonphysical in character and consists of words and that

words have no referents and mean whatever people say that they mean. They proclaimed that words are created by wishes, either the wishes of single individuals or the wishes of collectives and majorities. They proclaimed that there are two types of definitions: stipulative definitions, which are created by individual fancy, and reportive definitions, which are discovered by taking polls and surveys of popular word usage. They proclaimed that words are arbitrary social products which are created without objective principles, standards or purposes of any kind. They proclaimed that words are nonreferential sounds and marks and that the task of philosophy is to dissolve all problems and questions concerning an alleged physical reality by clarifying the use of these sounds and marks. They proclaimed that necessary truths, such as that two plus two equal four, the boiling point of water is 100 degrees Celsius, bachelors are unmarried men, triangles have three sides, and it is impossible for an object to be both black all over and white all over at one and the same time, are not factual truths because there exist no facts outside the mind, and are only true within the realm of our own arbitrary linguistic conventions. They proclaimed that it thus possible in reality for two and two to equal nine, and the boiling point of water to be 90 degrees Celsius, and bachelors to be married men, and triangles to have four sides, and an object to be both black all over and white all over at one and the same time. Look at the world of analytic philosophy and see the proclamation that the meanings of words are products of their uses and functions within internal language games. See the denial that words possess any meaning or reference to a reality outside of consciousness. See the projection of words as irreducible primaries and the rejection of the existence of physical objects: "11. Think of the tools in a toolbox: there is a hammer, pliers, a saw, a screw driver, a rule, a gluepot, glue, nails and screws. The functions of words are as diverse as the functions of these objects. (And in both cases there are similarities.) Of course, what confuses us is the uniform appearance of words when we hear them spoken or meet them in script and print. For their application is not presented to us so clearly. Especially when we are doing philosophy. 12. It is like looking into the cabin of a locomotive. We see handles all looking more or less alike. (Naturally, since they are all supposed to be handled.) But one is the handle of a crank which can be moved continuously (it regulates the opening of a valve); another is the handle of a switch, which has only two effective positions, it is either off or on; a third is the handle of a brake lever, the harder one pulls on it, the harder it brakes; a fourth, the handle of a pump: it has an effect only so long as it is moved to and fro. 13. When we say: 'Every word in language signifies something' we have so far said nothing whatever, unless we have explained exactly what distinction we wish to make. (It might be, of course, that we wanted to distinguish the words of a so-called meaningful language from words without meaning such as occur in Lewis Carroll's poems or words like Lilliburlero in songs)." (Philosophical Investigations by Ludwig Wittgenstein). Section One. B. Continental Philosophy. Proceeding like analytic philosophy from the doctrines of Kant, continental philosophy promotes mental disorder from the European mainland. The continental philosophers proclaim that natural science is impossible because physical objects do not exist and what we perceive is only a mind created "pretheoretical substrate" and "life world". They proclaim that these subjective conditions of existence vary with gender, race, class, culture and time, and that there is a black reality, a white reality, a male reality, a female reality, a bourgeois reality, a proletarian reality, a Western reality, an indigenous reality, an ancient reality and a modern reality, and no reality can be held to be more real than any other. The phenomenologists proclaim that philosophy is the study of the structures of perception and consciousness and proceeds by way of pure reflection while it "brackets"

or rejects the existence of the outer world. The existentialists proclaim that the only reality is human existence, human thinking, human feeling, human willing and human acting. The hermeneuticists proclaim that all acts of interpretation are acts of self interpretation and self contemplation and that we can never step outside of our own prejudices and prejudgments and view reality itself. The structuralists proclaim that all human thinking, perceiving, feeling and acting are governed by universal, subjective, apriori structures which have no relation to anything real or physical. The poststructuralists proclaim that the individual's acts of thinking, perceiving, feeling and doing are governed by his own self imposed structures and systems without relation to anyone or anything else. The deconstructionists proclaim that reality is complex, unstable, undecidable, endlessly interpretable and impossible ever to absolutely determine. The proponents of critical theory proclaim that the only way to liberate human beings from the circumstances which enslave them is to subject liberal democracy to a Marxist evaluation, assessment and critique and overthrow the liberal democratic system. Section Two. The Latest Professors In Support Of Analytic and Continental Philosophy. A. P. Martinich, Steven Hales, Scott Soames, Saul Kripke, Alvin Plantinga, Robert Adams, David Chalmers, Simon Glendenning, Michael Rosen, Simon Critchely, Graham Harman, Levi Bryant and Brian Leiter. Conclusion. A river which flowed for a thousand years crashed in the twentieth century and began spreading, thinning and draining. It was a river which sent out a message first written by Faust and repeated along the way by Descartes, Hume, Kant, Hegel all the major philosophers in the West. The message stated that man's consciousness is not conscious of anything beyond itself and that the physical objects which man perceives do not exist because man perceives them, and that man sees nothing because he can see something. In the twenty first century, this river has carried the message of the latest Faustians onward in its final journey and vanished in the swamplands of pure psychosis.

REDS OPEN UP THE ABYSS

The word abyss has many meanings. It can be defined as a deep, bottomless chasm, or as a profound difference separating people or cultures, or as regions of hell viewed as a pit, or as a ruinous, catastrophic situation. Students of history and culture who have surveyed the course of the West in the present day have been compelled to employ this word in all four of its meanings because what they have observed is a situation which they can scarcely believe with their own eyes. They intellectually comprehend what is happening and why it is happening but find it exceedingly difficult to actually look at it and perceive it fully in all its evil, sinister and sordid character. They know that the present state of the West is a raging torrent of cultural degeneration which represents the culminating point of a one hundred year old development of mob protest against the rule of reason and enlightenment. They know that this popular protest against reason is the inevitable symptom of all cultures in a state of decline, and that just as the ancient Classical world had struck itself down by its acceptance of unreason in the persons of the Germans and the Christians, so the West has struck itself down by its acceptance of unreason in the persons of red agitators and red propagandists, and has hurled itself into a chasm and pit, into regions of hell and damnation, and into unmitigated scenes of destruction which have demarcated a night versus day polarity between it and civilized societies. Students of history and culture know this pathological phenomenon; they have seen it develop in culture after culture throughout history; they shun looking at it up close in their native culture of the West; but they are determined as dedicated professionals in the service of their discipline and in the service of posterity to record everything they see and hear. The results of their observations of the decline and fall of the West consists of a large volume replete with ugly, frightening, unpleasant forms which between big two covers comprises an inventory of everything which is wrong with the mob, the masses, main street and the man next door. They have seen innocent, light hearted, children's cartoons canceled by the reds on the grounds that they are racist. They have seen the reds reinterpret the Constitution and remove all protections of private property, economic freedom, associational privacy and the right to discriminate in private business establishments. They have seen the reds condemn all past Western culture as racist. They have seen a raging sea monster called the MeToo movement devour every male in its sight, including fellow reds such as New York Governor Andrew Cuomo, on the basis of accusations without evidence, accusations which are false, and accusations which are frivolous which allege improper speech and nonconsensual touching, kissing, looking and invitations to dinner. They have seen world renowned children's author Dr Suess canceled by the reds on the grounds that his books are racist. They have seen the world renowned Disney films Peter Pan, Dumbo, The Aristocats and Swiss Family Robinson canceled by the reds on the grounds that they are racist. They have seen the reds of the Coca Cola Company implement a diversity quota for outside counsel under which the company will only hire law firms which give thirty percent of billed time to lawyers who are women, blacks, hispanics, homosexuals and transgenders and fifteen percent of billed time to blacks: "Law firms must commit that at least thirty percent of each of billed associate and partner time will be from diverse attorneys, and of such amounts at least half will be from black attorneys." (Letter from Bradley Gayton, senior vice president and general counsel of the Coca-Cola Company, to the company's outside counsel). Students of history and culture have seen the reds pass the For the People Act in the United States House of Representatives, the purpose of which is to give the Democrat Party a structural advantage in winning elections and ensure red election victories for all time to come. The provisions of the bill include the following: the nationalization of presidential elections and establishment of a national vote by mail system without voter identification requirements; the establishment of red controlled bureaucracies to draw congressional districts; and the endorsement of statehood for Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia, which will guarantee the permanent election of four red senators. Look at the world of the reds and see universities hold virtual graduation ceremonies segregated by gender, race, ethnicity, class and culture. See individuals judged on the basis of the achievements of their groups and not on the basis of their own merits. See the worth of people held to reside in their service and contributions to their gender, race and cultural communities and not in their work on behalf of themselves. See the proclamation that a progressive society is a racially and ethnically profiled society. See the proclamation that sex has no genetic, biological basis and is changeable by human agency, and that transgender women are real women and transgender men are real men. See race and gender chauvinism, prejudice and swastika street politics promoted in the name of equity, diversity and inclusion. See street brawling and window smashing promoted in the name of social justice, community involvement and the rights of the poor. See communist campus bosses shutting down academic endeavors which are opposed to the red party line. See the liberal democratic system mauled to death inside the foaming jaws of red activists, red identitarians, red coalitions, red intersectionalists, red multiculturalists, red students, red graduates, red professors and red alumni, and see the clock of human history sent racing back to the year zero when tribes bloodied the earth

preaching the survival of the strongest and the struggle for power: "When Columbia University in New York City holds its virtual graduation ceremonies for the Class of 2021, it wants to be sure that there are separate ones for certain identity groups. 'Complementing our school and university wide ceremonies, these events provide a more intimate setting for students and guests to gather, incorporate meaningful cultural traditions and celebrate the specific contributions and achievements of their communities,' the Ivy League university said in announcing a series of graduation ceremonies designed for those groups Columbia has deemed special. The ceremonies begin with one for Native Americans on April 25. Next comes what is called Lavender Graduation to spotlight the 'LGBTQAISA+community' on April 26. On April 27, the university will hold a ceremony for Asian students, followed by one for low income students and those who are the first generation in their family to graduate from college. The series of racially profiled ceremonies continues April 29 with one for Hispanic students--billed as Latinx Graduation to reflect current liberal language--and concludes April 30 with a ceremony for black graduates. Columbia's website says those will be bestowed upon students who 'have demonstrated an outstanding commitment to inclusion, global diversity, social justice and multiculturalism through Multicultural Affairs, campus leadership, activism, community involvement, academic endeavors and/or personal dedication.' 'Worn in the various graduation ceremonies, the graduation cords are also a powerful visual symbol of our new graduates' ongoing commitment as alumni in continuing and sharing the office's mission of supporting personal development, advancing the strength within communities, acknowledging diversity in the different aspects of their lives, working toward social justice, honoring our different and intersecting legacies of struggle and survival and building meaningful coalitions across different identities,' the university says." (Ivy League University Holding Separate Graduations Based On Race, Income, Sexual Orientation by Jack Davis). Look at the world of the reds and see nations transformed into freedom zones for the mentally disturbed who reject the findings of science and proclaim that gender is variable and can be changed by means of chemicals and surgery. See those who sufferer from gender dysphoria and gender psychosis granted fundamental rights and legal recognition to be treated as members of the opposite sex. See courts, parliaments, presidents, prime ministers and the people around the corner in every nation of the West raise their hands and vote yes to a motion, a resolution, a proposal and a proposition to abolish the traditions and institutions of reason, sanity, science and civilization: "The European Parliament has overwhelming adopted a resolution declaring the entire twenty seven member European Union to be a 'freedom zone' for LGBT people. The European Parliament's resolution said the fundamental rights of LGBT people have also been 'severely hindered' recently in Hungary, due to a de facto ban on legal gender recognition for transgender and intersex people." (Parliament Votes To Declare Entire EU An LGBT 'Freedom Zone' by the Associated Press). At the dawn of the twentieth century, a fissure appeared on the surface of civilization. Created by the thundering plate tectonics of red mob politics, this fissure widened with every passing decade. In the twenty first century, a vast, gaping, black hole has swallowed up the sun of human progress and grasped and crushed human liberty within the fearsome mouthparts of red totalitarian tyranny.

THE NEW RED DEMOGRAPHY

Over the past decades, college educated voters have made up a larger and larger share of the red vote across the West, while those without college education have increasingly dominated the opposition. Election analysts have determined that college educated adults comprise fifteen percent of the electorate and that of this group over sixty percent vote red. This state of affairs was unknown prior to the new millennium, when for years college educated voters supported rightist parties by margins of two to one, while noncollege educated voters supported the reds by the same margins. In 1952, the American National Election Studies surveys reported that college educated voters venerated the Republican Party as the party of Lincoln, the party of freedom and liberty, the party of limited government and constitutional rights, and the party of America and the American way. In the 1952 and 1956 presidential elections, college educated voters gave their support in overwhelming numbers to Republican President Dwight Eisenhower. Students of history and politics know the reason why college educated voters have shifted their allegiance to the reds and see it as clearly and plainly as they see the noonday sun. They know that over the past decades institutions of higher education have abandoned their traditional mission of transmitting truth and knowledge and become centers of ideological indoctrination and veritable assembly lines churning out gender, race and class agitators by the millions. They see in today's university students the seeds of tomorrow's looming catastrophe and the end of organized social existence as civilized people have known and understood it for hundreds of years. They see red dyed insanity promoted on every square meter of every college and university in the West and the students who have absorbed and assimilated it becoming monsters and assassins ready strike down in an instant the voices, the figures, the symbols and the culture of the liberal capitalist order. They see on college campuses a movement of antienlightenment and counterenlightenment the likes of which they have never seen before in their studies of other ages and epochs of the West, and a movement which has compelled them to consider as the closest parallel the dying days of Rome, when the currents of statism, welfarism, Christianity and Germanism came together and formed a massive tidal wave which smashed the pagan traditions of reason and liberty and rendered Classical civilization a dead letter. They have looked into a red invasion and a red nightmare and seen red miniführers graduated from college classrooms streaming outward with orders to kill and destroy. These are tomorrow's leaders, intellectuals, professors, pundits and people living right next door and their votes have consolidated the new red majority which has swept away freedom in the West. Students of history and politics have heard their shouting and the shouting of their teachers and what they have heard has blasted their ear drums and sent them hurtling across space and crashing beneath the rubble of human advancement achieved over the centuries. This is what the reds on campus have told them and this is why they know beyond the shadow of a doubt the reason college educated voters are helping the reds win election after election and why college educated voters are the gravediggers of the West. Broadcasting in stentorian waves their program and manifesto of revolution and subversion, the red teachers and professors in control of higher education today have proclaimed that the restaurant Panda Express is a racist and colonialist business and should be boycotted because of its "cultural appropriation of Chinese culture", its "Americanized Chinese food" and its "Americanized panda logo". They have proclaimed that gendered words such as father and mother must be expunged from society in favor of more inclusive nongendered language. They have proclaimed that a progressive society subjects antireds to relentless, across the board deplatforming. They have proclaimed that a progressive society subjects antireds to a ruthless onslaught of dismissal campaigns. They have proclaimed that a progressive society subjects antireds to social media mob attacks. They have proclaimed that a progressive university subjects antireds on campus to open letters of protest, formal complaints from deans and administrators, and severe disciplinary actions. They have

proclaimed that a progressive university silences the free expression of ideas and opinions and cancels antired academics and doctoral students. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is an illiberal society which destroys the careers of antireds and renders their workplace life intolerable. They have proclaimed that a progressive university has established a regime of discrimination against antired professors in the areas of hiring, promotion, publishing, grant applications, allocation of teaching tasks, allocation of research tasks, and respect and civility at the workplace. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has established a hostile climate for the expression of antired beliefs and has put up structural barriers to the advancement of antireds. They have proclaimed that a progressive university has compelled antired professors in the social sciences and the humanities to censor themselves in their teaching and research and to adhere to the red party line in the areas of race, gender and sexuality. They have proclaimed that a progressive university has prohibited viewpoint diversity everywhere on campus and condemned liberal value commitments as threat to the safety and security of women, nonwhites, homosexuals and transgenders. They have proclaimed that a progressive university has removed Chaucer's The Canterbury Tales and the Anglo-Saxon epic poem Beowulf from its coursework on the grounds that these works are racist and colonialist. They have proclaimed that a progressive university has removed from its coursework the study of one thousand years of English language and literature and replaced them with studies on gender, race, ethnicity and diversity. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has prohibited all forms of gardening on the grounds that knowledge about botany and the scientific categorization of plants is rooted in colonialism, imperialism, slavery, racial inequality, racial injustice, white privilege, capitalist exploitation, and hatred of blacks and Asians. Look at the world of today's tenured radicals and student social justice hoodlums and see language related to sex and gender subjected to politically mandated erasure and falsification. See the facts of science denied and the fixed, genetic basis of sex rejected. See sex proclaimed to be fluid, indeterminate and changeable by human agency. See the proclamation that binary gender terms, such as man/woman and girl/boy, have no basis in reality and can be applied equally to males and females. See the proclamation that those who have an internal sense of being members of the opposite sex must be treated as members of the opposite sex. See the proclamation that those who describe themselves as members of the opposite sex must be granted legal recognition as being members of the opposite sex. See the proclamation that those who have changed their internal and external reproductive organs and undergone hormonal treatment to make them appear like members of the opposite sex are in fact and in reality members of the opposite sex. See the proclamation that transgender women are real women, transgender men are real men, and those who identify as neither male nor female are in fact and in reality neither male nor female. See the proclamation that those who identify as being both male and female at one and the same time are in fact and in reality both male and female at one and the same time. See the proclamation that a progressive society does not make sex distinctions in its language and uses gender neutral terms at all times in the recognition that not every person is a male or a female and that some people are neither male nor female while others are both male and female at one and the same time: "The language around sex and gender identity is evolving constantly and it is important to understand the difference between them. Sex is biological (male, female or intersex) and relates to genes, internal/external reproductive organs and hormones inherited at birth. Gender can be fixed or fluid and refers to our internal sense of who we are and how we see and describe ourselves. Binary gender terms (man/woman, girl/boy) have traditional associations with sex, but we now recognize how some people identify with a gender opposite to that assigned to them as a child (trans) and others identify neither as men nor women (nonbinary or genderfluid). We use gender neutral terms, rather than those that make sex distinction:

- You or they/their/them, not he/she or him/her
- People/person or individual(s), rather than man/men or woman/women
- Everyone/colleagues, rather than ladies and gentlemen/guys
- Parent or guardian, rather than mother or father
- Partner, rather than husband or wife
- Sibling, rather than brother or sister
- Artificial or synthetic, rather than man made
- Humankind, not mankind
- Workforce, not manpower
- We provide cover or staff, rather than men." (StaffNet, Manchester University).

The fundamental precept of common sense philosophy is that when we perceive physical objects, it is physical objects which we see, and not our own forms, perceptions ideas or representations of physical objects. Students of history and politics have seen today's college educated voters support red parties in numbers without precedent in history and have seen these voters guarantee permanent victory for the reds. Just as physical objects and nothing else but physical objects are perceived whenever we look at them, students of history and politics have seen the reason this shift of college educated voters to the left has occurred. They have seen this reason clearly, directly, distinctly and with all the self evident certainty with which they perceive physical objects. The reason is the red colors in which today's colleges and universities are painted from top to bottom and the miasma of gender, race and class hatred which overhangs and fouls every cubic meter of oxygen left.

THE GRIM MENTOR

The term mentor is a popular word in the English language. People use it to mean a trusted advisor and counselor and one who possess the requisite wisdom and experience to train and coach others. Mentors have played prominent roles in the lives of many people by giving them the guidance they have needed to proceed successfully on their life's path. The word is also used as a verb and those who mentor others are common sights in families, neighborhoods, summer camps, workplaces and college campuses. Civilized people view mentors as outstandingly good people who exemplify what it means to be honest and upright and this is why they place their confidence in them and recommend them to their friends and colleagues. The notion of an evil mentor, a mentor who is dedicated, not to the success and improvement of those under his care but to their total destruction as morally flourishing human beings, would be regarded by them as something unimaginable and unthinkable and as a contradiction in terms. If they ever saw such a hideous figure walking among them, they would move to strike him down in an instant with all the power and might at their disposal. Civilized people today have beheld such a figure, but not in physical form. They have beheld it as a phantom, a wraith, a specter and a presence existing all around them and have recoiled in abject fear and horror at what they have seen. This form is everywhere in the West today and exhales violence and aggression inside everyone high and low, and represents Satan's emissary, envoy, minister, and special agent sent to mentor and maul to death nations and societies. This specter represents the spirit of the times and has taugth and stoked the fires of the last two generations, and for the past half century has provided the clearest signs that something dark, unpleasant and nightmarish is occurring right before one's very eyes: the destruction of civilization. This person was a community activist and political theorist active from the 1940s through to the 1960s. In 1940, he founded a communist community organizing network called Industrial Areas Foundation, which has sixty five affiliates and associated entities in America, Canada, Britain, Germany and Australia, and in 1971, toward the end of his life, he wrote Rules For Radicals: A Pragmatic Primer For Realistic Radicals, which offers guidance and advice on how to run a communist movement and obtain for the reds social, political, legal and economic power. His name was Saul Alinsky and civilized people who have studied his thought have seen a program and manifesto for the overthrow of the Western liberal democratic order and the dissolution of one thousand years of human advancement symbolized in Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence. A fire breathing, scythe wielding, hooded, horned and tailed guide for the creation of a postEnlightenment jungle, Alinsky's program proclaims that a progressive society is a violent, revolutionary force which looks at liberal constitutional order and cries "Burn the system down!" It proclaims that a progressive society is guided by a religion, the Marxist religion of dialectical materialism, and this religion provides the indispensable basis for its advocacy of war and conflict and its gender, race and class politics. It proclaims that free societies are materialistic, decadent, bourgeois and bankrupt and must be replaced the people's progressive system of red totalitarian tyranny. It proclaims that capitalism is a moral and spiritual hell which has led the people into the sordid dens of drugs and alcohol, and produced divorces, ulcers and high blood pressure, and the only path to the people's salvation lies in the abolition of individual rights and the socialization, nationalization and collectivist crushing of the human spirit. It proclaims that a progressive society has rejected liberal charters of rights and freedoms and is an activist, participatory democracy which sanctions bombings and murder in the name of liberation for women, nonwhites and the poor. It proclaims that a progressive society has modeled itself after the communist revolutions in Russia and China and established a way of life demanding mental and physical servitude, which alone can give meaning and order to people's lives. It proclaims that moral values are relative and fluid and what is right is whatever at the moment serves the goal of community power. It proclaims that a progressive society teaches its citizens that welfare benefits are human entitlements and that killing and dying in the name of tribal empowerment is the highest human calling. It proclaims that a progressive society is a far left society which peddles madness, destruction and a cult of death in the name of the victimized, the marginalized, the exploited and the oppressed. It proclaims that a progressive society is an everturning kaleidoscope of tribes and ideologies which are united by their passionate hatred of liberal capitalism and the rule of law. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of hatred, bigotry and white fascist racism. It proclaims that an effective people's revolutionary leader is flexible as regards the means of imposing communism. If he is outgunned, he advocates peaceful, democratic change to achieve communism, while if he possesses the requisite force, then he stages a coup. In his lying and deception, he takes as his model and guide Soviet leader Vladimir Lenin: " 'Power comes out of the barrel of a gun!' is an absurd rallying cry when the other side has all the guns. Lenin was a pragmatist; when he returned to what was then Petrograd from exile, he said that the Bolsheviks stood for getting power through the ballot but would reconsider after they got the guns!" (Rules For Radicals: A Pragmatic Primer For Realistic Radicals by Saul Alinsky). Alinsky's program proclaims that a progressive society has gone to the academies of the communist regimes in Soviet Russia, Maoist China and Castro's Cuba; it organizes Red Guards and stages cultural revolutions; and it orders bombings, shootouts, purges, cancellations and executions against the voices of liberal dissent. It proclaims acts of murder and mayhem in the name of social justice are the highest revolutionary acts. It proclaims that a progressive society has done away with law and order and all political systems and is pure gangsterism, pure psychosis and pure jungle warfare conducted in the name of the people. It proclaims that a progressive political leader is a mass murderer who commits his crimes in the name of the marginalized, the victimized and the oppressed. It proclaims that an effective red political leader does not, in a civilized, liberal society, openly and directly advocate mass murder but advocates it behind a political mask, until such time as he achieves power and implements socialism, when he can openly and directly promote the antilaw, antipolitical, socialist religion of pure violence. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the dignity and worth of the individual and sacrifices freedom and liberty upon the altars of the common good and the interests of gender, race and class tribes. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the notion of personal identity as a bourgeois construct and exalts group identity and loyalty to the state and community. Look at the netherworld of Saul Alinsky and see the psychopath's eternal proclamation that the end justifies the means. See the condemnation of the principle embraced by civilized people throughout history that evil and corrupt means produce evil and corrupt ends. See evil means justified on pragmatic and strategic grounds, and good means justified solely on pragmatic and strategic grounds, and human morality proclaimed to lack all absolute ground and justification. See conscience and virtue condemned as liberal phantoms and human action proclaimed to be an eternal struggle of the will to power. See mass murder justified in the name of collective salvation and the common good and those who reject the use of force and violence condemned as uncaring toward the welfare of others and toward the plight of the oppressed: "Life and how you live it is the story of means and ends. The end is what you want, and the means is how you get it. Whenever we think about social change, the question of means and ends arises. The man of action views the issue of means and ends in pragmatic and strategic terms. He has no other problem; he thinks only of his actual resources and the possibilities of various choices of action. He asks of ends only whether they are achievable and worth the cost; of means, only whether they will work. To say that corrupt means corrupt the ends is to believe in the immaculate conception of ends and principles. The real arena is corrupt and bloody. Life is a corrupting process from the time a child learns to play his mother off against his father in the politics of when to go to bed; he who fears corruption fears life. The practical revolutionary will understand Goethe's 'conscience is the virtue of observers and not of agents of action'; in action, one does not always enjoy the luxury of a decision that is consistent both with one's individual conscience and the good of mankind. The choice must always be for the latter. Action is for mass salvation and not for the individual's personal salvation. He who sacrifices the mass good for his personal conscience has a peculiar conception of personal salvation; he doesn't care enough for people to be corrupted for them." (Rules For Radicals: A Pragmatic Primer For Realistic Radicals by Saul Alinsky). The list of prominent figures guided and inspired by the teachings of Alinsky comprises a veritable who's who of the Western cultural, political and academic establishment. Headed by Barack Obama, Hilary Clinton, Bernie Sanders, Elizabeth Warren, Alexandra Ocasio Cortez, and the leadership of red political parties throughout Europe and America, the list is a serpentine litany of treason and subversion which has wound its way into homes and neighborhoods and strangled the voices of liberty.

REDS BANKRUPT THE NATION

The Titanic was a British passenger liner and the largest ship in the world when it was built and was held to be unsinkable. In April 1912, the supposedly unsinkable Titanic struck an iceberg on its maiden voyage and sank and led to the loss of 1,500 lives. Held to be impregnable against catastrophic economic collapse, the West is fast approaching collapse by the reds' relentless campaign of printing money. For centuries, money in the West was backed by gold; this precious metal represented paper currencies and was seen as the ultimate store of wealth and value. From 1879 to 1933, the American dollar was backed by gold and people were able to exchange their paper dollars for equivalent amounts of gold. In 1933, President Franklin Roosevelt ended domestic gold convertibility because he wanted to print vast amounts of money to finance the burgeoning New Deal welfare state. In 1971, President Richard Nixon ended international gold convertibility and prevented foreign governments from trading their American dollars for gold. The reds abolished the gold standard because they did not want to place objective limits on how much money the government could print and wanted a limitless government creation of money to help finance their regime of cradle to grave, top to bottom welfare. The result of this establishment of an unbacked fiat currency was a sharp devaluation of the dollar and the onset of an age of worthless paper. Over the past half century, the effects of the reds' regime of inconvertible paper money has been a stratospheric increase in the amount of paper money in circulation and a corresponding increase in prices. This price inflation has seen the average cost of a new automobile increase from 3,500 dollars in 1972 to 41,000 dollars in 2021. It has seen the cost of college tuition increase by 3,009 percent during this period. It has seen per capita health care spending increase from 353 dollars in 1970 to 12,000 dollars today. It has seen twenty five percent of all the dollars in circulation printed in one year: 2021. Look at the world of the red money presses and see a world of runaway rents, healthcare costs and water prices. See a world in which the basic necessities of life have been placed out of reach of the average man. See a tidal wave of fiat money flooding into the economy, stimulating consumer spending to sky high levels, and sweeping away people's wages, salaries, savings and pensions. See a Weimar type vortex of state counterfeited currency, state induced spending and state induced price increases move and push its way into every village, town, suburb and metropolitan area in the world and render goods and services unaffordable as it grinds the people's standard of living into the dust: "Despite years of misinformation, the American people haven't been fooled. We have seen the reports of rising rent, rising healthcare costs, water shortages, and other expenses creeping up. The numbers don't add up. How can inflation be so low while the prices of fundamental necessities keep rising? Alternative sources of inflationary data provide valuable insights. The Chapwood Index uses its own basket of goods to determine price increases across various metropolitan areas. 'It exposes why middle class Americans—salaried workers who are given routine pay hikes and retirees who depend on annual increases in their corporate pension and Social Security payments—can't maintain their standard of living.' The index tracks price changes for 500 goods used by many Americans. San Jose, CA had the highest 5 year average inflation at 13.2%. San Francisco, CA wasn't far behind with 12.9% inflation. Out of the 50 cities tracked, not a single one had 5 year inflation below 7%." (True Inflation Exceeds 7% by Brian Shuster). Look at the world of the red money presses and see the quantity of currency in circulation, put there by state fiat and decree, drive up consumer prices with the force of rocket propulsion. See the twin furies of an inflated money supply and inflated prices and wages link up as cause and effect and work together to ravage people, states and societies: "The quantity of currency in circulation has a direct impact on prices of consumer goods. With relatively clear exponential growth, the M2 money supply provides a solid data source to determine annualized increases in currency, which ultimately contribute to higher prices. From 1975 to 2016, the M2 money supply increased from $998B to $13,140B, representing an average increase of 6.5% per year. Interestingly, M2's rise is significantly larger than the 3.7% average annual inflation reported by the BLS over the same time period. The increase in M1 money is even more unsettling, averaging 8.2% over the last 20 years." (True Inflation Exceeds 7% by Brian Shuster). Look at the world of the red money presses and see inflated money supplies producing inflated costs of education, costs which have shocked and dismayed responsible citizens. See the annual cost of a four year public university increase by over 3,000 percent in fifty years. See the annual cost of a four year private university increase by over 2,000 percent in fifty years. See the cost of a college education mocking people's incomes and vastly exceeding their ability to pay. See the cost of college tuition and college fees burying students in avalanches of unpayable debt. See student loan debt spreading and growing like wildfire, exploding into trillion dollar stratospheric levels, and scorching lives, careers, families and households with the white hot flames of insolvency and ruination: "From 1969 to 2019, the average annual cost of a four year public school has soared 3,009 percent. The average annual cost of a four year private school has jumped 2,310 percent. Today, the average American needs to earn about $22,000 more than the current median income to afford college. Back in 1968-1969, the cost of a four year public school was $329, according to National Center for Education Statistics data and based on averaging tuition and fees at four year universities and other four year colleges. Nowadays, according to The College Board, a public four year school costs $10,230 in tuition and fees. Private schools also saw a large surge in tuition prices, but not as much as public schools. In 1968-1969, the cost of a four year private school was $1,487, growing to $35,830 by 2018-2019. When you adjust these dollar figures for inflation, the change is smaller, but still unsettling. For instance, $329 for a public four year school in 1969 adjusted for inflation is $2,323. That works out to an increase of 340 percent from 1969 to 2019 with inflation included, or nearly three and a half times the cost in the past. For private schools, the inflation-adjusted price of tuition and fees was $10,499. With a current cost of tuition and fees at $35,830, that works out to an increase of 241 percent. The effects of this rise in college tuition cost is the proliferation of student loans—and far worse, student loan debt. In fact, student loan debt, according to the New York Federal Reserve, has reached a record new high of $1.46 trillion in the fourth quarter of 2018, up from $1.44 trillion. Student loan debt has more than doubled in a decade." (Average Cost of College Has Jumped an Incredible 3,009% In 50 Years by Andrew DePietro). Look at the world of the red money presses and see blazing currents of inflated prices robbing people of their wealth and value. See consumers and producers sustaining permanent, long term damage from the conflagration of inflation. See this sinister whirlwind sweep up wages, profits, assets and investments and hurl them into the rubble of a collapsed and bankrupt civilization: "The inflation that is dangerous is broad based and long lasting. It robs people of value. They may have as many dollars as before, but the dollars are worth less. Inflation also biases decisions as consumers and businesses adjust their affairs to reduce their damage. Inflation can cause businesses to show fake profits that would be subject to taxation. For example, a retailer usually earns a markup, the difference between wholesale price and retail price. With inflation, the retailer also collects the amount by which prices rose while the product was on the shelf. But this is fake profit because when the product is sold, the retailer will have to replace it at a high price. This fake profit is fully taxable. Businesses can mitigate this damage, but that involves doing things that otherwise would be unprofitable. The overall economy is damaged. Similarly, investors may sell an asset at a dollar profit but not an economic profit. If prices rise 10%, and my investment goes up 13%, then I'm only up 3% in purchasing power. The government, though, will tax me on my entire 13% profit, leaving me with less purchasing power than I had started with." (Inflation Has Not Shown Up Yet, But It's Coming by Bill Conerly). On April 15, 1912 in the North Atlantic Ocean, the RMS Titanic, en route from Southampton to New York City, struck an iceberg and established the deadliest peacetime sinking of a cruise ship. Responsible people governed by the precepts of common sense see a hole torn in the hull of the West and see the ship of civilization sinking rapidly. They understand that insofar as money represents real wealth, it cannot be arbitrarily created any more than real wealth can be arbitrarily created. They understand that nothing comes from nothing. They understand that when the government prints money which is not backed by gold, it does not print real money but prints counterfeit money. They understand that when this counterfeit money floods into a nation, spending increases, prices increase, the value or the purchasing power of the money decreases, the money become worthless, and the nation becomes bankrupt because it has run out of money. This price inflation, caused by vast amounts of fiat money in circulation, is the hole torn in the hull of the West. The rich and the poor, the captain, the crew and their passengers, and every man, woman and child alive, have gone down. There are no lifeboats anywhere. Death stalks the dark waters.

THE RED SCHOOLMASTER

The little red schoolhouse occupies a storied place in American history. It was celebrated as an outpost in rural wastelands where poor children could learn academic subjects by dedicated teachers and graduate with knowledge of how to read and write, how to calculate, and a knowledge of American history and civilization. Civilized people in the twentieth century never imagined in their worst nightmares that the little red schoolhouse dedicated to academic excellence would one day soon house monsters masquerading as teachers whose aim and mission was not to educate young minds but to poison and cripple them with the dogmas of pragmatic truth, self sacrifice and abject service to the community. Yet in the early years of the twentieth century, this is precisely what happened and the transformation of American schools from centers of education into centers of indoctrination has robbed four generations of their ability to think and flourish as rational, virtuous, self perfecting human beings. The first monster to stalk the nation's classrooms, the chief trendsetter of the new wave of antieducation and the preeminent philosopher of the new campaign of indoctrination was John Dewey, and the program and manifesto he set forth for a new school curriculum has made American education unrecognizable from the system of academic instruction prevalent in the nation prior to the twentieth century. Exalted by the reds in control of America as the "Father of Progressive Education", Dewey proclaimed that a progressive school rejects academic instruction in favor of hands on projects, experiential learning and school trips. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects academic instruction in favor of office and factory training. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects individual student achievement in favor of group work and the development of social skills. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects individual thinking and learning in favor of collaborative thinking and cooperative learning. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects the teaching of individual rights in favor of the inculcation of social responsibility and social democracy. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects the notion of human dignity and promotes the ideal of community service. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects the use of textbooks in favor of ad hoc handouts and rule of thumb instruction. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects moral absolutes and teaches that the good is that which advances social needs and interests and that the only proper form of ethics is situational ethics. He proclaimed that a progressive school system devalues individual existence and teaches students the primacy of social consciousness and social participation. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects the existence of absolute truth and teaches students that truth is an expression of national requirements and social exigencies. He proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches students that man is a social being and not an individual being or a rational being and that his highest good is to share and partake in society. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects the tradition of academic lessons, the promotion of academic habits and the transmission of academic information in favor of job training and vocational instruction. He proclaimed that a progressive school system views teachers not as authoritative figures who impart knowledge to students but as social facilitators and counselors who assist students in their service to the state and society. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects the teaching of academic subjects such as science, history and language and in favor of instruction in cooking, sewing, manual training and industrial arts. He proclaimed that a progressive school system rejects the traditional role of a student as an absorber of absolute, context free information and creates the role of the student as an absorber of the means to advance, reform, reconstruct and reempower society. He proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches students that the meaning of human existence resides in participation in the life of society and seeks to shape the student's powers, saturate his mind, form his habits, train his ideas, discipline his will and arouse his feels and emotions so that he may become the most efficient and productive instrument of such participation. Look at the world of John Dewey and see schools transformed into transmission belts of red power. See the traditional liberal ideals of human freedom and the inviolate dignity of the human person marched off to charnel houses, sent up Calvary Hill and executed in killing fields and crucifixes marked social education, social regulation, social adjustment, social consciousness, social reconstruction, social willing, social acting, social life, social character, social rights, social motives, social profit, social resources, social duty, social experience, social adaptation, social training, social emotion, social feeling, social formation, social service, social growth, social motives, social economy, social action, social agitation and social power. See the high priests of socialist pedagogy and the classroom mutilators of the human mind drill, pound and force into students the slogans and bywords of the dogma that the individual possesses no rational nature or essence, no real, physical, separate existence, and should live his life as a grovelling slave and serve the whims of an almighty executive, commander, monarch and deity called the Community: "I believe that education is the fundamental method of social progress and reform. I believe that all reforms which rest simply upon the enactment of law, or the threatening of certain penalties, or upon changes in mechanical or outward arrangements, are transitory and futile. I believe that education is a regulation of the process of coming to share in the social consciousness; and that the adjustment of individual activity on the basis of this social consciousness is the only sure method of social reconstruction. I believe that this conception has due regard for both the individualistic and socialistic ideals. It is duly individual because it recognizes the formation of a certain character as the only genuine basis of right living. It is socialistic because it recognizes that this right character is not to be formed by merely individual precept, example, or exhortation, but rather by the influence of a certain form of institutional or community life upon the individual, and that the social organism through the school, as its organ, may determine ethical results. I believe that in the ideal school we have the reconciliation of the individualistic and the institutional ideals. I believe that the community's duty to education is, therefore, its paramount moral duty. By law and punishment, by social agitation and discussion, society can regulate and form itself in a more or less haphazard and chance way. But through education society can formulate its own purposes, can organize its own means and resources, and thus shape itself with definiteness and economy in the direction in which it wishes to move. I believe that when society once recognizes the possibilities in this direction, and the obligations which these possibilities impose, it is impossible to conceive of the resources of time, attention, and money which will be put at the disposal of the educator. I believe it is the business of every one interested in education to insist upon the school as the primary and most effective instrument of social progress and reform in order that society may be awakened to realize what the school stands for, and aroused to the necessity of endowing the educator with sufficient equipment properly to perform his task. I believe that education thus conceived marks the most perfect and intimate union of science and art conceivable in human experience. I believe that the art of thus giving shape to human powers and adapting them to social service, is the supreme art; one calling into its service the best of artists; that no insight, sympathy, tact, executive power is too great for such service. I believe that with the growth of psychological science, giving added insight into individual structure and laws of growth; and with growth of social science, adding to our knowledge of the right organization of individuals, all scientific resources can be utilized for the purposes of education. I believe that when science and art thus join hands the most commanding motive for human action will be reached; the most genuine springs of human conduct aroused and the best service that human nature is capable of guaranteed. I believe, finally, that the teacher is engaged, not simply in the training of individuals, but in the formation of the proper social life. I believe that every teacher should realize the dignity of his calling; that he is a social servant set apart for the maintenance of proper social order and the securing of the right social growth." (My Pedagogic Creed by John Dewey). In 1921 in New York City, a disciple of John Dewey named Elizabeth Irwin established the Little Red School House as the city's first school devoted to Dewey's Progressive Education system. Inside the school, masquerading as teachers, were Dewey's agents on a mission to exploit their captive human material. Preaching that reality is an indeterminate flux which can be anything society wants it to be, that truth and falsehood are determined by majority vote, and that conformity to the pack and usefulness to society are the supreme ends of human existence, Dewey's alien compradors from the land of Satan conquered America's leading metropolis. They linked up the East with the West and composed an epitaph on the tombstone of the nation which read: Long Live The Strength, The Will And The Primacy of the Mob.

REDS HUNT THE RICH

Hatred wears many faces and travels under many names. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, hatred has been the exclusive preserve of the reds and a triple headed monster called identity politics has sprayed out jet fuels of hatred under the colors of gender, race and class. In America, the purveyors of class hatred have found their preeminent national voice in the United States Democrat Party and have seen their crusade against financial success bring forth a plan by the party to impose wide ranging, confiscatory taxes upon the rich. Under the leadership of the Democrats, the present day movement of class war politics has issued a program and manifesto to sweep away human liberty and the rule of law and establish a reign of red terror which will garotte human achievement as it strangles the spirit of human civilization. Indulging their insatiable appetite to appeal to mob envy and maul to death the producers of wealth, the latest enemies of civilized social existence have proclaimed that a progressive society seizes trillions of dollars of wealth from its productive citizens and distributes the proceeds to its sewage gutters and underground canals. It has proclaimed that a progressive society imposes an exit tax on the producers to prevent them from leaving to escape confiscation of their wealth. It has proclaimed that a progressive society imposes taxes on households and trusts which will make them the property of the state. It has proclaimed that a progressive society owns the billions and trillions which individuals have produced by virtue of their intelligence and ability. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has repealed and rewritten the United States Constitution, whose Article One prohibits "capitation or other direct taxes" or taxes on personal property. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has increased the collection army at the Internal Revenue Service in order to tax all the real estate and luxury items in the nation. It has proclaimed that a progressive society conducts audits on all the taxpayers in the nation in order to tax everything they own, from their art objects to their automobiles. It has proclaimed that a progressive society levies captivity taxes on successful people at rates of one hundred percent in order to imprison them in the dungeons of social justice. It has proclaimed that a progressive society subjects talented and ambitious earners of wealth to comprehensive, round the clock, official inspections of everything they own and takes away their Rembrandts, their portfolios, their diamonds, their mansions, their yachts and their fundamental human dignity and personhood. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is skilled in the black arts of taking wealth away from those who have earned it and placing it into the hands of those who have not. It has proclaimed that a progressive society gives the poor and incompetent everything they want to eat and sets a table of feasts for them laid out with the Grim Reaper's scythes to let them carve up the rich. It has proclaimed that a progressive society gives the denizens of the cesspools free health care and free college education paid for by taxes on the property of the righteous and the exemplary. It has proclaimed that a progressive society gives blacks reparation payments for slavery which existed one hundred and fifty years ago, payments taken from trillions of dollars seized from whites. It has proclaimed that those who produce wealth by virtue of superior work and effort comprise a class of robber barons who must give back everything they have earned to society. It has proclaimed that a progressive society taxes income and wealth at a rate of one hundred percent in order to support those who choose not to work and places these idlers on thrones of diamond and gold. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has instituted a reign of tax violence against the wealthy and reshaped human character to make people love abject slavery and beg for a life of service to their neighbor. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has taken stock of all the wealth produced in its precincts, totaled up the hundreds of trillions, taken this wealth out of the wrong hands, out of the hands of those who created it, and placed it into the right hands, into the hands of the parasites, the drifters and the scum of the earth. It has proclaimed that a progressive society ensures that rich people do their part to support the masses by subjecting them to a tax of one hundred percent on all their wealth. It has proclaimed that a progressive society bankrolls its cradle to grave welfare eiderdown from a vault of stolen wealth filled to overflowing by corporate taxes, capital gains taxes, asset taxes and wealth taxes. Look at the world of the reds and see a national socialist Final Solution launched against the rich. See a plan to redistribute wealth and liquidate those who possess extreme talent, extreme ability, extreme ambition and extreme intelligence. See a regime to tax wealth, skill, proficiency and production and distribute the proceeds into the hands of those who are forever incapable of possessing any of these. See a regime to tax the producers at a rate of one hundred percent and reduce them to chattel slaves of the mob. See the class of earners of great wealth taxed, inspected and audited out of existence and held captive behind a Berlin Wall of proletarian power. See the creation of a national wealth registry in the manner of the national socialist Jewish registry in the Third Reich, which will target the rich for destruction as the national socialists targeted for Jews. See a regime of international tax enforcement and international tax compliance which will confiscate the private wealth of the world and place into the rapacious hands of a global state and proletarian front. See a regime of red radicals, red guards, red bayonets and red police round up the rich and steal everything they have in the name of making them pay their fair share. See an expansive, expensive, gargantuan welfare state financed by looting the engines of wealth and production smash the human columns who hold up society. See the creation of an inverted moral universe in which those who perform manual, unskilled labor are exalted as the true working class, while those who work with their minds and produce great wealth by it are vilified as exploiters and parasites of the working class and are enslaved and expropriated. See the multitudes of ne'er do well, good for nothing, irresponsible vermin enjoying a king's quality of life financed by trillions plundered from the producers' factories, offices, warehouses and financial establishments. See the millionaires, the billionaires and the dynamos of the world nationalized in the name of the people and their wealth confiscated to support the people's Green New Deal, the people's Medicare For All, the people's housing, the people's child care, and the people's war against freedom and civilization: "Senator Bernie Sanders declared on Tuesday that 'billionaires should not exist' as part of the rollout of his massive proposal to redistribute wealth in America via an 'extreme wealth' tax, which he claims will 'reduce the outrageous level of inequality that exists in America today.' Sanders unveiled his plan to redistribute wealth in the US via an 'extreme wealth tax,' which the socialist senator says will apply to the 'top 0.1 percent.' While Sanders' plan is reminiscent of Senator Elizabeth Warren's proposed wealth tax, it goes even further, taxing more individuals at even higher rates. Sanders' proposal would also spur the creation of a 'national wealth registry' and provide an 'increase in IRS funding' in order to manage a swell of new audits. It states: 'In order to ensure that the wealthy are not able to evade the tax, the proposal includes a number of key enforcement policies. First, it would create a national wealth registry and significant additional third party reporting requirements. Second, it includes an increase in IRS funding for enforcement and requires the IRS to perform an audit of 30 percent of wealth tax returns for those in the 1 percent bracket and a 100 percent audit rate for all billionaires. Third, the wealth tax includes a 40 percent exit tax on the net value of all assets under $1 billion and 60 percent over $1 billion for all wealthy individual seeking to expatriate to avoid the tax. Finally, the wealth tax proposal will include enhancements to the international tax enforcement and antimoney laundering regime including the strengthening of the Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act.'

The presidential candidate argues the US already taxes inherited wealth via the estate tax and says his proposal is constitutional, citing two Yale law professors, Bruce Ackerman and Anne Alstott, who have expressed support for the radical concept. Sanders adds that it is 'not radical' to ask the wealthy to 'pay their fair share.' His proposal is expected to result in $4.5 trillion over the next decade, according to University of California, Berkeley, economists Emmanuel Saez and Gabriel Zucman. Nonetheless, that number does not come close to paying for his expansive, expensive proposals, such as his $16 trillion Green New Deal proposal or Medicare for All, which could—by some estimates—cost the US over $60 trillion over the next decade alone. Sanders' ideological ally, Warren, has also introduced a wealth tax, although it does not go as far. She proposes implementing a two percent wealth tax on those with $50 million in assets, as opposed to Sanders' $32 million. Warren's plan increases the tax to three percent for those with assets of $1 billion or greater, with no distinction between couples or single filers. She, like Sanders, plans to fund her costly proposals via the wealth tax, although Saez and Zucman estimate that her proposal would result in $2.6 trillion over the next decade, $1.9 trillion less than Sanders' proposal. 'If we make the top 0.1% pay their fair share in taxes, their quality of life would not change at all,' Sanders tweeted following the announcement of his redistribution scheme. 'But we would be able to invest in housing, child care and health care and improve the lives of millions of working people,' he added." (Bernie Sanders Unveils Radical Redistribution Scheme: 'Billionaires Should Not Exist' by Hannah Bleau). During the French Revolution, tumbrels were open carts which conveyed condemned prisoners on the way to the guillotine. Since the first rays of dawn broke across the twentieth century, the sound of tumbrels rolling through city streets has reached a deafening roar. Their passengers are the tragic victims of the reds' reign of violence and oppression. Sliding down grooves bearing messages of class war and the extermination of those who produce wealth, the evil blade of the people's guillotine has fallen in the twenty first century and executed the West.

REDS TAKE AIM AT THE BEST AND THE BRIGHTEST

In the early nineteenth century, the English hymn writer Reginald Heber wrote in his Hymns. Epiphany: "Brightest and best of the sons of the morning,/Dawn on our darkness, and lend us your aid." Since that time, the phrase the best and the brightest has been used to symbolize the tradition of selection on the basis of ability which forms the heart of liberal culture and modern civilization. From the time when the rays of dawn first broke across the twentieth century up to the present day, this principle of meritocracy has been sustained bombardment and attack by the great enemies of liberal culture who have championed the principle of tribalism and social justice in its place. The red enemies of individual achievement and individual justice have constructed an unholy temple called Gender, Race and Class Politics and in this temple they have sacrificed the best and the brightest in all fields of endeavor upon altar tables marked Women, Nonwhites and the Poor. Turning back the clock of history to the year zero when tribes and clans ruled the life of the individual and people were judged, not on the basis of their own character and actions, but by the characters and actions of the group to which they belonged, the reds have issued a program and manifesto of hatred and prejudice which has stood justice on its head as it has denied the existence of separate, physical, empirical individuals. This program and manifesto of unabashed atavism and moral, spiritual and psychological reversion has proclaimed that school meritocracies are racist because they exclude unqualified black and hispanic students.

It has proclaimed that a progressive education system prohibits advanced learning programs which select candidates on the basis of their academic achievement and not on the basis of their race or ethnicity. It has proclaimed that a progressive education system has shut down all programs for gifted and advanced children on the grounds that the racial and ethnic composition of these programs violates the people's principles of diversity, equity and inclusion. It has proclaimed that a progressive education system has eliminated special classes for intelligent primary and secondary school students because of the low number of minority students in them. It has proclaimed that a progressive education system has established a quota system to select students for its accelerated instruction classes which will ensure equitable numbers of blacks, hispanics and indigenous participants. It has proclaimed that a progressive education system has canceled its advanced work classes on the grounds that the selection of students on the basis of their grades is racist and inequitable: "There's a lot of work we have to do in the district to be antiracist and have policies where all of our students have a fair shot at an equitable and excellent education." (Brenda Cassellius, superintendent of the Boston school system). It has proclaimed that programs for gifted children which contain eighty percent white and Asian students in school districts which are eighty percent black and hispanic violates the racial and ethnic rights of blacks and hispanics. It has proclaimed elite academic schools which allow academically gifted children to reach their highest potential and advance as far as they can unjustly discriminates against black and hispanic students who are indolent, shiftless, unmotivated and incompetent. It has proclaimed that a progressive education system holds back hard working, academically talented white students in the name of social justice for untalented blacks and hispanics. It has proclaimed that a progressive education system does not allow intelligent students to perform with their peers in the same class on the grounds that such would be unfair to the unintelligent students who would be kept out. It has proclaimed that a progressive education system has established a curriculum, a lesson plan and a time table of class discussions tailored to the lowest common denominator and to the worst performing students. It has proclaimed that a progressive education system discriminates against talented, high performing Asian and white students and elevates untalented, nonperforming blacks and hispanics above them in the name of social equity and egalitarian justice. It has proclaimed that a progressive university discriminates against applicants on the basis of race and sex and mandates that white male high school students must have the highest Scholastic Aptitude Test scores, higher than nonwhite males, nonwhite females and white females, in order to be admitted. Look at the world of the reds and see regimes of racial discrimination. See hatred of whites stamped on the coffin of civilization and marked Affirmative Action, Black Economic Empowerment and Broad Based Black Economic Empowerment. See the lash of apartheid wielded by black masters. See swastika movements of racial tyranny dedicated to overthrowing the values, structures and institutions of liberal meritocracy. See regimes in which people are favored by virtue of their race and ethnicity and not their character or ability. See regimes of preferential treatment based upon skin color. See a religion of unabashed prejudice preached according to which black lives matter and no one else's lives matter. See Satan's sewers and underground miasmas welling up across the land and congealing into black leaders, black parties and black interests which have declared war against the liberal humanist cultures and civilizations. See the institutionalization of racial segregation and the ghettoization of white people. See radicals marching under the torchlights of tribal politics and leading black populations, indigenous populations, queer populations and transgender populations in a rampage against constitutional order and the system of individual rights. See a primitive philosophy promoting group consciousness and a primitive agenda whose plan is racial revolution achieving dominion over civilized society and lowering the curtain on the progress of modernity: "South African Cardinal Wilfrid Fox Napier slammed preferential 'Black Economic Empowerment' as 'racial discrimination' Sunday, saying such favoritism smacks of apartheid. Cardinal Napier, the archbishop of Durban, wrote on Twitter that Affirmative Action, Black Economic Empowerment and even Broad Based Black Economic Empowerment are all forms of racial discrimination 'on a par with apartheid policies' that also favored another group by race. The cardinal put his assertion in the form of a Lenten Resolution: to give up on trying to figure out how preferential treatment for blacks based on skin color can be anything other than discrimination. Cardinal Napier has also been a vocal critic of the Black Lives Matter (BLM) movement, which he said is 'committed to dismantling the very values, structure and institutions' central to a healthy society. The mission statement of Black Lives Matter 'indicates the movement is being hijacked by the interests and parties committed to dismantling the very values, structure and institutions which have over the centuries undergird the best civilizations and cultures!' the cardinal tweeted last July. In his critique, Napier joined a growing group of Christian and conservative black leaders who have denounced BLM for its rejection of the nuclear family and its advocacy of a radical LGBT agenda, including the abolition of 'heteronormativity' and the embrace of 'queer culture.' In his appraisal of BLM's problems, the cardinal also said that if BLM truly cared about black lives, it would denounce the abortion industry and its disproportionate attack on the black population. 'Another crucial test of the authenticity of the Black Lives Matter movement will be its stance vis a vis Planned Parenthood and the Abortion Industry!' the cardinal stated in a separate tweet. In the United States, the abortion industry disproportionately targets the black population, with black children aborted at more than three times the rate of white children. According to the most recent abortion data (2018) provided by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), black women have the highest abortion rate in the U.S. and white women have the lowest. Among white women in the U.S., there are 110 abortions for every 1000 live births, whereas among blacks, there are 335 abortions for every 1000 births. Blacks are therefore aborted at over three times the rate of whites and more than half of all black deaths in the US are the result of abortion. Apartheid, which the cardinal compared to affirmative action, was a system of institutionalized racial segregation in South Africa that guaranteed absolute dominion of the country by the nation's minority white population. Apartheid was finally overcome in the early 1990s thanks to the courage and persistence of members of the anti-apartheid movement." (African Cardinal: Affirmative Action Is 'Racial Discrimination' Like Apartheid by Thomas Williams). In his work, To Jane: An Invitation, Percy Bysshe Shelley exalts the "best and the brightest" as the possessors of true life, knowledge, wisdom and skill: "Best and brightest, come away!/Fairer far than this fair Day,/Which, like you to those in sorrow,/Comes to bid a sweet good morrow". In the twenty first century, red mobs promoting the caveman's philosophy of gender, race and class collectivism have swept away the notion of individual merit and desert. Proclaiming that a person's character is determined by the tribe to which he belongs and that mystical, supernatural social justice takes precedence over empirical, common sense, individual justice, the reds have replanted the primeval jungle upon the asphalt streets of the modern age.

REDS ON THE DOLE

The right to be supported by wealth created by others is a cardinal tenet of red philosophy, and the first nation in the West to establish this right was also the first red nation in the West. In 1899, German Chancellor Otto von Bismarck established the first welfare state and Germany became a trendsetter of welfarism and the first signpost pointing downward into the imminent moral and spiritual collapse of civilization. This collapse transpired in the blink of eye in the time scale of history, in the period of a mere century, and in the new millennium, the nations of the West have degenerated into the foulest cesspool of pure welfarism and have completely rejected the value and dignity of work. Last witnessed during the dying centuries of the Roman Empire, when Emperor Augustus established the Cura Annonae, or grain dole for citizens who could not afford to buy food every month, the current welfare culture of the West has produced a program and manifesto of antiactivity, antiwork, antieffort, antiearning and antiemployment which has shocked the conscience of civilized people as it has made cities crawl with lice and vermin and placed them on permanent dynastic thrones. Composed on Satan's vile parchment at the fiery end of the age, the reds' program and manifesto has proclaimed that a progressive society encourages its citizens to depend upon state relief for the duration of their lives. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is woven out of the fibers of permanent welfare support and work free relief. It has proclaimed that a progressive society does not encourage or require able bodied people to work and allows them to feed off social insurance programs. It has proclaimed that a progressive society allows those who are unwilling to work to be relieved of the responsibility of doing so by becoming lifetime recipients of social security programs. It has proclaimed that a progressive society rejects job creation as a means to stimulate the economy and chooses instead a regime of permanent welfare relief. It has proclaimed that a progressive society gives government checks to every man, woman and child as a matter of natural welfare entitlement. It has proclaimed that a progressive society gives trillions of dollars of welfare assistance to nonworking parents paid for by taxing parents who work. It has proclaimed that a progressive society enforces the obligation incumbent upon all citizens to provide child allowances to families whose parents are worthless, contemptible scum. It has proclaimed that it is not fair to unskilled workers that skilled workers get paid more than they, and that those who do not work at all get paid nothing, and a progressive society has abolished the unfairness of unequal work earnings and the unfairness that those who do not work receive nothing, and has established equal welfare payments to the skilled, to the unskilled, and to the dirt and froth which swim in the streets and squares. It has proclaimed that there is no natural dignity attaching to work, and those who work for their sustenance and those who are parasitic upon those who work, possess equal moral value and worth. It has proclaimed that a progressive society provides cradle to grave economic security to every specimen of depravity who is unwilling to work and who has ever said no to a job. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a work free relief society in which people drift through clouds of idleness on carpets of welfare checks, and pass their state plundered wealth on to their children and to their children's children. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a culture of lifetime welfare, a culture devoid of work and earnings, and a culture which has made every citizen the pickpocket of his neighbor and the abject slave of the state. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has abolished all requirements that welfare recipients work or train for benefits and has given benefits to them as their natural, inalienable, human right. It has proclaimed that the primary business of a progressive society lies in providing permanent relief to its citizens and to ensuring that they are cosseted for life from the demands of reality and the demands that they work. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has given every member the right to receive food, clothing, housing, medical care, education, unemployment insurance and old age pensions from the resources created by others. It has proclaimed that the classes of uneducated, illiterate, irresponsible rabble are entitled to special care, assistance and protection from the the doers and achievers of society on the grounds of the mystical oneness of all people. Look at the world of the reds and see welfare payments lavished by the trillions upon people who do not want to work. See low income people receive money stolen by the state from high income people on the grounds of social rights and social justice. See massive welfare spending packages bankrupt the state as they extinguish the desire to work. See a society which has abolished the obligations of individuals to work and assume responsibility for their lives. See societies submerged in the dark, degenerate seas of welfare plans and cash payments and unable to see the noonday light of work and effort. See moral societies which exalt human activity performed to achieve results smashed by Satan's activists who promote unconditional entitlement and taxpayer funded benefits. See societies devoid of virtue and character polluted by no strings welfare awards granted to nonworking parents. See societies debased by a cult of indolence relieve the heads of households of the responsibility to support their children and relieve everybody everywhere of the responsibility to support himself. See societies degraded by the narcotic of welfare granted and nothing expected. See societies in which millions of people are encouraged to avoid work, and the right to keep the fruits of one's labor has been sacrificed upon altars marked War On Poverty, Social Supplements and Aid to Families With Dependent Children: "The Democrats' $1.9 trillion coronavirus bill would recreate the 1970s era welfare system by offering $120 billion in cash payments to parents who do not even try to work, say senators and critics. Versions of the welfare for every parent plan are being pushed by nearly all Democrats and by Senator Mitt Romney (R-UT), prompting Senator Marco Rubio (R-FL) to object: The 'Democrats plan is just repackaged welfare,' Rubio tweeted on February 26. 'What I have been proposing for years (and partially achieved in 2017) actually allows low income parents to receive even more money than the Biden plan by keeping more of the money they earn from work.' The bill is being debated this week in the Senate, and Democrats hope to pass it for a presidential signature by March 14. The bill is being pushed via the 'reconciliation' procedure, so it can pass the Senate with just 50 votes. But two parties each have 50 votes, so individual senators may have the power in the tied Senate to remove or reform unwanted parts of the massive spending package. The $120 billion plan is funded for just one year—but few observers believe Congress will cut off the checks in the midterm election year of 2022. 'President Biden's welfare plan would greatly increase cash grants while eliminating all existing work obligations in the current child credit program,' says Robert Rector, the poverty expert at the DC based Heritage Foundation. 'It abandons the link between work and welfare established by welfare reform in the 1990s and reestablishes the principle of unconditional entitlement to taxpayer funded benefits,' he added. Poor Americans need aid, but the no strings award promise of cash to nonworking parents 'goes too far,' says Oren Cass, founder of the profamily American Compass think tank. In a March 2 op-ed for the New York Times, he wrote: 'a [antipoverty] program should ask recipients to do their part in supporting themselves. [Our alternative] plan mirrors Mr. Romney's, but caps a family's annual benefit at their earnings from the prior year. In the example above, the family would need to have earned at least $7,200 in 2020 to receive the benefit's full value in 2021. One part time job at the current minimum wage would be more than sufficient. The test is, essentially, 'Did someone in your household work last year?' If so, you are paid in to receive the supplement.'

The 1970s welfare for nothing program encouraged millions of poor parents to avoid work, says author Mickey Kaus in a February 26 article for Newsweek. The resulting public opposition to the program, dubbed Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), was recognized by Democrat presidential candidate Bill Clinton, who won his 1992 election with a promise to 'end welfare as we know it.' Kaus continued: 'In 1996, a combined [House Speaker Newt] Gingrich/Clinton effort killed off AFDC, replacing it with a new program run by the states, with federal rules requiring work and a porous five year limit on aid.' (Congress On Track To Recreate 1970s Welfare Policies by Neil Munro). Students of history and culture have beheld the twenty first century through the lens of their insight and perspicacity. They have seen a long, narrow open container out of which pigs are eating and drinking. They have seen this trough, built in the twentieth century by Otto von Bismarck, David Lloyd-George, Franklin Roosevelt and Clement Atlee, feeding whole nations and populations. They have seen a red revolution championing consumption without production, welfare without work, and the confiscation of private wealth and income by the commissars of social responsibility sweep across the world. They have seen the hands of destiny, the hands of mob envy and mob hatred, and the hands of a raging egalitarian monster dig the grave of the West as it has devoured every civilization since beginning of human history.

BLACK DEATH HITS AMERICA

In the middle of the fourteenth century, the most fatal pandemic ever recorded in human history struck Eurasia and North Africa and killed two hundred million people. This was the Black Death, and carried by fleas living on rats, this bubonic plague created religious, social and economic upheavals and altered the course of European history. Over the past years, students of history and culture have had a recurring nightmare and are now watching in horror and fear as this nightmare is enacted on a daily, hourly and minute by minute basis at the Mexican border of America. They are watching the moral and spiritual return of the Black Death and are watching rats and fleas in outward human form stream unhindered across the border and ravage the people and institutions of the nation. They knew this savage invasion was coming and that it was only a question of when it would come. They knew this was what the reds in control of the nation had been demanding for years and that when the reds' candidate Joe Biden was installed in the presidency, their hoped for, prayed for, planned for and agitated for catastrophe would finally surge through the nation and infest, infect and electrocute American civilization. Students of history and culture are watching in belief and in disbelief the suicide of a great nation at the hands of its red assassins and red gravediggers, and while they have studied the invasions of past civilizations by barbarian hordes, and seen the fearsome hand of migration destiny fell mighty lands and the overrun the achievements of free people, their proximity to this particular cataclysm and their personal victimization by it has subjected them to rounds of mental and physical suffering which have transported them through the bottomless depths of hell. The following is what they have seen; the following has made them fill the air with tortured cries and agony; the following represents the end of the line of a bankrupt, degenerate ghost train without human passengers, a train run and stoked by the red masses of America. Students of history and culture have seen caravans of crime originating from Central America make their way north to American border and then enter the country unobstructed. They have seen Joe Biden dismantle Donald Trump's immigration and border enforcement policy and allow the nation's southern border to dissolve. They have seen over 150,000 illegal aliens cross the border in one month. They have seen the reds condemn the opponents of illegal immigration as promoters of white supremacist philosophy. They have seen unauthorized, inappropriate, illegal entry seekers turned away no more at the southern border and allowed into the nation with open arms. They have seen a massive influx of illiterate, unskilled vermin admitted into the country and given citizenship papers. They have seen psychopathic gangs and hardened criminal organizations stream in from cesspools south of the border. They have seen packs of remorseless criminals and bands of organized vice allowed to leave Mexico and settle in America in the name of humanitarianism, diversity, equity, inclusion and compassion. They have seen the reds condemn those who support lawful, merit based immigration policies as bigoted, racist, xenophobic sadists. They have seen the reds naturalize millions of unlawful residents arriving from points south in order to gain millions of votes for the red cause and the red religion of human enslavement. They have seen thousands of migrants from Mexico released into Texas without court papers or notices to appear. They have seen thousands of unaccompanied children with covid 19 infect check points, detention facilities, health care workers and the people of America. They have seen thousands of family units and unaccompanied minors cross the border in the Rio Grande Valley Sector and push border patrol authorities past the breaking point. They have seen vectors of disease developing in indigenous jungles crash through the southern border and declare war on the health and well being of decent, law abiding American citizens. They have seen Joe Biden opening the border to a tidal wave of illegal aliens from Mexico in order to harvest future Democrat Party voters. They have seen the reds establish a border policy, an amnesty policy and a voter registration policy designed to allow illegal aliens to vote and consolidate socialism in America. They have seen the passage of three national laws designed to aid, abet and facilitate an invasion of wild animals which will make the Democrat Party's red base the permanent ruling dynasty of America: the American Dream and Promise Act, the Farm Workforce Modernization Act and the For the People Act. Look at the world of the reds and see a plan to unleash illegal migrant families on peaceful, law abiding neighborhoods. See immigration courts and notices to appear going up in flames and illegal aliens allowed to behave uncontrollably and disruptively throughout society. See tidal waves of open immigration insanity burying and drowning the traditions of merit based selection and sound common sense. See a plague of rodents cascading from Mexico and gnawing at the grain stores of civilization. See a nation's customs and border protection authorities overrun by an invasion of snouts and tails from the south, an army of occupation belonging to a country and region called Hell. See unfamiliar, disturbing, distasteful, subhuman forms spreading like a cancer into schools and offices, unable to be rolled back, excised or removed in any manner. See a vortex of vice and depravity from foreign lands and foreign cultures sweep across towns and cities, gather strength and speed from native reds tub thumping on every college campus and every street corner, and hurl public prosecutors and border patrol officers into the dustbin of a failed nation. See the distilled essence of moral corruption blast across the southern border, make its way without hindrance to points north, east and west, brutalize border agents, assassinate immigration officials, mock courts of law, overwhelm the national administration, and with the encouragement and complicity of radicals in workplaces and radicals in the White House, lower the curtain on American civilization: "A senior level law enforcement source with US Customs and Border Protection (CBP) in the Rio Grande Valley revealed the implementation of a plan to release migrant families soon after apprehension. The plan radically changes how illegal migrants have been processed in the past and orders Border Patrol agents to quickly release migrant families without notifying the immigration courts or issuing a Notice to Appear. 'This is insane, it is another pull factor that will overwhelm us,' a CBP official with knowledge of the plan told Breitbart Texas anonymously because he is not authorized to speak publicly on the matter. 'We are creating another entirely different class of aliens we will have to deal with years from now. We will never find most of these aliens once they are released.' Breitbart Texas confirmed the report with a second official operating under the umbrella of CBP. The implementation of the plan follows a short discussion of the matter reported on by Breitbart News late Saturday night. The migrant families will be released without a Notice to Appear, a formal charging document that begins the removal process according to sources. The plan was implemented early Sunday morning and is now in effect. The source states the plan allows for prosecutorial discretion by the Border Patrol for all migrants who enter with children to include whole family units. A one sheet arrest report is completed, along with criminal record checks and a photograph of the migrant. The new process relies on migrants to tell officials what city they will be traveling to. The migrant is subsequently asked to report to the nearest immigration court office when they arrive so that they can place themselves into formal removal proceedings. The source believes this to be an impossible feat for the immigration courts to achieve. He further added, 'If we can't process them with our staffing of thousands and are being overwhelmed, the minimal staffing of court clerks around the country will never catch up—even if the migrant shows up.' Without a Notice to Appear, the migrants are free to travel about the country and are not officially placed into the immigration court system. The court cannot order the removal of a migrant in absentia for failing to appear for a future court date, the source explained. The existence of a removal in absentia order from the court allows immigration officials to remove the alien without appeal if they are later encountered. Under this new process, the migrants will not have a removal in absentia order for failure to appear. Officials issued no order to appear under the unprecedented plan put in place by the Biden administration on Sunday morning. This is yet another pull factor that will entice more migrants to make the journey north." (Biden Begins Immediate Catch and Release of Migrant Families Without Issuing Court Dates by Randy Clark). Caused by the bacterium Yersinia pestis, the Black Death which decimated Europe is cured by antibiotics and a vaccine developed in the late nineteenth century has wiped out the disease. Caused by a moral and spiritual disease which has afflicted civilizations throughout history in a state of decline, the Black Death of unrestricted immigration has struck America with the intensity of thunderbolts cast down by Thor. Caused by the reds' philosophy of relativism, multiculturalism, and rejection of universal reason, truth and enlightenment, this Black Death cannot be cured in the present age. Inducing thousands of monsters and gargoyles from the steppes, forests, jungles, grasslands and deserts of iniquity throughout the world to settle into and subvert the life of civilization, the reds' rhetoric and policies have dug the graveyard of America and the West.

KARL MARX THE SECOND

The word scion has two meanings: it refers to a young twig or shoot of a plant, and to a descendant of a famous family. In their studies of the political pathologies afflicting late Western civilization, students of history and culture use this word in both its senses when describing the career of a seminal thinker. For he was both an offshoot of a mighty, soaring evil tree, and a descendant of an evil family known throughout the world, and his ideas laid the basis for the evil firestorms which would soon engulf West and reduce it to smoke and ashes. This thinker was a scion, a branch and a descendant of the family of the reds ruled by the paterfamilias, Karl Marx. The most famous member of the Marxist Frankfurt School, the leader of the Marxist student movement, the father of the Marxist New Left and the chief theorist of the Marxist counterculture, this thinker set into motion the movement of gender, race and class politics which has become the dominant religion of the West today. His influence on present day thought is as wide and deep as it is blighting and baneful and has transformed a shining, soaring, enlightenment structure of culture into an ugly, neglected, rundown slum house inhabited by red activists in rags whose clocks and calendars, fastened to walls cracking and peeling with moral degeneration, have raced back to the year zero. His name is Herbert Marcuse and his philosophy of Marxism and Marxism's offshoots and derivatives is carved on the tombstone of the culture as its epitaph and requiem. Marx's leading contemporary philosopher has proclaimed that progressive philosophy offers a negative analysis and assessment of capitalist society, establishes a religion of reductive materialism which rejects bourgeois entrepreneurial energy and knowledge based labor, and worships at the altar of a new god called Society. It has proclaimed that all human history is class history and all human consciousness is class consciousness. It has proclaimed that capitalism is a system of enslavement and dehumanization of the working class. It has proclaimed that capitalism is an economic and political system which exploits, disenfranchises and disempowers the class of unskilled muscular laborers who alone are the creators of all wealth and value. It has proclaimed that capitalism is a system of crass materialism administered by the lash of affluence which has victimized the working class by generating false needs for consumer goods, and must be replaced by the higher spirituality inherent in red collectivist regimentation. It has proclaimed that capitalism turns workers into commodities by forcing them to sell their labor and must be replaced by the socialist system of unpaid slave labor. It has proclaimed that progressive philosophy has exposed the bourgeois fallacy that man is a free born agent and has reestablished the people's chains of social responsibility. It has proclaimed that progressive society is ruled by outcasts, outsiders, hoodlums and psychopaths who are not enslaved to reason or morality and have violently overthrown liberal civilization. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a primitive society ruled by the animal passions for violence and sexual gratification and has overthrown the artificial, unnatural, bourgeois constraints of reason, responsibility, nonaggression and respect for the rights of others. It has proclaimed that the rejection of logic and law and the return to the primordial currents of bestial license will bring forth a New World of Happiness to man the irrational animal. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has liberated the individual from the oppression of autonomy and self responsibility and established the higher freedom brought by submergence of the individual in gender, race and class collectives. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is intolerant toward policies, attitudes and opinions which support the liberal democratic order. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a red partisan society which has outlawed and suppressed all antired sympathies and sentiments. It has proclaimed that freedom of speech represents bourgeois oppression, while the suppression of anticommunist speech represents proletarian liberation. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a power, an authority and a government without restraint or limitation of any kind which has seized control over the mental space of the individual and colored its expanses with red propaganda. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has recognized the vital linkage between speech and violence and recognized that antired speech and politically incorrect speech are forms of violence and aggression and must be prohibited. It has proclaimed that those who support the Western notions of free speech, the rule of law, tolerance of dissent, and the superiority of individual freedom to primitive tribal savagery are forces of colonial cruelty, violence, massacres and suppression and must be silenced and locked up in the people's jail cells for the duration of their lives. Look at the world of Herbert Marcuse and see A equated with nonA and thing equated with its negation. See the liberal system of nonaggression equated with aggression against the people, the liberal system of free speech equated with censorship of the people, and the liberal system of individual liberty equated with the enslavement of the people, and see these liberal institutions outlawed and prohibited. See freedom of opinion, assembly, protest and belief trampled underfoot by the Hitlerian jackboots of a new reds order. See the proclamation that there exists no freedom to deny the truths of socialism on the grounds that such denial is an act of violence against the oppressed. See the liberal order of political rights, political equality and constitutional government condemned as scourges of servitude and tyrannical administration of the working class. See political tolerance limited, overridden and sacrificed upon the altars of communist equality and political correctness. See antired ideas forbidden in the name of achieving equality for the downtrodden, the marginalized, the exploited and the victimized. See the red lords, red guards, red sheriffs, red police and red armed forces trained in the arts of physical force and brutality deployed against the antired enemies of the people. See a regime of legalized suppression targeting those who deny the class structure of society and who proclaim the inalienable rights and freedoms of the individual: "According to a dialectical proposition, it is the whole which determines the truth--not in the sense that the whole is prior or superior to its parts, but in the sense that its structure and function determine every particular condition and relation. Thus, within a repressive society, even progressive movements threaten to turn into their opposite to the degree to which they accept the rules of the game. To take a most controversial case: the exercise of political rights (such as voting, letter writing to the press, to senators, etc, protest demonstrations with apriori renunciation of counter violence) in a society of total administration serves to strengthen this administration by testifying to the existence of democratic liberties which, in reality, have changed their content and lost their effectiveness. In such a case, freedom (of opinion, of assembly, of speech) becomes an instrument for absolving servitude. And yet (and only here the dialectical proposition shows its full intent) the existence. and practice of these liberties remain a precondition for the restoration of their original oppositional function, provided that the effort to transcend their (often self imposed) limitations is intensified. Generally, the function and value of tolerance depend on the equality prevalent in the society in which tolerance is practiced. Tolerance itself stands subject to overriding criteria. Tolerance is an end in itself only when it is truly universal, practiced by the rulers as well as by the ruled, by the lords as well as by the peasants, by the sheriffs as well as by their victims. And such universal tolerance is possible only when no real or alleged enemy requires in the national interest the education and training of people in military violence and destruction. As long as these conditions do not prevail, the conditions of tolerance are 'loaded': they are determined and defined by the institutionalized inequality (which is certainly compatible with constitutional equality), that is, by the class structure of society. In such a society, tolerance is de facto limited on the dual ground of legalized violence or suppression (police, armed forces, guards of all sorts) and of the privileged position held by the predominant interests and their connections." (Repressive Tolerance by Herbert Marcuse). An international body of intellectual criminals opposed root and branch to the system of liberalism and the world of the Enlightenment, the family of Marx brought forth a new son in the 1960s. Rejecting civility, tolerance, legality and liberty, advocating gender, race and class based totalitarian dictatorships, proclaiming the primacy of instincts and feelings over reason and science, and marching under the banners of retrogression to savagery, Herbert Marcuse is the driving force of red intellectuals and red hordes during the final hours of the West. The smoldering ruins of liberal progress and civilization are the terrifying legacy of Marx's heir and product in his struggle against the world.

A MARRIAGE IN MEXICO

In myths and legends throughout human history, male demons are described as having sexual relations with women. According to the Malleus Maleficarum, there are five ways to repel such a demon: exorcism, sacramental confession, the sign of the cross, moving the attacked woman to another location, and excommunication of the attacking demon. The Franciscan friar Ludovico Maria Sinistrari describes the male demon as relentless, invulnerable and unstoppable: "The incubus does not obey exorcists, has no dread of exorcisms, and shows no reverence for holy things, at the approach of which they are not in the least overawed". Students of history and culture have beheld in their blackest nightmares a story of demonic possession, a story fueled by their studies of the pathologies of the West and the decline and fall of civilizations, and a story which has dramatized for them the squalid, unseemly character of cultures which have rejected the cause of reason and individual rights and embraced a satanic religion of statism, mysticism and totalitarian tyranny. Recurring again and again in the minds of these students as a warning, guide and symbol of a dying culture, this nightmare commenced in the mid 1920s at the National Preparatory School in Mexico City, when Satan selected a teenaged girl from among dozens of students, as exhibiting particularly evil propensities. He saw in this student the outstanding potential for her to become his loyal consort, companion, conspirator and agent. One evening, as she lay asleep, Satan engulfed her body, invaded her soul and made her his own. Thereafter, darkness and night fell upon Frida Kahlo and determined the course of her life and career as a world famous and world notorious red artist and red revolutionary. Drained of all moral power and significance and shriveled into a devil doll and scalped head blanketed beneath a permanent moral eclipse, young Frida Kahlo, while at the National Preparatory School, in her first act as the consort of he who reigns in Hell, joined Los Cachuchas, a campus communist group which held regular study sessions on Marx, Lenin, and the Russian literature of nihilistic destruction. Proclaiming herself to be the Daughter of the Mexican Socialist Revolution, Kahlo regularly vilified her antired schoolmates and physically harassed her antired teachers. By the age of sixteen, Kahlo had become a socialist organizer and active member of the Mexican Communist Party, and wrote and delivered red speeches, attended red meetings, and led red union rallies throughout the country. From 1930 to 1933, Kahlo lived in America. Writing home to her red friends during this time, Kahlo condemned capitalism as a system of round the clock parties for the idle rich and grinding impoverishment for the working class: "High society here turns me off and I feel a bit of rage against all these rich guys here, since I have seen thousands of people in the most terrible misery, without anything to eat and with no place to sleep, that is what most impressed me here, it is terrifying to see the rich having parties day and night while thousands and thousands of people are dying of hunger." In another letter to her comrades in Mexico, Kahlo peddled class envy and class hatred and condemned those who earned fortunes by the power of their minds as filthy, ignorant, benighted parasites who feed off the honest toil of the proletariat: "Fifth Avenue is where the filthy rich reside. There is so much misery at the same time, that it seems incredible that people can endure such class differences, and accept such a form of life, since thousands and thousands of people are starving of hunger while on the other hand, millionaires throw away millions on stupidities." During the Spanish Civil War, Kahlo raised money for the communists and promoted Stalin's agents as the defenders of the workers, the peasants and the republican camp. She founded a red solidarity committee which relocated communist fighters in Spain to Mexico and found jobs and accommodation for them. In 1950, Kahlo collected signatures for the Stockholm Appeal, a Soviet initiative which demanded the unilateral nuclear disarmament of the West. She helped collect over a quarter of a million signatures of reds throughout the world. In 1954, Kahlo demonstrated against the United States overthrow of Guatemala's communist president Jacobo Arbenz. Kahlo led thousands of communists in Mexico in support of Arbenz's program of confiscation of private farms, nationalization of foreign companies, and revocation of individual freedom in the name of "social and labor rights". During her final years, Kahlo affirmed her unwavering commitment to the cause of red revolution and exalted communist criminality as the highest type of human life and the meaning of human existence: "I must struggle with all my strength to contribute the few positive things my health allows to the Revolution, the only real reason to live." Days before she died, Kahlo had drawn skeletons, devils and angels in her diary. On the night of July 12, 1954, she cried out "Black Angel! Angel of Death! I joyfully await the exit and I hope never to return!" Before the break of dawn and before the rays of life and morning pierced the sky, Satan took his bride away. Look at the world of Frida Kahlo and see a vocal supporter of Marxism and red revolution befriending the Bolshevik villains of the world. See a red populist and partisan of red power stocking the arsenals of violence. See an advocate of communist government lionize the vermin and waste of the world's sewers and cesspools. See a red activist wearing shirts emblazoned with the red star of class war, waving the hammer and sickle flag of class hatred, and passing out to her associates in arms weapons of class extermination. See an organizer of Stalinists and Trotskyites lead riots and uprisings against civilized order. See a red party loyalist promoting mass murder in the name of the working class. See a fanatic painting Marxism on canvases and exalting red criminality, red oppression, red antiscience, red antilogic, red mental illness, and red hell on earth. See a red political worker administering poison to the sick in the form of red slogans, red legends and red misinformation. See a devoted reader of Marxist books draw strength and power from currents of dark red energy and lead a movement to inflict maximum suffering upon free people, declare war on America and the West, unleash the monsters of psychopathic violence, strangle the voices of reason and sanity, and cast the symbols of death, the colors, figures and red hawks of communism, across the face of the earth: "Kahlo had many romantic partners over the course of her short life (she died in 1954 at 47), but few resulted in dedicated paintings—and fewer pointed explicitly to her political beliefs. The liaison with Trotsky did both. Although their romance only lasted several months, it offers a window into Kahlo's politics and how deeply they influenced her work. Kahlo and Trotsky first met in 1937, when the painter was 29 and the politician was 57. Kahlo and her husband, muralist Diego Rivera, were vocal supporters of Marxism and had been on and off members of the Mexican Communist Party for a decade, since 1927. Influenced by the Mexican Revolution at the turn of the century, they advocated for a populist government and believed political power should rest in the hands of the working class. In Rivera's 1928 mural The Arsenal, he showed Kahlo as an activist. Wearing a shirt emblazoned with a red star (red being the traditional color of communism), Kahlo disseminates weapons to workers while a flag bearing the Communist Party's hammer and sickle insignia flies over the scene. By the mid 1930s, Kahlo and Rivera both considered themselves Trotskyites. They'd followed the Russian Revolution and the rise of communism closely, and knew Trotsky as a hero of the 1917 October Uprising, which cemented Vladimir Lenin and the Socialist regime's rise to dominance. But when Joseph Stalin assumed leadership in 1924, he consolidated power and demoted Trotsky, exiling him for good in 1929. As a result, the communist party fractured into two main camps: Stalinists and Trotskyites. In 1950, Kahlo painted a hammer and sickle on one of the orthopedic corsets that supported her increasingly weak back, and in a diary entry from 1951, she worried that her failing health would restrict her from serving the communist cause. 'I want to turn [my work] into something useful; until now I have managed simply an honest expression of my own self, but one which is unfortunately a long way from serving the Party,' she wrote. Several years later, in 1954, Kahlo painted her most pointedly political work: Marxism Will Give Health To The Sick. (Its original title was longer winded: Peace On Earth So Marxist Science May Save The Sick And Those Oppressed By Criminal Yankee Capitalism). (How Frida Kahlo's Love Affair With A Communist Revolutionary Impacted Her Art by Alexxa Gotthardt). In the depths of young girl's soul lay a hidden door. When Frida Kahlo was a student in a Mexican high school, Satan swept through this door and joined with her in matrimonial union. Submerged in this demonic presence, she conceived hundreds of children in the form of paintings. Celebrated by reds throughout the world, Satan's artist-wife drew on every style of art and nonart under the sun for inspiration, from the European masters to surrealism to avant-gardism to magic realism to symbolism to the New Objectivity to Mexican folk art. Under these guises, she produced canvases exalting red violence and red death and her progeny, draped in Satan's black, have announced the end of the age.

FROM THE LEFT BANK TO LOS ANGELES

The Left Bank is a district of Paris situated on the left bank of the Seine River. For decades it was known as Red Paris; it was the Paris of Pablo Picasso, Jean Paul Sartre, Ernest Hemingway and James Baldwin; and was a center of red bohemianism and red counterculture in Europe. It remains to this day the preeminent symbol of French red intellectualism and its war against Enlightenment values and liberal democratic order. The Left Bank bisects Paris, flows across Europe, crosses the Atlantic Ocean, and crisscrosses America in its search for ever new recruits and ever new agents to fight in its war of revolution and subversion. The red philosophy which commenced in France was carried by the Left Bank to the New World of America where it flooded into its homes, schools, offices and governments, brought with it the latest Marxist and neoMarxist doctrines, and fouled America's air for all time to come. The malaria and miasma which emanate from this river have composed a program and manifesto for the repeal of liberal progress and enlightenment and have poisoned every college and university in the nation. The path from the Left Bank in Paris to the red neighborhood activist and hoodlum in America is clear, direct and unequivocal and has traced out the fearsome and terrifying path of the decline and fall of the West. This darkening flow, this progressive intensity, this rising virulence and this heightening, stentorian roar has implanted its creed into every nook and cranny of American life and brought down permanent nightfall across a land once dedicated in its documents and in its struggles to the cause of human noonday, human freedom and human flourishing.

Commencing in France and culminating in America, this river of darkness and river of night has enunciated the satanic religion of our times. It has proclaimed that capitalism is a system in which powerful people oppress and exploit their working class neighbors. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a far left society and an Islamist society which has swept away the corruptions brought by reason and capitalism. It has proclaimed that human beings have no connection with an alleged world of physical reality and are confined to knowing just their own words and language. It has proclaimed that man's thought is culturally biased and is unable to describe objective reality. It has proclaimed that we can have no access to reality and are unable to communicate anything true and are forever trapped within in our own gender, race and class perspectives. It has proclaimed that progressive philosophy is postEnlightenment philosophy which rejects the Enlightenment dogma that physical objects exist and affirms that nothing whatever exists outside of our own language and texts. It has proclaimed that what the ignorant call reality is in point of fact a puppet whose master is consciousness which is shaped and controlled by the demands, commandments, mechanisms, disciplines and relationships of consciousness. It has proclaimed that a progressive university is controlled by activist scholars who teach that gender, race and cultural identity determine everything which we perceive and think. It has proclaimed that progressive philosophy is postmodern philosophy which rejects Enlightenment modernity's superstition that existence exists independently of consciousness, and affirms the view of the other, postEnlightenment modernity that the task of consciousness is to construct reality in the image of gender, race and class ideologies. It has proclaimed that no moral claims are more valid than any others; there is no common ground between people or communities; and the only law which governs human relationships is the law that might makes right and that justice is that which is decreed by the strong. It has proclaimed that the notions of universal truth, universal rights and universal humanity are myths manufactured by Age of Enlightenment and must be replaced by the recognition that the essence of reality is the will to power of genders, races, classes and cultures. It has proclaimed that human life is a constant struggle for status and power among biological and socioeconomic tribes and is devoid of all reason and progress. It has proclaimed that human life is a competition and contest among racial, ethnic and cultural families in which the supreme goal is to wipe out the hated Other. It has proclaimed that a progressive university has repudiated the ideal of liberal arts instruction and the transmission of knowledge and bombarded its students with drumbeats of red propaganda in the form of race studies, ethnicity studies, gender studies, postcolonial, antiWestern studies, and tactics to sabotage and undermine free societies. Look at the world of the Left Bank reds and see the denial of the existence of physical objects and the projection of reality as language and consciousness. See an ontology of pure words swirling with confusion, contradiction and incomprehensibility. See words deprived of all objective meaning and reference. See seminars and conferences of reds held in which the existence of truth is denied and all knowledge is reduced to assertions of the will to power and domination. See words held to be subject to endless interpretations, deconstructions and fabrications of meaning. See language, texts and consciousness proclaimed to be the sole existents outside of which there is nothing and nobody. See all history reduced to the history of consciousness, all science reduced to the science of language, and all language reduced to the language of psychosis. See the highest form of philosophy proclaimed to be absolute skepticism concerning the existence of a world outside the currents of language and thought. See a new postEnlightenment anthropology which projects man as an irrational, instinct driven, remorseless beast of prey. See the reduction of politics to the pursuit of power and the reduction of law to the might of the strong. See law schools transformed into centers for the advocacy of red rules, red regulations and red impositions which seek to stamp the will of the rabble upon the rights of the individual. See red lawyers, red jurists and red social engineers reject the plain meaning of statutes and constitutions and proclaim that the law is a weapon of political interests and is what the red mobs say it is. See theological dogmas originating in the streams and channels of French Redland rise into a mighty torrent and rush into the precincts of America. See these torrents congeal into monsters called Political Correctness, Diversity, Equity and Inclusion, and Gender, Race and Class Politics, blast their flames, missiles and ammunition against the ramparts of American civilization, and hurl the debris into the dustbin of history: "A headline for an obituary in the October 10 New York Times said it all: Jacques Derrida, Abstruse Theorist, Dies at 74. There is no denying the 'abstruse' part. The French philosopher's work was not just difficult to understand; it was incomprehensible. Yet, for all of Derrida's murky and jargon ridden prose, his impact on the world we live in was enormous. Derrida, you see, was the father of deconstruction. That is the literary theory that says that 'all writing [is] full of confusion and contradiction. The author's intent [can] not overcome the inherent contradictions of language itself.' So, all texts, whether literary, historical, or philosophical, are devoid of 'truthfulness, absolute meaning, and permanence.' Intellectuals took him seriously and thought he was saying something so profound that their problem was that they did not understand it. So they held conferences to try to figure him out. All the while he was being entertained, however, he created huge mischief: People believed his intellectual nonsense. While his French contemporaries dismissed him, he soon found a receptive audience in America. A generation of American scholars has championed his theories, especially at Yale, where Paul de Man, Derrida's close friend, taught. If Derrida's maxim that 'there is nothing outside the text' had been limited to literary theory, he might not have done much damage. However, deconstruction broke out of the literature department and was applied to almost every nonscientific discipline: history, 'anthropology, political science, [and] even architecture.' An example of this took place at Duke Law School. There, Stanley Fish, America's leading deconstructionist, although not a lawyer, taught courses in law, admitting that he knew nothing about law. Why would we he need to? If, like Fish and Derrida, you believe that 'there is nothing outside the text' except what the reader brings to it, it doesn't matter what others have thought and written about the law. This subjectivity, however, only gives ammunition to lawyers and jurists who want to interpret constitutions and statutes in ways never imagined by their drafters. Or, some are creative enough, they just disregard the statutes. This has created a crisis in the law: using the courts as tools for social engineering. We will be living with the consequences for a long time. A generation of Americans has been taught to believe that there's no such thing as objective truth, only preferences, and one person's preference is as good as anyone else's. If students read books at all, they care less about what the author had to say than about their own opinions and feelings. The very day Derrida died, I was on an airplane. A couple recognized me and came over to talk. They told me the sad tale of how four years of college had turned their son from a solid Christian into a doubt ridden skeptic. Now multiply that incident a million fold, and you'll understand the real legacy of Jacques Derrida. Who said ideas don't have consequences?" (Gone But Still With Us by John Stonestreet). On the dark, satanic soil of the Parisian Left Bank, a river flowed outward into foreign lands and journeyed outward into distant seas. This river reached America and formed a deep, vast, spreading delta. In this delta, it deposited the sediment of an out of control movement of red extremists. This end stop, end of culture and end of civilization movement has contaminated the transmission belts of truth and knowledge, canceled the voices of liberal dissent, and buried the life and soul of the people.

MAX STIRNER AND HIS ANARCHISTS

Snow is known to make seeds germinate. Providing copious amounts of moisture and cold, it creates the stimulus necessary to awaken seeds from their dormancy. Beneath the ice cold wastelands and Arctic expanses of a degenerate culture, the seeds of anarchy have grown high and fought for supremacy with another form of degeneration called socialism. Opponent of Hegelian statism and forerunner of its anarchist opposite, Max Stirner planted the seeds of a doctrine of individualist tyranny in the nineteenth century and his followers watched them grow in the wintertime of the West which commenced in the twentieth century. These seeds grew into a mighty tree which gathered around itself a devoted cult of followers who recited the creed of their master as they waged war with their socialist brothers against the liberal democratic order. Blazing with the sickness of a soul which subordinates universal reality to the personal self, universal reason to the personal will, universal knowledge to personal subjectivity, universal truth to personal fancy and universal rights to personal assertion, the creed of Stirner ignited a flame within those who rejected the fearsome dogmas of red totalitarianism but never discovered such a thing as rational liberty, rational freedom, rational individualism or rational self interest. Rejecting the anthropology founded by two thousand years of observations commencing with the ancient Greeks that man is a rational animal, Stirner set forth a program and manifesto for the establishment of a savage jungle of each against all and all against each, a land overgrown with brutal contests of force and strength, and a dense forest and mass of wild vegetation which have contracted human nature down to the vanishing point of pure bestial license. Stirner's program and manifesto of anarchic doomsday has proclaimed that the ideal person rejects the spectrum of rational principles, the principles of rational truth, rational humanity, rational justice and rational goodness, and thinks only of the needs and interests of his animal self. It has proclaimed that the ideal person labors round the clock for the cause of his primitive soul, devotes himself unreservedly to the satisfaction of its whims and fancies, and waxes with passion and enthusiasm over its victories over the bourgeois constraints of law and order. It has proclaimed that the individual is a god, a god of war and violence who can will and do anything, and no state or law can ever be established to challenge his right or authority. It has proclaimed that the individual's will is the supreme truth and reality and is the only cause he must serve. It has proclaimed that because there is no supernatural basis of truth and reality, man is called to do nothing, ordered to do nothing, prescribed to do nothing, has no moral responsibility to respect the rights of others, and is morally entitled to enjoy and consume the world in any manner he pleases and to spread fear and devastation in his wake. It has proclaimed that the ideal person busies himself with his passions and with nothing else, has his passions alone before his eyes, cares for nothing in the world beyond the furtherance of his passions, and worships his passions as the source and origin of the universe. It has proclaimed that the ideal person is an irrational egoist who wields the cudgels of terror and intimidation and has made everyone's life, career and property his own. It has proclaimed that the ideal person is a patriot who serves and salutes the flag of his own will and consciousness and forces others to die in bloody battles for him. It has proclaimed that the individual is the sultan of the universe and has the right to punish all those who

disobey him and thwart his will, and the right to lock them in dungeons for life. It has proclaimed that nothing exists outside the mind and will of the individual and the individual is the almighty creator of laws and edicts for all mankind. It has proclaimed that outside the consciousness of the individual, the world is pure emptiness and unreality. It has proclaimed that what is good and evil, true and false, real and unreal, is what is determined by the individual to be so. It has proclaimed that the individual is the infallible arbiter of right and wrong and whatever the individual desires to possess is automatically his because he desires to possess it. It has proclaimed that life presents a ceaseless collision and combat of individuals in their struggle for power, mastery, dominion and assertion. It has proclaimed that the ideal person is a ruthless lord and master who seeks to achieve victory over others and to subject them to the dictates of his will. It has proclaimed that the right of the individual is the right of supremacy and the right to reduce his neighbors to his chattel slaves. It has proclaimed that life is an amphitheater crowded with enemies who attack each, ambush each other, lie in wait for each other, and are ready to pounce when they spot other's weaknesses. Look at the world of Max Stirner and see the rejection of man's rational essence and perfection. See the rejection of human qualities, a human way of life and human means of survival. See the proclamation that the only legitimate and intelligible form of egoism is irrational egoism and animal egoism which entitles the individual to commit acts of aggression against others and to sacrifice them to himself. See a chain of pseudoreasoning, as bogus and spurious as it is fearsome and terrifying, which runs as follows. It commences with the commonsense recognition there is no supernatural realm marked God or Society, and it ends with the anticommonsense conclusion that in consequence, there exists no truth or morality of any kind, there is nothing which man objectively ought or ought not to do, man has no special function, activity, nature or vocation which demarcates his life from the life of the animals, and man has a moral right to live as coarse, criminal and contemptible a life as possible, and to live in the manner of a brute and a swine: "Those who are hungering for the true life have no power over their present life, but must apply it for the purpose of thereby gaining that true life, and must sacrifice it entirely to this aspiration and this task. If in the case of those devotees who hope for a life in the other world, and look upon that in this world as merely a preparation for it, then the tributaryness of their earthly existence, which they put solely into the service of the hoped for heavenly existence, is pretty distinctly apparent; one would yet go far wrong if one wanted to consider the most rationalistic and enlightened as less self sacrificing. Oh, there is to be found in the true life a much more comprehensive significance than the heavenly is competent to express. Now, is not—to introduce the liberal concept of it at once—the human and truly human life the true one? And is every one already leading this truly human life from the start, or must he first raise himself to it with hard toil? Does he already have it as his present life, or must he struggle for it as his future life, which will become his part only when he 'is no longer tainted with any egoism'? In this view life exists only to gain life, and one lives only to make the essence of man alive in oneself, one lives for the sake of this essence. One has his life only in order to procure by means of it the true life cleansed of all egoism. Hence one is afraid to make any use he likes of his life: it is to serve only for the right use. In short, one has a calling in life, a task in life; one has something to realize and produce by his life, a something for which our life is only means and implement, a something that is worth more than this life, a something to which one owes his life. One has a God who asks a living sacrifice. Only the rudeness of human sacrifice has been lost with time; human sacrifice itself has remained unabated, and criminals hourly fall sacrifices to justice, and we poor sinners slay our own selves as sacrifices for the human essence, the idea of mankind, humanity, and whatever the idols or gods are called besides." (The Ego And His Own by Max Stirner). Through the winter snow of cultural bankruptcy and desolation, the trees of anarchist thought shot up in the twentieth century and spread a canopy across the sky. This canopy was a pall over the coffin of the West. It was a pall joined by the reds who worshiped their god called Society in the way that that the anarchists worshiped their god called the Individual Will. Rejecting the rule of rational flourishing and objective values in favor of personal license and market subjectivism, Max Stirner's disciples comprised a constellation of stars which formed dead points of dark light beneath the evil pall. Emile Armand, Han Ryner, Renzo Novatore, John Henry McKay, Benjamin Tucker, Clarence Lee Swartz, William Gordak, William Lloyd, Edward Fulton, James Walker, George Schumm, John Robinson, Steven Byington, Herbert Read, Daniel Guerin, Jason McQuinn, Bob Black, Saul Newman, Alfredo Bonanno and Murray Rothbard. These were the agents of the master who joined with the reds to block out man's moral sight, make man's reason invisible, and dig the grave of the West.

REDS TRANSFORM THE WEST

Scientists define two broad types of change: essential change and nonessential change. The first is the change from one type of thing to another, while the second is the change of a thing in some quantity or quality after which it is still the same type of thing. An example of the first type of change would be the change from coal to diamond, while an example of the second type would be the change in a diamond's shape, geometry or texture. Essential change occurs in an instant because at no point in time can a thing be two types of thing actually at the same time; in the change from coal to diamond, at no point in time was there any such contradiction as a coal-diamond. In the field of human history and social change, the change from one type of society to another similarly takes place in an instant. At any point in time, a society is either civilized or it is not civilized, and is either free or it is not free. The course of human cultural history occupies the span of thousands of years and against this backdrop, an instant occupies the span of a century. In one hundred years, a society can undergo a profound, transformational change, and students of history and culture have seen free societies across the West descend, in the course of this century-instant, into the savage jungles of totalitarian tyranny, and have observed in this instant a transformation into the depths of pure evil, tribal politics and human enslavement. They have observed that this instant commenced at the dawn of the twentieth century and concluded in the early decades of the new millennium, and have observed during this time, the crashing halt of the liberal way of life and the total destruction of the legacies of the Enlightenment. Their report on the instantaneous fall of the West into the arms of the reds is as distressing and dismaying as it is fearsome and terrifying and has caused civilized people to run for cover and run for their lives. Their report on the instantaneous mob takeover of the West and the institutionalization of the mob's gender, race and class ideologies has made for the most morally difficult reading which lovers of freedom have ever done in their lives, and they would not believe what they have read were it not for the stark, irrefutable testimony given by their own eyes. They have seen the reds cancel every manifestations of liberal, capitalist culture. They have seen Dr Suess, world famous and world beloved author of over sixty children's books, including And to Think That I Saw It on Mulberry Street, If I Ran the Zoo, McElligot's Pool, On Beyond Zebra!, Scrambled Eggs Super! and The Cat's Quizzer, canceled on grounds that his books contain racist images of nonwhites. They have seen the reds cancel the cartoon character Pepe Le Pew on the grounds that it perpetuates rape culture. They have seen the reds cancel the cartoon character Speedy Gonzales on the grounds that it portrays a "corrosive stereotype" of Mexicans. They have seen the reds cancel the cartoon character Curious George, popular with children since its creation in 1939, on the grounds that it celebrates white, racist, capitalist, colonialist Western culture. They have seen the reds cancel the Babar the Elephant children's books on the grounds that they are celebrations of Western liberal colonialism in which the title character leaves the jungle and returns home to civilize his fellow animals. They have seen the reds remove the book Babar's Travels from the shelves of British libraries on the grounds that it contains racist stereotypes of Africans. They have seen the reds cancel the Little House On The Prairie books on the grounds that they contain racist portrayals of Native Americans. They have seen the reds cancel the author of the series, Laura Ingalls Wilder, and revoke the Lifetime Achievement award given to her by the American Library Association in 2018. They have seen the reds cancel the children's toy Mr Potato Head on the grounds that it is sexist and not gender inclusive or gender neutral. They have seen the reds cancel the stage production of Cinderella on the grounds that the cast was all white and violated the principles of diversity, equity and inclusion. They have seen the reds cancel the classic Walt Disney films Dumbo, Peter Pan, Swiss Family Robinson and The Aristocats on the grounds that they celebrate racist minstrel shows, Southern plantations, Jim Crow traditions and racial segregation, contain wrongful stereotypes of Native Americans, contain negative depictions of Native cultural traditions, and condemn primitive, nonWestern cultures throughout the world and view them as a menace to human progress and enlightenment. They have seen the reds cancel William Shakespeare on the grounds that his plays advocate white supremacy and the dehumanization of blacks. They have seen the reds cancel the study of Beowulf and Chaucer's Canterbury Tales on the grounds that they represent white male Western culture which is opposed to the interests of women and blacks. They have seen the reds cancel the study of Homer's Odyssey on the grounds that it promotes gender stereotypes and the subordination of women. Look at the world of the reds and see an evil leap forward into the black depths of governmental despotism and totalitarian tyranny. See the individual deprived of his dignity and worth and reduced to a national resource to be plundered at will by the majority. See morally bankrupt nations vault past the noonday fields of human liberty and land in the tar pits of socialism and statism. See the producers of wealth forced to surrender all that they have worked for to the state. See the world of private wealth, the world of private incomes, private estates and private capital, condemned, confiscated and placed into the public trough for the swine and scoundrels to eat out of. See free people and free businesses taxed at a rate of one hundred percent and placed into the chains of the state and community. See a red egalitarian swampland dressed up as a Great Society and a Green New Deal establish the infrastructure, the airports, bridges, roads, ports and public transit, of universal human enslavement. See social programs expanding like a cancer, bankrupting and burying a nation in unpayable, multitrillion dollar debt, and waging an endless war against individual rights and fiscal responsibility. See modern industrial and technological civilization smashed with spears and clubs marked man made global warming and zero carbon emissions. See a new satanic church worshipping at the altars of social justice and social rights, scaling heights of state intervention without precedent in human history, and enveloping freedom and dignity in total darkness until the end of time. See Western liberal democracies in a state of self induced free fall under the dead weight of the hate charged hoi polloi and the envy filled masses, crashing into dark, swirling oceans of welfare entitlements, eddying and billowing with such names as Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid and the Affordable Care Act, and lying ghostly and lifeless at the bottom of the ocean of central power, central control and collectivist oppression: "If Joe Biden's American Jobs Program, outlined in Pittsburgh, is enacted, then the federal government will take a great leap forward toward irreversible control of the destiny of the Republic. To finance this leap, to subsidize this giant stride toward socialism, US corporations are to be forced to turn over to the government a far larger slice of their earnings. The corporate tax rate is to be raised from 21 to 28%. And that is only the first of the new or added taxes to come—on incomes, capital gains and estates. The bait to lure Republicans into embracing this $2.3 trillion in Great Society II and Green New Deal spending is the modest fraction to be allocated to infrastructure—airports, bridges, roads, ports, public transit. Most of the rest is to be used to grow social programs and launch new ones. Biden plans to lead the nation into a new forever war, an endless war on climate change. Meanwhile, the Chinese pump ever more carbon into the atmosphere, as Americans sacrifice to take it out. Make no mistake. Sleepy Joe is determined to emulate, not Bill Clinton or Barack Obama, but FDR and LBJ, and to be remembered as a president who raised federal power to new heights. The significance of what Biden has already done, with his $1.9 trillion American Rescue Plan, cannot be denied. Even before the COVID 19 pandemic hit with hurricane force in March 2020, the U.S. was looking at yearly trillion dollar deficits. Then, in that final year of the Trump presidency, came a massive surge in federal spending of some $4 trillion. The final 2020 deficit exceeded $3 trillion. and the US debt now exceeds the gross domestic product for the first time since World War II. But unlike 1945, when the war was all but over and federal spending was about to recede dramatically, today, the riptide of new spending is coming in stronger and stronger. Why? The reasons are many. First, fear of the social, economic and political consequences of a recession is far greater in Congress and the country than the fear of an outbreak of inflation, which seems to have been contained. Second, the drivers of deficit spending are growing bolder as the traditional resistance grows weaker. Inside the Republican Party, once a church preaching small government and balanced budgets, the deficit hawks are going the way of the passenger pigeon—toward extinction. Then there are the other driving forces of larger deficits. Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid, the major entitlements and principal budget elements, are all programmed for growth. There appears to be no historical evidence that once a Western democracy expands central power and control of the nation's resources that it ever willingly gives up those gains." (Joe Biden's Bid To Remake America by Pat Buchanan). In relation to earth's history, a million years occurs in the blink of an eye. In relation to human history, one hundred years occurs in the blink of an eye. In this horrifying instant which ended in the early decades of the twenty first century, civilized people have seen freedom vanish away, mangled and consumed in the jaws of the mob.

SOCIALISM AND SLAVERY: A GRASSROOTS MOVEMENT

A grassroots movement involves the widest possible community and develops from the ordinary masses and the people next door. It is not a movement of leaders, officers or elite formations but is dominated by the privates, the riff raff and the lowest strata of society. The course of a culture and the character of its leaders are determined by the quality of its masses, and a culture's political, media, entertainment and academic establishments are the voices, defenders and transmission belts of the hatreds and prejudices of the majority. In every age and every culture throughout human history, it has always been the case that, in some form or another, the majority rules; that it rules morally and spiritually at all times; and that at certain times, it rules politically as well. The greatest grassroots movement during the declining stage of any culture is the rejection of individual freedom, the reversion to a state of tribalism and collectivism, and the broadcasting far and wide of the masses' innate feelings of hatred and envy toward their moral betters and superiors. Students of history and politics have long known that democracy, as the system which empowers the majority and not the best, is not only theoretically flawed because it rejects the principle of the best, but establishes an environment in which neither liberty nor the best will long survive. Students of history and politics have long known that democracy brings about a creeping and insidious expansion of the government and the contraction of constitutional rights down to a vanishing point. They have heard the voice of ordinary people thundering out from the streets and squares and have heard from the rabid mouths of the people a program and manifesto for the dissolution of human flourishing and the triumph of animal violence. Composed by Everyman with Satan's ancient stylus, scratched on tablets covered in the black wax of bitterness and rancor, this program has proclaimed that a progressive society is an administrative state which has regulated the private sector out of existence. It has proclaimed that a progressive society affirms the primacy of the collective over the individual and affirms that the government forms the people and not the people the government. It has proclaimed that a progressive society keeps the creators of wealth within its confines, nails them to crosses marked Social Responsibility, and prevents them from voting with their feet. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has set up a national, general, federal, centralized legislature which operates without legal restraints and has outlawed all expressions of individual existence. It has proclaimed that a progressive state has the right and the authority to supervise every aspect of human life to ensure that no striving after personal virtue or happiness is ever allowed to see daylight. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has placed personal freedoms and business freedoms under permanent lockdown and shutdown in the name of fighting disease pandemics. It has proclaimed that no sphere of activity is beyond the competence of the people's democratic state to invade and the state has the right to control the intimate recesses of the human mind. It has proclaimed that a progressive state has the right to do whatever is socially necessary to do and to take away the individual's liberty and property without just cause and without just compensation. It has proclaimed that a progressive state employs the entire workforce of society and has set up a national trough for the swine and cattle, dressed up in the caps and overalls of the toiling proletariat, to eat and drink out of. It has proclaimed that a progressive state seizes whatever it needs to fight for the cause of social rights and defend the cause of social justice and does not recognize the legitimacy of the phrases limited government, private property and personal freedom. It has proclaimed that a progressive state has repealed freedom of association and the right of private property, invaded privately owned organizations, and told them that they cannot discriminate on the basis of race, ethnicity or gender. It has proclaimed that a progressive state has repealed freedom of association and the right of private property, invaded privately owned organizations, and told them that they must discriminate on the basis of race, ethnicity and gender, and must choose employees or applicants using race, ethnicity and gender as a factor. It has proclaimed that a progressive society punishes those who affirm that sex is determined by DNA and is not changeable and prevents them from speaking out in public. Listen to the reds proclaim that freedom of speech does not exist in a progressive society. Listen to them proclaim that the state has the right to police all forms of speech to ensure adherence to the people's red party line. Listen to them proclaim that the notions of intellectual freedom and academic freedom are Enlightenment fictions and a progressive society enforces discipline, restraint and control over the transmission of beliefs and opinions in order to ensure the maintenance of politically correct content and the rule of community standards. Listen to them proclaim that a progressive society recognizes the obligation of all members to adjust their thoughts and ideas to red ideological demands and to respect the right of the people's commissars of culture to keep guard over the classrooms, faculty rooms and kitchen tables of the nation and prohibit the expression of antired viewpoints: "A faculty member's First Amendment and academic freedom rights are not boundless, however, and should be exercised responsibly with due regard for the faculty member's other obligations, including their obligations to the University's students and the University community. As stated in the above referenced documents, faculty have a special obligation to show due respect for the opinions of others and to exercise critical self discipline and judgment and appropriate restraint in transmitting their personal opinions." (University Response To Antitransgender Statements, University of Rhode Island). Listen to the reds proclaim that speech which affirms that sex is biologically determined and is thus unchangeable is transphobic hate speech and must be prohibited. Listen to them proclaim that speech which affirms the primacy of the individual over the group and affirms that people should be judged as individuals and not as members of gender, race or class groups is hate speech directed against women, blacks and indigenous people and must be prohibited. Listen to them proclaim that the purpose of a university is to provide a platform for red professors to pound political propaganda into the minds of their students and to unleash them upon the community as hoodlums committing terror in the name of social justice. Listen to them proclaim that those who are opposed to the swastika bearers' united, intersectional, gender, race and coalition arrayed against liberal democracy have created an unsafe environment for progressive folk and must be eradicated. Listen to them proclaim that the opponents of totalitarian feminism, totalitarian black racism, totalitarian transgenderism, totalitarian gay rights activism and the totalitarian campaigns launched by indigenous groups are the sworn enemies of diversity, equity and inclusion and must be subjected to the severest disciplinary action and be evicted from the precincts of society. Listen to them proclaim that the red revolution of women, blacks, poor people, indigenous tribes, people of color, lesbians, gays and transgenders, under the leadership of the field marshals teaching in gender and women's studies departments throughout the world, has broken the lash of Enlightenment individualism and liberated the marginalized people of the earth: "Recently, the University of Rhode Island Women's Studies Professor Donna M. Hughes has published some very controversial and shocking articles discussing views that imply transphobia, antiAsian racism, and an overall noninclusive perspective of feminism. We are encouraging URI to take disciplinary action. Being a professor/endowed chair of the Women's Studies Department and calling herself a feminist, yet still having these irrational views and deciding, even while having the impactful position of an educator, to post articles about these views, shows a lacking in the concept of intersectionality, which is at the core of Gender & Women Studies. We implore URI to go beyond a statement and take overall impactful action for its students and to go beyond its claim to being a welcoming and safe place for its BIPOC and LGBTQ+ students." (Petition To Hold Donna M. Hughes Accountable for Transphobic and AntiAsian Articles by Angelina Gassaway and Catherine Brosnahan). No top down decision making, no traditional structures or institutions, and no movement of a select group or class of people has led the West to its current condition of statist politics, pervasive cancellations, the toppling of statues, the expungement of names, the rewriting of history, the silencing of dissent, the indoctrination of students, and the construction of an iron curtain of totalitarian tyranny. The end of freedom in the West was achieved when the multitudes in every hamlet, village, town, borough and city in civilized nations organized themselves, raised their hands, and voted to dissolve their civilization and ring down the dark ages of the reds.

HERMANN HESSE AND THE RED TERROR

The fundamental law of the universe, affirmed everywhere by people possessed of sound common sense, is the law of causality. This law states that everything has a cause and that nothing happens causelessly or by chance. This law is applicable both to the realm of nature and to the realm of human affairs, and students of history and culture recognize it as the prime mover of human progress and civilization as well as human decline and retrogression. In 1970, a red terror organization was founded in Germany, and over the course of three decades, it conducted a campaign of bombings, assassinations, kidnappings, bank robberies and shootouts with the police which claimed the lives of dozens of people, including prominent figures, and placed Germany in the grip of fear. Students of history and culture saw in the Red Army Faction a child of many parents, an effect of many causes, but saw in one particular parent and one particular cause a noteworthy illustration of the law of causality. It was noteworthy because the author of the terror had only recently died and the popularity of his works was spreading like wildfire in university campuses and in the ranks of the intelligentsia throughout the world, and his works were casting new satanic rays of antireason in homes schools, offices and neighborhoods, just as the bombs from their pages were exploding and the victims were falling mangled in the streets. This recent cause, this recent parent of red terror, was the author Hermann Hesse and students of history and culture discovered that the key figures of the Red Army Faction had grown up with Hesse and viewed him as a formative influence on their moral and political development, as they saw the influence of Hesse spread across the entire red terror movement, and saw it hovering like an ominous cloud over the lives and careers of its leading hoodlums. Students of history and culture saw in the philosophy of Hesse a program and manifesto of total destruction and saw in the rampages committed by its recent acolytes a tragic, bloody, dramatic warning that ideas have consequences and that ideas minted in the black salons of Satan are arsenals of evil waiting to explode. Students of history and culture have entered the fearsome armory of Hesse, seen the guns, bombs and ammunition ready to be taken outside and trained on the innocent, and read in their barrels, chambers, bullets and shells the plans, schemes, statements and declarations of the reds for the overthrow of civilization and the establishment of tyranny. Designed and stocked by Hesse, this storehouse of savagery has proclaimed that capitalism is a system in which honest toilers are bled white by the vampires of international finance. It has proclaimed that the normal life of reason is flat and sterile and must be swept away by the winds of wild longing, strong emotions and animal sensations. It has proclaimed that the path to true liberation lies in following insane impulses, in smashing buildings and people, in committing unspeakable outrages, and in rebelling against rational order. It has proclaimed that the world of health, comfort and rational happiness is a world made by and for nonentities and mediocrities and must be replaced by a jungle ruled by dark, diseased and discontented psychopaths. It has proclaimed that the life of true liberation is dirty, disgusting and without respectability of any kind. It has proclaimed that the liberated person lives in dark, foggy, gloomy streets and swims in sewers of vice and depravity. It has proclaimed that the liberated person hates order and quiet and breathes in the air of hunted animals. It has proclaimed that liberated existence is chaotic existence, immoral existence and worships at the temples of murder and mayhem. It has proclaimed that liberated existence is a rainstorm of radicalism and revolution which has ripped up and ravaged the landscape of reason and law. It has proclaimed that the ideal person has pulled down the constraining walls of civilization and descended to the depths of pure criminality which resound through space as the living, beating heart of the world. It has proclaimed that visions of liberation are visions of a world in which Hell and Satan are assiduously at work subverting the order of rational flourishing and the success of righteous people. It has proclaimed that the age of reason is a humdrum age, a monotonous age, an age devoid of natural, primordial excitement, an age of moral and spiritual death. It has proclaimed that the world of modern capitalist life, the world of theaters, cinemas, orchestras, cafes, exhibitions, hotels, museums, highways and railways, is a spectacle of bourgeois rationalist decadence and must be removed root and branch by the primitive wolves of the steppes streaming in from the uncultivated expanses of red criminality. Look at the world of Hermann Hesse and see the devaluation of man and the celebration of animal nature. See the exaltation of those who harm others, hate others, love chaos and live as beasts of prey. See rapacious, remorseless hooligans lying in wait for honest people, lying in ambush for those who are righteous, ever on the watch for decent, law abiding souls, and ready to pounce on the march of civilization. See unabashed miscreants condemn those who work for a living and see them interfere without surcease in the course of their lives. See red activists bare their teeth at and maul to death everything fine, good, noble and beautiful in the world. See communists gorge themselves at the tables of the producers of wealth and drink libations to a god called Class War. See national socialists drink the blood of the enemies of the race and pour offerings to a god called Extermination. See gangsters spray out hatred and enmity toward legitimate upright, licit, proper human activities. See brutes and beasts declare liberation from the shackles of constitutional order and moral principles. See red organizers reject the higher complexities of rational argumentation and exalt the stark, primordial simplicity of killing helter skelter. See solitary schizoids masquerading as serious philosophers exalt random violence as the highest form of pleasure. See apostles of mental sickness condemn the manners and customs of refined, educated people and celebrate a life of hunting, bombing and shooting in packs as the highest form of being. See clans of wild carnivores, families of saber toothed saboteurs, and brigades of mass murderers declare war against rational sentience, rational consciousness, rational intelligence and rational behavior. See the forces of mindless freedom, evil emotions, unmitigated savagery, untamable rage, reckless impulses, strength without right, and shocking, horrific, organized illegality roll thunderously across landscape of human ideals and the arts and letters of free people and trample them to death. See these blasting waves of inhumanity blow up everything of value and worth and write the destiny of the West as a state of universal danger and crashing collapse: "And so the Steppenwolf had two natures, a human and a wolfish one. This was his fate, and it may well be that it was not a very exceptional one. There must have been many men who have had a good deal of the dog or the fox, of the fish or the serpent in them without experiencing any extraordinary difficulties on that account. In the case of Harry, however, it was just the opposite. In him the man and the wolf did not go the same way together, but were in continual and deadly enmity. One existed simply and solely to harm the other, and when there are two in one blood and in one soul who are at deadly enmity, then life fares ill. Well, to each his lot, and none is light. Now with our Steppenwolf it was so that in his conscious life he lived now as a wolf, now as a man, as indeed the case is with all mixed beings. But, when he was a wolf, the man in him lay in ambush, ever on the watch to interfere and condemn, while at those times that he was a man the wolf did just the same. For example, if Harry, as man, had a beautiful thought, felt a fine and noble emotion, or performed a so-called good act, then the wolf bared his teeth at him and laughed and showed him with bitter scorn how laughable this whole pantomime was in the eyes of a beast, of a wolf who knew well enough in his heart what suited him, namely, to trot alone over the Steppes and now and then to gorge himself with blood or to pursue a female wolf. Then, wolfishly seen, all human activities became horribly absurd and misplaced, stupid and vain. But it was exactly the same when Harry felt and behaved as a wolf and showed others his teeth and felt hatred and enmity against all human beings and their lying and degenerate manners and customs. For then the human part of him lay in ambush and watched the wolf, called him brute and beast, and spoiled and embittered for him all pleasure in his simple and healthy and wild wolf's being. Many loved him as a refined and clever and interesting man, and were horrified and disappointed when they had come upon the wolf in him." (Steppenwolf by Herman Hesse). The following are images of the West which have rained down from dark skies since the dawn of the twentieth century. An insignia showing a red Marxist star upon which are superimposed a Heckler and Koch automatic weapon and the letters RAF, standing for Red Army Faction. Andreas Baader, Ulrike Meinhof, Gudrun Enslin and Horst Mahler, leaders of the Red Army Faction. Lunatics and thugs in love with bestial adventure. Campus rebels, radicals, villains and murderers. Community organizers and local activists throughout the world. The hooded fighters for Antifa and Black Lives Matter throughout the world. These are images of terror. Behind them, the gray eminence, the controlling power and influence, the face of Hermann Hesse.

BOY WONDER FIGHTS THE REDS

A boy wonder is an exceptionally talented, intelligent and successful young man or boy. When they burst onto the scene, boy wonders startle their contemporaries with their precocity as they jump start the field in which they work. In 1928, a twenty two year old boy wonder in San Francisco named Philo Farnsworth made international headlines when he demonstrated the first working model of a television. The San Francisco Chronicle broke the story which was picked up by wire services and newspapers throughout the world: S.F. Man's Invention to Revolutionize Television. In 1948, a twenty one year old boy wonder, newly graduated from Columbia University Law School and admitted to the state bar, was hired as a lawyer in the office of the United States Attorney in Manhattan. Hired as an assistant United States Attorney specializing in subversive activities, Roy Cohn splashed into the public spotlight and soon distinguished himself as the nation's top prosecutor of the reds. Taking on the enemies of freedom and fighting them tooth and nail, this boy wonder compiled a record of victories which became the envy of law enforcement authorities throughout the world, the stuff of legend in law schools and courtrooms, and the object of heartfelt gratitude among ordinary people distressed about the growing menace of red subversion. This boy wonder played a prominent role in the 1949 Smith Act trials of Communist Party leaders. He established that these leaders had a plan to overthrow the United States government by force and violence. He produced undercover informants for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, such as Angela Calomiris and Herbert Philbrick, and former communists, such as Louis Budenz, who had become repelled by the Communist Party. These witnesses at the trial testified about the subversive goals and policies of the party and the party's active adherence to the views of Marx, Lenin and Stalin. Calomiris was recruited by the FBI in 1942, infiltrated the party, and gained access to its membership list. She identified four of the defendants as members of the party and described the party's organization. She testified that the party advocated violent revolution and that, acting on instructions from Moscow, the party had recruited members from vital war industries. Budenz testified that the party advocated the violent overthrow of the government. He testified that the clauses of the party constitution which disavowed violence were decoys written in coded language which were intended to conceal their true meaning and to protect party members from prosecution. In October 1949, the jury found the defendants guilty and the judge sentenced each to five years in jail and a ten thousand dollar fine. The verdict was acclaimed enthusiastically by freedom lovers throughout world. A letter to the New York Times celebrated one important victory over a red sea monster which was pervasive, enduring, difficult to resist and difficult to overcome: "The Communist Party may prove to be a hydraheaded monster unless we can discover how to kill the body as well as how to cut off its heads." The boy wonder's next major case was the 1951 espionage trial of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. Developed by Cohn, the case against the Rosenbergs consisted of the following. In 1942, Julius Rosenberg, employed at the Army Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, was recruited to spy for the Soviets by NKVD chief Semyon Semyonov. Under Semyonov's direction, Rosenberg transmitted to the Soviets thousands of classified reports, including a report on a proximity fuse for a nuclear bomb. In 1944, Alexander Feklisov became Rosenberg's new handler. Under Feklisov's direction, Rosenberg recruited the following spies: Joel Barr, Alfred Sarant, William Perl and Morton Sobell. Perl transmitted to the Soviets thousands of classified documents stolen from the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, including a complete set of design and production drawings for the P-80 Shooting Star, America's first jet fighter. Under Feklisov's direction, Rosenberg recruited his wife's brother, David Greenglass, employed on the Manhattan Project at the Los Alamos National Laboratory, to spy for the Soviets. Greenglass gave Rosenberg a sketch of the implosion bomb dropped on Nagasaki, Japan. Rosenberg recruited another spy on the Manhattan Project, Russell McNutt, who worked at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, and McNutt transmitted to the Soviet classified information concerning methods of making weapons grade uranium. As a result of the efforts of Rosenberg's spy ring, the Soviets were able to detonate their first nuclear bomb years earlier than they had expected. On August 29, 1949, the free world stood aghast at the detonation of the Soviets' Joe 1. David Greenglass gave nuclear secrets to Julius Rosenberg in Rosenberg's apartment in New York City. At Julius's request, Ethel typed them up. Ethel Rosenberg's involvement in espionage is described by Ruth Greenglass, David Greenglass's wife: "Julius then took the info into the bathroom and read it and when he came out he called Ethel and told her she had to type this information immediately. Ethel then sat down at the typewriter which she placed on a bridge table in the living room and proceeded to type the information that David had given to Julius." The Rosenbergs were found guilty and were sentenced by Judge Irving Kaufman to death. Judge Kaufman describes the Rosenbergs' acts of treason. These acts led to the murder of millions at the hands of a red totalitarian juggernaut whose jaws had swept across the distant expanses of the East. These acts placed weapons of mass destruction into the hands of the reds and inflected the arc of history into the doomsday of global fear: "I consider your crime worse than murder. Plain, deliberate, contemplated murder is dwarfed in magnitude by comparison with the crime you have committed. In committing the act of murder, the criminal kills only his victim. The immediate family is brought to grief and when justice is meted out the chapter is closed. But in your case, I believe your conduct in putting into the hands of the Russians the A-bomb years before our best scientists predicted Russia would perfect the bomb has already caused, in my opinion, the communist aggression in Korea, with the resultant casualties exceeding 50,000 and who knows but that millions more of innocent people may pay the price of your treason. Indeed, by your betrayal you undoubtedly have altered the course of history to the disadvantage of our country." The Rosenberg trial brought this boy wonder to the attention of Federal Bureau of Investigation director, J. Edgar Hoover, who recommended him to the nation's premier red hunter, Senator Joseph McCarthy. In 1953, McCarthy hired Cohn as chief counsel to the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations. Chaired by McCarthy, the committee sought to expose and remove actual or potential security risks from positions in the United States government. The cases in which Cohn assisted McCarthy included the following. Annie Lee Moss, a code clerk handling sensitive material for the United States Army Signal Corps, was investigated by McCarthy's committee in 1954. She was exposed by the committee, citing testimony by FBI agent Mary Markward, as a member of the Communist Party. The committee came into contact with a defector from communist East Germany named Harald Buettner who signed a notarized statement swearing that when he was employed at a Soviet scientific installation in 1950, he saw Soviet agents steal classified documents from Fort Monmouth, New Jersey. As a result of McCarthy's hearings, a Soviet defector informed congressional investigators that volumes of classified radar documents had been transmitted to the Soviets from Fort Monmouth, and a United States Army intelligence officer described massive thefts of classified information transmitted to communists in North Korea: "Our latest Signal Corps developments were appearing in the hands of the North Korean communists." McCarthy's committee exposed Aaron Coleman, an employee at Fort Monmouth who had taken home dozens of classified documents and had connections with Julius Rosenberg and the Communist Party, as a security risk. McCarthy's committee exposed Ruth Levine, an employee at the Federal Telecommunications Laboratory, as a member of a communist cell at the laboratory and a security risk. McCarthy's committee exposed the lax security system at Fort Monmouth which allowed security risks to evade detection and operate with impunity for decades: "McCarthy: Have you repeatedly furnished information on individuals who you considered to be very dangerous to the security of this country, and discovered that they were kept on year after year even after you had supplied the complete facts on them? Reid [Andrew Reid, chief of security at Fort Monmouth]: Yes, sir." McCarthy's exposure of security risks operating in the United States government was fully corroborated by three sources: by Soviet archives; by the Venona Project, a secret program established in 1943 by United States military intelligence agents whose mission was to decode Soviet cables sent to intelligence operatives in America; and by FBI files released under the Freedom of Information Act. In 1954 at the Astoria Hotel in New York City, the Joint Committee Against Communism honored Roy Cohn and invited Joe McCarthy as the principal speaker. Mobbed by autograph seekers at the Astoria Ballroom after dinner, Cohn, the boy wonder David who fought the Goliath of international communism, has been a conquering hero in the hearts of freedom fighters up to the present day.

THE REAGAN REVOLUTION THAT WASN'T

Students of history and culture define revolution as a dramatic, wide reaching and enduring change in society. As examples of revolutions, they cite the English Glorious Revolution of 1688, the American Revolution of 1776, the French Revolution of 1789, the Russian Revolution of 1917, and the New Deal Revolution in America of 1933. In their studies of America in the post New Deal era, they have looked in vain for revolutionary developments and have seen only a deepening and intensification of the reds' New Deal control over the nation. They have seen no counterrevolution to reestablish the type of society which existed in America prior to the New Deal, and in their studies of the presidency of Ronald Reagan, they have heard rhetoric unaccompanied by reality and have seen the New Deal order persist untouched and intact. When they read accounts of a so-called Reagan Revolution, they evaluate them as completely fictional and unsupported, and they know, from their studies of the evolution of cultures and civilizations throughout history, that the development of socialism and statism is a phenomenon destined and irreversible, being driven as it is by the hands of the mob. They know that the mob loves socialism and worships at the altars of the collective, and hates liberty and casts imprecations on individual claims and rights against the collective, and that, in consequence, the growth of radical politics and state power will never and can never suffer any counterrevolutionary reversal, and will continue at varying speeds but continue surely nonetheless, until such time as there is a crash and collapse of civilization, and time and history are brought to an end. When students of history and culture study the Reagan presidency, they hear shining words in praise of human liberty, personal responsibility, economic opportunity, constitutional government and the founding ideals of America; they hear such phrases as "big government is the problem, not the solution"; and then they watch these words fall ignominiously upon the deaf, impervious ears of the mob. They see the following mob dictated realities of the Reagan presidency and see how diametrically opposed they are to the noble words uttered by Reagan. They see that Reagan raised taxes and lowered taxes; his tax increases included the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 and the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984; and that the overall tax burden on the American people held steady and remained at the preReagan rate, and was equal, as before, to twenty percent of the Gross Domestic Product. They see that Reagan was unable to follow through on his promise to eliminate Medicaid and the Office of Economic Opportunity. They see that under Reagan, spending on programs such as the Supplemental Security Income, Medicaid, the Earned Income Tax Credit and Aid to Families with Dependent Children increased one and all by double digit figures. They see that under Reagan the number of federal civil servants increased from 2.9 million to 3.1 million. They see that Reagan was unable to enact his policy of New Federalism in which responsibility for social programs would be transferred to state governments. They see that Reagan was unable to follow through on his promise to effect substantial reductions to Social Security or Medicare. They see that under Reagan the national debt increased from 914 billion dollars in 1981 to 2.7 trillion dollars in 1989. They see that under Reagan the national debt expressed as a percentage of the GDP increased during this period from thirty three percent to fifty three percent. They see that Reagan never followed through on his promise to submit a balanced budget to Congress. They see that despite Reagan's elimination of fifty percent of federal regulations on business, he was unable to effect a substantial reduction in the size or functions of the federal government. They see that Reagan was unable to abolish forced busing to achieve racial desegregation. They see that Reagan was unable to abolish affirmative action programs which established preferential treatment of students or employees on the basis of race, ethnicity or gender. They see that Reagan achieved one victory and one victory alone over the reds, a victory which has endured up to the present day, and see that his Federal Communications Commission effected a major deregulation of the broadcasting industry. They see that the FCC abolished limits on what stations could present, such as the number of commercials, abolished requirements on what stations had to broadcast, such as news coverage, and abolished the Fairness Doctrine, which required stations to provide equal time to the reds in the presentation of controversial issues. Students of history and culture understand that one swallow does not make a summer and that this single victory did not portend anything of significance with respect to effecting a substantial reduction in the role of government in the lives of the people or in halting the ascendancy of red aims, policies, programs or platforms. Students of history and culture have seen that the so-called Reagan Revolution never happened and have seen the continuation of red control over America after it never happened. From the day Reagan left office up to the present hour is the blink of an eye in historical time, and in this instant, students of history and culture have seen the advance of a red wave front sweeping across the nation, leaving America morally unrecognizable from the nation founded centuries before. The day Reagan left office was one second before midnight, and in the present administration of Joe Biden, the midnight hour has struck, and students of history and culture have seen the culmination of the mobs' one hundred year red movement to destroy freedom and civilization in America. Look at the present day, post Reagan world and see a campaign to abolish constitutional government by packing the Supreme Court with reds. See the proclamation that the rule of law must be subordinated to the rule of the mob. See the proclamation that the constitution can never be allowed to overturn the tyranny passed by the majority. See the constitutional command that individuals possess rights vanish into irrelevancy before the claims advanced by red legislators, red advocacy groups and red policy makers that individuals possess no rights but only duties, which are the duties to prostrate themselves before the people's gods of the state and community. See the sacrifice of judicial review upon the altars of social justice and social consensus. See red multitudes, red collectives, red squads, red brigades, red organizers, red lecturers, red professors, red representatives and red presidents conduct a campaign to cancel the system of rules protecting free people and annul the judicial branch of government which affirms the constitutional basis of these rules. See the proclamation that the text of the constitution which affirms the natural and inalienable primacy of the individual over the state must be chopped to shreds by the guillotines of social responsibility. See the rejection of America's two century old constitutional structure and framework and the establishment of a system of legislative despotism and a regime of red power without precedent in the history of the nation: "Representative Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-NY) has backed Democrats' effort to pack the Supreme Court by adding four new seats that would be filled by President Joe Biden, arguing the courts should not be allowed to overturn laws passed by Congress. 'I do think we should be expanding the court,' she told reporters. The New York Democrat, part of the progressive Squad collective on Capitol Hill, reasoned the justices overturning laws is part of the problem with the 6-3 conservative majority. 'The idea that nine people, that a nine person court, can overturn laws that hundreds and thousands of legislators, advocacy and policymakers drew consensus on. We have to just ask ourselves, I think as a country, how much does that current structure benefit us? And I don't think it does,' she said. Ocasio-Cortez appeared to reject the principle of judicial review enshrined in Marbury v. Madison (1803). While radical, her stance repeated the position taken by then President Barack Obama in 2012, when Obamacare came before the Supreme Court. Obama complained 'that an unelected group of people would somehow overturn a duly constituted and passed law.' Later, Obama, a former lecturer in constitutional law, had to clarify that he did accept the principle of judicial review, which has been part of America's constitutional framework for more than two centuries, and remains a crucial component of the balance of power between the three branches of government." (Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez Backs Court Packing; Says Courts Should Not Overrule Legislature by Joel Pollak). Before the cold, hard, unblinking eyes of reality, the past eight decades in America have seen the New Deal revolution carried forward. Before these eyes, the Reagan Revolution was a ghost; the profound transformations it brought about in American society never transpired; and in the end it vanished, unnoticed, like the morning mist. A phantom train called the Reagan Revolution was reduced in an instant to smoke and ashes when it struck a very real rail line supplying the fearsome electric currents of red mob power. It struck the terrifying third rail of American politics, the third rail of the Roosevelt, New Deal welfare state, and this line has transported the nation to its final stop.

A show trial is a public trial which seeks to satisfy public opinion and ensure that the ends of justice are not served. It is a trial in which the authorities or jurors have predetermined the guilt of the accused and its only aim is the presentation of a guilty verdict to appease the mob and to broadcast the mob's political propaganda. Show trials were invented by the reds in the 1920s, when Lenin proclaimed that the ideal trial is a "model trial", a "demonstrative trial" and "a process which sets an example". After the reds' show trials held in the communist bloc from 1930s to the 1980s, no new significant show trials appeared in the world until the present day. A forty year spell without major show trials was broken in 2021 when the reds returned to business and convicted a Minneapolis police officer of murder and manslaughter in the death of George Floyd. Students of history and politics have seen the reds at work again in a major way, the first in decades, in the staging of a trial in Minneapolis as part of a campaign to organize a communist revolution against the nation. This campaign has been going on for decades and students of history and politics have seen in the Floyd verdict a stark, frightening demonstration of red power against the rule of law which presages the imminent overthrow of the liberal democratic system. They have seen in the Floyd verdict the penultimate stop of a social, cultural and political train which has been accelerating since the early decades of the twentieth century, and is now speeding inexorably into its final destination, marked red totalitarian tyranny. They are not in the least bit surprised at the latest development of the Floyd show trial; they saw it coming for years as the inevitable consequence of the growing consolidation of red influence and control, just as Stalin's show trials staged during the Great Purge of the late 1930s were a consolidation of the red regime in Russia; and they know that in the wake of the Floyd verdict, it is only a matter of seconds, measured in the context of historical time, when America becomes morally, politically, socially and culturally unrecognizable from the present day. They have seen in the Floyd trial the operation of a national red lynch mob, which has burned down cities, killed hundreds of innocent people and inflicted billions of dollars in property damage, assuming the roles of judge, jury and executioner. They have seen the reds of Antifa, the reds of Black Lives Matter, the reds who justify hatred and violence in the name of civil rights, demand the conviction of the accused and threaten the Floyd jurors with the warning: No Justice, No Peace. They have seen a red criminal movement and mission warn the jurors that cities will be attacked and the innocent will die if the accused is not convicted. They have seen the red controlled Democratic Party led by Joe Biden demand the substitution of political justice and popular justice for lawful justice and evidence based justice. They have seen the reds proclaim that if the accused is not convicted, violent confrontations will smash up cities and people, make the streets flow with torrents of blood, and show the world that the reds are in earnest when they threaten to blow up civilization: "We're looking for a guilty verdict. And we're looking to see if all of the talk that took place and has been taking place after they saw what happened to George Floyd, if nothing happens, then we know that we've got to not only stay in the street, but we've got to fight for justice. We've got to get more active. We've got to get more confrontational. We've got to make sure that they know that we mean business." (Statement by Representative Maxine Waters at Brooklyn Center, Minneapolis, April 17, 2021). They have seen the reds demand that the trial of the accused be treated as a mere formality and that verdicts of guilty be rendered at lightning speed. They have seen the reds demand that the jury ignore all evidence which might establish a reasonable doubt concerning the guilt of the accused and focus only upon convicting him on all counts in the interest of advancing the cause of race power and political correctness. They have seen the reds demand that the case against the accused be judged not on its merits but with the aim of protecting political and ideological interests. They have seen the reds demand that the jury ignore all experts and witnesses called by the defense and condemn the accused on the contradictory charges of murder and manslaughter so as not to antagonize the bands of people's thugs who have taken over and canceled the liberal system of impartial justice. They have seen the reds engage blackmail and extortion and demand the damning of justice and the delivery of corrupt verdicts in order to ensure social peace. They have seen the reds employ a case of police brutality as a pretext to advance their real agenda of overthrowing the liberal political and economic system of America. They have seen reds gangsters on the march, spreading hatred of America and the West, silencing the voices of liberal dissent, chanting "you cannot stop the revolution!", and distorting the scales of justice by blasts of virulent, communist race politics. Look at the world of the reds and see judges buckle and fold beneath the weight of mob intimidation. See mob influences take control over the jury box. See jury decisions dictated by threats of violence on the streets. See the rights of the accused mauled to death by hordes of black power hoodlums. See fair trials attacked as counterrevolutionary weapons of white supremacy. See individual liberty invaded by swarms of communist agitators. See due process of law assassinated by the dark swords of race activism. See Mob Pressure and Abject Fear deliberate in courtrooms and render rehearsed verdicts. See jurors paralyzed by terror handing the mob the judgments it demands lest their friends, their families, their businesses, their careers and their very lives go up in smoke. See the wheels of justice smashed and scattered to the winds by the depredations of dangerous, disorderly crowds. See charges manufactured, courtrooms rigged, appeals predecided, and unsound convictions rendered irreversible by a system of outside coercion and mob rule which has sounded the death knell of fairness and justice in America: "Renowned defense attorney and Harvard Law School professor emeritus Alan Dershowitz said Tuesday that the conviction of former Minneapolis, Minnesota, police officer Derek Chauvin for the murder of George Floyd should be overturned on appeal because of the public intimidation of the jury and the judge's refusal to sequester the jury. Dershowitz noted the 'outside influence' of people like Rep. Maxine Waters (D-CA), who encouraged unrest at a protest on Saturday night in nearby Brooklyn Center, Minnesota, if there was no murder conviction in the case. Chauvin was convicted Tuesday of all of the charges in the case— second degree murder, third degree murder, and second degree manslaughter. Dershowitz told Newsmax: 'What was done to George Floyd by Officer Chauvin was inexcusable, morally. But the verdict is very questionable, because of the outside influences of people like Al Sharpton, and people like Maxine Waters. Their threats and intimidation, and hanging the sword of Damocles over the jury, and basically saying if you don't convict on the murder charge, on all the charges, the cities will burn, the country will be destroyed, seeped into the jury room because the judge made a terrible mistake by not sequestering the jury. So the judge himself said, this case may be reversed on appeal. And I think it might reversed on appeal. I think it should be reversed on appeal. I think the American Civil Liberties Union, which would be all over this case if it weren't a racially charged case, all Americans who care about due process and liberty should be concerned that the jury verdict may have been influenced by, if not the thumb, maybe even the elbow of the outside pressures, the fears, the threats. Every juror in that room knew about those threats. And when they sit and deliberate, they have to be saying to themselves, consciously or unconsciously, if I were to render a verdict other than a murder verdict, what the consequences will be, for me, and my family, my friends, my business. That should never, ever, be allowed to seep into a jury room. So I have no real confidence that this verdict—which may be correct in some ways—but I have no confidence that this verdict was produced by due process and the rule of law, rather than the influence of the crowd.' Dershowitz said that after exhausting appeals at the state level, the case 'will go to the United States Supreme Court,' which held the 'best possibility' of overturning the conviction, based on the judge's own reaction to Waters's comments." (Dershowitz: Derek Chauvin Conviction Should Be Reversed on Appeal by Joel Pollak). Human history moves in tragic circles and not in progressing lines and in 2021 it stopped at a place it was in Moscow in the late 1930s. It stopped at the staging of show trials by the reds in their march to total power. In 1937 in a Moscow courtroom, Prosecutor-General Andrey Vyshinsky stood up and read out a series of fabricated indictments, fabricated evidence and fabricated verdicts. In an instant later in historical time, the red mobs in control of America sent a police officer in a Minneapolis courtroom to jail without a fair trial. The same event as in Moscow, the same aim, the same mission, the same political verdicts, and the same perversion of the course of justice. The same tracks and rails laid down, transporting a state and a society to the end of their line in a savage jungle of red terror.

A CENTURY OF COLOR AND COMMUNISM

An eclipse is the obscuring of light from one body by the passage of another body between it and its light source. The most well known type of eclipse is a solar eclipse, which occurs when the moon blocks out light from the sun and the earth is engulfed in darkness. Students of history and politics have utilized this astronomical phenomenon as a model and illustration when reporting upon one of the most tragic political developments in modern times. This development commenced in America in the early decades of the twentieth century and has continued unabated up to the present day. Students of history and politics have observed a moral eclipse occur in a certain community and observed a moral shadow engulf this community in total darkness. In the nineteenth century, blacks in America were stalwart supporters of the Republican Party, the party of Abraham Lincoln, the party which fought a civil war and amended the United States Constitution to ensure that slavery and discrimination against blacks would never again occur. Blacks fervently supported the system of individual rights and constitutional government upon which America had been founded and they were determined to resist tooth and nail any reimposition of collectivism and servitude. Having suffered mightily under the system of slavery set up in the South, blacks in America vowed to lend their unwavering support to a party, to a cause and to a movement which championed liberal values and ideals and viewed people as real, flesh and blood individuals, possessing merits, attributes, freedom and dignity all their own, and not as members of racial or ethnic tribes. The traditional black allegiance to the Republican Party and to the nation of equal rights and equal opportunities for which it stood and which it sought to preserve and protect was expressed in 1935 by United States Representative John Lynch of Mississippi: "The colored voters cannot help but feel that in voting the Democratic ticket in national elections they will be voting to give their endorsement and their approval to every wrong of which they are victims, every right of which they are deprived, and every injustice of which they suffer." But at this time, the sun of morality was losing power, significance and strength in the black community and the reds were moving in. At this time, Satan's antiuniverse of antiliberty rained down sandstorms of radicalism and revolution upon blacks, blotted out their moral conscience, made them hate America and the West, and pushed them to demand the destruction of civilization. At this time, blacks joined the web of communist violence and conspiracy and composed a program and manifesto for the dissolution of America's institutions of meritocracy and the nation's liberal democratic order. Students of history and politics studied this declaration composed by the new black class of the reds and at once saw the end approaching as they were knocked off balance by an expanding, intensifying vortex of red agitation which was pulling down the nation, shredding and mangling its documents and principles, and hurling the bits and pieces into the abyss of cultural nonexistence. The new aims, policies, themes and ideas championed by the black masses who renounced the Republican Party and its principles which had set them free, and then stabbed their nation in the back, proclaimed that a progressive black person is a dedicated comrade in the cause of communism. They proclaimed that blacks must utilize all their talents and efforts to bring about the triumph of communism in America and throughout the world. They proclaimed that the overthrow of capitalism will bring about an endless age of peace, plenty and prosperity for blacks. They proclaimed that race hatred and discrimination against blacks will end forever after the liquidation of capitalists and their governments and supporters, and with the onset of a world empire of soviet states under the leadership of Moscow. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system of injustice and inequity perpetrated against people of color and must be replaced by a world socialist union under the hegemony of Russia. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system of decadent white rule and must be swept away by the mass pressure of blacks. They proclaimed that the ideal person is a red rabble rouser and fomenter of race war who exploits the imagined wrongs concocted by poor black trash and leads a revolution to abolish the free and open market which rewards only the best and the brightest. They proclaimed that the ideal person has turned his back on the free world, descended into the arms of the red conspiracy, and focused all his energies at toppling the capitalist system. They proclaimed that the only path to a better and superior world, a world which which guarantees true freedom and true justice to the working class, is the communist system, for true freedom and true justice lie in the outer darkness of red cruelty, red repression, red assassination, red contempt for the human person, and red rejection of the dignity of man. They proclaimed that a progressive society has abandoned liberal jurisprudence and placed itself in the hands of the red secret police. They proclaimed that a progressive society is ruled by red movements, red congresses, red front organizations, and red serpents and commissars. They proclaimed that the ideal person is an honors graduate from the school of communism which teaches the following subjects: how to organize street demonstrations; how to incite mob violence; how to fight the police; how to place neighborhoods under a state of siege; and how to throw bricks at shop windows and then run and hide. The new red class of blacks proclaimed that the ideal person is a dedicated red, a professional revolutionist, an operative trained and skilled in the use of secret codes and mail drops, in organizing secret meetings and underground activities, and in shaking police shadows. They proclaimed that a progressive society is ruled by red districts, red committees, red parties, red community organizers, red political bureaus, and red experts in red political warfare who have seized control over vital industries. They proclaimed that the liberation of the working class will be the glorious harvest of communist sabotage and espionage conducted against free nations throughout the world. Look at the world of today's blacks and see red propagandists create virulent hatred against white people. See the reds condemn capitalism and whites as the repositories of all the ills and wrongs of the world and the essence of all evil, injustice and brutality. See a movement to ensnare and enslave all of humanity under the banners of workers' rights and racial equality. See capitalism condemned as the white man's system, the white man's government, the white man's imperialism, the white man's prejudice and the white man's persecution of blacks. See the reds construct a satanic factory in which they mass produce black grievances and black victimhood, stoke the furnaces of black envy and black rancor, and forge the weapons of black revolution to halt the march of freedom and civilization: "The red propagandists distort the facts concerning racial differences for ulterior motives. All the right is not on the Negro side. Neither is all wrong. The same holds true with regard to the white man's side. The repository of good or evil is not to be found in any particular race. Black men are just as good or as bad as white men. Yellow men are just as good or as bad as brown or red. It ill behooves anyone to speak about the other. White men sold white men as slaves. Black men sold black men as slaves. Black rulers are no more humane than yellow, red or white rulers. Neither are they less brutal. The placing of the repository of everything, right and just, among the darker races is a dastardly communist trick to use race as a means of grabbing and enslaving the whole of humanity. Moscow's Negro tools in the incitement of racial warfare place all the ills of the Negro at the door of the white leaders of America. Capitalism and imperialism are made symbols of oppressive white rule in keeping with instructions from the Kremlin. To one familiar with red trickery, it is obvious that placing the blame for all the Negroes' ills at the door of the white leaders in America is to remove all responsibility from the Negro. This tends to make the Negro: a) feel sorry for himself; b) blames others for his failures; c) ignore the countless opportunities around him; d) jealous of the progress of other racial and national groups; e) expect the white man to do everything for him; f) look for easy and quick solutions as a substitute for the harsh realities of competitive struggle to get ahead. The result is a persecution complex—a warped belief that the white man's prejudices, the white man's system, the white man's government is responsible for everything. Such a belief is the way the reds plan it, for the next logical step is hate that can be used by the reds to accomplish their ends." (Color, Communism and Common Sense by Manning Johnson). The dark rays of radicalism pierced the skies of the twentieth century and banished the noontday light of freedom. People of all races, ethnicities and genders fell under the spell of red ideologies and began to labor for the cause of collectivism. This absence of moral and spiritual light brought the permanent realignment of blacks into an orbit circling Satan's fires of racial supremacy and communist dictatorship. In the final seconds remaining to free nations, the earth has been torn up by the depredations of black riots and black rampages.

The occultation of reason and morality by constellations of black Marxist devils, parading under such names as Black Lives Matter, has sent fear and intimidation circling the planet. These sinister lines have invaded courtrooms and jury boxes, and made them mete out black political justice in place of objective legal justice, and have brought about the destruction of the liberal social and political order.

RUSSIA'S FIRST RED

Philosophers of common sense reject the existence of absolute nothingness on the grounds that a void is void, that only existence exists, and that there self evidently is no nothing, only something. They thus reject both the creation theories of the Abrahamic religions and the fabrications of modern physics. But students of politics have found the anticoncept of absolute nothingness to be a useful guide and model to understanding the ideas of a political movement which arose in Russia in the late nineteenth century. Founded by a native Russian, it was a precursor of the communist movement founded by Marx which would sweep the nation in the early twentieth century. Founded by a native Russian, it was a movement of total destruction and the worship of nothingness and paved the way for the coming of the Bolsheviks a few decades later. Founded by a native Russian, it was movement of rejection of all moral values and institutions and it popularized a religion of materialism, a religion which proclaimed that there exist no minds in the universe but only matter and muscles, which would form the basis of the imminent Marxist revolution and the international red network to which it gave rise. Founded by Sergey Nechayev, it was a movement called nihilism and it reflected the native Russian ethos of collectivism, the brotherhood of the steppes, the comrades of the grasslands, and the proletarian hordes of the primordial plains, as it declared total war on human freedom and civilization. Exalted by Lenin as the "Titan of the Revolution" whose works should be required reading by all red revolutionaries, Nechayev set forth a program and manifesto for the establishment of the lawless antistate later adopted by the Soviet Union and by the communist bloc which would soon encircle the planet. Nechayev's creed proclaimed that the ideal person is a blind fanatic whose sole aim and mission in life is the achievement of communist revolution. It proclaimed that the ideal person is the carrier of a malarial fever which has shut him off from the world of common sense and ordinary experience and trapped him in a hothouse of red thoughts, red emotions, red interests, red affairs, red attachments, red comrades and red rage. It proclaimed that the ideal person is red down to the depths of his being; he has severed the bonds which tied him to the civilized order; and he has become the implacable enemy of the customs, laws and moral codes established by the righteous, the just and the noble. It proclaimed that the ideal person rejects the noontday world of reason and order and is a devoted student of Satan, trained and skilled in Satan's foremost art and science. This is the art and science of mass destruction and day and night this emissary of Satan seeks to discover the best, the surest and quickest way to kill off every object of goodness and decency in the world. Nechayev's manifesto proclaimed that the end justifies the means and the most immoral and criminal actions may be committed for the good of the working class. It proclaimed that the sole legitimate morality is social morality and the ideal person is a dedicated, merciless red revolutionary who wages war to the death against the intellectuals and educated classes who champion, against the masses, the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual. It proclaimed that communism and freedom are irreconcilable enemies and the only path to the liberation of the proletariat is through the extirpation of freedom. It proclaimed that the ideal person is an angry, passionate, red agitator who feels no love except love for tyrants, and no kinship except kinship with conspirators, and forges no friendships except friendships with subversives, and has no gratitude except for those who can fix trials, pay off judges and get him out of jail. It proclaimed that the ideal person derives the highest pleasure and satisfaction from the cruel, cold blooded killing of innocent, unarmed civilians condemned as members of the bourgeois. It proclaimed that the ideal person is a red troublemaker who is supercharged with currents of hatred and revenge toward those are talented and successful in the performance of honest work and is ruled by an overwhelming impulse to eliminate them. It proclaimed that the sole value of a person resides in his usefulness and service to the people's state, the people's community and the people's revolutionary cause. It proclaimed that the ideal person chooses to live in a free society for one purpose and one purpose alone: to betray it, to subvert it, to stab it in the back, and to bring about its rapid destruction. It proclaimed that the ideal person has no sympathy for the suffering of the innocent and desires that as many innocent people as possible to suffer for the sake of worldwide proletarian revolution. It proclaimed that the ideal person is a perfervid hater of the present order and is determined to destroy every last vestige, trace, position and place on earth which promote liberty and law as he is determined to do nothing else in his life. Look at the world of Nechayev and see red revolutionaries declare holy war against the institutions of the free world, against free commerce, free classes, and the art and literature celebrating freedom, and establish in their place the absolute rule of churches, palaces, soldiers and czars exalting a new religion of Society. See the proclamation that the sole source of wealth is manual labor and those who labor with their minds do not engage in work and are idlers and parasites who steal from the workers. See the proclamation that the sole path to the liberation and happiness of the working class resides in a revolt against capitalism led by the aristocrats of the red nobility, the rifles of the red bureaucrats and the divisions of the red army. See popular uprisings staged against Western liberal social systems and the right to private property. See capitalism condemned as the source of all the evils and miseries which afflict the people. See the proclamation that a progressive society is a revolutionary, communist society which has overthrown liberal political forms and replaced them with a red organization of violence and terror. See the proclamation that the only society which is beneficial to the people is one which has abolished the traditions and institutions protecting constitutional rights and has exterminated every last defender of human freedom. See the proclamation that a progressive society has made common cause with the vermin and scum of the earth and is a movement from below to overthrow the forms and elements of progress and civilization. See the criminals in words and criminals in deeds run rampant in a campaign of total, universal demolition of all the things valued by civilized people: the rule of law, restrictions on the arbitrary exercise of power, and a state which respects the primacy of the individual over the collective. See the nations of the earth poisoned for all generations to come with radioactive clouds detonated by red clergy, red parties, red commissars, red conspirators, red tribes, red gangs, red robbers, red ambushers, red adventurers, red traders in hatred and revenge, and the red welders of the masses into merciless fighting forces dedicated to the vanquishment of the individual's natural born right to think, speak and act without let or hindrance from red authorities: "Aiming at implacable revolution, the revolutionary may and frequently must live within society while pretending to be completely different from what he really is, for he must penetrate everywhere, into all the higher and middle classes, into the houses of commerce, the churches, and the palaces of the aristocracy, and into the worlds of the bureaucracy and literature and the military, and also into the Third Division and the Winter Palace of the Czar. Communist society has no aim other than the complete liberation and happiness of the masses--that is, of the people who live by manual labor. Convinced that their emancipation and the achievement of this happiness can only come about as a result of an all destroying popular revolt, capitalist society will use all its resources and energy toward increasing and intensifying the evils and miseries of the people until at last their patience is exhausted and they are driven to a general uprising. By a revolution, communist society does not mean an orderly revolt according to the classic Western model--a revolt which always stops short of attacking the rights of property and the traditional social systems of so-called civilization and morality. Until now, such a revolution has always limited itself to the overthrow of one political form in order to replace it by another, thereby attempting to bring about a so-called revolutionary state. The only form of revolution beneficial to the people is one which destroys the entire state to the roots and exterminated all the state traditions, institutions, and classes in Russia." (Catechism Of A Revolutionary by Sergey Nechayev). At the center of the underworld where Satan rules whirls a black sun. It sends forth streaming black flames and the fearsome rays of a black gospel. These are the principles and beliefs held by those who worship at the altars of universal destruction and the void of moral and spiritual negation. These are the principles and beliefs espoused by red collectivists and red materialists who deny the existence of individuals who possess rights and the existence of minds which create wealth. In Russia in the nineteenth century decades before Lenin, Satan placed his black book of communism into the hands of Sergey Nechayev. Hurling out of the pages of Nechayev's thought, the demons of red revolution swept through the worlds of the Bolsheviks, the Maoists, the Hitlerites, the Red Brigades, the Red Army Faction, Antifa and Black Lives Matter. Inspired by the life and career of their master Nechayev, they have seized control over the present order and beaten, strangled and shot to death human civilization.

LAST STOP: RED TOWN, USA

Modern railway signaling systems are equipped with train protection devices which automatically stop a train if it does something it is not supposed to do, such as pass a point at an excessive speed. These train protection systems ensure that a train stops by means of two components: a trip arm mechanism mounted on the ground, and a valve mounted on the train which is connected to the brakes. Students of politics and culture who study the history of America over the past one hundred years see a nation careening down a path of self destruction fueled by the passions of the mob. They see red engineers in control of a wild locomotive whose furnace is stoked by truckloads of agitation material and street corner propaganda and whose speed is unrestrained by any train stop or braking mechanism. They see danger accelerate down the railway tracks of mass democracy and crash into its final destination, marked red totalitarian tyranny, and know that nothing and nobody has the power to halt it, to reverse its course and to make it turn back. They know that destiny itself has decreed the nation's doom, the almighty power of the majority which has aimed its envy, its hatred and its wrath at free societies which allow talented, intelligent people to flourish and prosper, and which punish the failures and the incompetents within their ranks. They know that what they see happening in America today is the product of populism and mob rule and that these events are necessarily happening because all civilizations in a state of decline have exhibited the same pattern of events caused by the same social disease:

absolute control exercised by the iron wires pulled by the reds. They see that America has been stabbed in the back by its citizen reds and that before this internally induced catastrophe, America has ceased to be America. They have compiled a report on the decline and fall of America and can scarcely believe the savage creeds emanating from the jungles of the reds which open and close every chapter of their terrifying report. These creeds proclaim that a progressive society authorizes nationwide looting and rioting to ensure that trials of police officers accused of brutality result in convictions on all counts without regard to the evidence and despite reasonable doubts to the contrary. They proclaim that a progressive society has disarmed the police and prevented them from making arrests. They proclaim that a progressive society allows murder and mayhem to flourish unimpeded, and disorder to proliferate by triple digit figures, and has declared holy war against the forces of the law. They proclaim that a progressive society fills bottles by the thousands with gasoline, passes them out to its armies of hoodlums, and celebrates as police cars are transformed into blazing pyres, and the flames of anarchy skyrocket to the heavens. They proclaim that a progressive society is a homicidal society which justifies mass killing in the name of the marginalized and the victimized. They proclaim that a progressive society gives a green light to aggressive criminal behavior and outlaws all forms of policing and incarceration. They proclaim that a progressive society establishes special no go zones patrolled by the people's thugs and allows them to secede from lawful structures. They proclaim that a progressive society is attacked day and night by red activists and has cracked down forever on law and order. They proclaim that a progressive society is run by communist district attorneys who have legalized robbery, vandalism and theft. They proclaim that a progressive society has established universal voting without identification requirements of any kind. They proclaim that a progressive society has transformed sexual assault trials into star chambers and found male defendants guilty on the basis of an accusation or a series of accusations, no matter how old, incredible or unfair the accusations are, and found them guilty without a scintilla of physical evidence or eyewitness corroboration. They proclaim that a progressive media establishment rejects the principles of truth and integrity and conducts campaigns of slander and vilification against the defenders of capitalist freedom and limited government. They proclaim that a progressive media establishment is a witch's brew, a diabolical concoction and an alphabet soup of political lying and defamation which is spelled Facebook, Instagram, You Tube, Twitter, The New York Times, The Washington Post, Time Magazine, CNN, MSNBC, NBC, CBS and ABC. They proclaim that a progressive society has institutionalized racism and sexism in a regime of antimale, antiwhite employment, promotion, school admissions and school curricula. They proclaim that a progressive university and business corporation makes race and gender plus factors in the selection of students and personnel and has established a regime of preferential treatment for women and nonwhites in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. They proclaim that a progressive society has made whites today responsible for slavery practiced in the South over a century ago and has awarded multimillion dollar reparation payments to blacks. They proclaim that a progressive society is a segregated society governed from top to bottom by a regime of race and gender tribal classification. They proclaim that a progressive school system requires students to stand up every morning and chant a pledge of allegiance to the Aztec gods of human sacrifice in order to affirm their belief in the primacy of the group over the individual and their resolute rejection of human freedom and dignity. Look at the world of present day America and see a communist revolution and a national socialist revolution sweep away the ideals of a liberal society. See the unwashed masses and their voices in the entertainment establishment declare war against males, white people, the talented and the successful, and take over the platforms of modern civilization. See left wing militants mount the soapboxes of social justice and proclaim that the individual has no rights or freedoms and is the property of gender, race and class tribes. See national laboratories clone Satan's genes and mass produce gender, race and class haters by the millions. See red hoodlums rampage against law and order and assassinate the police and the innocent people they protect. See red totalitarians gain control over local, state and national government and launch a campaign to repeal liberty, justice and the structures of fairness which promote rational flourishing. See a church of red themes gather congregants from across the nation to worship at the altars of tribalism, collectivism, gun violence, and actions and policies which slaughter the decent and the righteous in the streets: "Today we're going to talk about the Academy Awards, the communist revolution going on in America, and how they are connected. They both point to an America in free fall. From Academy awards to diversity rewards. that's what we saw Sunday night. The most leftwing, amateurish, sophomoric antiwhite antiAmerican, wokest Oscars ceremony ever. Why do I watch the Academy Awards? I am a social commentator, and my job is to comment on societal issues. This is the world series of entertainment and these people, believe it or not, are very influential. Multiple times Sunday night, someone got up on the stage and attacked America, attacked the police. No matter what is done in this country, it's never going to be enough for those with grievances built into their DNA. Where do they expect this to go? A police free nation where we'll all be slaughtered in the streets? You may have heard that the United States is one of the top countries in the world for gun violence. That is true. But it is primarily in the cities run by the far left: Chicago, Los Angeles, Baltimore, Philadelphia. If you eliminate these cities run by far left mayors, then we're amongst the lowest in terms of gun violence." (From Academy Awards To Diversity Rewards: America In Free Fall by Michael Savage). The phenomenon of unrestrained acceleration is terrifying. Trains speeding down tracks waiting to crash. Objects in downward motion under the force of gravity waiting to be reduced to rubble. Societies under the control of the reds heading inexorably, unstopably into moral and political disintegration. Watch a train hurtle from the horizons of red rabble rousing and watch it break apart in the sinister forests planted by the folks next door. Watch an object fall from the skies of red theologies and watch it break into pieces in the mass savagery which resides on main street. This train, this object, this race into irreversible damnation, is America in the present day. It is the America ruled by the masses. The radicalization of cultural life, the racialization of politics, the genderization of politics, the weaponization of politics, strident anticapitalist propaganda and unremitting class war. Decreed by fate which has placed the masses in charge, such is the terminus and wreckage of a land which once was free.

DIRECTOR WELLES WOWS THE REDS

An irony is an event which is completely contrary to what one expects. Ironies present paradoxes and incongruities which often confound the naive. One of the bitterest ironies in human history lay in the life of Karl Marx, who was financially supported by his millionaire comrade, fellow red Friedrich Engels, owner of the successful Ermen and Engels cotton mill in Manchester, England. In America, ironies are mass produced in Hollywood by the thousands and present such spectacles as multimillionaire red actors stridently and noisily advocating for the reds, a sight which fills decent, honest citizens with feelings of revulsion and disgust. The most famous irony in the history of Hollywood occurred in Wisconsin in 1946, when a thirty eight year old entertainment icon and dedicated, energetic supporter of the reds was invited by his friends to run for a seat in the United States Senate in his home state. The seat was won by the most visible face of anticommunism in the world and America's preeminent investigator of communist security risks in the government. The victor was Joseph McCarthy and his would be challenger was Orson Welles. Motion picture director, actor, screenwriter and producer, Orson Welles entered the world of entertainment in the 1930s and immediately skyrocketed to fame in these Red Decades, and would be lionized by the reds in all the red decades to follow, and when he died, had been lauded by red film critics and the red motion picture establishment as the greatest filmmaker of all time. Politically active and aligned with the reds from the very beginning of his career, Welles composed for the stage, for the cinema, for radio and for television, for all the media in which he was active, a program and manifesto of radical politics which earned him the undying admiration, gratitude and respect of Hollywood for all time to come and was responsible for the profuse critical accolades which he received. Hollywood's leading motion picture promotion of red philosophy, scripted, directed and produced by Welles and starring the master himself, proclaimed that capitalism is a system ruled by unscrupulous media tycoons and brutal police officers. It proclaimed that a progressive film seeks to show the oppressed character of working class life under capitalism. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system of greed, corruption, official malfeasance and constant danger for working people. It proclaimed that those who achieve financial success by dint of talent, ability and hard work are doomed to lead a life of misery, unhappiness and wistful longing for the rollicking sled rides of childhood and the sparkling, pristine joys of youth. It proclaimed that the culmination of history will see a series of civil wars between the haves and the have nots and a movement of mass murder against the former. It proclaimed that multimillionaires who become rich by satisfying consumer demands are destined to die alone in their mansions and mausoleums. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system in which cruel, unfeeling, cold blooded bankers are the overseers and controllers of the people. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system blighted by dark cities which have leaped backward past the ramparts of civilization and into the year zero. It proclaimed that a progressive theater is a people's theater, a red front theater, a theater staged by the Daily Worker and the Communist Party. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system in which people with money and property lord it over the working class and steal all their wealth. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system which has created a permanent class of the exploited and the underprivileged: the unskilled beasts who work with their muscles. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system which dehumanizes people and treats them as objects and must be sacrificed upon the altar of the people's collectivist dictatorship. It proclaimed that capitalism is an unbearable nightmare for those who toil in the sweatshops of the fields and cities and must be replaced by the people's system of red totalitarian regimentation. It proclaimed that people who become rich and prosperous are necessarily excluded from the ranks of those who are morally great and outstanding people. It proclaimed that a progressive film is an unremitting attack on the capitalist system and is a megaphone blaring out from the silver screen defending the dogmas of communism: "The evidence before us leads inevitably to the conclusion that the film Citizen Kane is nothing more than an extension of the Communist Party's campaign to smear one of its most effective and consistent opponents in the United States [William Randolph Hearst]." (Subject: Orson Welles, File Number: 10023438, Federal Bureau of Investigation). Look at the world of

Orson Welles and see an active supporter of red parties, red journals, red bookstores and red symposiums as they combine into a sinister vortex and break apart the traditions and institutions of a free society: "By the spring and winter of 1938, Welles was a regular part of Popular Front events: in February, he introduced a New Masses [Communist Party cultural magazine] concert; in March, he and Blitzstein [The Cradle Will Rock] appeared at a Workers Bookstore symposium on the The Culture of the People's Front; in April, he appeared at the American Student Union's Peace Ball." (The Cultural Front by Michael Denning). Look at the world of Orson Welles and see an activist justify mass murder in the name of the proletariat: "Welles concluded his remarks by stating that fascism in the United States was still possible until all the greedy people in this country had been killed." (Subject: Orson Welles, File Number: 10023438, Federal Bureau of Investigation). Look at the world of Orson Welles and see a noisy advocate of communist victory, communist legislation, communist democracy, communist labor, communist business, communist capital, communist government, communist fascism, communist propaganda, communist employment, communist pirates, communist plunderers, communist presidents, communist price regulations, communist control over the lives of the people, communist tyranny in the name of human advancement, and a communist New Deal for the dissolution of freedom and civilization: "Welles' chief themes were the need to perpetuate New Deal social legislation, and the necessity of translating the Allied victory over Germany into a world democracy. He argued for a fair working relationship between labor and capital, but believed government price regulations should continue after the war; he inveighed against a 'certain sort of businessman' who 'openly favors a certain percentage of postwar unemployment,' saying that such types 'don't want any percentage of government control over their affairs. They want to be free as buccaneers, free to encourage a little convenient joblessness.' He supported the basic structure of American government and encouraged the two party structure, but at the time he hoped aloud that Henry Wallace [Roosevelt's vice president, 1941-45, and Progressive Party candidate for president in 1948] would be the next president. Welles could sense a growing propaganda effort against the Russians. 'We are still building our Bulwarks against Bolshevism. The phony fear of communism is smoke screening the real menace of renascent fascism.' " (The Magic Of Orson Welles by James Naremore). In a mansion called Xanadu, a wealthy, powerful man lies on his deathbed. Holding a snow globe, he utters a word, Rosebud, and then dies. The globe falls from his hands and shatters on the floor. The contents spill out and reveal a story, a drama, a play, a broadcast, a film, a piece of theater and a projection of hatred of freedom and capitalism. In this story, capitalism is condemned as a fountainhead of unending misery which makes the rich yearn for the days of their youth and the masses yearn for totalitarian enslavement. Communism is paraded as the summit of man's moral and political progress. Communist front organizations such as the American Free World Association commit themselves to the destruction of liberal democracy in the name of fighting fascism. Communist internationalism and aggression are exalted above capitalist isolationism and nonaggression. A prominent red in Hollywood promotes two thousand years of communism, totalitarianism and Marxism which existed prior to the advent of the Communists, the Totalitarians and the Marxists: "I am an overpaid movie producer. I'm all for making money if it means earning it. But surely my right to having more than enough is canceled if I don't use that more to help those who have less. This sense of humanity's interdependence antedates Karl Marx." At a rally at Madison Square Garden in 1944, a prominent red in Hollywood introduces communist presidential candidate Henry Wallace. Denouncing the Republican Party and freedom lovers throughout the nation, he works up the crowd to a fever pitch and to a state of violent frenzy. The crowd explodes into a conflagration whose flames roar out: Wallace and Welles in the White House in 1948! The story ends and credits roll: Written, directed, produced and starred in by Orson Welles.

STEINBECK'S GRAPES OF HATRED AND ENVY

A dust bowl is an area of land devoid of vegetation in which the soil has been reduced to dust. During the 1930s in the American and Canadian prairies, the Dust Bowl brought severe dust storms which completely destroyed the ecology and agriculture of the region. Students of literature use the phenomenon of the dust bowl as a metaphor to describe the intellectual and literary climate of the West over the past one hundred years as they observe the high winds and choking dust of red propaganda sweep across the pages of books and articles and blind and suffocate public discourse. Amidst the heavy black clouds of red agitational dust rising and swirling across the cultural landscape since the dawn of the twentieth century, students of literature have observed the works of an American novelist hailed by legions of reds as a writer possessing "keen social perception", as a "giant of American letters" and as the author of "classics of Western literature", and have accordingly seen fit to study him. The author's name is John Steinbeck and students of literature have seen emanating from his works blasts of ideological wind and dirt which have settled upon homes, schools and offices throughout the world and made the air of freedom and liberty impossible to breathe. Besieging free nations and sweeping away the soil of their civilization, the red dust storms launched by Steinbeck are a program and manifesto of treason against the West committed by its masses, multitudes, writers and artists, and serve as a warning and reminder of what happens, what always happens, what has always happened, and what will always happen, when a civilization, moved by the hands of the mob, enters upon its concluding phases and declines and falls into the abyss. Set down from the 1930s through to the 1960s, Steinbeck's program of red drought, red erosion, red sand storms, and speeding red air currents proclaimed that capitalism is a system of cruel victimization of the working class. It proclaimed that progressive literature is politically engaged literature which seeks in every paragraph and on every page to discredit the liberal democratic system. It proclaimed that a progressive society enslaves the producers and creators of wealth to the thrones of the poor and the needy. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system of perpetual economic crises and commission of wrongs against those who labor and its crimes can only be rectified by a regime of red collectivist regimentation. Listen to a master of red dessication, red dehydration and the red hot scorching of society and hear him condemn capitalism as a system of humiliation and distress for the workers and a vault of greed manned by the scoundrels who steal from them: "I want to put a tag of shame on the greedy bastards who are responsible for this". The manifesto of Steinbeck proclaimed that a progressive society is governed by dangerous revolutionaries who inflict mass violence in order to rescue the poor victims of freedom and liberty. It proclaimed that a progressive society is governed by communist union organizers and fomentors of strikes and riots who have launched a campaign of liquidation of the symbols of freedom, civilization and moral order: "the banks, the courts, police and most of the respectable local citizenry". It proclaimed that the world of capitalism is a world of economic hardship, poor families, tenant farmers, bank foreclosures and the masses perpetually out of work. It proclaimed that a progressive society is a communist society which alone can give the downtrodden jobs, freedom, dignity and a future. It proclaimed that the world of capitalism is a world in which wages are slave wages and the workers are exploited to the point of starvation. It proclaimed that the world of capitalism is a world in which families default on their bank loans and their futures are repossessed. It proclaimed that the world of capitalism is a world in which roads are crowded with migrant workers who die in makeshift camps and are buried in the ruling classes' fields. It proclaimed that the world of capitalism is a world in which corporate farmers act in collusion and force small farmers out of business through collapsing prices. It proclaimed that the world of capitalism is a world in which the police protect corporate interests and shoot down the defenders of the working class. It proclaimed that the world of capitalism is a world blighted by slums, shantytowns, and endless wastelands of downturns and depressions. It proclaimed that the world of capitalism is a world of scabs, strikebreakers, workers being lynched and workers dying in poverty. Look at the world of John Steinbeck and see an American socialist place freedom in chains and push it into a gas chamber marked We. See him spew out envy and hatred toward those who are talented, successful and produce and own things. See him give voice to the aspirations of the mob and declare war on the ideals of the Enlightenment expressed by Thomas Paine and Thomas Jefferson. See him promote a revolution of Marx's and Lenin's multitudes against all that is decent, lawful, virtuous and just: "This is the beginning—from I to we. If you who own the things people must have could understand this, you might preserve yourself. If you could separate causes from results, if you could know that Paine, Marx, Jefferson, Lenin were results, not causes, you might survive. But that you cannot know. For the quality of owning freezes you forever into I, and cuts you off forever from the we." (The Grapes Of Wrath by John Steinbeck). Look at the world of John Steinbeck and see an American revolutionary condemn the free world as a lash of banks, business owners and the bourgeois lacerating the backs of the working class. See him condemn human liberty as a scourge of capitalist masters, monsters and machines who prey upon the proletariat. See him condemn capitalism as a system in which farmers have no work, no crops, no money, no place to live and no future to plan. See him condemn capitalism as a system in which workers have become slave laborers in the service of their capitalist bosses. See him condemn capitalism as a system in which robber barons drive down wages and reduce the workers to abject penury. See him condemn capitalism as a system in which corporate chiefs and titans hold all loans, hold all property, hold all wealth, hold all profits, and hold the lives of the honest toilers in their hands. See him condemn capitalism as a system in which unscrupulous proprietors and the idle rich control the means of production and live off the wages of those who earn their daily bread. See him raise the clarion call of class war and stir up a Marxist movement of the envious, the jealous, the covetous, the rancorous, the frustrated, and the scum and vermin of the earth supercharged with hatred, and lead them onward to storm the ramparts of human progress, flourishing and moral advancement: "An example of Marxism in John Steinbeck's The Grapes of Wrath comes early in the novel. The banks and business owners are the bourgeoisie. They control the wealth and own the land. Steinbeck describes the banks as 'machines and masters all at the same time.' The men who represent these banks are 'proud to be slaves to such cold and powerful masters.' They come to the farmers, who have worked the land their entire life, and tell them 'the bank, the monster, owns it. You'll have to go.' The land has become dry and not arable. The bank is not making money from the farmers. They have to go. The farmers have nowhere else to go. They leave the land; they have no work, no crops, no money, and no place to live. But the bank doesn't care. It wants only money, and if 'they don't get it, they die the way you (the farmers) die without air.' The men who want to work, who need to work in order to provide sustenance for their family, are having this ability taken away from them by the banks and the men who run them. This is just the beginning of the Marxist class conflict between the proletariat and the bourgeoisie. As the banks confiscate the land, the farmers are forced to head west to find work. Not only are they being displaced, but their ability to work is taken away. When they finally find work, they find that the banks and the bosses hiring them control the wages to the point where a man can barely subsist. The owners have an abundance of workers, and play them against one another in order to drive the wages down. Tom Joad finds this out first hand. Tom Joad gains employment but learns from the proprietor how the wages are determined. Since the banks hold the loans on nearly all the lands worked by farmers, they dictate the wage. Mr. Thomas, who hires Tom to work, indicates that the bank said the 'wage is twenty five now. If you pay thirty, it'll only cause unrest.' This information just fuels the fire for Tom. He learns from Jim Casy, a friend of the family, about the division growing between the wages of the workers and the profit of the banks. He tells Tom that the owners are 'helpin' to starve kids.' The Marxist idea of class conflict reaches its apex." (Economic Themes in The Grapes of Wrath: Socialism, Communism & Marxism by Joseph Altnether). A certain book was hailed as "the most thoroughly discussed novel--in criticism, reviews, and college classrooms--of twentieth century American literature". It was hailed as "the Great American Novel". It was hailed as "a phenomenon on the scale of a national event." It was the best selling book of 1939 and by February 1940, a half a million copies of the book had been printed. It won the National Book Award. It won the Pulitzer Prize for Fiction. Its Armed Services Edition went through multiple printings. It helped to win the Nobel Prize for Literature for its author. It was selected by Time magazine in its "100 Best English Language Novels from 1923 to 2005". It was selected by The Daily Telegraph in its "100 Novels Everyone Should Read". It was selected by Le Monde in its "100 Best Books of the Twentieth Century". It was selected by the BBC as one of Britain's "best loved novels." This book was The Grapes of Wrath. The author was John Steinbeck, and the book was the author's magnum opus. It raised dust clouds of communist agitation and propaganda throughout the world which turned day into night and prevented Freedom from seeing a centimeter in front of it. Freedom prayed for the rains to fall and wash away the nightmare. The rains never came.

HEMINGWAY FIGHTS FOR STALIN

Spain 1937. The anticommunist Nationalist forces advance from their strongholds in the south and west, capture Spain's northern coastline, commence an attack upon Madrid, and are on the path to victory. At this time, a man who will become the most famous writer in American history leaves for Spain to cover the Spanish Civil War for the North American Newspaper Alliance. This man, this American icon, was not any ordinary newspaper reporter dedicated to the achievement of truth, accuracy and integrity in journalism. Students of literature and journalism saw him in quite a different light and were repelled at what they saw. They saw in him a partisan for the reds masquerading as a journalist, an agent of Stalin's fifth columns whose life's mission was to sell communism to the world and advance the cause of Bolshevik revolution. This man was not a reporter or a journalist in any ordinary signification of the terms, but was a weaponizer of journalism and a perverter of journalism who placed it in the service of his red politics and wrote world famous novels which promoted from every paragraph, page and punctuation mark the communist party line as laid down by his masters in Moscow. This man's name was Ernest Hemingway and students of literature and journalism have issued a report on a world renowned American subversive who self identified as a communist throughout his life and produced a body of literature which gave passionate voice and expression to the promoters of totalitarian tyranny. To read the pages of this report is to read an account of treason, moral, intellectual and literary treason, which convinced the chroniclers of America that its intelligentsia was stabbing it in the back with every book and article it wrote, and had dedicated itself to its total destruction. In the account of the life and career of Ernest Hemingway, we see a close, loyal friend of Socialist Party leader Eugene Debs and Communist Party leader Fidel Castro. We see a writer for the Cooperative Society, an organization devoted to achieving solidarity among communist farmers and factory workers in support of communist workers' rights, communist collective bargaining and the communist labor movement. We see a fighter with the communist guerrillas during the Spanish Civil War. We see a red rifle barrel disguised as a newspaper reporter unable to provide a fair, unbiased account of the anticommunist forces fighting in the war. We see a secret agent in the service of Soviet intelligence. We see a correspondent for a communist magazine during World War II. We see an American radical giving shelter, advice and massive financial donations to members of the Cuban Communist Party. We see him offer effusive praise for Fidel Castro after the latter seized power in Cuba in January 1959. We see him describe the red totalitarian tyranny set up in Cuba as a precious political development which would liberate the working class which for centuries had been oppressed and exploited by its capitalist overlords. We see capitalism condemned as a world of economic depression, devastation and privation lorded over by wealthy businessmen. We see novels about of communist outlaws smuggling communist revolutionaries around the world. We see a defense of the have nots robbing and murdering the haves. We see capitalism condemned as a world in which human beings are reduced to the level of objects and functionaries of the market. We see capitalism condemned as a world in which human relationships are reduced to business transactions. We see capitalism condemned as a world in which individuals possess no value beyond their economic potential. We see capitalism condemned as a world in which the worth of individuals is judged by how much they increase the profit margins of the capitalist bosses. We see capitalism condemned as a world in which economic calculations debase individuals and render humanity obsolete. We see capitalism condemned as a world in which workers are treated as instruments of capitalist profits and nothing more and blacks are thrashed twice, once with the lash of the boss and once with the lash of the race hater:

"I hurt," the nigger said. "I hurt worse all the time."

"I'm sorry, Wesley," the man said. "But I got to steer."

"You treat a man no better than a dog," the nigger said. He was getting ugly now. But the man was still sorry for him.

"I'm going to make you comfortable, Wesley," he said. "You lay quiet now."

"You don't care what happens to a man," the nigger said. "You ain't hardly human."

"I'm going to fix you up good," the man said. "You just lay quiet."

"You ain't going to fix me up," the nigger said. The man whose name was Harry Morgan said nothing then because he liked the nigger and there was nothing to do now but hit him, and he couldn't hit him. The nigger kept on talking.

“Why didn’t we stop when they started shooting?”

The man did not answer.

“Ain’t a man’s life worth more than a load of liquor?”

The man was intent on his steering. (To Have And To Have Not by Ernest Hemingway).

We see in the life of Ernest Hemingway an American red who, beginning in 1940, performed intelligence and propaganda work for the Soviet Union's People's Commissariat for Internal Affairs, the predecessor of the KGB. Author of Writer, Sailor, Soldier, Spy: Ernest Hemingway's Secret Adventures, Nicholas Reynolds describes his reaction to learning about Hemingway's subversive activities: "I felt like I had taken an elbow deep in the gut when I read he had signed on with the NKVD." Look at the life of Hemingway and see a betrayer of his country place himself at the disposal of NKVD agents. See him promote the ideas, ideals, theories and policies of the Soviet Union. See him make his influence and access the property of the Soviet state. See him use his talents and abilities to compose false, biased and misleading information in support of the Soviet cause. See an American troublemaker with a secret code name obeying Soviet orders concerning where to live, what to write, how to behave and how to deliver as many of his fellow citizens as he can into the maw of the Soviet totalitarian machine: "In a 2009 book written by an estranged former KGB officer, Alexander Vassiliev, Reynolds [Nicholas Reynolds, author of Writer, Sailor, Soldier, Spy: Ernest Hemingway's Secret Adventures] found 'verbatim excerpts from Ernest Hemingway's official Soviet file that Vassiliev had smuggled out of Russia.' The excerpts showed that around December 1940, NKVD agents had recruited Hemingway for 'our work on ideological grounds.' Though it's unclear what exactly they wanted from Hemingway, his influence and access, as well as his talent as a propagandist, would have made him a potentially valuable intelligence asset. According to the smuggled file, Jacob Golos, a top agent in the NKVD office in New York, was the one who met with Hemingway, who received the code name Argo. The deal got sealed here in New York, somewhere on the Lower East Side. We don't know exactly,' Reynolds told CBS News. As Reynolds sees it, Hemingway's involvement with the NKVD 'influenced many of the decisions he made during his last fifteen years: where he lived, what he wrote, and how he acted.' " (Was Ernest Hemingway A Spy? By Sarah Pruitt). Cuba 1964. The communist government issues a postage stamp featuring a portrait of Ernest Hemingway. A few decades after Hemingway travels Spain to fight for the communists, he is officially commemorated for his multifarious efforts on behalf of the cause by the red dictators in charge of the island. During his lifetime, the red masses in control of the world lavished the highest honors on him, including the Nobel Prize in Literature and the Pulitzer Prize for Fiction. Placing his name on planets, craters, restaurants, bars, fountain pens, lines of clothing and literary awards, the masses let this red novelist, journalist and short story writer compose the final chapter of the West.

A SINGER FOR THE RED FOLK

Folk music is a genre of music which originates in popular culture. Often transmitted orally from generation to generation, it reflects the value and ideals of the culture in which it arises. Rooted in a national ethos and national attitudes, folk music is the opposite of world music, classical music or symphonic music. Cultures which exalt the ideals of individual freedom produce folk musicians which express these ideals, while cultures which exalt the ideals opposed to freedom, the ideals of social justice and social responsibility, produce folk musicians which express these antiliberal ideals. Students of American history and culture who have chronicled the rise of red ideals in the nation and their ascendancy to absolute power in the early years of the twentieth century have been inescapably drawn to the life and career of the most effective American communist in the history of the nation. Professional integrity has compelled them to study this figure as they stand aghast and repelled at the life of moral transgressions he led and at the dagger he wielded to stab his nation in the back. Called an "American folk music legend", Pete Seeger was quite the contrary, and was in point in fact a performer of music intended strictly for the red folk of America, and offered throughout his musical career not a word of support for the values and ideals upon which America was founded. In the eyes of America's red masses and red intellectuals, Seeger was an American folk musician, while in the eyes of clear eyed, unbiased, nonpartisan students of American history and culture, Seeger was a red folk musician, because the ideals he championed were not the ideals of the American folk which animated the nation on the fields of Lexington and Concord or the ideals which this folk championed when they built up the new nation during the nineteenth century. Singing songs of collectivism and communism, songs of Russia and the reds, Seeger forged a career in music which occupies the uppermost ranks in the annals of moral treason and subversion from within. Seeger was an American red folk musician and was therefore not an American folk musician in the true meaning of the term, just as the people who called him a true American folk musician were not, morally speaking, Americans but were Americans in name and passport only, and were in point of fact red Americans, pseudoAmericans and antiAmericans. After the American folk turned red in the early decades of the twentieth century, Seeger was elected their favorite musician, and students of American history and culture have seen fit and been obligated to chronicle his career. In 1936, at the age of seventeen, Seeger joined the Young Communist League. In 1939, following the Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact, a nonaggression pact between Germany and the Soviet Union, Seeger obeyed orders issued by the Soviets and came out in opposition to American involvement in World War II. He expressed his opposition in Songs For John Doe: "Franklin D, listen to me,/You ain't a-gonna send me across the sea." Then in 1941, following the German invasion of Russia, the Soviets issued new instructions to American communists that they must support American involvement in the war. Seeger's new line was expressed in his song Dear Mr President: "Now, Mr. President,/We haven't always agreed in the past, I know,/But that ain't at all important now./What is important is what we got to do,We got to lick Mr. Hitler, and until we do,/Other things can wait." In 1942, having faithfully served the Communist Party USA for six years, he formally joined its ranks. In 1943, Seeger recorded songs in support of the communist led Republican forces in the Spanish Civil War. These were Songs Of The Lincoln Battalion, named after the communist organization of soldiers set up by the Communist International and sent sailing from America. The album preserved the propaganda of His Red Master's Voice for his faithful listeners throughout the world: "This album features songs of the men who left home and safety behind them in 1937 to fight Fascism in Spain". In 1940, Seeger was a founding member of the Almanac Singers. Part of the Popular Front, an alliance of reds under the leadership of the Communist Party USA, the song condemned capitalism as a system of fascism, militarism and racism. In 1945, Seeger was a founding member of People's Songs, an organization which promoted communism in airs, strains, tunes and words set to music. Listen to America's folk singer for the reds and hear him lead the nation's communists on the march, singing songs of revolution. Hear him promote communist unions, singers, songwriters, choruses and people's organizations. Hear him make musical sounds and set words to tune in praise of communist labor, the communization of the American people, and the communist rampage through the liberal democratic order: "The people are on the march and must have songs to sing. Now in 1946, the truth must reassert itself in many singing voices. There are thousands of unions, people's organizations, singers and choruses who would gladly use more songs. There are many songwriters, amateur and professional, who are writing these songs. It is clear that there must be an organization to make and send songs of labor and the American people through the land. To do this job we formed People's Songs, INC We invite your to join us." (People's Songs, Newsletter No. 1, Introduction by Pete Seeger). In 1948, Seeger was a founding member of the Weavers, named after the title of a play by Gerhart Hauptmann about an uprising of communist weavers in Silesia. The group performed benefit concerts for communist strikers and promoted the communization of miners and automobile workers unions. After World War II, Soviets occupied Eastern Europe, set up puppet communist states, and imprisoned 125 million people behind an iron curtain of red totalitarian tyranny. Seeger justified this in the name of peace, democracy and human rights. Listen to America's folk singer for the reds and hear him declare war on the system of law and order which protects free societies. Hear him exhort the faithful to storm the ramparts of Wall Street and smash the defensive walls of Western civilization: "Sometimes I think I'll blow down a cop/Lord, you treat me so mean. I'm gonna start me a hungry man's union,/Ain't a-gonna charge no dues,/Gonna march down that road to the Wall Street Walls,/A-singin' those 66 Highway Blues." (66 Highway Blues by Pete Seeger). Listen to America's folk singer for the reds and hear him shatter the American bell of liberty with the hammer and sickle of communist power. Hear him promote red totalitarian tyranny in the name of freedom and justice. Hear him call for universal collectivism, enslavement and the eradication of the individual in the name of "love between my brothers and my sisters": "If I had a hammer/I'd hammer in the morning,/I'd hammer in the evening,/All over this land./I'd hammer out a danger,/I'd hammer out a warning,/I'd hammer out of love between my brothers and my sisters/All over this land./Now I have a hammer/And I have a bell/And I have a song to sing/All over this land./It's the hammer of justice,/It's the bell of freedom./And a song about love between my brothers and my sisters/All over this land." (If I Had A Hammer by Pete Seeger). During the Vietnam War, Seeger, marching under the banners of antiwar protest, condemned American military efforts to halt communist imperialism. In point of fact, he was not in the least opposed to war as such. He was not opposed to the communist war to instal a proSoviet regime in South Vietnam, but was only opposed to the war waged by antireds in South Vietnam and America against Soviet backed North Vietnam. In 1999, Seeger traveled to Cuba to receive the government's highest cultural honor: the Medal of the Order of Felix Varela. The government proclaimed that Seeger had effectively promoted red totalitarian tyranny in the name of humanism, environmentalism, antiracism and high art: "We honor Seeger's humanistic and artistic work in defense of the environment and against racism." In 1998, the Federal Bureau of Investigation uncovered a Cuban espionage and sabotage ring operating out of Miami. The Cuban Five were found guilty of compiling the names, addresses and medical files of key military officers, infiltrating key military commands, spying on key military bases, sending letter bombs to Cubans living in America who had fled the Castro government, and locating entry points in Florida for the smuggling of explosives from Cuba. In 2011, Seeger signed an open letter entitled Free The Cuban Five which demanded the immediate release of the spies and saboteurs. In the letter, Seeger condemns the forces opposed to the Castro government as violent, murderous terrorists and proclaims that a red totalitarian tyranny is a legitimate state having legitimate national security interests: "We are dismayed that the Cuban Five, who have committed no crime against the United States nor posed any threat to this country's national security, have now been imprisoned for 12 years. The Five monitored the activities of violent groups of Cuban exiles in Miami, activities that had already resulted in the deaths of thousands of Cuban nationals. They sought simply to protect their country from further acts of terrorism." A steelpan is a percussion instrument whose pan comes from large, industrial sized, steel drum containers. Traveling to Port of Spain, Trinidad to find out about the steelpan, Pete Seeger brought this national instrument of Trinidad and Tobago back home to America to add a primitive, exciting new sound to his communist music. Students of American history and culture who have studied the career of Pete Seeger have not failed to observe a fearsome and terrifying symbolism present in his use of the steelpan. America's reds were stirred up to violence and revolution by the music of a steel hearted Stalinist who remained unrepentant up to his death.

AMERICA TODAY: RED COUP AND RED REVOLUTION

A coup is an illegal, unconstitutional removal of a government or governing power. Coups are typically followed by a revolution and transformation of society as the actors involved seek to consolidate their hold on power. The most notorious coup in human history was staged in Russia in November 1917, when 40,000 Bolshevik troops stormed the Winter Palace in Petrograd, imprisoned the Provisional Government in the Peter and Paul Fortress, and placed the Petrograd Soviet in control of the state. What followed was the transformation of Russia into a red totalitarian tyranny under the leadership of Lenin, the likes of which mankind had never witnessed before, and the dissolution of all vestiges of freedom and liberty in the nation. Students of history and politics today have descended into an unmitigated nightmare as they observe what they had hoped and prayed they would never have to observe. They have observed the wheel of history turning backward and stopping at this portentous November coup in Russia, and taking America into its mighty ticking, beating, roaring hands, and then moving forward again and replaying the fearsome and terrifying events which transpired in Russia in a New World setting founded in freedom, in a land which for decades had been the world's beacon, lighthouse and arsenal of freedom. A Bolshevik communist coup and a Bolshevik communist revolution staged in America: thus the wheel of history, the hands of destiny, and the passions of the mob which have hated liberty for thousands of years, have decreed, and set down with a finality which which can never be altered, reversed or rolled back by even a jot or tittle. The mob which seized power in Russia and transformed the nation reincarnated as the mob which seized power in America and transformed the nation: thus is the ugly, unpleasant, frightening epoch which students of history and politics are living through, with only the names, dates, details and personages being different, but with the cold, hard essence remaining the same, and with reality dictating that this is an actual train of events, an actual spectacle of evil, and that they will never be able to wake up and comfort themselves that this was only a dream. In part one of their ordeal, in the horror of the coup, students of history and politics have observed in the presidential election of 2020 systematic deception and mishandling of ballots which resulted in the fraudulent election of Joe Biden. They have observed judges dismiss the cases brought to them on spurious grounds of lack of standing or lack of timing. They have observed that every state and every citizen in the nation has standing at any time to challenge instances of electoral fraud, because such fraud violates the constitutional right to vote in a free, fair and honest election, which is logically implied in the Fifteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty Third, Twenty Fourth and Twenty Sixth Amendments to the United States Constitution, called the Suffrage Amendments. They have observed that state officials changed state laws to accommodate defective or invalid ballots, in violation of the Constitution, which grants sole power to state legislatures to change state laws. They have observed that voting machine companies manufactured millions of fraudulent votes for Biden. They have observed that computer algorithms created millions of fractionalized votes for Joe Biden. They have observed millions of counterfeit ballots cast for Joe Biden. They have observed that at 4 AM on November 4, 2020 in Wisconsin, a dump of 143,000 votes miraculously appeared for Joe Biden. They have observed that at 6:30 AM on November 4, 2020 in Michigan, a dump of 150,000 votes miraculously appeared for Joe Biden. They have observed that Georgia is unable to produce over 400,000 legally required chain of custody ballots cast for Joe Biden, deposited in drop boxes, and delivered to county registrars. They have observed that over five thousand people throughout the nation have signed sworn affidavits attesting to election fraud. They have observed Vice President Mike Pence refuse to refer the massive evidence of election fraud uncovered in six states back to the state legislatures for the decertification of results. In part two of the nightmare epoch which students of history and politics are living through, today's Bolsheviks and Leninists, following their coup placing Joe Biden in power, have commenced a campaign to reshape and reorder American society and establish an anticonstitutional, antiAmerican, antiliberal, totalitarian state. Students of history and politics have observed Joe Biden seeking to establish a radical socialist society under the banners of a multitrillion dollar American Rescue Plan and American Families Plan. They have observed Biden's plan to establish a free child care program, a universal paid family and medical leave program, a free preKindergarten program, a free community college program and increased Obamacare subsidies. They have observed a social spending program worth six trillion dollars, equal to thirty percent of the nation's Gross Domestic Program. They have observed these social programs financed by an increase in corporate profits tax by one third, by an increase in the top personal income tax rate to forty percent, by an increase in the capital gains tax to forty percent, and by increases in death and inheritance taxes by over one hundred percent. They have observed Senator Chuck Schumer's proclamation of an American socialist revolution: "Now we take Georgia, then we change the world." They have observed a program of red deficits, red national debt, red inflation, red equality and red wealth redistribution signal that the majority has agreed with President Jimmy Carter's statement in 1977 that "we must get over our inordinate fear of communism." Look at the world of America today and see criminals holding public office and doing the bidding of the mob. See social morality proclaimed to be the only legitimate form of morality and the right to steal another person's wealth proclaimed to be the highest human right. See people of intelligence and ability reduced to the status of social instruments and told that the state has the right to seize everything they own. See successful people taxed out of existence and bled white by welfare program in the name of making successful people pay their fair share. See the public appropriation of the wealth of the producers justified in the name of social justice. See the individual treated as a national resource to be plundered at will by the majority. See the proclamation that nobody earns the wealth he produces, nobody earns the wages he receives, and the property of each person is the property of all and must be shared equally with the vermin and scum of the earth. See the proclamation that the producers of wealth have a social responsibility to support the nonproducers and a progressive society enforces this responsibility. See the proclamation that the purpose of an individual's life is to work and produce enough wealth to feed and clothe his neighbor. See the repeal of individual rights under the mandate of mob government. See the proclamation that socialism, the system of organized state theft of private property, is the only moral political system known to man. See a premise called social responsibility lead inescapably and ineluctably onward to a fearsome and terrifying conclusion: the establishment of a red totalitarian tyranny. See the rejection of moral conscience, the promotion of moral wrongdoing, and the establishment of universal communist slavery under the banner: We are our brother's keepers: "Some criminals who steal other people's money to finance their own private lifestyle, or those of the public, often move by stealth and subterfuge. They deploy moralistic language via rhetorical obfuscation. By the time they work over our moral conscience, we grant them the benefit of the doubt because we believe, in some perverse way, that the criminal had a coercive right to what he was taking away from us. Joe Biden is such thief. He has stated outright that it is time for the richest Americans to pay their fair share of taxes. He has not exactly identified by what means and by what right it is your or anyone else's fair share of what someone else has earned. But it does not matter. Like all financial appropriators, private or public, one is expected to accept an appropriator's assertion as the legitimate basis of a claim, or, in this case, an outright mandate. What needs to be emphasized is the moral malfeasance committed by the effrontery assumed in the statement that the 1% or anyone at all are responsible for the financial well being of their fellow citizens. It rests on a particular premise that undergirds all welfare programs, provides the moral basis for socialism, and sets our conscience against the moral right to keep what we earn. If we accept the premise, then it does not matter whether the moral appropriator who claims a right to our money is a single individual who needs to feed his family, or a government bureaucrat seizing it by force to feed a nation, a neighborhood, or a small group: the number of beneficiaries cannot change the nature of the premise. That premise is: We are our brother's keepers." (Biden: The Humanitarian Thief by Jason Hill). Commencing its journey at the dawn of the twentieth century and acquiring ever new compartments along the way, a train marked Progressivism, New Deal, Fair Deal, New Frontier, Great Society, Centrism, Third Way, Compassionate Conservatism, and Hope and Change has traveled for a century and reached its final destination in the present day. Its engines stoked and roaring with the white hot coal of mass envy and majority rule, it has stopped in every hamlet, village, borough, town, city and state in the land and turned America upside down. Its new upside down antiuniverse and antiorder: red seizure of power and red totalitarian revolution.

GUTHRIE'S DUSTY ROAD TO RUSSIA

In the 1930s, in the region of America encompassing Oklahoma, Kansas and northern Texas, a merciless drought struck the land and a vicious storm of high winds and choking dust swept through it, destroying people, livestock and crops. Billowing clouds of dust darkened the sky. The dust drifted like snow and was cleared with shovels. The dust entered people's homes and settled on their food, skin and clothing. The dust entered people's lungs and they developed dust pneumonia. The dust traveled three thousand kilometers and blotted out the nation's capital and the Statue of Liberty. Students of American history and culture have seen in this fearsome and terrifying Dust Bowl which swept through the nation and invaded the lives, bodies and homes of its people a metaphor of the communization of the culture and the conversion of the masses to red philosophy which commenced in the 1930s. In their studies of this ideological Dust Bowl launched by the reds almost a century ago and blinded the world of the present day, students of American history and culture have been compelled to bring before their scholarly lens a certain icon who was the founder of what the reds called American folk music. Students of American history and culture understand that what was called folk music at that time was, in point of fact, nothing of the sort, inasmuch as genuine folk music expresses the values and ideals of the folk from which it arises, and the music sung by this founder of so-called American folk music did not celebrate the values and ideals of America, the values and ideals of individual freedom and constitutional rights, but stridently condemned them, and focused his attention on the themes of collectivism, communism and totalitarian tyranny. They understand that this American singer and songwriter who inspired generations of reds politically and musically, whose works are archived in the Library of Congress, and whose album Dust Bowl Ballads is on the list of the "One Hundred Records That Changed The World", was America's first red folk, Soviet folk, East Bloc folk and anti-American folk musician, and that the career of Woody Guthrie warrants careful examination in order that a thorough autopsy of the rotting soul of America be performed and the precise cause of its death be identified. The precise cause of death was the radicalization of the majority at the dawn of the twentieth century, a symptom of the decline and fall of civilizations everywhere and in all ages, and Woody Guthrie was the American red majority's first troubadour, singing out songs from coast to coast, from gig to gig, in praise of the coming red catastrophe. In the summer of 1939, Guthrie commenced his deep descent into the American communist movement, when he became involved in the communist front organization, the John Steinbeck Committee to Aid Agriculture. His efforts to foment class war and communist strikes are described by Will Kaufman in Woody Guthrie, American Radical: "They [Guthrie and Will Geer] were singing for cotton pickers, cannery workers, lettuce grabbers, and all kinds of picket lines, union meetings, and picnics where union people sang and danced." Guthrie's songs proclaimed that capitalism is a system of brutal repression of poor migrant workers. They proclaimed that capitalists are the worst outlaws in the history of mankind because they impoverish the working class and drive families from their homes. They proclaimed that Jesus led the first class struggle and communist uprising in history and was crucified by the ruling capitalist powers. After the signing of the Stalin-Hitler Non Aggression Pact in 1939, the Communist International issued orders to American communists that they adopt a noninterventionist line and oppose the Roosevelt administration's march to war against Germany, and Guthrie obeyed these orders and began singing antiwar songs throughout the land, included in the albums Songs for John Doe and Talking Union. During this period, Guthrie wrote songs defending the Soviet invasion of Poland as an act of liberation of Polish farmers, and songs condemning Finland's efforts to defend itself against the Soviet invasion of the country in the 1939 Winter War. In 1941, when Hitler violated the pact and invaded the Soviet Union, the Communist International changed its line and ordered American communists to advocate American entry into the war. After this change in policy, Guthrie said to his red comrade Pete Seeger: "Well, I guess we're not going to be singing any more of them peace songs." Guthrie's new prowar songs in this period included the Sinking Of The Reuben James, which describes the death of 115 American sailors in 1941 aboard a cargo ship delivering arms to

Britain. Look at the world of Woody Guthrie and hear reds on the march from coast to coast, storming the battlements of law and order. See them roaming, rambling and following in the footsteps of Marx and Lenin. See them declare war on private thoughts, private actions, private freedoms and private property. See them worship at the altars of welfare and relief and smash the temples of work and responsibility. See the fog of mob chaos descend. See the dust clouds of class war roll in. See the shadow of totalitarian tyranny lengthen across the land. See the steeples of liberty tumble down. See ferocious multitudes chant slogans demanding death to the voices of liberal democratic dissent. See the masses speed down the highways of socialist confiscation and blow up the skyways of constitutional rights. See those with envy and hatred poisoning their hearts stand hungry for absolute power and control. See the bright, sunny, golden morning of human flourishing blacken and die out. See moral wastelands, fields of mass murder, sand storms of red revolution and valleys of screaming victims overrun the halls, flowers and blooming gardens of civilization. See Satan of the reds bury the cool diamonds of reason beneath the burning coals of fanaticism. See islands of red terror, forests of red violence, jungles of red savagery and waters streaming with red propaganda maul America to death and flood it with political criminals. See a land which which once was celebrated as a shining City Upon A Hill leveled into a swampland of collectivism made by and for the riff raff of the earth:

This land is your land, and this land is my land/From California to the New York Island, From the Redwood Forest, to the Gulf stream waters,
God blessed America for me./[This land was made for you and me.]

As I went walking that ribbon of highway/And saw above me that endless skyway,/And saw below me the golden valley,/I said:
God blessed America for me./[This land was made for you and me.]

I roamed and rambled and followed my footsteps/To the sparkling sands of her diamond deserts,/And all around me, a voice was sounding:
God blessed America for me./[This land was made for you and me.]

Was a high wall there that tried to stop me/A sign was painted said: Private Property,/But on the back side it didn't say nothing—God blessed America for me./[This land was made for you and me.]

When the sun come shining, then I was strolling In wheat fields waving and dust clouds rolling;/The voice was chanting as the fog was lifting: God blessed America for me./[This land was made for you and me.]

One bright sunny morning in the shadow of the steeple/ By the Relief Office I saw my people—/As they stood hungry, I stood there wondering if God blessed America for me./[This land was made for you and me.] (This Land Is Your Your Land by Woody Guthrie).

When Woody Guthrie died in 1967, he had become a legend across America. He had created a raging dust bowl which plucked Pete Seeger, the Kingston Trio, Bob Dylan, the New Christy Minstrels, and Peter, Paul and Mary from the red netherworld and placed them on the national stage. The red American mobs agitated to make This Land Is Your Your Land the national anthem. The red corporate establishment, reaching from American Airlines to Ford Motor Corporation to Macy's to Ocean Spray, adopted This Land Is Your Your Land as its signature song. A violent disturbance appeared in the atmosphere and brought with it fierce winds, driving rains, roaring thunder, blinding bolts of lightning and heavy blankets of snow. Amidst this dangerous chaos appeared a spectral figure playing a guitar and on the guitar was the label: This machine kills fascists. Students of American history and culture could not help but notice the bitter, tragic irony in the label. For this nationally lionized performer, this deified red folk musician, this man named Woody Guthrie playing his mighty guitar, killed liberty in America, from California to the New York Island.

REDS TAKE OVER FRANCE

A civil war is a war between two groups within the same country. The aim of one side is one of three things: to take control of the country, to achieve independence from the country, or to change the policies of the government. The most notorious civil war in human history, notorious because it brought pure, unmitigated evil to power for the first time ever, was the Russian Revolution of 1917. This revolution saw a seizure of power by the Bolsheviks in a coup led by Lenin. It saw communist workers' councils take power in the cities and a new Soviet constitution declared which transformed the nation into a red totalitarian tyranny the likes of which had never been witnessed before. Students of history and politics have watched in horror as the wheel of history has turned backward to this fateful Russian hour and reenacted its crimes on the soil of a land once celebrated as a fearless bastille of liberty in Europe. They have watched in fright as mobs stoked by the flaming coals of hatred and discontent reach out and reverse the hands of time and send France racing backward to the agitations of a century ago staged on the steppes of Central Asia. They have watched in trembling as the edict of destiny, composed by the savage quills of the common people and on the bestial parchment of the canaille, commands that the spirit of communist Russia reappear in a major power in Western Europe, subvert its liberal traditions and institutions, and set up a red regime and beachhead for the overthrow of the West. They have issued a report on the disintegration of France in the fearsome acid of moral betrayal and mass backstabbing and can scarcely believe what they have written. For they have written a bill of treason against the neighbors next door, against the intellectuals up the street and against the college professors around the corner who are, one and all, actors in a mind blowing tragedy called The Suicide And Implosion Of A Nation. The authors of this melancholy report on the destruction of France at the hands of its red population have described the proxies the reds have used to assist them in their campaign, and their report on these proxies has educated students of red subversion in a new chapter of the Popular Front strategy. This new chapter is entitled The Use Of Islam In The Reds' War Against Civilization. Every page of this chapter coruscates with conspiracy between the reds and the Islamists; it blazes with coalitions and collaborations between the red star haters of liberal democracy and the red crescent haters of liberal democracy; and it flashes with the fires of mass murder committed in the name of Marx and committed in the name of Muhammad. Listen to the reds and their Islamist comrades set forth their program and manifesto for the overthrow of an ancient, venerable order of freedom and liberty founded and consolidated centuries ago by the Valois and the Bourbons. It proclaims that a progressive society flies a unicolored flag which is red for the honor and fatherland of the revolutionary proletariat. It proclaims that a progressive society foments class hatred and class division and exalts the communities of the idle and the shiftless. It proclaims that a progressive society is an indigenous society, an anticolonial society, and a society which has launched a crusade against modern capitalist, industrial civilization, and turned back the clock to the year zero. It proclaims that a progressive society is charged with the currents of race hatred and race fanaticism and has started a war to annihilate white people. It proclaims that a progressive society despises the traditions and culture of freedom, and has smashed the halls and statues of freedom, vilified the words and phrases of freedom, denied the military victories of freedom, rejected the civilian glories of freedom, erased the struggles for freedom from high school textbooks and college curricula, and hurled the moral and political system of freedom into the dustbin of history. It proclaims that a progressive society has allowed the dictatorship of Islam to operate within its territories and detached parts of the nation from constitutional government. It proclaims that a progressive society has established cities and districts in which liberal republicanism no longer reigns and lawless communist and Islamist hordes have assumed total control. It proclaims that a progressive society stages round the clock demonstrations by mobs wearing the Yellow Vests of anarchic disintegration. It proclaims that a progressive society sends out brigades of masked hoodlums to ransack businesses in the name of social justice. It proclaims that a progressive society sanctions the beheading of school teachers who criticize Islam. It proclaims that a progressive society is not neutral with regard to religion and is not loyal to the rule of law, and enforces the religions of Marxism and Islam on its citizens and violates their constitutional rights. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes urban guerrilla warfare against liberal institutions and launches terror attacks against law abiding citizens. It proclaims that capitalism is a system which rewards the competent and punishes the incompetent and thus commits the mortal crime of social injustice. It proclaims that a progressive society is an equalitarian society which distributes wealth equally without regard to character or desert. It proclaims that a progressive society has defunded and dismantled the police and released from jail killers who kill in the name of the people's social state. Look at the world of France today and see a two headed monster called Marxism and Islam breathe the fires of revolution and rampage across the land. See a scourge of hatred and rage directed toward the class of producers and the community of unbelievers rise unchallenged and become invincible. See the rulers of a red radical state and a red Arabian state join hands and spread fear and violence by the hour and by the minute, and invade the lives, liberty and property of their citizens. See a firestorm of explosions, danger, chaos and struggle for power staged by the votaries of the Prophet and the votaries of the Proletariat greeted by the white flags of appeasement, evasion, equivocation, cowardice and capitulation. See a tidal wave of communists and Koranists inflict death by the thousands and smash the civilizational infrastructure of France: "Perils are mounting, violence is increasing day by day. Who could have predicted, ten years ago, that a teacher would one day be beheaded as he was leaving his school? We, servants of the nation, who have always been prepared to pay the ultimate price for our country, cannot be passive spectators in the face of such actions. It is imperative that the leaders of our country find the courage required to eradicate these dangers. To do this, it is often sufficient to enforce, with determination, existing laws. Do not forget that, like us, a large majority of our fellow citizens is exasperated by your cowardice and guilty silence. As Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, once said: 'When prudence is everywhere, courage is nowhere.' Ladies and gentlemen, stop equivocating. The situation is serious, the work ahead is daunting; do not waste time and know that we are ready to support policies to safeguard the nation. On the other hand, if nothing is done, laxity will continue to spread, inexorably, through our society. Ultimately, there will be an explosion, and our comrades on active duty will be forced to intervene and carry out a perilous mission of protecting our civilizational values and safeguarding the lives of our fellow citizens. As we can see, the time for procrastination is over. Otherwise, tomorrow, civil war will put an end to this growing chaos, and there will be thousands of deaths, for which you will bear responsibility." (For A Return To National Honor: Twenty Generals Call On Macron To Defend Patriotism, open letter in Valeurs Actuelles, April 21, 2021). Drafted by Marquis de Lafayette and Thomas Jefferson, the Declaration Of The Rights Of Man And Of The Citizen was ratified by France's National Constituent Assembly in 1789 and became the basis for the nation and a statement of its core values for over two centuries. A republic animated by the spirit of the Enlightenment and founded upon natural law, human rights and individual liberty sparkled in the crown jewels of the West and took its place beside the English Magna Carta, the English Bill Of Rights, the American Declaration Of Independence and the American Bill Of Rights. The dawn of the twentieth century saw the construction across the West of a machine with a heavy blade sliding vertically in grooves. This machine was constructed by the mob. It hit bottom in France in the new millennium as it hit bottom in every other nation. The red mob and its comrades in arms, the Islamists, in the final phase of the West, with the fearsome blade of communist attacks and jihadist attacks, have guillotined civilization.

AMERICA'S DARKEST HOUR

Students of politics and culture have long known a proverb about organizations and have encountered this proverb in every society in the world. They have encountered it in China, Persia, Russia, Poland, England, Greece and Turkey and know that its provenance reaches back to the earliest hours of civilization. It is the proverb that a fish rots from its head down. Students of politics and culture have long known the wisdom of this proverb when it is applied to nonstate, nonpublic organizations. They have long known that in private organizations, when the organization fails, it is the leadership which is the root cause, and that problems in private organizations are problems in management and problems in nothing else. But students of politics and culture know that in the case of societies, states, cultures and civilizations, the proverb does not hold true, for they know that a society's leadership receives its guidance and direction from the values and ideals which originate from and are first imprinted upon the masses. They know that political figures who do not espouse mass values are political figures who cannot gain or maintain power, and that intellectuals who do not espouse mass values are intellectuals whom nobody reads, learns from or listens to. They know that when a society fails, it is the masses who have failed and that social disintegration is a grass roots phenomenon, so that, with respect to failed states, the fish rots from the bottom up. Students of politics and culture who have studied failed societies the world over have seen the same story at work: that the fundamental premises of the society are to blame and that the premises arise from the masses, and that the ruling classes receive their sanction, their authority, their legitimacy and their marching orders from the masses, and take the masses where they want to go, and take them down into the abyss, if the masses raise their hands and shout that that is where they want to go. Students of politics and culture know that though Lenin led a coup in Russia in the communist revolution of 1917, Russian society became communist because the Russian masses themselves were and always had been communist in their hearts and souls; they had been communists from day one of their national existence; they had been born, centuries before, of the red comrades and brothers of the ancient Asian steppes. In their studies of failed societies, students of politics and culture have been struck by a thunderbolt in the present day and have been forced to turn their attention to the most tragic societal failure in modern Western history. It is the most tragic failure because it is the failure of a society whose moral commitment to liberal democracy was the preeminent inspiration of freedom lovers throughout the world and whose mighty arsenal was their preeminent military defense. They have been forced to study the descent of America into regions of hell and catastrophe presided over by the reds and their report makes for the most frightening, horrific, unpleasant reading possible on a serious cultural and political topic. Their report presents the program and manifesto of the reds in control of America and is a case study of how the destruction of civilized societies comes about at the hands of the masses and not at the hands of the ruling elites or the intellectuals. The program and manifesto of the red masses of America proclaims that a progressive society is not a constitutional republic but a democratic socialist swampland. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects natural law based freedoms and welcomes Marxism within its ranks. It proclaims that a progressive society has rejected the use of photo identification and verified signatures to ensure fair and honest elections. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects as racist all efforts to establish proof of voter eligibility. It proclaims that a progressive society violates the Constitution and grants to the federal government the primary power to run national elections. It proclaims that a progressive society has established wide ranging population control measures, such as home lockdowns, associational restrictions, and school and business closures, in the name of fighting covid 19. It proclaims that a progressive society has established pervasive censorship of written and verbal communication in the name of maintaining political correctness. It proclaims that a progressive society is divided into warring factions of extremist, special interest groups promoting the ideologies of gender, race and class. It proclaims that a progressive society has established open borders in the name of multiculturalism. It proclaims that a progressive society has granted citizenship to terrorists in the name of moral relativism. It proclaims that a progressive society has restricted the free flow of ideas and information and repealed the First Amendment in the name of protecting women, nonwhites, homosexuals and transgenders from verbal and written assault in the form of liberal analysis and rational dissent. It proclaims that a progressive society allows Iran, the world's premier terror state and the top bankroller of the Palestinian terror group Hamas, to acquire nuclear weapons and sanctions Iran's slogans of Death to America and Death to Israel. It proclaims that a progressive society supports the right of Palestinians to set up a terror state and kill innocent Israeli civilians in the name of national liberation. It proclaims that a progressive society has canceled the Keystone Pipeline, prohibited fracking, prohibited oil and gas exploration on federal lands, and eliminated America's energy independence. It proclaims that a progressive society has decreased America's production of oil and gas and thereby induced rising prices for these by the law of supply and demand. It proclaims that a progressive society has induced rising food prices by virtue of increasing fuel costs for farmers. It proclaims that a progressive society has introduced critical race theory into the United States military and indoctrinated military personnel with the ideology that liberal democracy equals white racism and must be eliminated. It proclaims that a progressive society has halted construction of the border wall, eliminated the Trump administration's Remain in Mexico policy, and established America as the sewer and cesspool of the world. It proclaims that a progressive society grants massive unemployment benefits to people and takes away all financial incentives to work. It proclaims that a progressive society prints money in record amounts and has increased the quantity of money in circulation by trillions of dollars, and has thereby sparked, by too many dollars chasing too few goods, accelerating price inflation. Look at America today, rotting from the bottom up, and see its masses perpetrate massive fraud in the presidential election of 2020. See its masses activate voting machines, red networks and corrupt software which added vote totals to Joe Biden. See its masses manufacture phantom ballots for Joe Biden across the nation. See its masses drop a bomb on election night, a bomb of wrongful, criminal, vote deception, a bomb discharged, delivered and detonated through the global digital portals of the reds, and a bomb which deleted democracy from America and proclaimed the onset of a red coup and red revolution led by Joe Biden and the Democrat Party: "A lawyer fighting an election fraud case in Antrim County, Michigan, has revealed that the voting machines there contained a software program that could have been used to manipulate vote totals. In fact, lawyer Matthew DePerno said in a podcast interview that with the MySQL program installed on the machines, and them all being linked, someone with access could 'do whatever you want.' DePerno, just a day earlier confirmed in a court hearing that there were 1,061 'phantom votes' in the county during the 2020 presidential election, because while a recount of ballots tallied 15,962, the Michigan secretary of state's database showed only 14,901 votes were cast. His latest concerns were raised during an interview with J. D. Rucker in the NOQ Report. Rucker said the bombshell that DePerno delivered was that all of the voting machines were connected to each other through an intranet, that itself was not connected to the internet. However, he said a laptop computer with access to the intranet and access to the internet was left on during the Election Night counting. He explained, 'What we've seen in Antrim County is that all of the computers in the county are connected on a dedicated network, an intranet. So, remember back when I was coming up as a lawyer, we had email within the office that wasn't connected to the internet. It was self contained, an intranet, right, a dedicated email network. They have the same thing in Antrim County even today, a dedicated network where everyone can communicate, but they tell us it's not connected to the internet.' But DePerno explained maladjustments in the voting totals could have been done remotely. 'All you need anywhere along that point of any connection is someone to breach the network who has a connection to the internet and they can access everything. And we know in Antrim County on Election Night on November 3rd, that somebody left their computer on with an open VPN port.' " (Do Whatever You Want': Software To Manipulate Totals Found On Voting Machines, Lawyer Says by Bob Unruh). There are areas of the earth which contain toxic, infertile soil, areas in which plant growth is impossible. These lands of barren vegetation are blights upon the planet. The masses of America have been the poisons, the high winds and the salt spray which have destroyed the moral and cultural soil of the nation and prevented freedom from growing and flourishing. In the new millennium, this mass induced moral bankruptcy and this mass inflicted malignant disease called red philosophy have ensured that darkness will reign forever across a land once revered as the world headquarters of liberal democratic order.

COMMUNIST PLAYWRIGHT WINS PULITZER PRIZE

Smelting is the process of extracting metal from ore by means of heating and melting. Thousands of years ago, the tribal craftsmen of India were able to smelt iron which was so pure that it never rusted. Students of American history and culture have seen in the process of smelting a fearsome and terrifying metaphor of the disintegration of the nation's literature which commenced in the twentieth century. For they have seen Satan's mobs apply the ferocious heat of red agitation and propaganda to every home, office and school in the land and extract therefrom a metal so pure in its evil and malignancy that it has cast a black light across the national culture and sent it plunging into a permanent moral eclipse. This pure evil is the dedicated, fanatical communist citizen, the citizen who has renounced his nation's values and ideals, stabbed its law abiding citizens in the back, and taken up the black flaming torch of communist totalitarian dictatorship. In the realm of literature, students of American history and culture have been compelled to study the career of the nation's preeminent agent of cultural disintegration, the leading character, power and influence extracted and purified by the reds, the dark shining antilight whose thought and works have announced the moral degeneration of this noblest of all art forms as nothing else has. They have been compelled to study the life of Arthur Miller and report on the demons which moved him and made him Satan's number one collector of lost souls, the souls of the cursed and the damned, in the world of American arts and letters. The occupation of Arthur Miller composed a program and manifesto of red philosophy and its examination qualifies as the most accurate autopsy available on the dead body of American fiction. Miller's words and texts proclaimed that a progressive society is an anti-anticommunist society and a proudly procommunist society. They proclaimed that the mortal enemy of a progressive society is always the political right and never the political left, for the political right is proliberty, while the political left is procollectivism, and the latter is the essence of progressivism. They proclaimed that progressive literature blasts communist morality plays in the faces of the audience. They proclaimed that people who are opposed to communism represent the lowest form of caveman existence and must not be allowed to speak out in public. They proclaimed that communists are fighters for truth, justice and the American way, and those who investigate and expose them are witch hunters and persecutors whose ancestors were active in Salem, Massachusetts. They proclaimed that a progressive playwright is a revolutionary, Marxist, anti-American playwright. They proclaimed that a progressive writer is a loyal contributor to such communist controlled publications as New Masses, Masses & Mainstream, The Daily Worker, Currents, Jewish Life and PM. They proclaimed that a progressive playwright is a proletarian playwright and an unquestioning servant of the Soviet Union. They proclaimed that a progressive writer is an angry, militant rabble rouser who mouths the line and language of the Communist Party USA. Listen to the words of America's foremost playwright and hear him condemn capitalism as a system of imperialism and raise the clarion call of class war among the scum and vermin of the earth: "The main fight in the postwar era was the fight to raise the living standards of people all over the world and the enemy is imperialism." Miller's philosophy proclaimed that a progressive writer has launched a campaign against America and given aid and comfort to the nation's enemies throughout the world: "I saw Vietnamese actors and actresses perform the second act of Arthur Miller's play, All My Sons. I found this very moving." (Jane Fonda, on a visit to Hanoi in 1972). Listen to the communist press launch wild encomiums to Miller. Listen to it applaud Miller because he vilifies the defenders of liberal government as lashes of reaction, persecution, witch hunts and hysteria. Listen to it exalt Miller as a progressive playwright because he promotes communist enslavement and the immolation of the individual. Listen to it deify Miller as a hero and savior of the people who has bravely stood against an onrolling tide of capitalist rulers, bosses, landlords, judges, priests and Antichrists. Listen to it worship Miller as a prophet of communist war, revolution and universal destruction: "It is by far Miller's best play. It is a case history of persecution and hysteria against innocent men and women sent to the gallows in Salem, Massachusetts in 1692. But it is impossible to view this play honestly without noting the awful parallel courses of two widely separated American persecutions: the Salem witchhunt and the current persecution of communists and other progressives. Like the Salem persecution, the present one is directed by the ruling class of the land, its leaders of government, its judges, and what reactionary clergy they have been able to enlist. These reactionaries have deserted the teachings of Jesus to follow the war god Mars." (The Crucible: Arthur Miller's Best Play by Harry Raymond, Daily Worker, January 28, 1953). Look at the world of Arthur Miller and see a dyed in the wool red skyrocket to public fame because he was a dyed in the wool red. See an unAmerican, antiAmerican, proSoviet playwright place himself in the loyal service of communist front groups throughout the nation. See the nation's most respected playwright make strident communist appeals for the overthrow of liberal democracy. See a faithful fighter for red backed causes write subversion and sedition into his plays. See a dramatist on the theme of treason scream at communist rallies, communist writer meetings and communist conspiracy cells dedicated to the eradication of the free world. See an application form, membership card and membership number for the Communist Party USA adorn the walls of America's most renowned playwright. See the occupation given by America's most celebrated playwright when asked by the Communist Party: professional propagandist for the reds; accomplished instigator of the underworld against America; and dedicated disrupter of the liberal way of life: "While Miller no doubt basked in the sunlight of progressive encomiums for his work, the spotlight yielded a double edged sword. As his popularity with the general public skyrocketed, he also began to be noticed by forces not quite so naive to the communist threat. Given this newfound fame and influence, by the mid 1950s, Arthur Miller was called to appear before the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities. His testimony on June 21, 1956 received tremendous attention. It prompted eye catcher headlines in the New York Times, such as, Arthur Miller Admits Helping Communist Front Groups in 1940s. Or, as the Times put it in the lead: 'Arthur Miller, playwright, disclosed today a past filled with communist front associations.' To Congress, Miller conceded the numerous procommunist appeals he had signed and the protests he joined by red backed groups. He refused to name names of those who were there with him. Likewise, he would not name people who joined him during the mere four or five times that he said he had attended Communist Party writers' meetings. Miller also denied that he had ever been under 'communist discipline' and would not answer the question of whether he had ever joined the Party. The most dramatic moment of the hearing came when the House Committee's lead counsel asked Miller if he once signed an application to join the Communist Party. As Miller dissembled, the counsel presented the exact five digit application number on the Communist Party application form that contained Miller's name and address at 18 Schermerhorn Street in New York. Congress went so far as to publish a photocopy of the application card. That exhibit remains a striking form of evidence. Under the banner Victory in 1943, the form states, APPLICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP and lists an A. Miller, with occupation of writer at an address that just happened to be Miller's own Brooklyn address. The number of the application was 23345. Confronted with this rather compelling evidence, and asked if it indeed proved that he had made an 'application for membership in the Communist Party,' Miller curiously told Congress, 'I would not affirm that. I have no memory of such thing.' For a man that the left still hails as nothing short of unsurpassable genius—with the word brilliant a standard description—this was a notable and lamentable memory crash." (Arthur Miller—Communist by Paul Kengor). On February 12, 2005, theaters across America darkened in tribute to Arthur Miller, who had died two days before. Tributes from reds across the world flowed in and lauded him as one the greatest dramatists of all time. Students of American history and culture were struck by a thunderbolt which they could not throw off. This flash made them see a bitter parallel. The man whose death would make theaters across the nation darken, had made, during a career in which he was awarded a Pulitzer Prize for Drama, the St Louis Literary Award, the Prince of Asturias Award and the Dorothy and Lillian Gish Prize, the shining culture of freedom and liberty darken for all time to come.

BLACK DEVIL IN BARITONE

A devil is the personification of evil as it is projected in various cultures and religions. Most devils are ugly, frightening, unpleasant creatures. Devils have been depicted with the horns of a goat and ram, with goat's furs and ears, and with the nose and teeth of a pig. Students of American culture who have studied the degeneration of the arts commencing in the twentieth century have been struck by a flash of lightning and a crash of thunder which they have been unable to dismiss or reject. For they have seen a reality, a brute, stark, evil reality, and a reality which was all the more evil because it lay concealed beneath an alluring, attractive, friendly, agreeable figure. No horns and tails here, no grotesque face or body, no multiheaded dragons consorting with the beasts of the sea. They have seen what in their worst nightmares and visions they hoped and prayed they would never have to see, and they have seen it packaged in the resonant voice and striking, imposing, handsome figure of a singer and an actor. They have seen pure evil venerated as a supreme talent with a vast, perfected repertoire and hailed as one of the most popular entertainers of all time. They have seen the lionization of Paul Robeson and have been at once both repelled by this figure, because they are civilized human beings, and compelled to study his life and thought, because they are professional scholars who seek to discover the truth and investigate the signposts and symptoms of the decline and fall of Western civilization. The path of Robeson's career formed a Soviet star and hammer and sickle which splashed across the stage and screen in Hollywood, Broadway and Shakespearean technicolor, and scrolling down the stage and screen was the contributor and his services: Produced, Written, Directed By And Starring: Paul Robeson, Devil's Emissary To The World Of Entertainment. Students of American culture saw in the multifarious films, plays, songs and concerts performed by Robeson, stretching over the course of half a century, in substance and essence one film, one play, one song and one concert, entitled World Communist Revolution, and their report on this single production is as horrific and nightmarish reading as it is vital and necessary for an understanding of the causes and characters involved in the descent of the West into the swamplands of red totalitarian slavery. Robeson's one, single essential production proclaimed that the ideal person is a servile devotee of Joseph Stalin and the Soviet Union. It proclaimed that the ideal person defends communist mass murder as an imperative of proletarian liberation. It proclaimed that a red totalitarian regime is the indispensable precondition for the achievement of social justice, which is the only form of justice conceivable. It proclaimed that the Soviet Union is the people's glorious alternative to racist, capitalist America. It proclaimed that Marxism is the greatest political system devised by man because it establishes the racial equality of all slaves. It proclaimed that the ideal person has fixed before his heart and soul one, true love of his life, the Soviet Union, and never ceases to sing the praises of its system of sacrifice, immolation, degradation and violation of human rights. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system of horror, hatred, fear and suspicion, while communism is a system of freedom, happiness, love and benevolence. It proclaimed that under the regime of communist enslavement, the working class enjoys generous compensation, salubrious surroundings, luxurious apartments, maximum light, space and fresh air, the highest standard of living in the world, and the most modern nurseries and kindergartens for its children. It proclaimed that blacks in the American South form a separate nation; this nation is oppressed by the racist, oppressive, exploitative capitalism system; and blacks have a right to secede from America and establish a communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of racial and class justice. It proclaimed that the ideal person is a deep dyed Marxist who has come home to Moscow and dedicated his life to telling the farmers and factory hands of the world the oppression which blacks and the working class suffer under capitalism. It proclaimed that those who support liberal democracy and individual freedom are guilty of holding reactionary, counterrevolutionary beliefs and must be forced to perform hard labor before they die of malnutrition. It proclaimed that a progressive society is a society held together by terror, repression, round the clock purges and forced collectivization. Listen to the words of Paul Robeson and hear a dedicated communist advocate the cold blooded murder of the voices of freedom. Hear a devil in human form feel at home in a vast gulag called Soviet Russia. Hear the essence of evil proclaim eternal affinity with the forces of totalitarian slavery. Hear a traitor to America exalt a savage jungle of Marxist terror as a progressive society which the people love and worship, and as fount of peace, justice and happiness for the proletariat: "From what I have already seen of the workings of the Soviet government, I can only say that anybody who lifts his hand against it ought to be shot! It is the government's duty to put down any opposition to this really free society with a firm hand and I hope they will always do it, for I already regard myself at home here. This is home to me. I feel more kinship to the Russian people under their new society than I ever felt anywhere else. It is obvious there is no terror here, that all the masses of every race are contented and support their government." (Interview with Paul Robeson by Vern Smith, Daily Worker). Listen to the words of Paul Robeson and hear him exalt red totalitarian tyranny as a bountiful spring of human progress and liberation. Hear him condemn Western capitalist freedom and opportunity as a desert of oppression and exploitation for the people of the world. Hear him exalt the red empire of human enslavement, reaching from Latin America to Southeast Asia to China to Korea to the Middle East to Africa to Eastern Europe to the Soviet Socialist Republics, as a glorious sunbelt of human flourishing and happiness. Hear him exalt the Marxist cult of human sacrifice as a star which shines brightly in the East. Hear him exalt the socialist way of life, the way of life of service, prostration, and the cannabilization of the individual by society, as the path to human moral perfection, and advocate its expansion across the earth. Hear him exalt life under communist bosses and secret police as a new life of liberty and equality for the exploited and the downtrodden. Hear him exalt Marxist war as human peace, Marxist superstition as human enlightenment, and Marxist repression as a system of people power and people's democracy. Hear him exalt the Soviet Union as a model and exemplar of a just and righteous society. Hear him exalt the bulldozers of Soviet imperialism as they raze to the ground the fortresses of constitutional rights. Hear him exalt the juggernaut of Marxist colonialism as it captures free nations within its net. Hear him exalt Marxist mass murderers such as Lenin, Stalin and Mao as the greatest and most illustrious political leaders the world has ever known, preeminently skilled in the theory and practice of human deliverance and salvation. Hear him exalt the world's preeminent philosophers of envy and hatred, Marx and Engels, as the shapers of the highest form of humanity, the class exterminator, the discoverers of the highest form of science, the science of universal despoliation, the authors of the greatest bible ever written, the Devil's bible of communism and conspiracy, and the creators of the most magnificent stage of modern life: the stage when red mobs seize control over every aspect of human life and destroy everything around them: "Today in Korea—in Southeast Asia—in Latin America and the West Indies, in the Middle East—in Africa, one sees tens of millions of long oppressed colonial peoples surging toward freedom. What courage—what sacrifice—what determination never to rest until victory! And arrayed against them, the combined powers of the so-called Free West, headed by the greedy, profit-hungry, war minded industrialists and financial barons of our America. The illusion of an American Century blinds them for the immediate present to the clear fact that civilization has passed them by—that we now live in a people's century—that the star shines brightly in the East of Europe and of the world. Colonial peoples today look to the Soviet Socialist Republics. They see how under the great Stalin millions like themselves have found a new life. They see that aided and guided by the example of the Soviet Union, led by their Mao Tse-tung, a new China adds its mighty power to the true and expanding socialist way of life. They see formerly semicolonial Eastern European nations building new People's Democracies, based upon the people's power with the people shaping their own destinies. So much of this progress stems from the magnificent leadership, theoretical and practical, given by their friend Joseph Stalin." (To You Beloved Comrade by Paul Robeson, New World Review, April 1953). The world since the dawn of the twentieth century has been a world dominated by devils and darkness. Portrayed throughout history under various names, such as Satan, Lucifer, Beelzebub, Mephistopheles and Al Shaytan, and in various colors, such as blue, black or red, and under various guises, such as having horns on its head and without horns, the devil has become the absolute ruler of the present age. Students of American culture have had the melancholy privilege of studying a devil masquerading under the highest honors and awards. He was awarded the Spingam Medal by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for outstanding achievement by a black person. He received a Grammy Award for Lifetime Achievement. He received a star in the Hollywood Walk of Fame. He received a Tony Award for his performance in Othello. His archives are housed in the Berlin Academy of Arts, Howard University and the Schomburg Center. The building where he was born was declared a National Historic Landmark and a New York City landmark. Streets, parks, plazas, malls, libraries, high schools, campus centers and cultural centers are named after him. The United States Postal Service issued a thirty seven cent stamp in honor of him. This devil's name was Paul Robeson.

AMERICA'S NUMBER ONE EXPORTS: THE THEORIES AND TACTICS OF THE REDS

In the art of drama, a reversal is defined as a change in which an action turns into its opposite. This change typically produces fear and terror in the audience. In the play Oedipus The King, the oracle's news that Oedipus has killed his father and married his mother produces a terrifying reversal: the suicide of Oedipus' mother and Oedipus blinding himself in a fit of madness. Students of history have observed a reversal in a drama called America and have been terrified and repelled at what they have observed. In the interests of advancing truth and scholarship, they have been compelled to fix their attention upon this reversal and to issue their report on it to the world, but all the while they have suffered from acute distress and melancholy from having to tell the world the most tragic story ever told. For this story of reversal involves things far worse and more horrific than the blindness of a son and the suicide of his mother. It involves the change in the soul and direction of a nation once exalted throughout the world as the world's fortress, arsenal, beacon, flag and Good Samaritan of liberty. It involves a change in the character and coloration of the American Century, from a century of global dissemination of liberal democratic values and ideals to a century of global subversion and vilification of them; and it involves the moral and spiritual treason of the dominating superpower, a moral and spiritual treason like no other in the history of mankind. It is the story of a nation falling under the domination and control of its mobs, taking hold of red philosophies imported from Europe, the philosophies of Marx, Hitler, Foucault, Derrida and the Frankfurt school, and then spewing these philosophies back out into the world garbed in American vernacular and phraseology and amplified by American power and influence. It is the story of the greatest superpower for the cause of freedom in the history of mankind transforming itself into the greatest superpower for the cause of slavery in the history of mankind and becoming a mighty engine, the mightiest engine ever witnessed, of a global cultural holocaust and conflagration. Broadcast into every nation of the world in the unique language of America's domestic, homegrown, native reds, this satanic export from a land which once protected freedom proclaims that global warming is caused by industrial activity; it is incinerating the planet; and it will only recede if modern life is obliterated. It proclaims that free market capitalism must be swept away by a neoBolshevik revolution emanating from the heartlands of America. It proclaims that a progressive social movement is a woke revolution of women and nonwhites seeking to overthrow the racist and sexism system of capitalism. It proclaims that a progressive society has suppressed liberal ideas and beliefs beneath a blanket of campus speech codes and political correctness. It proclaims that a progressive society gives people massive unemployment checks and induces them to stay at home and not go to work. It proclaims that a progressive society is characterized by vast amounts of fiat money in circulation, double digit inflation rates, asphyxiative regulations on business, plunging stock markets and zero economic growth. It proclaims that a progressive society raises tens of trillions of dollars in taxes from talented, successful people and spends it on multitrillion dollar cradle to grave welfare programs, providing free prekindergarten care, free college education and free health care, for the benefit of the idle, shiftless, untalented, unsuccessful scum of society. It proclaims that a progressive society allows hundreds of thousands illegal immigrants to cross its borders every month and millions of illegal immigrants to cross its borders every year, and allows the formation of an advance guard of a global invading force recruited by the Grim Reaper from the jungles, steppes, deserts and rainforests of the dead. It proclaims that in a progressive society powerful corporations such as Google, Twitter, Facebook, Amazon, Mastercard, PayPal, Go Daddy, SPLC and Mail Chimp have joined together to ban and deplatform all views which are offensive and unacceptable to radical women, radical nonwhites, radical indigenous groups, transgenders and Islamists. It proclaims that a progressive society has expanded the number of judges on the Supreme Court and made all judicial appointments term limited in an attempt to ensure that red court majorities rule in perpetuity. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the authority of courts to strike down popular social welfare legislation. It proclaims that a progressive society sets up a court system in which judges select and decide cases on the basis of social needs and interests and not on the basis of the rule of law. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a permanent 9-0 red majority on the Supreme Court and exclusive red control over all appellate courts and state courts. It proclaims that a progressive society suspends vote counting on presidential election night 2020 at the time when Donald Trump is in the lead, allows massive ballot dumps in the middle of the night which are one hundred percent in favor of Joe Biden, and then resumes counting in the morning and declares Biden the winner. It proclaims that a progressive society installs voting machines connected to the internet, adds fraudulent votes for Joe Biden, and declares Biden the winner. It proclaims that a progressive society allows people with access to election tabulators to reopen the presidential election, run thousands of ballots for Joe Biden through the tabulators, print out new tabulator tapes with new vote balances, backdate the tapes to Election Day, and declare Biden the winner. It proclaims that a progressive society installs voting machines containing software programs which manipulate vote totals in favor of Joe Biden, and declares Biden the winner. It proclaims that a progressive society places phantom votes for Biden on election data bases and declares Biden the winner. It proclaims that a progressive court system dismisses all lawsuits concerning the integrity and constitutionality of the vote counting process in the 2020 election on purely procedural grounds, such as late filing, or the lack of time to hear suits, or the wrong defendant, or the finding that challenges have to begin at the lowest courts, or the finding that courts lack standing to hear the suits, or the finding that plaintiffs lack standing to sue, and rejects the fact that the right to vote in fair and honest elections is logically implied by the Suffrage Amendments to the United States Constitution, by the Fifteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty Third, Twenty Fourth and Twenty Sixth Amendments, and that any citizen anywhere, at anytime, has the right to challenge the results of an election. Look at the world of America's reds and see hatred and prejudice toward white people justified in the name of critical race theory. See the proclamation that people must judge each other on the basis of skin color, view every aspect of life through the prism of race, and understand that white people are racist, imperialist aggressors and must be wiped out. See an attack on civil rights, equal protection before the law, and the United States Constitution launched by neoMarxist segregationists, discriminationists and exponents of Jim Crow: "I grew up attending segregated schools in the Jim Crow South during a time when people were treated differently based on the color of their skin. Critical Race Theory preserves this way of thinking and undermines civil rights, constitutionally guaranteed equal protection before the law, and US institutions at large. This is the United States of America, and no one should ever be subjected to the discrimination that our laws so clearly prohibit." (Representative Burgess Owens). Look at the world of America's reds and see the sewers of red ideology pour out the sludge of race hatred into every home, school and office in the nation. See the cesspools of critical race theory empty their dirt onto the streets and squares and make hatred of white people the official obscenity of the nation. See a coalition of left wing unions, left wing teachers, left wing schools boards, left wing fellow travelers and a left wing administration join forces in a radical assault on free institutions and an attack on Western, liberal, color blind civilization: "Left wing radicals on school boards across the country are poisoning our children with Critical Race Theory. Even worse, this racist filth is being encouraged by the Biden Administration and their Teacher's Union allies. I'm proud to join my Republican colleagues in condemning this dangerous and divisive ideology." (Representative Robert Good). A look at a nation's top exports reveals what goods it is especially skilled at producing. In Europe, the top exports include automobiles, vehicle parts and aerospace products. In Asia, the top exports include computers, integrated circuits and broadcasting equipment. Students of history have seen America's leading exports, and have seen in them the greatest role reversal staged in the history of mankind, and have been cast into a valley of despondency and gloom. They have sadly and dimly recorded America's exports as red ideological theories and red political tactics; as gender, race and class dogmas, and the techniques of how to steal elections and how to keep them stolen by means of judicial evasion and abdication; and they have seen in these acts of moral and spiritual treason, the definitive conclusion of Western civilization.

MUCKRAKERS ATTACK AMERICA

In John Bunyan's seventeenth century classic, The Pilgrim's Progress, there is a description of a man with a muckrake. This was a character who rejected human salvation to focus on filth and wielded "a rake for dung or muck." In the early years of the twentieth century, when mobs assumed control over America, a new age of socialism was born which would endure up to the present day and compose the final chapter of the nation. The new reds in charge called this change from freedom to statism the onset of an age of progressivism and formed a group of writers to lead an agitation and propaganda campaign against the capitalist system which they despised. These writers were called journalists by the reds, but in point of fact, they were nothing of the sort, for they were not in the least bit concerned with reporting news, but were concerned exclusively with disseminating biased and misleading pseudoinformation with the aim of promoting socialism and statism. The reds also called these writers muckrakers because they were held to expose the filth and muck held to be inherent in the capitalist system. They were again nothing of the sort, because the alleged filth and muck of the capitalist system were filth and muck which had been mass produced in the vilification factories manned by the reds, and had nothing whatever to do with the system of human freedom and human flourishing which was the crowning political achievement of the Age of Enlightenment. With the strong hurricane winds of the mob at their back, these red agitprop writers masquerading as fact based journalists and evidence based muckrakers composed a program and manifesto of communist ideology which would inspire generations of what the reds would later call investigative and watchdog journalism, but which was nothing more than a continuation of the first anticapitalist crusade. Commanding vast audiences in popular bookstores, magazines and newspapers, the first generation of red muckrakers in America proclaimed that progressive journalism digs up dirt against the capitalist system. They proclaimed that the capitalist system is a swamp of corruption presided over by unprincipled big business oligarchs. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system of untrammelled corporate greed which destroys innocent human lives. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system of massive bribery and influence peddling committed at every level of government. They proclaimed that progressive journalism is an expose of capitalist corruption and malfeasance. They proclaimed that progressive journalism is a crusade against capitalist slavery and exploitation. They proclaimed that progressive journalism is an investigation into the evil doings of the rich. They proclaimed that liberal democracy is an invisible government in the hands of the rich and must be replaced by a red totalitarian tyranny in the hands of the common people. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system of plutocracy constructed upon the misery and suffering of the working class. They proclaimed that a utopian society is a statist, socialist society which is constructed upon the model of bees in a beehive and ants in an anthill. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system of squalor, inhumanity, and mental and physical torment. They proclaimed that unskilled, muscular laborers are the true leaders of industry, the true creators of the world's wealth, and the rightful lords and masters of the earth. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system of sweatshop labor which reduces human beings to the level of rightless beasts of burden. They proclaimed that a progressive society is a red farmers' alliance and a red people's party which have outlawed private property and individual autonomy. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system created by and for the nefarious activities of large corporations and the political machines through which they rule. They proclaimed that capitalism has created harsh, grim, wretched living and working conditions for the masses. They proclaimed that capitalism is a ruthless, antisocial system lorded over by powerful corporate elites. They proclaimed that a progressive society has been stung by a revolutionary fever and leads the white hot masses into the blazing fields of socialism. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system of rampant, coast to coast lawlessness which has branded every city in the nation with the black mark of dishonest dealings. They proclaimed that liberal democracy is an abject failure and society requires the services of a good, red, totalitarian dictator who will make the economy stable and efficient and bring social justice to the people. They proclaimed that capitalist freedom is founded upon brute force and wolfish rapacity, while socialist autocracy is founded upon an appeal to reason, science and benevolence. They proclaimed that capitalism is a system of wage slavery, overworked and underpaid labor, and the mass contamination of meat supplies. They proclaimed that having proletarian sympathies means showing support for those who hate talented and successful people and is the finest and noblest political support a person can offer. Look at the world of the muckrakers and see an attack on the right to private property and the right to live and work for oneself. See a crusade to set up a political tyranny promoting socialist force and socialist fraud. See a crusade to set up a system in which a predatory socialist state compels people to surrender their money, their earnings, their holdings, and their lives and careers to it. See a crusade to reduce free citizens to wards and children of the state and community. See a crusade to displace the capitalist system of reason and liberty with a new religion which commands abject sacrifice to a mystical proletariat. See a crusade to eliminate contractual liberty, abolish wages for work, and reduce people to the status of serfs of the totality. See a crusade to set up a red government which poisons people's minds with a morality of service, oppresses their existence with the fearsome weight of a leviathan, and halts the march of human progress and enlightenment. See an archfiend against individual liberty, an archvillain against free nations, a pitch black evil spirit called a social justice warrior, granted moral legitimacy by the reds and allowed to rampage across homes, schools and offices. See a crusade to teach people to be frugal, to save all they have, and to give one hundred percent of what they own to the state. See a crusade to indoctrinate people in the virtues of social humility and unquestioning obedience to the commands of the people's collective. See a crusade to set up a state which will pick the pockets of the workingman in the name of the Red International and the people's church of communist salvation. See a crusade to bring together the comrades of class hatred, the preachers of totalitarianism, the evangelists of collectivization, the rebels against constitutional law, the torturers of educated, righteous citizens, the popes and Vaticans of communist crime and conspiracy, and the merchants of a religion whose bible is the works of Marx and Lenin, and commence a death struggle against human civilization: "Nicholas Schliemann was familiar with all the universe, and with man as a small part of it. He understood human institutions, and blew them about like soap bubbles. It was surprising that so much destructiveness could be contained in one human mind. Was it government? The purpose of government was the guarding of property rights, the perpetuation of ancient force and modern fraud. Or was it marriage? Marriage and prostitution were two sides of one shield, the predatory man's exploitation of the sex pleasure. The difference between them was a difference of class. If a woman had money she might dictate her own terms: equality, a life contract, and the legitimacy—that is, the property rights—of her children. If she had no money, she was a proletarian, and sold herself for an existence. And then the subject became Religion, which was the Archfiend's deadliest weapon. Government oppressed the body of the wage slave, but religion oppressed his mind, and poisoned the stream of progress at its source. The workingman was to fix his hopes upon a future life, while his pockets were picked in this one; he was brought up to frugality, humility, obedience—in short to all the pseudovirtues of capitalism. The destiny of civilization would be decided in one final death struggle between the Red International and the Black International, between socialism and the Roman Catholic Church; while here at home, the Stygian midnight of American evangelicalism—And here the expreacher entered the field, and there was a lively tussle. Comrade Lucas was not what is called an educated man; he knew only the Bible, but it was the Bible interpreted by real experience. And what was the use, he asked, of confusing religion with men's perversions of it? That the church was in the hands of the merchants at the moment was obvious enough; but already there were signs of rebellion, and if Comrade Schliemann could come back a few years from now, the Vatican will be denying that it ever opposed socialism, just as at present it denies that it ever tortured Galileo.' " (The Jungle by Upton Sinclair). The intelligentsia does not create mass movements but mass movements create the intelligentsia. Intellectuals who do not parrot the hatreds and prejudices of the masses are intellectuals who have no power, no prestige, no influence and no relevance. In the early years of the twentieth century in America, a socialist mass movement was born and this movement created a class of intellectuals which it christened muckrakers. Upton Sinclair, Lincoln Steffens, Frank Norris, Ida Tarbell, Will Irwin, Frances Kellor, Jacob Riis, Mark Sullivan and Samuel Adams. These were the first generation of muckrakers, given their marching orders by the mob to spread red sensations, red shocks, red fermentation, red turbulence and red nervous excitement into every corner of society, and bring down the house of liberal democracy.

PORTRAIT OF A BUSH LEAGUE FUHRER

In the world of sports, a bush league is a minor, lower ranking organization of clubs. Coined in the early twentieth century, the term is derived from the overgrown, unkempt character of amateur sports fields. The term is used figuratively, by extension, to denote a person or organization which is second rate and run of the mill. Students of history have been struck by a flash of lightning hurled by the Jupiter and Thor of ominous parallels and have issued a report to warn their fellow citizens on what they have seen, but their warnings have fallen on deaf ears, and been cast aside by a mob driven by passion and frenzy to establish a red tyranny in America. The parallel which students of history have observed with the crash of thunder of history repeating itself is that between the German fuhrer who established a totalitarian Third Reich in 1933 and President Joe Biden, and have observed the latter as a cheap imitation of the former, but an imitation just as evil and deadly. No charisma present here in Biden, no allure, no compelling attractiveness, no triumph of the will, no man of steel, but only a sparse, little septuagenarian with a high, thin, faint, feeble sounding voice who personifies, as nothing else does, the essential lack of greatness and stature of his nation as it accelerates into its final chapter. Ignored and rejected by the people of America intent on sweeping away the last vestiges of liberal democracy in the country and establishing a Marxist and national socialist regime, this dismal report on a twenty first century knock off version of a German original is a living, breathing, walking nightmare which has sprung out of its pages and roamed the land, begging and entreating anyone it can find to stop, to think, to listen and to reverse course. This report on an American bargain basement fuhrer named

Joe Biden is a report on the thoughts and opinions of the mob for which he speaks and the mob on whose behalf he seeks to destroy the legacies of the Enlightenment in the country. Reichskanzler Biden, Fuhrer Biden and the blazing revolutionary inferno called the American People have proclaimed that a progressive society inculcates in its citizens the tenets of critical race theory, according to which all disparities between blacks and whites, in education, employment, income and wealth, are the results of the inherent and ineradicable racism of white people, and these disparities can only be eliminated by a negative, critical examination of the tenets of liberal democracy, which will lead to the expropriation and extermination of whites. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is a radical left society which has rejected the values and institutions of individual liberty and constitutional government. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has launched a radical assault on the American way of life of personal responsibility and achievement through merit. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has installed in its schoolrooms, newsrooms and corporate boardrooms the fearsome principles of a new faith, a faith in the mystical primacy of genders, races and classes, and has demanded that every citizen bow down before its slogans, shibboleths, mottos and mantras. They have proclaimed that capitalism is a white racist system which has made whites the privileged oppressors of powerless blacks. They have proclaimed that white people think and act in racist ways and are inherently bad human beings. They have proclaimed that the liberal democratic system is hopelessly rooted in white racist persecution and exploitation and must be swept away by a revolution of black national socialism. They have proclaimed that a progressive society has blanketed college campuses, large corporations and government bureaucracies with programs in racial indoctrination, racial Maoism and racial struggle sessions designed to instill hatred of white people and worship of a new black master race. They have proclaimed that national borders and immigration controls are racist. They have proclaimed that the liberal merit system is racist and must be replaced by a regime of discrimination in favor of blacks and hispanics. They have proclaimed that the notions of truth and objectivity are expressions of white supremacy. They have proclaimed that the belief that talent, ability and hard work can lead to financial success is an expression of white supremacy. They have proclaimed that all white people are sympathizers with the Ku Klux Klan and must be rounded up. They have proclaimed that white people are the inherent oppressors of blacks and blacks have a right to "respond to their oppression in ways (the whites) don't like" and assault whites randomly on the streets. They have proclaimed that Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt were racists because they called indigenous people what they were: violent savages without law essentially unchanged from prehistoric times. They have proclaimed that a progressive society is governed by red guards who have demolished the symbols and suppressed the ideas of liberal freedom and set up churches and shrines to the glory of the people' state of social justice. Look at the world of Joe Biden and see a twenty first century American fuhrer lead an attack on Western civilization. See him lead attack on rational wisdom and rational philosophy. See him lead him an attack on the history, heroes, values and institutions of a nation for which soldiers of liberty died in 1776. See him lead a campaign to indoctrinate high school and college students in the passions and prejudices of the neocommunist, neofascist left. See him lead a campaign of cancellation and shut down of liberal Enlightenment dissent. See him unleash a wave of crime and violence in every town and city in the nation justified in the name of fairness to the oppressed and the marginalized. See him lead a campaign to drive antireds from their jobs and shame them out of society. See him set up an American leviathan woven out of the fearsome fabric of gender, race and class politics and suffocate the people in its moral and intellectual vacuum. See him ignite a social and political danger, stoke its fires to a national conflagration, and celebrate the incineration of America in an inferno marked: totalitarian rule: "1776 represented the culmination of thousands of years of Western civilization and the triumph of not only spirit, but of wisdom, philosophy, and reason. And yet, as we meet here tonight, there is a growing danger that threatens every blessing our ancestors fought so hard for, struggled, they bled to secure. Our nation is witnessing a merciless campaign to wipe out our history, defame our heroes, erase our values, and indoctrinate our children. Angry mobs are trying to tear down statues of our founders, deface our most sacred memorials, and unleash a wave of violent crime in our cities. Many of these people have no idea why they're doing this, but some know what they are doing. One of their political weapons is cancel culture, driving people from their jobs, shaming dissenters, and demanding total submission from anyone who disagrees. This is the very definition of totalitarianism, and it is completely alien to our culture and to our values and it has absolutely no place in the United States of America." (Mount Rushmore Speech by Donald Trump, July 4, 2020). During the Third Reich, the Black Forests of Germany merged and dissolved into forests of salutes and Seig Heils to the Fuhrer. In the present day, the German fuhrer's goose steppers have risen from the sewers, taken over America, and elected a nonentity named Joe Biden as their new leader. Watch the little man, a marionette from shadow land whose wires are pulled by reds of all stripes and varieties. Watch the little man lead a little nation, a nation devoid of moral standing and moral status, into a neoMarxist, neoHitlerite new frontier. Watch the little man speak to his mobs in Chicago, in Los Angeles, in New York, in Miami, in Scranton, and anyplace and everyplace where there festers and multiplies gender, race and class hatred. Watch the little man iterate a new form of Marxism and national socialism for the American masses. In this latest version, successful, white, heterosexual, nontransgender people who legally reside in America have replaced Marx's bourgeois and Hitler's Jews as the targets of hatred, opprobrium and mass murder. Watch the little man bring Marx and Hitler back to life and install them on every street corner and college campus in America. Watch the little man clothe them in the garb of gender, race and class rabble rousers, guide them in a crusade to ransack cities, pull down monuments, deface statues, rename buildings, rewrite textbooks, cancel free speech, censor political discourse, assault dissenters on the streets, and poison the arts, media, government, public schools, corporations and the Democratic Party with the malice of raw hatred based upon group identity. Watch the little man lead Marx's and Hitler's final barbarians out of yesterday's red squares and beer halls and send them crashing through the gates of civilization.

MARXIST PROFESSOR PROMOTES CARTESIANISM

The phrase squaring the circle denotes an attempt to do what it is impossible to do. It is an attempt to combine contradictory features, qualities or situations and is a sign of serious cognitive deficiency or else rank, willful charlatantry. Students of philosophy and politics have not failed to observe the most outstanding instance of squaring the circle over the past hundred years and have recorded this as the most influential act of philosophical and political fraud ever committed in America. Its perpetrator is an icon among apriorist philosophers and among the academic and intellectual left and is worshiped both by Cartesians and communists as the greatest contributor in recent history to progress and enlightenment in their fields. When Noam Chomsky speaks, both the Cartesians and the reds listen to him in rapt attention and erupt in wild applause whenever he draws his contradictory conclusions and makes his deceitful points. Contrasted with this religious enthusiasm for Chomsky's utterances is the reaction of students of philosophy and history toward them. For they see a pseudothinker promote, on the one hand, the apriorist witch doctory of Descartes, and on the other hand, the reductive materialism of Marx, and they see with horrifying clarity a world renowned philosophic monster rampage across the pages and platforms provided by these two groups, and declare total war on the values and ideals of the Age of Enlightenment. They have issued their report on Chomsky and their exposition of his philosophical and political views comprises a program and manifesto of an enemy of reason whose passions and prejudices have inspired a generation of professors of linguistics and red hoodlums on the streets in their campaigns against the philosophical and political traditions of the Enlightenment. Promoting at one and same time Cartesian universalism and Marxist relativism, and Cartesian mysticism and Marxist materialism, Chomsky's program and manifesto is the mark and definition of an antisystem, an antilogic and an antiphilosophy, and scales peaks of total incoherence as it plumbs the depths of schizophrenic psychosis. It proclaims that human cognitive structures have no empirical basis. It proclaims that the principles and structures of language are preset in the human mind and are genetically inherited. It proclaims that all human beings share the same linguistic structures because they are apriori planted there. It proclaims that the laws of logic are not derived from experience but have been hard wired into the human brain at birth. It proclaims that structural rules are innate to human beings and are grasped independently of man's senses. It proclaims that because man possesses a capacity to form languages, all syntactic structures and rules of language are grasped in the absence of external stimuli. It proclaims that human beings can grasp the fundamental laws of reality while in a state of total sensory deprivation and solely by means of pure internal deduction. It proclaims that concepts of logic and language are grasped with zero exposure to physical information and solely by a process of mental fast mapping. It proclaims that human grammar is a body of apriori principles, parameters, sequencing, transformations and deep structures. It proclaims that America, by virtue of being a capitalist superpower, is responsible for all the world's problems: wars, famine, genocide, poverty and infectious diseases. It proclaims that the September 2001 terror attacks which destroyed the World Trade Center, damaged the Pentagon, and killed 3,000 innocent people were justified because capitalism is a system of terror, America is the world's preeminent capitalist state, and Americans are therefore the world's preeminent terrorists. It proclaims that America is a dictatorship residing in the hands of corporate power and is in consequence the world's most aggressive state and the greatest threat to world peace. It proclaims that the Pentagon is the most horrific institution on the face of the earth because it protects the most horrific nation on the face of the earth: a beacon and bulwark of capitalist freedom called America. It proclaims that a progressive society is established by a socialist revolution during which proletarian mobs have seized power from the law and legalized violence in the streets. It proclaims that a progressive society is radical, communalist, communist and totalitarian. It proclaimed that a progressive society is ruled by socialist revolutionaries modeled after Fidel Castro, Che Guevera and Mao Zedong who have contracted to a vanishing point the freedom of the people. It proclaims that totalitarian government empowers the working class and brings the highest form of human liberation. It proclaims that the red regime of collectivization, communization and extirpation of the individual is a positive social development and is wholeheartedly supported by all suitably indoctrinated, brainwashed and coerced people: "China is an important example of a new society in which very interesting and positive things happened at the local level, in which a good deal of the collectivization and communization was really based on mass participation and took place after a level of understanding had been reached in the peasantry that led to this next step." (Noam Chomsky, New York, 1967). Listen to Chomsky and hear him advocate socialist control over human liberty. Hear him advocate red totalitarianism in the name of political, economic and social democratization. Hear him reject the right to private property and advocate a mob takeover of private production, exchange, transportation and communication. Hear him reject the right to free enterprise and promote red brigades as the masters of trade and industry. Hear him reject the right to private existence and advocate public control over minds, bodies and markets. Hear him reject the right to private space and promote the lengthening shadow of red control over every corner of the state and society: "How should we define socialism in the 21st century? Chomsky: Like other terms of political discourse, socialism is quite vague and broad in application. How we should define it depends on our values and goals. A good start, fitting well into the American context, would be the recommendations of America's leading 20th century social philosopher, John Dewey, who called for democratization of all aspects of political, economic and social life. He held that workers should be 'the masters of their own industrial fate,' and that 'the means of production, exchange, publicity, transportation and communication' should be under public control. Otherwise, politics will remain 'the shadow cast on society by big business' and social policy will be geared to the interests of the masters. That's a good start. And is deeply rooted in significant strands of the society and its complex history." (Is The US Ready For Socialism? An Interview With Noam Chomsky by C. J. Polychroniou). Listen to Noam Chomsky and hear him sow the seeds of communist revolution. Hear him promote state despotism in the name of social reform. Hear him declare war on the free capitalist workplace. Hear him promote the ownership and management of enterprises by the mob. Hear him repeal freedom of contract in the parliament of health and safety standards. Hear him advocate the overthrow of liberal institutions in the name of social, political and economic reform. Hear him advocate the destruction of free minds and free markets in the name of defending and expanding the rights of the proletariat: "Should the left in the US fight for reforms along the lines of those articulated by Bernie Sanders, or should it devote itself to promoting a more radical version of social and economic change? Chomsky: While supporting valuable reforms and efforts to protect and extend rights, there is no reason not to follow [Russian anarchist Mikhail] Bakunin's advice to create the germs of a future society within the present one, at the very same time. For example, we can support health and safety standards in the capitalist workplace while at the same time establishing enterprises owned and managed by the workforce. And even support for the reformist measures can (and should be) designed so as to highlight the roots of the problems in the existing institutions, encouraging the recognition that defending and expanding rights is just a step toward eliminating those roots." (Is The US Ready For Socialism? An Interview With Noam Chomsky by C. J. Polychroniou). Noam Chomsky ranks with Marx, Shakespeare and the Bible in the list of the most quoted sources in the fields of history, politics, social sciences and philosophy. He is the guiding star of America's reds and his works are the prime inspiration of the slogans mouthed by the nation's students, professors, politicians and celebrities. Chomsky's ship, marked Marxism and Cartesianism, foundered before it set sail and imploded on the merciless shores of noncontradiction. Chomsky's Cartesian view that knowledge is innate and acquired independently of sense experience means that knowledge is subjective. For the innate structures can never be escaped, transcended, stepped outside of and checked against reality. But so-called subjective knowledge is knowledge of nothing and is a contradiction in terms. Chomsky's Marxist view that all knowledge is class relative is itself proclaimed to be absolutely and unqualifiedly true and is thus inconsistent. Chomsky's Marxist view that collectives are ontological primaries and enjoy an existence which is above, apart from and superior to individuals is contradicted by the evidence of the senses that physical existence exists and nothing else exists outside the mind. Chomsky promotes the Cartesian view of the mind as a self-contained, self-subsistent, self-enclosed, supernatural entity. Chomsky promotes the Marxist view of man as a mindless beast capable only of performing unskilled, muscular labor. These are the pieces of rubble left following the break up of Chomsky's ship. They have buried Western civilization.

GERMAN REDS INVADE AMERICA

America is Germany's largest economic export destination. The total value of German exports to America is 120 billion dollars. Automobiles comprise twenty percent of exports, packaged medicines ten percent and vehicle parts five percent. Students of history and politics, reaching back over the past one hundred years, have undertaken an examination of Germany's moral and political exports to America and have seen the present day conflagration of communist politics light up an export as torchlights track the movements of rats in the dark. This raging red inferno of today has placed a spotlight on the year 1917 and revealed the sordid history of events which followed. This year saw the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia and hopes by the masses throughout the world for the triumph of communism. In 1919, communism triumphed in Hungary under the leadership of Bela Kun, whose red terror killed millions of innocent civilians. In the same year, communism triumphed in Slovakia and in the German territory of Bavaria, which saw a Bavarian Soviet Republic. In 1919-1920, Italy was terrorized by mass strikes, the red takeover of factories, the red disruption of production, and a general strike held in solidarity with the Russian Revolution. In the early 1920s in Germany, the Alliance of Red Front Fighters was formed by the Communist Party of Germany and was comprised of 130,000 communist street hoodlums. Its logo was the red salute: the raised fist. The successor organization to the alliance was the Fighting Alliance Against Fascism. This was in turn succeeded by the Antifascist Action, or Antifa, which united the communist subculture in Germany, including sports leagues, party organizations and factory cells, in a war against Western liberal democratic order. After the fall of the Third Reich in 1945, Antifa was reconstituted along with its founding organization, the German Communist Party. It made its first migration abroad in Britain in 1977, where it appeared as the Anti Nazi League, founded by the communist front, the Socialist Workers Party. The ANL was soon renamed Red Action, and in 1985, the latter was renamed Anti Fascist Action. Other names followed: Unite Against Fascism, the Autonomous Movement, Skinheads Against Racial Prejudice, Red And Anarchist Skinheads, and Anti Racist Action. In the late 1980s, the latter name traveled to America and the German Antifa virus erupted across the nation, and became the nation's most dangerous terror organization. In 2007, in Portland, Oregon, Anti Racist Action reverted to the original name Antifa, and this name has become the settled name of the organization in America. Antifa: the same name in America now for the same organization founded by German communists decades before in their campaign to overthrow the Weimar Republic and the liberal cultural branch of the West. In its passage from Germany to Britain to America, this virus has changed its name many times to adapt to new circumstances but has maintained its form and essence, and its program and manifesto of Marxist tyranny projects two enemies, the same two enemies the organization had projected when it was founded in the 1920s. These two enemies are the antiBolshevik but Marxist inspired fascists and national socialists, and the voices of liberal democratic freedom and human rights. The first of these enemies is purely internal; it fights against Antifa as a brother ideologue fights, accepting the same premise of collectivism that the individual has no right to live and work for himself but must live and work for the sake of a mystical collective entity; and differs from Antifa only with respect to the nature of the entity it worships: it worships a biological race as opposed to Antifa's socioeconomic class. The second enemy of Antifa is an external enemy and is the true enemy, for it rejects the premise held by both the Marxists and the national socialists that man is by nature a social being, a being born bound and chained within a net of social obligations, and acknowledges the empirical reality that man is by nature a free born, rational being, because there is no such entity out there as a mystical group. Condemning both of its enemies as fascists, Antifa has launched a campaign to Bolshevize the planet and has made its greatest inroads in America, once the world's arsenal and lighthouse of liberty, and now under the mob elected Biden administration, an ideologically overheated building made of truth resistant glass in which grow untrammelled and luxuriantly the fearsome plants of red totalitarian tyranny. Antifa, the German Antifa, the British Antifa and the American Antifa, proclaims that human nature must be reshaped and transformed to make it purely social and eliminate all capacity to think and to be free. It proclaims that a progressive society is a militant organization which seeks to prevent through the most violent means possible fascist capitalists and liberals from existing, organizing and attaining power. It proclaims that a progressive society is a communist, socialist and extreme leftist society which has organized the marginalized communities of women, nonwhites and the poor in a campaign to overthrow the racist, sexist and antiproletarian order of liberal democracy. It proclaims that a progressive society is a hammer and sickle movement which has smashed the swastika banners held aloft by the voices of capitalism and freedom. It proclaims that the world of property rights, free market capitalism, freedom of speech, assembly and association, and respect for the rule of law is a Hitlerite lash of repression and exploitation of the working class. It proclaims that the system championed by John Locke, Adam Smith and Thomas Jefferson is a right wing system of authoritarianism and abuse. Look at the world of Antifa and see it condemn free societies as fascist societies. See it turn words upside down, claim that A is non A, and define the far right as slavery and the far left as freedom. See it kill the police, blow up courtrooms, and abolish the rule of law in the name of combating white supremacy. See it attack peaceful, honest, decent, law abiding, hard working citizens in the name of resisting persecution. See it condemn the capitalist system of equal opportunity and reward for personal achievement as a system of maltreatment and subjugation of the working class. See it gun down shop owners and self employed professionals in the name of stopping fascists. See it condemn the Western liberal democratic order as a system of racism, sexism, nativism, antisemitism, Islamophobia, homophobia, transphobia, and discrimination against the disabled, the oldest and the youngest, and stage nationwide riots demanding red totalitarian rule. See it advocate communist tyranny in the name of protecting abortion rights and reproductive freedom. See it advocate a dictatorship of a master class and a master race called the proletariat and the extermination of all other classes and races. See it proudly, fearlessly, with total responsibility and in eternal solidarity with red comrades of all nations advocate the values and ideals of psychopathic killers in the name of Marx and Lenin. See it

brandish its motto, the motto of devils and monsters throughout history who stalk civilized communities: We intend to murder millions in the name of social justice: "1. We disrupt fascist and far right organizing and activity. 2. We don't rely on the cops or courts to do our work for us. This doesn't mean we never go to court, but the cops uphold white supremacy and the status quo. They attack us and everyone who resists oppression. We must rely on ourselves to protect ourselves and stop the fascists. 3. We oppose all forms of oppression and exploitation. We intend to do the hard work necessary to build a broad, strong movement of oppressed people centered on the working class against racism, sexism, nativism, antisemitism, Islamophobia, homophobia, transphobia, and discrimination against the disabled, the oldest, the youngest, and the most oppressed people. We support abortion rights and reproductive freedom. We want a classless, free society. We intend to win! 4. We hold ourselves accountable personally and collectively to live up to our ideals and values. 5. We not only support each other within the network, but we also support people outside the network who we believe have similar aims or principles. An attack on one is an attack on all." (Points Of Unity by Torch Antifa). One hundred years ago, Germany sold an organization to the world and the world bought it enthusiastically. Wearing masks and clad in black, the members of this organization placed the West in the grip of communist violence, murder, intimidation, revolution, extremism and class war. Waving the black and red banners of communist destruction committed in the name of Marxist and Leninist egalitarianism, its members drowned the cities of Europe in rivers of blood. Condemning the liberal democratic opposition as racist and fascist, this German commodity, this German article, this German service, this Antifa, migrated to America and composed the final chapter of the nation.

ARISTOTLE VERSUS LOCKE

An internecine conflict is one which takes place within an organization or movement. The contending parties accept fundamental premises but differ in regard to details and specificities. Internecine conflicts on the left include those between Marxists, national socialists and proponents of a social market, for all three accept the premise that the individual has no right to live and work for himself, and differ only with respect to the mystical entity which they worship, whether it be the proletariat, the master race or the social market state. On the right, students of philosophy have studied an internecine conflict taking place between the proponents of Aristotelian politics and Lockean politics, and have observed that the differences between these two political theories demarcate the differences between the Classical and Western cultures themselves, and highlight the differences between the Classical Apollonian culture of reason and the Western Faustian culture of the will. Students of philosophy have observed the basic premise shared by both Aristotelian and Lockean theories. It is the acknowledgment of the primacy of the individual, the acknowledgment that individuals, and only individuals, have rights. It is the acknowledgment that physical objects exist outside the mind, and only physical objects exist, and that there is no such thing as a mystical group entity, such as a class or a race, existing out there. After studying this shared premise, students of philosophy have been compelled to study the points which separate these two theories, and have concluded that Aristotelian politics alone is sound and coherent and alone can establish a just society. The argument for Aristotelian politics commences with the definition of man as a rational animal. Man is a being which, while possessing two qualities which distinguish him from the animals, reason and will, lives and survives by the recognizing the primacy of reason and by subordinating his will to his reason. Because man is a rational animal and not merely a willful animal, the good life or the human life is the life which is guided and directed by reason, and is the life which consists predominantly of rational activity and rational excellence. Because man is a rational animal, the individual has a duty to himself to prosper and succeed along the lines dictated by his intellect. It follows from this that individuals who fall short of the definition of man are not, morally speaking, human beings, and morally speaking, exist on the level of animals. Human freedom is an instrument of rational flourishing and the notion of a freedom to live in the manner of an animal is a contradiction in terms. Since justice is the giving to each person his due, what is owed to him, what he merits and deserves, a just society does not recognize the freedom of those who fall short of the definition of man and who have chosen to live a life which does not predominantly consist of rational activity and rational excellence. A just society only protects the freedom of those who use their freedom to satisfy the definition of man and does not recognize the existence of such a thing as freedom for human appearing animals. Because man is a rational animal and not an irrational social animal, the following alleged rights are impossible: there is no such thing as a right to exist as a socialist; there is no such thing as a right to free speech for those who espouse socialism; there is no such thing as a right to private property for those who use their property to promote socialism; there is no such thing as a right to vote into office candidates who promise to enact socialism; and there is no such thing as a right of a majority or a legislature or an executive to enact or decree socialism. Listen to Aristotle and hear him acknowledge the common sense truth that people who do not flourish by the use of their reason are not morally or legally equal to those who do. Hear him acknowledge the common sense truth that justice demands that people be morally or rationally qualified to possess freedom. Hear him acknowledge the common sense truth that people who are nonaggressive and do no harm to others else can nonetheless be unworthy of possessing freedom in the same way that nonaggressive biological animals are unworthy of possessing freedom. Hear him acknowledge the common sense truth that the good state, the moral state, the just state and the human state does not recognize the existence of freedom for those who do not achieve the goal of rational well being, rational virtue or a rationally purposeful life. Hear him acknowledge the common sense truth that the human state is not a mere liberal alliance founded upon the principle of nonaggression and honest dealings but is a community of rationally self perfecting individuals: "It is thought that justice is equality, and so it is, though not for everybody but only for those who are equals; and it is thought that inequality is just, for so indeed it is, though not for everybody, but for those who are unequal; but these partisans strip away the moral qualifications of the persons concerned, and judge badly. The state is formed, not for the sake of mere life only but rather for the good life, for otherwise a collection of lower animals would be a state, but as it is, it is not a state, because animals have no share in rational well being or in a rationally purposeful life. The object of the state is not mere military alliance for defense against injury by anybody, and it does not exist for the sake of mere trade and business relations—for if so, Etruscans and Carthaginians and all the people that have commercial relations with one another would be virtually citizens of a single state, for they have agreements about imports and covenants as to abstaining from dishonesty, and have treaties of alliance for mutual defense, but they do not attempt to secure that nobody in the state shall be immoral, but simply that they shall not commit any wrong against each other. But all those who are concerned about good government do take civic virtue and vice into their purview. Any state that is truly so called, and is not a state merely in name, must pay attention to virtue; for otherwise the community becomes merely an alliance, differing only in locality from the other alliances, those of allies that live apart. And the law then becomes a mere covenant or, in the phrase of the sophist Lycophron, a mere guarantee of men's just claims on one another, but it is not designed to make the citizens virtuous and just." (Politics by Aristotle, Book III). While agreeing with Aristotle's empiricism that individuals and only individuals possess freedom, John Locke rejects Aristotle's next empirical position that man is a rational animal. In the face of common sense, ordinary experience and fundamental sanity, Locke states that man has no rational essence and is an indeterminate nothing. Because there is no definition of man, there are no possible actions of an individual which could fall short of a definition, and thus all individuals, irrespective of their moral character, are equally entitled to possess freedom, on the sole condition that they do no harm to others and commit no acts of aggression against others. In the Lockean state, a human being can descend to the level of a human appearing animal and, so long as he is nonaggressive and honest in his dealings with others, is entitled to possess equal freedom with those who have chosen to live rationally flourishing lives. In the Lockean state, justice is slandered and sullied by being redefined as the granting of freedom equally and indiscriminately to all nonaggressive people. In the Lockean state, those who promote, through their words or actions, all manner of irrational doctrines, such as mysticism, supernaturalism, subjectivism, relativism, formalism, socialism and communism, are granted equal freedom with those who reject them, with the mere proviso that they do not initiate the use of force against anyone. Listen to Locke and hear him proclaim that individuals possess a natural, inalienable right to order their actions and dispose of their property as they deem fit, and to do so in the manner of an animal, so long as they respect the equal right of all others to do the same: "To understand political power right, and derive it from its origin, we must consider, what state all men are naturally in, and that is, a state of perfect freedom to order their actions, and dispose of their possessions and persons, as they think fit, within the bounds of the law of nature, without asking leave, or depending upon the will of any other man. A state also of equality, wherein all the power and jurisdiction is reciprocal, no one having more than another." (Second Treatise On Government by John Locke). In the Classical world, the Aristotelian state, founded upon the definition of man as a rational animal, was the norm, while the liberal order was in the minority. In the Western world, the Aristotelian state is unknown, while the liberal order is one of the main systems, socialism being the other, which have struggled for the control of the world. Denying the fact that man's special means of flourishing is through rational activity, liberal democracy has banished another rightist, individualist doctrine, Aristotelianism, from the stage of Western civilization and confined it to a museum of Classical ideas. Exalting individual liberty as irrational license, the Faustian liberal order is the only system of individualism which people know about and together with socialism has blocked the pathways to enlightened thought.

ORWELL EXPOSES COMMUNIST ENGLAND

Dry rot is a fungal attack on wood which occurs in poorly ventilated buildings. The dry rot fungus causes wood to crack, powder and disintegrate. Students of British history and politics, the history and politics of a stalwart island which established freedom and liberty in the West, have been thunderstruck by a parallel which has plunged them into an unmitigated nightmare. This is a nightmare from which they will never wake up screaming because they live and breathe it every day and a nightmare which constitutes the hard, unmoving, unchangeable actuality which bashes their souls each and every moment of their lives. In this nightmare, in this reality, in this state of things which they cannot escape, the subject of their study, the former capital and headquarters of a world empire of human freedom and enlightenment, has been transformed into a dark, humid, suffocating space in which luxuriates the relentless rot of red propaganda. In this grim picture which is actually experienced and actually seen, the beams, posts, ceilings and walls of a free society have collapsed and been reduced to dust under the incessant action of a fungal infection called mob politics. Students of British history and politics were alerted to this terrifying perfidy and disintegration of their land by a report issued by an alarm bell in the night. Hated by the British establishment whose treason he exposed, George Orwell told the Information Research Department, a secret department of the British Foreign Office dedicated to providing information and support to politicians, academics and writers who were opposed to communism, about the communist decomposition which had spread throughout British society and rendered British liberty a dead letter. Orwell's expose of this moral and social decay of a society whose founders centuries before, enshrining liberty in the Magna Carta, could never have imagined would ever take place, is at once an indictment of the ways and ethos of the masses and a warning and signpost of the decline and fall of the West. A revelation and disclosure of a scandal which surpassed all other scandals, of damage which surpassed all other forms of damage, and of something morally objectionable which surpassed all other forms of unpleasantness and offensiveness, Orwell's list of reds who exercised power and influence in Britain will live forever in the sordid annals of national betrayal and backstabbing. His catalogue of crypto communists, fellow traveler communists, agents of communism, sympathizers of communism and members of the Communist Party of Great Britain is an inventory of a moral dry rot which caused the oldest fortress of freedom in the West to implode. In this record of a totalitarian menace which hid behind the national flag, sang the national anthem, partook in pomp and circumstance, and called itself England is Arthur Calder-Marshall, who was a member of the Communist Party of Great Britain and a member of the London based communist front, the Writers and Readers Group. On this list was Edward Carr. This historian, diplomat, journalist and theorist of international relations supported the Soviet annexation of the Baltic states. He advocated the establishment after World War II of a communist European economy under the control of a Soviet planning board. He advocated the formation of an Anglo-Soviet alliance after the war. He proclaimed that the absorption of Eastern Europe into the Soviet empire was an imperative of justice and morality. He proclaimed that the Soviet economy had provided its people with a higher standard of living than that enjoyed in the West. He advocated the establishment after the war of a Anglo-German alliance which would be aligned with the Soviets against America. He proclaimed that World War II was caused by capitalism and that the only way to prevent future world wars is for the West to adopt communism. He advocated that Britain recognize the communist National Liberation Front as the legal Greek government after the war. He condemned the anticommunist Government of the Republic of Poland in Exile, advocated that Britain terminate diplomatic relations with it, and that Britain recognize the Soviet controlled Lublin government as the sole lawful and legitimate government of Poland. He proclaimed that red totalitarian tyranny had produced record breaking levels of industrial growth in the Soviet Union and spread freedom throughout the world by its defeat of Germany. He proclaimed that liberal democracy is a system in which the capitalist ruling class exploits the majority. He proclaimed that the Soviet Union, by its

rejection of liberal democratic rights and freedoms, offers the only true freedom and democracy to the people. He proclaimed that capitalism is a system of mass cruelty, mass oppression and mass death: "In India, where liberalism is professed and to some extent practised, millions of people would die without American charity. In China, where liberalism is rejected, people somehow get fed. Which is the more cruel and oppressive regime?" (Agit-Prof by Robert Conquest, quoting Carr, in The New Republic, November 1999). He proclaimed that the Soviet Union was the leading force of progressivism in the world and must be supported in order to defeat the world's leading capitalist aggressor, the United States. On Orwell's list of communists was Cedric Dover, a writer on social and anthropological subjects, who proclaimed that the international communist movement under the leadership of Stalin was preeminent driver of "the movement towards colored unity". (Hell In The Sunshine by Cedric Dover). On Orwell's list was Douglas Goldring, writer and journalist, who proclaimed that a progressive society is a socialist labor league which has eliminated all private economic existence. On Orwell's list was Alaric Jacob, writer and journalist, who proclaimed that communist fighters are the heroes of humanity who alone can stem the grim tide of capitalist hunger and economic depression. He proclaimed that the bourgeois life of individual freedom has produced the slavery of industrial capitalism and must be counteracted by the forces of the Soviet Union. On Orwell's list was J. B. Priestley, who proclaimed that capitalism is a system which neglects, excludes and exploits women in danger and drives them to despair and suicide. He proclaimed that no one who is poor deserves to be poor because his wealth has been stolen from him by capitalists. He proclaimed that a progressive society is an anticapitalist society which protects and promotes the well being of the idle vermin by stealing from those who produce wealth. He proclaimed that the individual is not real but is a shadowy fragment of a higher, mystical, supernatural entity called Society, and consequently man is not a free born agent but is born enslaved in a nexus of social obligations: "We don't live alone. We are members of one body. We are responsible for each other. And I tell you that the time will soon come when, if men will not learn that lesson, then they will be taught it in fire and blood and anguish." (An Inspector Calls by J. B. Priestley). Listen to J. B. Priestley and hear him proclaim that individuals are the chattel slaves of a god called Communal Responsibility. Hear him proclaim, to the wild applause of Russians, Bolsheviks, fellow travelers and communist audiences throughout the world, that a progressive society steals, expropriates and confiscates from each according to his ability, and then distributes the plunder and spoil to the mass of parasitic insects according to their need: "[An Inspector Calls] opened first in Leningrad as This You Will Not Forget, then in Moscow where it was retitled He Came: the new titles were needed because in Russia an inspector is a government official (as in Gogol). An Inspector Calls, set in 1912 in the household of a prosperous northern manufacturer, Arthur Birling, had been germinating in Priestley's mind since before the war. A mysterious stranger arrives during a family dinner and insists on interrogating each of the diners about the suicide of a young girl. Guilty secrets are revealed, and a heavy moral message is conveyed about communal responsibility. Priestley finished the play in the winter of 1944-45. It was bold of him to have his first postwar play premiered in Russia as he was already considered a dangerous leftie in some quarters. In his wartime Postscripts for the BBC, hadn't he used the line 'from each according to his ability, to each according to his need' when calling for a better postwar world? The gleeful Tory rumor was that his new play had been rejected, but the truth was no suitable London theater was available. His Russian translator approached Russian theaters, and it was snapped up." (How JB Priestley's Inspector First Called On The USSR by Valerie Grove). In his play Richard II, Shakespeare describes a stronghold of liberty called England, a diamond of flourishing and happiness, the envy of the world, blazing across the skies and seas of humanity: "This happy breed of men. This little world. This precious stone set in the silver sea, which serves it in the office of a wall, or as a moat defensive to a house, against the envy of less happier lands. This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England." In the twentieth century, this magnificent story met with an unhappy ending. Struck by a disease causing organism called the mob, the realm of England descended into communist destruction, distress, crime and catastrophe. Its moral timber had decayed and would never return to life.

STUDENT RED PAYS HER DUES

Poetic justice is the fact of experiencing a fitting and deserved retribution for one's actions without the intervention of another party. In the operation of poetic justice, evil and viciousness are ultimately punished and virtue and rationality ultimately triumph. Students of history have observed all too often nowadays, they have observed to an extreme and unwelcome extent, the fearsome hand of poetic justice operate against the masses. All across society and in all walks of life, people are receiving and have received their just deserts for their actions of pure evil, in a mass epidemic of evil which has composed the final, dismal chapter of Western civilization. The masses have been punished, and are being punished on an hourly and daily basis, by the stern tribunal of poetic justice. The crimes which have condemned them are the advocacy of red philosophies of various stripes and varieties, and thousands of people throughout the world have been and are being marked for death and destruction for these popular mental poisons which they promote and act upon. The operation of poetic justice exempts not a soul alive, and every man, woman and child who commits evil acts will hear a knock on the door from the Grim Reaper, handed his warrant for execution by the blindfolded goddess of justice, holding the scales and a sword which she will never relinquish. In the evening of July 18, 2021, in Brooklyn, Iowa, a twenty year old student at the University of Iowa was murdered by Cristhian Bahena Rivera, a twenty five year old illegal alien from Mexico who had crossed the border into America when he was seventeen. Mollie Tibbetts was stabbed twelve times by her killer, in her head, torso, neck and right hand, before being dumped in a cornfield near her home in Brooklyn. Examining Tibbetts' life and thought, the goddess of justice decreed that her death occur at the hands of an illegal alien as just recompense for the world which Tibbetts had promoted, agitated for and helped to create. Students of history have observed this world and issued their report. Serving at once as both a damning indictment of Tibbetts' red propaganda crusade and an irrefutable corroboration of the verdict delivered by the court of justice, their report makes for the most frightening, unpleasant and nightmarish reading imaginable during the twilight hours of civilized society. Tibbetts believed that a progressive society allows illegal aliens to panhandle for funds to reach their destinations across the country, which will be beachheads for an imminent invasion. She believed that a progressive society releases illegal aliens without Notices to Appear for deportation proceedings. She believed that a progressive society maintains nonborders which are void of all patrols. She believed that a progressive society enforces a round the clock catch and release policy for illegal aliens. She believed that a progressive society keeps its borders wide open to the bacterial swarms of the earth She believed that a progressive society has abolished all detention facilities and stations for illegal aliens and unleashed them into every hamlet, village, town, city and state. She believed that a progressive society has opened its gates in the name of multiculturalism to flying insects of vice and depravity whose demography hails from Haiti, Venezuela, Cuba and Congo. She believed that a progressive society has abolished its Remain in Mexico program, released tens of thousands of illegal aliens into its interior, granted them work permits to take jobs away from legal residents, and promoted massive, nationwide asylum fraud. She believed that a progressive society has dissolved its borders in the satanic acid of cartels, criminals, wild dogs, gang members and lethal drugs. She believed that a progressive society clothes, feeds and houses illegal aliens in four star hotels at taxpayers' expense. She believed that a progressive society has in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion implemented an antienforcement agenda for illegal aliens and sanctioned a humanitarian, national security and public health crisis at its borders. She believed that a progressive society has robbed its legal residents of their wages, jobs and economic well being for the sake of social justice for illegal aliens. She believed that a progressive society has allowed its legal residents to be jobless, underemployed, without good wages and without competitive benefits in order to advance the welfare of illegal aliens. She believed that a progressive society allows illegal aliens to obtain professional licenses for jobs. She believed that a progressive society allows illegal aliens to become nurses and teachers. She believed that a progressive society has established that lawful presence is no longer a requirement for any state or local certification or registration. She believed that a progressive society gives welfare benefits to people who unlawfully reside within it. She believed that a progressive society is dotted with sanctuary cities which protect illegal aliens from arrest and deportation. She believed that a progressive society places the interests of illegal aliens above the rights of legal residents and shelters the former from immigration authorities. She believed that a progressive society is a welcoming society for specimens of moral corruption from across the world who pose public safety and national security risks. She believed that a progressive society has granted total amnesty to its illegal alien population. She believed that a progressive society prosecutes employers who cooperate with immigration authorities and reveal the identities of illegal aliens. She believed that a progressive society has released all illegal aliens from jail. Listen to the beliefs of Mollie Tibbetts and hear her condemn as racists all those who favor national borders and legal immigration. Hear her forceful, passionate opposition to the American melting pot of assimilation. Hear her promote an agenda of open borders, sanctuary cities and official tolerance of depravity pouring in from foreign lands. Hear her luxuriate in the poisonous blood of illegal aliens. Hear her exalt as a perfect union a nation blighted by illegal aliens. Hear her disgrace the American flag by rejecting the rule of law. Hear her promote the victimization of decent, law abiding Americans by layers of dirt blowing in from every desert, steppe, rainforest and rat hole in the world. Hear her incite fear and hatred toward, honest, hard working, law abiding citizens. Hear her encourage the darkest corners of the world to settle in America. Hear her reject the notion of universal rational, liberal humanity in favor of gender, racial, ethnic and cultural balkanization. Hear her reject immigration justice and fairness in favor of preferential treatment for illegal aliens. Hear her smash the walls of civilization and build bridges for the scum of the earth. Hear her pursue her sole interest with maximum singlemindedness and determination: tearing America apart into bestial tribal groups armed to the teeth with the arsenals of the world. Hear her exalt the courage and leadership of psychopathic aliens as they mow down innocent people in streets and squares. Hear her give moral legitimacy to the tides of color and communism washing into America from distant shores. Hear her exalt cold blooded, unfeeling, loathsome killers with foreign passports in the name of diversity, differences, compassion and inclusion. Hear her proclaim with feelings of pride, pleasure, joy and satisfaction: I am Hispanic. I am African. I am Asian. I am Muslim. I am Marxist. I am the sworn enemy of advanced social and cultural development, and I have settled in America to complete my work of demolition: "Ten days ago, we learned that Mollie would not be coming home. Shattered, my family set out to celebrate Mollie's extraordinary life and chose to share our sorrow in private. At the outset, politicians and pundits used Mollie's death to promote various political agendas. We appealed to them and they graciously stopped. For that, we are grateful. Sadly, others have ignored our request. They have instead chosen to callously distort and corrupt Mollie's tragic death to advance a cause she vehemently opposed. I encourage the debate on immigration; there is great merit in its reasonable outcome. But do not appropriate Mollie's soul in advancing views she believed were profoundly racist. My stepdaughter, whom Mollie loved so dearly, is Latina. Her sons—Mollie's cherished nephews and my grandchildren—are Latino. That means I am Hispanic. I am African. I am Asian. I am European. My blood runs from every corner of the Earth because I am American. As an American, I have one tenet: to respect every citizen of the world and actively engage in the ongoing pursuit to form a more perfect union. Mollie was nobody's victim. Nor is she a pawn in others' debate. To knowingly foment discord among races is a disgrace to our flag. It incites fear in innocent communities and lends legitimacy to the darkest, most hate filled corners of the American soul." (Don't Distort Her Death To Advance Racist Views by Ron Tibbetts). In August 2018, the body of Mollie Tibbetts was found buried in cornstalks, her body punctured in multiple places by the knife of an illegal alien. A red psychology major at the University of Iowa, a red counselor at a children's day camp at the Grinnell Regional Medical Center, and a red activist preparing for her sophomore year, Tibbetts had been sentenced to death for her actions by the court of poetic justice. Her bloodstained body was her terrifying payment.

DISINTEGRATION

Chemical decomposition is the process of simplifying a single chemical substance into two or more fragments. A reaction in which two or more products are formed from a single reactant is called a decomposition reaction. Students of history have long known that cultures and civilizations are destined to decompose by the dismal but simple fact that in any age and at any time, the supply of human intelligence is strictly limited, and that sooner or later, the supply is exhausted, and any organization will undergo a process of decline and fall as surely as carbonic acid spontaneously decomposes over time into carbon dioxide and water. Students of history have observed the signs of cultural decomposition all around them. They have observed the peculiar character of Western cultural decomposition. They have observed the unmitigated nightmare of Western Faustian decomposition and compared it to Classical Apollonian decomposition. They observed that the two instances of decomposition differ as the decomposition of the will differs from the decomposition of reason, and that the decomposition of a Germanic, Northern European culture, the culture of the West, the culture whose prime symbol is Faust, the symbol of pure subjectivism and the unbounded will, is a more horrific and more terrifying event than the decomposition of ancient Classical culture. The decomposition of the latter was the decomposition of rational intelligence and saw a crumbling of knowledge, skills and mental capacity, as a statue crumbles over time. The decomposition of the former is, by contrast, a roaring wildfire and conflagration which has consumed the land and is sprayed out by a rocket launcher, a grenade launcher, a flame thrower and a barrel of burning fuel called Faust. Students of history have observed that the difference between Classical and Western cultural decomposition is the difference between a statue of Apollo breaking apart into fragments which cover the land over a period of time, and a Faustian volcano of pure will erupting unrestrained, sending up columns of fire and ash, and burying civilization in historical seconds in lava flows of mind shackling subjectivist philosophies. In their report on the decomposition of Western civilization, students of history have included a document and have let it speak for itself. This is an immense, destructive, rapidly spreading combustion which is blazing in every home, school and office in the world. This is the program and manifesto of the reds and it is the story of Faustian heat, light and smoke whose vital oxygen is the mob. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes hatred of Israel and hatred of Jews because these symbolize Western liberal values. It proclaims that a progressive society supports Palestinian terror attacks in the Gaza war because these symbolize the Islamist opposition to Western liberal values. It proclaims that a progressive society forces white people to denounce themselves for their sin of being born and existing. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of white privilege and must be replaced by a regime ruled by people of color and people of communism. It proclaims that white people are intrinsically and incorrigibly racist and the only solution to this problem is the final solution of white extermination. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes the mass killing of police officers and the defunding of the police in the name of Black Lives Matter and vengeance for the death of George Floyd. It proclaims that a progressive society allows illegal aliens from the savage, violent waste waters of the world, from Africa, Central America, South America Africa and the Islamic world, to cross its borders and replace its decent, honest, law abiding citizens. It proclaims that a progressive society discourages its legal residents from raising families, promotes birth decline among the good and the virtuous, and encourages skyrocketing birth rates among moral cesspools crawling with passports stamped Marxism, Islam and Indigenous Cultures. It proclaims that a progressive society sanctions race wars, gender wars and class wars, wars of groups against groups and wars of all against all, under the motto: Our Diversity Is Our Greatest Strength. It proclaims that a progressive society has splintered into racial, ethnic, gender, religious, cultural and sexual orientation groups in the name of difference, inclusion and equity. It proclaims that a progressive society is a mystical, religious society whose congregation worships a god called Tribal Identity. It proclaims that America was born, not in the Revolutionary War of 1776–83 in which American colonists won independence from Britain, but with the arrival of the first slave ship in Virginia in 1619, and the nation has been dedicated to the maintenance of slavery and discrimination ever since. It proclaims that a progressive society is an antiliberal, antiEnlightenment, antiWestern society which has destroyed statues and monuments of the European explorers who discovered and civilized America, the Founding Fathers who created America as a constitutional republic, and the leaders of America, from Thomas Jefferson to Andrew Jackson to Theodore Roosevelt, who expanded and consolidated America as a fortress, arsenal and Good Samaritan of liberty to the world. It proclaims that five centuries of Western liberal capitalist imperialism have been an engine of rapacity and genocide against superior indigenous cultures. It proclaims that private wealth has been created by the exploitation of the working classes and must be expropriated. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of slavery and segregation of nonwhites. It proclaims that individuals must be selected for jobs and student placements on the basis of their race and gender and not on the basis of merit in order to achieve race and gender diversity. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes racism and sexism in the name of social equity and social inclusion. It proclaims that white people must make restitution and reparations to blacks for slavery which existed a century and a half ago. It proclaims that a progressive society recognizes group rights and not individual rights and rejects equal opportunity for all in favor of preferential treatment for some. It proclaims that a progressive society enforces proportional representation based on race and gender in all schools, offices and enterprises. It proclaims that race and gender are plus factors, positive factors, advantageous factors and deciding factors in the selection of academic and employment candidates. It proclaims that elite high schools which admit students and measure their progress on the basis of grades, tests and examinations unfairly discriminate against shiftless blacks and hispanics and produce student populations which are disproportionately white and Asian, and by the principle of tribal representation, they must be shut down. It proclaims that a progressive society acknowledges the two fundamental principles that the system of meritocracy is no virtue, and the system of racism and sexism to achieve diversity is no vice. It proclaims that a progressive society consists exclusively of schools which reflect the racial and ethnic composition of the communities where they are located. It proclaims that a progressive society punishes with censure and cancellation all those who challenge the politics of race, gender and class and the established orthodoxy that capitalism is a system of racism, sexism, oppression and exploitation. Look at the state of the world today and see Marxism and its offshoots and derivatives assume the status of ruling ideologies. See liberal values and ideals, which affirm the primacy of the individual over the group, sacrificed upon the altars of an identity based religion. See national socialism, repackaged as critical race theory, march into public institutions, private businesses, school systems, human resources departments and corporate boardrooms, and in units, modules, papers, journals, curricula and diversity training programs proclaim the end of human social and cultural development and the onset of regression into the year zero: "Critical race theory is an academic discipline, formulated in the 1990s and built on the intellectual framework of identity based Marxism. Relegated for many years to universities and obscure academic journals, it has increasingly become the default ideology in our public institutions over the past decade. It has been injected into government agencies, public school systems, teacher training programs, and corporate human resources departments, in the form of diversity training programs, human resources modules, public policy frameworks, and school curricula." (The Courage Of Our Convictions by Christopher Rufo). The stability of a chemical compound can be broken by the action of heat, radiation, humidity or the acidity of a solvent. Mass produced in the philosophic factories of the West, the actions of red heat, red radiation, red humidity and red acids have decomposed a substance called civilization.

THE REDS' GLOBAL TAX REGIME

A leviathan is a mythical sea monster and has appeared in myths and legends throughout the world. It appeared as Timat in ancient Mesopotamia, as Vitra in ancient India and as Jormungandr in ancient Germanic mythology. Thomas Hobbes describes the state as a leviathan which is omnipotent, which cannot be destroyed or divided, and inspires abject fear in the population. Students of history have observed, amidst the raging ocean storms of present day cultural decline, a vast, powerful, autocratic being emerge out of the water and cast a fearsome shadow across the face of the earth. This is the sea monster of statism; it emerges and expands whenever the masses exhaust their supply of intelligence and renounce the cause of human freedom; and in the dying stages of a civilization, when intelligence has contracted into miniscule corners and pockets of society, this monster grows to gigantic proportions and consumes every city, state and person alive. In the final stages of the West, the sea monster of statism has grown to uniquely Faustian proportions and appeared in the form of a global superstate. Students of history have observed the birth of this monster from the depths of mental and psychological deterioration, have examined its program and manifesto, and have delivered their report to the world in the dismal knowledge that it will fall on deaf ears and be ignored by all but a handful of heretics who still uphold the values and ideals of the Enlightenment, and still believe that man is a free born, rational agent and not bound and chained within a nexus of mystical social obligations. Studied with the greatest care by scholars of history, the program and manifesto of the new global state is the final chapter of Western civilization and is a detailed plan for doing and achieving what for civilized people is done and achieved only in feverish, disordered nightmares: pushing human social and cultural development into the abyss. This program and manifesto proclaims that a progressive society is a big government society whose multitrillion dollar stimulus payments, infrastructure spending and American Families Plan have to be paid for by a global tax on producers. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a global tax on corporations, global confiscation of corporations and global economic stagnation in the name of social justice. It proclaims that governments around the world must join together and require payment of a confiscatory global corporate tax to prevent corporations from escaping to countries with fair and reasonable tax rates, and to provide global money to support ever expanding welfare states. It proclaims that a progressive society levies a global corporate tax and uses the proceeds to subsidize government favored businesses such as manufacturers of electric vehicles. It proclaims that a progressive society is a global government whose politicians and bureaucrats control the allocation of all resources. It proclaims that a progressive society has created a global tax cartel to subsidize welfare programs for the shiftless vermin of the earth. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a global tax gang and tax syndicate to prevent nations from attracting new businesses and expanding their economies by lowering tax rates to fair and reasonable levels. It proclaims that a progressive society has placed consumers, producers, jobs and products throughout the world under the control of a global tax and regulation association. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a global government, a global currency system and a global tax commissariat which have special rights to take possession of and control the life and work of every person alive. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a global monetary fund and global fiat currency to provide unlimited financial support to wild animals masquerading as human beings. It proclaims that a progressive society has declared total war on limited government, free markets, sound money and fair and reasonable taxation and established a global red totalitarian tyranny in the name of the working class. It proclaims that a progressive society has seized control over global commerce and taxed profits out of existence to finance a global welfare state. It proclaims that low tax jurisdictions are antisocial and antiworking class and must be eliminated throughout the world. It proclaims that a progressive society has instituted a global corporate tax regime to obviate the need for public borrowing to support popular social welfare programs. Look at the world of today's global tax leviathan and hear it proclaim that multinational companies have a social responsibility to pay confiscatory tax rates to support the world's welfare masses. Hear it proclaim that that a progressive society has established a global minimum corporate tax rate which will force billions of dollars to flow into government coffers to protect the health and well being of the riffraff majorities in control of nations. Hear it proclaim that a progressive society is a global totalitarian serpent which has devoured places of tax safety, tax shelter and tax refuge for the producers of wealth and justified the global governmental theft of private property in the name of the people's tax justice and tax solidarity. Hear it proclaim that that a progressive society has established a global corporate tax to pay off national debts incurred by massive social welfare spending. Hear it proclaim that a progressive society is a socialist race to the bottom, a race fueled by global corporate taxation and global redistribution of wealth, a race in which poverty, misery and enslavement are equally distributed among the masses of the world. Hear it proclaim that a progressive society has established a global agreement to force corporations to subsidize public services for the benefit of lice in human form who are incapable of producing anything of value or worth. Hear it proclaim that a progressive society is a global organization for statist cooperation, socialist development and the promotion of trade between red gangster regimes. Hear it proclaim that a progressive society is a global, intergovernmental, social welfare organization whose commissioners, chancellors, finance ministers and member states have formulated the tax rules for the expropriation of Western civilization: "The G7 group of advanced economies has reached a 'historic' deal to make multinational companies pay more tax. Finance ministers meeting in London agreed to battle tax avoidance by making companies pay more in the countries where they do business. They also agreed in principle to a global minimum corporate tax rate of 15% to avoid countries undercutting each other. Tech giants Amazon and Facebook are among those likely to be affected. The deal announced on Saturday, between the US, the UK, France, Germany, Canada, Italy and Japan, plus the EU, could see billions of dollars flow to governments to pay off debts incurred during the covid crisis. Negotiated over many years, it will put pressure on other countries to follow suit, including at a meeting of the G20 next month, which includes China, Russia and Brazil. US Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen told reporters that the 'historic' agreement on a global minimum tax would 'end the race to the bottom in corporate taxation and ensure fairness for the middle class and working people in the US around the world'. UK Chancellor of the Exchequer Rishi Sunak, who hosted the summit, said the agreement would make the global tax system 'fit for the global digital age'. His German counterpart, Olaf Scholz, said it was 'very good news for tax justice and solidarity and bad news for tax havens'. 'Companies will no longer be in a position to dodge their tax obligations by booking their profits in lowest tax countries,' he said. Governments have long grappled with the challenge of taxing global companies operating across many countries. That challenge has grown with the boom in huge tech corporations like Amazon and Facebook. At the moment companies can set up local branches in countries that have relatively low corporate tax rates and declare profits there. That means they only pay the local rate of tax, even if the profits mainly come from sales made elsewhere. This is legal and commonly done. The deal aims to stop this from happening in two ways. Firstly the G7 will aim to make companies pay more tax in the countries where they are selling their products or services, rather than wherever they end up declaring their profits. Secondly, they want a global minimum tax rate so as to avoid countries undercutting each other with low tax rates. The agreement will be discussed in detail at a meeting of G20 finance ministers in July in Venice. Paolo Gentiloni, the EU commissioner for the economy, described Saturday's agreement as a 'big step. towards an unprecedented global agreement on tax reform' and promised the EU would 'contribute actively to making that happen' in Venice." (G7: Rich Nations Back Deal To Tax Multinationals, BBC News, June 6, 2021). Rising out of the waters like a column of wild, white fire, Moby Dick broke ships with his jaws and reduced them to splinters. The largest whale which ever existed, Moby Dick dismembered, drowned, damaged and destroyed everything in his sight and was the very embodiment of terror and malignancy. He was sent spiraling into his doom by a harpoon shot at him by Captain Ahab. There will be no sea captains to defeat the mighty sea monster called global taxation and regulation. Created and nourished by the red mobs who support the global cultural establishment, this leviathan has raged unrestrained and pulled civilization into the vortex.

REDS ABOLISH MONEY

Definitions almost always contain several components and a definition with a single component is a rare definition indeed. A preeminent instance of a definition with a single component would be the definition of physical reality: simply that which exists outside the mind. Students of economics have long known something which reds of all stripes and varieties have attempted mightily to ignore and deny. They have long known that the definition of money contains two components, in the absence of any one of which money cannot exist. The first attribute of money is that it is a medium of exchange, an item which is accepted in exchange for goods and services. The second attribute of money is that it is a store of value, an item which possesses value and use in and of itself, in addition to its value in buying goods and services. In the absence of this second attribute, an item called money could be reproduced indefinitely and could create untold wealth without work of any kind being performed. In the absence of this second attribute, millionaires, billionaires and trillionaires could be created instantly merely by printing this item in the requisite amounts. In the absence of this second attribute, an item called money would in point of fact be counterfeit money, sham money and a meaningless scrap of paper. Socalled money minus this second attribute is called fiat money; it is money established by government decree and possesses no intrinsic value or use value; and it is distinguished from commodity money, whose value comes from the commodity of which it is made, such as gold or silver, a value which is independent of its function as a medium of exchange. Commodity money, such as gold or silver, cannot be reproduced or manufactured by man, and thus prevents governments from creating instant wealth out of nothing in defiance of the laws of logic and reality. In the early decades of the twentieth century, when the mob assumed control over governments throughout the West and demanded the enactment of massive social welfare programs, fiat currencies have been the norm. Abolishing the gold standard, abolishing the convertibility of a paper currency with a real good, governments adopted the red party line and commenced a policy of unrestrained printing of money in order to finance burgeoning social welfare programs and support the burgeoning social welfare scum of the earth. In 1931, Britain, obeying the demands of the mob, removed the pound's peg to gold bullion. In 1933, President Franklin Roosevelt, obeying the demands of the mob, took America off the gold standard, and Congress, obeying the demands of the mob, abolished the right of creditors to demand payment in gold. From 1944 to 1971, the Bretton Woods agreement fixed the value of thirty five American dollars to one troy ounce of gold. In 1971, President Richard Nixon, obeying the demands of the mob, abolished this convertibility of the American dollar to gold. Students of economics have examined the program and manifesto of the fiat money advocates and read in it the final chapter of Western civilization. This chapter was composed by the avatars of moral, spiritual, political and economic destruction: by the red mobs who overthrew constitutional government and sound money soon after the turn of the twentieth century. Their program and manifesto for the abolition of money and the crucifixion of wealth and work upon the Calvary Hill of counterfeit money presses has proclaimed the following points to the anxiety and dismay of civilized people throughout the world. It has proclaimed that a progressive society never thinks that unsuccessful companies should ever go bankrupt, or that bad investments should ever be liquidated, or that business losses should ever reduce assets and capital, or that interest rates should ever increase, and thinks that all work, production and individual responsibility should be abolished, and people should consume the reds' lotus plants of fiat money and collapse into misty pools of dreamy forgetfulness, unending idleness, and the loss all human mental functions. The program and manifesto of the fiat money advocates has proclaimed that a progressive society produces unlimited credit and money expansion to keep all its banks solvent. It has proclaimed that a progressive society keeps commercial enterprises in business indefinitely through endless injections of money and credit. It has proclaimed that a progressive society increases the money supply out of thin air and produces ever rising prices and an ever declining purchasing power of the money units. Look at the world of the fiat money advocates and hear them proclaim that a progressive society has been socially, morally and economically destroyed, and rendered unstable by boom and bust cycles, and buried by mountains of debt, and sent spiraling into depressions, by the price inflation caused by the endless printing of unbacked money. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society allows increases in the money stock unrestrained by the rational demand for convertibility with real goods. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society has eliminated commodity money, or money backed by commodities such as gold or silver, in favor of fiat money, or money backed by nothing in reality, and thereby established a regime of legalized counterfeiting. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society has created unlimited government expansion with fiat money, paid down all government debts with fiat money, provided unlimited welfare support with fiat money, fueled stratospheric personal and business success with fiat money, and printed tickets on the backs of its fiat money to front row seats, before an orchestra of red tub thumpers, an ensemble of red Keynesians and a chorus of red soap box orators, to an unmitigated nightmare entitled The Bankrupt End Of Western Civilization: "Today's worldwide paper, or fiat, money regime is an economically and socially destructive scheme—with far reaching and seriously harmful economic and societal consequences, effects that extend beyond what most people would imagine. Fiat money is inflationary; it benefits a few at the expense of many others; it causes boom and bust cycles; it leads to overindebtedness; it corrupts society's morals; and it will ultimately end in a depression on a grand scale. All these insights, however, which have been put forward by the scholars of the Austrian School of economics years ago, hardly play any role among the efforts of mainstream economists, central banks, politicians, or bureaucrats in identifying the root cause of the current financial and economic crisis and, against this backdrop, formulating proper remedies. This should not come as a surprise, though. For the (intentional or unintentional) purpose of policy makers and their influential experts—who serve as opinion molders—is to keep the fiat money regime going, whatever it takes. With money being the medium of exchange, a rise in the money stock does not, and cannot, confer a social benefit. All it does is reduce, and necessarily so, the purchasing power of a money unit—compared to a situation in which the money stock had remained unchanged. What is more, an increase in the money stock can never be neutral. It will necessarily benefit early receivers of the new money at the expense of the late receivers, or those who do not receive anything of the new money stock—an insight known as the Cantillon effect. Having obtained the monopoly of money production, government will replace commodity money (in the form of, say, gold and silver) with fiat money, and the regime of legalized counterfeiting gets started. sooner or later an ever greater number of people will develop a vital interest in keeping the fiat money regime going. This is because a fiat money regime allows government to expand strongly, thereby corrupting an ever greater number of people: people seek (allegedly prestigious) jobs, generous handouts, and business opportunities offered by government. People increasingly team up with government, making their personal career and business success dependent on an expanding government apparatus. And many people even start investing their lifetime savings in fiat denominated secure government bonds. As a result, sooner or later a government default becomes a no go. In times of crisis, the printing of ever greater amounts of money for shoring up government finances (and the finances of government beneficiaries) will be cast as the policy of the least evil." (The Fiasco Of Fiat Money by Thorsten Polleit). Alchemy was a branch of ancient magic and mysticism whose practitioners sought to create values out of nothing: gold out of base metals; elixirs of immortality; and panaceas able to cure any disease. Issuing streams of paper backed by nothing and calling it money, streams which increase and multiply unrestrained to infinity, the ancient alchemists have returned. Denying that the phrase fiat money is a contradiction in terms and that the phrase commodity money is redundant, today's alchemists are red esotericists, red spiritualists and red charlatans. They have severed the connection between money and goods, falsified monetary values, and impoverished and depleted the West.

MARXIST DEATH SQUADS GUN DOWN WHITES

The Einsatzgruppen were paramilitary death squads in the Third Reich which engaged in mass killings in German occupied Europe. They played an integral role in the implementation of the Final Solution against the Jews and were responsible for the deaths of a million and a half Jews. Students of history have observed the wheel of evil turn backward and stop at the campaigns of these mobile agents of death and make a fearsome and terrifying substitution. Moved by the hand of today's Marxists, the wheel of evil has placed white people in the crosshairs of hatred and violence and launched a second racial holocaust. Today's offshoots of Marx, the activists of black power, have continued the race hatred campaigns of yesterday's offshoots of Marx, the German national socialists, and set up agitation and propaganda machines in homes, offices and schools throughout the world dedicated to the vilification and abuse of white people and the overthrow of the liberal democratic order. The dissemination of racial slander and the destruction of free institutions: such was the aim of the German national socialists, such is the aim of their black nationalist successors, and such is the eternal aim of Marxists everywhere, of all stripes and varieties, who have followed in the footsteps of their Bolshevik masters. In place of a race called the proletariat, championed by the original, first generation Marxists who seized power in Russia, the heirs and descendants of the Bolsheviks have substituted whites as the hate objects and launched a new race war of extermination during the closing hours of Western civilization. Today's black swastika incarnations of German national socialism have issued a program and manifesto of the latest race hatred insanity and prompted students of history to observe the return of special action groups invading and occupying the former citadels of reason and morality. Their program and manifesto has proclaimed that white people are inherently violent and corrupt. It has proclaimed that white people possess a mental defect which compels them to hate and terrorize nonwhites. It has proclaimed that whites are nonproductive, parasitic and driven by an insatiable desire to expropriate nonwhites. It has proclaimed that whites were born in original sin, the sin of thinking in terms of justice and fairness, and are thus irredeemable. It has proclaimed that the ideals of truth, objectivity, industriousness, punctuality and responsible parenting are white ideals and have no place in a progressive society. It has proclaimed that honesty and integrity are toxic products of whiteness and must be eliminated. It has proclaimed that a progressive society promotes hatred of whites and all that whites represent, capitalism, America and the West, and seeks to establish a Marxist totalitarian state. It has proclaimed that a progressive society interprets history through the prism of race and racial conflict. It has proclaimed that a progressive society prioritizes racial identity above individual existence and has installed a black master race upon the throne of absolute power. It has proclaimed that American history is rooted in hatred of blacks and this hatred is genetically imprinted upon the American character. It has proclaimed that white people possess innate biological processes which impel them to hate and kill blacks. It has proclaimed that whites and blacks possess intrinsic differences and must be kept apart at all times. It has proclaimed that whites and blacks represent hostile and incompatible species of life. It has proclaimed that whites are physically and cognitively inferior to blacks. It has proclaimed that the science of genetics justifies racism against whites and a race war to exterminate whites. It has proclaimed that the white race consists of barbaric devils who have oppressed and exploited superior nonwhite indigenous peoples. It has proclaimed that thousands of years ago, black Africans traveled to America and helped the Aztecs build pyramids as monuments to the racially superior character of these two nonwhite peoples. It has proclaimed that whites used the AIDS virus to commit genocide against blacks. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a racialized society, a black controlled society, and a society which has abolished liberal democracy on the grounds that white racism is woven into its fabric. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has indoctrinated its students to believe that capitalism is a system of white racism and that true wisdom and justice demand enmity and prejudice against capitalism and whites. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has established a race based curriculum, promotes racial animus against white people, and programs students to despise and seek to overthrow the capitalist system. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches students that white people are demons whose original crime was that they were born. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system singles out white students for unending volleys of vituperative abuse. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system promotes the falsification of historical facts in the name of advancing the black ideological struggle. It has proclaimed that a progressive society sanctions the toppling of statues, the destruction of property and the perpetration of mass violence in the name of advancing the black nationalist cause. Look at the world of today's black swastika bearers and see them condemn capitalism as systemically racist. See them condemn criticisms of black racism as insults, slurs, slights, hostilities, disparagements, and forms of harm and aggression committed against blacks. Hear them condemn free societies as breeding grounds for interpersonal racism against blacks. Hear them condemn the virtues of individualism, integrity, self reliance, self control, delayed gratification, hard work, career ambition, family commitments, planning for the future, and empirical, scientific thinking as products of white culture. Hear them condemn respect for the rule of law and the rights of others as products of white politics. Hear them condemn the pursuit of rational flourishing and rational happiness as products of white morality. Hear them condemn the system of limited government, constitutional liberty and equal protection before the law as the product of the white mind. Hear them condemn the belief in universal humanity and the equality of all races, and sound the clarion call to black racists, black supremacists, black fascists and black Hitlerites to storm the ramparts of Western civilization: "The Smithsonian's National Museum of African American History and Culture published a document entitled, Talking About Race: Whiteness, contending that white dominated U.S. culture is systemically racist. According to the Smithsonian, people of color in the US face the problem of 'whiteness (and its accepted normality).' It is characterized by 'everyday microaggressions toward people of color. Acts of microaggressions include verbal, nonverbal, and environmental slights, snubs or insults toward nonwhites. Whether intentional or not, these attitudes communicate hostile, derogatory, or harmful messages.' 'Thinking about race is very different for nonwhite persons living in America. People of color must always consider their racial identity, whatever the situation, due to the systemic and interpersonal racism that still exists,' the Smithsonian contends. Using data from Some Aspects and Assumptions of White Culture in the United States by Judith H. Katz, an infographic lays out traits that characterize whiteness, or the 'white dominant culture'. The traits include: rugged individualism (self reliance), the Protestant work ethic, a future orientation (which entails a willingness to delay gratification), an emphasis on scientific/objective thinking, the nuclear family, respect for the rule of law grounded in individual rights. These traits undeniably remain important in American culture. Thomas Jefferson, the primary drafter of the Declaration Of Independence, said he was trying to capture the 'American mind' when he wrote, 'We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.' The idea that these beliefs are universally true and apply equally to all races in the US does not seem to be accepted by the Smithsonian." (Smithsonian Targets Whiteness, Lists Issues Like Rational Thinking And Self Reliance As Problematic by Randy DeSoto). Hate is a malignancy which wears many faces and dons many hoods. The first theologian of hate was Marx, who invented class hate, the hate of the disgruntled and the disaffected toward those who are talented and intelligent. This ugly, frightening, inhuman, unpleasant monster created in the nineteenth century brought forth a terrifying progeny in the twentieth. By the logic of Marx's tribalism, race hate was destined to make its appearance upon the stage of history. Marx's black racists have assumed control over the present day and institutionalized their evil and sickness upon the ruins of civilized society.

HOLLYWOOD DIRECTOR CONTACTS THE DEAD

In times of darkness and superstition, the phenomenon of channeling was thought to exist. It was believed that special persons, objects, locations or drugs could serve as channels or media which enabled communication with a supernatural realm. Civilized people nowadays view channeling in metaphorical and symbolic terms and view it as the process of being inspired by and emulating somebody. Students of cinema have observed the greatest act of channeling ever to take place on screen and have seen in this inspiration and emulation the production of the greatest communist propaganda film by Hollywood in the past fifty years. They have issued their report and to read it is to peer through a window and observe the Hollywood red factory running at top speed, manned by its most skilled professional in recent times. This professional was Warren Beatty and he produced, wrote, directed and starred in a film about a red he idolized, a world famous red named John Reed, in a film called Reds. The film tells the story of Reed, author of Ten Days That Shook The World, a communist account of the Russian Revolution to which Lenin himself contributed a laudatory introduction. Reed was a member of the First Communist International. He was a communist writer, adventurer, observer and deceiver, and Beatty, from the earliest days of his youth, worshiped him as his preeminent teacher and guide, pursued his film career beneath his shadow, painted him as his gray eminence, and was determined to produce one day a motion picture which would sanctify the red journey his role model made and the red nightmare his role model so fervently and passionately promoted. In their report, students of cinema have constructed a composite figure and called it Reed-Beatty and to read their report is to peer, not merely through a window into Hollywood leftism in general. but to peer into a specific soul which absorbed everything Reed thought and believed, absorbed Reed's passions and prejudices root and branch, absorbed Reed's religion down to the core of this soul's innermost being, and absorbed Reed's psychic existence to such an extent as to necessitate description and diagnosis in terms of clinical psychopathology. In their report, students of cinema have brought together the program and manifesto of a man called John Reed, a man called Warren Beatty, and a psychotic disturbance called Reed-Beatty, and the results have been of interest and concern both to those concerned with the forces of cultural subversion and those concerned with the demons which undermine psychological health and well being. This program and manifesto proclaims that the highest dictates of moral and political conscience necessitate the organization of communist revolution. It proclaims that capitalism is a system ruled by robber barons and global imperialists. It proclaims that the capitalist system is an omnivorous monster which has devoured the working class. It proclaims that the working class must overthrow free institutions with the weapons of violent strikes and nationwide sabotage. It proclaims that a progressive society is a socialist club which has swept away the moral and political corruption wrought by the capitalist system. It proclaims that a progressive society is a red bohemian culture which peddles totalitarian tyranny in packages marked people's revolution, unconventionality, nonconformism and the avantgarde. It proclaims that a progressive society is a red syndicalist movement and union of communist industrial workers which has paralyzed private businesses with employee vandalism and beaten up those who uphold the rule of law. It proclaims that a good person renounces his freedom and liberty and lives and works for the sake of something bigger, greater and more noble than the self: the people's nation, state and class struggle. It proclaims that a progressive society is terrorized by red police officers on horseback who club freedom to death while riding down streets. It proclaims that a progressive society has elected red mob violence to smash through the citadels of the law, the police, the courts, the schools and the press. It proclaims that a progressive society is a raging forest fire ignited by red incendiaries carrying truckloads of proletarian dry wood and dust. It proclaims that a progressive society has been invaded and occupied by red insurgents, red armies and red partisans whose campaigns of strikes and sabotage have made fear and intimidation stalk the land. Listen to the words of Reed-Beatty and hear him condemn capitalism as a series of railroad cars, marked filth, squalor, poverty, misery, exploitation and oppression, transporting the working class inexorably into its doom. Hear him condemn capitalism as a system in which the class of unskilled, muscular laborers who create all the wealth have been sentenced to die of famine and starvation, while the class of entrepreneurs and knowledge workers who do no work are allowed to steal from the true workers and live off the plunder and lord it over the earth: "On the whole, ideas alone didn't mean much to me. I had to see. In my rambles about the city I couldn't help but observe the ugliness of poverty and all its train of evil, the cruel inequality between rich people who had too many motor cars and poor people who didn't have enough to eat. It didn't come to me from books that the workers produced all the wealth of the world, which went to those who did not earn it." (Almost Thirty by John Reed). Listen to what living reds have to say about the film Reds and hear them praise it for its scenes of communist flags undulating across the sky. Hear them praise it for its exaltation of state controlled, slave labor and its condemnation of privately controlled, free capital. Hear them praise it for its enthusiasm for communist tyranny and its concern that liberal freedom be extinguished wherever and whenever it is exposed. Hear them praise it for its commitment to class war and its courage in promoting class genocide. Hear them praise it for its portrayal of communist hoodlums in the golden hues of myth, legend, heroism and idealism. Hear them praise it for its exaltation of communist history, communist victories, communist art, communist drama, communist romance, communist assassins, communist revolutionaries and communist mass murder: "I'm a romantic. I believe in moments when life shivers with a wild intensity. I believe that Moscow snow just has to be whiter than starlight and that there's something exquisite and chilling about red flags billowing above all that white. I believe art and joy, rebelliousness and pathos are resources as valuable as labor and capital. I loved the movie REDS. It inspired just the enthusiasm and caring that emerges from the best writing of Bryant and Reed. The lives of Louise Bryant and John Reed are inspiring to me; their commitment and courage were of mythic dimensions. We need legends from our radical past, people to serve as models from whose failures and victories we can learn. I hope artists and writers will continue to weave tales from that history, for it is a story rich in drama and romance." (review in Peace Newsletter by Jack Manno). Listen to what living reds have to say about the film Reds and hear them praise it for its procommunist, prorevolutionary, proviolence and prototalitarian content: "This is a fascinating, extraordinary film for two reasons: first, for its beauty and political content; second, who really is this movie star Warren Beatty, and why did he make this daring, courageous prorevolutionary film?" (review in People's World by Lester Cole). Listen to what living reds have to say about the film Reds and hear them praise it for its promotion of communism to the American people. Hear them praise it for its exaltation of communist comradeship, conspiracy, excitement and psychopathic gratification. Hear them praise it for its projection and celebration of communist tyranny and the abolition of freedom as the inescapable destiny of mankind: "The image that Beatty creates is some of what hooked me into politics. A lot of that sort of political life in the sixties involved both personal and political gratification. So the fact that Beatty decided to try to sell the left to the US people, and do it by figuring out what it was that had hooked him onto it, was a good decision. A great deal of it has to do with comradeship, adventure, and so on. That is certainly a lot of the appeal of it for me--that you give your life to it; and history is not under your control." (Kate Ellis in Socialist Review). Three and a half hours of light and color splashing in the darkness, recorded on 700 kilometers of film, at a cost of 80 million dollars. It rode crests of global adulation upon waves of critical acclaim and swept the awards given by the motion picture establishment: the Academy Awards, the American Cinema Editors Awards, the Boston Society of Film Critics Awards, the British Film Academy Awards, the David Di Donatello Awards, the Directors Guild of America Awards, the Golden Globe Awards, the Los Angeles Film Critics Association Awards, the National Board of Review Awards, the National Society of Film Critics Awards, the New York Film Critics Circle Awards, the Writers Guild of America Awards, and the American Film

Institute's Top Ten Award. A record breaking epic and box office megahit, Reds strengthened and supercharged the eighty year old communist propaganda tower and sent its messages racing across the universe.

SWASTIKAS HAWKED IN DIVERSITY SHOPS

In Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, Juliet says to herself, while on her balcony, "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet". This phrase soon entered into popular discourse and was held to signify the truth that things are as they are, no matter what name they are given. Students of politics have this phrase and its fundamental truth ever on their minds when they examine the present day programs and policies of the reds. For they have observed the return of a national socialist, Hitlerite regime packaged and peddled as the pursuit of diversity, equity and inclusion. They have observed the ugly return of a monster which the uninformed and the naive among the general population believed, hoped, wished and prayed had been banished forever, and they have observed this monster stalk, harass and persecute free institutions and assume control over every home, school and office in the land. They have observed the recurrence of a malignant disease and have recoiled at what they have observed, but are determined to do their duty as scholars and scientists and tell the world about this latest offshoot of Marxism, this latest national socialist rendition of proletarian socialism, this latest justification of tribal politics in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. They understand, as people of common sense throughout the world understand, that racism and sexism called by any other names, such as diversity, equity and inclusion, do not change their character and remain racism and sexism, and that the latest incarnations of swastika politics must be exposed and combated as a matter of principle and for the sake of the survival and success of the liberal democratic order. They understand that there is never a justification in a nontribalist society for selecting people on the basis of race or gender, and that when several applicants for jobs, promotions or educational admissions possess the same talents and abilities, the only fair selection procedure is one which is completely random. They have issued their report on the program and manifesto of Marx's race and gender progeny and its reading is as revolting and disturbing as it is vital and necessary for a proper understanding of the origins and causes of the decline and fall of civilization. Every decent, law abiding citizen is duty bound to study this report, to learn its terrifying message, and to maintain eternal combat and vigilance against the communist, fascist and national socialist thunder which gave rise to it. This rumbling, crashing and expanding of blazing hot ideological air has proclaimed that white people are by nature murderers, pillagers, vandals and thieves and are the worst and most evil of these the world has ever seen. It has proclaimed that the West has colonized and destroyed superior indigenous savage populations throughout the world. It has proclaimed that nonwhite cultures are superior to white cultures and have a right to commit genocide against them. It has proclaimed that Christopher Columbus was the devil incarnate because he sought to bring law and order to vast swathes of subhumanity which had never known it. It has proclaimed that Africans and Native Americans constitute master races because they are primitive and nonwhite. It has proclaimed that Africans secretly built the pyramids of Egypt and the great stone heads of the Olmecs. It has proclaimed that imprinted in the genes of white people are the attributes of cruelty, injustice, avarice and the propensity for bloody violence, and the only way to advance the peace and enlightenment of mankind is to eradicate white people from the face of the earth. It has proclaimed that white people are devoid of humanity and are walking specimens of filth and disease. It has proclaimed that white people are guilty of stealing land from the indigenous, human appearing animals who ruled America for thousands of years. It has proclaimed that white people must be segregated from nonwhites, consigned to live in squalid ghettos, and reduced to subalterns of the black bloodsuckers of wealth and property. It has proclaimed that liberal government and constitutional rights are racist Western institutions. It has proclaimed that the white people who founded the West thousands of years ago, together with their present day descendants, must be hated with a passion which knows no bounds. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has established a power structure in which men have no rights and are regularly arrested and jailed on false, unproven and word of the accuser charges of sexual assault. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a matriarchal structure which promotes hatred of men, contempt for men, discrimination against men, denigration of men and violence against men. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has established the essential connection between and interchangeability of the statements: I am a feminist, I believe in justice, I believe in fairness, I believe in equity and I hate men and want to see them dead. Listen to the words of today's diversity activists and hear them proclaim that liberal universalism must be subjected to criticism based upon the primacy of race and blood. Hear them proclaim that liberal democracy must be smashed by the cudgels of critical race theory which teaches that whites are inherently racist and must be exterminated. Hear them proclaim that the classics of Western literature must be deconstructed and analyzed on the basis of critical race theory in order to reveal their inherent white racist assumptions. Hear them proclaim that workforces must be selected on the basis of race and that the mantra diversity, equity and inclusion has a glorious synonym which political progressives ever keep in mind and by which they are ever inspired: racism, sexism and discrimination against white males. Hear them proclaim that progressive corporations foster race and gender divisions among employees and train them in the importance of giving preferential treatment to women and nonwhites. Hear them proclaim that the Enlightenment values of reason, science, liberal governance and individual freedom are products of white culture. Hear them proclaim that white people must apologize for their whiteness and prostrate themselves before onrushing mobs who pummel them with hatred, bigotry and oppression. Hear them proclaim that a progressive corporation has rejected the white man's principle of meritocracy and granted maximum privileges to women and nonwhites. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society has rejected the notion of empirical truth, legitimized race based, hate based pseudoscientific inquiry, and justified the persecution and victimization of whites. Hear them proclaim that capitalism is systematically racist and inherently loathsome and must be incinerated along with the West in a people's progressive nuclear holocaust: "Biden nominee Jill Hruby at a Senate hearing Thursday did not deny she incorporated critical race theory training at Sandia National Laboratories, where she served as director from 2015 to 2017, and asserted it was not divisive. Sen. Tom Cotton (R-AR) asked National Nuclear Security Administration director nominee Jill Hruby, 'What was your involvement in the incorporation of critical race theory or diversity, equity, and inclusion training at the Sandia National Labs?' Hruby responded, 'I am a strong believer in diversity, equity, and inclusion training for our workforce, and in fact, study after study shows that the culture of institutions is why we lose top talent, and particularly women and people of color.' 'So my first statement is I'm a strong supporter and have benefited greatly personally and been part of an institution that's benefited greatly from diversity, equity, and inclusion training,' she said. 'The issues with the Sandia divisive training occurred after I left the laboratory, and I understand it has been reviewed and if confirmed I look forward to evaluating those reviews, and make sure we have high quality training programs that continue into the future,' she added. Cotton then said he has heard from concerned former lab employees who said there were 'controversial training regimens' conducted under her watch. 'Did you direct or participate in any of what you just called divisive training sessions?' Hruby admitted, 'I did participate in diversity, equity, and inclusion training at the laboratories. The training that I participated in I never considered divisive, nor did I hear that from any employee that participated in the training at the laboratory while I was there.' Cotton asked her if she had ever participated in any training that instructed white employees to 'deconstruct their white culture or apologize for any bigotries or prejudices that they did not commit.' Hruby responded, 'No senator. The classes did explore privilege but in my opinion, they never were divisive or asked inappropriate questions of, or apologies of the white workforce.' Cotton asked Hruby if she believed that any race is inherently prejudiced, bigoted, or oppressed, or if she believed that any race is inherently victimized or oppressed. She responded to both, 'No, sir.' Cotton asked her if she saw any danger in 'telling highly skilled technicians who control one of the largest stockpiles of nuclear weapons in the world that they are working for a country whose roots are founded on systemic racism.' 'No I don't', she responded." (Tom Cotton Grills Biden Nuclear Nominee Jill Hruby On Incorporating Critical Race Theory At Sandia Labs by Kristina Wong). Every autumn in Zernikow, a rural town one hundred kilometers from Berlin, a group of larch trees formed an eighteen square meter swastika for sixty years. The yellow trees stood out against the surrounding evergreens and formed the symbol of German national socialism until they were removed in 2000. Planted by the activists, zealots and social justice warriors who have assumed control over the cultural establishment, forests of swastikas blanket the West and have obscured the sunlight of civilization.

REDS TAKE AMERICA BEHIND THE IRON CURTAIN

In 2007, Yeonmi Park escaped from North Korea. She crossed the Yalu River, journeyed to Mongolia, trekked across the Gobi Desert and reached her destination: freedom in South Korea. Her life then took a terrifying turn for the worse. In 2014, she moved to New York City, enrolled in Columbia University, and plunged into a nightmare she had never imagined she would ever have to relive. When she entered the hallowed precincts of this Ivy League institution, she entered into a teleportation machine. No levers were pulled; no dials were turned; no buttons were pressed; she was involuntarily transported back to the totalitarian terror from which she had escaped and was forced to endure four years of red agitation and propaganda the likes of which she had not witnessed since she crossed the frozen Yalu River. She has issued her report to the world and to read it is to see a tragedy of epic proportions, to descend into a horror constructed by Satan himself, and to learn what happens to a free society, even the freest society the world has ever known, even a free society which for centuries had served as the preeminent beacon, arsenal and Good Samaritan of freedom throughout the world, when its supply of intelligence becomes depleted and it allows the mob to take over its political and cultural institutions. Yeonmi Park's report is the story of America which has ceased to be America in all but name and has become the type of society which for decades its people had dedicated themselves to combating and destroying without regard to the burden assumed or to the price paid. It is the story of the undermining of lawful authority and constitutional government by the citizens of a once free society, and with every page and paragraph finished, one sees one more turn of the knife in the back of a nation founded as the greatest political product of the Age of Enlightenment. Yeonmi Park's report on present day America is a report on the program and manifesto of the reds who have assumed control over the country, but it is more than this. It is a portrait of the West in its final stages of downfall and disintegration, a portrait which is as jarring, clashing and incongruous with the West which brought freedom into the world as sunlit mental health contrasts with dark, raging insanity. This program and manifesto, this derangement and disorder of a mind and a society, this savage red jungle masquerading as America, this vortex of cruelty and torture Yeonmi Park suddenly and uncontrollably went back to through a teleportation machine called Columbia University, consists of the following points, which must be constantly reread by civilized people to be believed. It proclaims that a progressive society forces publishers to deplatform the promoters of conservative and libertarian ideals. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished freedom of speech and freedom of the press. It proclaims that a progressive society is a cancel culture leviathan which has forbidden the speaking of truth to red power. It proclaims that those who promote capitalism are racists and bigots. It proclaims that white people are born oppressors and nonwhites are their eternal victims. It proclaims that liberal democracy is systemically and structurally racist. It proclaims that racism is embedded in the liberal legal system, liberal traditions and institutions, and the liberal free enterprise system. It proclaims that capitalism imposes white behavior and preserves white supremacy. It proclaims that a progressive school system is a political organization in which red aspirations and red beliefs drive the agenda. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches students to employ race and gender as primary identifiers by which to judge people. It proclaims that a progressive society is a neoMarxist society which views truth and reality through the lens of race. It proclaims that a progressive school system indoctrinates students in the tenets of critical race theory which seeks to dismantle liberal social and governmental norms and replace them with norms which promote black power and hatred of whites. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished liberal freedom and opportunity and promotes the subjugation of the white race. It proclaims that the values of the Enlightenment, essential to the founding of America, have no place in a progressive society which acknowledges the overriding truths of identity politics. It proclaims that a progressive society has imbued its civil service institutions, military forces, private corporations, national laboratories and human resources departments with the dogmas of race and gender tribalism. Look at the nation of red America and see a morally decayed and barren land exposed to the vultures of race and gender hatred. See its universities reduced to agitation and propaganda machines which teach students what to think, whom to hate, whom to harass, whom to persecute, and how to target liberal democracy, Western civilization and successful, white males for total destruction. See the totalitarian nightmares of Soviet Russia, North Korea, Maoist China, Pol Pot's Cambodia reenacted on every main street, public square and college campus in the nation. See people suffocated from lack of civilized air to breathe. See people strangled to death with the garotte of political correctness. See people deprived of the oxygen of reason and thrown into mental vacuums marked gender, race and class politics. See commissars of language enforce the dogma that gender is not genetically determined and see them protect the right of transgender psychotics to be addressed by the pronouns of their choice. See the classics of Western literature thrown into the bonfires of communist censorship. See a mass epidemic of communist bias and misinformation infect every stratum of the population. See the anticapitalist, antiliberal and antiAmerican discourse of the reds become the first, second and third language of the nation. See prestigious universities and Ivy League schools transformed into Marxist bible sessions and national socialist tent revival meetings. See the nation's professors and students renounce the pursuit of truth and knowledge and don the mantles of ideological enforcers and advocates of violence and intimidation. See the love of liberty condemned as white racism and bigotry. See the regression of civilization into a raging vortex of chaos and insanity in which individual freedom is condemned as slavery, liberal equality is condemned as a regime of racism and sexism, the suppression of dissent is exalted as an act of popular liberation, and a war to stamp out advanced human social development is exalted under the banners of popular enlightenment: "As American educational institutions continue to be called into question, a North Korean defector fears the United States' future 'is as bleak as North Korea' after she attended one of the country's most prestigious universities. Yeonmi Park has experienced plenty of struggle and hardship, but she does not call herself a victim. One of several hundred North Korean defectors settled in the United States, Park, 27, transferred to Columbia University from a South Korean university in 2016 and was deeply disturbed by what she found. 'I expected that I was paying this fortune, all this time and energy, to learn how to think. But they are forcing you to think the way they want you to think,' Park said in an interview with Fox News. 'I realized, wow, this is insane. I thought America was different but I saw so many similarities to what I saw in North Korea that I started worrying.' Those similarities include antiWestern sentiment, collective guilt and suffocating political correctness. Yeonmi saw red flags immediately upon arriving at the school. During orientation, she was scolded by a university staff member for admitting she enjoyed classic literature such as Jane Austen. 'I said 'I love those books.' I thought it was a good thing,' recalled Park. 'Then she said, 'Did you know those writers had a colonial mindset? They were racists and bigots and are subconsciously brainwashing you.' It only got worse from there as Yeonmi realized that every one of her classes at the Ivy League school was infected with what she saw as antiAmerican propaganda, reminiscent to the sort she had grown up with. American Bastard was one word Park was taught growing up. 'The math problems would say there are four American bastards, you kill two of them, how many American bastards are left to kill?' She was also shocked and confused by issues surrounding gender and language, with every class asking students to announce their preferred pronouns. 'English is my third language. I learned it as an adult. I sometimes still say he or she by mistake and now they are going to ask me to call them they? How the hell do I incorporate that into my sentences?' 'It was chaos,' said Yeonmi. 'It felt like the regression in civilization.'." (North Korean Defector Says 'Even North Korea Was Not This Nuts' After Attending Ivy League School by Teny Sahakian). "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty". Attributed to Thomas Jefferson, this statement has resounded through the centuries. Its truth has been acknowledged by civilized people for thousands of years. They have long known that liberty can only be preserved by active attention and by the will to combat. This attention and this will have been expunged from America by the juggernaut of the mob. The nation which Yeonmi Park entered to start a new life has surrendered to the forces of red totalitarian tyranny and filled her with despair, anxiety and profound sadness.

SUPREME COURT MAFIA SAVES OBAMACARE

In ancient Greece, a trilogy was a series of tragedies performed one after another. The only Greek trilogy which survives today is Orestia by Aeschylus, which is the tragic story of the House of Atreus after the triumphant return of King Agamemnon. Students of politics have observed the wheel of social collapse and human decline race forward two thousand years and bring forth a tragedy of epic proportions in the world's preeminent house of liberty. The United States of America, the arsenal of liberal Enlightenment and the blazing beacon of hope to the oppressed throughout the world, has been ransacked and razed to the ground by a tidal wave and earthquake called mob rule. The house of America has collapsed and caved in from ceiling to doorjamb and left the rubble of constitutional government behind. Students of politics have picked through this rubble and discovered the final chapter of this story of national self destruction and have been saddened and dismayed at what they have discovered. They have discovered the black machinery of treason operating at the highest levels of government. They have discovered, and they can scarcely believe what they have discovered, that the highest federal court in America, consisting of nine judges whose rulings take precedence over all other judicial rulings in the nation, has been taken over and commandeered by the red mobs who had first taken control of the neighborhoods, the towns, the city halls, the state governments, Congress and the presidency. They have discovered that the mob's seizure of power over America culminated in the kidnapping of nine judges who had sworn an oath of office to uphold the greatest statement of individual rights set down in modern times, the United States Constitution. They have discovered the crime of the century: the reduction of a world renowned judicial body to a lineup of red hoodlums who have taken the mafia's oath to uphold, not the rule of law, but the violent dictates of their masters, the mobs on main street. They have discovered in this rubble the final, defining, encapsulating, dispositive statement of the one hundred year long hoodlum takeover of the Supreme Court, America and the West. In a series of three Supreme Court decisions, they have discovered the destruction and distress of constitutional freedom in America composed in a tragedy which has rivaled and surpassed the terrifying fall of the House of Atreus. Students of politics have issued their report on the Supreme Court's final killing of American jurisprudence and final overthrow of American government and to read it is to peer through a dark, stained glass window into a church chamber whose pipe organs play one tune and one tune only, play it over and over again, play it in endless loops circling in infinite space: the tune of red totalitarian tyranny. The report describes the efforts of the court to confer its imprimatur upon the mob's most cherished social program in the present day, a program which over thirty million Americans feed off of: the Affordable Care Act. The report begins with the case National Federation of Independent Business versus Sebellius, 2012. In this case, the court saved the individual mandate set forth in the Affordable Care Act. This mandate imposed a penalty on Americans who did not obtain health insurance. The court saved the mandate by seeking to square a circle and call A non A. It renamed the penalty a tax which it then justified as an exercise of Congress's taxing power. The second part of this tragedy appeared in the case King versus Burwell, 2015. In this case, the court ruled that one of the Affordable Care Act's key provisions, which provides subsidies to individuals who purchase health insurance through exchanges established "by a state", found that the federal government is a state, and as such could offer subsidies to individuals. The court again sought to square a circle and call A non A by renaming the federal government an individual state. The third and final part of this tragedy appeared in the ruling California versus Texas, 2021. In this case, the court ruled that the plaintiff's who challenged the constitutionality of the individual mandate, which had become a standalone command after the repeal of the penalty, lacked standing to challenge because they suffered no injury or harm from a zero dollar amount penalty. In an attempt to save this popular mob program, the court unconstitutionally ruled that a law has to be shown to inflict actual physical harm or injury in order to be reviewed on its constitutionality. A law is a command issued by the state to do something or to refrain from doing something. The penalties which are attached to the law are extraneous to its definition. A law is a law and is not its penalty. A law would not cease to be a law in the absence of penalties. A law is an inherently standalone command and can exist without or without a penalty attached to it. The Constitution mandates that the Supreme Court review laws passed by Congress or the states to determine their constitutionality. If the laws, the commands, the orders to do something or to refrain from doing something, violate the Constitution, the Court is duty bound to strike them down. If the laws are struck down, then any penalties attached to them are struck down as well, and if no penalties are attached, then the commands themselves are struck down. Article Three of the Constitution states: "The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more states; between a state and citizens of another state; between citizens of different states between citizens of the same state claiming lands under grants of different states; and between a state, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens or subjects." Article Three mandates that the Supreme Court review "laws", "cases" and "controversies" and says nothing about confining review to laws which cause actual physical or economic harm or injury. A law, a command, an order which violates the Constitution, by its very existence, by its very unconstitutionality, inflicts injury upon the people of the nation who are committed to obeying and upholding the rule of law. It inflicts injury upon the Constitution and those who defend it, regardless of whether it inflicts, in addition, any actual physical or monetary damage. It inflicts moral, political and legal injury, which are independent of and possess a worse character than physical or monetary injury. Look at the world of today's Supreme Court and see spurious grounds given to uphold a social program sacred to the mob. See the phrase lack of standing to sue paraded where there is absolutely no lack of standing to sue. See the Constitution rewritten to mean that only laws which inflict physical or economic harm can be reviewed by the Court. See the Constitution reinterpreted to exclude the notion of moral, political and legal harm. See unabashed deception and denial of the meaning of words employed to deny Article Three, rescue one of the largest and most popular government programs in the history of the nation, and lower the curtain on judicial review: "The Supreme Court kept the Affordable Care Act alive Thursday, ruling in a 7-2 decision that Texas and 17 other states—plus two individuals—lacked standing to challenge its constitutionality. The states had argued that the law's individual mandate was unconstitutional once it no longer carried a penalty because it had been justified as falling under the congressional power of taxation. They also claimed that the rest of the law could not survive without the mandate. The court ruled that because the plaintiffs had not demonstrated any past or future harm, they were not in a position to bring the claim. 'We do not reach these questions of the Act's validity, however, for Texas and the other plaintiffs in this suit lack the standing necessary to raise them,' Justice Stephen Breyer wrote in the court's opinion. Regarding the individual plaintiffs, Breyer noted that the lack of penalty makes the individual mandate provision of the law unenforceable, thus removing any damage. 'To find standing here to attack an unenforceable statutory provision would allow a federal court to issue what would amount to 'an advisory opinion without the possibility of any judicial relief,' he wrote. Justice Samuel Alito, in a dissent joined by Justice Neil Gorsuch, railed against the majority's decision in what he called 'the third installment in our epic Affordable Care Act trilogy.' Alito asserted that, like in previous ObamaCare cases, the court stretched to find a way to keep the law in place." (Supreme Court Upholds ObamaCare Law, Dismissing Challenge From Red States by Ronn Blitzer). A penalty is not a penalty but is a tax. The United States is not a federal entity but is an individual state. Moral, political and legal injuries do not count as injuries but only physical or economic injuries count as injuries in order for laws to be reviewed by the Supreme Court, in violation of Article Three of the Constitution. Three judicial crimes, crashes and catastrophes forming a chain of tragic events with an unhappy ending: the downfall and disintegration of American constitutional government.

GREEK AND GERMAN MYTHS: A STUDY IN CONTRASTS

Contradictions abound in the history of human civilizations. Students of civilization have been confronted with an endless succession of persons, ideas, things and situations which clash with each other to such an extent that they collectively paint a canvas marked by total chaos, and make the march of world history impossible to examine with the aim of discerning progress and order. Underlying all these myriad contrasts has been a single, fundamental contrast which has given rise to and explained them all. This is the contrast between reason and unreason, rationality and irrationality, intellect and the will, and reaching back into the distant recesses of ancient history, students of civilization have discovered a simple, early paradigm of cultural contrasts, a model, example and pattern which expresses, in the form of myth and religion, the contrasting world views of the cultures involved, and tells the story of a clash like no other clash in the history of mankind. Students of civilization have observed the opposition between ancient Greek and German myths, and have seen this as expressing the opposition between two civilizations which could not stand in greater opposition to each other, whose opposition has virtually defined the meaning of the word: the opposition between Western, Germanic, Faustian civilization and Classical, Greco-Roman, Apollonian civilization. Students of civilization have issued their report and to read it is to observe the seeds of two flowering plants which would develop, in the case of Classical civilization, into something magnificent in its total commitment to reason, and in the case of the West, into something magnificent insofar as it promoted reason and championed physics, technology and its Age of Enlightenment, and into something fearsome and terrifying, insofar as it exalted its own native Faustian will. The story of Greek mythology is the story of Apollo, the national god of the Greeks, the preeminent god of the Greeks, the most Greek of all the Greek gods, the symbol of all that the Greeks exalted and held dear as they exalted and held dear nothing else: truth, knowledge, wisdom, science and sunlight. It is the story Apollo's temples spread throughout Greece. These temples, in true Apollonian fashion, exemplified rightness of form, mathematical relations, esthetic perfection, and the paradigmatic Greek Doric order of fluted columns supporting capitals, in a world of mass, weight, solidity and stability. When Apollo was born on the floating land of Delos, everything turned to gold and the air was filled with ambrosial fragrance. The island became fixed to the earth. Swans circled the island and nymphs sang out in joy and delight. The newly born god was washed immaculately by goddesses, covered in white garments, and fastened with golden bands. Themis, goddess of divine law, fed the young god nectar and ambrosia. Zeus adorned his young son Apollo with a golden headband. Everywhere there was light, sun, fixity and firmness. Hyperborea, the land of eternal spring, worshiped Apollo above all other gods. The Hyperboreans sang, danced and hosted the panHellenic Pythian games in Apollo's honor at his sanctuary at Delphi. In this sanctuary, they planted a forest of beautiful trees and called it the Garden of Apollo. The god spent the winter months among the Hyperboreans and whenever he departed, the land would descend into cold, and his departure marked his annual death. At the commencement of spring, he returned to the land and the Hyperboreans held the Theophania festival at Delphi to celebrate his return. Apollo symbolized scientific medicine and healing and delivered people from epidemics. He carried a golden bow and a quiver full of silver arrows. He protected the health of children, educated them in virtuous ways of living, and presided over their passage into adulthood. Long hair, the prerogative of Greek boys, was cut when the boys became men, and was dedicated to Apollo. The god protected herds, flocks and crops from diseases, pests and predators. He encouraged the foundation of towns, cities and constitutions. He was the giver of laws which protected ordered freedom and the liberty which excluded license. He presided over the forms of music, song, dance and poetry which celebrated rational, orderly living. He was the inventor of Euclidean string music, was a friend of the Muses, and served as their chorus leader in celebrations. His chief epithet was phoebus, which means "bright", and this god of the human mind, this god of everything which was lawful, civilized, good, decent, virtuous, disciplined, controlled, comprehensible and rationally flourishing in the world, was worshiped by Greeks and Romans as the god of light, as Helios, as Sol and as Apollo. The story of German mythology is the story of a pathological will, unbounded and unrestrained, expanding into infinite space. Faust's first creation in the barbaric evening lands and the gloomy, lightless, airless, twilight forests of Northern Europe, it is the story of a world tossed by raging storms of insanity and incomprehensibility. It is the story of existence without identity, consciousness without objects, space without mass, and drives and decisions, wild and turbulent, without rational direction or determination of any kind. An ancient expanse covered by the woodlands and undergrowth of the romanticist imagination, extraordinary in human history and opposed to the Classical world as formless midnight is opposed to light defined noonday, the world of the Germans was the first manifestation, prefiguring and signpost of the culture of the West. This was a culture which would be by turns rational and irrational, rational in its technical and observational sciences and irrational in its philosophies and ideologies, and would be by turns impressive, imposing, frightening and evil. Informed by the spirit of a German doctor and necromancer in the sixteenth century who sold his soul to the Devil and received infinite power, feeling and experience in return, the story of German mythology is the story of Ginnungagap, a void and nothingness from which existence was held to emerge. It is the story of the formless giant Ymir. It is the story of the world tree Yggdrasil reaching into infinity. It is the story of Odin, god of war, battle, death, sorcery, frenzy, the gallows, and the mystical runic alphabet. It is the story of Asgard, the infinite enclosure of the gods, located in the vastness of the sky. It is the story of Valhalla, the infinite hall of the dead, inhabited by those who died in combat. It is the story of hammer wielding Thor, god of lightning, thunder, storms, force and strength. It is the story of Frigg, goddess of mystical prophecy and clairvoyance, who inhabited the infinite wetland halls of Fensalir. It is the story of the infinite world serpent Jormungandr who surrounded the earth and universe. It is the story of Baldr, who sailed in an infinite ship called Hringhorni, and inhabited an infinite hall called Breidablik. It is the story of the god Loki, a shape shifter and form shifter, who was able to transform himself and others through sorcery, spells, supernatural ability, divine intervention and demonic manipulation, and appeared as a

salmon, a mare, a fly and an elderly woman. It is the story of Ragnorak, the age of world destruction, world catastrophe, the descent into doom, and Gotterdammerung, the Twilight of the Gods. Look at the worlds of Greeks and the Germans and see exhibited a diametrical opposition whose clarity and starkness is without parallel in the history of mankind. See a common sense ontology of individual things stand in opposition to a psychotic ontology of pure, entityless, boundless space. See an empirical ontology of physical places and determinate locations stand in opposition to a set of arbitrary concepts and categories signifying a universe of antimatter, reaching from dwarfs to elves to goblins to Valhalla to Niflheim, whose antilocation is an antiregion called human insanity: "The bases of the Apollonian and the Faustian nature images respectively are in all contexts the two opposite symbols of individual thing and unitary space. Olympus and Hades are perfectly sense definite places, while the kingdom of the dwarfs, elves and goblins, and Valhalla and Niflheim are all somewhere or other in the universe of space." (Decline Of The West by Oswald Spengler, Chapter XI). A one thousand year unwinding of a Faustian will to subjectivity and infinity has brought the world to its present state of downfall and disintegration. A culture founded upon the primacy of the will, upon the indefinite and the identityless, spread out in Faustian fashion throughout the world, has blasted and pulverized the fortresses of civilization with the death rays of an endlessly multiplying will to power. A Faustian monster marked identity politics has terrorized free institutions with bombs and bayonets firing out the tribal demands of gender, race and class. Vandals and assassins have murdered millions in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion and lowered the curtain on human progress in the name of women, nonwhites and the poor. Commenced in 1000 AD, an evolutionary development has brought civilization to this state of total collapse. Without repeal and without reprieve, this is the decree of destiny. This is the culture of the West.

REDS GRADUATE HITLER'S CHILDREN

During the Third Reich, the National Socialist Party directed propaganda at children. Seeking to shape the values and beliefs of future generations, the party targeted children with books and courses promoting racial purity and Jew hatred. Students of politics have seen something which they never imagined in their worst nightmares they would ever have to see. What they have seen has assaulted their conscience as nothing else has and convinced them that they inhabit a world which has plumbed the depths of total evil and is incorrigibly committed to the ways of cruelty. They have seen the past reappear in the present and the Third Reich return in spirit and soul to today's school classrooms and organize the greatest act of child abuse ever organized in the history of mankind. They have seen primary school teachers across the world assign books which promote every value and ideal opposed to the liberal democratic order and to the Age of Enlightenment, books which seek to transform innocent children into totalitarian delinquents, crusading miniführers and rabid Red Guards dedicated to the destruction of civilization. They have seen the state of normal childhood abolished and replaced by screams, threats and protests issued by psychologically disturbed youth who have raised their fists and declared war against everything good, decent, noble, benevolent and law abiding in the world. Students of politics have issued their report on the mental violence against children committed by the reds and to read it is to descend into a raging sewer in which political pornography is splashed across young minds and the victims emerge blackened, sullied and reeking forever. Their report on the subversion of today's primary schools has to be read to be believed and describes a program and manifesto circulating and gaining traction by the minute for the propagation of Hitler's worldview repackaged in the ribbons of race and gender. This neoMarxist, neoHitlerian manifesto of war against the West has proclaimed that a progressive school system has prohibited books by world renowned children's author Dr Seuss on the grounds that the books are antiwoman, antiblack, denigrate superior indigenous savage cultures, and exalt Western, capitalist white supremacy. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has prohibited the novel To Kill A Mockingbird by Harper Lee on the grounds that the book peddles the heresy that there exist such things as false rape accusations against men. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of All Are Welcome by Alexandra Penfold, which celebrates hatred of whites, hatred of liberal values and support for Islam in the name of diversity: "We're part of a community./Our strength is our diversity./A shelter from adversity./All are welcome here." It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Julian Is A Mermaid by Jessica Love, which celebrates transsexuals, transgenders, cross dressers, drag queens, gender nonconformity, gender psychosis, and street processions parading vice and degeneracy. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of The Prince And The Dressmaker by Jen Wang, which celebrates men who enjoy wearing women's clothes, men who perform on stage as women, fathers who imitate their tranvestite sons and dress up as women, and people who are gender queer and gender disturbed. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Hoonani: Hula Warrior by Heather Gale, which celebrates people who proclaim themselves to be neither men nor women, neither boys nor girls, and proudly lead lives of gender indeterminacy and gender derangement. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Americanized: Rebel Without A Green Card by Sara Saedi, which celebrates illegal aliens, hatred of America and Israel, world Islamic revolution and the sharia axis of tyranny and oppression, and condemns people who support the capitalism as racist, misogynist, Islamophobic and xenophobic. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Front Desk by Kelly Yang, which condemns capitalism as a system of white supremacy, the exploitation of the working class, and the gunning down of blacks by the police, and extols communist societies as paragons of peace, justice and benevolence. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of They Called Us The Enemy by George Takei, Justin Eisinger and Steven Scott, which proclaims that capitalism is a system which places nonwhites in internment camps and cages children at the borders. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of An Indigenous People's History of the United States for Young People by Roxane Dunbar-Ortiz, which proclaims that Christopher Columbus and the British settlers who civilized the New World conquered a noble paradise of primitivism and savagery. It proclaims that America was founded upon white supremacy, the enslavement of blacks, and genocide against the superior Native Americans tribes. It proclaims that these tribes were superior to the West because they affirmed the illusory nature of human freedom and affirmed primacy of the community over the individual. The reds' manifesto has proclaimed that songs such as America The Beautiful and God Bless America should be banned because they promote the myth that liberal democracy is the most moral political system in the world and is superior to all systems of collectivism. It has proclaimed that the Founding Fathers of America, such as George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, were the essence of evil because they spread alien liberal values into the New World and stopped the native tribes from doing that which they were entitled to do, from fighting, killing and enslaving each other. The reds' manifesto has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of We Are Water Protectors by Carole Lindstrom, which proclaims that savagery is superior to civilization because savages are passive and do nothing and, like plants and animals, live in harmony with forces of nature. It proclaims that civilization is an evil black snake which consumes earth, sky, land and water and must be wiped out. The reds' manifesto has proclaimed that a progressive society has mandated the reading of One Person, One Vote by Carole Anderson, which proclaims that all requirements of voter identification are racist and that radical left political parties, in pursuit of social justice, have a right to commit election fraud, tampering and manipulation. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Brazen: Rebel Ladies Who Rocked the World by Delia Ackley, which proclaims that capitalism is a system of military dictatorship and racial segregation. It proclaims that a liberated society is a communist society which has eliminated the exploitation of women and nonwhites. It proclaims that a good person is gender fluid and gender disordered. It proclaims that a good person is a supporter of Islam because its campaigns of war are the highest campaigns of peace. It proclaims that a good person is an anticapitalist radical and a supporter of totalitarian tyranny in the name of Jesus, Marx, the Koran and utopia. The reds' manifesto has proclaimed that a progressive school system has mandated the reading of Woke: A Young Poet's Call to Justice by Jason Reynolds, which proclaims that young people should talk back, speak up, smash windows and throw bombs at the capitalist system. It proclaims that liberal democracy must be replaced by socialist dictatorship and tribal collectivism in the name of friendship, inclusion, intersectionality, self acceptance, popular resistance, and fighting prejudice. It proclaims that capitalism is a system which denies blacks access to homes and jobs and subjects them to daily rounds of police brutality. It proclaims that physical, flesh and blood individuals do not exist and what is called an individual is in reality nothing more than an intersection of group identities centered on gender, race and class. It proclaims that a progressive society is a black supremacist society and a black Aryan society in which only black rights, black privileges, black prerogatives and black lives matter. Communist hands clenched. National socialist salutes. Pledges of allegiance to a global crusade launched by the reds to smash the traditions and institutions of free nations. Supercharged currents of mysticism, irrationalism, tribalism, collectivism, the advocacy of violence in the name of gender, race and class, and a holocaust against civilization planned and promoted in the name of women, nonwhites, transgenders, indigenous peoples, and Islamist terror. These gestures, these hails, these waves, these pledges and these electrical flows have filled today's primary school classrooms to overflowing. They have recruited children to a cause of evil and incinerated their souls. They have unleashed the floodwaters of cultural decline and opened the gates to doomsday.

RED ENVIRONMENTALISTS TURN BACK THE CLOCK

The Dark Ages is a term for the period of Western civilization ruled by Christianity. Invented by the early humanist scholar Petrarch, the term contrasts the unmitigated darkness of the centuries marked by faith and superstition with the blazing light of Classical civilization which exalted the powers of reason and science. Students of history have observed in the present day the movement of a fearsome and terrifying wheel. This is the wheel of time, and in the twilight stages of the West, when human intelligence has descended into the mist and fog of total senescence, this wheel has appeared on the stage of history. Sweeping away the glorious train of linear progress and the forward march of human enlightenment, this wheel has commenced a race back to the Dark Ages and cast a shadow of catastrophe across the world. Students of history have observed that the specific characters and religion alone have changed since the time of the original Dark Ages, while the plot and theme have remained the same: an attack and destruction launched against the human mind and against the material, economic and technical advancement associated with it. They have issued their report on this state of a civilization accelerating in reverse gear and to read it is to transport oneself into a fever swamp of cultural backwardness in which the forces of psychosis have replaced the Catholic Church with the radical reds as the actors, replaced the church's religion of God in heaven with the reds' religion of calamitous global warming due to human carbon emissions, and unleashed a new army of rampaging monsters promoting hatred of man and his achievement in a latter day Age of Faith. This is a report on a new temple, a new worship, a new poison, and a new set of daggers and assassins arrayed against the sunlit world of human flourishing, and its Exhibit A is the reds' own words, the reds' own program and manifesto, and the reds' own declarations of ill will toward all things human. This satanic, neoChristian, new Dark Ages document has proclaimed that the fact that natural disasters such as hurricanes and heatwaves are just as common today as they were at the turn of the twentieth century, when carbon emissions were much lower, should not be allowed to halt the people's march to achieve environmental justice by the banning of technology. It has proclaimed that the fact that the warmest temperatures have not increased in the last sixty years, while carbon emissions have increased dramatically, should not be allowed to impede the people's crusade to dismantle civilization. It has proclaimed that the fact that in the period from 1851 to 2020 there are no trends in droughts across Western Europe, while carbon emissions increased exponentially, should not be allowed to refute the people's religion of catastrophic anthropogenic global warming. It has proclaimed that human induced carbon emissions are incinerating the planet and are caused by the capitalist system of white racism, and the planet can only be saved by the establishment of a primitive black socialist state. It has proclaimed that the fact that human greenhouse gas emissions have not been demonstrated to be a threat to the environment or to human welfare should not be allowed to challenge the barrage of people's red propaganda which asserts otherwise. It has proclaimed that the fact that there is no evidence of a climate emergency existing on the planet, that climate change is producing small, harmless effects, and that the frequency of extreme weather events, such as hurricanes, floods, tornadoes and droughts, has remained the same or is in decline as carbon emissions have sharply increased, should not be allowed to undermine the red narrative that modern industry and technology have caused ruinous climate change and must be abolished. It has proclaimed that before the advent of human civilization, the earth was unspoiled and unsullied, being dominated by mystical Gaia, the peaceful flora, and the wild animal kingdom. It has proclaimed that the world of petroleum, the world of mass global transportation, the medical industry, and electronics and communications systems, must be abolished. It has proclaimed that the world before petroleum, the world in which millions of children died every year from malaria, neonatal infections, pneumonia, preterm delivery and lack of oxygen, all caused by the absence of medical products made from petroleum, is a world to which mankind must return in order to save the planet. Listen to the words of today's red environmentalists and hear them promote the false claim that human induced carbon emissions pose an existential threat to the planet. Hear them promote the false claim that industrial civilization has inflicted scorching droughts upon the world. Hear them promote the false claim that human greenhouse gas emissions are pumping calamity into the atmosphere and must be scrubbed along with human progress. Hear them promote the false claim that planes, trains rockets and automobiles have caused abnormally low rainfall across the world and have transformed the planet into a desert. Hear them promote the false equation that modern technology equals endless dry years equals shortages of water equals the extinction of life on earth. Hear them promote the false claims that human activity has eliminated wet conditions and precipitation across the globe. Hear them employ unjustified climate scare tactics and paint pictures of imminent global doomsday in a campaign to return mankind to the distant past when there was no forward march of civilization but only nameless eons of animal, vegetable and mineral stasis: "This year's drought scare climate hype has already started. Yahoo! News opened the season with an article promoting the false claim human caused climate change is responsible for a 'historic' drought in California and the western United States. Although drought conditions have persisted for a couple of years across portions of the western United States, droughts in the arid West are common and research shows much larger, longer term droughts have occurred there historically. There is no evidence human greenhouse gas emissions are contributing to the current drought. In a story titled California And Much Of The American West Face Mega Drought Brought On By Climate Change, Yahoo! News claims, 'Thanks in part to rising temperatures due to climate change, extreme or exceptional drought conditions are now occurring in 74 percent of the state of California, while 72 percent of the Western US is classified as experiencing severe drought, according to data from the US Drought Monitor. 'Back to back dry years in conjunction with above average temperatures have exacerbated drought conditions across the American West, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said on its website,' Yahoo! News states. 'The extent of the drought is unprecedented in recorded history, with on hundred percent of both California and Nevada now classified as experiencing 'moderate to exceptional drought.' Data shows 'back to back' dry years are not unusual in California or the Western United States. Neither California nor the western United States is experiencing a megadrought. Completely undermining Yahoo! News' alarmist story is the fact that data presented by the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in its post titled Climate Change Indicators: Drought in mid May demonstrates no trend toward greater numbers or severity of droughts 'Average drought conditions across the nation have varied over time,' the EPA post states. 'The 1930s and 1950s saw the most widespread droughts, while the last 50 years have generally been wetter than average. Over the entire period the overall trend has been toward wetter conditions.' EPA's drought and climate change indicator confirms what other sources of data have shown. As reported in Climate at a Glance: Drought, the United Nations' Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) reports with 'high confidence' precipitation has increased over mid latitude land areas of the Northern Hemisphere (including the United States) during the past seventy years. IPCC also reports 'low confidence' about any negative precipitation trends occurring globally." (It's Drought Hype Season Again by Sterling Burnett). A half a century of false predictions of global apocalypse has failed to discredit the reds' campaign to smash civilization. Fifty years of screaming headlines have fallen upon the deaf ears of the mob. Five decades of fabricated news items have failed to discredit the cause of the environmentalist fear mongers: More Droughts Likely, Expert Tell Senators, Prepare For Long, Hot Summers, Rising Seas Could Obliterate Nations: UN Officials, NASA Scientist: We're Toast, Snowfalls Are Now Just A Thing Of The Past, Now The Pentagon Tells Bush: Climate Change Will Destroy Us, Just 96 Months To Save The World, Says Prince Charles. Nothing by way of facts, logic, common sense or ordinary experience can penetrate the mindset of the people during the closing hours of Western civilization and refute the claims of the radical environmentalists. The people have grown weary of science, technology, industry and human development and seek a return to the subhuman stagnation of primitive existence. Under the aegis and sponsorship of reds in high positions, this death has arrived.

WHY THE REDS HATE COLUMBUS

Hatred is defined as an angry, resentful emotional response to people or ideas. The neurological manifestations of hatred have been investigated in brain scans. In these experiments, subjects who viewed pictures of people they hated showed increased electrical activity and blood flow in key centers of their brain. Studies of the anatomy, functions and disorders of the nervous system of the reds have revealed an off the charts neurological response to a certain figure in history. When presented with images of this figure or a catalog of his achievements, the reds explode into fits and convulsions of loathing and detestation which have flooded the poles, cortexes and lobes of their brains with charged particles of feverish electricity colliding at lightning speed. This figure is Christopher Columbus and the reds' hate him because of what he did for cause which they hate more than anything else in the world: the cause of human advancement and civilization. The reds' perfervid hatred of Columbus is an exhibition of psychopathology which has terrified and frightened the scientists whose field is mental disorder to such an extent that they want to shirk their professional responsibility and turn away from their examination of the ills which afflict the heirs and descendants of Marx. The reds hate Columbus because he cast the first truly human eye upon the New World and was the first to bring it to the attention of civilized society. The reds hate Columbus because his exploration of America led to an influx of liberal ideas which would form the basis of the United States. The reds hate Columbus because he opened the frontiers of America to the Galileos, Newtons, Lockes, Smiths and Jeffersons of the West. The reds hate Columbus because he entered an unused, undeveloped, sparsely populated land and brought the light of flourishing humanity into it. The reds hate Columbus because he confronted subhuman hunter-gatherers who wandered across the land, lived from hand to mouth, and lived from moment to moment, and cleansed America of them. The reds hate Columbus because he settled a land in which there had been no change, no growth and no improvement for thousands of years and transformed it. The reds hate Columbus because he colonized a land in which there was no wheel, no written language, no agriculture, no division of labor, no permanent settlements and only endless animal feasting and animal war, and filled it with Western life, values, attitudes and aspirations. The reds hate Columbus because he smashed the culture of primitivism, mysticism and collectivism established by the American Indians. The reds hate Columbus because he vanquished the indigenous society marked by slavery, stagnation, nonproductivity and brute force. The reds hate Columbus because he championed, in the face of savagery, the Western values of reason, science, individualism, self reliance and purposeful ambition. The reds hate Columbus because he instilled the principle, in lands which never knew it, that individuals are sovereign entities with the power of choice and judgment who must be judged on their own merits and not as members of races, ethnicities or tribes. The reds hate Columbus because he opened a sea route to uncharted territories which allowed the spread of Western civilization. The reds hate Columbus because he was driven by justice and enslaved human appearing animals who encamped and pitched tents across the land. The reds hate Columbus because he made history by discovering new territory for a social organization created in Europe which allowed human beings to work and flourish in the manner of human beings. The reds hate Columbus because he brought an end to the American Indian scourge of tribal slavery, tribal war and tribal religious violence. The reds hate Columbus because he gave primitive people a chance to exhibit human greatness when liberated from the yoke of tribal servitude. The reds hate Columbus because he sought to transplant the rational essence of civilization onto the plains and fields of America, nourish the plants of logic, mathematics and physics, and encourage the belief that the universe is knowable and predictable. The reds hate Columbus because he swept away the pall of primitive superstition which hung over the New World and championed the Western world of natural laws and the scientific method. The reds hate Columbus because he defeated the the Indian creatures of horror, the monsters of tribal warfare and religious strife, with the gleaming swords of constitutional government, the pursuit of rational happiness, and the protection of life, liberty and property. The reds hate Columbus because he transformed a harsh wilderness inhabited by savages into a nation of laws, freedom and production which, centuries later, would be burnished to a gleam by highways, computers, power plants and entrepreneurial zeal. The reds hate Columbus because he expunged from the New World the tribal moral codes which sanctioned the exploitation of the individual by the tribe and established in their place the institutions of limited government and constitutional rights. The reds hate Columbus because he championed the morality of reason, self interest and human flourishing and banished the indigenous reign of fear, obedience and social responsibility. Listen to the words of the red haters of Columbus and hear them condemn progress and civilization as rapacious and avaricious. Hear them condemn civilization as a horror and a nightmare. Hear them exalt as a paradise a continent inhabited by bestial tribes and unused and untouched by human hands. Hear them condemn modern capitalism as a system of slavery, racism, war, poverty, disease, mass epidemics and oppression of superior native savages. Hear them condemn reason and individualism as liberal poisons the only antidotes to which are primitive tribalism and collectivist organization. Hear them condemn human understanding and exalt a world of animism, spiritualism, occultism and magic. Hear them condemn human enlightenment and exalt a world of arbitrary deities and supernatural powers. Hear them condemn human endeavor, energy and effort and exalt a world in which every detail of life is managed and taken care of by the actions of incomprehensible spirits. Hear them condemn the world of science, experiment, observation and the systematic study and exalt a world of mystics, shamans, priests, prayers, rituals and sacraments. Hear them condemn moral order and respect for the rights of others and exalt a world of aggression, attack, assault, barbarian chaos, human sacrifice and the predatory incursions of animal packs and blood stained arrows masquerading as human beings. Hear them condemn the ships which brought civilization and enlightenment to the New World and launch torpedoes against the hopes and dreams of mankind. Hear them condemn settlers and explorers from the shining lands of Europe and circulate statues, stamps, coins and special days in honor of the Devil, recite a pledge of allegiance to the Native American Indian forces of darkness and retrogression, and close the books and chapters of human history: "More than a century ago, America celebrated the 400th anniversary of Christopher Columbus's voyage of discovery by hosting an enormous world's fair on the shores of Lake Michigan. This World's Columbian Exposition featured statues of the great explorer, replicas of his three ships, and commemorative stamps and coins. Because Columbus Day was a patriotic holiday—it marked the opening chapter in American history—the newly written Pledge of Allegiance was first recited in schools on October 12, 1892. Nowadays, however, an embarrassed, guilty silence descends on the nation each Columbus Day. We've been taught that Columbus opened the way for rapacious European settlers to unleash a stream of horrors on a virgin continent: slavery, racism, warfare, epidemic, and the cruel oppression of savage Indians. This modern view of Columbus represents an unjust attack upon both our country and the civilization that made it possible. Western civilization did not originate slavery, racism, warfare, or disease—but with America as its exemplar, that civilization created the antidotes. How? By means of a set of core ideas that set Western civilization apart from all others: reason and individualism. Throughout history, prior to the birth of Western civilization in ancient Greece, the world seemed impervious to human understanding. People believed that animistic spirits or capricious deities had supernatural powers to cure diseases, grow crops, and guide the hunter's arrow toward his prey. To get the attention of these inscrutable spirits, people resorted to prayer, ritual, taboo, and human sacrifice, relying always on the mystic insights of shamans and priests. This pervasive mysticism had practical consequences: festering disease, perpetual poverty, and a desperate quest for survival that made offensive warfare against human beings seem as natural as hunting animals." (Let's Take Back Columbus Day by Tom Bowden). The reds condemn Columbus because of the values he stood for and sought to implant in America. Condemning Columbus's sunlit universe of reason, science and the rights of the individual without respect to race, ethnicity, nation or tribe, the reds have cast charged particles of total evil across the face of the earth and electrocuted the soul of civilization.

One thousand years ago, in the icy regions and twilight forests of Northern Europe, the seeds of a new civilization began to germinate. This was a civilization the likes of which the world had never witnessed before and never imagined could ever exist. It was a civilization which originated in a frightening disorder of the soul which made the earth stand still and split apart when it saw the light of day. This disorder is called will worship and it made its first appearance on the stage of history when Germanic folk came together on the barbarian plains and fields. The forces of hell exploded from the depths of antimatter beneath the planet and composed a philosophy of romanticism across the sky which would darken the world forever. A landscape of snow mists and soaring forests made an infantile people react and create a mental pathology. This pathology gave rise to errors in thinking which have ramified and unwound over the past one thousand years and brought civilization to its present state of total subjectivism and the denial of physical reality. The story of philosophy in this new culture of the West is the story of Descartes' dictum, "I think, therefore, I am". This dictum encapsulates Descartes' belief that nothing can be known with certainty except the existence of one's own consciousness. It asserts that the reality of physical objects is not something which is self evident. It asserts that we perceive only a world of our own ideas and nothing material outside of our own ideas. It asserts that knowledge of the world is derived by a process of pure deduction from our concepts and is derived independently of sense experience. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Spinoza, who proclaimed that reality is a mystical oneness called Nature or God and includes an infinite mental substance which thinks and perceives only itself. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Leibniz, who proclaimed that reality is composed of an infinite number of mental substances called monads and that what are called physical objects are nothing more than products of these spiritual forces. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Locke, who proclaimed that we perceive only our own sensations and ideas, physical objects do not exist, and what lies outside the mind is a "something I know not what". The story of Western philosophy is the story of David Hume, who proclaimed that all we perceive are our own impressions and ideas, what are called physical objects are the vulgar fabrications of common sense, and what exists outside the mind is a mystical, unknowable substance. The story of Western philosophy is the story of George Berkeley, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are only ideas perceived by minds and cannot exist without being perceived, and the fundamental principle of reality is that existence is consciousness and that "to be is to be perceived". The story of Western philosophy is the story of Immanuel Kant, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are "forms of perception", "forms of intuition" and universal collective delusions, and the world outside the mind is an infinite, supernatural "noumenon" and "thing in itself". He proclaimed that the objects of consciousness are products of consciousness and revolve around consciousness, as the planets revolve around the sun, and that when we perceive something we perceive nothing, and are blind because we can see, and are deluded because we can think. The story of Western philosophy is the story of G. W. F. Hegel, who proclaimed that objects are subjects, matter is mind, and existence is an all inclusive whole which is called the Absolute Mind. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Arthur Schopenhauer, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are ideas manufactured by the human mind and reality outside the mind is an infinite, supernatural will, and the fundamental principle of philosophy is the distinction between the "world as appearance" and the "world as will". The story of Western philosophy is the story of Friedrich Nietzsche, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are the products of interests and perspectives and reality consists in growth, expansion and the will to power. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Karl Marx, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are the products of class interests, class struggle, class consciousness and the class will to power. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Gottlob Frege, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are products of language, logic, meanings, names and concepts. The story of Western philosophy is the story of William James, who proclaimed that physical objects exist insofar as they satisfy human needs and interests and possess cash value, and cease to exist when they no longer fulfill these functions. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Charles Sanders Pierce, who proclaimed that physical objects exist insofar as they predict, solve problems and advance action. He proclaimed that physical objects exist only probabilistically and not with absolute certainty. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Ferdinand de Saussure, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are products of arbitrary systems of linguistic signs. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Alfred North Whitehead, who proclaimed that the belief in the existence of physical objects is "unsuited to the scientific situation at which we have now arrived", and this situation demands that we conceive of reality as a system of mental processes and relations. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Sigmund Freud, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are products of the conscious, rational ego, while reality is a universal, unconscious, will to pleasure and destruction. The story of Western philosophy is the story of John Dewey, who proclaimed that physical objects exist insofar as they advance social needs and interests, generate positive social consequences, and reconstruct experience in socially use ways. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Bertrand Russell, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are nothing more than mental sense data. He proclaimed that what we perceive are our own sensations, perceptions, personal spaces and private experiences. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Edmund Husserl, who proclaimed that we can only perceive the experiences, essences and categories which exist in our own minds and the belief in the existence of physical objects must be subjected to a process of philosophical bracketing, reduction and expungement. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Martin Heidegger, who proclaimed that physical objects have no reality, and that existence, presence and "being there" are states of pure consciousness. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Ludwig Wittgenstein, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are products of language games, and the meaning of a word is only its use within a language game, and refers to nothing in any alleged objective reality. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Willard Quine, who proclaimed that physical objects are cultural posits possessing no greater reality than Homeric gods, that existence is not absolute but is a pure pragmatic construct, and that "to be is to be the value of a variable". The story of Western philosophy is the story of Hilary Putnam, who proclaimed that we do not perceive physical objects but only subjective forms and qualities and that what exists is determined by our own conceptual categories and structures. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Hans-Georg Gadamer, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are products of culture, subjective interpretations and historically conditioned consciousness, and the belief in the existence of a real world is the product of the "Enlightenment prejudice against prejudice". The story of Western philosophy is the story of Jurgen Habermas, who proclaimed that what are called physical objects are the products of social life, social interactions, social transactions, the public interest, economic democracy and interpersonal communication. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Claude Levi-Strauss, who proclaimed that the perceived world of physical objects is a product of universal mental structures and has no objective reality. The story of Western philosophy is the story of Jacques Derrida, who proclaimed that the perceived world of physical objects is a product of race, ethnicity, tribe and culture. The story of Western philosophy is the story of critical race theory, which proclaims that the belief in the existence of physical objects must be subjected to a critical examination based upon race and viewed as a product of inferior white thinking, and be replaced by the promotion of a black, Aryan, racial reconstruction of reality. One thousand years ago, the fierce weather of psychosis raging within the soul of ancient German folk brought the rejection of an axiom held by sane, civilized people throughout the ages, an axiom established as the centerpiece of Classical, Greco-Roman civilization: the axiom that physical existence exists and is a determinate something. Reality as pure perceptions, sensations, feelings, language, texts, concepts, categories, streams of consciousness, cultural posits and the will to power. Guided and controlled by the spirit of the German necromancer and doctor of the occult, Johannes Faust, these beliefs have consumed the West. They have consumed it in the dead of night, in the dead of winter, and in a permanent ice age of the mind. They have triggered the onrushing death of civilization.

DRUG USE DOOMS THE WORLD

Opium dens were establishments in which opium was smoked and sold. In the nineteenth century, these dens were ubiquitous and reached from China to Southeast Asia to North America to France. Although common, they served only a niche market because drug use was condemned by the general population as a stark example of immoral behavior and as a serious vice. Students of history have observed a frightening inversion take place over the past one hundred years and seen virtue and morality turned on its head. They have observed the operation of cause and effect and seen the principle that ideas have consequences wheeled into action. They have observed a process which commenced in the early twentieth century. They have observed currents of philosophic irrationalism surge and sweep through the world and seen the fearsome and terrifying results of this. They have seen the whole of society transformed into a den for drug use, while the community of nonusers has been reduced to a miniscule faction. They have read the philosophies people have been taught over the past century and seen the personal practices which have flowed from them as sewage water flows from factories of excreta. Their report is divided into two sections, one entitled The Cause, and the other entitled, The Effect, and to read it is to see with crystal, unequivocal, diamond bright clarity the fundamental tenet underlying all of life and reality: that when a process commences in a serious error, the terminal point will bring a state of mass destruction. In the first section, they have described the thought of the most influential and emblematic philosopher in the West, and in the second section, they have featured a description of drug use composed by an enthusiastic promoter of drugs. Section one consists in an explication of the philosophy of Immanuel Kant. The foremost exponent of Western Faustian subjectivism, and the greatest opponent of Classical, Greco-Roman realism, Kant proclaims that progressive philosophy consists in a thoroughgoing criticism and rejection of the possibility of knowledge. He proclaims that the process of knowing is so constructed that it terminates in nothing beyond itself. He proclaims that when we perceive an alleged physical object, we perceive only an internal mental form which has no relation or resemblance whatever to anything outside the mind, and we are blind because we can see, and are deluded because we can think. He proclaims that the mind is confined to a world of its own perceptions and the only possible philosophical position is that of subjectivity and agnosticism. He proclaims that what exists outside of our own experience and observations is a world about which we can know nothing except that it is infinite, supernatural and unknowable. He proclaims that human perceptions are creative and constitutive in character and not passive or reactive. He proclaims that there exists a real world of forces and spirits which are not physical in character, are not located in any place, are not within the flow of time, and by virtue of being nonphysical, nonspatial and nontemporal, are unperceivable. He proclaims that our perceptions are formed and structured by the fixed, universal categories of matter, space and time, and because these categories are fixed, we can never step outside them to check them against reality, and we can never perceive what reality is like in and of itself, before it is perceived. He proclaims that nothing can be the object of perception except some form, category or idea existing in the mind. He proclaims that the world outside the mind is a void, because it is immaterial and located nowhere, but a void which mystically and incomprehensibly exists. He proclaims that progressive philosophy acknowledges the fundamental fact that the alleged natural world is a human fiction and that all knowledge of reality is denied to us. He proclaims that enlightened philosophy acknowledges that the human mind is the builder of the visible world and that whatever is visible is unreal because it is visible. He proclaims that the real world is unknown, unknowable and lies all around us as an occult nothing which is something. He proclaims that what exists outside the screens and filters imposed by consciousness is something which reason and experience can know nothing about. He proclaims that human perception is shaped by innate, automatic concepts such as physical substance and all knowledge is derived by a process of pure deduction from these concepts, and is on that account purely subjective knowledge, because these concepts, being apriori, are not derived from reality. In section two of their report, entitled, The Effect, students of history have included an encomium to drug use launched by a professional user and pusher. Listen to the words of this student of Kant and hear him proclaim that what is called physical reality is a product of the imagination. Hear him proclaim that so-called physical objects are products of the mind's automatic organizing structures. Hear him proclaim that so-called physical objects are products of mentally imposed patterns. Hear him proclaim that our so-called perception of physical reality is a perception of images assembled in our minds. Hear him proclaim that what are called physical objects are products of what we see and feel, and we see nothing when we see something physical, and feel nothing when we feel something physical. Hear him proclaim that reality outside the mind is a nonphysical dimension which is incapable of being perceived or understood in any manner. Hear him proclaim that the so-called physical world is a collective delusion and through the use of drugs man can expand his consciousness and transcend this delusion and achieve the mystical perception of true nonphysical reality. Hear him proclaim that reality is that which cannot be perceived, described, explained, expressed or words or conceived in any manner. Hear him proclaim that reality is that about which we can acquire no information. Hear him proclaim that words which are alleged to describe reality are meaningless, nonreferential sounds. Hear him proclaim that the world of perception is a world of appearances and these perceptions and appearances have no equivalents or counterparts in the real world, which can only be accessed through a psychedelic trip: "As a professional in the field of psychoactive substances, I spend much of my time thinking about how I would describe the psychedelic experience to someone who has never taken psychedelics before. The most difficult part of this is trying to put me into the mind's eye of someone who has been completely sober all their lives. For me, this is a very interesting experience because I realized that all of my perceptions were based on what I thought reality should be. For example, when I looked at the computer screen in front of me, I was not seeing it as a bunch of pixels. My brain automatically saw the image on my screen and fill in all the details without even thinking about it. Or, to further illustrate the point, a chess grandmaster doesn't look at a chessboard and sees a bunch of pieces of wood randomly placed. They see pieces, positions, tactics; patterns. When approaching this topic from an unbiased perspective, it becomes clear that our perception of reality is only a collection of images assembled in our minds. To someone who never had any contact with psychedelics, reality is limited to what they can see with their eyes and feel with their skin. They don't have the ability to perceive other dimensions that are impossible for them to measure. It is hard to describe a psychedelic experience in words, as the words one uses for describing things are not the same as those used while experiencing them. When one talks about a psychedelic experience, even if the person has never had a psychedelic journey before and they use neutral words to describe it, the listener will nevertheless get a lot of information from them. Those sounds that come out of their mouth are not just aleatory words strung together in order; they do carry a lot of meaning with them. Those who have experienced a psychedelic trip know how difficult it is to put into words. It isn't just that the experience itself cannot be explained in words, but also what they are trying to describe has no direct equivalent for most people." (Describing A Psychedelic Trip: Professionally by Alexandre Porto). Their master taught them that the world of physical objects is an illusion. They concluded that reality can only be grasped by the ingestion of psychoactive drugs. Their master taught them that reason is impotent to grasp the nature of reality. They concluded that mind expanding drugs alone can produce a true state of cognition. Their master taught them that consciousness and awareness perceive nothing beyond their own forms and categories. They concluded that reality lies at the terminus of a blazing, soaring, swooping, hallucinatory drug ride. Their master is Immanuel Kant. They are his heirs and descendants, the generation of today, the damning indictors of Faustian subjectivism, the gravediggers of the West.

FAUST'S GERMAN PLAYWRIGHT

Rummaging through the rubble of Western civilization, students of history have discovered something astounding. They have discovered a snow globe, and in this globe, they have beheld miniature scenes of the story of the West. They have studied these scenes carefully to see how the current catastrophe all around them was allowed to take place, and they have issued their report so that the vanishing pockets of civilized people located throughout the world can know about and brace themselves for the onrushing tidal waves of total evil. Here are the early scenes these students of history have beheld in the strange transparent sphere they have picked up. Satan towers over a town with his black wings spread across the land. A fog rolls in and brings forth a plague. Satan summons his favorite figure on earth to appear before him and do his bidding. This figure is a scholar, alchemist, necromancer and doctor of diabolical theology named Johannes Faust. This figure's first task, set forth to him by Satan, is to appoint a playwright to tell the story of himself, Faust, who is the preeminent symbol of the new culture of the West. This new culture, the world sees, is as opposed to Classical culture as midnight is opposed to noonday. The playwright whom Faust appoints is Johann Wolfgang von Goethe. He is Faust's German playwright and his philosophy is Faust's own philosophy, and is Satan's own philosophy, and is a philosophy of romanticism which has crashed and thundered across the face of the earth for one thousand years and pulverized it with its hammer bolts of infinite power, space, feeling and experience. The philosophy of Goethe, of his subject Faust, and of his ultimate master Satan proclaims that all so-called knowledge is limited to what man has created. It proclaims that the mind has cut man off from a world outside it. It proclaims that the senses and intellect are distorting screens and filters which produce a shadow play called physical reality. It proclaims that man creates the world by willing and thinking it. It proclaims that reality is that which is created by our own sensations, fancies, desires, preferences and imagination. It proclaims that reality is that which is projected by passion, personality and ascending spiritual consciousness. It proclaims that reality is pure change and development without any physical entities which change or develop. It proclaims that reality is grasped in wild journeys through the mountains of the spirit far removed from the realm of matter and nature. It proclaims that the reliance on reason and experience to acquire knowledge belongs in the ruins of Classical civilization, while the progressive philosophy of the West understands that reality is grasped by mystical means through feeling and intuition. It proclaims that nature ministers to the self, matter serves consciousness, objects conform to subjects, and there is no realm of nature, matter or objects which exists independently of the mind. It proclaims that the so-called physical universe is a product of creative human fiat. It proclaims that reality is the development of the self unrestrained by facts, logic or soundness of mind. It proclaims that the focus of existence is consciousness and the epitome of progressive philosophy is pure subjectivism. It proclaims that consciousness is an all powerful deity which fashions reality in accordance with its arbitrary, irresponsible dictates. It proclaims that reality is the spiritual growth of the infinite soul. It proclaims that reality is the expansion and realization of pure consciousness. It proclaims that reality is the force, vigor and energy of the will. It proclaims that reality is plastic, indeterminate and endlessly shaped and formed by the impulses of the mind. It proclaims that progressive philosophy has exposed the sham of reason and science and worships at the altar of magic and the occult. It proclaims that truth is not discovered in reality but is manufactured by the will. It proclaims that the notions of matter and causality have no basis in reality, which is constituted of the capricious, unaccountable will. It proclaims that progressive philosophy is a study of the religion and orthodoxies set forth by the will. It proclaims that reality consists in the words, the commands, the slogans, the deeds, the fanaticism and the violence of the will. It proclaims that progressive philosophy rejects the Classical life of knowledge, thought and rational investigation and tolls the Faustian bells of reckless adventure, dangerous excitement, and endless, bloody, global wars. It proclaims that reality is that which has been spun out from the depths of the untamed disciples of mindless action and heedless determination. Listen to the words of today's Westerners, today's Faustians and today's disciples of Goethe and hear them reject the realm of objective facts and numbers. Hear them reject the language of empirical analysis and exalt the language of mystical experience. Hear them reject the laws of objective truth and exalt the laws of pure subjectivity. Hear them condemn science as a body of dead, static, inert information and exalt mystical sensation as the gateway to the living, infinite reality of the absolute mind. Hear them condemn industry and technology as engines of ecological crisis. Hear them condemn reason as a screen of alienation from divine, mystical nature. Hear them exalt a new kind of antiscience which rejects empirical methods and exalts the qualities of supernatural reality. Hear them reject the processes of sense perception and exalt a pseudoscience of occult forms. Hear them reject the common sense separation between the observer and the observed, between consciousness and existence, and exalt a web of interrelations of pure subjectivity which spell out the symptoms of mental disorder. Hear them condemn experimental science as a veil of objectivity and exalt emotional contact with subjective reality. Hear them paint a picture of life and the world devoid of all facts, logic, matter and mechanism. Hear them sacrifice scientific protocols upon the altars of romanticist revolution. Hear them condemn scientific enlightenment and exalt incomprehensible esoterica. Hear them condemn the perceived world of physical individuals and exalt the extrasensory, nonsensory, parasensory oneness of all things. Hear them condemn reverence for the natural world and exalt the colors of consciousness, the development of consciousness, the morphology of consciousness, the structures of consciousness, the codes of consciousness, the mysteries of consciousness, and the embryology of consciousness: "As we fly through this age of information flow, genetics and molecular technology, people are becoming increasingly alienated from a meaningful understanding of the natural world. Science has been vigilant in its interrogation of the natural world to wrest answers from her depths of mystery. It is a quest for more and more data to fill our mountainous logbook of knowledge, written in the language of objective fact, number and the genetic code. However, this is the knowledge of a world which has been so fragmented, so dissected by our analyses, that we can no longer recognize how this myriad of independent parts relate in the larger picture. Most problematically, meaningful understanding of the world is lost because our objective analyses have denied the language of human experience in this canon of truth. Meaning however, is manifest only in the context of interrelation. The objective lens of the scientist enforces the separation between the observer and the observed and thus denies the web of relationships which we experience in life. It is not surprising then, that nothing remotely resonant with our living experience has emerged out of this vast array of inert information. It is not surprising that we find ourselves in a time of ecological crisis and alienation from nature: through this veil of objectivity we have severed our meaningful relationships with nature, and therefore, the obligation to interact with her responsibly. How then do we transcend this mechanistic world view and heal our relationship to the earth? The Schumacher course, Living Science Creatively, addresses this concern and proposes a platform for a new kind of science. This emerging discipline is a science of qualities, which values human experience and depends on sense perception to paint a meaningful picture of life. There is in fact, nothing new about this kind of science. Johann Wolfgang von Goethe (1749-1832) and his Romantic contemporaries worked diligently to hold on to a scientific methodology which valued qualitative experience of phenomena, just as the Scientific Revolution with its quantitative, mechanistic vision of the world was gaining ground. The course, Living Science Creatively, helps us to step out of this now dominant, mechanistic paradigm by introducing us to Goethe's ideas in the context of the newly emerging holistic sciences. The doors of science are opened to all with curiosity, questions, fascination and reverence for the natural world. We enter into relationship with the phenomenon as scientists, and our discoveries come alive with meaning, brought forth through the creative language of deepened experience in the natural realm." (Exploring Goethean Science At Schumacher College by Natasha Myers). On the pages of Classical civilization were written a philosophy of physical existence, common sense, ordinary experience and fundamental human sanity. During the course of Western civilization, these pages have exploded into sheets of flame, ignited by the dark, dreadful forces of Satan, Faust and their playwright Goethe.

REDS CANCEL THE FOURTH OF JULY

Travelers throughout the world know that unexpected events sometimes occur which force them to cancel their hoped for holidays. This is why they purchase a special type of travel insurance which reimburses them for nonrefundable costs. Students of American history have observed something in the present day which has filled them with utter disbelief. Almost unable to believe their very eyes, they have seen the American people bring down branding irons of infamy upon their country and disparage its hallowed Independence Day. They have observed the Fourth of July rendered null and void and its celebrants mocked, scorned and fastened into pillories of disgrace and humiliation. They have seen no reimbursement for the cancellation, no compensation for the annulment, but only unending volleys of verbal and physical abuse directed at those who still uphold the founding ideals of the nation and wish to march in parades celebrating its birth on the battlefields of heroism and bravery. They have observed an act of national treason committed by the red masses in control of America, and have studied the masses' program and manifesto for the destruction of liberal democracy and the establishment of a totalitarian fever swamp, a program shouted out with particular pleasure in causing pain on the day of a former national holiday which celebrated the anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence in 1776. This program and manifesto for the abolition of Independence Day, of America, and of Western civilization is the culmination of a one hundred year march of majoritarian politics, and shows what happens when a nation runs out of conscience and intelligence and descends into the rancor and resentment of those who have nothing beyond rancor and resentment suppurating at their core of their being. This program was composed by a red American majority which students of American history have characterized as a living, breathing, walking sore of envy and hatred, as the very portrait of decline and fall, tragic beyond words, of a nation which for centuries had served as the Good Samaritan of liberty to every oppressed corner of the earth. Broadcast to wild applause into every home, office, classroom and public square in the nation, this program has proclaimed that America should be overthrown because it was founded in white racism. It has proclaimed that progressive history books deny the fact that at the time of America's founding, the vast majority of Americans did not own slaves. It has proclaimed that progressive history books condemn Patrick Henry's famous cry, "Give me liberty or give me death", as the squalid howl of white, patriarchal slave masters. It has proclaimed that a progressive society seeks to make people dependent on the government for all their rights. It has proclaimed that a progressive society recognizes the responsibility of the state to provide food, shelter, education, housing and health care to the lowest strata of the population by taxing the engines and dynamos of industry. It has proclaimed that human rights are derived from society and not from human nature, and society has the right to abrogate them whenever it deems fit. It has proclaimed that in a progressive society individuals are interdependent, codependent and mutually dependent, and are never any such things as sovereign, free and independent. It has proclaimed that a progressive society sanctions election fraud, irregularities and illegalities if such serve to prevent Donald Trump from achieving power. It has proclaimed that a progressive society exploits public health crises such as the covid 19 pandemic to cheat in federal elections and ensure the victory of Joe Biden. It has proclaimed that a progressive society mails out tens of millions of absentee ballots to ensure that enough fraudulent ballots are cast for Joe Biden. It has proclaimed that a progressive society places ballot drop boxes exclusively in Democrat controlled locales in order to collect millions of unverified votes for Joe Biden and award him ninety six percent of the tabulated votes. It has proclaimed that a progressive society mails out ballot applications to every person listed on election rolls, whether the person is dead or alive, legally qualified to vote or an illegal alien, in order to secure victory to Joe Biden. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has abolished signature verification requirements for those who wish to vote in order in order to gain illicit votes for Joe Biden. It has proclaimed that a progressive society allows state executives to change elections laws, in violation of the United States Constitution which allows only state legislatures to change the laws, in order to facilitate the election of Joe Biden. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has canceled free, fair and open elections and set up elections which have been rigged and stolen in order to guarantee the predominance of the Democrat Party in perpetuity. It has proclaimed that election reform and election integrity are the greatest enemies of the reds and must be replaced by a system of election corruption and the undermining of American democracy. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has purged the Founding Fathers and fighting patriots of American liberty from the history books, from the national discourse, and from the hearts and minds of the people. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a red activist society which has pulled down American historical symbols and statues and condemned George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin and John Hancock as merciless lashes of white, capitalist racism and exploitation of the working class. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a radical left movement which has declared war on American liberty, erased the legacy of July 4, 1776, and expunged the date and the holiday. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has dismissed its border agents and Immigration and Customs Enforcement officers and established wide open immigration in the name of moral relativism and multiculturalism. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has defunded and dismantled law enforcement authorities and ignited a crime wave across America. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has instituted selection on the basis of race and gender and agitated for a new form of swastika politics in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has established massive public spending programs and fueled the fires of wage and price inflation. It has proclaimed that a progressive society allows murderers, vandals and drug dealers to run rampant through the streets while it weaponizes the law against antireds with a national following like Donald Trump, bringing unsubstantiated charges against Trump such as collusion with the Russians. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is ruled by the radical socialists who have allowed crime to skyrocket to record breaking levels while they target their political opponents with unending prosecution. It has proclaimed that a progressive society launches witch hunts against the advocates of unpopular and unorthodox ideas: liberalism, constitutionalism, personal responsibility and individual rights. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a communist leviathan which fabricates crimes against the voices of capitalism and buries them in the tar pits of character assassination. It has proclaimed that a progressive society encourages prosecutors to run for office on a promise to persecute the friends, allies and defenders of Donald Trump with every possible false charge they can think of, to wreck their lives in every way they can, and to violate every principle of justice and fairness which undergirds a civilized society. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has declared total war against Donald Trump's Make America Great Again movement and planted a forest of communist and national socialist banners screaming out the unAmerican politics of gender, race and class. Before the reds seized power and established a totalitarian society, the fireworks launched on the Fourth of July celebrated the history, government and traditions of America. Once the most important holiday on the nation's calendar, Independence Day has been consigned to a black hole of moral and spiritual nonexistence. In a nation which has fallen into the vice grip of mob rule and renounced the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual, the Fourth of July has become as meaningless as America's founding texts and documents. Placed into a cannon marked social responsibility, placed into a barrel filled with gunpowder marked social justice, placed into a missile ignited by red professors, politicians, pundits and propagandists, the Fourth of July has exploded across the skies of a nation conceived in the glories of the Enlightenment. Its bits and pieces have settled upon the rubble of Western civilization.

REDS BLOW UP THE COURTS

Demolition is the science of tearing down buildings. In their operations, demolitionists employ cranes, excavators, high explosives, wrecking balls and elevated work platforms, and seek at all times to ensure a safe and secure work environment. Students of politics have observed in present day America a campaign of political demolition, undertaken by the reds, which is as simple as it is frightening and employs none of the careful techniques employed by building engineers to ensure the safety of the people. They have observed a campaign to subvert the court system by politicizing and abolishing the legitimacy of the Supreme Court and all lower courts, by abolishing the constitutional separation of powers, and by abolishing individual rights and freedoms, and seek in their campaign to destroy as many lives as possible and render a nation conceived on the battlefields of freedom and liberty into something morally and politically unrecognizable. Students of politics have observed in this campaign the sinister hand of the mob at work, working like a spider at the center of a web, setting goals of blunt subversion and straightforward corruption to its agents operating throughout the nation, operating in every home, office and school in the land. Students of politics know a nation which has run its course when they see it; they know a nation which has been depleted of its intellectual and spiritual reserves when they confront it; they know a nation which has reached the terminal point of a poisoned development, and they do not recoil from their professional responsibility to warn as many civilized as they can about an onrushing catastrophe which has toppled the rule of law in America. They have issued their report on the reds' overthrow of the nation's court system and it features the actual program and manifesto of the reds, included so that civilized people who read it will be able to hear the actual words of the Devil himself as he agitates his Main Street multitudes to storm the ramparts of American civilization. This program proclaims that a progressive society rejects judges who respect the Constitution and obey the meaning of the constitutional text, and seeks to fill the bench with red activists in the name of "restoring balance to the courts". It proclaims that a progressive society seeks to create as many vacancies as possible on the courts and to appoint communists to fill them in the name of "court reform". It proclaims that a progressive society has increased the size of the Supreme Court, lower appellate courts and district courts and stacked them with judges who will rubber stamp radical leftist policies. It proclaims that a progressive society strong arms elderly judges into stepping down so that young red replacements can be found for them. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the notion of an impartial, independent judiciary and has established commissions of red mafia hoodlums masquerading as courts of law, commissions which obey the dictates of the capo di tutti capi: the majority. It proclaims that a progressive society has remade America's constitutional system in order to take the nation down the path of socialist tyranny. It proclaims that a progressive society has severed the judiciary from its traditional task of interpreting and enforcing the constitution and transformed it into a handmaiden of the legislative and executives branches in their quest to enact the rancor of the mob into public law. It proclaims that a progressive society has limited judges' tenures in order to make way for as many new reds as possible. It proclaims that a progressive society has increased the size of the Supreme Court in order to maximize the influence of radicals. It proclaims that a progressive society has mandated that the Supreme Court only select cases which can advance red causes, such as universal health care entitlement, and rule in such a manner that the reds will always win and the constitution will always lose. It proclaims that a progressive society has rigged and fixed the court system by packing it with judges who will enforce the far left party line and sacrifice individual rights upon the altar of social justice. It proclaims that a progressive society has established extremist courts to strike down fundamental liberties in the service of a social welfare agenda. It proclaims that a progressive court system has annulled the First Amendment right of free association on the grounds that it sanctions discrimination on the basis of race, gender and sexual orientation, on the grounds that women, nonwhites, homosexuals and transgenders have a constitutional right to invade private organizations and to be served and to be employed. It proclaims that a progressive court system has abolished the principle of equal protection under the law and sanctioned a regime of race and gender quotas and diversity timetables. Look at the world of America's reds and see committees established to hijack the federal judiciary. See the highest court in the land captured by leftist ideologues. See the judicial branch of the government politicized beyond recognition. See judicial activists on a mission to transform district courts and appeals courts into massive Soviet style parliaments of people's deputies filled to overflowing with votes to repeal constitutional rights. See a campaign to establish a radical, totalitarian majority on the federal courts in the name of achieving professional diversity. See a campaign to fill court vacancies with unqualified personnel in the form of red prosecutors, red union lawyers, red immigration lawyers and red legal aid lawyers who have renounced the guiding principle of liberal jurisprudence, the principle of determining objective facts and applying objective standards in the resolution of disputes, in favor of issuing politically and ideologically motivated rulings. See a campaign to compel judges to handle caseloads as work to be done in the service of the people's social justice revolution. See a campaign to sully judicial chambers with red partisan ideologues, agitators, tub thumpers and street fighters, and to transform judgeships into positions of mob pandering. See a campaign to eliminate the courts as constitutional checks on the power of the majority. See a campaign to place robes on red demagogues and call them judges. See a campaign to destroy the confidence civilized people have placed in the credibility of the courts by making adherence to the rule of logic and law a thing of the past: "President Joe Biden's appointment of a commission to study whether to expand the number of judges on the Supreme Court has been grabbing most of the headlines in the debate over court packing. Yet leftists are, in reality, waging a two front campaign to tilt the federal judiciary in their favor. While the highest court in the land attracts most of the attention, leftists plot an ideological capture of the lower courts. Citing an 'overwhelmed judicial branch' and a 'crisis' that has been brewing for decades, leftist judicial activists have made calls to add as many as 250 judges between the district and appeals court levels. Along with those currently vacant, filling these seats would represent nearly half of all current judgeships. So, where will all of this legal talent come from? Leftists seek to pack the federal courts with legal aid lawyers, prosecutors, immigration lawyers, and lawyers who represent labor unions. They attempt to spin this as 'professional diversity' yet in actuality, such an occurrence would amount to a radical, leftwing politicization of federal courts. What about this caseload 'crisis'? Excluding thousands of personal injury lawsuits filed for defective military earplugs, case filings during the COVID-19 pandemic were down ten percent overall. Criminal defendant filings dropped 20 percent. At the same time, in the federal district courts—where trials are held to determine facts and apply legal principles to resolve disputes—there are currently 47 vacancies out of 677 judgeships. In the federal circuit (or appeals courts), there remain zero vacancies out of 170 judgeships. The appellate courts take appeals from district courts and are empowered to review the decisions of many administrative agencies. With all the facts considered, wouldn't it make more sense to fill the current vacancies and monitor how these fully staffed courts handle caseloads when they return to normal, post covid 19? In April, just one day before President Joe Biden announced the formation of a commission to study Supreme Court reforms, Justice Stephen Breyer gave a speech at Harvard Law School in which he issued a stern warning about court packing. What the justice said applies equally to any plan to flood the lower courts with partisan ideologues. 'If the public sees judges as politicians in robes, its confidence in the courts—and the rule of law itself—can only diminish, diminishing the court's power, including its power to act as a check on other branches,' he warned." (Leftists Are Also Attempting to Court Pack From The Bottom Up by Mike Berry). A tidal wave has crashed across America and will bring, and has brought, an inundation of judges at all levels who are committed to implementing a consistent red partisan agenda. There is one dominant political party in America, the red political party, the mass political party and the mob political party, and in the final hours of the nation, these Main Street reds have sought to manipulate the number of judges in or/der to achieve the evil results they desire: the destruction of human progress and civilization.

REDS KIDNAP SCHOOL KIDS

On March 1, 1932, Charles Lindbergh Jr, the twenty month old son of aviation hero Charles Lindbergh, was kidnapped from his crib in East Amwell, New Jersey. On May 12, the child's corpse was discovered by the side of a nearby road. The trial of the kidnapper was described as "the biggest story since the Resurrection" and as one of the "trials of the century". Civilized people have seen in the infamous Lindbergh kidnapping a tragic allegory of the present day and have seen, compounding this new evil a thousandfold, the kidnapers avoid trial and escape the bar of justice. They have seen schoolchildren in classrooms throughout the world mentally, morally and spiritually kidnapped by the reds, taken to the Devil's fairground, transformed into swastika bearing race haters ready to riot, rampage, kill and destroy, and seen the kidnapers lauded as heroes and saviors for their efforts. Civilized people have read the program and manifesto of the reds and are convinced beyond the shadow of a doubt that the masses have lost their minds, have been depleted of their intellectual energy and reserves, have, in the senescent stages of Western culture, hooked up their brains to a latter day Volksempfänger broadcasting from atop a black Aryan radio tower, and have declared totaler krieg against the liberal democratic order conceived in a noonday world called the Enlightenment. This program and manifesto of Hitler's black power heirs and Marx's black proletarian hordes has proclaimed that the centerpiece of a progressive school curriculum is race based, social justice education. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has renounced instruction in academic subjects, such as reading, literature and mathematics, and focused exclusively on teaching racial history and studying leaders of color. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches students about race and about nothing else than race. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches students that capitalism is a system of black slavery, institutional racism and implicit bias against people of color. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system weaves race into every subject it teaches; it teaches race based mathematics and race based politics; and it teaches that civil rights belong to blacks and to nobody else but blacks. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system is filled to overflowing with race propaganda and teaches that the only true scientists and mathematicians have been nonwhite scientists and mathematicians. The reds' manifesto has proclaimed that a progressive school system mandates as a requirement for graduation that students take black and ethnic studies courses and show proficiency in the art of spreading false and misleading information about whites. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system requires all teachers to undergo special training courses which promote preferential treatment for blacks in the name of diversity, equity, inclusion, antidiscrimination, cultural responsiveness and combating implicit antiblack bias. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches English, science and history from nonwhite perspectives and with the goal of fomenting hatred of whites. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system promotes black nationalism and nonEuropean ethnicism in the name of "decentering traditional white perspectives and centering the voices of people of color". It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has removed The Adventures Of Huckleberry Finn, To Kill A Mockingbird and Of Mice And Men from the curriculum on the grounds that they includes characters who use the word nigger. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches that the liberal order of equal protection for all produces severe trauma in blacks and requires superhuman stamina for blacks to endure. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system has instituted two programs, BOOM for Break Out of the Margins, and SHOUT for Sistahs Having Outstanding Uniqueness Together, which promote black solidarity, militancy, bigotry and violence. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches students that the European explorations to civilize savage cultures were illicit on the grounds that no culture founded by nonwhites can ever be savage or backward, while every culture founded by whites is savage and backward and nothing else but savage and backward. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system mandates that all discussions and conversations between students and teachers revolve exclusively around issues of race and ethnicity and promote the privileges and prerogatives of nonwhites. It has proclaimed that capitalism is a system of strident white racism and blatant white privilege. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches black students how to sir up and agitate each other to kill whites in courses entitled Shared Racial Experiences. It has proclaimed that capitalism is the scourge of the white man which discriminates against the master races of the planet: blacks, indigenous people, and people of color. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system promotes community and solidarity among its nonwhite students and singles out white students for vilification and abuse. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system promotes antiwhite violence and seeks to make whites afraid to walk in the streets in the name of social justice and reparations for nonwhites. It has proclaimed that a progressive school system teaches nonwhite students to be unswerving comrades and allies in a war to subjugate the white race. Look at the world of reds in the classroom and see them push a religion of hate called critical race theory, which says that whites are racist down to the core of their being and that blacks possess special characteristics and abilities which make them superior to whites. See them proclaim that whites are racist because whites are in power. See them proclaim that capitalism is system of marginalization and oppression of nonwhites. See them proclaim that capitalism is a system of racial hierarchy which places whites in the dominant position. See them proclaim that capitalism is a system which privileges white people. See them proclaim that the only remedy against laws which discriminate against nonwhites is laws which discriminate against whites and reduce whites to the status of subalterns of a nonwhite master race. See them proclaim that racism against whites is justified on the grounds of fairness and equity. See them proclaim that Western civilization must be smashed in the name of removing and displacing whiteness. See them proclaim that indigenous cultures must be returned to savagery in the name of antiimperialism and decolonization. See them proclaim that no denial, dissent or debate is possible regarding the view that whites are inherently, genetically and ineradicably racist. See them proclaim that a progressive society is a partisan society which teaches as its fundamental tenet that white people are beasts of prey who must be hunted down and wiped out. See them proclaim that a color blind society in which individuals are judged on the basis of their merits, is inequitable and unfair because it is an established fact that blacks are morally intellectually and spiritually superior to whites. See them proclaim that equity for nonwhites necessitates the destruction of white owned businesses, smashing the windows of white owned shops, and the launching of a pogrom against the white race. See them proclaim that whites must apologize for existing, for being white and for being racist, and must promise to serve the black race as its drudges and slaves: "Historically, racism meant 'a belief that race is a fundamental determinant of human traits and capacities and that racial differences produce an inherent superiority of a particular race.' If it's been more than a decade since you've been in school, that's probably your definition too. Critical Race Theory, however, has a radically different definition. At its core, it states that racism is 'prejudice plus power', which means that members of a group that aren't in power cannot be racists—only members of the dominant group can be racists. Some definitions are even more explicit: 'The marginalization and/or oppression of people of color based on a socially constructed racial hierarchy that privileges white people.' As Ibram Kendi puts it, 'The only remedy to racist discrimination is antiracist discrimination.' In other words, only whites can be racist. And more ominously, actively discriminating against whites (or 'white adjacents') is a useful tool to achieve equity for nonwhites. For those who believe Critical Race Theory, colorblindness is inherently racist. They see racism as baked into the status quo of society—it's the air that we breathe. They believe that if you're not actively attempting to dismantle racism (also known as decolonializing, decentering whiteness, or any number of other synonyms), you're perpetuating racism and you are, therefore, racist." (Anti Racism: It Doesn't Mean What You Think by the ProColumbus Academy Coalition). The ringing of a school bell announces important times to a school's students, marking the beginnings and ends of the school day, classes and breaks. Civilized people who hear these bells tolling throughout the day hear something totally different. They hear incessant fire bells ringing in the night tolling the advent of black Marxism, black national socialism, Hitler's black generation, and the death of civilization.

WOMEN ON THE SUPREME COURT: A HISTORY OF FAILURE

In ancient numerology, the number five was held to possess special meaning and significance. It was held to be a lucky number, and when the gaze of Lord Mercury was strong, it was held to bestow great fortune and unimaginable benefits upon people. Students of American politics see the number five in a totally different and totally negative light. They see it as signifying an attack on justice taking place at the highest levels of the United States government. They see it as signifying the radicalization of a certain demographic in society, a process which commenced in the early decades of the twentieth century, and made it virtually impossible to find reliable members of this group to serve in high government positions and to defend the constitution. They see the number five as signifying the number of women who have been named to serve on the United States Supreme Court. They see this group as providing a window, a snapshot and a microcosm of the state of women today in the nation and demonstrating, in the most fearsome and terrifying manner possible, what happens when red fronts are entrusted with federal power and allowed to wield influence over the daily lives of ordinary people. The radicalization of women is a process which is finished and complete and has produced a monolithic block of political power which has dynamited the institutions of liberal democracy and run roughshod over the rule of law. Students of politics know the cause of this radicalization and know that it is the signpost of a disease which points into the decline and fall of human social organization itself. The cause is the movement of identity politics derived from Marx. Denying the primacy of the individual and denying that individuals alone possess rights and freedoms, the neoMarxists view society as composed of mystical formations based upon gender, race and class, formations which vie with each other for absolute power as they battle over the dead body of Enlightenment civilization. This movement of identity politics has targeted women and transformed them into a violent mob exalting the state and community, demanding special privileges and prerogatives, and worshiping at the altar of the will to power. Students of politics have gone down the list of women judges on the Supreme Court and seen a recital of treason. They have studied the opinions of women judges on the court and seen a litany of brazen state worship. They have attempted to find differences among these judges and to avoid generalizations about women but have been blasted incessantly by a single melody, a melody of deference to the mob and rejection of the constitutional text, a melody without exceptions, without pause and without reprieve. They have issued their report and it commences with Sandra Day O'Connor, the first woman appointed to the court, in 1983. Listen to O'Connor in the case Grutter vs Bollinger (2003). Listen to her uphold affirmative action in student admissions. Listen to her proclaim that a student admissions process which violates the Fourteenth Amendment's Equal Protection Clause by favoring "underrepresented minority groups" does not in fact violate the Fourteenth Amendment's Equal Protection Clause because A is not A if the mob says so. Listen to her proclaim that the Constitution upholds discrimination on the basis of race: "the Constitution does not prohibit the law school's narrowly tailored use of race in admissions decisions to further a compelling interest in obtaining the educational benefits that flow from a diverse student body." Listen to her uphold the swastika policies of racial preferences and race biased admissions: "The Court takes the Law School at its word that it would like nothing better than to find a race neutral admissions formula and will terminate its use of racial preferences as soon as practicable. The Court expects that twenty five years from now, the use of racial preferences will no longer be necessary to further the interest approved today." The next judge studied in this report is Ruth Bader Ginsburg, appointed to the Court in 1993. Listen to Ginsburg in the case Olmstead vs Lois Curtis. (1999). Listen to her reject the existence of free will and personal responsibility and proclaim that mental illness is a medical disability and not a character failing. Listen to her proclaim that people who choose to become mentally ill are covered by the Americans with Disabilities Act. Listen to her proclaim that the forced institutionalization of a person who has chosen to become mentally ill is a form of discrimination under Title II of the ADA. Listen to her proclaim that mentally ill people have a legal right to receive community placement in place of institutionalization: "The State's treatment professionals have determined that community placement is appropriate, [b] the transfer from institutional care to a less restrictive setting is not opposed by the affected individual, and [c] the placement can be reasonably accommodated, taking into account the resources available to the State and the needs of others with mental disabilities. Unjustified isolation is discrimination based on disability." The next judge studied in this report is Sonia Sotomayor, appointed to the court in 2009. Listen to Sotomayor in the case Schutte vs Coalition to Defend Affirmative Action (2014). Listen to her proclaim that race and sex based discrimination in public university admissions does not violate the Fourteenth Amendment's Equal Protection Clause even though it does, because the constitution means whatever politics and ideology say it means. Listen to her proclaim that the system of equal protection for all and selection on the basis merit disadvantages racial minorities. Listen to her proclaim that racist admissions policies are justified on the grounds of achieving racial diversity. Listen to her proclaim that Article One of the Michigan Constitution, which states that "Michigan's public universities shall not discriminate against, or grant preferential treatment to, any individual or group on the basis of race, sex, color, ethnicity, or national origin in the operation of public employment, public education, or public contracting", has no place in a progressive society, which mandates racist and sexist policies in all public and private spheres. The next judge studied in this report is Elena Kagan, appointed to the court in 2010. Look at the philosophy of Kagan and see rabbits pulled out of hats and fed to the mobs like raw flesh. See laws rewritten to include rights never before dreamed of but demanded by the reds in the present day. See a massive act of deception perpetrated and the noble banner of legal textualism paraded in an attempt to negate and deny legal textualism and to manufacture rights out of thin air. See Title VII of the Civil Rights Act recast, reworded and reworked as a declaration of protection against what it does not mention, discrimination against homosexuals, and as a declaration of assault against reality. This assault has assumed the form of denying the fact that sex is determined by genes and not by human activity, and by declaring that people can choose their own sex and those who identify as members of the opposite sex have a right to be treated as members of that sex and to be protected by antidiscrimination laws covering that sex: "If you wanted to bolster the idea that sexual orientation and gender identity ought to be included in the protections extended by Title VII, this was a canny line of questioning. Kagan was appealing to textualism—an approach generally associated with conservative jurists. She was saying that what mattered was the words of the statute, not what legislators might have intended. Nor did it matter that, since 1964, Congress had not amended Title VII to specifically cover sexual orientation or gender identity. The relevant language of the 1964 law forbade employment discrimination 'because of sex, and, Kagan was suggesting, it should therefore protect a man who was fired for dating men, if a woman who dated men would not have been fired." (Is The Supreme Court's Fate In Elena Kagan's Hands? by Margaret Talbot). The last judge studied in this report is Amy Coney Barrett, appointed to the court in 2020. Look at Barrett's rulings and see a philosophy of brazen state worship broadcast in the form of high handed, peremptory, one line orders issued against those who sought justice. Confronted with the fact that the Pennsylvania Supreme Court did not have the power to expand mail in voting in the 2020 presidential election, Barrett ruled no standing. Confronted again with the Pennsylvania Supreme Court's unconstitutional actions, Barrett next ruled moot. Confronted with the fact that four states, Michigan, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, and Georgia, allowed widespread voter fraud in the 2020 presidential election, Barrett ruled no standing. Confronted with the fact that the Individual Mandate provision of the Affordable Care Act is unconstitutional whether or not penalties are attached to it for noncompliance, Barrett ruled no standing. Civilized, law abiding people understand that when a government in a society violates the law, every human being in that society has a moral right and a moral standing to challenge and sue, and therefore has a legal right and a legal standing to sue. In his novel The World Set Free, H. G. Wells describes a special type of nuclear bomb which explodes indefinitely. Over the past half century, five judicial bombs have been placed on the United States Supreme Court. Five women, five specimens of permanent radicalization, exploding without surcease in the final, lawless hours of America.

THE BLACK BOYS FROM BRAZIL

Josef Mengele was a German doctor and SS officer during World War II. At the Auschwitz concentration camp, he performed deadly experiments on prisoners and helped to select the Jews to be killed in the gas chambers. After the war, he fled to South America and settled in Brazil, where he died. Students of history have seen the ghost of Mengele hover over the present day. They see the notorious practitioner of race based medicine come alive in every hospital in America. They see a diabolical criminal operating under the guise of a medical doctor disgrace his profession by selecting people to die based on their race. The Mengele whom students of history have beheld today was brought back to life by a neoMarxist movement which has captured the hearts and minds of the masses. Students of history see a monster of racism stalk the corridors of medical clinics and hospitals, a monster animated by electrodes surging with the currents of Marx, Hitler and today's latest fearsome and terrifying version of these: black racism, black tribalism, black nationalism and the worship of the black will to power. They have seen today's Marxists and Hitlerites compose a program and manifesto of hate medicine and the repeal of the Hippocratic Oath which has sent a chill of fear racing through the hearts of civilized medical professionals dedicated to the art and science healing people and not harming them. The manifesto students of history have seen and from which they have recoiled in horror proclaims that a progressive hospital has established a system of preferential admissions for black patients. It proclaims that a progressive medical center is a racially biased medical center which ignores white sufferers of cardiac disease and lets them die. It proclaims that a progressive medical system refuses to treat white heart failure patients because capitalism is a system of institutional white racism. It proclaims that a progressive medical center rejects race neutral criteria for access to services and reserves treatment to blacks on the grounds that capitalism is the white man's lash of systemic racism. It proclaims that hospital admissions procedures must be fixed to exclude whites and to admit only blacks as an act of medical restitution and medical reparations for slavery. It proclaims that a progressive medical system favors blacks over whites and calls its racism antiracism and its black swastika politics justice. It proclaims that a progressive medical system has established race based medical care in the name of altering unequal outcomes. It proclaims that a progressive medical association is a propaganda machine which advocates the denial of medical care to whites in the name of racial and social justice. It proclaims that a progressive medical school has renounced meritocracy in the admissions, graduation and licensing of medical students in favor of preferential treatment of black candidates. It proclaims that a progressive medical school ignores student test scores and favors black students in the name of achieving equitable outcomes. It proclaims that a progressive medical school subordinates instruction in diagnosing and treating illnesses to instruction in critical race theory, which teaches that white people are inherently racist and must be deprived of all their rights and that the capitalist system must be criticized and overthrown as a white man's system. It proclaims that a progressive medical school suppresses empirically established research which demonstrates increased the susceptibility of blacks to certain diseases on the grounds of political incorrectness. It proclaims that a progressive medical school teaches that every disease which afflicts blacks has been caused by whites and by the white racist capitalist system. It proclaims that the fact that blacks suffer from vitamin D deficiency twice as often as whites is the fault of Western capitalism and colonialism. It proclaims that a progressive medical school has suppressed the empirically established fact that blacks have lower kidney function than whites on the grounds that it promotes "the false narrative that black bodies are inherently inferior to white bodies." The reds' manifesto proclaims that a progressive medical school rejects independent, rational, critical thinking, subordinates empirical science to black racist ideology, and tolerates no dissent whatever from its dogmas. It proclaims that a progressive medical school rejects the liberal ideal of race blind quality medical care for all, peddles racist hate mongering and pseudoscience, and promotes institutionalized discrimination and the privileging of blacks over whites. Look at the world of Hitler's present day generation and see its members advocate unabashed racial discrimination and hatred of whites. See them emulate their German fuhrer and advocate race explicit medical care. See them advocate racist medicine in the name of justice and equity. See them advocate racially biased attitudes in the name of diversity and inclusion. See them compose a set of criteria for treating people who are ill and place in first, second, third and all places the criteria: race, race, race and race. See them advocate that black patients be treated by black doctors and that white patients be treated by no doctors. See them advocate a black Aryan medical system in the name of a proactively antiracist agenda. See them advocate Hitler explicit medical action in the name of human rights. See them condemn capitalism as a system of structural racism. See them place medical science in an airplane marked critical race theory and fly it into an envelope of gases swirling with virulent criticisms of capitalism, white people and Western civilization, an envelope which surrounds the fuhrerbunker of the Devil. See them hawk racist pseudoscholarship in black Marxist bookshops. See them plant the banners of hate on a new pseudodiscipline called social medicine, black medicine and national socialist medicine. See them dress up race hoodlums as legal scholars and send them rampaging through medical schools. See them reject colorblind medical treatment in the name of black civil rights. See them advocate race based standards of medical care and the exclusion of whites. See them dress up race agitators as law professors and send them on shouting tours through hospitals. See them reject traditional equal protection laws and advocate a regime of medical neglect and oppression of whites. See them condemn constitutional rights and liberal enlightenment as movements pervaded by racism and advocate the return of primitive social existence and the extermination of every moral principle known to civilized mankind: "As we began to advocate for change within our institution, however, we encountered significant resistance to calling this discrepancy an instance of institutional racism and to making race explicit interventions—even at a time when the documentation of racial health inequities is accelerating. In medicine, as in other domains, the default options for addressing racial inequality are often limited: implicit bias training, diversity and inclusion efforts, the adoption of supposedly objective checklist style clinical criteria for decision making. These policies may help to mitigate some health inequities—increasing racial and ethnic diversity of health care providers is essential, given the evidence that black patients with black providers have better outcomes in many contexts—but history has convinced us that these options are not sufficient. Implicit bias training and checklists offer indirect solutions where more direct forms of race explicit action are available; the objectivity aspired to in clinical criteria is also inevitably tainted by the pervasiveness of structural racism. What we need instead, we have come to believe, is a proactively antiracist agenda for medicine. Our path to this realization, as with nearly all advancements in social medicine, took us outside our discipline—through the field of critical race theory (CRT), in particular. This body of scholarship emerged thirty years ago when a group of legal scholars challenged the conventional wisdom that colorblind civil rights efforts could effectively dismantle structural racism. 'The general use of so-called neutral standards to continue exclusionary practices,' Harvard law professor Derrick Bell argued in 1992, 'reduces the effectiveness of traditional civil rights laws, while rendering discriminatory actions more oppressive than ever.' After more than five decades of colorblind law, the phenomenon Bell described has only worsened, and the stubborn persistence of racial inequities—both in health care and across society at large—gives the lie to the effectiveness of colorblind policies." (An Antiracist Agenda For Medicine by Bram Wispelwey and Michelle Morse). Marching under the midnight torchlights of racial monomania, Doctor Evil has arrived in the dying hours of Western civilization and taken over the medical profession. Honors graduates of the jungles of Soviet Russia and the Third Reich, today's race hating doctors have solemnly sworn an oath on the bibles of black power: "First, do maximum harm".

FAUST'S ENGLISH PLAYWRIGHT

impassioned soliloquy. Larger than life, he spoke his feverish thoughts aloud and attracted the attention of the world. This stage, enveloped in the darkness of night, dissolved into a forest soaring out of the ancient plains of Northern Europe. It was a German forest, a wild, raging growth of woodland reaching out into infinity, an expression of power and subjectivity the likes of which mankind had never seen before, and it was the matrix of a new culture called the West. From these untamed German evening lands came a figure who would symbolize the essence of the West. Making a pact with the Devil to give away his soul in exchange for infinite power, feeling and experience, this figure was called Faust. This Western doctor of the diabolical arts wanted his philosophy dramatized on stage by the West's leading playwrights. His first appointment was a playwright from England. He placed this playwright on stage and told him to talk, in pure subjectivist, Faustian fashion, to himself and set forth the program and manifesto of the fearsome and terrifying, the destructive and the magnificent, culture of Faust, the Germans, the Devil and the West. This playwright's name was William Shakespeare. Hailed as the greatest writer in the English language and the world's greatest playwright, Shakespeare took his place before the klieg lights of history and declaimed in thunderous, stentorian tones the Western view of the nature of existence, reality, knowledge and the good. As far removed from Classical philosophy as midnight is removed from noonday, the philosophy of Shakespeare, dictated to him by Faust, proclaimed the following. It proclaimed that human beings are divided, damaged and endlessly dissolving creatures. It proclaimed that the highest form of speech is syntactically disjointed speech which celebrates personal disintegration and subjectivity. It proclaimed that the highest type of person is a narcissist who embraces only himself. It proclaimed that the highest type of language is the language of self assertion, self definition and total inward reflection. It proclaimed that man is a being who is divided in his soul and has a fragmented sense of self. It proclaimed that what is called the self is in fact composed of multiple, conflicting selves which deceive each other and betray each other. It proclaimed that the world of physical objects is an illusion and the only relationship a person can have is the relationship with his own soul and consciousness. It proclaimed that man is a being who is unstable and forever alienated, ruptured and estranged from himself. It proclaimed that man has an unstable relationship with the world around him because the world does not fully exist. It proclaimed that the highest type of experience is inward, intimate, self experience. It proclaimed that what is called reality is that which is experienced phenomenologically, subjectively, and as a fabrication which has emerged from the depths of consciousness. It proclaimed that the highest type of morality is a morality of delirium which exalts terrifying violence as thrilling and exciting. It proclaimed that the term existence refers to myself and to nothing beyond myself. It proclaimed that what is called existence is shaped and constituted by the forms of man's consciousness. It proclaimed that to exist in the highest manner is to care only about oneself and about the contents of one's own consciousness. It proclaimed that existence precedes essence, to be is to be nothing, and consciousness can arbitrarily fashion the natures and essences of things. It proclaimed that the only true being in the world is the being which we ourselves are. It proclaimed that there are no physical objects which are as they are and what is called existence is a state of constant flux and is constantly formed and reformed through the individual's actions, choices, feelings and ideas. It proclaimed that there are no physical objects in the world, such as tables or chairs, but only a series of mental events and forms of mental life. It proclaimed that consciousness is the primary reality; it alone exists in itself, for itself and by itself; and there are no facts which can held to exist outside the proportions and dimensions of conscious existence. It proclaimed that man's mental frameworks structure all his observations and apprehensions of the world. It proclaimed that what is called truth is a product of personal, social, cultural and historical situations and has no basis in empirical facts or observations. It proclaimed that life is a pointless, meaningless struggle against absurd and irrational forces. It proclaimed that there is rational order or purpose in the world and man is free to create any moral rules he desires. It proclaimed that there are no universal, objective moral values and the highest type of religion is a religion of whim, will and desire. It proclaimed that all man's choices are arbitrary and there is no reasonable basis for his motivations, justifications or impulses. It proclaimed that the essence of human life is that of pure action and motion guided by nothing more than the will: "Life is a tale/Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury,/Signifying nothing". (Macbeth). Look at the world of Shakespeare and see black clad psychopaths spreading a gospel of speed, danger and total destruction. See archetypal criminals sweeping across society in vertiginous swirls of bombs and bullets. See rebels without a cause kidnap law abiding citizens, take them on joyrides along the freeways of the nation, and make their heads convulse in anxiety, dread, dizziness and nausea. See philosophically, psychologically and emotionally disturbed people smash and loot homes and offices with the rifles of malcontentment and be lauded as national heroes. See troublemakers alienated from civilized society agitate mobs in sewers and cesspools and lead them on rampages through towns and countrysides. See schizophrenics recite chapter and verse from Hamlet and pray in Hamlet's cathedrals whose names are the following: contradiction, confusion, subjectivity, unpredictability, upheaval, human consciousness is the origin of existence, the external world is a mirror of the inner self, meaning and value are arbitrarily made and unmade by the human mind, the highest type of morality is the will to negation, man is a ruthless, remorseless, beast of prey, the human condition is a savage condition, and a progressive world is the universal reign of horror and depredation whose crimes shock and disgust upstanding people: "As an angst ridden malcontent dressed in black and troubled by a lacerating self consciousness, Hamlet has often been characterized as the archetypal existentialist. Critical of the rise of popular existentialist fiction, Charles I. Glicksberg remarked that 'the existentialist novelist is the philosophical Hamlet of our age, suffering from spells of nihilistic madness, metaphysical nausea, ontological dolor.' Christine Gomez argues that Hamlet can 'be seen as an anticipation of the existential hero,' because he is 'an individual who reflects on human existence and his own predicament in the universe and becomes aware of his alienation from the human condition.' Such assessments of Hamlet and existentialism as synonymous reduce and simplify both the powerful philosophical insights of existentialism and Hamlet's confrontation with complex existential issues and problems. These kinds of 'existential' assessments echo Nietzsche's problematic reading of Hamlet. According to Nietzsche, Hamlet gains an 'insight into the horrific truth' which reveals that the world is irreparably out of joint. 'Conscious of the truth once glimpsed,' Nietzsche continues, 'man now sees all around him only the horrific or absurd aspects of existence. It disgusts him.' To be sure, Hamlet's corrosive lucidity allows him to see through the hypocrisy, insincerity and scheming ways of other people, but he does not experience a Schopenhauerian epiphany which shows him the way things really are. Hamlet is obsessed with the way things appear to him and with the way his consciousness attributes meaning to the world. As many critics have observed, the existential richness of the play is created by Hamlet's intense awareness of the baffling, contradictory and volatile nature of his own subjectivity. John Lee writes: 'what [Hamlet] values especially, and what he feels crucially defines his identity, is his relationship with his inner world. It is the I's unique separateness, and its ability to be its own source of value, that the Prince asserts.' But what function of human consciousness makes this inner self relation possible? We can only properly assess the dimensions of Hamlet's subjectivity by reading the play in light of existentialism's theories of consciousness. After a what is Hamlet if not a study in the motives and the movements of the human mind?" (Shakespeare's Existentialism by Charlotte Keys). In private spaces and public stages throughout the world, Shakespeare's actors have crowded out the vanishing community of educated, developed, advanced human beings. The protagonists of the Faustian West are relentless, inescapable, inexorable and militantly active in every sector of society. Delivering lines composed by the Bard Of Avon. they have brought the story of civilization to an ignominious finish.

UNDERMAN FROM MOSCOW

The term subhuman is used by zoologists to designate a class of primates who are closely related to human beings. Two million years ago, three subhuman species lived side by side in South Africa and belonged to the classes Australopithecus, Paranthropus and Homo. Students of history use the term subhuman to designate cultures which are especially debased and depraved and exhibit an especially low moral level of existence. Confronted with the sorry spectacle of primitivism and savagery which has sullied the canvas of human history for thousands of years, students of history have selected one culture in particular as most worthy of the designation subhuman by virtue of the enormity of evil it has visited upon mankind. This culture was founded by Eastern barbarian peoples, by the Mongols and the Slavs, one thousand years ago on the steppes and grasslands of Asia and Europe and its name, Russian, is held by students of history to define and exemplify what it means for a human social organization to be primitive and savage. Students of history have issued their report on the Russians and to read it is to read a story of horror surpassing the stories of demons, witches, vampires and werewolves composed down through the ages, a story which has frightened and repelled civilized people as nothing else ever has or ever will. The story of the Russians is the story of a collectivist nation, culture, community and soul. It is the story a people who proclaim that individuals should not work for the purpose of achieving self fulfillment or self perfection but only to support the state and the community. It is the story of a people who love to drink alcohol, who drink a lot of alcohol, and who drink for the sole purpose of becoming intoxicated. It is the story of a people who justify the sacrifice of the individual to the state in the name of patriotism, courage, patience and perseverance. It is the story of a people who are incapable of engaging in peaceful, law abiding daily life and seek to gain meaning in their lives through acts of war and violence. It is the story of a people who are miserly in giving their neighbors a modicum of freedom and respect but generous in ladling out barrellfuls of force and aggression against them. It is the story of a people who are the comrades and brothers of mass murderers throughout the world. It is the story of a people who established an industrial system based upon communist slave labor. It is the story of a people who collapse into indolence and lethargy when allowed to live and work for themselves but rise to supercharged currents of energy and industriousness when commandeered as forced laborers for the state. It is the story of a people who harbor no aspirations to personal freedom and are saturated in an awareness of the totality and of nothing else except the totality. It is the story of a people who have no sense of individual selfhood and are imbued in every fiber of their being with selfless collective consciousness. It is the story of a people who are blindly obedient to the dictates of the state and are arrogantly domineering over those who possess no power. It is the story of a people who reject all gods except one and are devout in their worship of this single god: the state. It is the story of a people who have no place to call home except in the churches, the congregations, the programs and the ideologies of abject service, sharing and self sacrifice. It is the story of a people which subjects those who perform honest work and produce righteous values to endless volleys of cruelty, oppression and exploitation at the hands of state authorities. It is the story of a people whose working class was sold, robbed and killed by the czars of the church and throne and by the commissars of the party and the revolution. It is the story of a people whose social system was a serf system which mandated zero development of society. It is the story of a people possessed of a vast, illiterate slave class deprived of all opportunities for education and advancement. It is the story of a people whose inhabitants were the private property of the authorities. It is the story of a people controlled by a Marxist autarchy and by a serf system justified in the name of proletarian liberation. It is the story of a people whose character can be encapsulated in a single phrase: submissiveness to social authority. It is the story of a people whose citizens are proud of their attitude toward the onrushing juggernaut of state power: the attitude of no resistance, no complaint, no remonstrance and no lament. It is the story of a people whose citizens are the most warlike people in the world and justify campaigns of aggression, expansion, invasion and occupation in the name of love for the nation and the prerogatives of Big Russia. It is the story of a people whose souls are uncultivated, uninhabited, unenlightened and inhospitable. It is the story of a people who are inefficient and unproductive when performing honest work but skilled to the highest levels of proficiency in the arts of looting and plundering. It is the story of a people whose intelligence is unguided by moral precepts of any kind and confined exclusively to formulating the strategies and tactics of armed conflict and empire building. Look at the world of the Russians and see them promote a morality of blind submission to the Higher Powers. See them proclaim the rights of anybody and everybody, the rights of friends, family, neighbors, community, nation and state, and devalue the rights of one's own self. See them elevate mystical, unfathomable collective existence above concrete, comprehensible, individual existence and make it the basis of a fearsome and terrifying religion: "According to the numerous deductions and conclusions resulting from my research concerning the profit contemporary people can obtain from new impressions coming from what they read or hear, and also according to the thought of one of the sayings of popular wisdom I have just remembered, handed down to our days from very ancient times, 'Any prayer may be heard and granted by the Higher Powers only if it is uttered three times: First—for the welfare or the peace of the souls of one's parents, Second—for the welfare of one's neighbor, And only third—for oneself personally,'--I find it necessary on the first page of this book, now ready for publication, to give the following advice. Read each of my written expositions three times. First—at least as you have already become mechanized to read all your contemporary books and newspapers. Second—as if you were reading aloud to another person, And only third—try to fathom the gist of my writings. Only then will you be able to count upon forming your own impartial judgment, proper to yourself alone, on my writings And only then can my hope be actualized that according to your understanding you will obtain the specific benefit for yourself which I anticipate, and which I wish for you with all my being." (Beelzebub's Tales To His Grandson by G. I. Gurdjieff). Look at the world of the Russians and see them exalt socialist revolution above individual freedom. See them sacrifice human rights upon the altar of Soviet power. See them organize a movement of totalitarian enslavement in the name of combating bourgeois-democratic values. See them agitate for a transition from a free society to a communist society. See them sabotage capitalist institutions and stir up public opinion against individuals who seek to live and work for themselves. See them wipe out every last trace and vestige of human liberty in the name of suppressing the exploiters and the oppressors. See them disperse the assemblies of freedom and lock their deputies in jail. See them organize a national struggle against the rule of reason and march under the banners of a religion of the proletariat. See the Russian masses, the Russian rank and file, the sewers and waste conduits of Russian society, and the committees and commissars of Russian Bolshevik dictatorship join together in a mighty red front to lower the curtain on progress and civilization: "(α) Recognition of the revolution of October 25. as a socialist revolution. (β) Rejection of all limitations to this in the spirit of reversion to the bourgeois-democratic revolution (gradual transition; stage of the bloc with the petty bourgeoisie, etc.). (γ) Dictatorship of the proletariat, its special features as compared with general, formal (bourgeois) democracy, its tactics. (δ) Soviet power and the power of the Bolsheviks. (ε) Agreement with the petty bourgeois not in the sense of a bloc for a bourgeois-democratic revolution, not in the sense of restricting the tasks of the socialist revolution, but exclusively in the sense of the forms of transition to socialism on the part of different sections of the petty bourgeoisie. (ζ) Bourgeois liberties versus suppression of the exploiters. (η) Saboteurs and capitalists; capitalists and public opinion of the bourgeois. (θ) The Constituent Assembly and its subordination to the Soviet power, to the interests and conditions of the civil war." (Theses On The Tasks Of The Party And The Present Situation by Vladimir Lenin). A visit to Russia provokes an emotional, psychological and physical response in civilized people which causes them to react with fear. They see things which are evil, menacing, life destroying and antithetical to human flourishing. They see a parade of psychopaths, satanists, serial killers and advocates of dark magic commit crimes in the name of Mother Earth, Mother Russia, cosmic consciousness and the world proletariat. They see mystics of God and mystics of the Collective blacken the story of mankind.

BEFORE THE ISLAMISTS: BLACKS AND JEWS LEAD WORLD REVOLUTION

A tidal wave is a vast ocean wave caused by an earthquake or underwater explosion. In 1946 and 1961, monster tidal waves called tsunamis leveled the Hawaiian island of Hilo and left rubble and ruination in their wake. Students of history have been compelled to employ the image of a tidal wave to describe the manifestation of a phenomenon they have found fearsome and terrifying. The image is inescapable because the phenomenon has staggered, shattered and overwhelmed the free world. This is the phenomenon of invasion by the forces of antiliberalism and it has been carried in the main by three social groups whose attacks have formed three great surges of crime and conspiracy. Prior to the present invasion by the forces of Islam, there was a Marxist attack on the West spearheaded by two groups. The Marxists are still fighting the free world but the original two groups have declined in importance as Marxism has spread to all sectors of society and to every home, school, office and government in the land. Students of history have been compelled to study these two original red factions as part of their postmortem examination of the West. These two groups are blacks and Jews and the story of their embrace of communism is the story of the early symptoms of cultural degeneration and the story of bellwether assaults launched by the enemies of freedom, assaults which indicated and predicted the frightening and repellent shape of things to come. Students of history have issued their report on the black and Jewish revolt against liberal democracy and to read their report is to read a case study of a malfunction which afflicts all those who have renounced the rule of reason and capitalism. Students of history have observed that blacks and Jews arrived at communism through different paths. Jews arrived at communism under the influence of the reform movement which commenced in the eighteenth century, during the Age of Enlightenment, under the leadership of Moses Mendelssohn. The reform movement at this time rejected the orthodox Jewish worship of God and, in true Enlightenment fashion, proclaimed the primacy of reason and science. When the Age of Enlightenment was swept away by the Age of Romanticism, the reform Jews, following the changing tenor of the times, renounced reason and science. But they did not revert back to the discredited orthodox Jewish worship of God in heaven, but substituted a mystical worship of society for the mystical worship of God, and advanced toward the teachings of Marx. During the Enlightenment, reform Jews, like everybody else at the time, were true atheists; after the Enlightenment, reform Jews, like everybody else, abandoned atheism and became theists whose objects of veneration were now social collectives on earth. Reform Jews during the Enlightenment were a glorious lot. They were glorious because they were not Jews. They were glorious because they renounced all forms of religion and embraced the world of reason, science, capitalism and individual rights. All the contributions made by the Jews to the advancement of Western civilization were made by reform Jews, and not a single contribution was made by orthodox Jews. After the Enlightenment, reform Jews promoted mystical Marxism under the banners of atheism and science. Blacks arrived at communism during the early decades of the twentieth century, when they allowed themselves to be radicalized by Marxist identity politics, which movement was radicalizing all the mobs at this time. Emancipated from the chains of slavery by Enlightenment thought, blacks in the twentieth century turned their backs on the Enlightenment and promoted a new form of slavery: the universal slavery brought by those who worshiped at altars marked the people, the proletariat and the communist party. In their campaigns against the capitalist system which commenced in the twentieth century, blacks and Jews worked closely together and coordinated all their activities. Students of history have observed the following cases of collusion and have recited a litany of treason whose names, facts and elements are stamped ignominiously black and Jew and Jew and black. They have seen a 1921 directive of the Communist International written by Soviet chief of propaganda, Karl Radek. The alias of a Jewish revolutionary named Sobelsohn, Radek gave orders to the Communist Party of America to agitate blacks and lead them on race wars against whites. Students of history have seen the American Jewish Congress and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People join forces to promote communist power in the name of black civil rights. Look at the world of blacks and Jews and see menacing forces at work promoting proletarian socialism and leftist tyranny. See Jewish committees formed to defend red terrorists. See Jewish leaders finance communist revolution. See alien tribes smash the shops and storefronts of law abiding citizens. See foreign warriors march on the capitals of free nations and take over their governments. See red movements, fronts, parties and conspiracies reinstate the Devil in power. See Jewish lawyers rush to the aid of communist bomb throwers. See red subversion justified by Jewish counsel. See Jewish agitators march under the banners of Lenin and Trotsky. See Jewish radicals speak the language of insurrection and place homes and neighborhoods in harm's way. See Jewish troublemakers bring Bolshevik leaders to the precincts of the West. See Jewish judges compose briefs in defense of communist mass murderers. See Jewish intellectuals advocate the theory and practice of the red totalitarian state. See Jewish organizations nurture traitors and backstabbers to the cause of liberty. See Jewish newspapers foment communist violence in the streets. See red anarchists run surging currents of fear and chaos through every sector of society. See Jewish wire pullers protect the welfare of communist hoodlums. See Jewish delegates to the world communist movement lead the charge to make class hatred the ruler of nations, to place class envy upon the thrones of power, to establish a dictatorship of the underclasses, the underworlds, the unachievers and the malcontents, and to destroy the traditions and institutions of freedom and civilization: "One of the most sinister men in America, an Austrian Jew named Felix Frankfurter, leader of the radical World Zionist movement and a lifelong advocate of socialism and left wing objectives. Felix Frankfurter was head of defense committee for Sacco and Vanzetti, anarchists who were electrocuted in Massachusetts in 1927. A law partner of Henry L. Stimson in the firm of Winthrop and Stimson, lawyers for Kuhn, Loeb Company, international Jewish bankers who financed the communist revolution in Russia, Frankfurter was first thrust upon the American people by President Woodrow Wilson, who brought a horde of alien socialists to Washington and set up the socialist hierarchy which was reinstated in power fifteen years later by his understudy Franklin D. Roosevelt. Wilson appointed Frankfurter as counsel for the Presidential Mediation Commission in the Mooney Case. As the defender of a group of communist bomb throwers and terrorists, Frankfurter had the temerity to try to influence Theodore Roosevelt in the decision. Theodore Roosevelt replied in an open letter which has been publicized for years, as follows: 'You have taken and are taking an attitude which seems to me to be fundamentally that of Trotsky and the other Bolshevik leaders in Russia, an attitude which may be fraught with mischief to this country. There again you have engaged in excusing men precisely like the Bolsheviks in Russia, who are murderers and encourage others to murder, who are traitors to their allies, democracy and civilization, as well as to the United States, and whose acts are nevertheless apologized for on grounds, my dear Mr Frankfurter, substantially like those which you allege.' The official publication of the World Zionist Organization, the Zionist Bulletin, reported in the issue of September 2, 1919: 'A dinner in honor of the Honorable Justice Brandeis, prior to his return to America, was given by the Executive of the World Zionist Organization on August 26 at the Ritz Hotel. Professor Frankfurter, in proposing the toast to his Majesty's Government, referred to the months of hard work in which he and the other Jewish delegates had been engaged in Paris. They often spoke in different tongues; but they were all animated by a single sentiment—the welfare of Israel and the good of Zion.' (Communism Hits South With Nonsegregation by Eustace Mullins). Hatred is a monster which wears many faces. Its present day faces are Marxism and Islam, which have joined forces in a war to overthrow Western civilization. Before the advent of Islamist terror, black and Jewish communists led the revolt against civilization. Before the advent of Islamist terror, a Jewish communist movement trained and instigated tens of millions of blacks as an army to riot and rampage through homes, schools, cities and public squares. Before the advent of Islamist terror, the forces of hatred were led by blacks and Jews who fomented violence and disorder in the early stages of civilization's decline.

WORLD'S TEACHERS RALLY ON RED SQUARE

Scene: July 1917, Saint Petersburg. Communist rioters come under gunfire by the forces of the law. Armed demonstrations staged by communist soldiers, sailors and industrial workers seek to overthrow the liberal democratic Provisional Government established after the abdication of Czar Nicholas II. Scene: November 1917, Petrograd. An armed insurrection of communist soldiers, sailors, industrial workers and Red Guards invades and occupies government buildings and captures the Winter Palace, the seat of the Provisional Government. These dark scenes of mob criminality marching atop the banners of the communist religion are ever on the minds of students of history as they survey the field of present day society. These dismal scenes of communist discontent at the forms of civilization stalk the corridors of their imagination as they seek to discover the true meaning of contemporary events. These horrific scenes of red violence staged in the age of cultural doomsday have focused the attentive gaze of students of history like a laser beam on the streets, squares and classrooms of the world. For in these venues, the ghosts and specters of Russia's revolutionary past have come alive and declared total war on the education of free citizens. In these venues, the world's teachers have assembled to fight for the abolition of liberal education and the transformation of schools into centers of Marxist indoctrination, recruitment, agitation and revolution. Students of history have issued their report on today's educational establishment and those who have read it have been exposed to a program and manifesto of red subversion of young minds the likes of which they have never seen before, an official, state sanctioned program which has sent shock waves of fear and anxiety surging through their souls. To read this program is to read a suicide letter composed by the West and to read what happens to a society when reason, intellect and intelligence are run out of town by disorderly crowds waving placards and shouting slogans promoting the tribal dogmas of the reds. This program enacted by the red teachers of the world proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches the tenets of critical race theory, which state that liberal democracy must be examined critically through the lens of race and be rejected in favor of black swastika politics, and teaches this theory even in locales where it is banned by law. It proclaims that a progressive educational system is run by far left teachers unions which force critical race theory propaganda into the minds of students and target teachers who oppose it. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that capitalism is a system of racism, sexism and oppression of the working class. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that capitalism is a system which discriminates against homosexuals. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that capitalism is a system of black slavery and structural racism. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that America was founded in the dispossession of morally and culturally superior Native American savages. It proclaims that America was founded to protect and consolidate the institution of slavery. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that capitalism is a system of racial inequality where the white man rules and lords over blacks. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that capitalism is a system of police violence against blacks. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that capitalism is a prison system and gulag for nonwhites. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that capitalism deprives blacks of food, housing and employment opportunities. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that liberal democratic societies are tainted with a deep dyed antiblackness. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that the history of capitalism is the history of oppression and exploitation of women, nonwhites and the poor. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that capitalism must be overthrown by a coalition of the oppressed: women, blacks, hispanics, transgenders, homosexuals, Islamists and indigenous peoples. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that capitalism is a system of wealth inequality which steals money from the poor who create wealth and redistributes it into the pockets of the idle rich. It proclaims that a progressive educational system indoctrinates students in radical left identity politics and the necessity to organize social justice movements. It proclaims that a progressive educational system programs inculcates students with the principles of Marxist cultural ideology. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that all moral, political, social and economic issues are racial issues and that the superior black race must launch a race war and eradicate whites from the face of the earth. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that liberal democracy is a system in which whites are allowed to oppress and victimize people of color. It proclaims that a progressive educational system holds national days of action to teach lessons on the necessity of spreading violence in the streets in the name of justice and equity for women, nonwhites and the poor. It proclaims that a progressive educational system is controlled by social justice warriors who bully students into believing that capitalism equals white racism and that justice demands discrimination in favor of blacks. It proclaims that a progressive educational system is controlled by federations and associations of red activists dedicated to teaching history and civics from the point of view of black power. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that races are not equal, that blacks are inherently superior to whites, and that what is right and wrong is whatever blacks say is right and wrong and whatever serves their needs and interests. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches the virtues of black racism and female sexism in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. It proclaims that a progressive educational system teaches that whites are genetically racist and more they deny their racism, the more racist they are. Look at the world of today's teachers and see a campaign to transform kindergartens and primary schools into communist draft boards and enlistment centers. See a campaign to teach students that capitalism is a system which discriminates against blacks and homosexuals. See a campaign to send students marching and goose stepping to radical political plans and schedules. See a campaign to assault science and reality in the name subjective gender identity. See a campaign to destroy the structure of homes, families, neighborhoods, nations and civilizations. See a campaign to transform students into red rioters and demonstrators. See a campaign to teach children that capitalism is a system of heteropatriarchal oppression. See a campaign to justify state violence in the name of black civil rights. See a campaign to train students in the theory and practice of Marxist revolution. See a campaign to instruct students on how to become communist community organizers. See a campaign to place truth and knowledge into ideological settings, sacrifice them on the altars of political correctness, and nail them on crosses of the will to power. See a campaign to create a movement of black folk, black Aryans, black Marxists and black swastika hoodlums carrying placards marked Black Lives Matter, a movement which will storm the ramparts of liberal institutions and bring about the collapse of the West: "Some government schools are celebrating Black Lives Matter at School Week using lesson plan resources from Black Lives Matter (BLM) that teach children as young as kindergarten age the culture of white, heterosexual people from traditional families led by a father and mother must be overturned. Seattle KTTH 770 conservative talker Jason Rantz wrote Wednesday that Seattle Public Schools (SPS) is celebrating Black Lives Matter at School Week as black history month gets underway, during which kindergarten age children are taught 'radical, political agendas' on gender identity and about disrupting the 'nuclear family structure.' The host of the Jason Rantz Show wrote at mynorthwest.com that some parents have called into his show to express that the curriculum is teaching their children how to become political activists. BLM cofounder Alicia Garza, Rantz explained, believes the issues of her organization are closely tied to gender identity, as she explained in 2014: 'Black queer and trans folks bearing a unique burden in a heteropatriarchal society that disposes of us like garbage and simultaneously fetishizes us and profits off of us is state violence.' Breitbart News reported in June that, in a 2015 video, another BLM cofounder, Patrisse Cullors, revealed that the founders of BLM are 'trained Marxists.' " (Black Lives Matter at School Teaches Young Children To Be Transgender And Queer Affirming by Susan Berry). The world has been submerged in vast open areas where the streets of radicalism and revolution meet. It has become an expanse of tribal politics trod upon by the raging horsemen of mob rule. Their signs and megaphones blare out the following. Education as indoctrination. Education as propaganda. Education as agitation. Education as training for the fuhrer's youth groups fighting for the tribes of gender, race and class. Education as currents of dark electricity fashioning women, transgenders, nonwhites, indigenous peoples and the poor into relentless monsters dedicated to the destruction of human advancement.

THE METHOD SCHOOL OF NONACTING

The lights in the theater grow dark, conversations are cut short and mobile phones are muted. The screen ahead begins to reflect light. A world of make believe manufactured from moving images and recorded sound has commenced. The audience is watching Marlon's Brando's performance in Elia Kazan's film A Streetcar Named Desire. In the audience are sitting students of the arts. They are not enthralled at what they see but are watching a spectacle which dismays and discomforts them. They are not watching a presentation of acting as acting has been known and practiced for thousands of years, but are watching the enactment of a program and manifesto for the abolition of acting. They are watching the symptoms of a disease which they have observed operating in the other arts, a disease which serves as a dramatic signpost into the decline and fall of humanity's practices of creative expression during the decline stages of civilization. They are watching scene after scene filled with actors who no longer act, who no longer support the skill and craft of acting, and who parade their nonacting performances as the implementation of a series of methods and techniques of pure self expression, and justify their exhibitions of nonacting and nontalent under the name of method acting. Students of the arts have issued their report on the method school of nonacting and to read it is to be assaulted by a declaration of aims and policies which have lowered the curtains, turned off the cameras and folded up the director's chairs of a profession which thousands of years ago in ancient Greece was exalted as a place for viewing, seeing, watching and observing dedicated, professional, reality based artists create roles, characters, drama and theatricality. The report commences at the only time it could have commenced, in the twentieth century, at a time when every branch of the arts, the sciences and philosophy commenced a downward acceleration into total degeneration, and it continues up to the disgraced stages of thespian abdication in the present day. The program and manifesto of the method school proclaims that progressive acting consists in delivering sincere, self expressive performances. It proclaims that progressive acting requires ignoring the role to be played and identifying with and understanding oneself. It proclaims that progressive acting consists simply in talking and in talking about oneself. It proclaims that progressive acting requires experiencing one's own motivations and emotions. It proclaims that progressive acting requires a study one's own psychology and behavior. It proclaims that progressive acting is actor centered, undisciplined, subjective, photographic and naturalistic. It proclaims that progressive acting is the art of self experience and self representation. It proclaims that progressive acting requires exploring one's own consciousness and will. It proclaims that the definition of the character to be portrayed is the definition of the actor who portrays it. It proclaims that progressive acting consists in pure improvisation and self analysis. It proclaims that progressive acting rejects professional training and the inculcation of classical skills. It proclaims that progressive acting requires that the actor abandon his character and role and ask himself: "How would I behave? What would I do? How would I feel? How would I react?" It proclaims that the sole elements of training to be an actor are the personal, subjective and psychological elements. It proclaims that progressive acting requires remembering experiences from one's life. It proclaims that progressive acting requires an exploration of one's imagination and the enactment of personally affecting imagined situations. It proclaims that progressive acting consists in indiscriminately photographing reality and not professionally acting it out. It proclaims that progressive acting consists in ignoring the characters to be portrayed and in portraying one's own character. It proclaims that progressive acting requires recalling sensations which have made a significant emotional impact on one's life. It proclaims that progressive acting requires a vividly imagining of fictional experiences. It proclaims that progressive acting requires abandoning the actual character to be portrayed and plunging into one's own inner truths, emotions and circumstances. It proclaims that progressive acting requires enacting one's own subjective interpretations and assumptions about the character and ignoring the facts about the character given in the script. It proclaims that progressive acting requires an understanding of one's own objectives and intentions in life. It proclaims that progressive acting requires an understanding of one's own wishes and dreams. It proclaims that progressive acting consists in a realistic portrayal of oneself. It proclaims that progressive acting requires not that the actor play the character but that the character become the actor. It proclaims that progressive acting requires that one delve into one's psyche and dredge up one's suppressed and unresolved emotions. It proclaims that progressive acting requires ignoring the character and probing into one's deep thought processes. It proclaims that progressive acting requires acting out one's moods, emotions and states of mind. It proclaims that progressive acting requires acting out one's fears, anxieties, instincts, impulses and psychoses. Listen to the words of the propagandists of method acting and hear them proclaim that an actor should have nothing whatever to do with the character he portrays. Hear them proclaim that the highest type of acting is extraneous to external characterization and is a form of pure self expression and involves playing only oneself: "It has often been assumed that the actor should be thinking exactly what the character is thinking. Many actors who disagree with this approach have, sometimes when they were complimented on a particular moment, gleefully responded, 'Aha, so you thought it was good, huh? Do you know what I was thinking about at that moment?' They then go on to describe something completely extraneous to what the character should have been concerned with: where to have dinner. when to do the laundry, etc. But the important thing is that they were thinking about something real and concrete rather than the make believe thinking which that same actor would usually perform." (The Method: An Acting Methodology by Lee Strasberg). Listen to the words of the the propagandists of method acting and hear them proclaim that the highest type of acting requires ignoring the character and examining one's own emotions, memories and affective states. Hear them proclaim that the highest type of acting is an act of pure improvisation untrammelled by the script or story. Hear them proclaim that the process of rehearsing involves the practicing and preparing of one's feelings, emotions and faculty of self expression and has nothing whatever to do with the actual production. Hear them proclaim that highest type of acting requires an exploration of the contents, moments and imaginings of one's consciousness without regard to any facts or objects in reality: "In his story of the Group Theater, The Fervent Years, Harold Clurman emphasized that improvisation and what I refer to as affective or emotional memory were the two areas that I was concerned with. There were, of course, others, as I have just discussed. But there is a certain justification in emphasizing these two. Certainly in the rehearsal process, I did place a great deal of emphasis on improvisation as it related to the creation of the ensemble. Regarding affective memory, I placed a great deal of emphasis on the actor's experience, which is essentially his memory of emotional moments--which even great actors are not always able to create at will. Stanislavsky himself had never fully expounded the procedures of improvisation, work with imaginary objects, and emotional memory. It is in these areas that the Method has made a significant contribution. In my work with the Group Theater, most of the procedures were applied within the context of rehearsing for a particular production." (The Method: An Acting Methodology by Lee Strasberg). On screens and stages throughout the world, audiences assemble to see their favorite performance. First the teachers step forward, Konstantin Stanislavsky, Lee Strasberg, Stella Adler and Sanford Meisner. Then their students join them: Marlon Brando, Paul Newman, Al Pacino, Sean Penn, Warren Beatty, Robert De Niro, Dustin Hoffman and Anne Bancroft. Last are the schools, the membership organizations and the production companies involved: Group Theater and Actors Studio. To standing ovations, the actors, directors, writers and producers of the method school of acting announce the bankrupt end of their profession.

REDS OPEN THE BORDERS

Sewage is wastewater produced by a community of people. It is characterized by rate of flow, physical condition, chemical constituents and bacteriologic status. The proper collection and safe disposal of sewage is a moral and legal necessity of any civilized society. Students of history have been thunderstruck by a phenomenon occurring at America's southern border and have been assaulted by an image. Although they know that this phenomenon is one of the prime symptoms of any civilization in a state of decline and decay, and that it hung like an ominous cloud over the Romans as they allowed Christians and Germans to settle in their midst, they still can scarcely believe their eyes, and half believe that they have plunged into a nightmare from which they will shortly wake up screaming. This is the phenomenon of illegal migrants by the millions crossing into America from Mexico and it has produced an image from which students of history have recoiled in horror and fear as if from a gigantic monster rampaging across the land. This is the image of sewage, raw, toxic, bacteria rich, fast flowing sewage, flooding into America from the jungles, steppes and swamplands of the Global South, and submerging every sector of American society. Disciplined by the principles of professional duty, students of history have sat down to study this end of times phenomenon and to confront this monstrous image, and the results are as unpleasant as they are expected. For they know that the phenomenon of open, unrestricted immigration and the dissolution of national borders is the result of red control over the nation and the radicalization of the masses, and that the immigration manifesto of the reds is a manifesto of the people themselves as they accelerate into national self destruction and the subversion of free institutions. Students of history have placed this

running migrant sewage on display and let the monster speak in its own words in the vain hope that somebody out there will take heed and assemble a movement to bring a halt to the national insanity and red induced psychosis of nonexistent borders. Supported in overwhelming numbers by the American people, the program and manifesto of the reds proclaims that a progressive society allows hundreds of thousands of illegal migrants to enter every month and thousands to enter every day. It proclaims that a progressive society allows illegal migrants to evade contact with border patrol authorities and to vanish into thin air. It proclaims that a progressive society allows its borders to be breached by a multimillion man tidal wave crashing through the Rio Grande from savage, unruly, undeveloped Latin American nations. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of institutional racism, white supremacy and white privilege and must be overthrown by an invasion of illegal migrants marching under the banners of black and brown communist power. It proclaims that liberal democracy is a system of oppression of ethnic minorities and must be swept away by the floodwaters of unwashed people surging in from the Global South and carrying the lice of tribal dictatorship in their souls. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes antiAmerican propaganda and opens its gates to those who seek to undermine the nation. It proclaims that a progressive society has woven a comprehensive, cradle to grave welfare cosset for illegal migrants and provided them with education, housing and health care for life. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of poverty, hunger and homelessness and must be replaced by socialist tyrannies brought by illegal migrants from worlds of color. It proclaims that a progressive society allows illegal migrants to feed off their host nation and consume welfare benefits without paying a penny in taxes. It proclaims that a progressive society allows illegal migrants to serve as a glorious dead weight upon honest, working citizens. It proclaims that a progressive society has lost control over its borders, allows illegal migrants to walk across them at will, and then transports them like a virus, using military vehicles, into every home, neighborhood, city and state in the land, It proclaims that a progressive society fights tooth and nail for the rights of illegal migrants and provides unconditional mass amnesty and material support to them. It proclaims that a progressive society provides automatic citizenship to illegal migrants and accelerates them to the highest levels of business, government and academia. It proclaims that a progressive society has rescinded all enforcement rules regarding illegal migrants and granted them total self determination. Look at the state of America today and see customs and border protection authorities run out of town by a stampede of illegal migrants. See swirling masses of Haitian hooligans raze checkpoints to the ground. See men, women and children emerge from cesspools south of the border and stream into America in caravans of filth. See illegal migrants transported along the nation's highways into towns and cities and exalted as the lords of the realm. See bacterial sludge emanating from Mexico multiply in the Rio Grande River and flood into America. See illegal migrants without skills, intelligence, character or desire to work given sanctuary in the neighborhoods of America and lavish, lifetime assistance by its citizens. See law enforcement authorities hoisting the white flag of surrender before a relentless onslaught of undocumented slime. See America transformed into a refuge for wild animals rushing and charging in from Mexico. See governmental authorities convey, process and provide lifetime support to illegal migrants and crown them welfare kings of the nation. See the border patrol agents round up illegal migrants and then release them into society. See illegal migrants mock and laugh at their arrests and apprehensions and plan their invasion, occupation, settlement and colonization of America: "A law enforcement source within US Customs and Border Protection reports more than 600

migrants were apprehended in the Del Rio Sector on Friday. The flurry of activity began in the morning hours when nearly 400 migrants, mostly Haitian nationals were apprehended in Del Rio, Texas. The official told Breitbart Texas the largest group in Del Rio was more than 150 migrants. The groups consisted of adult males and females including family units with small children. In Eagle Pass, Texas, 50 miles from Del Rio, Breitbart Texas found migrants waiting along roadways for Border Patrol agents to arrive for transport. The increase in traffic makes it difficult for the Border Patrol to perform routine patrols along the river in the Del Rio Sector as well as other parts of the border. The migrants freely entered illegally by wading across the Rio Grande while facing little opposition. Texas law enforcement authorities patrolled the riverbanks rounding up those that crossed but still could not hold back Friday's traffic. Breitbart Texas spoke to one group of migrants from Ecuador on Friday as they waited alongside a roadway for Border Patrol agents to arrive. In the group of eight migrants were several infants carried by their mothers as they withstood the midday heat. The group says they spent several months traveling to the United States and that they have exhausted all their funds. They were happy to finally see the Border Patrol agent arriving a short time later. State of Texas law enforcement authorities including Texas Parks and Wildlife game wardens, were nearby patrolling the river and were observed apprehending several migrants while awaiting the Border Patrol transport units to turn the migrants over. The source within CBP says the situation shows no sign of slowing. 'We are stretched thin right now; we have our agents on overtime and barely getting one day off a week,' the source said. 'Most of the day was spent transporting, processing, and caring for migrants, leaving little room to patrol in the field.' The current level of apprehensions made in the Del Rio Sector is the highest in 20 years. The sector arrested more than 149,000 migrants since October 2020. The Border Patrol's Del Rio Sector is second only to the Rio Grande Valley in apprehensions. Del Rio is showing a 500 percent increase in apprehensions over the previous year. The sector is averaging more than 900 migrant apprehensions per day." (Migrant Surge Continues In West Texas Border Town by Randy Clark). Article IV of the United States Constitution states: "The United States shall guarantee to every state in this union a republican form of government and shall protect each of them against invasion." This guarantee to secure the nation from invasion has been rendered null and void under the impact of red politics reaching up to the highest levels of government. Confronted by his sworn presidential obligation to defend America against invasion, Joe Biden fronts for the red mobs who have declared war on their homeland and stabbed it in the back.

AMERICA'S LOST WARS, LOST BY THE REDS

Political scientists define the term subversion as a process by which the values and principles of an established system are reversed in an attempt to destroy the social order. Subversion is an attack on public power, authority and morale. As an instrument to achieve political goals, subversion is often preferred by the enemies of a nation because it carries less risk and is less expensive than open warfare and does not require a program of massive training. A subversive is a traitor to his country and his acts exemplify what it means to commit high crimes and misdemeanors. In their descriptions of America's decline over the past century, political scientists have been compelled to employ the term and have seen it leap out of their pages like vampire leaving its grave at night to drink the blood of the living. They have seen the hand of subversion at work in five wars America has lost and have seen the monster behind the acts as it ruthlessly preys upon free nations. This monster is red power and it is nourished by the mobs who assumed control of the West in the early years of the twentieth century. This monster, whose tentacles reach around the world and extend into every institution of society, is the frightful corpse of civilization; it is the end result of what happens when a civilization has exhausted its reserves of reason, conscience, spirit and intelligence; and it has buried the hopes and aspirations of free people in the black tar pits of tribal politics and totalitarian slavery. Political scientists have issued their report and to read it is to behold the hideous form of red subversion leer at the citizens of the free world; it is to behold this form gaze with malice in its eyes at the defenders of Western liberal democratic values. The report commences with the loss of China to communism in 1949. It describes the Communist Party takeover of mainland China from the Kuomintang as a result of America's abandonment of the Nationalists. It describes the actions of red agents and red sympathizers Dean Acheson, John Paton Davies, Owen Lattimore and John Carter Vincent who shaped the policies of the State Department and made decisions favorable to the Chinese communists and to the Soviet conspiracy which they served. It describes the efforts of reds operating at the highest levels of the American government to consign China to the rule of communist landlords, communist warlords, and communist revolutionary violence and pressure. The next war lost by the reds was in Korea, 1950-1953. The report describes a Korean Armistice Agreement, a stalemate, a frozen conflict, an inconclusive end, the unwillingness to obtain a formal peace treaty, and the refusal to heed the advice given by General Lawton Collins, General Douglas MacArthur, Admiral Turner Joy, General George Stratemeyer, Major General Doyle Hickey, Major General Charles Willoughby and Major General Edwin Wright to employ nuclear weapons to force a communist surrender and liberate North Korea. The next war lost by the reds was in Vietnam, 1964-1975. The report describes large segments of American society demanding surrender in Southeast Asia. It describes nationwide protests demanding unilateral withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam. It describes mass support for communism in the name of the peace movement, the counterculture, the new left and solidarity with the North Vietnamese. It describes communist antiwar riots staged at the 1968 Democratic National Convention. It describes the communist antiwar organization, Vietnam Veterans Against the War, which had tens of thousands of members across the nation. It describes the Moratorium To End The War In Vietnam, which attracted millions of Americans who staged demonstrations and teach ins across the nation. It describes the evil fruits of the antiwar movement. It describes the cessation of all American combat operations on January 15, 1973. It describes the signing of the Paris Peace Accords on January 27, 1973, which established a sixty day period for the complete withdrawal of American forces, guaranteed the territorial integrity of North Vietnam and allowed 200,000 communist troops to remain in South Vietnam. It describes an attack on Phuoc Long by North Vietnamese forces on December 12, 1974. It describes America's refusal to provide funds to assist and resupply South Vietnam. It describes the proclamation by North Vietnamese General Van Tien Dung: "Never have we had military and political conditions so perfect or a strategic advantage as great as we have now." It describes the 1975 Spring Offensive launched by North Vietnam. It describes the resignation on April 21, 1975 of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, who spoke the truth when he said that America had betrayed South Vietnam and had tricked him into signing the Paris Peace Accords by promising military aid which never arrived. It describes the refusal of Congress to provide 722 million dollars in emergency aid to South Vietnam requested by President Gerald Ford. It describes Operation Frequent Wind, launched by America on April 29, 1975, the largest helicopter evacuation in history, which carried away

American civilians and South Vietnamese civilians and officials. It describes Viet Cong forces entering Saigon on April 30, 1975, overcoming all resistance, capturing key buildings and installations, crashing through the gates of Independence Palace, raising the flag of North Vietnam above it, and South Vietnamese President Duong Van Minh surrendering to Viet Cong Colonel Bui Tin. The next war the reds lost was in Iraq, 2003 to 2017. The report describes campaigns launched called Shock and Awe and Operation Red Dawn in 2003. It describes the ignominious results of these campaigns fourteen years later after an expenditure of a trillion dollars and the deaths of thousands of American soldiers. It describes the reduction of the Baghdad government to an instrument of Shiite militia, embedded in the Iraqi parliament and security establishment, and the reduction of the government to a marionette whose wires are pulled by Iran, which provides it with round the clock guidance and support. The final war the reds lost was in Afghanistan, 2001-2021. The report describes a war advertised by America as a War on Terror, a war code named by America Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Freedom's Sentinel, a war ending, after two decades of fighting, five thousand American deaths and a trillion dollars in military expenditures, in total disgrace and defeat. It describes tens of thousands of protesters across the nation, from New York to San Francisco to Los Angeles to Washington, demanding the immediate withdrawal of American forces. It describes red activist pseudodocumentaries such as Rethink Afghanistan galvanizing millions of people across the nation to demand a unilateral exit strategy from America. It describes American military personnel testifying before Congress and insisting on American surrender in Afghanistan: "Sending more troops will not make the US safer; it will only build more opposition against us. I urge you on behalf of truth and patriotism to consider carefully and Rethink Afghanistan." (Corporal Rick Reyes, Senate Committee on Foreign Relations). It includes news accounts of the aftermath of America's retreat, capitulation, accelerated withdrawal timetables, and final submission to the Taliban. Look at the world which America gave away and see the Taliban return to power after they were driven out. See the nation's reds repaint an initial victory over the forces of terror in the yellow, senile colors of cowardice. See Afghanistan erased from the map by the protest actions of America's reds. See Islamist militants cast a thunder cloud of fear across Afghanistan, a cloud irrigated and seeded by American public opinion. See the government forces of Afghanistan betrayed, abandoned and hurled into the merciless jaws of the Taliban. See the poisonous vapors of Islam sweep across the provinces and districts of Afghanistan, close in on its free people and assume the levers of control. See Afghans forced to flee from their homes and join the ranks of the displaced and the dispossessed through the perfidy of a nation called America, a nation captured by the reds: "The resurgent Taliban have taken more territory in Afghanistan in the last two months than at any time since they were ousted from power in 2001. Over the last twenty years, the control map of Afghanistan has been an everchanging canvas. Here, we look at the fluctuating picture of who controls which areas. It appears the Taliban have been emboldened in recent weeks by the withdrawal of US troops--retaking many districts from government forces. Research from the BBC Afghan service shows the militants now have a strong presence across the country, including in the north and northeast and central provinces like Ghazni and Maidan Wardak. They are also closing in on major cities such as Kunduz, Herat, Kandahar and Lashkar Gah. A record number of civilians have been killed as a result of the conflict in the first half of this year." (Mapping The Advance Of The Taliban In Afghanistan, BBC News, July 26, 2021). The last war America won was the war against Japan fought during World War II. It won this war because the nation's communist colored establishment authorized the use of two nuclear bombs against its ideological brothers and rivals, the fascist government of Hideki Tojo. Every war fought by America thereafter was a war fought against the communists or their allies, the Islamists, and every war thereafter was thus a war destined to end in defeat. China, Korea, Vietnam, Iraq and Afghanistan. Five wars in which the reds planted the flags of victory, the flags of treachery, during the dying hours of American freedom.

BIDEN'S RED CHANNELS

Among the miracles of modern technology is the transmission of news and information over the air by means of amplitude, phase and frequencies of light. Every day, millions of people throughout the world are informed and entertained by signals which transmit in video and audio, and every day, millions of people experience the brightness, colors, images and sounds broadcast to them from radio and television towers. Political scientists have observed in the nightmare world of the present day the subsumption of news and information under a single category, and have recoiled at what they have seen and found it difficult and unpleasant to perform their professional duty and study it. They have seen the dials and bandwidths carrying news and information commandeered, hijacked and taken over by the masses and placed in the category of red propaganda. They have seen this process of absorption symbolized by the transformation of the office of the president of the United States into a round the clock broadcasting tower on behalf of the reds, enacting for them the nightmare of all nightmares in which the nation's supreme office holder, preacher, pulpiter and military commander has become a faithful agent and promoter of the communist party line. They have seen the moral degradation of the nation's highest political office and listened to its frightening frequency bands broadcasting the dissolution of the Western liberal capitalist order, and are grimly determined to tell the world about it and about the catastrophe which is looming over America, and about the totalitarian doomsday which has arrived. They have issued a report on Joe Biden and to read it is to expose oneself to the nation's leading voice of civilizational decline and to get a front row seat to a presidential platform thundering out the disintegration of America. The program and manifesto of Joe Biden is the program and manifesto of the nation's red establishment and the culmination of the establishment's one hundred year campaign, staged to the standing ovations of the people, to destroy every last trace of liberty in a land which once was the world's ambassador, arsenal and Good Samaritan of liberty. Joe Biden proclaims that a progressive society is a big government society which promotes antifree market policies every chance it gets. He proclaims that a progressive society has established universal, state subsidized preschool programs. He proclaims that a progressive society has established massive state subsidies for low income housing. He proclaims that a progressive society promotes preferential treatment for nonwhites in the name of racial equity. He proclaims that a progressive society promotes the dismantling of modern industrial civilization in the name of environmental justice. He proclaims that a progressive society has placed Indian tribes, territories and communities on permanent public welfare. He proclaims that a progressive society has established massive state subsidies for child tax credits. He proclaims that a progressive society has established massive state subsidies for child care facilities. He proclaims that a progressive society has established massive state subsidies for homes and businesses in the name of community revitalization and neighborhood investment. He proclaims that a progressive society has mandated preferential treatment for women and nonwhites in green energy and manufacturing sectors. He proclaims that a progressive society has guaranteed high paying jobs to all workers. He proclaims that a progressive society has mandated race and gender privileges at the workplace in the name of combating discrimination and harassment. He proclaims that a progressive society has established a massive public work relief program called the Civilian Climate Corps, dedicated to achieving conservation, reforestation and carbon sequestration with the boots and shovels of a national people's labor army. He proclaims that a progressive society has established massive state subsidies for the development of rural regions. He proclaims that a progressive society repatriates freedom loving Cubans fleeing the island's communist regime, telling them: "Allow me to be clear: If you take to the sea, you will not come to the United States." He proclaims that a progressive society prohibits its own citizens from assisting Cubans who are fleeing the island's communist slavery: "People who violate US immigration laws and illegally bring foreign nationals into the country or who attempt to do so may be subject to arrest, vessel forfeiture, civil and criminal fines up to $250,000 per day, and five years in prison." He proclaims that a progressive society opens its borders to communist scum streaming in by the hundreds of thousands from the coral reefs, algae beds and kelp forests of Mexico, Central America, South America and the Caribbean: "The strict policies towards maritime refugees in the Biden era contrasts significantly with statistics from America's southern land border. The Biden administration welcomed over 600,000 migrants to the United States through the southern border between Biden's inauguration and last week, not counting migrants passing illegally and thus undocumented in statistics. The increase was particularly stark in migrants not from Mexico or the Central American Northern Triangle—according to Customs and Border Protection (CBP), the number of people not from those regions caught attempting to cross the border illegally grew by a factor of ten between January and June 2021." (Biden Sends Back 27 Cuban Rafters Amid Deadly Communist Oppression by Frances Martel). He proclaims that a progressive society promotes the doctrine of critical race theory, which states that white people and the capitalist system must be criticized, condemned and removed because both are inherently and irredeemably racist. He proclaims that a progressive society separates individuals on the basis of their race and gender, assigns characteristics to them on the basis of their race and gender, teaches that white males are inherently racist and sexist and must be deprived of all their rights and freedoms, and teaches that America, by virtue of being a liberal capitalist system, is a racist and sexist country and must be overthrown. Look at the world of Joe Biden and see a socialist list of items whose goal is to repeal freedom in America. See communism packaged and sold to the American people as a new New Deal. See a rabble rouser in the White House receive endless rounds of praise and applause from communist leaders and mobs across the nation. See a regime of racism and sexism declare war on white males. See a regime which steals wealth from the producers and places it into the hands of the nonproducers and provides cradle to grave welfare benefits to the idlers and parasites of society. See a regime which suppresses those who dissent from the dogmas of communism and who dare to speak truth and morality to the relentlessly rolling tanks of the red establishment. See a regime which champions the cultural and economic values of those who are stung with envy and hatred toward their betters and superiors and want to raze to the ground the doers and achievers of society. See a regime which incites the malcontents and the disaffected to storm the ramparts of right, liberty, law and order. See a regime which has launched an assault against reality and proclaimed that sex is changeable and that the biology of males and females does not exist. See a regime which has assembled the national government, state governments, the business, academic and media establishments, and the families and folks next door and taken them down a fearsome and terrifying path. This is the path of tribal collectivism in which people are judged on the basis of their gender, race, class and sexual orientation and are consumed in the jaws of red totalitarian tyranny: "Over his first 100 days, Joe Biden embarked on a mission to fundamentally change America. He discarded the carefully cultivated image of a moderate deal maker that he campaigned on and embodied for most of his fifty year career in politics, and embraced a newfound persona as the next FDR. He's received plaudits from socialist Bernie Sanders, squad member Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez and Senator Elizabeth Warren, who recently said that we're so close to enacting the socialist agenda she's long advocated for that she can 'taste it.' Unfortunately for the American people, Biden's 'new New Deal' is taking our country down a path all too familiar to those who study history. While Democrats talk incessantly about supposed systemic racism lurking around every corner, the real enemy we face is the systemic socialism that Joe Biden and his Democratic allies on Capitol Hill and in state capitols around the country are foisting upon us." (Joe Biden's Systemic Socialism by Rick Scott). America's moral topography in the present day is dominated by a set of sinister landforms. These are the conduits, courses, passageways and waterways of red totalitarian politics. Guided and conducted by Joe Biden, they have buried the house of human flourishing which once was America.

ANIMALS OVERRUN SOUTH AFRICA

On October 18, 2011, in Zanesville, Ohio, Terry Thompson released the animals from his private zoo. What ensued was an attack on public safety by lions, tigers, bears and wolves roaming the land. After he released the animals, Thompson, a violent felon diagnosed as mentally ill, shot himself in the head. Political scientists have seen in the famous Zanesville animal release a symbol and metaphor for societies whose leaders and masses have committed moral suicide, embraced violence as a way of life, and willfully abandoned the institutions of law and order. They have in particular viewed the Zanesville incident as a dark window into something far away which has repelled them like the flames of hell. They have peered into the Zanesville chaos and seen what they wished and prayed they would never have to see in their studies of failed states. They have looked keenly but with great difficulty at the Zanesville stampede and beheld the fearsome and terrifying face of today's South Africa. They have issued their report and to read it is to read what happens when a modern society, in the twilight stages of decline, runs out of conscience and intelligence and renounces its liberal values and ideals. To read it is to read a program and manifesto for the destruction of civilization, a program composed during the evening stages of the West by its relentless and remorseless gravediggers: by the reds. The program and manifesto of today's South Africa, composed thirty years after the end of apartheid, thirty years after the onset of racial equality, thirty years after the renunciation, not only of the baneful lash of racial discrimination but of the beneficent fruits of liberal capitalist institutions, has blasted out the following program through the public address systems of the mob. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has descended into a frenzy of looting and arson staged in the name of the people. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is buried in mounds of rubbish heaped by the friends of social justice. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is devastated by endless weeks of anarchy and killing. It has proclaimed that a progressive society allows mobs to plunder private shops and to carry away everything, down to the last water pipes and electrical fittings. It has proclaimed that a progressive society allows social justice hoodlums to ransack, clear out and set fire to businesses. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has mobilized mobs in its provinces, suburbs, cities and heartlands to rampage in rushes of uncontrollable violence. It has proclaimed that a progressive society encourages black power warriors to orchestrate attacks on the state and to stage an insurrection. It has proclaimed that a progressive society encourages the people's black communist red guards to instigate, plan and support acts of mass disruption. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has dismantled its security forces and encouraged street agitators to foment racial tensions and race wars. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has refused to protect law abiding communities and has transformed them into mind numbing war zones. It has proclaimed that a progressive society promotes a civil war between blacks and whites in a campaign to wipe out whites. It has proclaimed that a progressive police force profiles whites and sends in vigilantes to lynch them. It has proclaimed that a progressive society kidnaps whites, takes them to remote rivers, tortures and kills them and throws them into the water. It has proclaimed that a progressive society reduces whites to the status of servants and apprentices of a master class of blacks. It has proclaimed that a progressive society encourages blacks to run speeding cars into crowds of whites and kill as many whites as they can. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has ordered its soldiers and police to separate blacks and whites and place whites in ghettos and grind them into poverty and despair. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is a system of racism which gives special privileges to blacks and justifies black apartheid in the name of social equity and the liberation of the oppressed. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has placed its judiciary under political control and filled it with judges biased against whites. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has established a supreme constitutional court dedicated to the destruction of constitutional government. It has proclaimed that a progressive society develops race based communities and promotes black aggression and the terrorization of whites. It has proclaimed that a progressive university is under the control of black activists and pressure groups whose goal is radical economic transformation and the establishment of a black totalitarian tyranny. It has proclaimed that a progressive society equips blacks with guns and bombs and exhorts them to go after whites and smash and blow up their property. It has proclaimed that a progressive society supports violence against whites and trains its soldiers to die in defense of a black Aryan religion. It has proclaimed that a progressive society is an engine of black colonialism, black imperialism, black expansionism and world war against whites. Look at today's South Africa and see massive hordes of cultural pygmies launch an assault on law and order. See a nation bloodied by climbing death tolls and buried in the rubbish of looted stores. See a nation mauled apart by a whirlwind of property damage and property theft totaling billions of dollars. See dedicated police officers run out of town by rioters on a rampage. See acts of violence and brutality planned and coordinated by the emissaries of black power. See the mayors of towns fleeing for their lives before an onrushing juggernaut of civil disturbance. See a black swastika campaign to hijack constitutional government and crash it into the wastelands of failed states. See cities and provinces rendered inhabitable by decent, righteous, civilized people. See communists transform a nation into an epicenter of revolution. See a president presiding over the collapse of all respect for the rules of society. See the roadways of civilization blockaded and a nation shut down. See neighborhoods and communities descend into national socialist uproars and red activist brawling. See a nation emptied of the material and moral necessities of life. See tidal waves of insurrection sweep across the land, consigning legitimate authority in deep underground vaults. See public safety placed under a state of siege. See respectable people deprived of their homes and livelihoods and descending into poverty and panic. See race hoodlums render courts of law rendered null and void. See those who fight and struggle for the cause of black Marxism sentence peace and benevolence to jail for life. See an advanced stage of human social and cultural development surrounded by race agitators and ransacked, assassinated, bombed and burned to the ground: "South Africa President Cyril Ramaphosa has said the violence that has rocked the country was preplanned, describing it as an assault on democracy. Riots were sparked by the jailing of former President Jacob Zuma. The death toll has risen to 212, up by almost 100 since Thursday, the government said. Police officers have been protecting deliveries of food to supermarkets after days of widespread looting led to shortages. An estimated $1bn (£720m) worth of stock was stolen in KwaZulu-Natal with at least 800 retail shops looted, a mayor in the province said. 'It is quite clear that all these incidents of unrest and looting were instigated--there were people who planned it and coordinated it,' Mr Ramaphosa said in a visit to KwaZulu-Natal, Mr Zuma's home province and the epicenter of the violence. The president said the riots were an attempt to hijack South Africa's democracy. He told supporters that instigators had been identified, but didn't elaborate. 'We are going after them,' he added. In a thirty minute televised address later on Friday, Mr Ramaphosa said there was no shortage of food or supplies and urged people against panic buying. He said more than 2,500 people had been arrested in connection with the unrest and urged South Africans to come together. 'If we stand together, no insurrection or violence in this country will succeed,' he said. 'We are engaged in a struggle to defend our democracy, our Constitution, our livelihoods and our safety. This is not a battle that we can afford to lose.' Protests began last week after Zuma handed himself in to police to serve a fifteenth month sentence for contempt of court. Zuma's supporters reacted furiously to his imprisonment, blockading major roads and calling for a shutdown to demand his release. The protests descended into riots on a scale rarely seen in South Africa. Businesses in every sector were looted, burnt and petrol bombed in cities and towns across KwaZulu-Natal, as well as Gauteng, which surrounds the country's biggest city, Johannesburg." (South African Riots Over Zuma Jailing Preplanned-- Cyril Ramaphosa by Shingai Nyoka). In 1994, South Africa adopted a new multicolored flag to mark the end of apartheid. The flag would soon serve as a symbol of much more than this. It would serve as a symbol of the dashed hopes of liberal dreamers. It would serve as a symbol of an age of murder, mayhem and madness brought into being by black mobs preaching the gospel of communism.

GAS CHAMBERS READIED FOR WHITES

Kurt Gerstein was a German SS officer and head of the technical disinfection services of the SS's Institute for Hygiene. After witnessing mass murders in the Belzec and Treblinka extermination camps, he gave a special report to diplomats and governments across Europe in an effort to inform the world about the Holocaust. Students of history have seen in the famous Gerstein Report a terrifying symbol of the present age and signpost into the future. They have seen the report as the account of a religion which has taken hold of civilization and pushed it into the grave. The religion which Gerstein described in action is the religion which has ruled the world since the dawn of the twentieth century and the religion which students of history have seen inscribed across the tombstone of the West. They have seen the Holocaust as the horrific implementation of one of its versions and iterations. They have beheld a triple headed monster stalk the land and, in the time after Gerstein and the

Holocaust, strike once again. This is a monster worshiped by the masses and adored in their frenzy as an angel of justice and liberation. Students of history have identified this frightening, rampaging form as Marxism and seen its progeny rear their ugly heads. They have seen a creature called gender, race and class politics, born from Satan's womb of Marxist proletarianism, open its jaws in the Third Reich and swallow up people condemned as enemies of the race, and, striding through a generation in the blink of an eye, open its jaws once again to claim a new group condemned by the neoMarxists of the present day as enemies of the race. The names and characters have changed but the Marxist theme and story remain the same. The Marxist monster of racialism, which in the guise of national socialism targeted the Jews for extermination, has now, under the guise of black identity politics, trained its sights upon white people and called for their total destruction. Students of history have seen in the present day movement of black identity politics images of Marx's communist mass murders and Hitler's neoMarxist racist program, and understand with perfect clarity that their report, like the Gerstein Report, will fall on deaf ears. But they are determined to carry out their professional responsibilities and tell the world about this latest nightmare to emerge from the Marxist fever swamps of tribal hate politics. They have reported on the program and manifesto of today's black power national socialists and to read it is to look into the blazing gases of hellfire and see the wheel of history moving round and see another holocaust in the making. The reds' swastika program of black racism proclaims that a progressive society is obsessed with race and advocates the killing of whites in the name of racial equity. It proclaims that a progressive society is an activist movement which metes out violence against whites in the name of social justice. It proclaims that a progressive society marches under the banners of Antifa, Black Lives Matter and red teachers' unions and has launched a campaign of racial purification and the eradication of white people. It proclaims that a progressive society is a morally, spiritually and racially cleansed society because it has purged white people from its ranks. It proclaims that a progressive society judges people on the basis of their skin color and affirms that whites are members of an inferior race and must be subjected to systematic discrimination. It proclaims that a progressive society has condemned whites for the crime of existing and sentenced them to hang a thousand times. It proclaims that a progressive society has exacted reparations from whites for black slavery practiced centuries before and has taken everything whites own away from them. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms that if a white man's ancestors owned slaves, he must himself be punished for slavery and put to death. It proclaims that a progressive society is an abolitionist society which has abolished equal rights and equal protection for whites. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms that the crime of whiteness is the greatest of all crimes and must be punished with the supreme penalty. It proclaims that a progressive society has hunted down and rounded up every white person in the world, every white Slav, white Southern European, white Anglo-Saxon and white Celt, and placed him into a ghetto, slum and squalid, overcrowded shantytown where he will suffer, starve and perish. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the liberal dictum that individuals and not abstractions are the primary realities, and affirms that a person is defined by his racial membership, that his race dictates his destiny, and that white people are irredeemable criminals and must be isolated and segregated from blacks. It proclaims that a progressive society is a critical race theory movement which affirms that whites and their system, liberal democracy, must be criticized, denounced and hurled into the dustbin of history. It proclaims that a progressive society is a eugenics movement which seeks to improve the quality of the population by prohibiting all sexual relations between the blacks and whites. It proclaims that a progressive society is a race based hierarchy which has placed whites on the lowest rung and made them abject slaves before it kills them off. It proclaims that a progressive society is based upon an ideology of racism, conceived by the greatest philosophic minds in the history of mankind, which ranks blacks above all other races. It proclaims that a progressive society has forced whites to denounce themselves for being white and to undergo indoctrination sessions on the moral and spiritual superiority of blacks. It proclaims that a progressive society has eliminated all traces of white genetic material by enforcing a strict prohibition on black-white intermarriage and interbreeding. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms that whiteness defines what it means to be evil and criminal and should not be allowed to contaminate the black masters of the earth. It proclaims that a progressive society is a black totalitarian system which has set up an inquisition to root out racially inferior whites. It proclaims that a progressive society has appointed a grand inquisitor to oversee the eradication of white people and their Western Enlightenment traditions and institutions. It proclaims that a progressive society has launched an ultimate solution, a final solution, to confront the problem of the white race and the malignancy it has introduced: the mass murder of whites on a mechanized, industrial scale. Look at the world of the reds today and see a black Marxist religion promote racism against whites. See civilization torn asunder by the scimitars of racial favoritism and subverted by an obsession with skin color. See schools, hospitals, medical centers, government departments, care homes and counseling organizations commandeered by red activists and transformed into propaganda and recruitment arms of the black nationalist movement. See whites, America, the Enlightenment and the capitalist system criticized and censured under the banners of critical race theory, Black Lives Matter and the 1619 Project. See a gospel of black tribalism and black hate declare total war on the liberal democratic order, on free institutions, on civil rights, on freedom of speech, on advancement by merit and character, on equal protection for all and on the rule of law, and advocate a global movement of racial segregation, racial discrimination and violence and destruction of the white race: "Minnesota citizens are making the claim Critical Race Theory (CRT) is overwhelming their workplaces and schools as three new legal actions are filed--one lawsuit and two formal complaints that might become lawsuits--arguing the Marxist ideology promotes racism and divisiveness. During a press conference Monday at the Minnesota Capitol, Doug Seaton, president of the Upper Midwest Law Center, who is representing the plaintiffs in all three matters, said: 'We're seeing that everywhere these days favoritism and disadvantages based on race and skin color, as you will see in our clients' presentation. The CRT push is subverting the missions of all of their organizations. They are in educational organizations, health care and treatment organizations, and counseling and care organizations, and these are all being subverted by the propaganda of CRT.' Seaton, as Alphanews reported, added the discrimination law violations that have occurred relate to 'Critical Race Theory, Black Lives Matter, and the 1619 Project.' 'They're all linked and this involves propaganda at the Lakeville schools, at the Hennepin Healthcare System, known as HCMC in the past, and at Minnesota DHS [Department of Human Services],' he said, adding: 'It's our clients' position that the organizations and shared ideology of Black Lives Matter, CRT and the 1619 Project are opposed, not part of, the civil rights movement. The historic civil rights movement has focused on equal treatment under law for all advancing people based on their merit and on the content of their character, as Martin Luther King famously put it, not the color of their skin.' " (Minnesotans Take Propaganda of Critical Race Theory To Court by Susan Berry).

The time of the present day is the time of the evening. It is the time when daylight has faded and the sun has disappeared. Dark colors and dark lights have exposed a cruel and wicked form. The dogmas of Marx and Hitler have evolved into the form of black tribalism and the eradication of the white race.

THE REDS' PROJECT FEAR

Fear is an emotion caused by the perception of something which can pose a danger. Fear causes physiological and behavioral changes, such as mounting an aggressive response, making a confrontation, or fleeing and escaping the danger. In human beings, fear can be modulated by means of reason and judged to be rational or appropriate or irrational and inappropriate. Students of history have observed in the present day a crusade and a tactic which have warned them that the story of the West is nearing completion and that the end, the undignified, disgraceful, ignominious end, is at hand. They have observed a crusade launched against the world of science and civilization, the world bequeathed to the present age by the Age of Enlightenment, a crusade which employs the tactic of inducing fear. They have observed that this crusade has been launched by the reds, by the voices of primitive, tribal collectivism, by the proponents of gender, race and class politics in opposition to the liberal order, and that the specific tactic employed to shut down civilization is to exploit the covid 19 pandemic and to induce a state of unreasoning fear toward it. Students of history have assembled the facts to refute the reds but their report has fallen on deaf ears, being silenced and ignored by the red masses and their red establishment, which are hell bent on turning back the clock and returning mankind to the rule of savagery and superstition, when animal hordes called clans and families roamed the land. The report is out there for all those who have eyes to read and understand and a mind to comprehend and judge, and its authors are grimly determined to do their duty and disseminate it as far and wide as they can, and to tell their countrymen who will not listen about the doom which will surely arrive. The vanishing pockets of reality based citizens who have read the report have seen the facts dispel their fears as the breaking rays of dawn dispel the darkness and gloom of midnight and early morning. Fact: people who are unvaccinated and under the age of 70 have a 99 percent chance of surviving covid 19. Fact: people who are unvaccinated and under the age of 50 have a 99.9 percent chance of surviving covid 19. Fact: people who are under the age of 20 have a 99.997 percent chance of surviving covid 19. Fact: Over 160 million Americans have been vaccinated and only 6,000 have contracted covid 19 and needed hospitalization, which is equal to 0.0037 percent of the vaccinated population. Fact: Only 1,100 of those vaccinated and infected have died, which is equal to 0.00071 percent of the vaccinated population, and of those who died, 75 percent were over the age of 65. Fact: In contrast with the fatality rate of covid 19, the chances of dying in a car accident during a lifetime are 1 in 107, while the chances of dying in a given year are 1 in 8,000. Reality based citizens have seen the low covid 19 fatality rates, seen the numbers with infinitesimal values, seen the numbers approaching zero and negative values, seen the numbers which trail off and disappear into thin air, seen the face of public fear without rational reason, and seen a sinister campaign launched by the reds to carry out an agenda, paraded in the name of public health, to lock down and shut down the people and progress of the modern world, and have been distraught and dismayed at what they have read: "Current estimates from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) involve what is known as the infection fatality rate (IFR) of COVID-19 in the United States. The IFR is the number of people who die 'of the disease among all infected individuals (symptomatic and asymptomatic),' according to the CDC. An asymptomatic case is someone who is infected who 'does not exhibit symptoms during the course of infection,' according to the CDC. The CDC notes that these estimates are 'not predictions or estimates of the expected impact of COVID-19.' Instead, what is presented is listed as the Current Best Estimate, which will be updated as more is learned. The IFR estimate is broken down by ages, and does not include people 80 or older. Age: 0 to 19 years. Infection Fatality Rate: 1 in 33,333. Age: 20 to 49 years. Infection Fatality Rate: 1 in 5,000. Age: 50 to 69 years. Infection Fatality Rate: 1 in 200. Age: 70 years and older. Infection Fatality Rate: 1 in 18. Here are those estimates, stated as the percentage of all those infected (symptomatic and asymptomatic) who are surviving. Age: 0 to 19 years. Infection Fatality Rate: 99.997 percent. Age: 20 to 49 years. Infection Fatality Rate: 99.98 percent. Age: 50 to 69 years. Infection Fatality Rate: 99.5 percent. Age: 70 years and older. Infection Fatality Rate: 94.6 percent. (CDC Estimates COVID-19 Fatality Rate, Including Asymptomatic Cases by Jon Erickson). Reality based citizens who have read the report have been shocked and horrified at what they have read. They have read a report which describes indefinite periods in which movements has been restricted. In which access to common areas has been prohibited. In which comprehensive travel restrictions have been enforced. In which mask mandates have been made permanent. In which personal freedom has been canceled. In which business freedom has been repealed. In which covid recovery has been declared to be unachievable and impossible. In which draconian government control has become a permanent feature of life. In which constitutional rights have been abrogated in the name of combating respiratory infections. In which human liberty has been ordered to shelter in place in the name of addressing a public health emergency. In which free institutions have been placed under attack by a roaring engine of government overreach without relaxation and without reprieve. In which personal responsibility has been placed on permanent lockdown by red front organizations disguised as scientific advisory groups. In which government administrations, ministers, advisors and chairmen have issued a declaration of war against the people and reduced them to wards of the state under the banners of public health, public hygiene and disease prevention. In which emergency covid legislation has been extended indefinitely and nations throughout the world have been plunged into endless winters of repression. In which government documents have formulated a plan and strategy to overthrow the liberal order in the name of protecting public safety and containing the coronavirus. In which homes, schools, offices, businesses, neighborhoods and the course of daily life have ceased normal operations in the name of fighting a disease pandemic and the progress of civilization has been brought to a halt: "Author Peter Hitchens has predicted that Britain could still be debating coronavirus restrictions in a year, after the UK has been under some form of lockdown or restrictions since March 2020. 'Here we are, it's 17, 18 months of all this stuff going on, and any sense that we're going to get out of it seems to me to be increasingly hard to believe. You think this is going to be temporary? I wouldn't be at all surprised if we're still discussing travel restrictions, masks, all the rest of it, next year,' Mr Hitchens told talkRADIO host Mike Graham. 'There is a relaxation, but how long will it last?' the Mail on Sunday columnist asked, tapping into the general fear from other lockdown skeptics that the end of most restrictions ushered in on Freedom Day would only be temporary. Conservative MP Mark Harper, the chairman of the Covid Recovery Group (CRG) predicted a week before the end of lockdown that it could only be a matter of weeks that the government could decide to impose fresh restrictions with the coming autumn and the rise in respiratory infections

associated with the colder months. 'Anyone who thinks I'm being too pessimistic should take a look at the small print in government documents, which offer more than a hint that the government is intending to reintroduce restrictions this winter,' Mr Harper said, citing a recent report from the government's Scientific Advisory Group on Emergencies (SAGE) stating that 'stronger measures may be desirable for autumn and winter'. 'What's more, buried deep in a government document released recently lurks a clear intention to extend the Coronavirus Act powers into 2022, when something that was supposed to be emergency legislation would have been in force for two years,' Mr Harper said. Chris Walker MP likewise predicted in June that 'we'll be in much harder lockdowns come the autumn'. Last week, CRG Deputy Chairman Steve Baker warned the government not to lock down the country again in autumn, after the Johnson administration confirmed it would be reviewing its covid 19 strategy in September. 'We don't shut schools, pubs and theaters for flu, so following the fantastic success of our vaccine rollout, we mustn't do it for covid either,' Mr Baker said." (Peter Hitchens Predicts UK Could Still Be Debating Coronavirus Restrictions Next Year by Victoria Friedman). In the twenty first century, a vast collaborative enterprise has been launched by the people and establishments of the world. Grown weary with the world of freedom and liberty handed down to them by the Age of Enlightenment, the masses and their leaders have formulated a plan. Proclaiming that a virus with a fatality rate of one percent poses a grave danger, threat and source of copious pain to the public, they have launched a campaign to switch off, power down, stop and halt the modern world. Their attack on the liberal order has composed the requiem of the West.

COMMUNISM ON THE MARCH

On October 28, 1922, Benito Mussolini's National Fascist Party Blackshirts entered Rome and backed by waves of popular support, placed the city in a state of siege. On the following day, King Victor Emmanuel III appointed Mussolini prime minister and transferred political power to the fascists without armed conflict. Students of history have seen in this mass adulation given to the enemies of freedom and in the peaceful transfer of power to them a century ago a symbol and metaphor of the victory of the reds in the present day. They have seen that today's enemies of freedom have ascended to absolute power to the wild applause of the masses, have ascended peacefully, democratically and without a shot being fired. They have seen that the peaceful transfer of social, political and cultural power to those who reject the right of the individual to live and work for himself represents the tragic end state of all civilizations, and that as the Roman Republic was subverted by Caesar and his masses, and subverted not by a coup or by the imposition of a minority, so the liberal order of the present day has been subverted by the reds, by reds of all stripes and varieties, from Marxist to fascist to feminist to national socialist, by millions of raised hands and fists shouting yes and not by the actions of a minority movement. Students of history know the psychology of the masses and know that it is only a matter of time until the majority, driven by the satanic furies of envy and jealousy toward their betters and superiors, and impelled toward submergence in a tribe or totality and the dissolution of individual freedom and responsibility, gets its way and succeeds in storming the ramparts of the liberal order. They know that it is only a matter of time until the masses fulfill their desires and succeed in smashing the institutions and traditions constructed and maintained by those who affirm that man is a free born agent with a natural right to live and work for himself, and is not born into slavery to a collective marked gender, race, nation or class. Students of history have issued their report on a mass, popular, democratic uprising against civilization and to read it is to read the fearsome and terrifying prognosis of a disease called The People. To read it is to read a program and manifesto composed by the masses and their voices and spokesmen, by their professors and politicians, for the establishment of a red totalitarian tyranny which will eradicate every last trace and vestige of free human existence. Voted on unanimously by the present day citizens of the West, this program and manifesto, proclaims that a progressive society supports Joseph Stalin and exalts him as the greatest political leader of all time. It proclaims that a progressive society is a Marxist society which has banned personal freedom and transformed human beings into the private property of the proletariat and its party. It proclaims that a progressive society justifies the murder of millions in the name of social justice. It proclaims that a progressive society plans famines, gulags and purges to eradicate the enemies of the working class. It proclaims that a progressive society kills, jails and represses the reactionary defenders of liberal democracy. It proclaims that a progressive society summarily executes and consigns to labor camps those who support capitalist freedom. It proclaims that a progressive society establishes absolute, untrammelled and unchallengeable state power in the name of protecting the downtrodden and the oppressed. It proclaims that a progressive society praises Mao Zedong as a great humanitarian leader and justifies his program of planned starvation as a necessity to eliminate antisocial voices and sentiments. It proclaims that a progressive society has carried out a program of extermination against the producers of private wealth and value. It proclaims that communism is the only system which improves the material and spiritual conditions of the people. It proclaims that Soviet socialism liberated the oppressed and the exploited from the remorseless lash of liberal opportunity. It proclaims that communists have a constitutional right to speak freely and nobody else has a right to speak freely. It proclaims that a progressive society is a revolutionary movement whose emblem and mascot is the hammer and sickle. It proclaims that a progressive society is inhabited exclusively by leftists, communists and socialists who affirm that all freedom lovers are scoundrels and entrepreneurs are fit only to die. It proclaims that those who stage riots and go on rampages under the banners of Black Lives Matter must be granted immunity from arrest and prosecution and must be immediately released from jail. It proclaims that a progressive society organizes labor strikes in the name of climate change and has outlawed modern industry and technology. It proclaims that capitalism is a cancer against the people and is rotten to the core and must be swept away by a communist insurrection. It proclaims that the Al Qaeda terror attacks on September 11, 2001 were justified because the world of freedom and liberty is a world of Satan and slavery. It proclaims that a progressive society prohibits free speech, private property and every fundamental right and freedom recognized by liberal constitutions. Look at the world of today's victorious reds and see regimes which have remade free societies into socialist swamplands. See regimes which confiscate the wealth of the producers in order to subsidize welfare benefits for the scum of society. See regimes which have increased social welfare spending to stratospheric heights. See regimes which have dissolved their borders and opened their gates to waves of dirt rolling in from across the world and granted them lifetime welfare support. See regimes packaging red totalitarian tyranny as a New Deal, a Great Society and European style socialism. See regimes which have repealed the industrial and technological age in the name of combating climate change. See free citizens transformed into wards and dependents of the state and given the necessities of life from the wealth produced by others. See justice stood on its head and nations divided into classes of producers and parasites, workers and idlers, and taxpayers and tax consumers. See slave labor and social sacrifice established as engines of economic growth. See a fearsome and terrifying point of social development reached, a point at which personal responsibility, private property, individual rights and the free market system have been swept away, a point at which the masses depend for their food, rent, housing, health care, education, child care and cash income on money looted for them by the state, a point at which public welfare support has become a way of life for millions of people and freedom has contracted into a vanishing point, a point at which civilization has collapsed into free fall and nothing can halt the downward movement into universal enslavement under the force of mob gravity, a point of no return: "Up next is a $3.5 trillion measure to remake America, which is also to be enacted without GOP support via a process called reconciliation, which enables the Senate to pass measures with a simple majority. This $3.5 trillion measure would expand social and environmental programs, extend the reach of education and health care, tax the rich and take on the challenge of the century—climate change. Among programs funded are universal prekindergarten for all 3 and 4 year olds, two years of free community college, clean energy mandates for utilities and lower prescription drug prices. Medicare benefits would be expanded and amnesty extended to millions of illegal migrants. All that is needed for its enactment into law is a Democrat majority in Speaker Nancy Pelosi's House, the votes of the 50 Democratic senators and the signature of Biden. After effecting passage of his $1.9 trillion COVID-19 relief package, if Biden gets the $1 trillion infrastructure proposal and the $3.5 trillion package, he will have enlarged federal spending by $6 trillion. This would constitute the greatest leap forward toward socialism of any American president, with Biden's only rivals being previous record holders Franklin D. Roosevelt during the 1930s' New Deal and Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society in the 1960s. If Biden succeeds in getting it all, this would not only be a quantum leap toward European style socialism. It would cross a divide for America, from which history teaches us there is no return. Passage of the $3.5 trillion omnibus bill would constitute a quantum leap in the number of Americans dependent on the federal government for the necessities of life. It would increase America's ratio of tax consumers to taxpayers. It would be tantamount to an admission of belief that the real engine of economic growth in America, the truly indispensable provider upon whom an ever expanding share of the population of the nation depend for food, rent, health care, education and cash income, is the government of the United States, not the American free market system." (America's Great Leap Forward Into Socialism by Pat Buchanan). The fundamental pillars of a free society are the principles of free speech and private property, the principles of mental freedom and physical freedom. Affirming that the individual and not the community is the owner of his mind and his property, these principles establish the right to speak out against the orthodoxies of political correctness, and the right to discriminate in one's business dealings on the basis of race and gender. They establish that free speech means free speech and that a private lunch counter is a private lunch counter. They establish that the state has no right to tell people what to say or what not to say, and that the state has no right to tell a private business that it is a place of public accommodation and may not discriminate on the basis of race or gender. Denying that the individual is a free born agent and is the owner of his mind and his property, today's masses and establishments have effected a peaceful transfer of rights, freedoms and civilization itself into the arms of the state.

GLOBAL CAPITALISM UNDER ATTACK

The double envelopment is a classic military maneuver in which forces attack both sides of an enemy formation at the same time. This maneuver holds fundamental importance in the history of warfare and the most famous example of its use was at the Battle of Cannae in 216 BC, when Hannibal used it against the Romans. Students of history have seen in this maneuver a fearsome and terrifying metaphor of the politics of the present day. They have seen the advance of global capitalism, the glorious child of the Age of Enlightenment, surrounded and enveloped by two opposing red forces, by the nationalist reds and by the internationalist reds, and seen human liberty attacked by two variants of the idea that man is not a free born agent with no right to live and work for his own sake, but is born into a nexus of social responsibility. These two variant strains of red philosophy promote the same theme but differ with respect to the object toward which they demand responsibility. For the nationalist reds, the object is a nation or race, while for the internationalist reds, the object is the international proletariat or working class, and these two rival, brother ideologies have in the present day joined forces in a campaign to engulf, encircle and obliterate the highest stage of capitalist development, the stage at which the entire world has been set free from the yoke of red social slavery. Students of history have issued their report on this twofold attack on human freedom and to read it is to read a program and manifesto composed by two camps of professional man haters active and flourishing, to the wild applause of the masses, during the twilight hours of Western civilization, and is to read a dual declaration of war launched against the Enlightenment world of reason, progress, virtue and morality. The program and manifesto described by the report is the bible of the present age and on its satanic pages is a picture of the hellfire which blazes whenever people abandon the rule of reason and descend into the malarial fever swamps of social mysticism which exalt the power of nations, races, parties and classes above the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual. Set forth and examined by students of history who see the end coming and see the end which has arrived, this program enunciated by the red swastika and red hammer and sickle formations of the present day proclaims that global capitalism undermines local decision making and favors the corporate and financial interests of the exploiters of the working class. It proclaims that global capitalism enables big business to do what individuals and small businesses cannot do: move freely across borders and utilize untold natural and human resources. It proclaims that global capitalism has declared total war on ethical standards and environmental protection. It proclaims that global capitalism is deleterious to the health and well being of the working class. It proclaims that global capitalism increases the power of industrialized nations to oppress the developing world. It proclaims that global capitalism widens the gap between rich and poor nations. It proclaims that global capitalism has deprived millions of farmers throughout the world of their livelihoods. It proclaims that global capitalism is a system of investor rights which has crushed the lives and careers of the working class. It proclaims that global capitalism is a system of private power which is opposed to workers' movements and to the rights of the people. It proclaims that global capitalism, by allowing competition in labor and goods and thereby lowering their price, violates the principle of social protection of the economy. It proclaims that global capitalism is a system of global inequity and injustice and must be smashed by the hammers of international proletarian solidarity. It proclaims that global capitalism is a system of global plutocracy and global corporate dictatorship. It proclaims that global capitalism violates the primacy of the nation and the principle of national freedom, national power, national action and national protection. It proclaims that global capitalism is a system of global war, colonization and imperialism directed against the rights of the working class. It proclaims that global capitalism poses a grave threat to local arts, achievements and belief systems. It proclaims that global capitalism has flattened ecological diversity and eliminated the splendid pageantry of the world's flora and fauna. It proclaims that global capitalism has plunged the world into economic crisis and misery. It proclaims that global capitalism has placed indigenous people beneath the steamroller of multinational corporations. It proclaims that people have a moral obligation to pay higher prices for goods and services in order to support domestic workers and industries. It proclaims that global capitalism has destroyed national, cultural and religious diversity. It proclaims that global capitalism benefits multinational corporations at the expense of poor, indigenous locals. It proclaims that global capitalism has forced local family lands into the tentacles of multinational corporations. It proclaims that global capitalism has undermined state sovereignty and state institutions. It proclaims that global capitalism has deprived people of their ethnic, racial, religious, tribal and cultural identities. It proclaims that immigration must be prohibited in order to eliminate labor competition and guarantee excessive wages to domestic workers. Listen to the words of the antiglobalists and hear them condemn global freedom as a scourge of impoverishment of the working class. Hear them condemn the free movement of people, capital, goods and services as an oligarchy in the hands of the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund and multinational corporations. Hear them condemn global free trade agreements as a threat to local and national economies. Hear them condemn the global march of liberty as an engine of mass unemployment and mass underemployment which has consigned the working class to squalid, congested hovels. Hear them condemn the global liberal order as a ruthless attack on public welfare. Hear them condemn the global order of individual rights as a threat to public services, public industries and social support systems. Hear them condemn the global order of free enterprise as a monster consuming land, agriculture, resources and the common good. Hear them condemn the global order of privatization as unjust, inequitable and unsustainable. Hear them condemn the global community of free people and free nations as a threat to social regulations and social tax obligations. Hear them condemn the global order of private growth and private freedom as a machine which steals wealth from the working class and transfers it into the treasuries of global corporations. Hear them call for the sacrifice of the individual's right to live, work, succeed and earn money for himself upon the fearsome altars of communal spaces, collective interests, common property and red totalitarian tyranny: "Approaches to development that synchronize with the ideals and goals of global capitalism do far more harm than good. Many countries that were impoverished by colonization and imperialism are now impoverished by IMF and World Bank development schemes that force them to adopt free trade policies in order to receive development loans. Rather than bolstering local and national economies, these policies pour money into the coffers of global corporations that operate in these nations under free trade agreements. And, by focusing development on urban sectors, hundreds of millions of people around the world have been pulled out of rural communities by the promise of jobs, only to find themselves un or underemployed and living in densely crowded and dangerous slums. In 2011, the United Nations Habitat Report estimated that 889 million people—or more than 10 percent of the world's population—would live in slums by 2020. The neoliberal that supports and justifies global capitalism undermines public welfare. Freed from regulations and most tax obligations, corporations made wealthy in the era of global capitalism have effectively stolen social welfare, support systems, and public services and industries from people all over the world. The neoliberal ideology that goes hand in hand with this economic system places the burden of survival solely on an individual's ability to earn money and consume. The concept of the common good is a thing of the past. Global capitalism has marched steadily across the planet, gobbling up all land and resources in its path. Thanks to the neoliberal ideology of privatization, and the global capitalist imperative for growth, it is increasingly difficult for people all over the world to access the resources necessary for a just and sustainable livelihood, like communal space, water, seed and workable agricultural land." (The Critical View On Global Capitalism by Nicki Lisa Cole). Global capitalism was the great dream of the Enlightenment. The cherished aspiration of this age was that every person in the world be allowed to live, work and flourish for himself within a global community which smashed the chains of social responsibility and protected his rights, freedoms and dignity. The magnificent ideal of this age was based upon the recognition that man is a free born agent and not born into servitude to a gender, race, nation or class. In the twentieth century, a prophet of anticapitalism appeared and set the masses ablaze. He threw the masses the raw flesh of hatred of capitalist internationalism and liberal freedom granted to all. Speaking through radios blasting out race hatred and at rallies shouting out neoMarxist identity politics, Germany's fuhrer of the Third Reich is the face of today's antiglobalists. He has joined hands with his Marxist comrades to write the epitaph of civilization.

WHY THE REDS HATE TRUMP

Schadenfreude is the experience of joy and pleasure at the failures of others. The driving forces behind schadenfreude are feelings of envy, jealousy and resentment toward one's betters and superiors, and these feelings cause one to attack, criticize, censure and cut them down. Psychologists have long known that envy and jealousy are the driving forces behind collectivist philosophies and have long known that in the swamplands of socialism there breed and multiply, like bacteria in a sewer, the haters and calumniators of mankind. Psychologists have observed the dark clouds of schadenfreude hang over the present day because they have observed the turbid rivers of a soul sickness called envy submerge and discolor free nations and free institutions. As the iron chains of cause and effect cannot be severed, so schadenfreude ever rises like a miasma from the decaying matter of envy, and in the age of envy which marks the present day, socialism and schadenfreude have become the inescapable, overriding religions of mankind. Psychologists have observed the furies of envy, jealousy and resentment flourishing and at work, wild and violent, in the souls of the reds and have observed this as the cause of the reds' perfervid hatred of Donald Trump. For the reds, Trump is the preeminent symbol and embodiment of the world which they hate and have dedicated themselves to destroy, the world of capitalism, individual rights, merited achievement and Western liberal civilization, and their war on Trump and on what he has achieved will only cease when this world lies in ruins and Trump has been blasted off the face of the planet. Psychologists have issued their report on why the reds hate Trump and to read it is to peer into a deep, underground tunnel and observe rushing torrents of moral waste charge and pounce on civilized society. The reds hate Trump because he made America energy independent for the first time in seventy years. The reds hate Trump because he created over five million jobs, reduced unemployment to below four percent which is statistically zero unemployment, and reduced black unemployment to its lowest rate in the history of the nation. The reds hate Trump because he brought America's southern border under control and constructed 724 kilometers of border wall. The reds hate Trump because he reduced taxes, rescinded onerous business regulations, and increased middle class incomes. The reds hate Trump because he negotiated a free and fair trade agreement with Canada which allows American farmers and wine producers access to the Canadian market, prohibits tariffs on digital products, and protects American manufacturing jobs. The reds hate Trump because he gathered and assembled the forces of government, the military and private businesses to defeat the covid 19 pandemic by manufacturing ventilators, stationing military hospital ships to badly affected areas, and launching Operation Warp Speed to develop a vaccine, which was rolled out in a record breaking eleven months. The reds hate Trump because he withdrew from the Iran nuclear deal on the grounds that it banned American inspectors from Iran's nuclear sites; it lifted economic sanctions and allowed Iran to earn hundreds of billions of dollars in revenue and spend it on guns, bombs, missiles and spreading terror; it did not require Iran to release American prisoners, such as Saeed Abedini, Jason Rezaian and Amir Hekmati; and it allowed Russia and China to supply Iran with weapons. The reds hate Trump because he destroyed the Islamic State caliphate by granting America's military a free hand implementing a Defeat IS strategy. The reds hate Trump because he moved the American embassy in Israel to the capital Jerusalem and brokered peace deals between Israel and five Arab nations, which included the Abraham Accords between Israel and the United Arab Emirates. The reds' hatred of Trump saw the rigging and stealing of the 2020 presidential election to ensure the victory of Joe Biden. The greatest perpetration of election fraud in the history of the nation, this campaign saw five battleground states announce that they would pause counting on election night after Trump was ahead, and when counting resumed in the morning, Biden was ahead in all the states. It saw Michigan report a ballot dump of 150,000 votes at 6:30 in the morning of November 4, ninety six percent of which went to Biden. It saw Wisconsin report a ballot dump of 150,000 votes for Biden at 3:45 in the morning of November 4. It saw vote counters in Philadelphia refuse entry to Republican observers. It saw the windows in a vote counting station in Detroit covered so that Republican observers could see inside. It saw vans in Detroit appear on election night with boxes of ballots for Biden. It saw ballots for Biden appear in Atlanta after a fabricated story of a water main break was used to eject Republican observers. It saw Maricopa County in Arizona refuse to comply with a subpoena to reveal the passwords to Dominion voting machines. Look at the 2020 presidential election and see vote numbers for Joe Biden fabricated out of thin air. See mailed in ballots for Biden counted by the thousands without records they had ever been mailed out. See a scheme to pervert and misrepresent the 2020 presidential election results without precedent in the history of the nation: "The state Senate audit of the Maricopa County, Arizona, 2020 presidential election results has taken, so far, months, and the first stunning numbers were released on Thursday. It was during a Senate hearing to listen to the auditors, from Cyber Ninjas, the company hired for the review, which revealed that, according to election records, more mail in ballots were counted than were mailed out. A lot more. In fact, 74,243 ballots were counted for which there is no corresponding record that they were mailed out. Officials for the company explained the scenario to the Senate hearing." (Audit Team Reports 74,000 Ballot Discrepancy In Arizona Mail In Votes by Bob Unruh). The reds hate Trump because he leads the opposition to the fearsome world created by Joe Biden. This world has seen a tidal wave of illegal aliens enter the country, a movement without precedent in the history of the nation. It has seen the growth of a movement to defund the police, which has led to an explosion of violent crime from coast to coast. It has seen a refusal to prosecute rioters, arsonists, looters and shoplifters. It has seen skyrocketing levels of unemployment. It has seen the end of the nation's energy self sufficiency. It has seen the inflation of the nation's currency through the creation of trillions of dollars to finance socialist programs. It has seen the weaponization of covid 19 to keep Americans poor, unfree and dependent on government support. It has seen official recognition granted to transgenders in the face of the reality that sex is determined by genes and is unchangeable, and that the terms biological male and biological female are redundancies. It has seen the prioritization of recruitment of transgenders in the military. It has seen the indoctrination of soldiers and school children throughout the nation with the tenets of critical race theory, which proclaim that capitalism, America and the liberal democratic order must be criticized and condemned as instruments of white racism and that people, societies and social interactions must be viewed through the prism of race. Look at the world of Joe Biden and see Marx's children and Hitler's youth wield cudgels marked Black Lives Matter and Critical Race Theory and smash through the gates of Western civilization. See university courses taught by terrorists, assassins, fugitives from justice and communist party leaders. See capitalism condemned as a system of state sanctioned violence against nonwhites. See capitalism condemned as a system of urban poverty, police brutality and white supremacy. See capitalism condemned as a prison industrial complex which has declared total war on women, blacks and the poor. See a movement of the hate filled and the discontented reverse the legacies of the Enlightenment and plunge America into the arms of red totalitarian tyranny: "Princeton University is offering a Black Lives Matter course taught by a professor with a commitment to Critical Race Theory. The course will also feature readings by a former Communist Party leader who once made it on the FBI's Most Wanted List. A Fall 2021 class, titled #BlackLivesMatter, will trace 'the historical roots and growth of the Black Lives Matter social movement in the United States and comparative global contexts', according to the course description. The description goes on to describe the Black Lives Matter movement and course as 'committed to resisting, unveiling, and undoing histories of state sanctioned violence against black and brown bodies.' The class will also offer 'a critical examination of the prison industrial complex, police brutality, urban poverty, and white supremacy in the US.' " (Princeton Offers Black Lives Matter Course Featuring Readings By Former Communist Party Leader by Alana Mastrangelo). For the past one hundred years, America has been under assault by the reds who live next door. Chaos, disintegration, socialism in all its forms, processions of black and feminist swastikas and Marxist hammers and sickles invading homes, schools, offices and governments: such is the doomsday brought by the people, and opposed tooth and nail by Donald Trump, in the people's war against civilization.

REDS APPOINT HITLER MED SCHOOL DEAN

He was known as Dr Death. During World War II, he served at the Mauthausen concentration camp complex where he tortured and killed hundreds of inmates. Students of history have seen a ghost haunt the present day and recognize its form. They have seen Aribert Ferdinand Heim, the notorious, hunted Austrian Schutzstaffel doctor who worked at the camp, come alive and stalk the corridors of today's hospitals. They have been plunged into a nightmare in which medical authorities, ostensibly dedicated to saving lives and promoting human health and well being, have renounced their mission and promoted the mutilation of human beings in the pursuit of a new religion founded by the reds. This is the religion of transgenderism and it proclaims that sex has nothing whatever to do with genes, science or the facts of reality but is completely changeable. Armed with this new religion, the reds have established a new gender group, composed of people who claim to have changed their sex, and have demanded special rights and privileges for the members of this group, which are the rights to have access to the organizations and facilities reserved for the sex they proclaim to be. In this nightmare which has engulfed the present day, medical authorities have become instruments for the mangling and maiming of people who suffer from gender dysphoria and cannot accept the iron, unchangeable reality of the sex they are. In this ugly, terrifying new order which reeks of the miasma of red politics, medical doctors have renounced their sacred Hippocratic Oath, their oath to heal and do no harm, and become agents of gender mutilation and the infliction of maximum bodily harm in an assault against reality without precedent in the history of medicine. Students of history have issued their report on this travesty of medical science called transgenderism and to read it is to read a program and manifesto of cognitive subversion and flagrant antiscience which harks back to the monstrous practices of red regimes in Russia and Germany, regimes which placed medical doctors in the service of ideological dogmas and handed them the scalpels and syringes of human destruction. The program enunciated by the red controlled medical authorities proclaims that the terms male and female must be removed from birth certificates because such information may hamper individuals who may decide to change their sex. It proclaims that the biological differences between males and females are not real or binding and people can change their sex designation to express their gender identity. It proclaims that a progressive society has established gender neutral sex designations on birth certificates. It proclaims that individuals have the right to determine their gender identity and sex designation on government documents. It proclaims that biological sex does not exist and individuals can select their gender identity. It proclaims that it is sheer superstition to believe that sex is an immutable, binary trait of human beings. It proclaims that science has refuted the notion that sex is determined by genes at fertilization. It proclaims that a progressive society has mandated the use of names and pronouns which reflect people's gender identities and are independent of their biological realities. It proclaims that males and females do not differ from each other by any such things as genes or cells. It proclaims that testosterone and not genes is what makes males male, and estrogen and not genes is what makes females female. It proclaims that a male who self identifies as a female and has undergone hormonal treatment has been transformed into a female. It proclaims that a female who self identifies as male and has undergone hormonal treatment has been transformed into a male. It proclaims that a progressive science curriculum prohibits teachers from telling students the facts about the male and female biological sexes. It proclaims that a progressive science curriculum rejects the empirically established facts which link sex with genetics and teach the red narrative that people can choose their gender. It proclaims that a progressive medical practice rejects scientific reality and teaches that sex and gender can be changed by suitable physical interventions. It proclaims that a progressive medical school polices the language of its professors to ensure that they do not use terms, such as breastfeed or premenopausal women, which imply that the sex is rooted in biological facts and is unchangeable. It proclaims that it is possible for a man to become a women and vice versa and those who deny this and traffic in the delusion that genes and chromosomes determine gender must be prevented from speaking out in public. It proclaims that a progressive society allows people to amend their sex designation on their birth certificate to reflect their gender psychoses. It proclaims that because sex is changeable and not genetic in character, all government records and government issued identification must include the options, undesignated gender and nonbinary gender. Look at the world of transgenderism and see the next generation of doctors, educators, clinicians and researchers placed into the service of a dogma which rejects of centuries of scientific understanding. See ideologues deny the reality and immutability of biological sex. See medical education programs commandeered by the promoters of red politics. See medical schools indoctrinate students with the doctrine that sex has no relation to genes or chromosomes. See professors intimidate students into believing that gender can be remade by chemical and surgical procedures. See medical practice placed into an ideological prison house by the imposition of a latter day Lysenkoism. See medical research reduced to a handmaiden of the latest red party line. See medical professionals reject such terms as natal sex and birth sex on the grounds that they imply the fixed, innate reality of sex. See medical centers reject the existence of inherent gender identity. See institutes of health eject the affirmation of biological sex from medicine. See truth suppressed and facts erased in medical faculties. See medical students and medical deans promote a gender ideology which has marketed insanity, assaulted reason, declared war on science and advanced a fearsome movement and disease of the soul called political correctness in the name of civil rights and social progress: "Carole Hooven is the author of T. The Story Of Testosterone, The Hormone That Dominates And Divides Us and a professor at Harvard who focuses on behavioral endocrinology. I discussed Lauren's story with her and Hooven found it deeply troubling. 'Today's students will go on to hold professional positions that give them a great deal of power over others' bodies and minds. These young people are our future doctors, educators, researchers, statisticians, psychologists. To ignore or downplay the reality of sex and sex based differences is to perversely handicap our understanding and our ability to increase human health and thriving.' A former dean of a leading medical school agrees: 'I don't know the extent to which the stories you relate are now widespread in medical education, but to the extent that they are—and I hear some of this is popping up at my own institution—they are a serious departure from the expectation that medical education and practice should be based on science and be free from imposition of ideology and ideology based intimidation.' He added: 'How male and female members of our species develop, how they differ genetically, anatomically, physiologically, and with respect to diseases and their treatment are foundational to clinical medicine and research. Efforts to erase or diminish these foundations should be unacceptable to responsible professional leaders.' There is no doubt the rules are changing. According to the American Psychological Association, the terms natal sex and birth sex, for example, are now considered disparaging; the preferred term is assigned sex at birth. The National Institutes Of Health, the CDC and Harvard Medical School have all made efforts to divorce sex from medicine and emphasize gender identity. For her part, Lauren, the medical student in California, is both hopeful for the future—and not. 'On the one hand, I have this idea that the truth will eventually come out and science will ultimately prevail,' she said. But the difference between things like rebirthing therapy or multiple personality disorder and the new gender ideology is that the latter is portrayed as a civil rights movement. 'It seems virtuous. It seems like the right thing to do,' she said. 'So how can you fight against something that's being marketed as a fight for human rights?' " (Med Schools Are Now Denying Biological Sex by Katie Herzog). Reality says that the sex of an individual is determined by a pair of sex chromosomes. Reality says that females possess two of the same kind of chromosomes, XX, while males possess two different kinds of sex chromosomes, XY. In the twenty first century, the reds have launched a philosophical assault against this reality. Promoting a religion of transgenderism, they have lowered the curtain on medical science and ushered in a dark age of cultural degeneration, harking back to the depths of voodoo Africa and the fall of Rome.

THE WE GENERATION

In the 1920s, national socialist student organizations played a major role in aligning German schools with the new racist ideology and in consolidating national socialist power. In 1926, the National Socialist Party founded the National Socialist German Student League, whose goal was to promote ideological training at universities and fashion students into "Workers of the Head and Fist" who would carry out acts of force and violence. Students of history have seen in the youth of the present day the apparition of something believed to have died long ago. They have seen the ghost of youth radicalization in the form and image of national socialism spread into homes, schools, cities and neighborhoods and consolidate the advance of red power which has taken control of the West. They have seen young people reject the glorious legacies of the Enlightenment, the traditions and institutions of liberal democracy which affirmed the right of the individual to live and work for himself, and promote in their place a fearsome and terrifying reversion of human culture into the primitive swamplands of tribalism dictatorship. They have seen today's youth reject the empirical fact that individuals and not groups exist outside the mind and that man the individual is a free born agent, and proclaim that man is born into the chains of social slavery and must live his life forever in service to the obligations imposed by his gender, race or class. They have seen today's youth reject the notion accepted by all sane, civilized people that individuals alone possess rights, freedoms and dignity, and worship at the altars of a religion of social mysticism which reduces individuals to the level of chattel slaves of superexisting, supernatural tribes. They have young people today form a vanguard movement of red radicalization which has followed in the footsteps of German national socialist youth movements and stormed the ramparts of freedom and civilization with the chariots of a Marxist based politics drawn by Satan's horses of doomsday. They have issued their report and to read it is to read a program and manifesto of war against the progress in human rights achieved by the modern world and to see and hear the ghosts of the past come alive. Marx's progeny of gender, race and class politics set the swastika bearers of the German youth marching one hundred years ago, and the clacking of the jackboots and the agitations of the sewers have returned among the youth of the present day, as they shout out their program and manifesto of a living, breathing, walking nightmare and carry out its criminal commands. Filling decent people with trembling and trepidation as they scarcely believe what they see and hear, as they are confronted by the program of a generation gone delinquent and a generation gone mad, the program of today's Young Pioneers, today's Red Guards, today's Young Communist Youth Leagues and today's National Socialist Student Unions consists of the following points. It proclaims that the generation born in the late 1990s and early twentieth century is the most progressive generation in the history of mankind because it is unswervingly committed to the establishment of socialism. It proclaims that the liberation of the people and the planet can only be achieved by the dismantling of the capitalist system. It proclaims that the capitalist system exploits the true creators of wealth, the class of manual, unskilled laborers, by denying them one hundred percent of the revenues of industry. It proclaims that a progressive society is an ecosocialist movement which has outlawed the sworn enemies of the working class: private freedom, private flourishing, private profit and industrial progress. It proclaims that a progressive society is a movement of radical political and economic change which has transformed human beings into political and economic slaves of the people's community. It proclaims that the capitalist system and modern technology pose existential threats to the workers and to the planet. It proclaims that a progressive society is a black revolutionary organization in which a black master race fights and dies for its right to subjugate whites and to sweep away liberal constitutionalism. It proclaims that socialism is an imperative for those who want to improve the quality of life and to save the human race. It proclaims that a progressive society has organized and mobilized its youth to propel Joe Biden and his communist allies into victory. It proclaims that a progressive society has trained its youth voters to turn out in record numbers across all states to install Marxists and black national socialists into power. It proclaims that a progressive society has taught its youth how to become dedicated platforms for red belief systems and how to achieve red digital fluency, disseminate red information, and shout out hate slogans across the pages of the red social media. It proclaims that capitalism is system of white supremacy and discrimination against women. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of racial injustice and slaughter of indigenous people. It proclaims that a progressive society is a black liberation movement whose single, overriding political project is the destruction of white people. It proclaims that a progressive society is run by politically radicalized youth dedicated to the subversion of liberal institutions and the establishment of a race and class based autocracy. Listen to the words of a young communist and hear the terrifying voices in charge of the present day and the loud cries demanding the destruction of civilization. Hear socialists and fascists championing the politics of class and race stage uprisings against liberal democracy. Hear the defenders of human liberty tarred and feathered as white supremacists and bourgeois exploiters of the working class. Hear a young generation prepare and organize like troops to build a totalitarian future. Hear young delinquents and hoodlums shout out their disenchantment with freedom and their desire to crush their neighbors beneath the steamrollers of social responsibility. Hear the young torch bearers of ideological radicalization advocate mass murder in the name of social justice. Hear young Marxists condemn individual rights as a system of stolen profits. Hear young reds assemble as front line workers and assassins on behalf of collective ownership of the means of production. Hear young totalitarians condemn capitalism as an engine of climate crisis and instigator of planetary emergency. Hear young climate activists advocate the overthrow of the modern age in the name of environmental justice and climate habitability. Hear young haters and malcontents stage a conference, a congress, a convention and a rally on Satan's fairgrounds, send delegates wearing armbands inscribed with class conflict, historical materialism, identity politics, democratic socialism, proletarian socialism, national socialism and gender, race and class revolution, and vote yes to lead a movement of extermination of every trace of Enlightenment human flourishing from the face of the earth: "I'm a seventeen year old socialist. For my generation, a fascist presidential administration, pandemic, economic collapse, and a historic uprising for black lives have shaped our worldview. These defining events and movements have caused Gen Z to become more disillusioned with capitalism and the white supremacist, bourgeois state than older generations. As the youngest delegate at this week's Democratic Socialists of America (DSA) National Convention, I urge members of my generation to mobilize toward building a socialist future. Disenchantment with capitalism and positive attitudes toward socialism are strongest among younger Americans, but Gen Z faces a unique set of conditions that make us especially open to ideological radicalization. Polling shows that Gen Z adults, ages 18 to 24, already have a more positive view of socialism than of capitalism—presumably because our age group has also experienced the worst of late stage American capitalism. My belief in socialism was strengthened during my time as a front line worker, but it originated earlier, when I first became engaged in politics through climate organizing. I recognized capitalism as the root cause of the climate crisis and realized that the environmental justice for which I was fighting posed a threat to capitalism's very existence as a system of profit and exploitation. Looking at the world through the lens of class conflict and historical materialism has made everything I had never been able to explain make sense. So many of my questions can be answered. What continues to mystify me is how anyone my age can still have complete faith in capitalism, a system that is driving our planet to literal uninhabitability." (The Democratic Socialists Of America Can Mobilize Gen Zers Like Me by Calla Walsh). Atop the smoldering ruins of the liberal order, a flag has been hoisted by today's millennials and members of Generation Z. It is a flag woven by frightful, disturbed youth exalting a mystical We of human existence above the rights and freedoms of the individual. It is a flag of destruction directed against the march of human progress raised by the ropes and pulleys of troubled young adults. It is a declaration of victory proclaimed by totalitarians in their early years which has brought back images of a monstrous past and made history repeat itself.

THE ROARING TWENTIES: ROARING WITH DEGENERACY

Luminous toxin is a fatal dose of radiation which comes from the ingestion of a highly radioactive substance such as radium chloride. Unlike normal toxins, it is slow acting and its symptoms are not immediately apparent. There is no known cure for it and the victim, succumbing after one or two days, is a dead man walking. Students of history have seen in luminous toxin a symbol and metaphor for a certain period in Western history which shone brightly but carried a slow acting poison within its depths and represented an early stage of the decline and fall of civilization. They have seen the 1920s tragically poisoned by the toxin of subjectivism and have seen this glittering second decade of the twentieth century as a period which marked the intensification of what came before and the acceleration of the free fall which commenced at the dawn of the century. Subjectivism: the doctrine that all knowledge is subjective and that there is no external or objective truth. Subjectivism: the toxin which has afflicted the West from its inception one thousand years ago among the Germanic peoples of Northern Europe. Subjectivism: the toxin encapsulated in the will worshiping life and career of the West's foremost doctor and master of the diabolical arts, Faust. Subjectivism: the toxin which was the minority position in the Apollonian culture of the Greeks and Romans and was resoundingly rejected by the Classical intellectual establishment. Subjectivism: the toxin which has taken its toll with increasing severity with every passing decade of the West. Subjectivism: the toxin which sharpened its attack on reason and reality during the 1920s, even as the decade witnessed the glorious products of reason improve the lives of millions of people, products which were fading rays from the Age of Enlightenment: automobiles, telephones, films, radio, aviation, electrification, household electrical appliances, and bacteria killing antibiotics. Students of history have issued their report on the 1920s and to read it is to read about an age which saw the scientific and technological flowering of reason, even as its roots were being systematically subverted and cut down by the onrushing and accelerating dark side of the West: by the subjectivism symbolized by Faust. To read it is to read a description of a rising tide of cultural decay which saw ten short years blaze to the heavens with material achievements as its intelligentsia, its expressionist, formalist and red intelligentsia, all faithful servants of the Faustian god subjectivism, worked overtime to push the West into total collapse. These servants of Faust proclaimed that capitalism has produced a Lost Generation of moral idealists who resent the materialism embodied in the concern for individual rights and who

wander across the free world lost, disoriented and directionless, forever in search of the socialism they call home. These servants of Faust proclaimed that a progressive society is under the governance of Bright Young Things, of bohemians who drink heavily, use mind altering drugs, and throw parties in support of communism. They proclaimed that capitalism is a vacuous Main Street, a spreading desert of dullness and ignorance, a spiritually vacant land ruled by babbitts, cretins, conformists and religious con men. They proclaimed that progressive architecture is art deco architecture which features cubism, curvilinear designs and pure geometry without mass or weight of any kind. They proclaimed that progressive architecture is Bauhaus architecture which features rectangles and spheres without solidity or support. They proclaimed that progressive art is expressionist art which renounces physical reality and projects moods, ideas, distortions and subjective perspectives. They proclaimed that progressive art is surrealistic art which renounces physical reality and projects dreams, illogical juxtapositions, contradictory states, unconscious impulses, non sequiturs and pure psychic automatism. They proclaimed that progressive art is dadaist art which renounces physical reality and produces nonsense, irrationality, collage, sound poetry and cut up writing. They proclaimed that progressive music is jazz music which produces improvisation, syncopation, rhythms, tempos, tones and chord changes without melodic arrangement or progression of any kind. They proclaimed that progressive psychology affirms that man is an irrational animal who is controlled by unconscious impulses, the paths to which lie in the techniques of free association and dream interpretation. They proclaimed that the task of philosophy is to analyze the items of subjective experience and to bracket and reject all concern with physical reality. They proclaimed that reality has no essence and is pure indeterminateness, and is the "being there" and the "being in the world" of the brave, heroic, ruthlessly acting will, unrestrained by the dictates of reason or conscience. They proclaimed that progressive philosophy is critical theory, which censures liberal values and Enlightenment rationalism in the name of Marxism and identity politics, and exalts the social, historical and ideological forces of the reds. They proclaimed that philosophy is the sociology of knowledge, the study of the production of human thought by social context. They proclaimed that knowledge is not objective in character but is intersubjective and the product of voting, consensus, convention and the structure of the human mind. They proclaimed all truth is relative to culture and society and nothing can be held to be absolutely or universally true. They proclaimed that the so-called physical world is inseparable and indistinguishable from human perception and is constructed by the forms and categories of consciousness. They proclaimed that a progressive society is a system of red totalitarian tyranny which marches under the banners of humanist philosophy and democratic socialism. Listen to the words of the Roaring Twenties and hear them proclaim that what are called physical objects are the products of human conceptions, posits, prejudices and interpretations. Hear them proclaim that there is nothing out there which exists independently of human mental activities. Hear them proclaim that nothing exists as pre-given or prior to human thought and perception. Hear them proclaim that the only existence which is certain, indisputable and self-evident is the existence of human consciousness and awareness: "The interpretation of something as something is essentially grounded in forehaving, foresight, and foreconception. Interpretation is never a presuppositionless grasping of something previously given. When the particular concretion of the interpretation in the sense of exact text interpretation likes to appeal to what is there, what is initially there is nothing else than the self-evident, undisputed prejudice of the interpreter, which is necessarily there in each point of departure of the interpretation of what is already posited with interpretation as such, that is, pre-given with forehaving, foresight, fore-conception." (Being And Time by Martin Heidegger). Listen to the words of the Roaring Twenties and hear them condemn individual freedom as isolating and alienating. Hear them exalt collectivist enslavement as providing man with a meaning and place in the world. Hear them exalt the iron chains of social responsibility as a blessing and beatification of the individual. Hear them advocate the reversion of human society to the dark subjection imposed by the guilds, churches, swamplands and quagmires of socialism: "What characterizes medieval in contrast to modern society is its lack of individual freedom. But although a person was not free in the modern sense, neither was he alone and isolated. In having a distinct, unchangeable, and unquestionable place in the social world from the moment of birth, man was rooted in a structuralized whole, and thus life had a meaning which left no place, and no need for doubt. There was comparatively little competition. One was born into a certain economic position which guaranteed a livelihood determined by tradition, just as it carried economic obligations to those higher in the social hierarchy." (Escape From Freedom by Erich Fromm). Listen to the words of the Roaring Twenties and hear them proclaim that the production of art has nothing whatever to do with the facts of reality. Hear them proclaim that the art of painting is the art of generating arbitrary forms from dreams, impulses, images and the imagination, forms which are unrelated to and unshaped by the character of external existence: "I paint what cannot be photographed, that which comes from the imagination or from dreams, or from an unconscious drive. I photograph the things that I do not wish to paint, the things which already have an existence". (Man Ray, interview in Camera). Over the horizons of the twentieth century appeared a train called Cultural Downfall. It would stop at every decade. In the 1920s, it picked up Edmund Husserl, Martin Heidegger, Karl Mannheim, Ernst Cassirer, Erich Fromm, Sinclair Lewis, Ernest Hemingway, Hector Guimard and Man Ray, among its famous passengers, and sped on its way. Carrying the deadly freight of Faustian subjectivism which became deadlier with every stop, the final train of the West has crashed into the twenty first century. It has exploded into fireballs which have lit up the sky and buried civilization in the ruins of the mind.

AMERICA IN HIS CROSSHAIRS

Hunting is the practice of seeking, pursuing and killing wildlife. The most common reasons for hunting are to harvest animal products, to remove predators, to eliminate pests, for recreation and taxidermy, for trade and tourism, and for ecological conservation. Psychologists have long known another reason for hunting and have classified it among their symptoms of personality disorders. It is a rare motive and exists only among the severely disturbed and the sociopathic. It is the pleasure derived from inflicting pain and suffering upon and killing an innocent life. Psychologists in the present day tremble and shudder at something they observe in public life. They observe the sadism described in their diagnostic manuals on evidence in the highest political office in the land and hear a fire bell in the night which fills them with terror. They hear the death knell of the nation, a nation gloriously conceived in the Age of Enlightenment, a nation formed and devised in the strivings of human freedom, a nation which for centuries had served as the mighty arsenal and Good Samaritan of freedom throughout the world, and see a sentence of death carried out by the red enemies of freedom, in a nightmare of all nightmares, in the person of the nation's chief executive and commander in chief. They have issued their report on the commandeering of the presidency by a dangerous madman without conscience of any kind and to read it is to read the final chapter of a story which commenced a century ago, in the early years of the twentieth century. It is the story of a red takeover of the nation from below, from the masses and the man on the street, and the story of what happens when the masses place the reds in charge and give a green light to the red psychopathology of sadistic gratification obtained from acts of national destruction and the subversion of decent, civilized ways life. It is the story of a mass epidemic of red insanity infecting the people next door and the bottom rungs of society, rising to the highest levels of government, impelled by the masses, and giving democratic sanction to a national party leader and his program to undermine political life and lead the nation into the abyss. The psychologists' report on the presidency of Joe Biden describes the lost of Afghanistan. After twenty years of fighting which saw the deaths of 2,500 American soldiers, and an expenditure of trillions of dollars, Afghanistan collapsed in a single day. Donald Trump concluded an agreement with the Taliban under which American military presence in the country would end on May 1, 2021, and in exchange, the Taliban would cease attacks on American troops, sever links with terror organizations such as Al Qaeda, and negotiate in good faith with the Afghan national government. Joe Biden violated this agreement and refused to evacuate American forces on May 1, postponing the evacuation to August. In response, the Taliban violated their end of the agreement and launched a nationwide campaign of conquest which saw the surrender of the national government, the instantaneous collapse of Kabul, and an embarrassment and humiliation of America not seen since the fall of Saigon in 1975. Biden refused to commence the evacuation of American personnel on the day he took office. He refused to destroy military equipment, which later fell into the hands of the victorious Taliban. He refused to provide sufficient troop support to protect Americans and their Afghan allies until the evacuation was completed. He refused to heed intelligence reports. He refused to engage in proper planning and carry out a safe and responsible withdrawal of forces. The psychologists' report describes Biden's policy of allowing hundreds of thousands of illegal aliens to overrun the southern border and then transporting them into towns and cities throughout the nation. It describes Biden's halting the construction of the southern wall, which was within months of completion. It describes Biden's reinstatement of Obama's Catch and Release program under which illegal aliens are released into the nation's interior while they await asylum and immigration hearings, which the vast majority do not attend. The psychologists' report describes Biden's order that people vaccinated against covid 19 wear masks. This order flies in the face of the facts that out of 170 million people vaccinated in America, there have been 7,608 hospitalizations and 1,587 deaths, which is statistically zero. The psychologists' report describes the explosion of gasoline prices under Biden. Under Donald Trump, America had become energy independent. Biden reversed Trump's policies, shut down the Keystone XL pipeline and halted new oil drilling and exploration permits on federal lands, which led to skyrocketing fuel prices. The psychologists' report describes levels of inflation at a thirty year high under Biden, caused by an increase in the money supply to 25 trillion dollars to finance social spending. The psychologists' report describes a president who abdicated the responsibilities of leadership and placed the nation's security in mortal danger. A president who hoisted the flag of abject surrender to the Islamist assassins of civilization. A president who allowed the Taliban to overthrow the Afghan government at lightning speed. A president who betrayed the Afghans who fought for the freedom of their country. A president who abandoned the American embassy and placed tens of thousands of Americans and Afghans at risk. A president who executed a withdrawal of American forces which saw the desperate and the doomed falling from the skies. A president who destroyed America's trustworthiness and reliability in the eyes of its allies. A president who gave courage and confidence to Russia, China and the forces of terror in their war against America. A president who ordered a draw down of American forces without conditions of any kind and erased two decades of American idealism, bravery, blood and treasure. A president who showed disloyalty and disrespect toward the soldiers and their families who heroically defended Afghanistan for two decades. A president whose actions defined the meaning of the terms dereliction of duty and desertion of friends. A president whose decisions nullified the achievements of American troops, diplomats and intelligence officers who served in Afghanistan. A president whose failure to perform his obligations destroyed America's safety, sullied America's prestige, effected a foreign policy failure of gargantuan proportions, plunged the nation into the depths of shame and disgrace, and shown the dark actuality of a national monster in action and the frightening reality of what it means to be unfit and unqualified to serve in the highest office in the land: "President Joe Biden's weak address to the American people shows he is unfit to serve as President of the United States. For six days, Joe Biden remained in hiding during the most significant foreign policy and national security failure in a generation. Rather than provide leadership and address the American people and our allies around the world, Joe Biden chose to continue his vacation while the US Embassy in Kabul was abandoned, the Taliban toppled the Afghan government, and tens of thousands of US citizens and Afghans desperately rushed to the airport to be evacuated from Kabul. President Biden's lack of a plan, dereliction of duty, and deafening silence erodes our credibility to defend US interests in the future. On the precipice of the 20th Anniversary of September 11, the images of Biden's failed and catastrophic withdrawal, including helicopters evacuating Americans from our US embassy and Afghans clinging to US military planes and falling from the skies, will forever be seared into the American psyche and will not soon be forgotten around the world. Because of Joe Biden's weak and feckless leadership, the US is less safe today than we were before he took office. Joe Biden has destroyed our credibility with our allies around the world and emboldened our adversaries like Russia, China, and terrorist groups on the march. This is Joe Biden's Saigon. Joe Biden is desperately attempting to pass the buck. But the buck always stops with the President of the United States. There is only one Commander in Chief. There is only one person who sits behind the Resolute Desk. The responsibility for this failure rests solely with President Joe Biden. President Trump's Afghanistan policy was always conditions based. President Joe Biden totally abandoned that conditions based requirement and allowed the Taliban to break the deal and essentially erase overnight two decades of American sacrifice, service, blood, and treasure." (Statement On Biden's Afghanistan Address by Elise Stefanik). In America in the present day, civilized people see a vision which fills them with horror. Their nightmare is real and plays out every day. They see a pair of lines crossing at right angles at the focus of a gun sight. They see a figure, without empathy, without remorse, bold, uninhibited and psychopathic, pull the trigger. To the wild acclaim of the communists down the street and the reds who control the nation, Joe Biden has blown up America.

PRIVATE PROPERTY, RIP

A transformation is a thorough, dramatic and essential change of something. In biology, it is observed in the process of molting and in the change from a larva to a pupa. In physics, it is observed in the change of one element into another by a nuclear process. In geology, it is observed in the creation of diamonds from from pure carbon in the earth's mantle under extreme heat and pressure. In the field of politics, political scientists have observed an attempt at transformation which has filled them with feelings of fear and foreboding for the future of freedom and placed before them a terrifying vision of the end of civilization. They have observed an attempt at transformation which is as spectacular in its failure as it is criminal in its intent and rationale and have seen a signpost marked totalitarian government staring at them like a monstrous gargoyle at the final stop in the journey of the West. They have seen the reds in control of free nations seek to transform private property into public property, private enterprises into public enterprises, private accommodations into public accommodations, and to repeal one of the two fundamental pillars of a free society. Political scientists understand that a free society is predicated upon the two fundamental freedoms, the right of free speech and the freedom to own and dispose of property, and that if any one of these freedoms is abrogated by the state, the road to political serfdom has been opened, surfaced and set down with hard, unyielding, irremovable stones. They understand that an individual who is not free to own and dispose of property is just as much a slave of the state as an individual who is not free to speak out in public and to speak his mind, and that the nightmare horror of total enslavement is enacted when an individual is not free in any realm of existence, neither in the realm of spirit nor in the realm of matter, and has been reduced to the level of a bound and chained being who needs a government permission slip to think, to speak, to act and to own material things. Political scientists have issued their report on the repeal of the right to property and to read is to read a program and manifesto of red political control which has lowered the curtain on five centuries of liberal democratic order and pushed the ideals which flourished during the Age of Enlightenment into the dustbin of history. Voted on unanimously by red majorities throughout the world which have assumed total power over the state and society, total power over parliaments, presidents, prime ministers, cabinets and courts of law, this program consists of the following fearsome, horrific points. It proclaims that a progressive society has established categories of protected classes and forbidden the owners of private businesses from discriminating against these classes. It proclaims that a progressive society has outlawed discrimination on private property on the basis of gender, race, ethnicity, nationality, disability, mental illness, sexual orientation, creed, religion and political opinions. It proclaims that private business owners are not private business owners and do not enjoy the freedom to associate with those whom they choose in the conduct of their business. It proclaims that private housing establishments are not private housing establishments and may not discriminate on the basis of race or ethnicity. It proclaims that a private contract is not a private contract and individuals who enter into private contracts may not consider race or ethnicity in the making of their contracts. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished the right of an individual to assemble with individuals of his choosing and transaction business with them. It proclaims that private employers are not private employers and may not hire, fire or promote those whom they chose and may not discriminate in their actions on the basis of race, gender, gender expression or sexual orientation. It proclaims that a private bar or restaurant is not a private bar or restaurant and is governed by state antidiscrimination laws. It proclaims that private organizations are not private organizations and the state may force their members to violate their conscience and beliefs and admit members they do not wish to admit. It proclaims that private corporations are not private corporations and are subject to state pay equity laws and must be forced to pay men and women the same pay for the same work. It proclaims that a private space is not a private space and its owners may not exclude people on the basis of age, birth, wealth, language, health, disability, marital status, social origin, association with a national minority or genetic properties. Look at the red repealers of private property and see the rejection of the right of private citizens to associate with those whom they wish to associate. See the rejection of the right of privacy, the right of free association and the right of free enterprise. See the rejection of the right of private business owners to serve or not to serve anyone they please. See the rejection of the rights of private producers operating in private markets. See lawful government transformed into a lawless dagger which has guillotined the rights of private actors, private doers, private offices and private corporations. See the weaponization of law enforcement to invade private business establishments and post antidiscrimination edicts. See the iron fists of politically biased judges enforce the red party line and abolish freedom of choice. See private accommodations nationalized in the name of civil rights and turned into state owned accommodations. See the repeal of freedom of organization and collaboration and the requirement that private shop owners trade with people against the shop owners' will. See private business owners forced to open their spaces and premises to the public, to violate their conscience and beliefs in the name of nondiscrimination, and to become faithful agents and servants of the people's red totalitarian tyranny: "Government may not discriminate in granting marriage licenses. But private parties should be able to consort with whomever they please. The rights at stake are those related to association, property, privacy, and religious exercise. Individuals and business owners should be able to serve, or not serve, anyone they please—guided by the marketplace and constrained by competition. Customers who object can take their business elsewhere. Usually, although not always, that process leads to fair outcomes. Admittedly, prior to the Civil Rights Act, free markets might have produced segregated public accommodations. It's hard to be certain. Markets were impeded by Jim Crow, corrupt law enforcement, biased judges, extralegal violence, and even denial of services such as water and electricity to firms that wouldn't toe the segregationist line. Moreover, free markets are not perfect. But neither is government. The proper comparison is not markets versus an ideal world where justice is ubiquitous. Rather, the relevant comparison is markets versus government regulation. No reasonable person disputes that government occasionally does good things. But the equation isn't complete without considering the bad that inevitably accompanies the good. Along with restaurant and hotel integration—which would have happened without government, although more slowly—we now have the inequities associated with such practices as minority set asides and racial preferences in school admissions, not to mention expanded schemes that might require Jewish bakers to provide cakes at Nazi weddings, and black florists to supply flowers at a Klan funeral. From a legal perspective, discrimination should be permitted in any society that honors freedom of association. A member of one religious or racial or ethnic group should not be required, against his or her will, to associate with members of other groups. On the other hand, it's perfectly consistent to argue from an ethical perspective that religious, racial, and ethnic discrimination is sometimes reprehensible. We should condemn people who practice such discrimination, even as we insist on their legal right to do so. Private discrimination that isn't engineered by government can be censured via nongovernmental means—for example, refusal to patronize bigots, social ostracism, and adverse publicity regarding the discriminatory acts. We can denounce immoral conduct—such as lying, infidelity, and even bigotry—without empowering the state to take remedial action." (Libertarianism And The Right To Discriminate by Robert Levy). People of sound mind have long known a fundamental law of reality. This is the law of noncontradiction and it says that a thing cannot both be and not be something at one and the same time, cannot be both black all over and white all over at the same moment, because what is black all over is black all over, and A is A. The defenders of freedom have applied this fundamental law of reality to the realm of man and society and have long known that a private action is a private action, a private organization is a private organization, and a private lunch counter is a private lunch counter, and that if man is to be free, the state must recognize and respect the rights of private businesses to discriminate against and exclude people for any reason they choose. In the twenty first century, the defenders of freedom have held a requiem and recited a funeral poem for this right to discriminate on private property. Observing waves of statism set into motion by the masses and mobs, they have seen this right buried by the reds.

SPEECH UNFREE, ELECTIONS UNFAIR

To die a thousand deaths is a well known English idiom. It means to experience intense and repeated suffering. Students of history have seen in this idiom a perfect description of the story of America over the past one hundred years. They have seen America die a thousand deaths through the treason of its masses. They have seen it die a thousand deaths at the hands of a dagger marked statism wielded by the bloody hand of mob rule. They have seen it die after the passage of Progressive legislation, after the passage of the New Deal, after the passage of the Fair Deal, after the passage of the New Frontier, after the passage of the Great Society, after the passage of "centrist politics", after the passage of "compassionate conservatism", after the passage of the Third Way, after the passage of the Affordable Care Act, and after the election of Joe Biden who has planned and received popular support for a great leap forward of the nation into the dark swamplands of socialism. Students of history have observed the latest death of America and in seeing it, have been compelled to issue yet another report, to draw yet another portrait of a dead nation walking, to plant yet another tombstone on a grave marked a thousand times, and to write yet another epitaph of a society stabbed in the back by its citizens who have joined forces with the reds and offered up human liberty and constitutional government upon altar tables marked tribalism, equality, envy, jealousy, covetousness and hatred. In their latest report on the latest death of America, students of history have focused upon two violations of the constitution, violations committed to the wild applause of the American people, and committed to consolidate the unholy advance of red power. These are violations of the right of free speech, guaranteed under the First Amendment, and the right to vote in free and fair elections, implicitly guaranteed under the suffrage amendments. These amendments are the Fifteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty Third, Twenty Fourth and Twenty Fifth, and they establish a right to vote for all races, all sexes, all citizens who have reached the age of eighteen, all citizens of Washington DC, and the right to vote without the payment of a poll tax. By recognizing a right to vote, these amendments necessarily guarantee a right to vote in free and fair elections, without which the right to vote is meaningless and becomes nullified. Students of history have seen in the present day an attack on free speech without precedent in the nation's history. They have seen the reds proclaim that speech which is not politically correct is hate speech and must be outlawed. They have seen the reds proclaim that the state must decide what people can hear and what people cannot hear and must prohibit all diversity of viewpoints which challenge the red political orthodoxy: "Everybody uses the epithet 'hate speech' for any idea that they hate. If that becomes the standard for what we're going to hear and what we're not going to hear, we're not going to hear anything at all. Given the wonderful diversity of ideas in this society, one person's hate speech is another person's beloved speech." (Nadine Strosser, American Civil Liberties Union). They have seen the reds proclaim that the survival of a progressive society requires a regime of wide ranging censorship of ideas and opinions. They have seen the reds proclaim that a progressive society has abolished government neutrality in the marketplace of ideas and opinions and allows zero opposition to the politics of gender, race and class. They have seen the reds proclaim that a progressive society prohibits all expressions of dissent from the communist world view. They have seen the reds proclaim that a progressive society is a partisan society which has abolished fair, objective and independent news reporting. They have seen the reds proclaim that a progressive society has established a communications cartel which ruthlessly persecutes all those who dissent from the Marxist and neoMarxist party line. They have seen the reds proclaim that a progressive society has outlawed freedom of thought and conscience and established a regime of censorship, intolerance and weaponization of the law to suppress the voices of antired dissent: "Free speech advocates are facing a generational shift that is now being reflected in our law schools, where free speech principles were once a touchstone of the rule of law. As millions of students are taught that free speech is a threat and that 'China is right' about censorship, these figures are shaping a new society in their own intolerant images." (The New Censors: Poll Show Shows Almost Half Of Americans Favor Government Censoring 'Misinformation' by Jonathan Turley). Students of history have seen the presidential election of 2020 rigged and arranged to bring victory to Joe Biden in the greatest act of electoral fraud in the history of the nation. They have seen an epidemic of fraud spread from coast to coast. In Nevada, 90,000 fraudulent votes were cast for Biden, including the following: 42,000 people voting multiple times, 1,500 people voting who were listed as dead, 20,000 nonresidents voting, 8,000 people casting mail in votes from nonexistent addresses, 15,000 people casting votes from commercial addresses or vacant addresses, and 4,000 noncitizens voting. In Arizona, they have seen over 100,000 votes improperly cast for Biden, which included 28,000 duplicated ballots cast in Maricopa County. In Wisconsin, 221,000 ballots were improperly cast for Biden, which included ballots whose envelopes had missing information completed by clerks, ballots which had been issued without a proper request, and ballots which had been the subject of ballot harvesting. In Michigan, a Guard the Vote worker testified before the State Senate Oversight Committee that he had examined 30,000 out of the 172,000 absentee ballots cast in Detroit and that 229 were from dead voters and 2,660 were from voters with invalid addresses. In the state, Republican poll watchers were denied access to counting rooms on the pretext of safeguarding public health from the covid pandemic. In Pennsylvania, Biden's victory was secured by the elimination of signature verification requirements, postmark requirements and ballot deadlines. It was secured by the use of unsafe drop boxes. It was secured by the unauthorized curing of ballots by state officials. It was secured by the exclusion of independent poll watchers from counting rooms. It was secured by an inaccurate State Uniform Registry of Electors, an inconsistent application of the state election code, and by partisan officials tasked with the oversight of elections: "We were already concerned with the actions of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, the Executive branch, and election officials in certain counties contravening and undermining the Pennsylvania Election Code by eliminating signature verification, postmarks, and due dates while allowing the proliferation of drop boxes with questionable security measures and the unauthorized curing of ballots, as well as the questionable treatment of poll watchers, all of which created wholesale opportunities for irregularities in the 2020 presidential election. However, we are now seeing discrepancies on the retail level which raise even more troubling questions regarding irregularities in the election returns. These findings call into question the accuracy of the SURE system, consistency in the application of the Pennsylvania Election Code from county to county, and the competency of those charged with oversight of elections in our Commonwealth. These numbers just don't add up, and the alleged certification of Pennsylvania's presidential election results was absolutely premature, unconfirmed, and in error." (PA Lawmakers: Numbers Don't Add Up, Certification Of Presidential Results Premature and In Error, Dec. 28, 2020, repfrankryan.com). In Atlanta, Georgia, state officials ordered news reporters and poll watchers out of a counting room, pulled suitcases of ballots cast for Biden from underneath a table, and ran them through tabulation machines. In the state, officials did not use signature verification to certify mail in ballots. The United States Constitution provides that only state legislatures, and not state courts, state officials or state executives, may set the time, place and manner of elections. In violation of the Constitution, officials in four states, Wisconsin, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Georgia, made changes to their voting laws to secure Biden's victory. In consequence of this, the state of Texas filed a lawsuit against these states with the United States Supreme Court. Proclaiming lack of standing, the Supreme Court dismissed the suit. Defenders of the rule of law stood aghast at the ruling. They understood that the task of the Supreme Court is to review state actions submitted to it and to prohibit those actions which violate the Constitution. The right to vote in free and fair elections is implicitly guaranteed by the constitution's suffrage amendments. Every person in the nation has standing to challenge the national government when it violates the constitution. The Supreme Court was shamefully negligent in its duty in not prohibiting the actions of the state officials and in not nullifying the election results in the four states. The latest death train has stopped in America. It was preceded by a thousand death trains racing downward since the turn of the twentieth century. Driven as always by America's red majority in control, this train has declared war on the the right of free speech and the right to vote in free and fair elections. It has taken the nation on its familiar ride through the rungs of hell.

REDS' VICTORY IN AFGHANISTAN

In Richard Wagner's 1876 opera Twilight Of The Gods, Hagen murders his enemy Siegfried, the hero of the story, with a spear in his back. Since that time, the phrase stab in the back has entered into common parlance and become a well known expression in all languages and refers to a betrayal of trust and an act of treachery. Students of history have been struck by this phrase as by a thunderbolt when examining the recent debacle in Afghanistan. They have seen a nightmare horror take place and an act of treason committed without precedent in the history of the American nation. They have seen the president of the United States sell out his country to the enemies of freedom in a nation in central Asia, where his country had fought for two decades defending the cause of freedom, and hoist the white flag of American surrender across its storied mountains and valleys. They have seen the national front man for America's red majority disgrace and humiliate his nation and allow the Taliban to seize the reins of power without meaningful shots of resistance being fired, and to seize control over the government in a single, ignoble, inglorious instant. They had never before seen such a thing, seen the crime of betraying one's country committed by an occupant of the highest office in the land, and they understand that to see this is to see a fearsome and terrifying act of transformation. It is the transformation of lawful American government into a lawless American gang presided over by renegade dedicated to the embarrassment of freedom's defenders and the destruction of freedom's laws throughout the world, and to the consolidation of socialist power at home and abroad. It is the transformation of the office of the president into a sniper's nest manned by a Judas whose aim is to discredit his nation, place its citizens in mortal danger, cast a shadow of doom across free nations throughout the world, imperil the global institutions of liberal democracy, and effect the downfall of Western civilization. Students of history have issued their report and to read it is to read what happens when a spark is allowed to ignite a pool of gasoline, when a high criminal is allowed to take control over a superpower which had been the foremost fortress and arsenal of freedom for decades, and to blow up the march of progress achieved in the distant regions of the world. To read it is to read the unholy story of Joe Biden and his mission to lower the curtain on America and the free world to the wild acclaim of the red voters who installed him into power. The story of Joe Biden and Afghanistan is the story of a trillion dollar project to implant freedom in a Muslim land crash and burn after two decades of heroic struggle. It is the story of the final American departure from the Hamid Karzai International Airport becoming a byword for sudden, ignominious failure. It is the story of the greatest fiasco NATO has suffered since the organization's founding in 1949. It is the story of American control confined to the Kabul airport and American citizens outside the airport stranded and doomed: "I don't have the capability to go out and extend operations currently into Kabul." (United States Defense Secretary Lloyd Austin). It is the story of tens of thousands of Americans, Afghan allies and their families held hostage by the Taliban and America forced to negotiate with the Taliban to arrange for their departure. It is the story of a war which commenced as a means to evict the terrorists who planned the attacks on 9/11, and ended with the victory and empowerment of the forces of terror, and the permanent sully of America's reputation as a defender of freedom. It is the story of a war lost by America and won by the Taliban, a war which placed the Taliban back in control of the country, and emboldened Islamists throughout the world. It is the story of Joe Biden withdrawing American planes and drones from Bagram Air Base in July without informing America's allies and depriving Americans of a departure area. It is the story of American citizens forced to pass through Taliban checkpoints throughout the country. It is the story of Afghans falling from the sky after clinging to American planes in a desperate attempt to reach freedom. It is the story of American forces fleeing in fear and fleeing without a fight before onrushing Taliban hordes. It is the story of American forces withdrawing without planning, preparation, performance or guaranteeing security as determined by conditions on the ground. It is the story of Biden rejecting the peace agreement Donald Trump signed with the Taliban on February 28, 2020. According to this agreement, America would withdraw its forces in phases based upon conditions on the ground, and the Taliban would agree to cease armed attacks, sever all ties with terror organizations, and coexist with the national government in Kabul. If the Taliban violated any of its terms, America would take military action. It is the story of the Taliban renouncing its end of the agreement with Trump in response to Biden's renunciation, and launching a national military offensive to take over the Kabul government. It is the story of America abandoning its ally for two decades and allowing Afghan soldiers and civilians who fought for their freedom to fall into the arms of the enemy. It is the story of Biden demanding that Americans who have managed to reach the Kabul airport sign a promissory note for 2,000 dollars to reimburse the United States government for their flights. Look at the crimes of a latter day Benedict Arnold, occupying the highest office in the land, who mentally lives and breathes behind enemy lines. Look at Joe Biden's disloyalty to American embassy staff in Afghanistan and their feelings of anger and betrayal toward him. Look at an embassy left helpless, defenseless and without protection before Biden's abject surrender to the Taliban. Look at embassy staff beaten, brutalized, attacked and abused by the Taliban. Look at Taliban fighters construct a Berlin Wall of manned entrances around the airport. Look at thousands of American and Afghan lives placed on a guillotine and billions of dollars in military equipment placed into enemy hands. Look at bearded criminals wearing turbans violating the laws of free people and disrupting the order of civilized life. Look at parents separated from their children and orphans begging in the streets. Look at fleeing people stampeded to death and hospitals overflowing with the dead and the wounded. Look at decent people robbed of their rights, freedoms, dignity and self respect. Look at people's homes damaged, destroyed, spray painted with the Yellow Badges of hatred, and marked for extermination by the Taliban. Look at the oases of freedom in a barren Asian land placed under a state of siege and America and the West ground into dust by Satan's envoys of savagery and superstition: "Staff members at the US Embassy in Kabul, Afghanistan, have expressed anger and betrayal over the government's evacuation efforts. On Saturday, NBC News received a cable detailing the lack of protection for US Embassy staff members making their way to Kabul airport for evacuation. The cable, which was sent Saturday, said memos were sent Wednesday inviting Afghan staff members at the embassy to head to Hamid Karzai International Airport in Kabul. It told them to take food and to prepare for difficult conditions. 'However, no one anticipated the brutal experience that occurred,' the cable said. Staffers reported being jostled, hit, spat on and cursed at by Taliban fighters at checkpoints near the airport, it said, adding that criminals were taking advantage of the chaos while the US military tried to maintain order 'in an extremely physical situation.' Some staff members reported that they were almost separated from their children, while others collapsed in a crush of people and had to be taken to hospitals with injuries, the cable said. Others said they had collapsed on the road because of heat exhaustion, it said. One staff member even went as far as to say, 'it would be better to die under the Taliban's bullet' than face the burgeoning mob, while another said, 'Happy to die here, but with dignity and pride.' Another staff member said their home had been vandalized with spray paint by the Taliban, a method for identifying and marking those who may have potentially aided the United States. On Saturday, the US Embassy advised that people stranded in Kabul should avoid traveling to the airport due to the overwhelming crowds and Taliban fighters. 'Because of potential security threats outside the gates at the Kabul airport, we are advising U.S. citizens to avoid traveling to the airport and to avoid airport gates at this time unless you receive individual instructions from a US government representative to do so,' the embassy said on its website." (Report: Afghan Staff For US Embassy In Kabul 'Deeply Disheartened' By Evacuation Efforts by Paul Bois). Saigon 1975. Americans, Vietnamese refugees and foreign nationals scale the wall of the US Embassy in Saigon, trying to escape the communists and reach evacuation helicopters. Kabul 2021. One of the worst military defeats suffered in the history of mankind. The greatest foreign policy humiliation suffered by America in its history. The surrender of an American air base, weapons and embassy. Left behind and seized by the Taliban: 600,000 assault rifles, 2,000 armored vehicles and 40 aircraft, including Black Hawk helicopters. American soldiers evacuated before American staff, friends, allies and weapons are safely out of the country. The flag of the Taliban flies over Afghanistan. Two scenes, one from Saigon and one from Kabul, of red treason committed against America. The first committed by Congress, by refusing to approve emergency aid to South Vietnam, and the second committed by Joe Biden, who replaced a planned, dignified, conditions based withdrawal of American forces by an unseemly retreat. The reds' second victory after Saigon, Biden's back stabbing of America, has sealed the fate of freedom's advance.

BROADCAST JOURNALISM'S RED IN CHIEF

The Last Nine Days Of The Bismarck, written by C. S. Forester, tells the story of the breakout of the German battleship Bismarck into the Atlantic Ocean during World War II and describes the Royal Navy's unrelenting pursuit and destruction of the ship. Students of journalism have seen in this world famous story a symbol and metaphor of the career of a man lauded by the cultural establishment as the greatest figure in broadcast journalism. They have seen in this story a fearsome and terrifying emblem and guide of what Edward R. Murrow, American broadcast journalist, war correspondent and host of the television program See It Now, did to the cause of truth, integrity and honesty in the reporting of news: he damaged it, attacked it and put it out of existence. They have seen the career of a shameless partisan parading as an objective newsman, an advocate who slanted the news in order to carry out a red agenda, and a supporter of parties and causes championed by the enemies of freedom who discredited the microphones and cameras of news reportage for all time to come. They have issued their report on Murrow and to read it is to see and hear a nightmare horror emerge out of the wires and lights of electronic boxes and harass the homes, schools and offices of the people. It is to study the case file of a communist sympathizer and enemy of the free world whose legendary broadcasts made the tubes of mass media communication flicker and die out and become dark rays of a malignant force of evil. The report on Murrow describes a man who worked for the Ford Fund For The Republic, an organization which promoted communism under the guise of protecting civil liberties and sought to establish the dominance of the far left over American institutions. The report describes Murrow's work for the Ford Fund in defending Robert Oppenheimer. It describes Murrow's propaganda broadcast on Oppenheimer which falsely claimed the Oppenheimer was not a Soviet agent and was wrongfully accused of collaborating with the Soviet Union. Oppenheimer was in point of fact a dedicated Soviet contact and member of the American communist apparatus who provided the Soviets with access to secret nuclear weapons research undertaken by the Manhattan Project during World War II: "In accordance with your instruction of 29 September 1944, NKGB USSR continues measures for obtaining more detailed information on the state of work on the [problem of uranium] and its development abroad. In the period 1942-1943, important data on the start of work in the USA on this problem was received from our foreign agent network using the contacts of Comrade Zarubin and Kheifitz in their execution of important tasks in line with the executive committee of the Comintern. In 1942, one of the leaders of scientific work on uranium in the USA, Professor Oppenheimer, while being an unlisted member of the apparatus of Comrade Browder, informed us about the beginning of work. On the request of Comrade Kheifitz, confirmed by Comrade Browder, he provided cooperation in access to research for several of our tested sources, including a relative of Comrade Browder. Due to complications of the operational situation in the USA, the dissolution of the Comintern and explanations of Comrades Zarubin and Kheifitz on the Mironov affair, it is expedient to immediately sever contacts of leaders and activists of the American Communist Party with scientists and specialists engaged in work on uranium." (Letter From Boris Merkulov, USSR People's Commissar For State Security, To Lavrenty Beria, USSR People's Commissar For Internal Affairs, 2 October 1944). The report on Morrow describes the Oppenheimer broadcast as a typical Murrow production to advance the communist cause, a broadcast colored and biased to whitewash a famous American scientist who was in the secret service of the Soviets, and to burnish a traitor to his country. The report describes an hour long interview with Oppenheimer conducted by the greatest red propagandist in broadcast history to promote and publicize a dangerous security risk who threatened the safety of America and the free world: "The Ford Fund For The Republic selected one of the biggest political propagandists in the United States, Mr Ed Murrow, of the Columbia Broadcasting System, radio and television, to do the job of dusting the security risk label off Oppenheimer. An hour long interview between Mr Murrow and Dr Oppenheimer was filmed with sound, and at great expense hundreds of reproductions were made for free distribution to colleges and civic groups, all paid for by Dr Hutchins, with tax exempt money, your money and my money. In typical Ed Murrow fashion, the interview was a highly colored propaganda job to present to its viewers Dr J. Robert Oppenheimer as a genius, a towering figure in American science, who had been grossly abused and wrongfully accused of outrageous charges of which he was now and always had been, entirely innocent. Ignored entirely in the Ed Murrow propaganda film were the details of the charges against Oppenheimer, including his own admission that he lied repeatedly to security officers of the Manhattan District and the FBI regarding his contacts and other vital national security matters." (Representative Carroll Reece, United States House Of Representatives, July 21, 1955, Congressional Record). The report on Murrow describes his defense of communists such as Harry Dexter White and Annie Lee Moss and his condemnation of Joe McCarthy. A senior United States Treasury Department official, White was identified by the FBI, through evidence gathered by the United States counterintelligence Venona Project, as a Soviet agent, code named Jurist. White reported regularly to the Soviets, obtained vital information from the highest levels of government for them, and was a dedicated servant of the KGB and the cause of communism: "You have previously been advised of information obtained from [Venona] regarding Jurist, who was active during 1944. According to the previous information received from [Venona] regarding Jurist, during April, 1944, he had reported on conversations between the then Secretary of State Hull and Vice President Wallace. He also reported on Wallace's proposed trip to China. On August 5, 1944, he reported to the Soviets that he was confident of President Roosevelt's victory in the coming elections unless there was a huge military failure. He also reported that Truman's nomination as Vice President was calculated to secure the vote of the conservative wing of the Democratic Party. It was also reported that Jurist was willing for any self sacrifice in behalf of the KGB but was afraid that his activities, if exposed, might lead to a political scandal and have an effect on the elections." (FBI memorandum, October 15, 1950). In 1954, FBI informant Mary Markward testified before the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities that she had seen Annie Lee Moss's name and address on the Communist Party's membership rolls. In 1958, the Subversive Activities Control Board corroborated Markward's testimony. Moss's FBI file includes the following: lists of party recruits which identify Moss by name, race, age, and occupation; membership lists from Communist Party branches, the Communist Political Association, and ad hoc communist committees which contain Moss's name, address and the number of her Communist Party membership book; and receipts from 1945 for Daily Worker subscriptions. In the matter of McCarthy, evidence in the form of Venona decrypted Soviet messages and Soviet espionage data opened to the West has completely vindicated McCarthy's exposure of communist security risks and the scale of Soviet espionage activities carried out in the United States in the 1940s and 1950s. The mass of evidence derived from Soviet and Western sources has proven that McCarthy's conclusions concerning such risks were right, reasonable and justified: "But evidence accumulated from a variety of sources—including Soviet archives—since the end of the Cold War in the early 1990s shows that McCarthy's charges were, in numerous cases, neither false nor hysterical—but correct." (The Vindication Of Joe McCarthy by Andrew Bernstein). The report on Murrow describes a man who was director of the communist front Institute of International Education. It describes a man invited students and teachers throughout the world to attend communist indoctrination schools in Moscow. It describes a man who was an agent of a Soviet espionage and propaganda organization known as Voks. It describes a man who was a member of the Industrial Workers of the World, an organization cited as subversive by the United States attorney general: "It seeks to alter the United States government by unconstitutional means." Fair minded individuals know that the those whom the cultural establishment lionizes are the enemies of freedom, while the defenders of freedom are unrelentingly targeted for destruction by the establishment. They have observed as a case in point the establishment's beatification of CBS News' Edward R. Murrow during the final hours of the West.

When the brain is damaged by injury or disease, there appear symptoms which include an impairment of thinking, memory and behavior. The stricken person is unable to function or carry out everyday activities and exhibits emotional problems, difficulties in language and decreased motivation. Students of history have observed this brain disease mirrored by a moral condition and have observed that tyrannies throughout the ages have been presided over by individuals who have exhibited either this neural failure or its moral counterpart. In the present day, students of history have plunged into the arms of an unmitigated nightmare which has sent them spiraling into black pits of sadness, despair, anxiety, panic and terror. They have observed the definition of a bad, frightening, unpleasant dream and wish they could run away from it and wake up at ease into a quiet, placid, early sunny morning. They have observed the present occupant of the office of the president of the United States exhibit the symptoms of both moral and neural disease and take his nation down into a dark night of madness which it had never before known and from which it has no hope of recovery. They know that if this is not evil and does not constitute a nightmare, then evil and nightmares do not exist, and reality is a perpetual, glistening, unreal paradise. They know that the nation will never emerge from this nightmare because it has arrived at the end stage of a development which commenced one hundred years ago when an incubus called mob rule spread its wings across the nation and consumed its traditions and institutions. They know that mob rule has shredded the constitution, repealed the rule of law, brought socialism to the life and times of America, and elevated the politics of gender, race and class to the position of an unchallengeable religion lording over a land which once defended the world's downtrodden as their arsenal, policeman, Good Neighbor and Good Samaritan. Students of history have issued their report on the person and presidency of Joe Biden and to read it is to peer into the locked ward of a mental hospital and the enmeshing quagmire of a moral swampland and to be hit in the head with a signpost proclaiming the final crash, ignition, explosion and conflagration of America. The report describes a president who mishandled the Afghanistan withdrawal and whose refusal to make the withdrawal conditions based led to a nationwide Taliban offensive and Islamic State suicide attacks at Kabul airport, killing dozens of American soldiers and hundreds of Afghans. It describes a president who created a disaster at the nation's southern border. It describes a president who generated skyrocketing inflation, including soaring fuel prices, through the printing of money. It describes a president who unleashed a nationwide crime wave by coddling vandals and attacking the police. It describes a president who cannot communicate in coherent sentences. It describes a president who engages in meaningless and unintelligible speech. It describes a president who cannot keep his thoughts clear when speaking on any topic. It describes a president who cannot maintain his mental faculties on national television. It describes a president who verbally moves in aimless ways. It describes a president who cannot complete an idea. It describes a president who cannot express a consistent point of view. It describes a president who says things suddenly, without consideration, and babbles out strings of words which fail to make any sense. It describes a president who promotes critical race theory, which teaches that white people and the liberal democratic system must be criticized and condemned as inherently racist, mandates critical race theory in the military, and renounces the goals of military preparedness and readiness. It describes a president who knew that a Taliban victory was inevitable but nevertheless removed American troops before evacuating American civilians and Afghan allies, leaving tens of thousands of people trapped behind enemy lines. It describes a president who left behind in the withdrawal billions of dollars worth of war equipment, including Black Hawk helicopters, ScanEagle military drones and A-29 Super Tucano attack aircraft. It describes a president who condemns capitalism as a system indelibly stained with systemic racism. It describes a president who seeks to effect "revolutionary institutional changes" and to do away with the system of constitutional rights. It describes a president who seeks to "fundamentally transform" the country and place human liberty upon altar tables marked social responsibility. It describes a president who advocates a New Deal expansion, a Great Society expansion, an Affordable Care Act expansion and a welfare entitlements expansion as the supreme imperatives of progressive politics. It describes a president who displayed no judgment or engagement in Afghanistan and sent a message to America's enemies that the nation is weak and in the control of far left radicals. Look at the world of Joe Biden and see a president peddle the heroin of big government to the junkies of the sewers who rule the nation. See a president promote totalitarian tyranny in the name of progressive programs and platforms. See a president look backward into the nameless eons of tribal prehistory and place modern society into the hands of revolutionaries, extremists, statists, collectivists, Marxists, neoMarxists, New Dealers, race agitators, professors of identity politics, and warriors on behalf of social rights, and sell it to the people as a perfect, ideal and emancipated state of existence: "One theme that emerged was the idea that Biden would be the most progressive president since Franklin Delano Roosevelt, whose New Deal policies prolonged the Great Depression but also hooked Americans on Big Government. Last April, Biden promised Sanders 'one of the most progressive administrations since Roosevelt.' The next day, former President Barack Obama echoed that claim, calling Biden's policies 'the most progressive platform of any major party nominee in history.' It was never clear where progressive ended and socialist began. Conservative author, litigator, and radio host Mark Levin argue recently that Biden's primary concern is his legacy. And for a Democrat of his generation, FDR's legacy is the one to beat. Meanwhile, with Biden looking backwards, the young radicals in his administration are looking forward to a utopian future, one informed by the Marxists and Critical Race Theory scholars they were taught to admire in their elite universities. They are supplying the policies that enable Biden's historical narcissism." (Blue State Blues: Joe Biden Turns Out To Be the Socialist He Said He Wasn't by Joel Pollak). Look at the world of Joe Biden and see a president stutter and stammer into the yellow lakes of psychological deterioration. See a president meander through the blue flowers of mental incoherence. See a president wander around the dark halls of mental confusion. See a president stroll through the twilight forests of unintelligibility. See a president crash into the sandbanks of delirium, shipwrecked, collapsed and totally destroyed. See the national red media establishment spoil, indulge, cosset and prostrate itself before a figure clothed in black, a figure devoid of the sunlight of mental clarity, a figure unfit to lead and unfit to exist: "Some of the inexplicable decisions and strange remarks made by US President Joe Biden lately has once again rekindled concerns about his declining psychological well being. While the US media continue to fawn over him and pamper him with soft questions, a series of incongruous comments have only served to fuel suspicions about Joe Biden's deteriorating mental health. As a consequence, numerous political commentators, journalists and analysts have raised doubts whether the President is mentally fit to lead. The American people need an objective evaluation of President Joe Biden's cognitive capabilities, journalist Grant Stinchfield argued in the wake of his disastrous CNN town hall, where he was seen meandering and providing confusing answers to the questions asked of him. Stinchfield held that Joe Biden is showing more signs of dementia and a man in decline as his stammering, stuttering and a complete lack of coherence during his townhall meeting suggested." (Who Is Running The Country? Series Of Bizarre Comments By US President Joe Biden Sparks Further Concerns About His Deteriorating Mental Health by Jinit Jain). In their report, students of history describe a president who rejected Donald Trump's rational plan to evacuate from Afghanistan and chose to remove American troops first, American and Afghan civilians second, and to leave behind eighty billion dollars worth of military equipment. They describe a president who inherited a closed southern border, closed by hundreds of kilometers of walls built by Donald Trump, and open it up to millions of illegal immigrants. They describe a president who inherited a flourishing energy sector made possible by Trump's deregulation policies, which had made America energy independent for the first time in over seventy years, and shut it down by canceling the Keystone XL pipeline and issuing antifracking regulations on federal lands. They describe a president who inherited an economy rebounding from covid restrictions and wrecked it with high taxes, stratospheric spending policies, and an increase in the money supply by trillions of dollars. The Abbey In The Oakwood is a world famous oil painting by Caspar David Friedrich. It depicts a world of coffins, coldness, broken windows, passing away, yawning graves, setting suns, crescent moons, remnants of buildings, landscapes consumed in darkness, and unremitting horror and ruination. Students of history see in this masterpiece a portrait of mental, moral and psychological deterioration. They see the fearsome and terrifying world of Joe Biden.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE REDS

The history of socialism is the history of mass democracy, the history of mass politics, the history of the masses' impulses to vent their feelings of envy, jealousy, resentment and discontent, and level down and eliminate their betters and superiors. It is an autopsy of dead souls and dead societies, the story of the failed and the frustrated in their quest to establish common ownership of wealth, enterprise, property, bodies and minds, and to smash the gates which guard the traditions and institutions of free people. It is a postmortem conducted on an aggregate of people grown weary, bitter and spiteful toward the world of success and achievement, a people determined to devour all that makes man fully and completely human, to sweep away with relentless revolutionary zeal the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual, and to storm the ramparts of human civilization. The history of modern socialism commences at the dawn of the twentieth century when mass politics first made its entrance into the world, and first raised its fists in cabinets, courts, parliaments, street protests and editorial pages to repeal constitutional government, and legalize tyranny in the name of progressive philosophy. At this time, over one hundred years ago, the masses gathered together and agitated to deliver the world to communism. Under the masses' system, the tenets of which were formulated by Karl Marx, the individual is nothing, the class and the collective are everything, and the state and party, as the voices of the class and the collective, have the power of life and death over the individual. Under the masses' system, man is not a free born agent but is born into the iron chains of social justice and social responsibility. Under the masses' system, everything and everybody belongs to the state, and the individual stands before the state as a rightless cog in the machinery of the social organism and a passive instrument of public purposes. Under the masses' system, those in pursuit of social goals are justified in doing anything whatever to gain and maintain power, and the evils of deceit, duplicity, terror, murder, extortion, treason and blackmail are the highest virtues if practiced to achieve a socialist society. Under the masses' system, the ideal person is a proletarian citizen of the world and a traitor to the free institutions of his own country. In 1917, America was engaged in a world war against Germany in defense of American liberty and the free way of life. During World War I, the Russian people overthrew the czar and set up a liberal democracy under the leadership of Alexander Kerensky. The new government pledged total support to the Allied Powers in their war against Germany. Germany now fought a war on two fronts, eastern and western. In response Kerensky's decision, Germany organized and financed the return to Russia of seven communist exiles led by Vladimir Lenin in a plan to overthrow the new Russian government and eliminate the eastern front. Once they arrived in Russia, Lenin's communists undermined the army, navy and civilian heads of government. In one hundred days, they became the masters of Russia, withdrew the country from the Allied coalition, and proceeded to organize and finance communist parties in every country in the world. They sent skilled propagandists and espionage agents to work in countries. They sought to infiltrate the governments and bring into them as many communists as possible. In 1919, Russia created an international communist organization called the Communist International, the purpose of which was to "struggle by all available means, including armed force, for the overthrow of the international bourgeois and the creation of an international Soviet republic." (Second Congress of the Communist International). The advance of red power across the face of the earth moved at lightning speed. In the mid 1930s, there was one country, Russia, with a population of 180,000,000 people, which was trapped in communists chains. In the mid 1950s, over one third of the earth's surface and over 800,000,000 people were under communist control, and in Guatemala and Honduras, communists set up military bases. By 1985, one third of the earth's population, or over 1.5 billion people, lived under communist rule. In the 1940s, a communist juggernaut advanced across Europe. The communists first captured a portion of Finland. They then captured Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia. They then captured first half of Poland, and then shortly thereafter, the rest of the country, through the actions of traitors in Poland and America. They then captured Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia by infiltration, by mass appeal, and without firing a single shot. Listen to the words of an anticommunist official in the Czechoslovakian government at the time of the communist takeover of his country. Hear him describe the actions of supporters, sympathizers, advocates and party members of a totalitarian movement at work with care and perseverance guiding and directing the ship of state. Hear him describe red traitors tar and feather the defenders of freedom. Hear him describe red turncoats peddle a creed of reversion to primitive collectivism. Hear him describe red collaborators sell class dictatorship to the people. Hear him describe red cooperators lower the curtain on liberal progress and constitutional rights, and plunge their nation into the eternal night of communist subjugation: "In my country, the patterns was identical to what it is in the United States. If anyone, before the communists took over, dared to attack those communists who were preparing and shaping the policy of my government, shaping the policy to betray my people, he was promptly attacked and destroyed by a combination of communists, fellow travelers and those unthinking people who thought they were serving the cause of liberalism and progress, but who were actually serving the cause of the most reactionary credo of all times, communism. Because of those people, night has fallen upon my nation and slavery upon my people." In 1949, 400,000,000 Chinese people were delivered into the arms of communism by red propagandists operating in America, operating at the highest levels of government, who proclaimed that the Chinese communists, under the leadership of Mao Zedong, were agrarian reformers and that the antired Nationalist government of the Republic of China represented the essence of evil, corruption and wickedness. These American agents of communism delivered to the international communist movement all of Manchuria, half of the Kurile Islands, and half of Korea. These American agents as well succeeded in delaying America's research on the hydrogen bomb by eighteen months in order to give the Soviets time to catch up. Listen to the words of America's communists and hear them describe the greatest threat to their existence. Hear them declare a red jihad against the Joe McCarthys of the world who stood up for the foreign policies, the domestic policies and the banners unfurled championing antired philosophy and the rights of man: "The struggle against McCarthyism is developing currently along the following main lines: the struggle against witch hunting, the struggle against investigations of the McCarthy/McCarran type, a defense of the victims of McCarthyism such as Owen Lattimore, and a direct attack on McCarthy himself. Our main task is to mobilize the masses for the defeat of the foreign and domestic policies of the Eisenhower Administration and for the defeat of the Eisenhower regime itself. The struggle against McCarthyism contributes to this general objective. Since the elections, McCarthyism has emerged as a menace of major proportions." (The Mann Report Delivered At The National Conference of the Communist Party USA, October 1953). Civilized people understand the fundamental facts of reality. They understand that one plus one equal two and that social programs, programs which take even one penny from the pocket of Peter and place it into the pocket of Paul, are socialist programs, fascist programs, statist programs and communist programs, and have no place in a society dedicated to the preservation of human liberty. They understand that government regulation of private business in the name of minimum wages, maximum hours, proportional representation, nondiscrimination or diversity, equity and inclusion has no place in a society dedicated to the protection of private spaces, private accommodations and private property. They understand that government regulation of speech in the name of avoiding offense or disadvantage to particular social, racial, ethnic, cultural or gender groups has no place in a society dedicated to protecting the freedom of the human mind and conscience. They understand that the history of socialism is the history of the West itself in its final, deteriorating, degenerating stages of development. They understand that the march of the reds, the march of Marxism, Leninism, the Communist International, Stalinism, Maoism, the Great Leap Forward, Cultural Revolution, Welfare Statism, Social Democracy, Social Insurance, the Third Way, the Progressive Era, the New Deal, the Fair Deal, the New Frontier, the Great Society, the Mixed Economy, Centrism, Compassionate Conservatism, Hope and Change, the Affordable Care Act, the Green New Deal, Social Justice, Social Responsibility, Political Correctness, Black Reparations, Black Lives Matter, and the Politics of Gender, Race and Class, is the march of the enemies of human existence and the march of the gravediggers of civilization.

REDS INSTALL ROGUE PRESIDENT

The phrase high crimes and misdemeanors goes back to the fourteenth century and to the early decades of English constitutional history. It refers to allegations of misconduct by government officials and was first used in 1386 in the case of the King's Chancellor, Michael de la Pole, First Earl of Suffolk, who was impeached for the following offenses: he broke a promise to parliament to heed the advice of a parliamentary committee regarding national improvement, and he failed to pay a ransom for the town of Ghent, with the result that the town fell to the French. This phrase was taken from the pages of English jurisprudence and placed in Section Two, Article Four, of the United States Constitution: "The president, vice president and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors." America today is stalked by a specter which it cannot shake or evade. It moves silently and threateningly across the land and harasses ordinary people during the course of their daily lives. It is the awareness that something is gravely wrong with the nation and that the evil reaches up to the highest levels of government and occupies the Oval Office. It is the realization that the people, rigging a presidential election, perpetrating an election fraud witnessed in over two thousand affidavits and two thousand pages of public testimony filed and given across the nation, a fraud without precedent in the history of modern democracies, have installed a criminal into power, and are now reaping the fearsome and terrifying consequences of their actions. It is the people's guilty conscience, a feeling caused by knowing that they have done something wrong, and is an abject fear, a shadow of ineluctable doom, a vengeful pointing finger, a dreadful tax which conscience pays to guilt. The nation has seen in the person of Joe Biden a portrait of its own decline and fall into the arms of abdication of its responsibility to defend itself against the forces of evil; and this person, this portrait, this face of public malfeasance which defines the meaning of the term, this forty sixth and current president of the United States, represents the end of the road of the masses' one hundred year campaign of treason against the traditions and institutions of their nation. Guilt ridden people who have looked at this portrait have looked at a picture of themselves, have beheld a hollow, skeletal figure staring back, and have run away in horror. The tenure of Joe Biden has brought into being an unmitigated fiasco in Afghanistan. It has brought the tragedy of soldiers dying in defense of a withdrawal plan which violated logical order and exposed civilians to terror attacks. It has brought shameless incompetence in the face of geopolitical enemies bent on overthrowing liberal democracies. It has brought into office a president who is mentally incapacitated and unable to lead the nations of the free world. It has brought into office a president who has aided and abetted the transfer of billions of dollars worth of operational war equipment into the hands of the Taliban and other terror organizations. It has brought into office a president who has failed in his duty to safely remove American assets and civilians from Afghanistan. It has brought into office a president who has caused a humanitarian crisis in Afghanistan and caused the heaviest loss of American life in the nation in years. It has brought into office a president who was unable to maintain control over Kabul in order that Americans could be safely removed. It has brought into office a president who allowed the Taliban to appoint a terror network connected to Al Qaeda to supervise security at Kabul and its airport and to man all checkpoints in the area. It has brought into office a president who allowed this network to block all escape routes for Americans fleeing from Afghanistan. It has brought into office a president who authorized the State Department to hand over to the Taliban lists of Americans and Afghans who aided them. It has brought into office a president who abandoned the Bagram Air Force Base and thereby eliminated an evacuation route for Americans and allowed jihadists to be released from Afghan jails. It has brought into office a president who allowed the freed jihadists to wage war against America by an attack on the Kabul airport, which resulted in the deaths of thirteen American military personnel. It has brought into office a president who has failed in his duty to protect the nation from foreign invasion, by aiding, abetting and coordinating an influx of illegal aliens from America's southern border into Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California and throughout the interior. Look at the world of Joe Biden and see a president who has disgraced America in the eyes of the free world. A president who has undermined the military with the inculcation of far left ideologies. A president who has condemned capitalism as a system of injustice and discrimination. A president who has dishonored America with the white flag of surrender and capitulation. A president whose perfidy mocks the graves of American soldiers. A president who willfully abandoned tens of thousands of Americans to the voracious jaws of the Taliban. A president who has allowed the Taliban to impose the Islamic canons of fear, terror, aggression and superstition at lightning speed throughout the length and breadth of Afghanistan. A president who has opened the nation's southern border to bacterial floodwaters teeming with illegal aliens. A president who has violated the nation's immigration laws by naturalizing illegal aliens. A president who has eviscerated the nation's border patrol and deprived it of the money, the materials and the staff to defend the gates of civilization. A president who had given a green light to foreign hoodlums to enter and vandalize the country. A president who has violated the constitution and scorned the Supreme Court by arrogating to himself the power to issue eviction moratoriums and violate property rights. A president who has placed the safety and security of Americans in the crosshairs of global terror networks and Mexican drug gangs. A president who has plunged the nation into the tyranny of socialist overreach and the misery of socialist crisis. A president who has given his citizens and citizens throughout the world no reason whatever to repose even a modicum trust or confidence in him. A president who has assumed the role of commander in chief of an illegitimate entity parading as the federal government which has fed the the rule of law, the nation's founding documents, the liberal capitalist system and the legacies of the Enlightenment into a shredding machine marked gender, race and class politics and removed America from the community of decent, civilized nations: "In seven short months, Joe Biden has caused America to lose the respect of the entire world. The evidence is clear and his actions are so egregious that he must be impeached. In Afghanistan, Biden's woke generals tucked their tail and ran. He dishonored the sacrifices made by every American soldier who fought in the twenty year war, especially those who gave their life for the cause. Biden left behind over 10,000 American citizens to face the terrifying rule of the Taliban as they impose sharia law across the country. No commander in chief should leave Americans behind in the aftermath of a failure. On our Southern border, Joe Biden has allowed hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of illegal aliens into our country. His administration, along with Kamala Harris, has violated our immigration laws, deprived our Border Patrol of manpower and resources, and created a national security crisis by allowing unknown foreign nationals into our country who wish to do harm to Americans. Across the country, Americans are facing an economic crisis created by tyrannical Democrat politicians. Joe Biden, acting as a pseudodictator, has ignored the Supreme Court and issued his own eviction moratorium. He is shredding the Constitution and usurping the balance of power by issuing an edict the Supreme Court declared was a power of Congress. This is a process no one wants to go through, but it is a necessary process for the safety and security of the country and the American people. We are a nation in distress. Our foreign allies and even our own citizens can no longer trust our government in the hands of Joe Biden. It's the duty of Congress to hold the president accountable when he puts our nation at risk and ignores the rule of law. Currently, our government is illegitimate because it is no longer serving its citizens. We have to restore respect for America in order for our allies and our citizens to trust the government. Joe Biden must be impeached, tried in the Senate, convicted, and removed from office." (Congresswoman Marjorie Taylor Greene Introduces Three Impeachment Resolutions Against Joe Biden, August 20, 2021, greene.house.gov). At the dawn of the twentieth century, a fearsome and terrifying train sped over the horizon. It was a train powered and conducted by the rising mob, and with every passing decade, it picked new passengers and new freight. The final pick up was Joe Biden and his freight was marked abuses of power, violations of the public trust, and acts or omission which have breached the constitution. The train has crashed and burned across America in the present day and reduced its civilization to ashes.

REDS TAKE POLITICAL PRISONERS

A political crime is an offense involving actions which prejudice the interests of an illegitimate state. Actions recognized as assertions of human rights and freedoms are outlawed and punished by this state if they are deemed to constitute threats to its survival. Students of history have been struck by a flash of lightning which has shaken them to the core. They have been struck by a crash of thunder which has knocked them into a nightmare. They have seen in the year 2020, in the United States of America, in a land celebrated for decades as the world's preeminent arsenal of freedom and chief policeman of tyrants, the category of political crimes borrowed from the law books of totalitarian regimes and transferred into the chapters of the nation's jurisprudence. They have seen in America's capital, on January 6, six hundred people arrested for protesting an election which two thousand affidavits, two thousand depositions and two thousand pages of public testimony demonstrated had been rigged and arranged to secure the victory of Joe Biden. They have seen American citizens taken away to jail because they exercised their natural, moral and constitutional right to stop the certification of a fraudulent election and overthrow a government which existed in name only. They have issued their report on the entrance of political crimes into the nation's legal bloodstream, and to read it is to read about the poisoning of the nation's soul, and to read an obituary of the rule of law in a nation which had raised law to its pinnacle as the protector of the rights of man. This scarcely to be believed report on the the seizure of American citizens by an outlaw regime describes the perpetration of an act of election fraud without precedent in the annals of modern Western democracies. It describes Joe Biden's margins of victory in Arizona, Nevada, and Wisconsin in the 2020 presidential election as narrower than the states' totals of uncounted ballots. It describes Biden's margin of victory in Wisconsin of 20,000 votes, while the number of uncounted ballots in the state was 83,000. It describes these numbers verified by the Wisconsin Election Commission and reported to the US Election Assistance Commission. It describes 6,500 mailed out absentee ballots in Wisconsin sent back as undeliverable and 3,000 ballots sent back as rejected. It describes 76,000 ballots which Wisconsin authorities cannot explain. It describes 110,000 mail in or absentee ballots in Maricopa County, Arizona, sent to the wrong addresses. It describes 93,000 mail in ballots in Clark County, Nevada unaccounted for, while Joe Biden's margin of victory in the state was 33,000 ballots. It describes a total of 91 million ballots mailed out in the 2020 election of which 1.1 million ballots were sent back as undeliverable, 560,000 were sent back as rejected, and 1.5 million were sent back as unknown. It describes 500,000 mailed out ballots in Orange County, California sent back as unknown. It describes 1.5 million mailed out ballots in Los Angeles County, California sent back as unknown. It describes 500,000 mailed out ballots in Orange County, California sent back as unknown. It describes 500,000 mailed out ballots in Riverside County, California sent back as unknown. It describes 300,000 mailed out ballots in San Diego, County, California sent back as unknown. It describes 500,000 mailed out ballots in Orange County, California sent back as unknown. It describes 250,000 mailed out ballots in San Bernadino County, California sent back as unknown. It describes 250,000 mailed out ballots in Santa Clara County, California sent back as unknown. It describes 250,000 mailed out ballots in Sacramento County, California sent back as unknown. It describes 250,000 mailed out ballots in Essex County, New Jersey sent back as unknown. It describes 110,000 mailed out ballots in Maricopa County, California sent back as undeliverable. It describes 93,000 mailed out ballots in Clark County, Nevada sent back as undeliverable. It describes 50,000 mailed out ballots in Orange County, California sent back as undeliverable. It describes 45,000 mailed out ballots in the District of Columbia sent back as undeliverable. It describes 17,000 mailed out ballots in Denver County, Colorado sent back as undeliverable. It describes 35,000 mailed out ballots in Alameda County, California sent back as undeliverable. It describes 35,000 mailed out ballots in San Diego County, California sent back as undeliverable. It describes 22,000 mailed out ballots in Kings County, New York sent back as rejected. It describes 35,000 mailed out ballots in Los Angeles County, California sent back as rejected. It describes 35,000 mailed out ballots in Lake County, Illinois sent back as rejected. It describes 14,000 mailed out ballots in Orange County, California sent back as rejected. It describes 35,000 mailed out ballots in King County, Washington sent back as rejected. It describes 35,000 mailed out ballots in Bernalillo County, New Mexico sent back as rejected. It describes 35,000 mailed out ballots in Los Angeles County, California sent back as rejected. It describes 10,000 mailed out ballots in Bucks County, Pennsylvania sent back as rejected. It describes 7,500 mailed out ballots in San Bernadino County, California sent back as rejected. It describes 7,000 mailed out ballots in San Diego County, California sent back as rejected. It describes 6,500 mailed out ballots in Middlesex County, New Jersey sent back as rejected. It describes the Supreme Court's dismissal of challenges to the 2020 election results on spurious grounds of lack of standing. It points out that the task of the Supreme Court is to review laws and actions brought before it and to strike down those which violate the Constitution. Whether or not the parties to the suits have standing is irrelevant to the court's mission. The Constitution's suffrage amendments are the following. The Fifteenth Amendment grants the right to vote to former slaves and to all nonwhite people. The Nineteenth Amendment grants the right to vote to women. The Twenty Third Amendment grants the right to vote to the inhabitants of the District of Columbia. The Twenty Fourth Amendment establishes the right to vote without the payment of a poll tax. The Twenty Fifth Amendment grants the right to vote to all citizens who have reached their eighteenth birthday. These amendments establish the right to vote in free, fair and legal elections, without which the right to vote is meaningless and there is no real right to vote. In its dismissal of the election challenges brought before it on grounds of lack of standing and without considering the merits of the suits, the Supreme Court abdicated its responsibility to strike down state actions which violate the Constitution, actions which violate the right to vote in free, fair and legal elections. Look at the world of the reds and see a presidential election managed and conducted fraudulently by the Democrat Party. See a system of law enforcement replaced by a regime of lawless imposition which has imprisoned righteous citizens protesting an illegal presidential election. See law abiding Americans demanding free, fair and legal elections taken as political prisoners. See honest, upstanding Americans demanding the reinstatement of election integrity and security stopped by thugs parading as policemen and held in lawless custody. See the moral and legal necessity, blazing forth with crystal clarity, incumbent upon decent, patriotic Americans to use maximum force and violence to overthrow an illegitimate entity parading as a government, an entity which cannot be peacefully ejected because supported by a red majority, and to restore the system of constitutionally authorized elections: "Representative Madison Cawthorn (R-N.C.) is describing those in law enforcement custody for allegedly storming the Capitol on January 6 in an attempt to stop Congress from certifying President Biden's election victory as 'political hostages' while repeating claims that the 2020 election was stolen. Cawthorn made the remarks over the weekend during an event with supporters that was streamed on Facebook by the Macon County Republican Party. During the event, which included a question and answer session with constituents, Cawthorn cast doubt on Biden's electoral victory over former President Trump and warned of violence 'if our election systems continue to be rigged and continue to be stolen.' 'I'll tell you, anybody who tells you that Joe Biden was dutifully elected is lying,' Cawthorn said to jeers from the crowd. An attendee later asked what Cawthorn was 'doing to support the 535 Americans that were held—captured in—from January 6,' apparently referring to rioters in law enforcement custody. Cawthorn described them as 'political hostages' and 'political prisoners.' 'The big problem is we don't actually know where all the political prisoners are,' Cawthorn said. 'If our election systems continue to be rigged and continue to be stolen, it's going to lead to one place, and it's bloodshed,' said Cawthorn. 'And I will tell you, as much as I'm willing to defend our liberty at all costs, there's nothing that I would dread doing more than having to pick up arms against a fellow American. And the way that we can have recourse against that is if we all passionately demand that we have election security in all 50 states.' " (Cawthorn Calls Jailed January 6 Rioters "Political Hostages" by Cristina Marcos). Words which refer to nothing in reality render meaningless the sentences in which they are found. Thus the sentence, Charlie kills dragons is meaningless because dragons do not exist, as is the sentence, Charlie is transphobic because sex is determined by genes and cannot be changed. Civilized people understand that a government which violates its own constitution is not a government but a lawless gang and that such words as insurrection, coup and treason as applied to actions against it are misapplied. One cannot lead an insurrection or coup or commit treason against a morally and politically illegitimate entity. The protesters who stormed the capital on January 6, 2021 to protest the certification of a fraudulent election and to bring down an organization which paraded as a government were not a mob and were not insurrectionists. They were not a mob but were ordered and directed in their behavior, driven and focused by a single purpose to stop the wheels of a red mafia company and to lower the curtain on its corrupt operations. They were not insurrections but patriotic citizens and freedom fighters who sought to evict illegal political squatters from areas designated as government buildings. They were not arrested by policemen but were stopped and seized by red political thugs wearing the badges of policemen. They were not brought before courts of law but before desks staffed by red political ideologues tasked with defending the illegalities of the national red political establishment. They are not being detained in criminal jail cells but in political jail cells. They are not criminal prisoners but political prisoners. They are awaiting the political trials staged against them during the final hours of American civilization.

JOE BIDEN VERSUS THE FREE WORLD

In Dante's Inferno, Satan appears as a giant demon, frozen in ice in half his body and located at the center of the Ninth Circle of Hell. He wears three faces and has batlike wings attached under each chin. As he beats his wings, he creates a cold wind which maintains the ice in which he is encased and maintains the coldness of the sinners around him. Students of history have seen something, heard something and felt something which has plunged them into a realm of bitter coldness, blazing hellfire and tortuous suffering. They have seen one of the myriad faces of Satan at work and been struck down by a whirling maelstrom of unmitigated evil. They know they will never return to the noonday realm of civilized order because such order no longer exists. This order was assassinated by the red masses who have taken over civilization and students of history have seen in the present moment, in the United States of America, in the highest office in the land, the face of Satan doing the masses' bidding and conducting the West into its final stop. Satan at work in the world's preeminent arsenal of freedom and at work in the most powerful political and military position in the world: such is the nightmare of imagination defying proportions into which students have found themselves trapped and from which they have no hope of escape. Satan in the form of the president of the United States: students of history can barely pronounce the words and can scarcely comprehend the enormity of the wickedness presently being visited upon mankind by a figure in charge of the most powerful nation in the history of mankind, a figure who had sworn to uphold the ideals and institutions which for centuries have defined the free world, a figure who has deployed the strength of his mighty office to serve the forces of evil and realize Satan's final plan to lower the curtain, once and for all time, upon the progress of mankind. Students of history have issued their report on Joe Biden and to read it is to read the closing chapters of a dismal story. This is the story of the masses' one hundred year campaign to sweep away the institutions of freedom, a campaign to reverse the legacies of the Enlightenment, a campaign to establish the rule of statist subjugation and red totalitarian tyranny, and in these closing chapters, Satan's latest emissary has appeared in the guise of Joe Biden to complete his work and compose the last lines of his story. In these lines, Satan, alias Joe Biden, made a deliberate decision, a decision against the advice of his generals, to withdraw from Afghanistan in a chaotic manner and independently of conditions existing on the ground. Biden in consequence transferred power and influence from the community of free nations to Iran, China, Russia and North Korea and discouraged nations from joining the Western sphere of influence. Biden inspired Russia and China to become aggressive and expansionist in the knowledge that their actions will not be met by resistance from the West. Biden undermined America's relationship with Britain and removed these nations as leaders of the free world. Biden reduced NATO to an impotent and ineffectual coalition. Biden increased global terror threats to their highest level since the 9/11 attacks. Biden allowed the Taliban terror organization to seize control over Afghanistan twenty four hours after the American withdrawal. Biden sought to open diplomatic relations with the Taliban. Biden strengthened the power of the Taliban, Al Qaeda and the Islamic State and advanced their common agenda to overthrow the West. Biden allowed the Taliban, Al Qaeda and the Islamic State to build up their presence in Afghanistan and work together to plan, prepare and carry out attacks against the free world. Biden made the Taliban more dangerous than at any time in its history by allowing it to pursue external conquest and to launch an international jihad. Biden allowed the creation of a second Islamist terror state in Afghanistan after the Islamic revolution in Iran in 1979. Biden brought to jihadists in Afghanistan massive increases in foreign funding and in recruits from around the world. Biden refused to bring down the Taliban and refused to support the Northern Alliance in the Panjshir Valley by covert operations. Biden treated the Taliban as a morally and politically legitimate government worthy of international respect and recognition. Biden allowed nuclear material and weapons to fall into the hands of the Taliban. Biden inspired Islamist insurgencies in Pakistan. Biden encouraged Iran to advance its nuclear weapons program in the knowledge that America lacked the will to oppose it. Biden placed Israel in mortal danger from an Iran emboldened by American weakness and treachery. Biden created a refugee crisis which overwhelmed Europe with Afghan jihadists seeking to export Islamic revolution. Look at the world of Joe Biden and see a president who opened the door to renewed terror attacks on American soil. See a president who effected a hasty, unskillful, disgraceful retreat from Afghanistan. See a president who enabled the Taliban to overrun Afghanistan at the speed of light. See a president who placed into the hands of the Taliban billions of dollars worth of American military equipment, including helicopters, airplanes and hundreds of thousands of small arms. See a president who transformed Afghanistan into a safe harbor for fanatics and fundamentalists in the service of terror and fear. See a president who made America too dangerous to inhabit. See a president who made the America unprotected in the face of foreign criminal attacks. See a president who opened America's southern border to massive hordes of illegal aliens and placed the nation itself on the global terror surveillance list. See a president who disrupted the peace and order of America, gave its citizens no reason to trust him to uphold the Constitution and protect the nation from foreign invasion and attack, and exposed its citizens to danger and harm from the enemies of mankind: "On Friday's broadcast of the Fox News Channel's Fox & Friends First, Representative Carlos Gimenez (R-FL) said a terrorist attack on American soil due to the botched withdrawal from Afghanistan is 'a matter of when, not if.' Gimenez said, 'We now have the Taliban taking over Afghanistan. They have over $80 billion of our equipment, our medical—our military equipment. They have helicopters. They have airplanes, 600,000 small arms. And now the extremists have a safe haven in Afghanistan. So, not only do I not feel safe, I don't think any American should feel safer today than they did a couple of weeks ago.' Cohost Todd Piro then asked, 'As a member of the Homeland Security Committee, are you willing to go so far as to say it is not a matter of if, but when there's going to be a terror attack on American soil because of this botched pullout?' Gimenez responded, 'Yeah, I think that's inevitable. Look, we also—not only do we have a debacle in Afghanistan, we also have a debacle going on on our southern border. We have hundreds of thousands of immigrants coming through and we know that there, we have people that have been on the terror watchlist that have slipped through. So, yeah, it's a matter of when, not if. We have to be very vigilant, and, unfortunately, I don't have that much faith in the Biden administration to keep Americans safe.' " (GOP Representative Gimenez: Terrorist Attack On US Soil Due To Botched Afghanistan Withdrawal Is 'Inevitable' by Ian Hanchett). Look at the world of Joe Biden and see a president who crushed and buried the nation in the most humiliating military defeat suffered in its history. See a president who carried out a withdrawal from Afghanistan which was unconditional, unilateral and as tragic and disastrous as it was dishonorable and disgraceful. See a president whose failure to protect Afghanistan and America from the forces of terror made him the most dangerous president in the history of the nation: "I think it's fair to say that President Joe Biden has already eclipsed former President Jimmy Carter as the worst US president in modern history. Biden has presided over America's most crushing, consequential and, above all, preventable defeat in any of our lifetimes. Moreover, as the dust begins to settle on the fiasco, the entire world has become cognizant of the lasting damage this stumbling, bumbling president has inflicted upon our once great nation. In an interview with Breitbart News last week, former President Donald Trump said he's received calls from foreign leaders who are horrified by Biden's disastrous execution of the US withdrawal from Afghanistan. 'They can't believe it. Just like you can't believe it. Just like any sane, rational person can't believe it,' Trump said. 'We were going to get out -- but we were going to get out with dignity and with honor. We were going to get out with all of the people. And we were going to take all of the equipment.' " (Trump Says Biden Is Doing So Badly, Foreign Leaders Are Calling Him To Express Concern by Elizabeth Stauffer). The onrushing tides of cultural degeneration have struck America hard in the twenty first century. They have brought about the victory of jihadists in Afghanistan, the total loss of American prestige in an unconditional military withdrawal from the country, a retreat without sanity, planning or rational order of any kind, and the greatest foreign affairs and military debacle suffered by the West in modern times. The terrifying waves of cultural death exploding in the present day have recast the age old dichotomy of good versus evil in a manner which has disturbed every conscious hour and every night's sleep of civilized people, and cast a specter which has haunted their dreams and wakefulness. The opposition of good versus evil has become: the free world versus Joe Biden.

REDS' MEIN KAMPF SETS THE WORLD ON FIRE

A wildfire is an immense, destructive fire which spreads rapidly across forests. It occurs when a source of ignition is brought into contact with a source of combustion and there is sufficient heat and oxygen present. Students of history have been plunged into the worst, the ugliest and the most frightening experience imaginable and see themselves trapped within its depths for all time to come. They have been compelled to write about this ordeal of horror because of who they are, professional scholars, but they know full well that their words will fall on deaf ears, on the deaf ears of the people and the masses, because it is the people themselves who supplied the ignition, the vegetation, the heat and the air for this conflagration which has consumed the planet and burned and scorched on the Devil's parchment the final chapter of the story of the West. Students of history have observed a moral and political wildfire rage across the world and incinerate the last remnants of civilization. They have observed that the materials, the sparks and the environment for this evil combustion can be observed, as in a crystal ball, on the pages of a book which has assumed the rank of the greatest bestseller and brand leader of red philosophy in the past one hundred years. They have observed in Hitler's Mein Kampf the authoritative guide and scripture for the terrifying religion in control of the present day and the source of the tribal politics which has smashed the citadels of liberal philosophy. They have observed that this program and manifesto of a certain variant of Marxism, composed by the leader of the National Socialist German Workers' Party a century ago, is in spirit and essence the program and manifesto of the ideologies which presently rule mankind, and that the national socialism formulated in Mein Kampf in the 1920s by the future fuhrer of Germany is the monstrous face of the present and the future of the world. They have observed that from Hitler's fiery words has spread the cancer of tribalism which has overrun free nations and free institutions and placed civilized people in the grip of terror and fear. They have observed that from these words, words promoting race based tribalism in place of communist class based tribalism, and words constructing Aryans as a master race in place of the international proletariat constructed by Hitler's master Marx, have blazed forth the neoMarxist iterations of identity politics which are the final psychotic legends exploding out of the death gasps of civilization. They have observed that from these words of Hitler in Mein Kampf have streamed forth the words which have buried five centuries of liberal traditions inherited from the Age of Enlightenment and crushed them beneath the skull mountains of postEnlightenment gender, race and class politics: "Every manifestation of human culture, every product of art, science and technical skill, which we see before our eyes today, is almost exclusively the product of the Aryan creative power. This very fact fully justifies the conclusion that it was the Aryan alone who founded a superior type of humanity; therefore he represents the archetype of what we understand by the term: MAN." The program and manifesto of the present age of postEnlightenment, the age of Hitler who channeled Marx, proclaims that a progressive society rejects the bourgeois fabrications of human liberty and peddles the people's religion of identity socialism. It proclaims that a progressive society is controlled by unskilled, blue collar workers whose mindless muscular power creates all the wealth of industry. It proclaims that a progressive society is a tribal society which has nailed the individual to the cross of race, gender and transgender power. It proclaims that a progressive society is a far left campus ruled by MeToo mobs, Black Lives Matter mobs, and by mobs demanding that biological males who identify as women be referred to and treated as women. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the Enlightenment fiction of a universal human essence and is based upon divisions, race divisions, gender divisions, transgender divisions, black divisions, latino divisions, gay divisions, lesbian divisions, and indigenous culture divisions. It proclaims that a progressive society is a socially conscious society which aspires in every fiber of its being to bring down the capitalist system. It proclaims that a progressive society is a racist and sexist society which packages its racism as race sensitivity, its sexism as gender sensitivity, and its national socialist style system of hatred and discrimination under the phrase diversity, equity and inclusion. It proclaims that a progressive society foments revolution, declares war against the existing order, and refuses and rejects the blessings of liberty which crown the modern age. It proclaims that a progressive society has overthrown free market capitalism and discovered the highest human meaning to reside in slavery to one's fellow man. It proclaims that hoodlums who blow up buildings in the name of social justice are noble resisters of the capitalist system. It proclaims that Hi Chi Minh, Mao Zedong and the Vietcong were leaders of the Asian proletariat who fought to free their people from the yoke of liberal democracy. It proclaims that a progressive society fights for black privilege in the name of civil rights. It proclaims that a progressive society installs blacks as the working class and orders them to exterminate the white capitalist class. It proclaims that a progressive society stokes the fires of racial resentment and race war and promotes the establishment of a black master race. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes gender tribalism and establishes a matriarchal dictatorship. It proclaims that males are a victimizing class and females a victimized class and justice demands the subjugation of men to women and the denial of their civil liberties. It proclaims that the primary category in society is gender and all women, rich and poor, must unite as sisters and comrades and declare war against their male oppressors. It proclaims that a progressive society has educated aggrieved blacks, aggrieved women, aggrieved transgenders and aggrieved proletarians and mobilized and recruited them for a crusade to overthrow the liberal democratic order and establish a people's state under the leadership of radical professors. It proclaims that a progressive society is an identitarian culture in which every institution, from primary schools to college campuses to the news media to the entertainment industry to multinational corporations, has been prepared, organized and taken over by red brigades marching, rioting, rampaging, bombing and committing mass murder in the name of liberation of gender, racial, ethnic, indigenous and socioeconomic groups. Look at the world of today's Hitlerites and see the demand that white people be eradicated. See the demand that white people be killed or kill themselves in order that nonwhites achieve total liberation. See the demand that white people be prepared to obey their black masters unquestioningly and prostrate themselves as rightless subalterns. See the demand that society become racist and ensure that white people no longer exist. See the condemnation of liberal democracy as a system of white supremacy and Enlightenment culture a culture of white power. See the demand that whites be excluded from society deprived of all their rights and freedoms. See a campaign of race psychosis launched against the noonday world of liberal sanity. See the advocacy of a holocaust and a Final Solution against whites as the supreme ethical act of a just society. See the proclamation that blacks are the Aryan race and must be installed in their rightful station as the lords and masters of the earth: "A professor employed at a Catholic university in Pennsylvania said on camera that there are merits to the claim that it's ethical for white people to commit suicide. 'White people should commit suicide as an ethical act,' said a quote in a slide for a presentation hosted by Duquesne University psychology professor Derek Hook. In the lecture, which was presented to Baltimore based American Association for Psychoanalysis in Clinical Social Work in June, Hook quoted a South African philosophy professor, Terblanche Delpert, who has written about white people committing suicide in South Africa, before further discussing the comments and arguing 'there was something ethical in Delpert's statements.' The reality [in South Africa] is that most white people spend their whole lives only engaging black people in subservient positions. My question is then how can a person not be racist if that's the way they live their lives? The only way then for white people to become part of Africa is to not exist as white people anymore,' Hook says, quoting Delpert on a slide in the lecture. 'If the goal is to dismantle white supremacy, and white supremacy is white culture, then the goal has to be to dismantle white culture and ultimately white people themselves. The total integration into Africa by white people will also automatically then mean the death of white people as white as a concept would not exist anymore,' the quote continued. After reading the quotes, Hook said, 'I want to suggest that psychoanalytically we could even make the argument that there was something ethical in Delpert's statements.'" (Pennsylvania Professor Teaches White People Committing Suicide Can Be An 'Ethical' Act by Emma Colton). In Greek mythology, Erebus was the personification of darkness and a child born of Chaos. These were primordial gods present before the creation of law and order. Rejecting the liberal ideals of individual merit, individual achievement, individual rights and equal treatment before the state, the agitators of identity politics have brought the return of chaos and darkness to the face of the earth.

REDS ELECT KILLER IN CHIEF

Murder is the unlawful killing of a human being by another without valid justification. It is an act of premeditation and predetermination; involving malice aforethought, it is the willful, voluntary, intentional taking of a human life. Students of history have been witnesses to acts of mass murder which they can scarcely believe with their own eyes. They have been plunged into a maelstrom of fear, terror, anxiety and panic at what they have seen and know there is no chance or hope of escape from this nightmare because its evil has been decreed by the majority and legalized by the votes of the people. They can scarcely pronounce the words, and for these civilized people to utter them is to recoil in horror: the office of the president of the United States is occupied by a mass murderer whose dagger of destruction has reached into an ancient, storied land. They have issued their report on a situation which has to be seen to be believed and to read it is to read a sentence of doom pronounced upon America, liberal democracy and the free world. In this report, in this thirteenth hour of chaos and madness, in this alarm bell tolling in the age of cultural degeneration, are the crimes of a man, an electorate and a society. They are the crimes of citizens, imbued with red philosophy, who have stabbed their civilization in the back. This report on Joe Biden describes a president who violated the withdrawal agreement signed by Donald Trump and needlessly provoked the enemy. It describes a president whose abrupt, unplanned, unconditional withdrawal from Afghanistan resulted in suicide bombings carried out by the Islamic State at Kabul, which claimed the lives of thirteen American military personnel and 170 civilians. It describes a president who enabled the Taliban in Kabul to paint victory slogans across the city celebrating the establishment of an Islamic caliphate. It describes a president who enabled the Taliban to unfurl its flags across Afghanistan and reimpose its totalitarian politics upon the people. It describes a president who allowed an armed movement whose language is guns, violence, beatings, beheadings, bombs and suicide vests to overrun Afghanistan. It describes a president who refused to withdraw civilians from Afghanistan before the military was withdrawn and who left behind 85 billion dollars worth of military equipment. It describes a president who enabled the Taliban to condemn non-Muslims in Afghanistan as heretics and apostates and punish them with death. It describes a president who allowed the Taliban to determine the validity of the documents necessary to leave the country and to hold Americans hostage in Mazar Sharif. It describes a president who allowed the Taliban to appoint a government composed of figures who committed human rights violations and international crimes, including mass murder, ethnic cleansing and opium trafficking, and who have close ties to Al Qaeda. It describes a president who falsely claimed that the Taliban and the Haqqani terror network are separate entities and allowed the network's founder, Sirajuddin Haqqani, to be appointed interior minister, and a network operative, Khalil Ur Rahman Haqqani, to be appointed minister of refugees. Look at the world of Joe Biden and hear the screams of his victims. Hear the messages from grieving mothers who will never see their sons alive. Hear the suffering cries of parents who will never see their children laugh again, achieve again or embrace all that life has to offer. See a president whose callous indifference to the loss of innocent life has plumbed the depths of evil and depravity. See a president who has no idea how the families of murder victims feel because he himself has no human, moral feelings. See a president who explodes into a violent rage whenever he is confronted by the families of his victims who demand justice and accountability. See a president who pitilessly took children away from their families, sent soldiers to die a senseless death, and buried the innocent in the weeping fields of martyrdom. See a president who forced parents to lay their children to rest because of his own weakness, cowardice, fecklessness, incompetence and lack of moral character. See a president whose treachery consigned Afghanistan to a dictatorship of mullahs and terrorists. See a psychopathic commander in chief and vociferous front for the far left emerge from Satan's shadows and allow American soldiers and civilians to be hunted down and killed by the Taliban. See a conscienceless, remorseless political figure address the community of free nation with hands stained with the blood of those he cruelly and coldly betrayed: "Joe Biden, this message is for you! I know my face is etched in your brain! I was able to look you straight in the eyes yesterday and have words with you. After I lay my son to rest, you will be seeing me again! Remember I am the one who stood five inches from your face and let you know I would never get to hug my son again, hear his laugh, and then you tried to interrupt me and give me your own sob story, and I had to tell you that 'this isn't about you, so don't make it about you!' You then said you just wanted me to know that you know how I feel, and I let you know that you don't know how I feel, and you do not have the right to tell me you know how I feel! You then rolled your eyes in your head like you were annoyed with me, and I let you know that the only reason I was talking to you was out of respect for my son. I then proceeded to tell you again how you took my son away from me and how I will never get to hug him, kiss him or laugh with him again. You turned to walk away and I let you know my son's blood was on your hands, and you threw your hand up behind you as you walked away from me like you were saying, 'OK, whatever!' MY SON'S BLOOD IS ON YOUR HANDS! All thirteen of them, their blood is on your hands! If my president Trump was in his rightful seat, then my son and the other heroes would still be alive!" (Shana Chappell). Look at the world of Joe Biden and see a president effect a military withdrawal from Afghanistan devoid of honor, dignity, logic or order. See a president terminate a military mission beneath the flag of surrender. See a president wheel red politics into ignominious retreat and lower the curtain on the cause of freedom. See a president whose treachery sent those in uniform onto the altar tables of the Taliban and filled civilized onlookers with sadness, anger, bitterness and rage. See a president whose hatred of America and the West led him to commit mass murder and consign American soldiers and civilians to the Taliban Dark Ages. See a president whose hatred of freedom and enlightenment moved him to abandon civilized Afghans to the yoke of Islamic tyranny and abolish two decades of progress faster than the speed of light: "A group of ten Senate Republicans sent a letter to Senate Armed Service Committee Chairman Jack Reed (D-RI) demanding a hearing on the chaotic military withdrawal from Afghanistan, including sworn testimony from senior military leaders. The ten senators specifically want to see Secretary of Defense Lloyd Austin, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff General Mark Milley, and Commander of US Central Command General Frank McKenzie testify under oath. 'It is necessary and appropriate for Congress to examine the manner in which our military mission ended in Afghanistan,' the group of senators wrote. 'We should do so with transparency, candor and dedication to ascertaining the facts without regard to politics. The American people, and in particular many of those who serve our country in uniform, are hurting, angry and disappointed. We owe them a clear and comprehensive understanding of what happened, why, and how best to learn from these events for the future. We owe it to our nation, those who served, their families, and our allies and partners who fought alongside us, to preserve the records of how our fight in Afghanistan concluded.' President Joe Biden's botched withdrawal ended in the death of thirteen US service members, wounding many more, and there are reports of hundreds of Americans still stranded in the county. A Real Clear Politics report Wednesday claimed that there are six planes that are still being blocked by the Taliban and are not able to leave. Military veterans and NGO groups involved have been pressing the State Department for help. Meanwhile, the report claimed there are 143 Americans waiting to depart." (Senate Republicans Demand Hearing On Afghanistan, Sworn Testimony From Military Leaders by Jacob Bliss). In religion and folklore, hell is the location in the afterlife in which evil souls suffer eternal punishment after death. Civilized people who reject ancient superstitions nonetheless fantasize about the torments of hell and special place hell would reserve for Joe Biden. They fantasize because they know that here on earth the president of the United States, the president who refused to safely remove American citizens and Afghan nationals who aided America, the president who unilaterally withdrew American forces and abandoned tens of billions of dollars of military equipment to the enemy, and the president who left hundreds of Americans behind to their doom and left the country in the control of violent fanatics, will never be brought before the bar of justice. They know this because they know that justice has been repealed and replaced by antiEnlightenment power, and swept into the dustbin of history by the red establishment which controls the world.

MASSES ON THE DOLE

A dead letter is a law which has not been repealed but is ineffectual and defunct in practice. The phrase also refers to anything which is meaningless or obsolete. One speaks of theoretical reasoning as a dead letter to a little child. Students of history have seen a dead letter present in the West today and have mourned what they see. They know that this dead letter is a symptom of the end stage of civilization and that the end is approaching, is arriving and has appeared in full force. They see this dead letter as a scarecrow and skeletal form set up by the masses to frighten away the march of progress and achievement, and that in the barren fields of the twenty first century, this dead letter is a symbol of negation. It is the negation of a shining world people created over the centuries by the unceasing efforts of their minds and muscles. This dead letter is Labor Day and its demise as a living and meaningful reality in the West marks the disease of terminal decline through which all civilizations have passed since time immemorial before death finally claims them. Students of history know that just as the Romans stopped working and began living on free grain during the dying hours of their world, so the citizens of the West today have put down their pens and plowshares and seen fit to live on the money earned by their neighbors, and that nothing in heaven or on earth can reverse this evil, cancerous development, eradicate the scourge of parasitism, and put the masses back to work. Labor Day has traditionally been a celebration of the worker, the entrepreneur and the employee who built the modern world, and a commemoration of the virtue of honest labor and the dignity of the independence achieved by work. Students of history see that Labor Day nowadays exists in name only and have issued their report on the collapse of the work ethic and its consignment to the dustbin of history. They have issued their report on the innate impulses of the masses to receive something for nothing, to live a life without work, and to consume and not to produce, and to read it is to read a report on a human pathology which has been allowed to run amok after one thousand years of Western civilization, and to bury a one thousand year old culture in the black tar pits of ignominy and disgrace. The report describes a world in which the unemployed choose to remain unemployed and to subsist on covid unemployment benefits. It describes a world in which the unemployed choose to remain unemployed because welfare benefits pay more than work. It describes a world in which the unemployed refuse to return to work anytime soon or anytime at all. It describes a world in which businesses which are ready and able to hire workers cannot find them. It describes a world in which businesses which are offering the highest salaries in years and offering double and triple overtime rates cannot find applicants. It describes a world in which people will not return calls, emails or text messages offering them jobs. It describes a world in which job boards and social media sites advertising jobs go unanswered. It describes a world in which the bank accounts of the unemployed are created by welfare transfers and the unemployed are not interested in working. It describes a world in which the unemployed are content to stay at home and be supported by government welfare programs. It describes a world in which the unemployed are supported by aid plans, relief plans, security plans, bonus plans and rescue plans. It describes a world in which the unemployed return to work when unemployment benefits run out and not a nanosecond before. It describes a world in which the unemployed make what they claim is a rational choice and reject the notion of working for one's sustenance and decide to support themselves by public gifts of food, clothing and money. It describes a world in which Help Wanted signs are replaced by Closed signs because businesses cannot find job seekers. It describes a world in which employers report record numbers of job openings. It describes a world in which small businesses have job vacancies they are unable to fill and have to cease operations. It describes a world in which businesses seeking workers do not receive a single resume anywhere. It describes a world in which the unemployed have chosen to live on free money and turn their backs on businesses which are hiring. It describes a world in which small business owners are compelled to perform all the tasks in their operations, and to serve as cooks, waiters, table busers and dish washers, because they cannot find anyone to fill these positions. It describes a world in which there is an abundance of jobs but no takers anywhere to be found because the unemployed have chosen to subsidize themselves by the unlimited and easily obtained money supply of the state. Look at the world of the West today and see millions of people not look for work. See millions of people support themselves by lavish unemployment benefits. See millions of people who are able to work and are offered jobs file instead for welfare benefits. See millions of the fraudulent and the unemployed refuse to join the ranks of the honest and the employed. See people subsidize their life of idleness and inaction by feeding at a public trough whose swill is labeled unemployment benefits, food stamps and monthly child credits. See millions of people recline in the shameless waters of sloth filled to overflowing by the sweat of their neighbors. See millions of people render efforts at job creation null and void by obstinately refusing to work, by deliberately choosing to exist on wealth taxed and stolen from their neighbors, and by proudly financing their moral perversity through a public container marked government payouts bursting with looted cash in the dying hours of civilization: "On Friday, the Labor Department released its August jobs report, showing that only 235,000 jobs were created in the month--a huge miss from economists' expectations of around 750,000. There are still 5.3 million fewer people working than before the pandemic. On Thursday, the Labor Department announced its weekly jobless claims numbers, which suggest that overly generous unemployment benefits are to blame for this labor market slack. They show that about sixty percent more Americans filed continued unemployment claims in late August than in early 2020. Enhanced federal unemployment insurance paid recipients $300 per week in addition to weekly state unemployment payments, which average nearly four hundred dollars. That means that Americans could make nearly $3,000 a month tax free in unemployment benefits, not including the value of other welfare programs such as monthly child credits and food stamps, for sitting on the couch. No wonder the labor market hasn't bounced back. According to a Committee to Unleash Prosperity report, the average unemployment benefit for a household with two unemployed parents was more than $72,000--higher than the nation's median income. Research from JPMorgan Chase estimates that forty eight percent of benefit recipients made as much or more than their previous wages. Twenty five Republican states recognized the perverse incentive posed by these benefits and ended them in the spring and early summer. Nine out of the ten lowest unemployment states in the country are among this group that terminated enhanced payments early. In contrast, all ten highest unemployment states, including Washington DC, continued to accept them until recently. Goldman Sachs economists found 'clear evidence that benefit expiration increased the rate at which unemployed workers became employed.' They predict that the end of the payouts will create 1.5 million jobs nationwide by the end of the year. Research from the Foundation for Government Accountability finds that job creation in Arkansas nearly doubled in the two weeks after payments ended." (On Labor Day 2021, The End Of Enhanced Unemployment Benefits Bring Hope To US Small Businesses by Alfredo Ortiz). During the final decades of Roman civilization, the government provided welfare to the people in the form of free grain. Obtaining the grain by looting it from the provinces and the producers, Roman leaders provided it the people in order to curry favor with them and were never able to end it in the face of popular pressure. The people got accustomed to receiving their free food and to staying at home and would not work or fight in the army. During the final decades of Western civilization, work is held in similar disregard. Businesses seek to hire people but people do not want to work. People have chosen instead to live on stimulus payments, giveaway packages, welfare benefits and incentives not to work, and are pleased that they are supported by tax money confiscated from those who work for their daily bread. Two societies and two civilizations, separated by a span two thousand years, but afflicted with the same disease, pointing inexorably into spiritual death and destruction.

SOS AMERICA

Bankruptcy is a state in which a person or organization is unable to pay outstanding debts. The debtor seeks relief from a court and an order is imposed to find a way to restructure and repay the debts. From this financial meaning, the term has been carried over to refer to a state of total impoverishment, depletion and exhaustion of qualities, values and virtues. Students of history have beheld in the present day a terminal, end stage development and been plunged into a whirlpool of horror at what they have seen. They have seen something which they had long predicted they would see, but now that the destined hour has arrived, they have recoiled from it as from a monstrous, man eating gargoyle stalking the land, and hope against hope, and offer prayer against prayer, that this manifestation of evil and criminality will go away and disappear, and that the society they see stricken by it will happily return to the noontday fields of Enlightenment freedom from whence it arose. They have seen the fearsome and terrifying moral and spiritual bankruptcy of America. They have issued a report on it as a warning and alarm bell about a fate which awaits the West and has already struck, about a doom which is approaching and has already come down, about an end which is nearing and has already arrived, and has exploded across the world and buried it in the debris of a civilization shattered by the hatreds and passions of the red mobs which have broken out of their sewers and cesspools, and ensured that the hands of time will never run backward, and never bring the fallen fortress of liberty and expended arsenal of human rights back to its former glory. To read this report on the accelerated free fall of America and the West is to read about what transpires when a civilization becomes weary of a humanly flourishing way of life, becomes psychologically enfeebled and senescent, and descends, under the relentless weight of its masses, into the endless, inhuman, Arctic wastelands of mysticism, tribalism, collectivism and totalitarian enslavement. Composed by students of history in the dismal hours of their new life trapped in spiritual hell, this report describes a nation which proclaims that freedom of speech is an outdated notion whose time has long since passed. It describes a red establishment which has set up a bureau of thought police tasked with suppressing all criticisms of communism, identity politics and nonWestern cultures as forms of hate speech. It describes the institutions of corporate power deployed to deplatform all those who criticize the politics of gender, race and class and who praise the policies of Donald Trump. It describes a nation which condemns as domestic terrorists those who sought to stop the certification of a fraudulent presidential election, an election, installing Joe Biden into power, whose fraud is attested to by two thousand sworn affidavits, by two thousand sworn depositions, by two thousand pages of sworn testimony, by two thousand reels of video footage and by two thousand still photographs. It describes a nation which has rejected the sanctity of the individual and replaced it by a regime of balkanization in which people are treated on the basis of the groups to which they belong; in which people are not treated as real, flesh and blood individuals but as pure abstractions; in which people are treated simply as blacks or whites or males or females or rich or poor or transgenders or nontransgenders or homosexuals or heterosexuals or as some combination or intersection of these groups, and not as empirically observable people. It describes a nation in which the fundamental principles of civil rights, the principles for which citizen-soldiers fought and died on the fields of Lexington and Concord two centuries ago, have been repudiated in favor of identity politics, which proclaims the primacy of the tribe over the individual, and critical race theory, which proclaims that liberal capitalism must be criticized through the prism of race and replaced by a swastika system of black Aryan supremacy. It describes a nation which has dissolved its borders and allowed millions of illegal aliens from the grim, dirty, shabby jungles of the earth to stream in unhampered and with warm greetings from the red majority, and has airlifted them to multiple points throughout the interior. It describes a nation which has been overrun by red demographics, red populations, red statistics and red voting patterns and allowed freedom to be voted, chased and stampeded out of existence. It describes a nation which has opened its southern borders to millions of Democrat Party voters invading from Mexico and abolished the two party system. It describes a nation whose executive, legislative and judicial branches of national government have rejected the Constitution, hoisted the flags of statist regulation and social welfare, and placed themselves in the service of red power. It describes a nation whose governments are staffed by red bureaucrats driven by an agenda to do the majority's bidding, decree and enforce socialism, and abolish by fiat the rule of law. It describes a nation whose media establishment is in the pocket of the reds and has placed news and entertainment behind a veil of rank political propaganda. It describes a nation which has repudiated law and order, defunded the police, promoted anarchy in the streets, shut down communities with the cudgels of race wars and riots, and praised violent thugs as heroic fighters for social justice. It describes a nation which has exploited the covid pandemic as a pretext to place constitutional rights on permanent lockdown and set up a regime in which people are told when they can leave their homes, when they can go to work and with whom they can associate. Look at the world of the reds and see them declare war on independent thinking and rigorous thought. See them abuse teaching positions, hijack professorships, and lead students inexorably to the conclusions of communist philosophy. See them prohibit intellectual exploration and force students to think along ideologically prescribed channels. See them smash the strongholds of academic freedom and construct on the rubble reeducation assembly lines churning out agitators peddling the dogmas of social rights. See them promote the swastika ideologies of race and gender and banish liberal democratic ideas from the classroom. See them portray women and nonwhites as victims of the capitalist system and advocate its overthrow. See them ignite racial, gender and class grievances with the Devil's sulphur of slander against successful white males. See them deter students from speaking out openly in favor of freedom out of fear of offending the new red totalitarians. See them reject rational certainty and promote the religious certainty of far left ideologues. See them censor points of view at odds with the prevailing red orthodoxy. See them unleash faculty and administrators on universities and shut down free speech and scientific inquiry in the name of political correctness and the rights of the oppressed. See them lower the curtain on the liberal order, consign the great books of the Western world to the people's bonfires of gender, race and class politics, and launch a holocaust against successful, white, heterosexual males. See them dismiss the voices of reason and science, declare war on Enlightenment practices and institutions, promote a policy of intolerance and aggression toward the opponents of Marxist illiberalism, and gun down free minds and free markets with rifles marked diversity, equity, inclusion and sensitivity training: "Dear Provost Susan Jeffords, I'm writing to you today to resign as assistant professor of philosophy at Portland State University. I never once believed—nor do I now—that the purpose of instruction was to lead my students to a particular conclusion. Rather, I sought to create the conditions for rigorous thought; to help them gain the tools to hunt and furrow for their own conclusions. This is why I became a teacher and why I love teaching. But brick by brick, the university has made this kind of intellectual exploration impossible. It has transformed a bastion of free inquiry into a social justice factory whose only inputs were race, gender, and victimhood and whose only outputs were grievance and division. Students at Portland State are not being taught to think. Rather, they are being trained to mimic the moral certainty of ideologues. Faculty and administrators have abdicated the university's truth seeking mission and instead drive intolerance of divergent beliefs and opinions. This has created a culture of offense where students are now afraid to speak openly and honestly. I noticed signs of the illiberalism that has now fully swallowed the academy quite early during my time at Portland State. I witnessed students refusing to engage with different points of view. Questions from faculty at diversity trainings that challenged approved narratives were instantly dismissed. Those who asked for evidence to justify new institutional policies were accused of microaggressions. And professors were accused of bigotry for assigning canonical texts written by philosophers who happened to have been European and male." (Peter Boghossian, letter of resignation to Portland State University, September 8, 2021). On April 15, 1912, in the North Atlantic Ocean, a British passenger liner struck an iceberg and sank. The largest ocean liner in service at the time, the Titanic was carrying the wealthiest people on the planet and was the pinnacle of comfort and luxury. Stalked by regulatory and operational deficiencies, the Titanic was doomed to sink in the event of being struck at sea. In the twenty first century, the wealthiest and most powerful nation on earth has sunk. It was struck by a torpedo carrying an explosive warhead called mob rule. America's reds sank their nation and carried the West down with it.

RED TRAITORS STAB FREEDOM IN THE BACK

On a Norwegian island on a rise overlooking a fjord there is a log cabin. It was built in the 1940s by an unapologetic mass murderer, but few people today know about the dark soul which lurks within it. It was built by Vidkun Quisling as a summer home and sauna house and it has become over the years a national pilgrimage site for the forces of hate. Students of history see in this building commissioned by the famous Norwegian collaborator with national socialism, whose name has become a synonym for traitor, a fearsome and terrifying symbol of the house of the West in the present day. They see this house occupied by two camps which are united in their determination to cancel the legacies of the Enlightenment and eradicate freedom from the face of the earth. They have issued their report on the efforts of today's quislings at work in the heart of civilization and to read it is to enter into house of unmitigated horror, a house which knocks down good people with the cudgels of fear, shock and disgust, and makes them swoon at the sight of mass treachery. To read it is to read what happens when a civilization has approached and arrived at its terminal stage of development, at the stage of mass rule, mass politics and mass democracy, and the people next door have turned their backs on reason, science and liberal order, slammed the door on the progress achieved by the human spirit, and seen fit to make common cause with the voices of the primitive past. To read it is to read about a newly ascendant red majority which has seized control over free institutions and hoisted two evil flags of victory atop freedom's fallen towers. It has hoisted the flag of Marxism and the flag of Islam, two religions which have captured the hearts, minds and imagination of the masses, and bid farewell to the Western world painstakingly built up over the centuries with the blood, treasure and unshakable commitment of the wise and the virtuous. To read it is to read a program and manifesto issued by a two headed monster breathing the fires of international jihad and the fires gender, race and class revolution, and scorching the earth with the prehistoric heat of regression and reaction for all time to come. Voted on unanimously by the masses now in control of the West, by the citizens of free nations who have betrayed the values which for centuries had defined their culture, this program proclaims that the liberal credo "Give me liberty or give me death!" rests upon the false assumption that man is a rational, free born agent. It proclaims that freedom of conscience and freedom of expression are nonvalues in a society enlightened by the words of the Koran and the Communist Manifesto. It proclaims that a progressive university has disinvited and dismissed speakers who challenge the orthodoxies of the leftists and the Islamists in charge. It proclaims that a progressive society has abandoned secular thought and placed its academic, media and corporate establishments under the control of religious cults promoting the gospels of Marx and Muhammad. It proclaims that a progressive society denounces liberal governments as corrupt and seeks to overthrow the existing order by caliphates of the materialist class and otherworldly believers. It proclaims that a progressive society has sacrificed bourgeois human rights upon the people's altars of social justice. It proclaims that a progressive society has immolated equal protection under the law in the gas ovens of critical race theory. It proclaims that a progressive society has enslaved every man, woman and child alive with the chains of tribal intersectionality. It proclaims that a progressive society is alert to the injustice and discrimination perpetrated by the capitalist system and seeks to replace the system with a swastika dictatorship in the hands of a black Aryan master race. It proclaims that liberal democracy must be studied and analyzed through the prism of race because race is the primary category in society, and after such study and analysis, it must be criticized and denounced as an instrument of white power and privilege. It proclaims that a progressive society is a militant society whose members understand and obey what Allah wants them to achieve on earth, the total destruction of the liberal Enlightenment institutions, in order to earn rewards in the afterlife. It proclaims that a progressive society is a balkanized society which is divided into myriad identities, black, white, rich, poor, male, female, heterosexual, homosexual, transgender and cisgender, and rejects the liberal fantasy that people exist as flesh and blood individuals and must be judged on their own merits. It proclaims that a progressive society has rejected the empirical search for truth and indoctrinated its members with the religious certitudes of gender, race and class. It proclaims that a progressive society has suppressed the voices of liberal freedom in the name of achieving religious, ideological purity. It proclaims that a progressive society shouts down reasoned debate and argument underpinned by sanity with the slogans Allahu Akbar!, Death to America!, Black Lives Matter and Proletarians Of The World, Unite! It proclaims that a progressive society forces its citizens to offer prayer and submission to the prophet in Mecca and to the parties of social justice. It proclaims that a progressive society burns the American flag with the flames of Allah's faithful and the ignited gas of gender, race and class agitation. It proclaims that a progressive society outlaws the voices of reason, capitalism and liberal values as founts of blasphemy and as expressions of hate speech. It proclaims that a progressive society silences the critics of Allah's otherworldly cult with the epithet Islamophobia and censors the enemies of red totalitarian tyranny with the epithet racism. It proclaims that a progressive society is a violent, hate filled dystopia, called the Islamic State and the Capital Hill Autonomous Zone. It proclaims that a progressive society is a slave society in which the individual is the chattel of Allah and a chattel of gender, race and class group identity. It proclaims that a progressive society sanctions, promotes and glorifies acts of force and aggression carried out by zealots in the name of the Sharia and the Port Huron Statement. It proclaims that a progressive society gives benefits, entitlements and preferential treatment to special groups, such as the poor, women, nonwhites and Allah's obedient children. It proclaims that the essence of morality is the will to power, whose agent is Allah and the state and the people and the party and gender, race and class tribes. Look at the world of the reds and see capitalism condemned as a system of oppression by heterosexual males. See terror justified in the name of women, blacks and homosexuals. See the killing of innocent people justified in the name of transgender liberation. See capitalism condemned as a lash of power in the hands of white people. See capitalism condemned as a system of mass imprisonment. See capitalism condemned as a system which unjustly closes its borders to the righteous scum of the earth. See capitalism condemned as a scourge against morally superior indigenous tribes. See a progressive proclaimed as an abolitionist society which has abolished the slavery imposed by freedom. See reason and science condemned as antitransgender, antiracist, antisocialist and antitotalitarian, and a progressive society proclaimed as a maelstrom of horror swirling with swastikas, hammers and sickles, psychotics and degenerates: "A Syracuse University political science professor used the twentieth anniversary of the September 11 terrorist attacks to tell us that day's violence was all about destroying the 'heteropatriarchal capitalistic systems' upon which the United States relies. In a now private Twitter thread, Jenn M. Jackson wrote, 'We have to be more honest' about what 9/11 was really about. 'It was an attack on the systems many white Americans fight to protect. We have to be clear that the same motivations that animated America's hypervigilance and responsiveness to 'terror' after 9/11 are now motivating the carceral state and antiimmigration policy.' Jackson, whose Twitter profile says 'Genderflux all pronouns,' is a columnist at Teen Vogue and was 'Oakland raised' on 'Onondaga Land,' also tweeted she is 'really disturbed by how many white pundits and correspondents talk about 9/11. White Americans might not have really felt true fear before 9/11 because they never felt what it meant to be accessible, vulnerable, and on the receiving side of military violence at home. But, white Americans' experiences are not a stand in for America.' According to her personal website, Jackson is a 'queer genderflux androgynous black woman, an abolitionist, and a lover of all black people.' " (Syracuse University Professor: 9/11 Was An 'Attack On The Heteropatriarchal Capitalist System' by The College Fix). King George III of England died in 1820 by assassination with arsenic. Two hundred milligrams of this poison, the weight of a raindrop, can kill a person within two hours and there is no antidote. The West in the present day has been stricken by a raging, torrential storm of ideological poison. Compounded out of Marxism and Islam and administered by the masses, this evil has dug the grave of progress and civilization.

"NEOCONSERVATIVE" COMMUNISTS COME TO WASHINGTON

False advertising is the crime of publicly circulating an advertisement containing a false or misleading statement. It is the crime of intentionally promoting the sale of a fraudulent good or service. A classic example of false advertising is the claim that a product contains vitamins or minerals it does not in fact contain. Students of politics have observed a sinister manifestation of false advertising in the form of a political movement born in America during the 1960s. Working their way over the decades into positions of power and influence, the members of this movement committed an act of fraud which shocked and outraged the defenders of liberty. Students of politics have issued a report on this movement and to read it is to read about the aims and goals of agents of a foreign ideology who gave themselves a name which bore no resemblance to who or what they were, and declared total war on the ideas which that name traditionally expressed. To read it is to read about a movement which called itself neoconservative but which was not in any respect conservative, and never once dedicated itself to the cause of limited, constitutional government which has traditionally defined conservatism. To read it is to read about a perpetration of misrepresentation by the reds on par with the reds' appropriation of the term progressive to describe their program of totalitarian tyranny, and with the same aim: to peddle communism to the masses in the most efficient and effective manner possible, and to uproot the tree of liberty, once and for all time, from the hallowed soil of America. To read it is to read about a movement of the reds whose luminaries have occupied the top ranks of the American political and cultural establishment, a movement whose prestige is as disgraceful as its power is frightening, a movement whose purpose is as evil as its fraud, its deception, and its cheating and swindling, are monumental. Students of politics have issued their report on this sixty year old movement of American communism and have exposed its true flags, its actual program and manifesto, to the world. This program includes the words of Irving Kristol, whose seminal book, Reflections Of A Neoconservative, defends the communist position on social welfare. The neoconservative program defends Trotsky's view on the necessity of permanent violent revolution. It proclaims that the end justifies the means and the use of harsh, ruthless methods is a moral imperative in politics. It proclaims that a powerful, intrusive government confers great benefits upon the people. It proclaims that libertarians and constitutionalists are enemies of the people because assertions of constitutional rights are antisocial and the Constitution is a living document the interpretations of which are a function of the social needs and exigencies of the moment. It proclaims that Stalin was good and Hitler was bad and was the worst devil in the world, and that Saddam Hussein, whose Baathist Party is a Hitler type, national socialist party, must be smashed at all costs, even if his overthrow leads to the hegemony of Islam and Iran. It proclaims that the traditional American system of individual responsibility must be replaced by a regime of big government welfare. It proclaims that morality is purely situational in character and is that which advances the will to power of society: "There are no absolute solutions. It all depends. What is right and what is wrong depends on what needs to be done and how." (Machiavelli On Modern Leadership by Michael Ledeen). It proclaims that war represent man's highest nature and confers the greatest benefits upon society because it trains and drills people in heroic codes of behavior and generates true leaders, while peace brings people to the grave of indolence, fecklessness and effeteness: "The virtue of the warrior are those of great leaders of any successful organization. Peace increases our peril by making discipline less urgent, encouraging some of our worst instincts, in depriving us of some of our best leaders." (Machiavelli On Modern Leadership by Michael Ledeen). It proclaims that in any conflict between state and the individual, and between power and liberty, the state and power must prevail. It proclaims man is a beast of prey and that the path to national greatness, glory and nobility lies in the policies of attack and plunder carried out by a powerful leader in his pact with evil: "In order to achieve the most noble accomplishments, the leader may have to enter into evil. This is the chilling insight that has made Machiavelli so feared, admired and challenging. We are rotten. It's true that we can achieve greatness if, and only if, we are properly led." (Machiavelli On Modern Leadership by Michael Ledeen). It proclaims that lying is a moral necessity for the state to survive and flourish in the jungle called reality: "Lying is central to the survival of nations and to the success of great enterprises, because if our enemies can count on the reliability of everything you say, your vulnerability is enormously increased." (Machiavelli On Modern Leadership by Michael Ledeen). It proclaims that war and bloodshed are the essence of the universe and the foundations of all true morality, and ever lay waste to the decadent dreams of liberal, capitalist, Enlightenment idealists: "Look at the map of the world: national boundaries have not been drawn by peaceful men leading lives of spiritual contemplation. National boundaries have been established by war, and national character has been shaped by struggle, most often bloody struggle." (Machiavelli On Modern Leadership by Michael Ledeen). It proclaims that the man's highest good is to ignore his rational self interest and his right to live freely, and to live and die for the sake of the common good and the magnificence of the state: "Without fear of God, no state can last long, for the dread of eternal damnation keeps men in line, causes them to honor their promises, and inspires them to risk their lives for the common good. Without fear of punishment, men will not obey laws that force them to act contrary to their passions. Without fear of arms, the state cannot enforce the laws. To this end, Machiavelli wants leaders to make the state spectacular." (Machiavelli On Modern Leadership by Michael Ledeen). It proclaims that a society with an everexpanding welfare system is a great and just society because it affirms that education, medical care and cradle to grave welfare cosetting are human entitlements which must be financed by wealth plundered from the producers. It proclaims that the traditional system of free markets and free trade must be replaced by the people's system of social markets and social protection. It proclaims that the ideal state rejects the voices of balanced budgets, reduced spending and limited government and promotes the "Third Way" of statism, socialism and top to bottom business regulation. Look at the world of neoconservatives and see reds support expansive government. See reds demand cradle to grave welfare programs. See reds peddle the public robbing of Peter to pay Paul in the name of compassionate conservatism. See reds place a nation on public charity and put it on its knees praying in a church called social responsibility. See reds hawk a religion called socialism on streets of envy and hatred and set civilization on fire with the petrol cans of mob rule: "Neocons enthusiastically embrace the Department of Education and national testing. Both parties overwhelmingly support the huge commitment to a new prescription drug program. Their devotion to the new approach called 'compassionate conservatism' has lured many conservatives into supporting programs for expanding the federal role in welfare and in church charities. The faith based initiative is a neocon project, yet it only repackages and expands the liberal notion of welfare. The intellectuals who promoted these initiatives were neocons, but there's nothing conservative about expanding the federal government's role in welfare." (We've Been Neo Conned by Ron Paul). Look at the world of neoconservatives and see reds support the communism of the New Deal. See reds demand the collectivism of the welfare-regulatory state. See reds declare war on the constitutionally guaranteed right to private property and the American system of limited government in the name of civil rights, antidiscrimination, and the crusade of Martin Luther King: "Neoconservatives differed with traditional conservatives on a number of issues. On the New Deal, neoconservatives wanted not to dismantle the welfare/regulatory state, as did most traditionalists, but simply to prevent its infinite expansion, as in the programs of the Great Society. On civil rights, all neocons were enthusiastic supporters of Martin Luther King, Jr and the Civil Rights Acts of 1964 and 1965, while the National Review was suspicious of King and opposed to federal legislation forbidding racial discrimination." (The End Of Neoconservatism James Nuechterlein). Springing from the pages of folklore, mythology and religion, monsters have come alive and stalk the world of the present day. Breathing the fires of expansive social programs, social spending and social regulations, the monster of red philosophy has added neoconservatism to its many faces during the final decades of the West.

EUROPEAN UNION VOTES FOR COMMUNISM

Mob rule is defined as rule by a mass of people outside the channels of lawful, legitimate, moral government. Mob rule seeks to intimidate and overthrow the voices of reason and to reflect the will of the majority as it renders fair policies and procedures null and void. The history of mankind is replete with instances of mob rule and has been bloodied and pockmarked by the partisans of the crowd. Expressing the sordid impulses of the neighbors next door, the impulses to tear down those who are successful and burn to the ground the shining palaces of human achievement, mob rule has one goal and one goal alone: to abolish freedom, establish socialism, and sweep away centuries of moral and political progress built up by the blood and treasure of civilized people. Mob rule established communism on the streets of St Petersburg. It established communism on the streets of Peking. It established communism on the streets of Hanoi. It established communism on the streets of Havana. It established communism on Main Street USA during the Red Decades of the New Deal. It established communism on the streets of London led by the bosses of the Labor Party after

World War II. Mob rule is a monster which never dies and as long as there are masses with power and might in their hands, mob rule will rear its ugly head and plant the victory flags of danger, aggression and tyranny where liberty and law, supported by the minority, seek in vain to prevail. Students of history have observed something astounding in the present day. They have observed something whose evil is as immense as its geographic expanse is wide and its population great. They have observed a development which they can only with the greatest difficulty write about and discuss with their friends and colleagues. They have observed an establishment which has defied their perception and imagination as it has constructed a satanic humanoid creature which has scared away the birds of freedom, and pointed with its skeletal arms into the moonless darkness of the collapse of civilization. They have observed 450 million people, on the streets of twenty seven nations, in the homeland of the Western world, standing atop the ancient wellsprings of human liberty and enlightenment, raise their hands, cast their ballots, agitate in courts, parliaments, presidential palaces and prime ministers' cabinets, and, as mobs have done since time immemorial and will do for all time to come as long mobs walk the face of the earth and are granted the reins of power, vote for communism. Students of history have issued their report on the greatest act of treason in the history of mankind, the betrayal by the European masses of the values and ideals which for centuries had defined Europe, and to read it is to read an autopsy and obituary of a community whose final days were spent under the shadow of the European Union, created in the late twentieth century by solemn treaties to institutionalize mob rule and enact communism across the face of continent. To read it is to read a program and manifesto of communism coming into effect in economics, politics, immigration and foreign affairs, communism inaugurated by the 1993 Maastricht Treaty of official mob rule, communism whose aim is to eradicate freedom, in one fell swoop, once and for all time, from the map of Europe, and to send it permanently buried in the dustbin of history. Voted upon unanimously by the citizens of an organization which, in a nightmare or nightmares, occupies a major section of mankind, which comprises six percent of the world's population and contributes eighteen percent to the world's GDP, this program proclaims that a progressive society authorizes state control over the workplace and establishes maximum working hours, daily and weekly rest periods, and annual paid vacations. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a system of welfare benefits, entitlements and services and provides taxpayer support for maternity, illness, industrial accidents and old age. It proclaims that a progressive society has established social and housing assistance to the poor. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a universal right to receive health care and medical treatment. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a right to receive vocational training and a liberal arts education. It proclaims that a progressive society has established mandatory quotas for women on company boards. It proclaims that a progressive society recognizes that gender has nothing whatever to do with the facts of reality and recognizes the right of transgender men and women to be treated as real men and women. It proclaims that a progressive society condemns modern industry and technology as sources of greenhouse gas emissions and has slammed the brakes on human progress to achieve a carbon free planet. Look at the world of Europe's reds and see them exalt human slavery above personal liberty. See them sacrifice human dignity upon the altar the common good. See them demand that individuals surrender their rights and serve their neighbors. See them sell statism in the name of the social market. See them sell socialism in the name of human needs. See them sell state control over economic affairs in the name of achieving social stability. See them take away people's freedoms in the name of maintaining families, protecting public health and saving people's jobs. See them protect people from the risks of life by repealing human rights. See them exalt totalitarian tyranny in the name of a human economy. See them protect protect the poor from poverty, illness, unemployment and bad luck by picking the pockets of the producers. See them reject the liberal system of equal protection before the law and institutionalize racism and sexism in the form of preferential treatment given to women and nonwhites and wide ranging discrimination against white males. See them condemn as hate speech all words of criticism of gender, race and class politics. See them condemn as hate crimes all actions taken in opposition to totalitarian ideologues who seek to shred freedom's charters. See them control every aspect of mind and consciousness, control people's thoughts, opinions, ideas, beliefs, computations and algorithms, to ensure undeviating adherence to the people's party line of political correctness. See them outlaw private growth, private innovation, private opportunity and private property. See them reject the findings of science and proclaim, against the weight of the evidence, that human activity is the cause of climate change, and that industrial civilization must in consequence be dismantled. See them reject the findings of science and enshrine transgender rights in the law books of the continent. See them banish reason, sanity and fundamental rights and freedoms from the glorious matrix of Western culture and transform Europe into a red menace, a red nightmare, a red octopus and a civilization free zone: "In the last months we have rediscovered the value of what we hold in common. As individuals, we have all sacrificed a piece of our personal liberty for the safety of others. And as a Union, we all shared a part of our sovereignty for the common good. The people of Europe are still suffering. It is a period of profound anxiety for millions who are concerned about the health of their families, the future of their jobs or simply just getting through until the end of the month. The pandemic—and the uncertainty that goes with it—is not over. And the recovery is still in its early stage. So our first priority is to pull each other through this. To be there for those that need it. And thanks to our unique social market economy, Europe can do just that. It is above all a human economy that protects us against the great risks of life--illness, ill fortune, unemployment or poverty. It offers stability and helps us better absorb shocks. Never before has that enduring promise of protection, stability and opportunity been more important than it is today. It creates opportunity and prosperity by promoting innovation, growth and fair competition. Our mission to become the first climate-neutral continent by 2050. But we will not get there with the status quo—we need to go faster and do things better. We looked in depth at every sector to see how fast we could go and how to do it in a responsible, evidence based way. We held a wide public consultation and conducted an extensive impact assessment. On this basis, the European Commission is proposing to increase the 2030 target for emission reduction to at least 55%. We will propose to extend the list of EU crimes to all forms of hate crime and hate speech—whether because of race, religion, gender or sexuality. We will tackle unconscious bias that exists in people, institutions and even in algorithms. I will not rest when it comes to building a Union of equality. A Union where you can be who you are and love who you want—without fear of recrimination or discrimination. Because being yourself is not your ideology. It's your identity. And no one can ever take it away. So I want to be crystal clear—LGBTQI-free zones are humanity free zones. And they have no place in our Union. And to make sure that we support the whole community, the Commission will soon put forward a strategy to strengthen LGBTQI rights." (State of the Union Address by President von der Leyen at the European Parliament Plenary, September 16, 2020). In the famous 1881 oil painting by Edouard Manet, entitled, Le Suicide, a man has just shot himself and, still holding a gun, lies slouched on his bed. Blasting their civilization of liberty with the fearsome rifles of radical red politics, the citizens of the European Union have committed cultural suicide in the present day and are holding the guns of infamy.

THE WEST TODAY: THE HOUSE THAT MARX BUILT

Implosion is a process in which objects are destroyed by collapsing in on themselves. The process involves a difference between internal lower pressure and external higher pressure, a difference which is so great that the object is overwhelmed by external forces. Common examples of implosion include a submarine which is crushed from the outside by the surrounding water, and the collapse of a massive star under its own gravitational weight. Students of history understand that civilizations implode under the external pressure of mass rule and mass democracy, which pressure becomes so great that it overpowers the civilization's traditions and institutions of liberty and plunges its people into the eternal night of the masses' evil world: the world of envy, jealousy, frustration, discontent, tribal politics, tribal hatred, tribal war and tribal revolution. Students of history have observed in the present day, in the house of the West, a process of implosion which has erased the West's glorious traditions and institutions born in the Age of Enlightenment, and turned back the clock to the primitive swamplands emanating from the nameless eons of prehistoric time. They have observed the external forces of mass politics operate in the guise of the masses' favorite religion, Marxism and its derivatives, and have issued their report on the implosion of the West under the weight of this particularly severe, virulent, infective manifestation of end stage tribalism. To read it is to read the program and manifesto of the pathology of the Everyman, a pathology which two thousand years ago produced Caesar's mobs and brought down the house of Rome, a pathology which has appeared in a heightened, potentiated form in the West today and ignited a global conflagration. Set into motion by a nineteenth century religious prophet masquerading as a philosopher and an economist, this wide ranging program of gender, race and class tribalism which has overrun the world proclaims that nothing exists beyond material entities and that what is called mind is in reality an unthinking material process. It proclaims that because mind does not exist, what is described as mental labor, knowledge work and entrepreneurial and managerial skill are pure bourgeois fantasies, and all wealth is created by pure, mindless muscle labor, and the wealth of industry belongs in toto to the proletarian class of mindless muscle laborers. It proclaims that because mind does not exist, all history and social change are caused by mindless, materialistic, economic forces, and the history of mankind is a history of class wars. It proclaims that reality proceeds in accordance with a special, higher, dialectical superlogic which establishes that contradictions exist, that a thing is its negation, that A is nonA, and that an entity can be both black all over and white all over at one and the same time. It proclaims that individuals possess no real existence and no real rights and are nothing more than phantom emanations of the supreme mystical reality of the class. It proclaims that individuals exist to serve the class and the class may dispose of individuals as it deems fit in accordance with its needs and interests. It proclaims that capitalism is a system in which the bourgeois class of mental laborers and knowledge workers, who perform no work, exploits the proletarian class of muscle laborers, who perform all the work, steals the wealth which proletariat alone creates, and appropriates the profits which belong to the proletariat and to it alone. It proclaims that the proletariat has the right and the duty to declare war on the exploiting class of idle capitalists and to confiscate their ill gotten wealth and to eradicate them from the face of the earth by a campaign of mass violence and killing. It proclaims that the perfect society is a society without a state or laws, a society which grants a monopoly on the use of force to a private, lawless gang of the proletariat or the communist party, and is a people's dictatorship of the proletariat and the party. It proclaims that a perfect society is a class based society in which the class is the people's slaver driver and extorts from each slave according to his ability and gives to each slave according to his needs. It proclaims that a progressive society is prepared to murder hundreds of millions of people as enemies of the class and worships Marx's heroic practitioners and mass murderers, Lenin, Stalin, Mao and Pol Pot. It proclaims that a progressive society is a neoMarxist society which exalts the feminist will to power. It proclaims that a progressive society enforces the tenets of critical race theory which proclaim that the Enlightenment doctrine of universalism must be critically examined and rejected on the grounds that the social, historical and ideological forces which shape the world are purely racial in character, that white people are inherently racist, and that liberal capitalism is a white man's system which must be smashed and overthrown. It proclaims that a progressive society is a black supremacist society ruled by the brass knuckles of Black Lives Matter. It proclaims that a progressive society is a planned and engineered society which has eliminated the antisocial elements of constitutional rights. It proclaims that a progressive society has freed its citizens from the yoke of liberal mores, values, traditions, customs and belief systems through a relentless campaign of political reprogramming conducted under the shadow of force and violence. It proclaims that a progressive school system indoctrinates students in far left stock phrases promoting gender, racial, ethnic, indigenous and class tribalism. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches students to disdain and renounce liberal democracy and to agitate for the establishment of a collectivist dictatorship based upon race and color. It proclaims that a progressive society has swept away capitalist control over the economy and culture and established the absolute authority of communist economics and cultural Marxism. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the rule of reason and law and makes emotional appeals to the scum of the earth seeking revenge. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the Enlightenment fiction of a common human essence and promotes balkanization and separatism based upon biological and socioeconomic categories. It proclaims that women, nonwhites, homosexuals, transgenders and indigenous cultures are victims of the capitalist system. It proclaims that a progressive society is a repressive society which prohibits all views which are opposed to the people's neoMarxist party line of gender, race and class. It proclaims that a progressive society is an intolerant society which does not allow liberal aspirations and dreams of freedom to poison the people's struggle for social justice. It proclaims that a progressive society outlaws all policies, attitudes and opinions which reject the people's religion of class struggle, race struggle, gender struggle and the struggle to forcibly remove constitutional government. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished freedom of speech in order to protect the totalitarian reds from the oppression of rational analysis and liberal opposition. It proclaims that a progressive society keeps its citizens under twenty four hour surveillance and control from red watchtowers installed in megacorporations, academia, media networks and the entertainment industry. It proclaims that a progressive society is governed by bosses brainwashing the people, bosses preaching subservience to the state and tribe, and bosses wearing boss hats marked democratic socialism, community activism, Antifa, The Squad, economic justice, racial justice, environmental justice, gender equity, diversity and inclusion. Look at the world of the reds today and see university students reject the constitutions of liberty. See classroom radicals condemn human rights as a scourge of racism and sexism and demand special privileges for women and nonwhites. See campus activists proclaim that freedom has had its day, that the rule of law is relic from the liberal age of patriarchal injustice, and that the new millennium belongs enmeshed in the tentacles of red totalitarian tyranny: "With Constitution Day on Friday, Campus Reform reporter Ophelie Jacobson talked with University of Florida students about the US Constitution to see if they think the document is still relevant today, or if should be scrapped and remade. Students told Campus Reform they think the Constitution is outdated and should be revised. 'It has to be,' one student said. 'It was written in the late 1700s, it wasn't written for the 21st century.' 'There are a lot of outdated things in there that nowadays aren't accepted,' another iterated. When Jacobson asked if students think the Constitution is a symbol of the patriarchy, all of them answered in the affirmative. 'The time period was rich old white men and that's exactly what that document says, and stands for and vouches for,' one student said. Another student said, 'they didn't have a perspective nor were they seeking it.' " (Students Sign Petition To Abolish The US Constitution by Ophelie Jacobson). A state of total darkness in the sky occurs when the sun falls more than eighteen degrees below the horizon. At this point, twilight disappears and the night sky is plunged into consistent blackness. Engulfed in a shadowland of absolute evil, the traditions and institutions of the West today compose a story of Marxist triumph in the final age of mass politics.

RAW SEWAGE SOUTH OF THE BORDER

In the summer of 1858, London was attacked by a miasma emanating from untreated human waste and industrial effluents present in the River Thames. The city and its government were brought to a standstill. Caused by an inadequate sewer system, the situation had been mounting for years and had caused massive outbreaks of cholera. Looking back at this public health calamity which engulfed the heart of England, students of history have observed a terrifying symbol, figure and metaphor for the present day. They have observed a phenomenon which has beset all societies on the path to extinction and have recoiled in fear and horror at the sight of the Grim Reaper arriving to claim a nation which for centuries had shined out throughout the world as the beacon, arsenal and Good Samaritan of human liberty and Enlightenment aspirations. They have observed a nightmare monster of moral waste and foul matter streaming in massive hordes from the southern border of America, let in by the reds who control the nation, unleashed by those intent on enacting an agenda of national destruction. Students of history have issued their report on the suicide of a once great nation at the hands of its ascendant red majority, and to read it is to read the journey of the Silent Highwayman, rowing down the river of a civilization in free fall, claiming the lives of people and institutions which have renounced liberal values, and giving heed and warning to good citizens throughout the world that death will claim them without fail and without reprieve if they dare to venture down the path of radical philosophy. The report on the invasion of America by a torrential rainstorm of bacteria in human form describes the program and manifesto of Marxism and its derivatives in their quest to smash the fortresses of liberal achievement and bring the progress of mankind to a screeching halt. To read it is to hear the loud, harsh, piercing cries of far left man haters in their relentless war to grind law and order into dust and extirpate rational humanity. This report on an oppressive, unpleasant and unhealthy maelstrom called America, on the program of the red neighbors next door who have stabbed their nation ignominiously in the back, includes the following grim, hideous proclamations. This program of America's communists and their terrifying progeny proclaims that a progressive America is a Third World nation which allows aliens by the millions to cross its borders illegally. It proclaims that a progressive America allows tens of thousands of immigrants to settle under the Del Rio International Bridge at the nation's border in Texas before it issues them citizenship papers. It proclaims that a progressive America is an open borders America which allows hundreds of thousands of illegal migrants to cross into it per day. It proclaims that a progressive America gives water, towels, bathrooms and medical attention to illegal aliens and grants them lifetime residency rights. It proclaims that a progressive America has abolished all border restriction and border expulsions and become the global center for illegal immigration. It proclaims that a progressive America allows Haitian migrants to assault Border Patrol agents and take over their transport vehicles. It proclaims that a progressive America condemns as cruel, wicked and inhuman all prohibitions on illegal aliens settling in the nation. It proclaims that a progressive America grants asylum to violent criminals fleeing their homelands. It proclaims that a progressive America grants citizenship to all black migrants on the grounds of its opposition to racism. It proclaims that a progressive America allows illegal migrants to walk, march and rush through border checkpoints, unrestrained and uncontrolled. It proclaims that a progressive America has established an automatic path to citizenship for illegal migrants. It proclaims that a progressive America allows in massive influxes of illegal immigrants in order to build a long term voting constituency for the Democrat Party. It proclaims that a progressive America has eliminated its border control personnel and allowed trucks brimming with illegal aliens and illegal drugs to enter the country. It proclaims that a progressive America gives free housing, free food, free healthcare, free education and unconditional voting rights to illegal aliens. It proclaims that a progressive America seeks to change the demographics of the nation by allowing massive illegal immigration and to give permanent political power to the red enemies of liberal society. It proclaims that a progressive America allows Haitian migrants to storm government facilities and enter the country by force and violence. It proclaims that a progressive America allows every migrant who wants to stay in the country to stay, with no questions asked, no background checks performed, and no covid vaccines required. It proclaims that a progressive America has outlawed all deportations of illegal aliens and granted them blanket amnesty. It proclaims that a progressive America has resettled illegal aliens in every city, town and neighborhood in the country. It proclaims that a progressive America has released all illegal aliens from detention and dispersed them to every point in the nation. It proclaims that a progressive America allows illegal aliens to violate the law and settle in towns and cities from coast to coast. It proclaims that a progressive America condemns as racist all efforts to prevent nonwhite illegal aliens from entering the country. It proclaims that a progressive America allows illegal aliens to commit immigration fraud and subvert the rule of law. It proclaims that a progressive America grants asylum to migrant hooligans and gangsters in the name of common decency and propriety. It proclaims that a progressive America grants citizenship to all foreigners who support the programs and philosophy of the reds. It proclaims that a progressive America protects illegal aliens who support communism and allows them to commit any crimes they wish. It proclaims that a progressive America is an egalitarian America which believes that all people, good and evil, are equal and deserve equal rights and opportunities, and that foreign scum invading the country from the southern border should be allowed to settle and become full citizens. It proclaims that a progressive America has established unequal application of immigration laws and grants citizenship to far left, nonwhite migrants because they are far left and nonwhite. Look at the world of America today and see reds emptying and discharging moral waste matter from foreign lands. See specimens of corruption teeming in the sewers of the world pour into the nation by the millions. See monsters rushing in from foreign lands, frightening beasts in all forms and guises, given free rein and full citizenship rights. See human sand and silt, carried by the running waters of polluted societies, wash into the nation and bury its people and institutions. See the psychologically deformed and the morally mishappen, whose skills lie in acts of murder, mayhem, terror and the peddling of vice, granted refuge, asylum and the keys to America. See spirits of death assume human form, leave their realms of horror in Mexico, Haiti, Africa, Central America and South America, and spread disaster and disintegration across the length and breadth of the land. See creatures of darkness and shadow, unscreened, unchecked, unassessed and unexamined, welcomed with open arms and allowed to call America their home. See forms of congealed electricity, animated by the currents of the Devil, issued passports and green cards and allowed to incinerate neighborhoods and towns. See reanimated corpses from foreign lands, outside of all moral, rational, human order, revenants inhuman, nonhuman, antihuman and subhuman, lauded by the national red media and cultural establishment, and allowed to lower the curtain on American civilization: "Former President Donald Trump said the country is becoming a 'cesspool of humanity' as the Biden administration scrambles to handle the more than 14,000 mainly Haitian migrants living in a makeshift camp under a bridge in Texas. 'The largest number of illegal aliens in the history of our country are pouring in by the millions. They are totally unchecked and unvetted, can do whatever they want, and go wherever they want,' Trump said in an emailed statement on Sunday. 'Our country is rapidly becoming a cesspool of humanity. Murderers, drug dealers, and criminals of all shapes and sizes are a big part of this massive migration,' the former president said. 'Tens of thousands of people are coming from Haiti, and many now from countries in Africa, even more so now than South America. Nothing is done and the corrupt mainstream media is giving almost no attention to what will be perhaps the greatest crisis in the history of our country,' said Trump, noting that it's not only a crisis at the border, it's a 'Crisis Crisis.' " (Trump Says US Becoming A 'Cesspool Of Humanity' Amid Border Crisis by Mark Moore). In 1848, Punch, the world renowned British weekly magazine of satire, described the River Thames during the time of the Great Stench: "Dirty Father Thames/Filthy river, filthy river,/Foul from London to the Nore,/What are you but one vast gutter,/One tremendous common shore?" Stopped by the construction of additional sewers, pumping stations and river embankments, the inundation of sewage which ravaged London has reappeared in America, unleashed at the southern border by the red enemies of civilization.

MERKEL'S LEGACY OF DESTRUCTION

Berlin, May 9, 1945. The Brandenburg Gate looms over the ruins of the city. Streets have been transformed into scenes of devastation. Germany surrenders to the Allies and the Soviet flag flies over the Reichstag. Civilized Germans, foraging in rags for food and clothing, hoped and prayed that this nightmare would never return to their country, and that their friends and neighbors would learn the terrifying price they had paid for placing the destiny of their nation into the hands of a far left leader, who paraded his brand of socialism under the flags of the swastika, and led them down the path of downfall and disgrace. But civilized Germans knew in their hearts they were wrong and that their hopes and prayers were voiced in vain, for they knew that the virus of far left politics is the virus of mass rule, and that as long as the masses walk the earth and are granted political power, this virus will never attenuate and never disappear, and will return again and again until the host organism, the nation, the people, the society and the community, is blasted off the face of the earth and physically, geographically, politically, morally and spiritually, ceases to exist. Civilized Germans in the present day have seen the virus return, as they knew it would return, and have seen their friends and neighbors once again lower the curtain on their nation, and plunge it into the arms of infamy. They have seen the nightmare of German national destruction, which had ground their nation into dust at the end of World War II, descend once again during the sixteen years of Angela Merkel's chancellorship and bring the nation into an abyss where it morally and spiritually no longer exists. They have seen in this period the rule of a red pragmatist, a red visionary and a red crisis manager. They have seen a chancellor proclaim that that the rich countries in the European Union like Germany have a duty to pay the debts of the poor countries. They have seen her proclaim that a progressive Europe is a red Europe which champions socialist integration above individual liberty: "She proved to be able to take decisions against the current way of thinking in Germany and in favor of the better integration and better efficiency of the European continent." (Bruno Le Maire, French Minister of Economics). They have seen her attack the free market and introduce a national minimum wage. They have seen her open up Germany's borders to millions of refugees and asylum seekers from the savage steppes, deserts and jungles of the earth and declare war on liberal values in the name of Willkommenkultur. They have seen here promote the mass absorption of communist mobs from unwashed lands under the banners of Wir schaffen Das! or "Yes We Can!". They have seen her grant residency and citizenship to enemy aliens in the name of human rights. They have seen her support Barack Obama's program to unleash the denizens of the planet's sewers against the liberal traditions and institutions of the West in the face of opposition from decent, righteous, law abiding citizens: "This was an era Obama was in, when there were very, very few political leaders in the world who would ever do something that they knew was going to be politically damaging because they believed it to be the right thing. When Merkel decided to take in all of those refugees it was obvious there would be political blowback to that and Obama was incredibly moved by that and by the way in which she defended it." (Ben Rhodes, Deputy National Security Advisor under Barack Obama). They have seen her shut down nuclear power plants and coal fired power generation and take Germany down the path of an energiewende, or an "energy transition", into a world without industry or progress, in the name of green politics and environmental soundness. They have seen her declare war on modern technical civilization in the name of greenhouse gas emission reduction. They have seen her promote a mandatory solidarity program which would force European Union member states to accept migrant scum invading in massive hordes from the netherworlds of Syria, Africa and Asia: "German's Angela Merkel embarks this week on her third bold attempt to reshape European migration, but she faces an uphill task convincing other EU leaders to host refugees, even if her plan contains generous incentives. The same states that, five years ago, rejected an EU quota system for refugees from Syria's war remain firmly opposed to accepting those who continue to flee conflict or poverty in parts of the Middle East, Africa and Asia." (Germany Pushes For EU Solidarity On Migration—Again by Thomas Escritt). Look at the world of Angela Merkel and see her open Germany's borders to an inundation of migrants from Syria carrying the deadly plague of illiberal Islam. See her parade the flags of humanitarian relief and allow refugees and asylum seekers to cross Germany's borders and build beachheads and outposts for international jihad. See her transform the European Union into an assembly point for radical Islamist world revolution. See her preside over a far left government intent on razing the house of liberal order with the bulldozers of multiculturalist chaos. See her promote mass immigration by foreign voices of fear, violence, tyranny and superstition. See her populate Germany's cities and states with red crescent revolutionaries and ignite a civil war. See her proclaim that Germany has a social responsibility to serve as a basin for the world's lairs of Islamist agitation and the planet's black holes of moral nonexistence. See her impose a plan of mass settlement of militants and fundamentalists from distant lands, and with these comrades lower the curtain on German, European and Western civilization: "Chancellor Angela Merkel's decision to allow thousands of refugees stranded in Hungary to enter Germany caused a rift in her conservative bloc on Sunday when her Bavarian allies accused her of sending a 'totally wrong signal' to the rest of Europe. The dispute broke out after Austria and Germany agreed to temporarily open their borders to thousands of mostly Syrian refugees in Hungary, whose right wing government was unwilling and unable to cope with the influx. Germany expects a record influx of 800,000 migrants and refugees this year, by far the most in the European Union. More than 100,000 asylum seekers were registered in August alone. Merkel and Hungarian President Viktor Orban had agreed by telephone that the decision to let refugees--many from Syria's civil war--cross the borders was a temporary one made for humanitarian reasons, a German government spokesman said. But Bavarian Interior Minister Joachim Herrmann, whose Christian Social Union (CSU) is the regional sister party of Merkel's Christian Democrats (CDU) in Berlin's ruling coalition, accused her of having pushed forward without asking Germany's federal states, which have had to cope with the consequences. Bavarian Premier Horst Seehofer and other CSU leaders agreed in a conference call that Merkel's green light to migrants stuck in Hungary was a wrong decision. Seehofer said his staunchly conservative party would put the issue on the agenda of a high level coalition meeting on Sunday evening, adding that Germany could not take in nearly all the refugees who were coming to Europe.'There is no society that could cope with something like this. The federal government needs a plan here.' " (Merkel Splits Conservative Bloc With Green Light To Refugees by Michael Nienaber). Look at the world of Angela Merkel and see her condemn as cold hearted and hate filled those who stand up for the West and seek to protect its gates. See her condemn as uncaring and exclusionary those who reject the settlement of enemy aliens peddling the two headed monster of faith and force. See her reject as close minded and uncompassionate those who guard their liberal, rationalist, humanist identity and reject subservience to ideologies of mosques, minarets and unfounded beliefs. See her reject freedom for businesses, employees, artists and scientists and proclaim the primacy of the social state, the social market, the social economy and red totalitarian regimentation and tyranny: "It is important for us not to follow those with coldness or hatred in their hearts who seek to claim German identity for themselves alone and to exclude others. It is important for us to keep wanting to be a country where we are self assured and free, compassionate and open minded--with the joy of success and the joy of giving our best. Businesses, workers and employers are giving their best, enabling the strength of the social market economy to continue to develop, and so too are the fields of science, art and culture: simply everyone in their own lives. " (The Chancellor's New Year's Address, December 31, 2015). She was praised by Europe's reds as the Queen of Europe and the Climate Chancellor. Civilized people on the continent saw her in a different light. They saw the thirty third chancellor of Germany, whose tenure has ended, as the second coming of Germany's Reichkanzler and fuhrer, returning to resume in a different key his program of destruction.

THE REDS' NAZI FORESTS

The mystical land and the eternal woods. Maypole dances and tree trunk coffins. Sacred trees uprooted and hauled away by the bulldozers of modern civilization. Such were the images, symbols and tenets of a religion which took hold of Germany during the time of the Third Reich. Students of history have plunged into an evil nightmare in their observations of the present day. They have observed the wheel of history spin round and replant the national socialist exaltation of the neolithic age across the nations of the free world. They have observed the national socialist descent into the nameless currents of prehistory reenacted by the red majorities in control of the West today and given a frightening new lease on life. They have observed Hitler's religion of blood and soil repackaged by the radical environmentalist movement and fashioned into a latter day V-2 rocket whose target, like the first one, is centuries of human progress and advancement and the glorious legacies of the Enlightenment. They have issued their report on the downward spiral of a world weary civilization and to read it is to look inside a dead body rotted through and through with the cancer of red politics brought by mass rule, a cancer which has reached its final stages of development and blackened the planet with a sickening miasma of rejection of reason, science and the forward march of industry and technology. The report on the radical environmentalist movement is a report on the program and manifesto of a movement of virulent man haters and their quest to destroy every trace of human existence and plant Satan's flags of universal negation upon the smoldering ruins of states and societies. It consists of a series of proclamations which condemn everything man has achieved and every path he has blazed since the beginning of civilization, and demands the return of the raging primitive, the revival of the worship of wind and sky, and the reestablishment of reverence for the air, water, trees and animals, and everything and anything which bears no stamp or trace of humanity. The environmentalist program of the neoMarxist reds proclaims that a progressive society rejects all sources of mass industrial energy production and blankets the land with wave power, wind power, solar power and biomass power. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects coal fired power stations and nuclear energy and places itself at the mercy of alien rogue states selling natural gas. It proclaims that a progressive society has outlawed the extraction of oil and gas from shale rock by means of hydraulic fracture on the grounds that the process releases greenhouse gases which will incinerate the planet in ten years. It proclaims that a progressive society rations fuel, shuts down petrol stations and orders supermarkets to limit food supplies. It proclaims that a progressive society triples gas and electricity prices and forces people to live in darkness and in cold. It proclaims that a progressive society has transitioned from coal and gas fired power generation to renewable energy sources and celebrated as the lights of civilization go out. It proclaims that a progressive society has banned gasoline and diesel cars and replaced them with short range, low speed electric cars which make long journeys impossible. It proclaims that wealthy people are responsible for the growth of greenhouse gas emissions and must be exterminated along with modern industry. It proclaims that a progressive society has banned airplane flights to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. It proclaims that a progressive society has banned electric cars on grounds that greenhouse gases are created in the manufacturing of the vehicle. It proclaims that the world is in a state of climate emergency the only solution to which is the reduction of net carbon emissions to zero by a return to primitive lifestyles and

the dismantling of modern civilization. It proclaims that a progressive society has decarbonized the economy and returned it to the year zero. It proclaims that a progressive society has eliminated all mechanisms of power reliability and halted the currents of civilization's electricity. It proclaims that a progressive society has deprived people of jobs, shut down their businesses, imprisoned them in their homes and denied their children an education in order to lower global greenhouse gas emissions. It proclaims that a progressive society has banned all power plants, factories, trucks, automobiles and airplanes in order to eliminate planet warming pollution. It proclaims that a progressive society has eliminated its tourist economy in order to keep its rivers and canals clean. Look at the program of the radical environmentalists and see a campaign of fear conducted without basis in fact. See clouds of panic released in neighborhoods and storms of wild, unthinking behavior rained down upon cities. See modern civilization condemned as a generator of climate crisis and climate catastrophe. See red crusaders on a mission to halt the march of human progress. See red hoodlums smash the wheels of modern technology. See red fighters wage war against human prosperity and achievement. See red terrorists invade factories and break them to pieces. See red exterminationists transform civilization into a wasteland. See red bombers reduce cities to heaps of rubble. See red battlers upend the machinery and equipment of the modern world. See the carriers of a red fever lead a revolt against the Enlightenment. See the denizens of red malarial swamps flood homes and offices with flags of hysteria against scientific and technological mastery. See red psychopaths shout out raw hatred of the human race. See red agitators condemn the palaces of human advancement as lashes of oppression against women, nonwhites and the poor. See red propagandists compile handbooks containing instructions on violent action against the world of material flourishing. See red rejectionists declare war on the forward movement of humanity. See red deniers ignite the marsh gases of ignorance and lead a rampage against centuries of human skill and achievement. See red censors place words in praise of modern industry under official interdiction and compile lexicons of loaded terms designed to move the masses against the order of applied science. See red scaremongers run currents of energy generated in the dark mills of Satan's fury and engulf the success minted by mankind in the furnaces of global warming, global heating, global incineration and global conflagration: "The woke Guardian newspaper has attributed August rainfall on Greenland's ice cap to global warming, insisting that the event constitutes 'a stark sign of the climate crisis.' Across Greenland, an estimated seven billion tons of rain was released from the clouds during 'an exceptionally hot three days in Greenland when temperatures were 18C higher than average in places,' the Guardian stated Friday. The rainfall was an 'unprecedented' event, the newspaper declared, and 'the precipitation is a stark sign of the climate crisis.' The Guardian cited Ted Scambos, a scientist at the National Snow and Ice Data Center at the University of Colorado, who told CNN: 'What is going on is not simply a warm decade or two in a wandering climate pattern. This is unprecedented. We are crossing thresholds not seen in millennia, and frankly this is not going to change until we adjust what we're doing to the air.' The Guardian has been a front line crusader for climate panic, insisting that climate change is 'as certain as Auschwitz' and every bit as deadly. Among its various hyperbolic claims, the Guardian has declared that global warming is a 'greater threat' than either terrorism or a foreign invasion, that it is causing the wings of nightingales to get shorter, endangering their ability to migrate, that climate change is 'racist' that it caused lower potato yields in 2018 resulting in one inch shorter pommes frites, and that without 'urgent action to adapt to and confront global heating,' Europe could face catastrophic 'forest fires, floods, droughts and deluges' by the year 2100. The Guardian's commitment to climate alarmism is nothing new. The newspaper famously predicted in 1999 that by the year 2020, 'Spain will be ridden with malaria, the eastern Mediterranean will be as hot as the Sahara desert, flash floods will swamp parts of the American coastline and there will be almost no snow in the Alps.' In May 2019, the Guardian announced a decision to overhaul its official lexicon on global warming, banning anything that hints of uncertainty regarding climate alarmism. The newspaper declared that it would no longer speak of climate skepticism but only of 'deniers,' while replacing terms like 'climate change' and 'global warming' with the more emotionally charged expressions 'climate crisis' and 'global heating.' " (Guardian: Greenland Rain Is 'Stark Sign Of Climate Crisis' by Thomas Williams). Senescence is a frightening and unpleasant spectacle. In biological organisms, it is the deterioration of all functional characteristics. Cultural senescence has struck the West, blasted into it by the environmentalist gravediggers of civilization.

EMPIRICISM REPEALED BY THE REDS' NAZI SCIENCE

Philipp Lenard was a world famous German physicist and winner of the Nobel Prize in Physics in 1905. He was also an active proponent of national socialism and supported Hitler in his rise to power. Author of a four volume physics textbook entitled German Physics, Lenard drew a distinction between Aryan physics and Jewish physics and proclaimed that Jewish physics and Jewish physicists should be expunged from the scientific community. An advisor to Hitler, Lenard served as the Chief of Aryan Physics during the Third Reich. Students of history have observed the wheel of history spin round and plant a deadly parallel in the West in the twenty first century. They have observed the ugly forces of tribalism invade science once again, and as they did in Germany under Hitler, put an end to the empirical search for truth. They have observed the reds strike again and halt the forward movement of science. They have observed that as Marx had commenced this campaign of reversion and first declared war on "bourgeois science", and the national socialists continued the program of tribalism and declared war on "Jewish science", so the heirs and successors of these movements in the present day have effected one more evil turn of the Marxist wheel and, rejecting empiricism once again, have injected identity politics into the heart of science and poisoned anew the systematic enterprise which builds knowledge. They have observed the latest development of Marxist identitarianism appear in the form of Hitler's children and observed race and gender activists invade the citadels of science and plant the flags of clans, kins and hunter-gatherers in classrooms, laboratories and research stations. They have issued their report and to read it is to read the results of an autopsy performed on the Western mind, crushed to death by the relentless hammer blows of red politics. This is a report on mass politics and mob rule in its final stages of development, when it has renounced the rule of reason and science and plunged into the feverish waters of in groups, out groups, blood ties and gender bonding. This is a report on the rejection of the foundations of rational thought, the view that all knowledge is derived from sense experience, and the acceptance of its opposite, the view that all knowledge is derived from feeling, intuition and deduction, independently of all experience. This is a report on the promotion of race and gender apriorism by the Lenards of the contemporary age, and the neoMarxist, neoHitlerite rejection of the Scientific Revolution, and its world of nonpoliticized inquiries, empirical theories, testable predictions and testable explanations. This report presents the program and manifesto of the latest rabble rousers at work today, mauling science apart with the brass knuckles of the will to power of women and nonwhites. This program proclaims that progressive science is governed by the promoters of identity politics, by the voices of those who say we are defined primarily by our race and gender. It proclaims that a progressive science school promotes the entrance of women and nonwhites by lowering the requirements for graduate level study. It proclaims that a progressive science company seeks to create to a diverse workforce and to ensure that women and nonwhites are granted preferential treatment in hiring and promotion. It proclaims that scientists who condemn in words and speech preferential treatment given to women and nonwhites are guilty of racial and gender bias and aggression and must be expelled from the scientific community. It proclaims that a progressive science school favors academics who are women or nonwhite and support policies of racism and sexism against white males: "The physics department at UC San Diego advertised an assistant professor position with a 'specific emphasis on contributions to diversity,' such as a candidate's 'awareness of inequities faced by underrepresented groups.' " (What Does Diversity Have To Do With Science? by Heather MacDonald). It proclaims that a progressive science school condemns merit based standards of admission as lashes of oppression and discrimination in the hands of a white patriarchy. It proclaims that progressive science condemns the search for empirical, objective truth as a product of white, male prejudice. It proclaims that progressive science condemns the idea of empirically successful science as a racist and sexist construct. It proclaims that progressive science is sensitive to the existence of race and gender and promotes theories and conclusions which advance the interests of women and nonwhites. It proclaims that a progressive science school ignores failing test scores of nonwhite applicants and promotes a "holistic" policy of considering race and admitting only nonwhites. It proclaims that a progressive science school rejects the traditional ideal of graduating well trained, skilled professionals and graduates women and blacks solely because they are women and blacks. It proclaims that a progressive science school expels academics who deny that are such things as male truths and female truths and black truths and white truths, as guilty of harassment and discrimination. It proclaims that the sex and skin color of scientists determine the value of their research and scientists who are women or nonwhite alone produce legitimate science. Look at the world of the reds today and see them condemn the notion of scientific objectivity as a product of racism. See them condemn the notions of proof and evidence as products of white supremacy. See them condemn the notion of empiricism as a product of white bias. See them promote racist pseudoscience in the name of racial equity. See them imprison truth and knowledge in dungeons marked race and blood. See them reject Enlightenment universalism and the belief in a single physical reality with a doctrine of racial and ethnic subjectivism, according to which truth and reality are anything black, hispanic, latino and linguistic communities declare them to be. See them reject traditional science practices, science courses, science pathways, science proficiency, science standards, science classrooms and science education as products of white European culture. See them condemn independent thought as a product of white ways of being. See them condemn objective grading in science schools as a barrier to the advancement of nonwhite students. See them reject the real world of physical objects and proclaim reality to be constituted of the mystical, racial will to power. See them develop and carry out a plan to abolish centuries of human rationality and cast science and civilization, the world fought for and died for with the blood and treasure of free people, into the dustbin of history: "The California education department is considering implementing a statewide math framework that promotes the concept that working to figure out a correct answer in math is an example of racism and white supremacy invading the classroom. The framework, titled, A Pathway to Equitable Math Instruction: Dismantling Racism in Mathematics Instruction, is intended to be 'exercises for educators to reflect on their own biases to transform their instructional practice.' The Equitable Math website states its training manual was funded by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, the primary private source of funding for the Common Core State Standards. 'White supremacy culture infiltrates math classrooms in everyday teacher actions,' the document states. 'Coupled with the beliefs that underlie these actions, they perpetuate educational harm on Black, Latinx, and multilingual students, denying them full access to the world of mathematics.' The proposed California framework provides examples of how 'white supremacy culture' has infiltrated math classes in schools: 1. The focus is on getting the right answer. 2. Independent practice is valued over teamwork or collaboration. 3. 'Real world math' is valued over math in the real world. 4. Students are tracked (into courses/pathways and within the classroom). 5. Participation structures reinforce dominant ways of being. Additionally, the document asserts the means by which teachers assess student learning in math is based on white supremacy culture, as demonstrated by: 1. Students are required to 'show their work.' 2. Grading practices are focused on lack of knowledge. 3. Language acquisition is equated with mathematical proficiency. The proposed California framework continues: 'These common practices that perpetuate white supremacy culture create and sustain institutional and systemic barriers to equity for black, latinx, and multilingual students. In order to dismantle these barriers, we must identify what it means to be an antiracist' " (California Weighs 'Equitable Math': Goal Of Obtaining Correct Answer Is Racist by Susan Berry). A blackwater river is a slow moving stream which flows through forests and swamps. As vegetation in the surroundings decays, tannins leach into the river water and make it darkly stained. The dark flowing rivers of tribal politics, fed by the primitive swamplands of Marxist, neoMarxist and national socialist religions, have sullied Western science in the collapsing hours of civilization.

RED BRAWLERS ATTACK THE PRESS

Weimar Germany. The nation's major cities are under attack by red combatants. In the Ruhr region, 50,000 people form a Red Army and seize control. In Berlin, communist street violence and house to house fighting engulf the city in flames, and the famed Alexanderplatz is reduced to smoke and rubble. In Munich, reds take over the Bavarian government and set up a Bavarian Soviet Republic. Students of history have observed the hot glowing bodies of red violence rise up once again and roar through through the streets and cities of the West today. They have observed the ignited gases of Marxist revolution cause a firestorm to rain down upon homes and neighborhoods and send civilized people running for their lives. They have observed a red attack on free speech and the organs of the press which has sent them back to the days of Weimar and given them nightmare visions of history repeating itself. They have issued their report on the reds' campaign to eradicate a free and independent press and to read it is to read what happens when the masses take over civilization and place the lawlessness of red agitators in charge. To read it is to be burned and scorched in the face by the political theories of red totalitarians intent upon overthrowing the shining legacies of the liberal Enlightenment in the name of the marginalized, the victimized and the oppressed. To read it is to read the program and manifesto of the latest voices of Marxist mobocracy, the latest versions of the religions of the reds, the latest promotions of tribalism and hatred in the form of gender, race and class politics, and to read a declaration of total war on the traditions and institutions of a free press. Blazing out of the streets of Weimar and exploding across the present age is the program and manifesto of today's reds, who deny what all civilized people affirm, the right of the press to operate without interference or censorship, and who affirm what all civilized people deny, the right of the state to own all communications media and control the flow of ideas and information in order to ensure lockstep conformity with the tenets of people's party line. The reds proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to assault journalists and expel them from communist protests. They proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to grab journalists' telephones and smash them to pieces. They proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to throw journalists into streets and spray them with mace. They proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to attack reporters who write stories exposing the deeds of violent, left wing radicals. They proclaim that a progressive society orders police to stand back when reporters are attacked by the reds. They proclaim that a progressive society orders newspapers to dismiss reporters who expose violence committed by Marxists and Muslims. They proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to tell journalists what stories they can and cannot cover and allows them to attack journalists who portray leftist violence in a negative light. They proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to attack journalists who expose the criminal activities of Antifa and Black Lives Matter activists. They proclaim that a progressive society ignores, downplays, defends and excuses leftist attacks on the news outlets. They proclaim that a progressive society prohibits newspapers from reporting on Marxist protest violence. They proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to attack editorialists who criticize the reds' plan to subvert the liberal democratic order. They proclaim that a progressive society sanctions violence against the anticommunist press in the name of fighting racism and fascism. They proclaim that a progressive society prohibits all information concerning acts of criminal violence committed by gender, race and class activists. They proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to confront reporters who cover violent communist demonstrations and kick them in the groin, pelt them with rocks, punch them with brass knuckles and send them to hospitals with brain hemorrhages. They proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to vandalize the houses of anticommunist reporters and kill their families. They proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to hunt down anticommunist reporters, pursue them wherever they go, give them no refuge anywhere, surround them in streets and homes, and gun them down in cold blood. They proclaim that a progressive society defends the free speech rights of reporters except reporters who report on communist street brutality and Antifa attacks on schools and offices. They proclaim that a progressive society allows mobs to attack noncommunist journalists in the streets, threaten them online and post photographs of them to alert red assassins. They proclaim that a progressive society exalts as heroes of the people black bloc hoodlums wearing balaclavas who maim members of the press. Look at the world of the reds today and see Antifa thugs seize freedom of the press and knock it down to the ground. See Antifa criminals conduct terror campaigns against journalists who tell the truth. See Antifa extremists commit acts of damage and destruction totaling millions of dollars in order to silence the voices of dissent. See Antifa militants injure and disable reporters who dare to expose them. See Antifa roughnecks physically attack those who unmask them. See Antifa hooligans intimidate media stations throughout the world. See Antifa violence make reporters unable to walk, eat, sleep or breathe. See Antifa aggression target the voices of the fourth estate who file reports without fear or favor. See Antifa beasts bomb newspapers into silence. See Antifa villains smash the cameras which pursue them. See Antifa bullies place news organizations under an existential threat. See Antifa revolutionaries imprison mind and conscience in the people's jail cells, spread communist anarchy through the streets, place neighborhoods, towns and cities in a state of siege, undermine the institutions of free inquiry and independent investigation, sacrifice truth and accuracy upon the altar of political correctness, establish censorship and suppression as the laws of the land, delete the ideas and opinions of those who cherish integrity in journalism, black out the media of unfettered communication, extinguish the lights of bold, courageous reportage, and lower the curtain on Western civilization: "As one member of the angry Antifa mob chasing Andy Ngo down a Portland, Oregon street tackled him to the ground just before midnight Friday, the journalist heard more approaching and was left with one thought, he told The Post: 'This is how I'm going to die. I hope they make it quick.' Ngo's crime, in the eyes of these criminals? Simply documenting what they do. As the feds focus on the supposed threat from right wing 'violent extremists,' Antifa goons continue their terrorism and multimillion dollar vandalism—and face no consequences for again assaulting the man working tirelessly to expose them. Independent reporter Ngo is one of the few brave enough to cover Antifa. He narrowly escaped Friday night when two others covering the unrest around the Justice Center showed up, distracting his attackers. Ngo sprinted to one of the few businesses not boarded up, a hotel. With wounds all over his body and a bloodied eyeball, he called 911 on his cell as the taunts came from outside. 'I can't wait for you to come out, Andy,' a woman screamed in live streamed footage. 'We're going to beat the fuck out of you.' Portland Antifa protesters already put Ngo in the hospital back in 2019. He's gotten many death threats since, and graffiti around town reads 'Kill Andy Ngo' and 'Murder Andy Ngo.' Since the latest attack, 'I've been unable to walk. I can't sleep. It's excruciatingly painful just to use the toilet,' the soft spoken son of Vietnamese immigrants told us. He finds it hard to put into words the psychological impact but refuses to let the mob beat him into silence. 'I'm staying on this beat,' he declared, adding it's more important than ever because local media outlets play by Antifa's rules, such as not using cameras to document the thugs' criminal behavior. Not Ngo: 'They view me as an existential threat because one of the things I do is when they get arrested, I look at county jail records.' He then stays up all night documenting their social media posts before they get a chance to delete them. Some outlets like to claim there's little evidence of Antifa presence at protests. But there is, and Ngo collects it. Ngo sees no way Antifa can achieve its goal of destabilizing the entire country. But it still terrorizes towns like Portland, where politicians' cowardice can let anarchy flourish. Indeed, Portland police never charged anyone in the 2019 attack, and nearly a week after this latest one, Ngo still hasn't even heard from a detective. The media could use a lot more truth tellers like Andy Ngo. And the country could use a lot more officials paying attention to him." (Another Antifa Beating Won't Silence Truth Teller Andy Ngo, editorial, New York Post). Red tides are discolorations of sea surfaces caused by harmful algae blooms, concentrations of dangerous microorganisms and raw, untreated sewage. A rushing tide of red violence has swept across the West and is the harbinger of a fearsome and terrifying new regime. This is a regime of state media, state censorship and state propaganda set up by the reds upon the rubble of civilization.

BLACK HOLE IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC

The Devil's Triangle is a region in the North Atlantic Ocean where aircraft and ships have disappeared under mysterious circumstances. The most famous disappearance occurred on December 5, 1945, when Flight 19, a group of five United States Air Force torpedo bombers, vanished without a trace. In his record of the flight, the captain of the lost patrol stated: "We are entering white water, nothing seems right. We don't know where we are, the water is white, and there is no green." Students of history have located an area just south of and adjacent to the Devil's Triangle which they have observed as a true area of evil. They have observed in a region of the Americas, comprising the Caribbean Sea, its coasts and its islands, a bona fide field of moral corruption which serves as a paradigmatic example of what happens when savage cultures are allowed to rule untrammled and what happens when the West leaves the savage lands it has tamed and liberated. They have issued their report and to read it is to read about lands born in total darkness and lands which collapsed back into their darkness when the light brought by the West was banished under the pressure of red agitation at home. To read it is to read about the triumph of native religions and the religion of communism, a witches brew swirling with Santeria, Palo, Umbanda, Brujeria, Hoodoo, Voodoo, Candomble, Qimbanda, Orisha, Xango de Recife, Xango do Nordeste, Comfa, Espiritismo, Sainte Daime, Obeah, Abakua, Kumina, Winti, Rastafari, Sanse and the people's red party political platforms, and their triumph over the traditions and institutions of the Enlightenment brought by the forward march of Western imperialism. To read it is to read a description of a spiritually dead body buried in moral filth which will never rise again because the West which gave it life, light, hope and humanity is spiritually dead and buried in moral filth, assassinated by its red masses, and will never rise again. The land of the Caribbean, the land which students of history have observed is another name for hell, another title for the abode of the dead whose terrifying tentacles have come out of Africa, is a land which worships Haile Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia, as the Second Coming of Jesus Christ. It is a land which proclaims that the world of physical objects is an illusion and reality is the mystical oneness of all things, called Jah. It is a land which worships the inherent violence of the African diaspora and condemns the freedom and law brought by the West as exploitative and oppressive. It is a land which worships Africa as Zion and the Promised Land and advocates the establishment of a system of black supremacy. It is a land whose people exalt the smoking of cannabis as a holy sacrament. It is a land whose people lock their hair in rope like strands braided with the dirt in the streets. It is a land whose people worship gods called orichas, offer them fruit, flowers, alcohol and sacrificed animals, and ask them with drums and chanting to communicate through special mediums. It is a land which projects the highest reality as a supernatural god Olodumare, who confers ache upon people which gives them the magic power to change existence and alter facts. It is a land whose people give offerings to the spirits of the dead and ask spirit channelers to contact them. It is a land whose people exalt diviners and decipherers of messages from the gods. It is a land whose people exalt priests and priestesses who organize drumming, singing and dancing sessions to encourage the spirits called iwa to possess the souls of the living. It is a land whose people practice magic and rituals with the supernatural Exus and Pombagiras spirits. It is a land whose people lie prostrate before the altars of witchcraft, black magic and the occult. It is a land filled with cults whose members commit child murders in obedience to the voices of spirit entities. It is a land whose people attend special meetings where they commune with dead friends and family. It is a land whose people believe that all matter possesses a spiritual essence. It is a land whose people believe that all things, animals, plants, rocks, rivers, weather systems, human handiwork and human language, are animated and alive. It is a land whose people believe they can interact with a spirit world through altered states of consciousness. It is a land whose people conduct special ceremonies involving singing, dancing and silent concentration in order to contact the secret spirit realm.

It is a land whose people fall into trances during which their minds are removed from their bodies. It is a land whose people stand in a circle, hold hands, walk counterclockwise, chant, breathe heavily, beat the floor with their feet, swing their arms wildly, and fall into a state of mental absence during which they contact occult forces for solutions to all their problems. It is a land whose people proclaim they can generate the divine within themselves by the use of hallucinogenic drugs, and the path to true reality, beyond the illusion of physical objects, lies aboard chemical airplane flights fueled by peyote, psilocybin, magic mushrooms and Mexican morning glory. It is a land whose people have outlawed freedom of work, enterprise, speech and expression and enshrined communism in their statutes, constitutions and national consciousness. Look at the world of the Caribbeans and see a maelstrom of horror without cessation and a cascade of evil without mitigation. See a freak show screaming with the morally deformed and the intellectually undeveloped. See swarms of vultures descend upon decayed societies. See a whirlpool of crises, emergencies, lawlessness and insecurity. See tensions and conflicts escalate into civil wars. See violent gangs with murder in their souls stalk the streets and spare no man, woman or child alive. See people who shun care, sustenance and shelter descend joyfully into the arms of disease, destitution and squalor. See political disruption exalted as a way of life and earthquakes of war thunder across towns and cities. See human rights rendered null and void and the rule of law assassinated by fraudulent presidential elections. See networks of criminals rain down hurricanes of cruelty and hailstorms of terror. See constitutions shredded, parliaments shut down and courts packed with rogues. See economic conditions deteriorate into grinding poverty and hand to mouth existence. See floods of savagery pollute the free waters of the Western Hemisphere. See outbreaks of brutality spill blood into homes, schools and offices. See epidemics of anarchy place sirens of fear atop street signs and lampposts. See skeletal forms without food, clothing, blankets or clean water ride the horses of an apocalypse. See currents of nihilistic mobocracy, storms of primitive tribalism, and hordes of hoodlums spreading death and destruction lower the curtain on human existence: "The Caribbean nation of Haiti has descended into chaos following the assassination Wednesday of its president. A political crisis that developed over discussions about Jovenel Moise's tenure, unfavorable economic conditions, the COVID-19 pandemic and the country's increasing security problem stand out as the main reasons for the current instability. As Haiti nears a plebiscite for constitutional amendments and presidential and parliamentary elections to be held on Sept. 26 to alleviate the soaring tensions in the country, the public remains hesitant to go to the polls over security concerns. According to a report by the UN Children's Fund (UNICEF) released on June 15, nearly 8,500 women and children have left their homes over the past two weeks due to escalating tensions between deadly gangs in the capital Port-au-Prince. The report said people who had to abandon their homes took shelter in temporary places such as gyms and are in need of food, clean water, clothing and blankets. UN data also showed that approximately 14,000 people had to abandon their homes in the last nine months as gangs took control over some regions of the country. Pierre Esperance, executive director of the National Human Rights Defense Network, has expressed concern over the surge of violence and warned that the situation would deteriorate if Moise continued in his duties. Moise came to power after controversial presidential elections in Haiti in 2015. Haiti has endured decades of political upheaval, poverty and a devastating earthquake in 2010 and remains highly vulnerable to natural hazards--mainly hurricanes, floods and earthquakes." (Haiti Descends Into Chaos After Killing Of President by Nuri Aydin). Thousands of years ago, Satan gathered pools of blackness from the four corners of the earth and formed dark cultures and dark societies. He formed the savage tribes and slave states of Africa, and when he saw his handiwork and was pleased at what he saw, he reached out across the world and started his work anew. Looking for a beachhead for expansion through the Western Hemisphere, he chose a convenient and effective region in the North Atlantic situated on the Caribbean tectonic plate. He chose a region containing 700 islands, islets, reefs and cays and occupying a quarter of a million square kilometers. On these pieces of land, he planted peoples and cultures deeply stained with dirt. He moved the reds in the West to effect the withdrawal of European and American colonizers and imperialists from these lands. Through these acts of red treachery by which the West abandoned its moral idealism and its sacred civilizing mission, Satan ensured that the region which lies southeast of the Gulf of Mexico, southeast of the North American mainland, east of Central America, and north of South America would nevermore see the light of day.

THE PARIS CLIMATE ACCORDS: REDS EXPROPRIATE THE WEST

After his victory in 1066, William the Conqueror seized all the land in England. He granted fiefs to landholders, who payed him fees and provided military service to him. During the Hundred Years War in the fourteenth century, Edward III used the Crown's right to seize property for the royal household to conduct massive expropriations. This tyranny was finally abolished by the Magna Carta, which required just cause and just compensation for expropriations, and over the ensuing centuries, the right to private property, the foundation of a free society, was preserved, protected and respected by English law. Students of history have observed the monster of dispossession rear its ugly head and grow to gargantuan proportions, far greater than anything previously imagined or thought imaginable, as if liberal England, the Age of Enlightenment and the free world of the West never existed, and never handed down their shining legacies to the people of the present day. Students of history have observed a tidal wave of public taking and mob politics crash into free societies and reduce them to smoke and rubble. They have observed the death of the West, as the West has been known, understood and defended for centuries by free people, at the hands of a red campaign of world revolution stoked and fueled by the masses next door. They have observed a thing of horror spring out of the pages of folklore and mythology, come alive and stalk the land, and enact an agenda held with terrifying tenacity by ordinary people. They have observed a frightening form of red populism breathe the fires of universal destruction, throw aside the march of human progress, cast it into the dustbin of cultural nonexistence, and declare total war against the modern world of freedom, capitalism, technological marvels and industrial mastery. They have issued their report on the depredations of this creature born of sick fantasies of primitive violence and to read it is to read about a cancer called popular culture and to see the end stage development of a society in which the masses are included in the political process, are allowed to put their pathologies of envy and discontent into terrifying practice, and allowed to tear down the ramparts of advanced civilization. To read it is to read the program and manifesto of the latest iteration of the masses' communism and to read what happens when mass moral malfunctioning is allowed to proceed unchecked and unchallenged and to compose the closing chapter of the story of mankind. This closing chapter is entitled the Paris Climate Accords and the aims, ideals, plans and policies of these accords form the definition of disgrace because planted on the soil of the West, on the soil of a culture which gave the world freedom, progress and unprecedented feats of human flourishing. Written down with the dark stylus of the masses'

red treachery against their homelands, this program proclaims that a progressive society transfers wealth from the producing classes of the West into the hands of nonWestern masses. It proclaims that a progressive society has expropriated the wealth of the West in the name of justice and equality for the world's poor. It proclaims that a progressive society condemns industrial civilization as an engine of greenhouse gases and climate change and prohibits factories, farms, ships, airplanes and automobiles in order to save the planet. It proclaims that a progressive society demands that the nations of the West, and no other nations, set targets for reducing carbon emissions and bring down global temperatures to preindustrial levels, while it allows nonWestern nations such as China to increase their carbon emissions and build coal fired power plants without limit. It proclaims that a progressive society demands that industrial civilization is the cause of climate catastrophe. It proclaims that industrial civilization has caused killer hurricanes, scorching droughts, raging wildfires, massive river floods, rising sea levels, the melting of polar ice caps, and the swamping of coastal towns, cities and islands. It proclaims that a progressive society exacts hundreds of billions of dollars every year from the West and gives this money to the nonWestern world as compensation for the environmental damage committed by Western industry by its sin of carbon emissions. It proclaims that a progressive society exacts hundreds of billions of dollars every year from the West to avert the apocalypse and advance the agenda of green politics and build sun, wind and water power across the nonWestern world. It proclaims that a progressive society has shut off the currents of electricity, heat, light, and all the things which make life better, in order to avert an environmental doomsday brought by global warming. It proclaims that a progressive society has banned the use of jet aircraft and forced people to travel by boats and bicycles in order to battle climate change. It proclaims that human material progress has caused a climate catastrophe of global proportions and must be halted forever. Look at the world of radical environmentalism and see empirical science sacrificed upon the altar of mass hysteria. See constitutional rights fed through the shredding machines of social regulation and state administration. See economic growth brought to a standstill in the name of environmental justice. See economic output contracted to zero in the name of climate protection. See business investments made under the lash of green political agendas. See the manufacturing of unproductive and inefficient energy technology advanced in the name of reducing atmospheric carbon dioxide. See the wheels of industry and progress set in reverse in pursuit of Clean Power Plans. See taxpayers forced to subsidize forms of energy generation unfit for modern industrial civilization and to dig their own graves during the collapsing hours of the West: "The Paris climate agreement was deeply flawed from its start. It was legally and constitutionally suspect, based on politics rather than science, and contained unrealistic goals. It promised not only a dramatic expansion of the administrative state and a huge increase in the regulatory burden on American businesses, it threatened to put the brakes on US economic output at a time when most economists think the US will struggle to achieve even a meager two percent growth. It's likely that it was already acting as a drag on the U.S. economy. After President Barack Obama unofficially committed the US to the Paris agreement, businesses began preparing for its impact. Knowing that it would diminish US economic output, businesses invested less and directed more investment toward less productive technology to meet the climate deal's mandates. Banks and financiers withdrew capital from sectors expected to suffer under the climate deal and pushed it toward those expected to benefit. A classic example of regulation driven malinvestment. The Paris climate agreement was adopted on December 12, 2015 at the conclusion of the United Nation's Climate Change Conference. Parties to the agreement are expected to begin taking measures to reduce emissions in 2020, mainly by enacting rules that sharply reduce carbon emissions. Countries are supposed to publicly announce 'Intended Nationally Determined Contributions' to combat climate change and periodically report on their progress." (Every Bad Thing We Will Avoid By Rejecting The Paris Climate Accords by John Carney). In their war against modern progress and civilization, today's environmentalist reds have ignored and denied the facts of reality. Fact: carbon levels in the atmosphere are lower today than at any time in the history of life. Fact: global temperatures during the present 2.5 million year long Pleistocene Ice Age are colder than they have been during the past 250 million years. Fact: carbon is the basis for all life and carbon in the oceans was where life originated. Fact: increases in carbon emissions have caused a greening of the planet and the spreading of trees. Fact: during the past 150 million years, carbon levels in the atmosphere have declined to such an extent that plants have been threatened with starvation. Fact: increased carbon emissions have reversed this trend and saved the flora of the planet. Sacrificing facts and evidence upon the altars of a new religion whose doctrine is hatred of human progress, today's environmentalist reds have constructed a narrative. It is a narrative of climate cataclysm produced by man made carbon emissions and it is shouted from rooftops throughout the world. It is shouted by mobs demanding an end to fossil fuels, the deprivation of the possessions and prosperity of the West, and the abolition of human life.

RED PORNOGRAPHERS CROWD THE NIGHTSTAND

Julius Streicher was the founder and publisher of Der Stuermer, an antisemitic newspaper and major element of the national socialist hate machine. The contents of the paper plumbed the depths of corruption and depravity and depicted Jews with exaggerated facial features. Jews with misshapen bodies, Jews as practitioners of ritual murder, Jews as killers of children who sacrifice their bodies and drink their blood, and Jews as perpetrators of bizarre sex crimes and violators of the innocent. Students of history have observed a specter stalk the corridors of the present day and have recoiled in horror and fear at what they have observed. They have observed the specter of Julius Streicher spreading hate across the world once again, but hate repackaged in its original form, in the form which inspired Streicher himself in his propaganda crusade, a form without which there would have been no Julius Streicher and no culmination of national socialist politics in the extermination of the Jews. They have observed the original Julius Streicher, Karl Marx, come alive and lead a campaign to attack, slander, dehumanize and demonize the favorite hate object of the masses everywhere and in all ages, the class of intelligent, achieving and successful people, a campaign which will culminate and has culminated in the extermination of this class. They have observed Marx lead a band of his followers on further campaigns of hatred and extermination. Evolving from Marx's class politics, these are campaigns of race hatred and gender hatred and seek the extermination of the class of successful, white, nontransgender males. Students of history have observed Marxism and its latter day offshoots and derivatives close in on free societies and lead a revolution of tribalism which has renounced the legacies of the Enlightenment and brought about the collapse of civilization. They have issued their report on the triumph of a triple headed neoMarxist monster breathing the fires of gender, race and class politics and to read it is to read the program and manifesto of a moral disease endemic in the masses. This is the disease of mysticism, irrationalism, envy, jealousy, frustration and discontent, a disease whose symptoms comprise all the bad, evil and negative possibilities inherent in the human soul, and a disease which reduces human beings to the level of dangerous, predatory, bloodthirsty animals whose only goal is the destruction of rational human order and the establishment of collectivist swamplands and totalitarian tyrannies in their place. Placed upon the throne of absolute power by the masses who now control the West in its final stages of development, this program and manifesto consists of a series of points and items which expose the true character of mass democracy and populist culture in all their sordidness and squalor. This program proclaims that a progressive society is ruled by democratic socialists, social activists and community organizers who have sentenced liberty to hang in the public square. It proclaims that a progressive society is ruled by Antifa, the Squad and Black Lives Matter which promote communist slavery and the reversion to primitivism in the name of economic justice, racial justice, gender justice and environmental justice. It proclaims that a progressive society is ruled by the tenets of critical race theory. According to this theory, people and institutions must be analyzed through the prism of race, the institutions of freedom must be rejected on the grounds that they are racist, white people must be rejected on the same grounds, and both whites and capitalism must be swept away by a revolution of black communist power. This program of the reds proclaims that the capitalist system is unjust, inequitable, racist, sexist, materialist, colonialist, imperialist and destructive to the environment. It proclaims that a progressive society conducts campaigns of red indoctrination and red propaganda, demands red conformity and red compliance, and crushes the voices of liberal dissent with the hammers of red repression and red cancellation. It proclaims that a progressive society destroys the reputations and careers of those who support Donald Trump and his policies of free market capitalism and liberal individualism, and censors and bans them from the pages of social media. It proclaims that a progressive society has eliminated academic freedom and intellectual interchange in education in the name of achieving gender, race and class consciousness among students and professors. It proclaims that a progressive society has taken down memorials to Abraham Lincoln, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson and Winston Churchill, and expunged Mark Twain, William Shakespeare, Geoffrey Chaucer, Dr Seuss and Walt Disney cartoons, as hated symbols, one and all, of the capitalist system. It proclaims that a progressive society has banned the use of gender pronouns and replaced them with nongender descriptors out of fear of offending the enlightened majority which recognizes that gender is an unreal social construct. It proclaims that gender has nothing whatever to do with the facts of reality, with the existence of genes and chromosomes, and can be changed by chemical and surgical means. It proclaims that a progressive society is a workers' paradise which has killed and impoverished hundreds of millions of people in the name of the proletariat. It proclaims that a progressive society has led an army of angry radicals to stage a people's revolution and turn back the technological and industrial advances of the modern world. It proclaims that muscular labor alone creates wealth and those who work with their minds, skills, knowledge and know how perform no work at all and live off the proceeds created by the proletariat. It proclaims that entrepreneurship, capital investment, risk taking and sound management have nothing whatever to do with the process of wealth creation and the people of the mind who conduct these activities are exploiters and plunderers of the proletariat and must be expropriated and killed. It proclaims that a progressive society has enacted a grand social plan to subjugate the individual in the name of the collective. It proclaims that a progressive society engages in massive deficit spending, confiscatory taxation and the regulation of every aspect of human existence under the flags and banners of class war propaganda. It proclaims that a progressive society tolerates no competition of ideas or political parties on the ground that such threatens the lockstep unity achieved by the people's gender, race and class republic. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished an independent judiciary by packing its courts with far left ideologues. It proclaims that a progressive society gives billions of dollars in taxpayer funds to subsidize red unions and red political activists. It proclaims that a progressive society has dissolved its borders and encouraged massive illegal immigration in order to establish a controlling red demographic and consolidate a communist voting base. It proclaims that a progressive society has rejected liberal friendship, association and comity among nations and given tribal hordes social, political and governmental power throughout the world. It proclaims that a progressive society has launched a campaign to destroy Donald Trump and the voices of freedom which support him through endless volleys of slanders, impeachments, conspiracy theories, criminal investigations and congressional investigations. It proclaims that capitalism is systemically racist. It proclaims that law enforcement is the scourge of the white man. It proclaims that a progressive society encourages campaigns of murder, arson and looting in the name of Marxism and black power. It proclaims that a progressive society has slashed the budgets of the police, defunded the police and dissolved the police in order to protect the rights of blacks and the working class. It proclaims that a progressive society pays the bail of black rioters, sets them free immediately, and allows them to commit crimes with impunity. It proclaims that a progressive society has declared total war on the male population and weaponized the legal system to imprison them on charges of sexual assault, charges made years after the alleged incidents, charges made on the basis of mere accusations or masses of accusations without evidence of any kind, and charges made in the face of the fact that there had been post assault social relations between the accuser and the accused. Dirt is defined as unclean matter and science has identified four physical types. Dust is a powder formed from mineral matter. Grime is ingrained dust such as soot. Soil is a mixture of sand, clay and humus. Filth is foul matter such as animal waste. There is a fifth nonphysical type of dirt which is found in the moral sewers of society. It is generated from the need of the masses to belong to groups and to find identity, purpose, commonality, self worth and self esteem in social attachments. It is generated from the deformed character of mass psychology which creates an impulse to become a fanatical proponent of gender, race and class power. It is the moral dirt of Marxism and it has buried the West in the twenty first century.

POPPER'S ANTISCIENCE

A shipwreck is the wreckage of a ship located beached on land or sunken at the bottom of the sea. Shipwrecks are studied by scientists because they preserve important information. The wreckage of the Mary Rose of King Henry VIII revealed information about seafaring, warfare and life in the sixteenth century. Students of history have studied a shipwreck called Western Civilization which in the twenty first century has sunk to the bottom of the ocean of deceased societies, nations, states and cultures, and ascertained the character of the civilization and the causes of its decline. They have observed a civilization whose captain was Faust, German astronomer and necromancer, the subject of a drama by Goethe and a novel by Mann, a figure who sold his soul to the Devil in exchange for infinite will, power, feeling and experience, a symbol, preeminent among all symbols, of an exaltation of subjectivity which placed this Northern European, Germanic civilization at the farthest possible remove from the Southern European, Apollonian civilization of the Greeks and

Romans. Students of history have observed the causes of the decline to lie in the field of philosophy, for this study of the nature of reality, existence, thought and knowledge sets the course and direction for all human activities. They have identified Faust's philosophical deputies during the final hours of the West, the first mates who went down with the ship. Among the first mates they have identified and seen fit to study in detail was the most eminent philosopher of science in the last one hundred years of the culture. An author of highly influential books and articles, a winner of rare prizes and honors, and the recipient of a British knighthood, Karl Popper set the course and direction of science and a study of his thought is a study of Western Faustian science in its final stages of development and degeneration into a swampland of total subjectivity and an attack on science as known and understood by common sense for thousands of years. Students of history have issued their report on Popper and to read it is to read about a Faustian leader who helped to steer the ship of Western civilization into the icebergs of reason and sanity and send it racing, crashed, mangled and in ruins, into the netherworld of moral hell and damnation. Marching under the banners of the West, Faust and the rejection of Classical realism, Popper proclaims that progressive science rejects the method of induction, and proceeds by a series of guesses and conjectures which cannot be proven, justified or held with certainty to be true: "The way in which knowledge progresses, and especially our scientific knowledge, is by unjustified (and unjustifiable) anticipations, by guesses, by tentative solutions to our problems, by conjectures. These conjectures are controlled by criticism; that is, by attempted refutations, which include severely critical tests. They may survive these tests; but they can never be positively justified: they can be established neither as certainly true nor even as probable." (Conjectures And Refutations by Karl Popper). Popper proclaims that all statements about reality are refutable and none are absolutely true. Thus the statement that A is A and all things in the universe are as they are is not absolutely true: "Insofar as scientific statements refer to the world of experience, they must be refutable. Insofar as they are irrefutable, they do not refer to the world of experience." (The Open Society And Its Enemies by Karl Popper). Popper proclaims that we can never attain any certainty about reality, that the notion of certainty is a dangerous phantom and will o' the wisp, and that when attempting to speak about reality, we are trapped in the dark fields of meaninglessness and never know what we are talking about: "The quest for certainty is mistaken. Though we may seek for truth, we can never be quite certain that we have found it." (The Open Society And Its Enemies by Karl Popper). "No particular theory may ever be regarded as absolutely certain. No scientific theory is sacrosanct." (Objective Knowledge by Karl Popper). "Precision and certainty are false ideals. They are impossible to attain and therefore dangerously misleading. We never know what we are talking about." (The Unended Quest by Karl Popper). Popper proclaims that nothing can be defined or held to be anything. Definitions are arbitrary conventions and are not integral parts of science or thought: "Definitions do not play any very important part in science. Our scientific knowledge. remains entirely unaffected if we eliminate all definitions." (The Open Society And Its Enemies by Karl Popper). "Definitions never give any factual knowledge about nature or about the nature of things." (Conjectures And Refutations by Karl Popper). "Definitions are never really needed, and rarely of any use". (Realism And The Aim Of Science by Karl Popper) Popper proclaims that Hume decisively refuted the popular, common sense superstition that observations can be produce certainty about the world and inductive reasoning can lead to universal laws of reality: "Hume has shown that here is no argument of reason which permits an inference from one case to another, and I completely agree." (Objective Knowledge by Karl Popper). "Induction is myth which has been exploded by Hume. There is no rule of inductive inference--inference leading to theories or universal laws--ever proposed which can be taken seriously even for a minute." (The Unended Quest by Karl Popper). Popper proclaims that the act of perception is the perception of nothing in reality. Our perceptions are mechanisms of creation, modification, interpretation, shaping and formation and are not in any sense windows onto the world. Our perceptions are human constructions, human posits, human programs, human prejudices and human prescriptions and are completely unreal and subjective: "Kant was right that it is our intellect which imposes its laws--its ideas, its rules--upon the inarticulate mass of our sensations and thereby brings order to them. Classical epistemology, which takes our sense perceptions as given, as the data from which our theories have to be constructed by some process of induction, can only be described as preDarwinian. It fails to take account of the fact that the alleged data are adaptive reactions, and therefore interpretations which incorporate theories and prejudices and which, like theories, are impregnated with conjectural expectations. There can be no pure perception, no pure datum. There is no sense organ in which anticipatory theories are not genetically incorporated". (Objective Knowledge by Karl Popper). "There is no such thing as an unprejudiced observation." (The Unended Quest by Karl Popper). Popper proclaims that all true rationality is "critical rationality", which is to say, skeptical rationality, nonempirical rationality, noninductive rationality, noncertain rationality, subjective rationality, and no true form of rationality at all. Common sense shines its light upon Popper's philosophy and exposes its falsity and contradiction. If it is true that our senses are programmed, preset, predetermined and subjective, and not passive or neutral, then Popper's philosophy must itself be based upon programmed data, and can make no contact with reality. If perception is determined by something other than reality, then theories based upon perception are only relevant to the class of subjective perceivers and not to reality itself. If our theories are always incorporated into our perceptions, and there is no such thing as a theory free perception, then no series of perceptions could ever objectively confirm Popper's doctrine of theory laden perception. Popper's assertion that all knowledge is conjectural is a contradiction in terms. Knowledge is that which is justified, true and certain, while a conjecture is that which is formed on the basis of slight evidence, defective evidence or no evidence at all and is without proof. Knowledge and conjecture cannot be equated and are distinguished from each other. The assertion that all knowledge is conjectural is universal and affirmative in character and is a claim to knowledge, and is thus an assertion of that which it denies. The assertion that all theories about reality must be more than merely testable, but be falsifiable and refutable as well, is itself proclaimed to be a fixed, unchanging, unfalsifiable and irrefutable item of knowledge. Ancient savage cultures exalted the figures of shamans, voodooists, medicine men and witch doctors. They exalted their methods of guessing, conjecturing, internal deduction, rejection of absolute knowledge and total subjectivity. Faust's first mate on the final downward journey of the West, Karl Popper flooded its decks and cabins with the spirit of the past.

ARISTOTLE AND KANT ON MORALITY

The contrast between light and darkness has a long tradition of metaphorical use.

Symbolizing the dichotomy of good and evil, it appears in ancient Chinese and Persian cultures, in the Scandinavian gods Dagr and Nott, in the Greek gods Hemera and Nyx, and in the Pythagorean Table Of Opposites. Students of philosophy have seen in this image a fitting symbol of a profound duality present in the history of ethics. It is a duality which has arisen from the duality of two European cultures which stand opposed to each other in form and spirit as A is opposed to non A. Students of philosophy have seen in the contrast of light and darkness, good and evil, the contrast between the Southern European, Apollonian culture of the Greeks and Romans, and the Northern European, Germanic, Faustian culture of the West, and have seen in the field of ethics the contrast between the Greco-Roman morality of reason and the Western morality of the will. They have seen the essence of goodness and light reside in the Apollonian morality of rational human flourishing, and the essence of evil and darkness reside in the Faustian morality of animal license and expression. They have issued their report on the fundamental distinction between Classical and Western ethics and to read it is to read a study of contrasts like no other contrasts which exist, contrasts which define the meaning of the term, contrasts which demarcate the daylight world of human civilization from the dark maelstrom of barbarism which arose in the West and has engulfed the present day. To read this report is to read the story of two philosophers whose doctrines exemplify the gulf and chasm which separates Classical and Western ethics and exemplifies the difference between a human and savage social order. These two philosophers are Aristotle and Immanuel Kant and the story of their ethical systems provides a gateway into two worlds of mental health and mental illness which separate the universe of Apollonian reason from the universe of Faustian romanticism, and paints a terrifying warning and signpost of the Faustian doom of universal violence which will befall and has befallen the diseased, benighted culture of the West. According to Aristotle, all things which exist have a nature or essence, for to be is to be something. An existence without an identity is the definition of nothingness. The nature and essence of man is that of a rational animal, which is to say that man, in distinction to the animals, survives and flourishes by the use of his reason. The moral perfection of man thus resides in the highest and best use of his faculty of reason. It is a life in which one does initiate the use of force and aggression against one's rational comrades, and respects their rights and freedoms, but only initiates the use of force against those who have abandoned the counsels of reason and descended into the fever swamps of red ideologies, such as Marxism and its offshoots and derivatives, and have thereby declared themselves to be morally subhuman. Justice is just deserts, a state of proportionality, a situation in which people receive things in proportion to their rational merit and worth. The moral perfection of man is a function or activity and not an emotional state such as happiness. Animals can achieve happiness but cannot rationally flourish. A life of rational flourishing, distinctive to human beings, is its own reward and should be desired for its own sake. A person should lead a life of rational flourishing for the sake of rationally flourishing and not for the sake of achieving happiness. Listen to the words of Aristotle and hear him proclaim that every entity which exists is something; it possesses a unique function or activity; a defining nature or essence which determines the kind of thing it is. Hear him proclaim that morality is based upon the unique function, nature and essence of man or upon his unique means of survival. Hear him proclaim that a good man is one whose life is the performance of his unique function, activity or means of survival. Hear him proclaim that moral perfection, virtue and excellence, the truly human way of life, consists in the exercise of reason and in obedience to reason to the best and highest degree: "What is the function of man? For as the goodness and the excellence of a piper or a sculptor, or the practiser of any art, and generally of those who have any function or business to do, lies in that function, so man's good would seem to lie in his function, if he has one. But can we suppose that, while a carpenter and a cobbler has a function and a business of his own, man has no business and no function assigned him by nature? Nay, surely as his several members, eye and hand and foot, plainly have each his own function, so we must suppose that man also has some function over and above all these. Life evidently he has in common even with the plants, but we want that which is peculiar to him. We must exclude, therefore, the life of mere nutrition and growth. Next to this comes the life of sense; but this too he plainly shares with horses and cattle and all kinds of animals. There remains then the life whereby he acts—the life of his rational nature, with its two sides or divisions, one rational as obeying reason, the other rational as having and exercising reason. But as this expression is ambiguous, we must be understood to mean thereby the life that consists in the exercise of the faculties; for this seems to be more properly entitled to the name. The function of man, then, is exercise of his vital faculties on one side in obedience to reason, and on the other side with reason." (Nicomachean Ethics by Aristotle, Book I, Chapter 7). Racing forward one thousand years, the clock of history lands in the Germanic evening lands of Northern Europe and enters the house which Faust built. In this dark and diseased house whose bricks and mortar are the forces of the will, decision, arbitrariness and total subjectivity, the philosopher Kant sits down to transcribe the moral system propounded by his master, Faust. The philosopher writes that an action can only be right if the principle behind it is duty to a law performed without regard to consequences. He writes that an action can only be good if it arises from a sense of blind duty in the agent or duty which is heedless of any harm or injustice which may be committed. He writes that moral imperatives are categorical imperatives or imperatives which must be obeyed come what may. They are distinguished from hypothetical imperatives, which are imperatives which we must obey if we wish to achieve some end or good, for example, obeying the counsels of reason at all times and to the best and highest degree in order to lead a life of rational flourishing. The philosopher writes that moral imperatives act upon all people without regard to their rational interests or rational desires. He writes that there are no intrinsically good actions but only intrinsically good motivations and good intentions, and a good intention or motivation can transform an evil act into a good act, while a bad intention or motivation can transform a good act into an evil act. He writes that the good man does his duty and follows his orders, no matter what happens to anyone as a result, and though the heavens and earth may crumble and fall, and all manner of viciousness and cruelty be unleashed upon the world. He writes that one could commit mass murder with a good motivation or intention, which is obedience to the laws set by one's will, and such would justify the murders, while if one saved a man from being murdered and thereby prevented an injustice from taking place, but did so in disobedience to the laws set by one's will, this would make the act evil. He writes that the unrestrained, arbitrary will is the primary existent and highest reality in the universe: "It is impossible to think of anything at all in the world, or indeed even beyond it, that could be considered good without qualification except a good will." (Groundwork For The Metaphysics Of Morals by Immanuel Kant). Listen to the words of Kant and hear him proclaim that the truly moral will is pitiless, merciless, heartless and cruel in obedience to its categorical imperatives. Hear him proclaim that morality entails acting without consideration of consequences and without consideration of achieving an objectively virtuous life. Hear him compose Satan's unholy tablet of categorical Thou Shalts for the achievement of true morality which is blind obedience to the laws of the will: Thou Shalt Murder, Thou Shalt Steal, Thou Shalt Torture and Thou Shalt Terrorize. Hear him proclaim that the good person is irrational, willful, headstrong, volatile and, obeying the infallible psychotic voices emanating from within, is singlemindedly determined to lead a life of reckless romanticism and a life of violent crime: "The categorical imperative, not satisfied with proclaiming itself secretly omnipotent, proclaims itself openly ruthless. Kant expressly repudiated as unworthy of a virtuous will any consideration of happiness, or of consequences, either to oneself or to others. Give back, as time was bound to give back, a little flesh to this skeleton of duty, make it the voice not of a remote Mosaic decalogue, but of a rich temperament and a young life, and you will have sanctified beforehand every stubborn passion and every romantic crime. In the guise of an infallible conscience, before which nothing has a right to stand, egotism is launched upon its irresponsible career. (Egotism In German Philosophy by George Santayana). Over the past two thousand years, two cultures have appeared on European soil and brought into being two worlds, two cosmoses, two universes which face each other as mortal enemies. The legacies of Apollo's world, students of Aristotle leading lives of rational virtue, excellence, distinction and perfection, are nowhere to be found in the Faustian culture of the West. The legacies of Faust are the depredations committed by the students of Kant. These legacies are skyrocketing rates of crime and acts of terror committed by the Marxists, Mansons, McVeighs, Islamists, Jihadists, Antifas and Black Lives Matters riders of the present day. Mass murder committed in the name of the proletariat, libertarian politics, Allah and his Prophet, and black freedom and power have all taken place in the same general time period over the past fifty years. They thus possess a common denominator which has nothing whatever to do with the cries of Islam, the banners of liberal constitutionalism or the slogans of the working class. The perpetrators of these acts studied directly or indirectly at the academy of Kant; they are moved by categorical imperatives uttering the commands of psychosis; and they have drowned a collapsed civilization in rivers of blood.

COMMUNISTS BOMB COURT

The Red Army Faction was a Marxist terror organization in Germany founded in 1970. Over the course of three decades, it conducted a campaign of bombings, assassinations, kidnappings, bank robberies and shoot outs with the police and was responsible for the deaths of thirty one people. In 1998, a public letter, signed RAF and containing the group's notorious logo of an automatic weapon and a red star, declared that the group had dissolved. Students of history have beheld in America a phantom creature stalk the land and place free institutions under a shadow of doom. They have beheld the spirit of the Red Army Faction come back to life and continue the red campaign of subversion. They have beheld the fearsome Marxists who directed terror bombings across Germany return in spirit and soul and direct a campaign to blow up the United States Supreme Court and put an end to the nation's system of judicial review and constitutional rights. They have beheld a plan to pack the court in order to produce decisions favorable to the reds in their quest to upend the indigenous Anglo-Saxon system of liberal freedom and establish on American soil an alien, foreign born system of totalitarian tyranny. They have issued their report on the red threat to an independent judiciary and the civil liberties which this judiciary is empowered to protect, and to read it is to read about the inevitable, destined, fated, end stage development of mass democracy. To read it is to read what happens when the masses take over society and seek to enforce their vision of utopia, a collectivist swampland, equalitarian morass and thundering engine of gender, race and class power in which individual rights and achievements have been outlawed forever, and sweep away the institutions, such as independent courts and liberal constitutions, which impede the realization of this evil vision. To read is to read the program and manifesto of an ascendant red majority embarked upon a mission of moral, political and legal destruction in a course of action designed to abolish that which the majority hates and fears most of all: an order in which individuals are free, are unchained to the chariots of social responsibility, are undefined by their membership in gender, race and class groups, and are allowed to lead a human way of life and to live, work and flourish for themselves. This program of violence against America's constitutionally mandated judicial system proclaims that a progressive society has eliminated an independent judiciary and all checks on the powers of the executive and legislative branches of government. It proclaims that a progressive society is an anticonstitutional republic governed by the political whims of the majority. It proclaims that a progressive society skews the Supreme Court's rulings by adding teams of communists to the court. It proclaims that a progressive society has reformed its judiciary by effecting a seizure of power by Marxists of the highest court in the land. It proclaims that a progressive society has replaced the Constitution's mandate of judicial review with a system of mob rule untethered to the rule of law. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished America's system of constitutional democracy and replaced it with a system of unlimited democracy which has placed freedom on the ballot and voted it away forever. It proclaims that a progressive society has transformed the Supreme Court into a red partisan assembly and political instrument of the president and Congress whose purpose is to facilitate the crushing of freedom. It proclaims that a progressive society has packed and politicized the Supreme Court in a campaign to achieve socialist objectives through the use of brute force. It proclaims that a progressive society has eliminated Supreme Court judges who base their decisions upon the plain meaning of the text as obstacles to the reds' crusade to transform the nation into a socialist grassland. It proclaims that a progressive society views the Constitution as a living document which does not say what it says, and instead creates group rights and privileges, sanctions gender, race and class empowerment, and establishes cradle to grave welfare entitlements. It proclaims that a progressive society has allowed the far left to seize control over the Supreme Court and repeal freedom of speech, freedom of enterprise and states' rights. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a government of people and not a government of laws, and subjected the Supreme Court to a process of red politicization which has installed red agitators and red propagandists on the bench. It proclaims that a progressive society has imposed strict term limits on judges who base constitutional interpretation upon logic and common sense and has eliminated judges who do not accept the authority, principles or policies of the people's Marxist movement. It proclaims that a progressive society has appointed red judges to the Supreme Court to balance out constitutionalist judges, has expelled constitutionalist judges, and has driven constitutionalist judges into oceans of oblivion. It proclaims that a progressive society has enlarged the number of red judges on the Supreme Court in order to make the court vote the way the majority wants it to vote. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a Supreme Court controlled by red politics in place of objective legal principles and has structurally altered the court by increasing membership to make an objective approach to the law a minority position. It proclaims that a progressive society has expanded the number of judges on the Supreme Court in order to achieve political outcomes congenial to gender, race and class interest groups. Look at the world of America's reds and see them agitate to pack the Supreme Court with ideologues masquerading as judges. See them demand that the federal court system become a rubber stamp for communist plans and policies. See them seek to replace judicial rulings with processes for making political decisions. See them proclaim that judges should be chosen and confirmed on the basis of their political sympathies and that only Marxist judges are qualified to serve on the bench. See them install gender, race and class configurations in place of solemn panels dedicated to upholding the principles of logic and language and defending the rule of law. See them proclaim that the American system of judicial independence, the model which free nations throughout the world have emulated and followed, is the enemy of the people's progressive system of mob rule and Marxist power politics and must be abolished. See them proclaim that political outcomes should be the determinants of Supreme Court decisions and ten centuries of rational, liberal, humane jurisprudence should be consigned to the dustbin of history: "Monday on Fox News Channel's America's Newsroom, Sen. Mike Lee (R-UT) slammed the push from Democrats to pack the US Supreme Court. Lee highlighted that President Joe Biden as a US Senator and the late Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg had come out against court packing. He added that the Supreme Court in its current state of nine justices is the 'central feature' of the Constitution that makes the system 'unique and very valuable.' 'I agree with what then Senator Biden said many decades ago when referring to FDR's plan to pack the Supreme Court of the United States as a boneheaded idea. I agree with the late Ruth Bader Ginsburg, who as a Supreme Court justice, said that it would also be a terrible move,' Lee stated. 'Look, there is good reason why we insulate the federal court system, which, despite its faults is, I believe, the best of its kind anywhere in the world because we insulate it from political decision making with the exception of process by which we choose and confirm them,' he continued. 'Once they are in place, they're insulated. They serve presumptive lifetime terms. But when you move to change the composition of the court, not because there aren't enough personnel to handle the job but in order to change the political outcome of the decisions they make, you're reversing that central feature in the Constitution that makes our court system unique and very valuable.' " (Mike Lee: Court Packing Would Reverse 'Central Feature' of Constitution That Makes Our System 'Valuable' by Trent Baker). In the twenty first century, the biggest election in human history took place. It was an election in which 180 million voters participated. It was held in America in every home, school, office, town, city and neighborhood in the land. Raising their hands and casting their ballots unanimously, the American people voted to end the legitimacy of the United States Supreme Court. They voted to abolish the Constitution's cardinal principle of separation of powers. They voted to repeal the individual rights and freedoms enshrined in the Constitution. They voted to politicize the Supreme Court and transform it into an institution which approves, authorizes and imprints the red politics of the majority. Nothing like this had ever been witnessed before: the spectacle of citizens of the mightiest fortress of civilization in history, the world's preeminent arsenal and stronghold of freedom, united in their contempt for civilization and in complete agreement about the necessity of dissolving it. Voting one hundred percent to lower the curtain on their constitutional government and the integrity of their Supreme Court, the American people have dug the grave of the West and closed the story of mankind.

SCHOOL BOARD REDS EXPEL GIFTED STUDENTS

M is a 1931 German thriller film about Hans Beckert, a serial killer of children. A timeless classic, the film centers on a massive, city wide manhunt for Beckert, conducted by the police assisted by the criminal underworld. Students of history have observed a rescreening of this film in schools across America and have recoiled in horror at the spectacle of child murderers active and operating among the people. They have observed that no manhunt is necessary this time to apprehend the culprits, for they are operating out in the open in official positions and have the full backing and support of the nation's cultural and political establishment and of the masses which give the establishment its marching orders. They have observed that cities across America have launched a campaign of child murder which, differing from the crime depicted in Fritz Lang's film, have targeted children's souls and not their bodies, and plumbed the depths of depravity accelerating in free fall below the darkness of Hans Beckert's transgressions. They have observed in a decision by Bill de Blasio, the mayor of the nation's premier city, to end programs for gifted, talented primary grade children, the triumph of red politics over rational, humane, justice based, meritocratic education. They have observed the satanic hands of the lowest kind of torturers imaginable, the torturers of the young, the defenseless and the innocent, sweep away the tables and chairs in classrooms reserved for intelligent students in order to make way for child delinquents and child scum and place them on tin thrones in the name of social and academic equality. They have issued their report on the takeover of America's school system by the reds and to read it is to read the program and manifesto of a movement of man hatred untrammelled by moral inhibitions of any kind, a movement, shocking the conscience of civilized people, which has sent young human beings, human beings below the age of puberty and below the age of majority, to their spiritual and psychological deaths in classrooms catering to the lowest common denominator, and has celebrated the mangled results under the banners of diversity, equity and inclusion. This fearsome and terrifying program launched by remorseless and sadistic child killers parading under communist flags proclaims that accelerated learning courses for intelligent students must be abolished because insufficient numbers of black and hispanic students qualify to enroll. It proclaims that the reason why black and hispanic students fail to qualify is not that they are indolent, unmotivated and unintelligent, and can perform better than they do perform, but that the advanced placement admissions tests are biased and tainted by systemic racism. It proclaims that a progressive school system punishes excellence by denying children the opportunity to enroll in special academic programs which mandate advancement by merit and not by race. It proclaims that it is unfair and inequitable that white and Asian students who work hard gain access to the highest performing schools while black and hispanic students who do not work hard remain in schools which are low performing. It proclaims that selective school admissions policies under which students are admitted solely on the basis of academic performance result in a racially segregated school system because black and hispanic students, who do not exhibit the same energy or commitment as white and Asian students, fail to be admitted, and this segregation is unfair. It proclaims that social justice is superior to individual justice because groups are superior to individuals, and social justice demands that schools renounce the traditional policy of encouraging students to achieve educational excellence because black and hispanic students are impervious to such encouragement, and should instead, out of fairness to blacks and hispanics, place all students, intelligent and unintelligent, into struggling schools. It proclaims that school programs for gifted children should not be offered in black or hispanic neighborhoods because no students qualify and the exclusion constitute unfair discrimination against these groups. It proclaims that a progressive school system refuses to admit high performing kindergarten students into separate classes for the gifted because the absence of black and hispanic students in these classes is an affront to the progressive principles of an egalitarian society. It proclaims that a progressive school system refuses to properly accommodate with separate classes students who require accelerated learning and consigns them to the swamplands of academic mediocrity in the name of racial justice for blacks and hispanics. It proclaims that allowing qualified gifted students to participate in accelerated learning programs while barring unqualified, nongifted students from participating is unequal and therefore unfair. It proclaims that a progressive school system suppresses excellence in learning in order to achieve the academic leveling and equal treatment for blacks and hispanics which are demanded by justice. Look at the world of America's reds and see a campaign by school administrators across the nation to ban educational excellence. See the elimination of advanced placement programs for students who work hard and strive to succeed. See the consignment of gifted students to regular classrooms filled with the unmotivated, the uninterested, the uninvolved and the ignorant. See the mental assassination of top students with the rifles of communist equalization. See the crucifixion of high performing students upon crosses of equality. See special education programs confined to the mentally handicapped and barred to the mentally advanced. See experts in red educational regimentation force academically advanced students to descend to the level of the lowest and most contemptibly ignorant students. See programs for high achieving students proclaimed to be unfair to students who do not do their homework, who do not pay attention in class, who do not apply themselves to their studies and who have no desire to expand their horizons. See high achievers punished for being high achievers and made to do penance by attending classes for the low achieving and the mediocre. See an educational achievement culture which rewards the best and the brightest and punishes the worst and the most benighted buried in red policies demanding the abolition of justice, achievement, academic education and human civilization in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion: "Parents whose kids excel in school need to be on guard. Leftist school administrators across the country--not just in New York City--are banning gifted programs in elementary and middle school and Advanced Placement courses in high school. Typically, without any notice to parents, an eighth grader's accelerated science class or a fifth grader's fast track math class is merged into the regular classroom. Top students lose out. They need accelerated programs every bit as much as children with learning challenges need special education. It's discrimination. The left is seizing on a newly published study of Ohio students from the Thomas B. Fordham Institute to call for banning gifted programs. The study, Ohio's Lost Einsteins, looks at what became of second and third grade students who were identified as high performers. By eighth grade, only 30% of black students, 39% of hispanic students and 34% of economically disadvantaged students in the group were still outstanding performers. Most had floundered. Washington Post education columnist Jay Mathews misreads the findings to argue that gifted programs are unproven and probably a waste of money. But many of the Ohio students labeled as high achievers were never placed in a gifted program. Fordham's experts actually recommend more students be tracked into such programs. The study also underscores the importance of helping gifted children early on overcome barriers to success. They may lack a place to study and, most importantly, an involved parent. Some parents don't insist their children do their homework, concentrate in class and aim for AP classes. These parents need guidance on buying into the educational achievement culture. Instead, school administrators are scapegoating gifted kids for the sake of equity. Boston suspended enrollment in its Advanced Work Classes program for fourth, fifth and six graders, citing the fact that the school district is 80% black and hispanic, but AWC enrollment is 70% white and Asian." (Democrats' Attack On Smart Kids by Betsy McCaughey). An old English chronicle from the Christian Dark Ages describes the practices of torture prevalent at the time: "They hanged them by the thumbs, or by the head, and hung fires on their feet. They put knotted strings about their heads and writhed them so that it went to the brain. Some they put in a chest that was short, and narrow, and shallow, and put sharp stones therein, and pressed the man therein so that they broke all his limbs." (The Anglo-Saxon Chronicle edited by Janet Bately). In the twenty first century, the torturers have returned with a vengeance and carried out Satan's present day commands. They have inflicted the worst kind of pain and suffering imaginable, the pain and suffering of the human soul, and have targeted the class of the captive and the powerless as their victims. Proclaiming that special education classes for high achieving students are racist, unjust and inequitable, the red torturers at work in schools across America today represent the distilled essence of evil and have inaugurated a new Dark Ages. Proclaiming that it is good for advanced students to be razed to the ground and incinerated in the charnel houses of social justice and egalitarian ideals, Satan's sadists marching under red flags have lowered the curtain on American education.

FEMINIST FREISLERS BUILD HANGMAN'S COURT

Roland Freisler was a judge under the Third Reich who served as president of the People's Court from 1942 to 1945. Under Freisler's domination, the court played a major role in the nazification of the nation's legal system. Belying its judicial trappings, the court functioned as an executive arm and terror weapon of the government and was a revolutionary tribunal rather than a bona fide court of law. In a hearing chamber decorated with swastika banners and a bust of Adolf Hitler behind his chair, Freisler opened each session with a national socialist salute from the bench. Rejecting notions of fairness and impartiality as bourgeois conventions, Freisler acted as prosecutor, judge and jury all in one. Students of history have been plunged into a nightmare which has caused them panic, terror, anguish and distress. They have prayed to Satan for mercy to let them wake up screaming but they know that the situation is as real as the tables and chairs in their offices, and know that it represents the inescapable, ineluctable, end stage development of the age in which they live. They have beheld the return of Freisler's courts and brand of judicial tyranny packaged in the form of feminist politics, and the weaponization of the law to advance the aims of a neoMarxist, neonational socialist, neoHitlerite hate movement which has substituted the male population for the capitalists and the Jews as the targets of total destruction. They have issued their report on the latest takeover of the legal system by the reds and to read it is to read a program and manifesto composed by twenty first century fuhrers and commissars dedicated to the subjugation of a gender group which they envy, fear, hate and loathe and wish to see deprived of all rights and freedoms. To read it is to read the latest version and latest logical evolution of Marxist identity politics set forth by a movement of gender tribalism which has commandeered the legal system to launch a Final Solution against men. Set forth by Hitler's children and Marx's grandchildren, by the feminist advocates and practitioners of blind loyalty to a biological category and blind hatred of the opposite category, this program consists of the following points and policies describing a frightening new control over the law wielded by the forces of violence and intimidation. It proclaims that men accused of sexual assault have no right to a fair trial or due process of law. It proclaims that the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution are not applicable to men accused of sexual assault. It proclaims that men accused of sexual assault have no right to protection from self incrimination. It proclaims that men accused of sexual assault can be convicted on the basis of uncharged accusations and the accusers who made them can serve as character witnesses against the accused. It proclaims that accusations of sexual assault constitute evidence of sexual assault and that men accused of sexual assault can be convicted on the basis of the testimony of the accuser or accusers and nothing else. It proclaims that a mass of accusations of sexual assault magically adds up to a mass of evidence of sexual assault, and that a series of probative zeros, a series of mere accusations without evidence, mysteriously and supernaturally adds up to the number one. It proclaims that in sexual assault cases, police and prosecutors have a right to force male defendants to incriminate themselves. It proclaims that violations of due process are necessary to ensure that men accused of sexual assault do not get away with their crimes. It proclaims that in cases of sexual assault in which the defendants are men, it is far better that innocent defendants suffer than that guilty defendants walk free. It proclaims that in sexual assault cases in which the defendants are men, due process rights are unimportant points of law and mere technicalities and adherence to them should not be allowed to prevent the conviction of the accused. It proclaims that in cases of sexual assault in the defendants are men, there is no such thing as a weak case and the defendants can be convicted on the basis of anything and everything, including their past criminal records, the word of the official complainant or complainants, and the word of accusers who have emerged out of the shadows, out of the distant past and out of the woodwork. It proclaims that in cases of sexual assault in which the defendants are men, prosecution offices which promise not to charge the defendants can violate their promises for political reasons and later bring charges. It proclaims that in sexual assault cases in which the defendants are men, prosecutors can first promise the defendants that nothing they say will be held against them and expose them to criminal punishment, and then when the defendants proceed to testify and incriminate themselves, the prosecutors can change their minds and use the defendants' testimony against them in a criminal prosecution. It proclaims that in cases of sexual assault in which the defendants are men, the only justice operative is the justice of the mob which is untrammelled by notions of due process of law. It proclaims that men accused of sexual assault can be convicted although there is a mountain of reasonable doubt concerning their guilt. It proclaims that in trials of men accused of sexual assault, the judge can prejudice the jury in order to ensure a conviction. It proclaims that in trials of men accused of sexual assault, the judge can expose the jury to defamatory media reports on the accused in order to ensure a conviction. It proclaims that in trials of men accused of sexual assault, verdicts can be neither factual nor fair, and can be factual and unfair, and men can be convicted even though they had consensual sexual relations with the accused after the alleged assault. It proclaims that men accused of sexual assault can be convicted even though the accusers maintained amicable relations with the accused extending for years after the alleged assaults, during which they asked the accused for jobs, favors and preferential treatment. It proclaims that men accused of sexual assault can be convicted even though the accusers swore their love and friendship for the accused for years after the alleged assaults. It proclaims that men can be convicted of sexual assault on the basis of unproven allegations, uncharged allegations and allegations which fall outside the statute of limitations. It proclaims that men accused of sexual assault can be convicted by the pressure of the feminist movement and by the force of public opinion. It proclaims that men who bestowed nonconsensual kisses on women are guilty of sexual assault. It proclaims that men who engage in nonconsensual touching of women without the use of force or violence are guilty of sexual assault. It proclaims that the act of improper touching of a woman is an act of sexual assault. It proclaims that the truth of a sexual assault accusation is determined by the demeanor of the accuser, the internal consistency of her accusations, and the circumstances surrounding the alleged assault, and is not determined on the basis of evidence of any kind. It proclaims that men can be convicted of sexual assault on the basis of unsubstantiated claims and hearsay. It proclaims that men who make sexual comments to women at the office which are deemed to be offensive are guilty of sexual assault. It proclaims that men who ask women at the office why they do not wear dresses are guilty of sexual assault. It proclaims that men who comment on the looks of women at the office are guilty of sexual assault. It proclaims that men who flirt with women at the office are guilty of sexual assault. It proclaims that men who fondle women at the office without the use of force or violence are guilty of sexual assault. It proclaims that a progressive society sets up special tip lines, email contacts, voice mailboxes and text message services for people to use who have information about men who engage in inappropriate looking and touching of women. It proclaims that women who voluntarily join sex cults, who voluntarily give to these cults nude photographs of themselves, who voluntarily call the head of these cults master and call themselves slaves, who voluntarily agree to ask the master permission about when they can go to sleep, what they can eat, how much they can eat and how many calories they can consume, who voluntarily agree to have sex with the head of the cult when he wants, and voluntarily agree to get branded with the initials of the head, are victims of sexual assault and the head must be put in jail for hundreds of years. It proclaims that in cases of sexual assault in which the defendants are men, there is no such thing as prosecutorial misconduct and any misdeeds committed by prosecutors, including lying to the court, tampering with evidence, suborning perjury and threatening people with criminal prosecution if they testify for the defense, are permissible if such help to ensure a conviction. The Sleep of Reason Produces Monsters is an aquatint created by Francisco Goya in 1799. The subject of this world famous print is the Enlightenment idea that in the absence of reason, all manner of evil and corruption prevail. Confined to prowl in darkness and obscurity when reason is placed in control of society, the monsters of Marxism have been unleashed in the present day. The feminist devil child of Marxism has consumed the Bill Cosbys, the Harvey Weinsteins, the Andrew Cuomos and the Keith Ranieres of the world and subjugated the male population.

REDS THROTTLE AMERICA

Sabotage is a deliberate action aimed at weakening a state through subversion, obstruction, disruption and destruction. Saboteurs typically conceal their identities in order to avoid punishment. One of the most notorious campaigns of sabotage was revealed in the Mitrokhin Archive, compiled by KGB archivist Vasil Mitrokhin, which revealed detailed Soviet plans of disinformation, propaganda, deception, destabilization and espionage aimed at Western nations. Students of history have beheld in the present day a nightmare which has reached out from the annals of red subversion and landed in the heart of the free world. They have beheld the worst imaginable dream come true, thoughts, images and sensations of the most monstrous evil see the light of day, in a campaign of sabotage conducted from the highest office of the land, in the supreme citadel of freedom and liberty, by the president of the United States, openly and brazenly and never once seeking to conceal his responsibility, and they have recoiled in horror at the terrifying reality which has assaulted them from all sides and knocked dazed them to the ground. They have issued their report on the campaign of sabotage initiated by Joe Biden and his Democrat Party and to read it is to see the latest stage of a hundred year movement of the reds to eradicate free institutions and the traditions of human flourishing handed down from the Enlightenment. To read it is to see the latest stage of this movement in a series of programs and policies designed to send the world's arsenal of freedom spiraling into crisis and emergency and to prepare the way for the onset of totalitarian tyranny. This report describes a supply chain crisis which has affected producers' and retailers' ability to maintain full stocks of food on shelves. It describes shelves which were filled with snacks, canned goods and pet foods presenting yawning spaces of emptiness. It describes a huge labor deficit caused by the disbursement of unemployment benefits, greater than private sector wages, by the federal government and Democrat controlled state governments. It describes food stores increasing wages in order to compete with unemployment benefits: "Competitive pay, helping provide our Crew members a wage and benefits package that we believe is one of the best in the retail grocery business, is the most meaningful investment we can make. When we can retain people who are aligned with our values and provide growth oriented career opportunities, we are investing in our community as well." (Natural Grocers Enacts Wage Increase by Russell Redman, quoting Kemper Isely). The report describes Democrat policies which pay workers more money than the labor market can afford, thereby creating inflation and increasing average food expenditures for families by 175 dollars per month. It describes Americans paying higher prices across the board in 2021 than in 2020 due to Joe Biden's five trillion dollar covid stimulus program. It describes prices for steaks and roasts increasing by twenty percent since 2020 and the price of bacon increasing by twenty percent. It describes a program of massive wealth redistribution promoted in the name of social justice. It describes a program of preferential treatment for women and nonwhites, and the rejection of equal opportunity and advancement by merit, advocated in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. It describes a withdrawal from Afghanistan which left hundreds of Americans and Afghan allies, together with billions of dollars of advanced military equipment, under the control of the Taliban. It describes hundreds of thousands of able bodied Americans who have dropped out of the labor force due to welfare disincentives to work. It describes the creation of an entitlement state which has established a right to medical care, college education and prekindergarten programs paid for by wealth extorted from the producing classes of society. It describes a cesspool of decadence which has established lifetime welfare benefits without work requirements of any kind. It describes inflation rates exceeding wage rates due to unbridled government spending, which has placed millions of fiat dollars into people's pockets. It describes the reversal of Trump administration policies which made America energy independent, the new power given to OPEC to set oil prices for Americans, and the resulting oil prices reaching record high levels. It describes a multitrillion dollar socialist spectacular called Build Back Better which will strangle businesses with taxes and regulations, initiate a tax and spend program designed to take freedom and responsibility away from the people, and abolish high paying jobs. It describes the imposition of a nationwide vaccine mandate on businesses, which has resulted in thousands of unvaccinated workers quitting their jobs or being dismissed. It describes the admission of millions of untested and unvaccinated illegal aliens into the country in the name of human rights. It describes increased federal financial payments, covering rental assistance, food stamps and 300 dollar monthly allowances per child, which will allow

American families to enjoy a life without effort or work. Look at America today and see consumer prices skyrocket into the stratosphere fueled by the reds' money presses. See the incomes of millions rendered null and void by the merciless tax imposed by government induced inflation. See the general level of prices ascending forever by the helium gases of welfare induced unemployment, creating a shortage of workers to move supplies to the market, and by the endlessly rolling creation of money, making the masses reckless, high spending, inflationary millionaires for a nanosecond before the fall. See the cost of living rising into infinity powered by the perpetual motion machines of artificial demand caused by massive public spending. See families victimized by the reds' creation of counterfeit money, plunged by the resulting price increases into abject penury, unable to earn enough money to purchase the basic necessities of life, and forced by to give up on flourishing and prospering in the manner in which human being ought to: "Over the past couple of months, Allison, a wife and mother of a toddler and teenager in Chicago, says she's been spending about $50 more each week on groceries to feed her family—and that's at a discount supermarket chain, Aldi's. 'I used to spend $70 a week, but all of sudden this summer, I noticed that I couldn't leave the store without spending at least $120,' said Allison, who works in education. Like millions of Americans whose income has not kept pace with inflation—up 5.3 percent in August compared with a year ago--Allison and her family are feeling the pinch of the rising cost of living and giving up some things just to make ends meet. Her family is scrimping now. 'There are no more splurges like going to Home Depot to buy an extra plant or eating out,' Allison said. Spurred by supply shortages and massive government spending, inflation has become an added tax on middle class Americans coming out of the COVID lockdowns." (Real Cost Of Inflation To Average American Household: An Extra $175 a month by Lisa Fickenscher). Look at America today and see a dark swampland of stagnation and inflation. See the Federal Reserve Bank print money by the billions and surpass the dreams of ancient alchemists. See this unchecked creation of unreal wealth lead to demand pull inflation. See the abolition of fossil fuels remove America as an exporter of petroleum and natural gas and lead to cost push inflation. See every sector of American society fall under the domination of red regimes embarked on a mission to plan and coordinate the abolition of constitutional rights and the American tradition of personal flourishing under the banners of freedom: "If it was just inflation affecting the United States, it would be 'manageable,' but instead a stagflation problem like the one that hit the nation in the 1970s is occurring under President Joe Biden, former White House trade adviser Peter Navarro told Newsmax on Saturday. Federal Reserve Chairman Jerome Powell is 'printing money,' Navarro told The Count. 'That's driving us to what we call demand pull inflation. But then at the same time, we have the pandemic, coupled with the effects of the Biden administration cracking down on fossil fuels, giving us what's called cost push inflation.' But during the Trump administration, 'we were the Saudi Arabia of natural gas,' Navarro said. "One of the great triumphs of President Trump was strategic dominance. The energy sector had the ability to export petroleum for the first time in fifty years.' " (Peter Navarro To Newsmax: Biden Brings 70s Style Stagflation by Sandy Fitzgerald). Strangulation is the compression of the neck which leads to death by depriving the brain of oxygen. There are three types of strangulation: hanging or suspension by a cord wound round the neck; ligature strangulation or strangulation with a garrotte; and manual strangulation or strangulation with the fingers. The free institutions of America have been attacked, asphyxiated and killed by a president and his party elected during the final hours of the West.

NATION MOURNS RED GENERAL

A wolf in sheep's clothing is an idiom which describes people who play a role contrary to their real character. Such people appear friendly and harmless but are in fact hostile and antagonistic. They are false teachers and contact with them is fraught with danger. The idiom comes from Aesop's Fables and is repeated in the Roman proverb: Under a sheep's skin there often hides a wolfish mind. Students of history have seen the latest illustration of this terrifying idiom in the career of Colin Powell, former United States Secretary of State, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and United States National Security Advisor, who died in 2021. They have observed a public figure who defeated the Iraqi Army of Saddam Hussein twice, in the Persian Gulf War in 1991 and the Iraq War in 2003, a public figure hailed as a heroic four star general and a fearless war hawk, lead a double life and advocate the ideals which he professed to oppose and fight against. They have observed the recipient of the Presidential Medal of Freedom, twice, the Congressional Gold Medal, the Presidential Citizens Medal, the Secretary of State Distinguished Service Medal and Secretary of Energy Distinguished Service Medal renounce the nation which he served and go over to the side of the enemy. They have observed the recipient of honorary degrees from colleges and universities across America, a national champion whose name appears on schools and higher institutions across the nation, advance an alien religion, an unAmerican religion, a religion of radical politics and welfare entitlements, which mocked and disgraced the honors bestowed upon him. They have observed an American statesman and military leader venerated from coast to coast, and given laudatory praise throughout the world, advocate the abolition of American constitutional government and the establishment of a socialist society in the name of progressive politics and human rights. They have issued their report and to read it is to read the program and manifesto of a highly decorated Benedict Arnold whose vision of his country was at variance with the vision he had sworn in his numerous oaths of service to uphold, the program of a national traitor who worked tirelessly for the cause of what civilized, law abiding, patriotic citizens can scarcely utter from their lips: the cause of communism in America. Composed with the hand of the Devil beneath the dark lights of the back stabber's soul, this program proclaims that those who oppose racist policies, racist diversity and preferential treatment given blacks are opposed to the spirit of Lincoln. It proclaims that a political party which is opposed to the dissolution of the nation's borders and to mass illegal immigration is not a party of Lincoln. It proclaims that Americans who are opposed to the tenets of red populism and global socialist engagement represent the scourge of white racism and ugly division exemplified by Donald Trump. It proclaims that Americans who opposed the storming of the Capital by concerned citizens, by decent Americans protesting a fraudulent election attested by credible eyewitnesses, sworn affidavits, public testimony, expert depositions, video footage, photographic stills, cyberinvestigations, analytical reports, and court ordered recounts gathered, delivered and produced from coast to coast, by outraged members of the nation who sought to halt the wheels of a government which had ceased to exist save in name, are mortal enemies of the people's progressive socialist republic and must be arrested, prosecuted and placed in jail for life. It proclaims that Donald Trump stands for everything to which progressive, socially conscious, globally minded Americans are opposed; he stands for the principles of freedom first, the constitution first, the individual first and America first; and in consequence, Trump must be evicted from the Republican Party, exiled from America, drummed out of the human race, blasted off the face of the planet and consigned to the deep spaces of cosmic nonexistence. It proclaims that progressive Americans have renounced the Republican Party of Donald Trump on the grounds that it champions the regressive principles of individual rights and constitutional government, and given their support to the Democrat Party of Barack Obama and Joe Biden and their plans to socialize, collectivize and communize America, and incinerate its free institutions by the heat of a fire breathing monster called gender, race and class politics. It proclaims that the rhetoric of limited government and constitutional rights is the rhetoric of white racism and vicious demagoguery and has no place in America. It proclaims that the values of social responsibility and service to the community are the values which are vital for America and insofar as the Republican Party under Donald Trump has rejected these values and championed the rights, freedoms and dignity of the individual in their place, it must be resoundingly rejected by the people and voted out of office in every state in the land. It proclaims that the defenders of human liberty and justice for the producing classes are political extremists who must be expunged from the parties and institutions of the people. Listen to the words of Colin Powell and hear him advocate universal health care socialism for America. Hear him advocate the confiscation of wealth from the producers to provide quality health care for the parasites. Hear him advocate a Soviet system of medicine to take care of the scum of society. Hear him proclaim that the American democratic system should enact a regime of communist health care and proudly show the world the red star unfurled across the nation. Hear him proclaim that the provision of health care to the poor is a massive social problem and the only solution to it is to steal money from the rich. Hear him proclaim that America should throw freedom to the winds and adopt the socialist health care systems established in Canada, Europe and Asia. Hear him proclaim that health care communism under whatever flag it is enacted, under Obamacare, the Affordable Care Act or other titles, represents a quantum leap forward for the cause of justice in America and should place the nation in the top ranks of Western communist states. Hear him proclaim that poor people who need money to pay for their health care should have the money stolen for them by the state and placed immediately into their pockets. Hear him proclaim that the mark of a truly developed nation is its ability to renounce all forms of personal responsibility and establish a communist system of welfare for the people. Hear him proclaim that redistributing wealth from the hands of the successful, the talented and the intelligent into the hands of the unsuccessful, the untalented and the unintelligent is the only way to address the health care crises afflicting the latter and is mandated by the principles of progressive politics and morality. Hear him proclaim that the forward and onward movement of politics in America demands that every man, woman and child in the nation fall under the dark net of a single payer, state payer, communist payer health care system, and that freedom of choice, liberty of the person and responsibility for oneself no longer be viewed as reasonable or respectable positions to hold: "Former Secretary of State and longtime Republican Colin Powell is calling for a universal health care solution in the US. 'We are a wealthy enough country with the capacity to make sure that every one of our fellow citizens has access to quality health care,' he said Thursday at a Seattle fundraiser for prostate cancer. 'Let's show the rest of the world what our democratic system is all about and how we take care of all of our citizens.' The retired four star general, a prostate cancer survivor, spoke at the Prostate Cancer Survivors Celebration Breakfast, organized by UW Medicine and the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center. Powell took the opportunity to share some of his own experiences and to publicly call for a health care solution similar to those in Canada, Japan and other countries that have a universal, single payer system. In the case of his own cancer diagnosis, he recovered, thanks to what he described as universal health care offered through the U.S. Military. 'I am not an expert in health care, or Obamacare, or the Affordable Care Act, or however you choose to describe it, but I do know this: I have benefited from that kind of universal health care in my 55 years of public life,' Powell said. 'And I don't see why we can't do what Europe is doing, what Canada is doing, what Korea is doing, what all these other places are doing.' He also shared a story about his wife, Alma, who recently had a serious health scare with three aneurysms and a blockage in an artery. Both he and his wife had swift, effective treatment and never had to fear whether they afford the care they needed, he said." (General Colin Powell Calls For Universal Health Care In The US by Valerie Bauman). On October 18, 2021, an American diplomat and decorated war hero died and began a descent. Colin Powell, Republican in name only, American in name only and freedom fighter in name only, started on his free fall into the depths of damnation to join a nation whose citizens now grieve for him.

VISUAL PERCEPTION: THE BASIS OF ALL KNOWLEDGE

In the Classical culture of the Greeks and Romans, light was viewed as a symbol of the enlightenment held to be derived from the perception of the world. Embodied in the god Apollo, light was the symbol of empirically derived knowledge and the recognition that in the absence of perception, there is only the darkness of ignorance. The empirical basis of all knowledge is proclaimed by Aristotle, who denies that human beings possess innate ideas and affirms that perception impresses knowledge upon the mind: "What the mind thinks must be in it in the same way that letters are on a tablet which bears no actual writing, and are present on the table only potentially. This is just what happens in the case of the mind." (On The Soul by Aristotle). Common sense has always affirmed the philosophy of empiricism that all knowledge of reality is derived by way of sense perception and cannot be derived by any other means. Common sense affirms that if something cannot be seen by some optical apparatus, natural or man made, by human eyes or by some technological device, then it does not exist. Common sense affirms that the view that though an alleged entity cannot be seen by anyone or by anything, it may nonetheless exist in some higher reality, rests upon the contradiction that man is blind when he sees and that an optical apparatus does not function when it functions. Affirming that man is blind only when he does not see, and that an optical apparatus does not function only when it malfunctions, common sense rejects the views of all the proponents of apriori ideas, from the Platonists to the Christians to the Kantians to the neoKantians. It affirms the fundamental tenets of human sanity, set forth by Aristotle and forming the basis of Classical culture: man perceives physical objects; physical objects are real; there is no knowledge of physical objects prior to the perception of physical objects; knowledge which is held to be derived prior to perception is subjective knowledge, because the innate forms would be implanted in consciousness as screens which the knower could never escape; and there is no supernatural, unperceivable reality which exists beyond the world of physical objects. Common sense affirms that the most fundamental laws of reality, the laws of noncontradiction which state that A is A, are derived from perception. Common sense affirms that this law cannot be known until it is at least perceived on a page and perceived as a symbolic, linguistic, alphabetic, algebraic or arithmetic identity. Common sense affirms that one cannot know that A is A before one has perceived it in some physical form, either in the form of letters, numerals or sentences, or perceived in physical objects. Common sense affirms that any denial of the validity of induction presents a contradiction in terms, because the denial is a conclusion from particular cases and instances and is itself an inductive inference. Located in a moral universe existing light years apart from Classical Apollonian culture is the present day culture of the West. What Apollo was to Classical culture, Faust is to the culture which emerged in Northern Europe in the German evening lands one thousand years ago. While Apollo symbolized the Classical philosophy of empirical knowledge, Faust symbolizes the Western philosophy of nonempirical, apriori knowledge. While Apollo symbolized placid noontime meadows on which silently stand Doric temples of light defined perception, Faust symbolizes midnight forests soaring and resounding with feeling, intuition, internal deduction and mystical revelation, which open out onto dark expanses of total ignorance, and proclaim them to represent the highest forms of human knowledge. Rejecting the Classical, common sense philosophy of empiricist sanity which views the mind as a blank tablet on which experience writes its message, the Faustian philosophy of apriorism is a program and manifesto of unmitigated mental illness which detaches the mind from reality and sends it descending in free fall through Satan's rungs of total psychosis. As different from Classical philosophy as darkness is from daylight, ignorance is from enlightenment, and schizophrenia is from psychic soundness, this program proclaims that the standard of truth is nonsensory in character and is purely intellectual or emotional. It proclaims that empirical proof and physical evidence are unnecessary to ascertain the basic truths about reality. It proclaims that reason is the sole and unique path to acquiring true knowledge. It proclaims that knowledge of necessary truths, such as the truths of logic, mathematics and the metaphysical foundations of science, are grasped by reason alone independently of man's senses. It proclaims that the existence of the physical world can be doubted but not the existence of one's own consciousness. It proclaims that this prior certainty of the existence of consciousness is the only certainty we can have. It proclaims that truths which can be recognized by the intellect alone, and gained without the aid of any sensory experience, are the only truths which can be known with certainty to exist. It proclaims that the process of acquiring truth is a process of pure contemplation and deduction. It proclaims that the only clear and distinct truths about reality are those which are grasped by means of feeling and intuition. Listen to an apriorist and hear him proclaim that knowledge of reality is derived from one's own mental nature and constitution without recourse to experience: "Among my ideas, some appear to be innate, some to be adventitious, and others to have been invented by me. My understanding of what a thing is, what truth is, and what thought is, seems to derive simply from my own nature. But my hearing a noise, as I do now, or seeing the sun, or feeling the fire, comes from things which are located outside me, or so I have hitherto judged. Lastly, sirens, hippogriffs and the like are my own invention." (Meditations On The First Philosophy by Rene Descartes). Listen to an apriorist and hear him proclaim that concepts are innate and produced independently of the actions of the senses. Hear him proclaim that the mind is a veined tablet whose stripes are inborn and congenital. Hear him proclaim that the process of thinking is a process of internal uncovering, inspection and deduction and has no relation to the observation of reality: "This is why I have taken as an illustration a block of veined marble, rather than a wholly uniform block or blank tablets, that is to say what is called tabula rasa in the language of the philosophers. For if the soul were like those blank tablets, truths would be in us in the same way as the figure of Hercules is in a block of marble, when the marble is completely indifferent whether it receives this or some other figure. But if there were veins in the stone which marked out the figure of Hercules rather than other figures, this stone would be more determined thereto, and

Hercules would be as it were in some manner innate in it, although labor would be needed to uncover the veins, and to clear them by polishing, and by cutting away what prevents them from appearing. It is in this way that ideas and truths are innate in us, like natural inclinations and dispositions, natural habits or potentialities, and not like activities." (New Essays On Human Understanding by G. W. F. Leibniz). Listen to an apriorist and hear him proclaim that concepts exist in the mind prior to all experience: "Since, then, the receptivity of the subject, its capacity to be affected by objects, must necessarily precede all perceptions of these objects, it can readily be understood how the form of all appearances can be given prior to all actual perceptions, and so exist in the mind apriori." (Critique Of Pure Reason by Immanuel Kant). Listen to an apriorist and hear him proclaim that knowledge is derived independently of all experience and is on that account completely subjective. Hear him proclaim that what is called reality is that which conforms to the forms and categories of consciousness and is completely unreal and that physical objects are man made creations: "Hitherto it has been assumed that all our knowledge must conform to objects. But all attempts to extend our knowledge of objects by establishing something in regard to them a priori, by means of concepts, have, on this assumption, ended in failure. We must therefore make trial whether we may not have more success in the tasks of metaphysics, if we suppose that objects must conform to our knowledge." (Critique Of Pure Reason by Immanuel Kant). A figure walks down a long, dark corridor lined with pictures. He stops to look at each picture and sees images of himself. This figure is Faust. The pictures he sees include those of Descartes, Leibniz, Kant, Hegel, Marx, Heidegger and Wittgenstein. Proclaiming that knowledge is a product of ideas, monads, forms, categories, absolute mind, class consciousness, human consciousness and language games which function independently of man's senses, these thinkers are Faust's field marshals. Reaching the end of the corridor, Faust looks out onto a vast, dark field. In the middle of the field, he sees a gravestone. It reads Western Civilization, 1000 AD to 2000 AD. Faust and the portraits he sees and the philosophies he produced are pulled as by a vortex into the depths of the grave.

SOVIET CITIES SPREAD ACROSS THE WORLD

Germany 1918. In the land of Saxony, encompassing the great cities of Dresden and Leipzig, a local communist council declares the establishment of a Soviet Republic. Beneath the fluttering flags of the Soviet Union, the reds unfurl a program of nationalization of industry and the seizure of private property. Germany 1919. Hundreds of thousands of armed communists descend on Berlin. Led by Wilhelm Liebknecht, they occupy train stations and the offices of the antired press. Assembling at police headquarters, they form an Interim Revolutionary Committee, launch a campaign of armed combat and seek to overthrow the government. In Bremen, communist councils proclaim a Soviet Republic. They seize bank accounts, arm workers and launch a general strike. Communists next march on Hamburg, Cuxhaven and Wilhelmshaven and demand the overthrow of the government. In Bavaria, communists seize control over the government and declare a Soviet Republic. They name Munich as their capital and make contact with the communist rulers of Russia. Students of history have observed the wheel of history move round and make the crimes of monsters come back to life. They have observed the wheel of time bring the resurgence of red control over the cities of the West. They have grasped the fundamental truth that so long as the mob remains in control of society, and mass democracy remains the ruling system of a nation, there will occur an eternal return of red power, and the collapse of civilization after civilization, hurled ignominiously into the dustbin of history. So this fate befell the world of Rome, which went up in a blazing inferno of Caesar's mobs, disorders, entitlements and the welfare state, and so it has befallen the present day, in which civilized life has disappeared in the smoke and rubble rained down by Marxist agitation and crusades launched in the name of gender, race and class. They have issued their report on a war which has engulfed mankind, a war blazing out from beachheads established in big cities, a war commenced by those who hate freedom and the blessings which freedom has brought forth: human flourishing and human achievement under the guidance of human intelligence and protected by the rule of law. To read it is to read a program and manifesto composed by the multitudes in a state of frenzy, a state of imbalance erupting from souls who envy their betters and superiors, and hate them with a passion which knows no bounds, and with flames of bitterness which cannot be quenched. Composed by the masses adrift on seas of immorality and tossing on waves of anarchy, this program proclaims that a progressive city allows mass shooting and gun violence so long as they are committed by nonwhites. It proclaims that a progressive city foments racial tensions and targets white neighborhoods for total destruction. It proclaims that a progressive city views racism as a problem only if it is manifested as hatred of blacks and not as hatred of whites. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of white racism and environmental catastrophe and must be abolished by every progressive city in the world. It proclaims that a progressive city has evicted the supporters of Donald Trump on the grounds that the cause of liberty runs afoul of populist demands of social responsibility. It proclaims that a progressive city is safe and clean for nonwhites but not for whites. It proclaims that a progressive city alleviates the poverty of nonwhites by allowing them to steal and loot from whites. It proclaims that a progressive city has smashed streets of peace and quiet with black hooded brotherhoods of communist hoodlums. It proclaims that a progressive city allows juvenile delinquents to steal occupied cars and torture and kill the drivers. It proclaims that a progressive city allows the Antifa network to spread terror and gives its members immunity from prosecution. It proclaims that a progressive city tolerates lawlessness as the norm and never the exception. It proclaims that a progressive city allows Marxists to gather and riot, to wear ballistic vest and carry guns, bats, shields and gas masks, and to assault every pedestrian and driver they see. It proclaims that a progressive city condemns as domestic terrorists parents who are opposed to the indoctrination of their children with the tenets of critical race theory, which assert that capitalism is a white man's system and must be criticized and eradicated along with the white race which supports it, and subjects these parents to criminal prosecution. It proclaims that a progressive city has fallen under the domination of fanatics, partisans and extremists for the cause of Islam and Marxism and has banished freedom and liberty from its precincts. It proclaims that a progressive society is a refuge and sanctuary for illegal immigrant hordes and international drug gangs. It proclaims that a progressive city is a no go area, a jungle which is dangerous and impossible for civilized people to inhabit, and provides aid and comfort to the voices of class war, race war, religious war and tribal separatism. Look at the world of the red city bosses and see them declare war on talented, gifted, hard working students. See them abolish accelerated learning programs on the grounds that they are racist. See them prevent intelligent students from advancing as far as they able to. See them compel academically accomplished students to remain in classrooms geared to the lowest common denominator of mediocrity and ignorance. See them deny the fact that children learn at different rates and that bright students deserve to learn in classrooms separate from ordinary students. See them deny the fact that students have different potentials and that students with high potentials have a right to grow and develop without having to associate with nonentities and nonachievers. See them expose conscientious students to the lowest moral and intellectual level of the classroom. See them exalt equal treatment to intelligent and unintelligent students as a policy of fairness and equity to unintelligent blacks and hispanics. See them condemn academic meritocracy as a lash of oppression against blacks and hispanics. See them condemn advanced placement programs for intelligent students as a racist, antiblack, antihispanic model of class organization. See them inject far left politics into educational administration and set forth policies of blind egalitarianism and academic leveling down. See them hijack departments of education and transform them into instruments for the sovietization of students and the consolidation of communism during the declining, dying and deceased days of Western civilization: "Mayor Bill de Blasio is phasing out New York City's Gifted and Talented program, he announced Friday—bowing to critics who assert that the coveted model is racist. Current students in the accelerated learning program can stay in their separate schools and classrooms to completion. But new cohorts will be completely eliminated by fall 2022, ending testing for kids as young as four. The model—which admits roughly 2,500 kids per year—is being replaced by Brilliant NYC, a program offering students aged 8 and up chances for accelerated learning while staying in their regular classrooms with other pupils. The Department of Education said teachers would identify kids best suited for the new initiative. De Blasio announced the major overhaul despite being in the final months of his term in office. The candidates to replace him, Democrat Eric Adams and Republican Curtis Sliwa, have both made clear they did not want to completely eliminate the program, which critics have attacked in part because of the higher number of white and Asian students that gain entry through the exam. 'Brilliant NYC will deliver accelerated instruction for tens of thousands of children, as opposed to a select few,' de Blasio said. 'Every New York City child deserves to reach their full potential, and this new, equitable model gives them that chance.' But critics quickly ripped Hizzoner for making the decision so late in his administration after earlier calls for him to leave it to his successor. 'This is utterly irresponsible and reprehensible,' state Senator John Liu (D-Queens) told The Post. 'This is the worst act I've seen under this mayor. And there have been many of them. The problem here is that the Gifted and Talented program has been part of city schools for a long time,' he said. 'The premise is that kids learn at different rates. Changing that policy should involve a full public discussion involving all stakeholders. Instead, he chose the easy way out—fiat in the waning days of his administration when they can't implement anything.'" (NYC To Phase Out Gifted And Talented Program by Selim Algar, Lee Brown and Carl Campanile). On June 6, 1944, Operation Overlord commenced with the Allied landing on Normandy beach. A position was established from which an attack was launched to liberate France and achieve Allied victory on the Western Front. In the twenty first century, the reds have launched a global operation to defeat liberal democracy. From San Francisco to New York to London to Berlin to Paris to Rome to Johannesburg, an axis of red power has descended and dotted the world with urban beachheads. Transforming densely settled places of human progress and habitation into focal points of monstrous, inhuman evil and regression, the reds have assembled an advancing and invading force to close the story of civilization.

THE REICHSTAG FIRE: VANGUARD OF RED TERROR

On February 27, 1933 at 9 PM in Berlin, the Reichstag building, home of the German parliament, was in blazes and the roar of the flames competed with the wail of sirens for control over the night air. The city's fire brigades had been called to the scene and were speeding on their way to extinguish an act of red terror and a signal for red revolution without precedent in the history of the nation. The incendiary caught at the scene of his crime, caught in flagrante delicti, caught clutching firelighters and caught reeking of gasoline, had placed two enemies in his sights. The first was the system of liberal democracy established by the Weimar Constitution and embodied in the Reichstag building. The second was the national socialists who had seized control over the government and dedicated themselves to the overthrow of liberal democracy and the eradication of the rival communists who like him also hated the system. By the time the fire was extinguished, the Reichstag's session chamber was gutted, the paneling was gone, the tribune was reduced to dust, the carvings were turned into ashes, the glass dome was shattered, and a new empty space offered an unimpeded view of the sky and the gathering clouds of a red campaign which would soon rain down terror upon the West. In a statement made to the police a week after his arson attack, Marinus van der Lubbe, member of the Communist Party of the Netherlands, the Communist Youth League of the Netherlands, the Group of International Communists and the communist underground in Germany, explained his actions and sought to justify his crime. To read it is to read the reds' declaration of war against free people and free institutions and their perfervid hatred of human civilization. To read it is to read about a person and a position at the forefront of a new development, acts of violence and terror directed against the heartlands of the West, a development which would generate tidal waves of death and destruction a few short years later aimed at societies and organizations across Europe and America and claim the lives of thousands. To read it is to read a program and manifesto of murder and mayhem committed in the pursuit of political aims which would serve as a plan, a model and a template for the faces of terror soon to stalk, engulf and set fire to the West. Composed by a monster of mental disorder whose visions of mass murder and universal destruction were given to him by Marx, and whose aspirations toward aggression and abnormality formed an inherent part of his master Marx's dark religion, this program is a series of rifle shots of red propaganda fired by a criminal who galloped into Marx's dystopia and found there his true voice and calling. It proclaims that a progressive society is led by leftists, proletarian gangsters and officials of the Communist Party. It proclaims that a progressive society is led by red shirted Hitlerites and radicalized workers. It proclaims that a progressive society is led by red totalitarians who lord over the people and control every aspect of their lives. It proclaims that the highest type of political motives are criminal motives because proletarian liberation is the liberation of haters, hooligans, miscreants and psychopaths from the constraints of law and morality. It proclaims that a progressive society leads a class struggle of the scum of the earth to storm the ramparts of order and civilization. It proclaims that the culmination of human progress is a state of war and danger fomented by socialists envious of high achievers, jealous of the talented and the successful, frustrated in liberal societies, unable to flourish when given freedom and liberty, and determined to sweep away the traditions and institutions which allow well adjusted people to grow and develop in a healthy, sound, vigorous manner. It proclaims that a progressive society oppresses the soldiers of liberty and compels the workers to labor for the state. It proclaims that a progressive society prohibits the people from deciding what they ought to do and how they ought to live their lives, and places every man, woman and child in an iron grip of subservience to a leviathan called Social Responsibility. It proclaims that a progressive society is carpeted with pamphlets printed by red parties peddling the poison of resentment and discontent of the lowest classes toward the prospering world around them. It proclaims that a progressive society is led by communist demonstrators seeking to defund, dismantle and dissolve the police. It proclaims that a progressive society is an exchange among idlers, an office for welfare parasites, and an organization for the empowerment of delinquents, vagrants, liars and boasters. It proclaims that a progressive society leads protests against the capitalist system and sponsors resolutions to extirpate freedom wherever and wherever freedom is found on earth. It proclaims that a progressive society grants impunity to the looters and vandals and dispenses the harshest treatment to those who seek to live honestly and earn their daily bread. It proclaims that a progressive society conducts campaigns of violence and intimidation against innocent people whose only crime is their desire to be let alone by the state and to live their lives as free private agents. It proclaims that a progressive society has detonated the bombs of revolution and spread the combustion of extremism across the towns, cities, offices, palaces and parliaments of the West and brought down a mantle of darkness upon the future of mankind: "At the outset, I must insist that my action was inspired by political motives. In Holland I read that the national socialists had come to power in Germany. I have always followed German politics with keen interest and I read all the articles I could get hold of on Bruning, Papen and Schleicher. When Hitler took over the government, I expected much enthusiasm for him but also much tension. I bought all the newspapers on this subject, and found that they were of my opinion. I myself am a leftist, and was a member of the Communist Party until 1929. What I did not like about the party is the way they lord it over the workers, instead of letting the workers decide for themselves. I side with the proletariat in the class struggle. Its own leaders must stand at the head. The masses themselves must decide what they ought to do and what they ought not to do. In Germany a National Coalition has now been formed, and I think it holds two dangers: (1) it oppresses the workers, and (2) it refuses to submit to other countries so that it is bound to lead to war. I watched on for a few days and then I decided to go to Germany and to see for myself. I made the decision without anyone else, and I came to Germany all by myself: Once here, I intended to observe how the National Coalition affects the workers and what the workers think about the National Coalition. I started in Dusseldorf, where I spoke to workers in the street. I did the same thing in other towns. In Berlin, I also studied the pamphlets of the various parties and then went to the Welfare Offices in Lichtenberg, Wedding, and Neukolln. I also went to the Labor Exchange, but it was closed because of the elections. I found out that whereas the National Coalition has complete freedom in Germany, the workers have not. Now, what the workers' organizations are doing is not likely to rouse the workers to the struggle for freedom. That is why I discussed better ways and means with the workers. The privileges which the national socialists enjoy today must also be enjoyed by the workers. That is the reason why I asked the workers to demonstrate. But all I was told was to take the matter to the party--the Communist Party. But I had heard that a communist demonstration was disbanded by the leaders on the approach of the police, and that the people listened to these leaders instead of carrying out their own resolutions. I realized then that the workers will do nothing by themselves, that they will do nothing against a system which grants freedom to one side and metes out oppression to the other. In my opinion something absolutely had to be done in protest against this system. Since the workers would do nothing, I had to do something by myself. I considered arson a suitable method. I did not wish to harm private people but something that belonged to the system itself: official buildings, the Welfare Office for example, for that is a building in which the workers come together, or the City Hall, because it is a building belonging to the system, and further the Palace, because it lies in the center of the city, and if it goes up, the huge flames can be seen from far away. When these three fires failed to come off, that is to say when my protest did not come off, I decided on the Reichstag as the center of the whole system." (The Reichstag Fire by Fritz Tobias). Students of geometry are taught that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line. Students of history have seen in this Euclidean principle a picture of cultural development. They have seen a point of evil blazing out from the Reichstag building in Berlin, and traced out a straight line, an undeviating line and a line traveling through historical time faster than the blink of an eye, which has crashed into the present day. Soaring down the corridors of history and arriving in a flash from the conflagration in Berlin, the today's forces of red terror, today's faces of evil marked Islamo-Marxism, Islamo-fascism, Islamo-communism and Islamo-national socialism, have devastated the land and soul of civilization.

REDS PEDDLE JEW HATRED

In ancient Greek mythology, a person who was resurrected from the dead became immortal. After being killed, Achilles was taken from his funeral pyre by his divine mother, was resurrected, and lived immortally in the Elysian Fields. Students of history have beheld a monster come back to life and an act of resurrection so terrifying that they can scarcely look it in the face. They have beheld the hideous creature of Jew hatred, first slain with the fall of the Third Reich, return to social and political existence and spread its murderous wings across the face of the earth. They have beheld the Marxists in Russia continue where the national socialists in Germany were halted. They have beheld the communist rulers of Russia renew Hitler's campaign to extirpate the Jews, and the legacies of the Western liberal enlightenment which the Jews were held to symbolize, and establish a black gospel of antisemitism as the official orthodoxy governing a global communist slave empire and its fellow travelers in the West. They have beheld the story of postHitler antisemitism commence in the late 1940s under Joseph Stalin. After its founding in 1948, Israel aligned itself with America and the West. In consequence, Stalin rejected Israel's right to exist and condemned the two million Jews living in Russia as a "capitalist fifth column" and instrument of "bourgeois nationalism" which had to be exterminated. He condemned Jews as "rootless cosmopolitans", a communist code phrase for capitalists. In 1952, Stalin launched the Night of the Murdered Poets, which saw the execution of thirteen Jewish poets on false charges of espionage and treason. In 1951, Stalin fabricated the Doctor's Plot and launched a nationwide campaign of antisemitism which lasted until his death in 1953. He accused Jewish doctors in Moscow of conspiracy to assassinate Soviet leaders. The doctors were dismissed from their posts, arrested, tortured to produce confessions, and executed. The deportation of the Jewish population to the Gulag and its liquidation were planned. The foreign policy of the communist bloc up to the fall of communism rejected Israel's right to exist and condemned Israel and Zionism as racist because proWestern and capitalist. The reds' campaign of Jew hatred, a repackaged form of class war and war against the West, has continued unabated up to the present day. Forming a coalition with the forces of Islam, today's Marxists have set forth a program and manifesto of Jew hatred which has revived the Third Reich's campaign and sought to reenact Hitler's Final Solution on a worldwide basis. Giving life, strength and energy to a frightening being of the night, once thought defeated, which seeks to bring down death and destruction to Israel and Jews, this program proclaims that blacks, Islamists and Palestinians must join together in a campaign to defame, intimidate and attack their common enemy, the Jews. It proclaims that a progressive society is a far left society which has launched a crusade to push Israel and Zionism into the sea. It proclaims that a progressive society is an alliance of black supremacists, Muslim supremacists, Palestinian supremacists and Marxist supremacists to eliminate the Jews. It proclaims that a progressive society is a Marxist society which recognizes that an integral component of Marxism is antisemitism because the Jews are the capitalist enemies of the working class. It proclaims that Israel is a colonial state, a racist state and a Western imperialist state which must be eradicated so that the mortal enemy of nonwhites, Muslims and the working class, the system of freedom and liberty, is banished from its distant outpost in the Middle East. It proclaims that a progressive society is a Hamas organization which is dedicated to the murder of the Jews throughout the world. It proclaims that a progressive society has organized a Boycott, Disinvestment and Sanctions campaign against Israel in order to cripple the capitalist state. It proclaims that a progressive society is a Muslim Brotherhood dedicated to the rollback of European political and cultural achievements from the Middle East, exemplified in the state of Israel. It proclaims that a progressive society is the mortal enemy of Western culture and its embodiment in Israel, and has launched a campaign to eradicate Israel and Zionism in the name of Islam, Jihad and the international working class. It proclaims that the annihilation of Israel and the Jews alone will satisfy the demands of the proletariat, nonwhites, Arabs and Palestinians for justice. It proclaims that a progressive society has established Jew hatred as an official religion and broadcast it from its media, schools, mosques and parliaments. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes antisemitism and violence against Jews in the name of the oppressed and the victimized whose names are Arabs, Muslims, Palestinians, blacks, hispanics and the toiling masses. It proclaims that a progressive society has organized its students and professors in a campaign to ensure that opposition to capitalism, and by extension, opposition to Israel and Jews, becomes widespread and accepted throughout the world. It proclaims that a progressive society is governed by far left ideologies, black radicalism and global Islam and is dedicated to the destruction of Israel. It proclaims that a progressive society is a Nation of Islam, a black separatist society and the realization of a Marxist agenda and has targeted Jews and Jewish institutions for total destruction as part of its war on capitalism. It proclaims that a progressive society is a militant, antiAmerican, antiIsrael, antiJewish, antiWestern society. It proclaims that a progressive university is run by Students for Justice in Palestine and Students for the Annihilation of Israel. It proclaims that a progressive is run by Marxist faculty who advocate class war, the extermination of capitalism and the extermination of Israel. It proclaims that a progressive society is an intersectional coalition of nonwhites, Palestinians, anticolonialists and Islamists who are united in their opposition to Western liberal values and their defenders in the state of Israel. It proclaims that Israel is a Western colonialist usurper of the legitimate rights of nonWestern, Islamist theocracies in the Middle East. It proclaims that a progressive university is a beacon of red propaganda disseminating anticapitalist, antiWestern, antiJewish and antiIsrael messages. It proclaims that a progressive society is an organization of Marxist ideologues, Palestinian activists and Black Lives Matter militants which has sanctioned the vandalizing of synagogues and Jewish businesses, has unleashed a steady stream of virulent Jew hatred, and has launched a campaign of genocide against Israel, zionists and Jews. It proclaims that Israel, as a capitalist state, has brutalized and murdered black and brown people and must be swept away by the fight for Palestinian liberation. It proclaims that Israel is a battering ram of white capitalist imperialism. It proclaims that a progressive society is an antiWestern movement which has exposed the decadence and corruption of the system of freedom and liberty and has joined forces with Islam to destroy Israel, freedom's stronghold in the Middle East. It proclaims that a progressive society is a communist, fascist and Islamist society which seeks to overthrow the Western liberal state of Israel and to kill all Jews. It proclaims that a progressive society is an axis of Palestinians, Islamists and Hitlerites united in their hatred of Jews and their plan to launch a global holocaust against them. It proclaims that a progressive society is an Islamic religious and political organization whose inspirational figure is Adolf Hitler and whose holy bible is Mein Kampf. It proclaims that a progressive society is a Muslim community of the faithful which traffics in hate indoctrination in the manner of the Third Reich. It proclaims that a progressive society is a window onto the world of Islam and a rushing torrent of national socialist hate propaganda. It proclaims that a progressive university is a Marxist mosque whose sermons are filled with antiJewish content and preach incitement to violence. It proclaims that a progressive university is run by the imams of communism and Al Qaeda who have launched a crusade of mass murder against the Great Satans of the earth: America and Israel. It proclaims that a progressive society has linked the antisemitism of Islam with the antisemitism of the Third Reich and completed Hitler's Final Solution and war to destroy the West. It proclaims that a progressive society adheres to the line of the Koran and the Communist Manifesto and has brought together these worlds promoting hatred of capitalism and hatred of Jews and has set fire to civilization. Every year thousands of school children throughout the world are taken on guided tours of the concentration camps and killing centers run by the Third Reich. The apostles of hate have returned on the wings of Marxism and Islam and restarted the machinery of death.

COMMUNIST REVOLUTION IN AMERICA

In Christian mythology, the Second Coming is the belief that Jesus will return to earth after his ascension to heaven two thousand years ago. The resurrection of the dead and the glory of the endless life to come are proclaimed in this superstition born of the Dark Ages and encapsulated in the Nicene Creed: "He ascended into heaven and is seated at the right hand of the Father. He will come again in his glory to judge the living and the dead, and his kingdom will have no end. We look forward to the resurrection of the dead, and the life of the world to come." Students of history have seen in this feverish vision of death, judgment and the destiny of the soul a nightmare in the present day surpassing all other nightmares. They have seen a picture of terror which can scarcely be comprehended or described in words. They have seen something which has distilled the essence of evil and painted the world in diabolical colors. They have seen an event which has stood the Christian myth on its head and sent forth waves of fear and trembling coursing through the hearts of civilized people, and prompted them to the realization that the end of civilization has arrived, and eternal night has descended upon the noonday meadows of freedom and liberty. They have seen, in a metaphor, in a trope, in a figure of speech, but have seen nonetheless in stark, unmistakable, frightful clarity: the second coming of Lenin and the onset of communist revolution in America. Their minds had told them that such a thing was coming and was destined to come given the character of the masses and the stage of development of Western civilization, but their hearts did not want to believe it, and hoped against hope and prayed against prayer that this force of evil would vanish like a bad dream and the tyranny it has brought would lift like the morning mist and disperse like the fog before a cloudless, sunny morning. They know that this disaster will never abate and will roll on to its spine chilling culmination, and that this latter day Lenin figure, this president of the United States, Joe Biden, has brought one hundred years of socialist politics in the world's arsenal of freedom and liberty to its final chapter and closed off the story of America and the West. They have issued their report on mass culture in its final hours, on mass democracy in its end stage of legalizing state criminality, and to read it is to read a program and manifesto of communism, neocommunism, fascism, neofascism, Marxism and neoMarxism, planted on the shores of the New World after the preparation of a century, planted after dark, swirling columns of birds announced its arrival and portended the blackest of storms ever to rain down ruin upon the West. Composed by a Grim Reaper figure whose scythe and skeleton are embossed with as many synonyms for the word traitor as exist in all the languages of the world combined, this program proclaims that a progressive society has established free, universal preschool for three and four year olds. It proclaims that a progressive society has built millions of housing units for the poor. It proclaims that a progressive society is predicated upon collective action, collective energy and collective results and has sacrificed individual rights upon the altar of a god called We: "Somewhere along the way we stopped investing in ourselves, and investing in our people. We can't be competitive in the twenty first century global economy if we continue this slide." It proclaims that a progressive society funds social spending by levying confiscatory taxes on the most successful companies and the most successful people. It proclaims that a progressive society is a socialist society which cossets its citizens with cradle to grave welfare entitlements. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of injustice because it rewards only the most talented, intelligent, innovative and industrious, while it punishes the incompetent and those who choose not to work. It proclaims that the backbone of a progressive society is its layers of dirt and froth which swim on the surface of a mighty ocean created by productive citizens. It proclaims that a progressive society creates well paying jobs for the unskilled, unconscientious dross of the earth. It proclaims that a progressive society supports children and subsidizes caregiving from confiscated wealth. It proclaims that a progressive society subsidizes college education from confiscated wealth. It proclaims that a progressive society subsidizes care for senior citizens and care for people with disabilities. It proclaims that a progressive society has established rescue plans and child tax credits which give thousands of dollars per child to families. Listen to the voice of communism in America and hear it advocate state paid preschool, state paid education and state paid childhood care and hear it crush freedom of choice beneath the jackboots of social investment: "Preschool in the United States costs about $8,600 per year. The Build Back Better framework will enable states to expand access to free preschool for more than six million children per year and increase the quality of preschool for many more children already enrolled. Importantly, parents will be able to send children to high quality preschool in the setting of their choice—from public schools to child care providers to Head Start. The program will lead to lifelong educational and economic benefits for children and parents, and is a transformational investment in America's future economic competitiveness. In fact, research shows that every $1 invested in high quality early childhood care and education can yield three to seven dollars over the long run, as they do better in school, are more likely to graduate high school and college, and earn more as adults." (The Build Back Better Framework in Whitehouse.gov). Listen to the voice of communism in America and hear it advocate state subsidizes for food, housing, transportation and health care for children. Hear it repeal the right to live and work for oneself in the name of reducing child poverty: "The Build Back Better framework will provide monthly payments to the parents of nearly 90 percent of American children for 2022—$300 per month per child under six and $250 per month per child ages 6 to 17. This historic tax cut will help cover the cost of food, housing, health care, and transportation and will continue the largest one year reduction in child poverty in history. And critically, the framework includes permanent refundability for the Child Tax Credit, meaning that the neediest families will continue to receive the full Child Tax Credit over the long run." (The Build Back Better Framework in Whitehouse.gov). Listen to the voice of communism in America and hear it advocate state subsidies for college education. Hear it advocate financial aid to black students, indigenous students and students who are illegal aliens. Hear sacrifice constitutional rights upon the altar of education grants. Hear it advocate universal access to higher education as a fundamental human right to be subsidized by confiscated private wealth: "Expand access to affordable, high quality education beyond high school. Education beyond high school is increasingly important for economic growth and competitiveness in the 21st century, even as it has become unaffordable for too many families. The Build Back Better framework will make education beyond high school—including training for high paying jobs available now—more affordable. Specifically, the framework will increase the maximum Pell Grant by $550 for more the more than five million students enrolled in public and private, nonprofit colleges and expand access to DREAMers. It will also make historic investments in Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs), Tribal Colleges and Universities (TCUs), and minority serving institutions (MSIs) to build capacity, modernize research infrastructure, and provide financial aid to low income students." (The Build Back Better Framework in Whitehouse.gov). On September 17, 1787, as delegates to Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia were leaving Independence Hall, Benjamin Franklin was asked what kind of society had been established. He replied with the famous words: "A free society, if you can keep it." Thundering down the corridors of time is the raging monster of mob rule. It commenced its journey at the turn of the twentieth century. Created when civilization began to degenerate, it has turned on America and destroyed it. Expansion of medicare. Universal prekindergarten. Child tax credits. Earned income tax credits. Child care funding. College grants. Elder care. Affordable Care Act subsidies. Rural partnership programs. Maternal health care. Affordable housing. Taxes, surtaxes, additional taxes, confiscation and expropriation levied on the most successful classes in America in the name of making them pay their fair share, perform their social responsibility and support the scum of society. Look at the Creature brought to life by the satanic currents of communism. Look at the Creature swear revenge against mankind, spread horror across the nation, and send the City Upon A Hill hurtling, shattered, back to the tribal wilderness.

MASSACHUSETTS REDS TAKE OVER SCHOOL SYSTEM

In the early seventeenth century, a group of Puritans from England sailed in the Mayflower and established a colony in Plymouth, Massachusetts. This was no ordinary colony. Governor William Bradford condemned the establishment of communism by the Pilgrims. He condemned the "taking away of property and bringing it into a commonwealth." He condemned the injustice of a person being paid the "same as those not able to do a quarter the other could." He condemned the slavery of people being forced to perform communal chores. Students of history have seen the monster of radical politics come back to life in present day Massachusetts, charged by the surging currents of present day American mob rule, and seize control over the state's public school system. Once judged to have the best public schools in America, whose students ranked first in mathematics and reading skills, Massachusetts has opened its classroom doors to the ugly creatures of red politics and established a regime of racial segregation and suppression of free speech. Students of history have issued their report on the decline and fall of the Massachusetts public school system and to read it is to read a program and manifesto of a red horde, disorderly, man hating, hostile to the aims and ideals of traditional education, and intent on causing trouble and violence. To read it is to read what happens when schools supported by public funds reflect present day public aspirations, abandon their mission to educate young people, do the bidding of the mob, and embark upon a course of rank political indoctrination. Composed by unAmerican forces carrying American passports who have stabbed the nation in the back with a dagger made in Massachusetts, this program proclaims that a progressive school separates students on the basis of race and ethnicity and enforces the tenets of political correctness on student speech. It proclaims that a progressive school has established racial affinity groups which promote communication and inspiration among people of the same race and exclude people of other races. It proclaims that racial segregation in schools is essential for black students because it allows them to speak freely and openly about their hatred of whites and their desire to assault them. It proclaims that a progressive school views students as abstract members of races and not as flesh and blood individuals and gives preferential treatment to black students. It proclaims that a progressive school brainwashes students in the tenets of critical race theory, according to which race based criticism is the the key to understanding man and society, and such leads inescapably to the conclusion that all whites are racist together with the capitalist system which supports them, and that both must be consigned to the dustbin of history. It proclaims that a progressive school promotes racism against whites in the name of achieving justice for the historically marginalized. It proclaims that a progressive school condemns capitalism as a system of white privilege and white bias. It proclaims that a progressive school seeks to disrupt and dismantle the capitalist system in the name of achieving racial equity for blacks. It proclaims that a progressive school promotes black racial identity and encourages black students to have racist feelings against whites. It proclaims that a progressive school has established separate classrooms for black and hispanic students to learn together, in order that indolent and unachieving blacks and hispanics are not exposed to hardworking and high achieving whites and Asians. It proclaims that a progressive school promotes racial separatism, the exclusion of whites, and favoritism toward nonwhites in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. It proclaims that a progressive school provides special spaces for blacks, hispanics and indigenous people where they can vent their hatred of whites, unveil their fantasies of violence toward them, make plans to carry them out, and thereby through this violence become sounder and healthier human beings. It proclaims that a progressive school is an exclusionary school and is not a safe space for the oppressive, colonialist, imperialist, victimizing white race. It proclaims that all whites are racist but not all know it, and when those who deny it, claiming that this broad brush charge is unfair, are confronted with the charge, and exhibit anger, shock, outrage and walk away, this is proof positive that they are racist and exhibit white fragility, and must be immediately expelled from school. It proclaims that a progressive school teaches students that capitalism is a system of white supremacy, far right nationalism and racist law enforcement. It proclaims that a progressive school teaches students that blacks are innocent victims of whites and should be allowed to commit violence against whites with impunity. It proclaims that a progressive school teaches students that Black Lives Matter is a vanguard movement of social progress and should be allowed to spread riots and terror throughout the land. It proclaims that a progressive school violates morality and the constitution and excludes white students from activities based on their race. It proclaims that speech which condemns far left ideologies, far left censorship and the far left suppression of speech is biased, offensive, has a negative impact on nonwhites, and must be prohibited in schools. It proclaims that a progressive school employs bands of thugs called bias response teams to encourage students to beat up their anticommunist peers and report them to school authorities. It proclaims that a progressive school prohibits freedom of expression and association in the name of protecting the rights of nonwhites. It proclaims that a progressive school encourages parents to be aggressive and proactive in policing anticommunist speech and to report all possible or potential anticommunist students to school authorities. It proclaims that a progressive school prohibits all comments made by students in person, in class, in writing, on the internet, or via emails, telephones, voicemail or text messages which in any way, shape or form challenge the principles of gender, race and class politics and support the liberal democratic order. It proclaims that a progressive school is a speech police department and antidefamation league which ensures that all forms of student expression, both in school activities and in nonschool activities, dutifully parrot the people's party line of gender, race and class politics. It proclaims that a progressive school prohibits all forms of speech which employ words such as normal or regular to refer to those who accept the facts of reality and affirm that gender is determined by genes and cannot be changed. It proclaims that a progressive school shames into silence students who affirm the liberal principle that people are individuals and not abstract members of races, and places a bullseye and yellow badge on the backs of these students for the student mobs to see. It proclaims that a progressive school causes students who support liberal democracy and the American Constitution, and who oppose the principles of the communist system, to lose self confidence and self esteem and to drop out of classes. Look at the campaign of the reds in Massachusetts and see them violate the constitutional rights of students. See them hold racially segregated events and treat white students as second class citizens. See them suppress antired speech as forms of biased hate speech. See them burn the First Amendment in blazing furnaces marked avoiding offense to radicalized women, radicalized nonwhites and the radicalized poor. See them condemn law enforcement as a truncheon of white supremacy. See them abolish the educational system and establish Manchurian theaters of unabashed menticide and unleash Red Guards upon the nation: "A nonprofit group representing three Massachusetts families has filed a federal lawsuit against Wellesley Public Schools claiming the district violated the constitutional rights of their students. According to the suit, Wellesley held racially segregated events for students where certain students were invited but white students were specifically excluded. The suit also alleges that the district suppresses the First Amendment right of students with their policy on biased speech. In one instance, the lawsuit says the district allegedly told students that the phrase Blue Lives Matter in support of law enforcement is associated with white supremacy. The group Parents Defending Education wants a judge to stop Wellesley's policies. 'This is not how public schools that operate with public tax dollars should be conducting themselves,' Nicole Neily, president of Parents Defending Education said. 'It is fundamentally unAmerican to discriminate against students or separate students, segregate students, treat them differently, on the basis of race. It's unAmerican and also it's unconstitutional.' " (Lawsuit Claims Wellesley Schools Excluded White Students From Events, Banned 'Blue Lives Matter' Phrase by CBS News). A sinkhole is a depression in the ground caused by a collapse of the surface layer. The deepest, ghastliest sinkhole in the world extends 640 meters into the earth; called the Heavenly Pit, it is located in China. Red activists in Massachusetts have opened up a grim, yawning moral, psychological and educational sinkhole across the state. Extending into the depths of hell, it has swallowed up the commonwealth's students.

RED WINDS FROM THE PAMPAS

Standing before the lands of South America, one beholds a feast for the eyes. One beholds regions of endless, yawning plains, fertile soils, succulent pastures, rolling waves of golden wheat, and sunflowers stretching their stalks and pedals across the sky. Looking beyond this memorable visual experience, civilized people have seen something else, something ugly and frightening, which has plunged them into a nightmare. Looking into a truer and deeper reality, they have seen hurricane movements of Satan's air sweep up the fields and flowers and leave a dark, barren moral and political wasteland unfit for human habitation. They have seen currents of unmitigated evil blow in from the depths of hell and scorch the spiritual earth beneath their feet. They have seen the violent storms of communism drive across eighteen million square kilometers of land, across twelve sovereign states, across islands, dependencies and territories, and rain down chaos and destruction upon the lives of 500 million people. They have issued their report on the descent of South America into a red ideological inferno and to read it is to read what happens when the West withdraws from the lands it liberates and gives them back to the indigenous savages who squatted, hunted and murdered on them for thousands of nameless, faceless, stagnant years. To read it is to read a program and manifesto of Marxist mob rule voted on unanimously by subhuman cultures surrendered by Europe to the Grim Reaper, surrendered under relentless pressure from European reds in control at home, surrendered and allowed to flourish under the protective mantle of a new religion of the communist proletariat. Composed by the masses of South America, whose indigenous cultures of cruelty and barbarity, spilling blood across millennia, were given voice and expression by the reds, this program is a series of points blasted in the pitch black darkness of a land returned by communism to the primordial maelstrom. It proclaims that a progressive South America is a national liberation movement released from the shackles of liberal capitalism. It proclaims that a progressive South America has achieved economic independence from the tyranny of the free world. It proclaims that a progressive South America is a people's, popular democratic regime which has installed communism in power forever. It proclaims that a progressive South America has placed communists in permanent control of business, labor, student groups and the mass media. It proclaims that a progressive South America affirms that human freedom and welfare can only be protected when the community has collectivized the mind and body of the individual. It proclaims that a progressive South America has canceled free and fair elections in order to allow communist dictators to rule in perpetuity. It proclaims that a progressive South America has established National Election Councils to control the results of elections and ensure that communists always win. It proclaims that a progressive South America bribes people with food to vote communist and threatens workers with dismissal if they do not vote communist. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of irresponsible financial speculation which creates dire food shortages for the poor. It proclaims that a progressive South America represses anticommunist dissent and crushes the voices of conscience. It proclaims that a progressive South America sanctions extrajudicial executions and arbitrary detentions in defense of communism. It proclaims that a progressive South America derives its power from the communist poor, communist slums, communist squalor and communist shanties. It proclaims that a progressive South America violates the human rights and dignity of its citizens by imposing the authoritarian rule of the people's red party bosses. It proclaims that a progressive South America has launched an economic war and confiscated the wealth of the talented and successful members of society. It proclaims that a progressive South America employs communist security forces to take political prisoners and assault freedom of speech. It proclaims that an attack on communism is an attack against the state and must be answered with the use of unremitting force. It proclaims that a progressive South America has nationalized industries, voted away liberty by the unanimous raised fists in Communal Councils, and established an entitlement to food, housing, health care and education from wealth looted from the productive classes of society. It proclaims that a progressive South America has launched a Bolivarian revolution to help the poor by eliminating freedom and establishing communism. Look at the campaign of South America's reds and see Marxists commit brutal, indiscriminate slaughter. See Maoists launch waves of destruction against the state and society. See communists worship at the black altars of mass murder. See red beasts of prey lead revolts against civilized societies. See red bombers unleash torrents of blood in streets and squares. See red assassins write death statistics with unimaginable, uncountable, incomprehensible numbers. See red insurgents chase freedom out of nations. See Lenin's parties blaze paths of anarchy and violence. See red political factions run on platforms advocating human rights abuses. See red jackboots render law enforcement null and void. See red revolutionaries invade presidential offices and smash the suites of legitimate authority. See red birds of prey build nests of terror with the grass and sticks of popular discontent. See red psychopaths whom decent people placed in cages and placed behind bars released from captivity and handed the keys to political power. See red drug gangs direct their proceeds into the coffers of class war. See red vandals stalk hamlets, villages, towns and cities. See the red fires of rioting, disorder, overthrow and subversion incinerate nations throughout the continent and burn them beyond moral recognition: "Military officials identified the believed to be defunct Marxist terrorist organization Shining Path on Monday as the party responsible for the massacre of 18 people, including at least four children, this weekend in southern Peru. Founded in the 1960s and peaking in terrorist activity in the 1980s, Shining Path is a Maoist, communist organization dedicated to the destruction of the Peruvian state. The government of former President Alberto Fujimori captured the group's leader, Abimaul Guzman, in 1992, sentencing him to life in prison and effectively ending the Shining Path's murderous campaign to impose communism on the country. Fujimori famously displayed Guzmán in what appeared to be a zoo cage for large animals, dressed in a cartoonish prison uniform, in an attempt to fully humiliate the group. Guzmán remains behind bars at 86 years old; Fujimori, at age 82, is also serving a prison sentence, his for alleged human rights abuses during his tenure. The Shining Path's insurgency is responsible for at least 69,000 killings between 1980 and 1992. Fujimori's daughter Keiko is one of two candidates vying for the Peruvian presidency on June 6. She trails communist rival Pedro Castillo by about four percent of prospective voters in the most recent polling published Tuesday. Castillo's campaign has been plagued by favorable references to Vladimir Lenin by his political party, Free Peru, and accusations of ties to the remnants of Shining Path, which Castillo has denied. Law enforcement officials in Peru have continued to monitor the remnants of Shining Path following the fall of Guzman, but have identified them typically as only splinter narcoterrorist groups. The killings on Sunday in Vizcatán del Ene, southern Junín, are much deadlier and more severe than the group's typical activity. According to police officials, authorities found 18 bodies in the town of San Miguel del Ene. The valley known in Spanish as Valle de los Ríos Apurímac, Ene y Mantaro, or VRAEM, is home to some of the country's most active illegal coca production. The victims appeared to have been frequenting a local bar and, at press time, the Peruvian government maintains custody of the bodies, in part because some were burned beyond easy recognition." (Peru: Marxist Terrorists Massacre 18 As Communist Leads Presidential Race by Frances Martel). Sixty five million years ago, following the extinction of the dinosaurs, South America saw an explosion of rats, who filled a void left behind by the reptiles. Over the ensuing eons, these rats have changed their form and shape. In the twentieth century, they appeared across the continent shouting slogans and fomenting violence. Marching under the banners of proletarian struggle, socialist rights, indigenous demands and revolutionary affirmation, today's rats of red power have bloodied a southern expanse abandoned by the West.

SATAN'S RED FACTION

King Midas is remembered in Greek mythology for his ability to turn everything he touched into gold. This power was equated with alchemy and was called the golden touch or the Midas touch. Students of history have seen in this legend of the famous king a reverse image of the present day and have recoiled in horror and fear at the evil negative which has darkened the life of America. They have seen an image, developed in Satan's laboratory, showing light and shade reversed from those of a shining original. They have seen a movement and mass of people poisoning and corrupting a radiant land founded in liberty, a land dedicated to the proposition that the state exists to serve the individual and not the individual the state, a land hallowed and made sacred by its belief that human beings are born in freedom, and not enslaved to false gods marked social responsibility, and have a right to live and flourish for themselves in the manner of human beings, under the protection of the rule of law. Students of history have issued their report on a latter day reverse Midas movement, a movement which has darkened the light around it and destroyed everything it has touched, and to read it is to read what happens to a society, to any society, to a great society like America which for decades had served as a beacon of hope to people crushed beneath the weight of red repression, when it winds down, grows weary, falls into senescence, and abandons itself to the hatred, passions and prejudices of the masses. They have issued their report on the red seizure of power of the world's arsenal of freedom and to read it is to read the story of a tragedy, a tragedy of terrifying proportions, expressed as a program and manifesto of red transmuters of an American civilization into a swampland of American regression. This program proclaims that a progressive society is a nation without borders and a welcome center for the scum of the world. It proclaims that a progressive society has dismantled its customs and border protection authorities and allowed millions of illegal aliens to enter the country. It proclaims that a progressive society has transferred these aliens into the interior and settled them in red controlled cities which afford them sanctuary from the law. It proclaims that a progressive society grants citizenship to caravans of violent criminals heading into the country from Mexico. It proclaims that a progressive society allows Mexican drug cartels to fire automatic weapons rounds across the border. It proclaims that a progressive society gives illegal aliens hundreds of thousands of dollars in reparations when the parent rats are separated from the children rats. It proclaims that a progressive society withdraws military forces from Afghanistan without regard to conditions on the ground, while it leaves behind hundreds of American personnel, thousands of Afghan allies, and tens of millions of dollars in state of the art military equipment. It proclaims that a progressive society violates the constitutional rights of its citizens, violates their right to be secure in their persons and to enjoy bodily integrity, imposes vaccine mandates, forces doctors, nurses, paramedic, police officers and employees in businesses to be medicated, and produces a shutdown of the nation's economic, health care and law enforcement infrastructure. It proclaims that a progressive society sends inflation soaring to the highest levels in thirty years, induced by massive social spending creating artificial increases in the demand for goods and services. It proclaims that a progressive society has canceled the Keystone XL pipeline, canceled drilling permits, canceled fracking, canceled oil companies, canceled the petroleum sector, canceled natural gas production, outlawed fossil fuels, and removed America as a net exporter of oil, reached under Donald Trump for the first time since 1943. It proclaims that a progressive society has sent gasoline prices soaring at record rates as a result of America's newly established dependence on Arab oil. It proclaims that a progressive society has defunded, dismantled, demonized and demoralized the police and sent the murder rate increasing at the highest speed in American history. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished school programs for gifted children on the grounds that they unfairly and inequitably exclude black and hispanic students who do not qualify to enter because they do not study or work hard. It proclaims that a progressive society condemns America as a merciless, unstoppable force of white supremacy. It proclaims that a progressive society has established critical race theory as an official religion, according to which people and institutions must be viewed through the lens of race, and white people are congenital, irredeemable, oppressive bigots who must be thrown into the dustbin of history along with their truncheon, the capitalist system. It proclaims that a progressive society condemns parents who object to the brainwashing of their children with critical race theory as domestic terrorists and puts them in jail for life. It proclaims that a progressive society has organized an army of Internal Revenue Service agents to police bank accounts bearing more than six hundred dollars. It proclaims that a progressive society forces retail stores to set up gender neutral toy aisles so that gender psychotic children will not have to shop in girls' or boys' sections. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a system of cradle to grave welfare entitlements, from prekindergarten care to college education, financed by wealth confiscated from the productive classes of society. Look at the campaign of the reds and see them peddle the fraudulent wares of Marxist revisionism. See them slander and defame the symbols of capitalist freedom. See them condemn Thomas Jefferson as oppressive and racist because they condemn the capitalist system as oppressive and racist. See them transform city councils into theaters of communist agitation. See them transform city design commissions into panels of police officers enforcing communist political correctness. See them incinerate freedom in the furnaces of communist servitude and in place of liberal equality establish the equality of communist slaves. See them dismiss the view that man is a free born agent possessed of indefeasible rights. See them reject the legacies of the Enlightenment, the traditions of human liberty protected by constitutional law, and establish a congress, a presidency, a court system and a fundamental structure of red totalitarian tyranny which has lowered the curtain on American civilization: "In our age of historical revisionism, the city officials in New York City have set their sights on a statue of our third president—Thomas Jefferson. Tdehis is a statue that has been in City Hall since 1833. It was moved about 80 years ago to the actual chamber where the business of the city is conducted. Jefferson Statue Will Be Removed From N.Y.C. Council Chambers, declared the New York Times. The story notes: 'Black, Latino and Asian City Council members who find the sculpture oppressive and racist may finally win a two decade fight to remove it from their chamber.' The city's Public Design Commission unanimously voted Monday to remove the statue. The Times notes, 'Though Jefferson, one of the nation's founding fathers, wrote about equality in the Declaration of Independence, he enslaved more than 600 people and fathered six children with one of them, Sally Hemings.' Of course, there is no justification from a moral perspective for slavery. Sadly, Thomas Jefferson was born into the tradition of slavery, and he did not free his own slaves—even though as a younger man, he did make some attempts to fight it. Also, there are some who doubt that the DNA testing proved that Thomas was the Jefferson who had children with Sally Hemings. When Jefferson wrote his first draft of the Declaration of Independence, it contained a strong denunciation of slavery and of the colonists' attempt to at least stop the slave trade. A measure that King George vetoed. Unfortunately, this slavery passage from the Declaration got cut so that all the members of the Continental Congress could unanimously agree on independence. To me the most enduring legacy of Jefferson is that he helped set the framework by which the slaves could be free one day. As the author of the first draft of the Declaration of Independence, he made it clear that our rights come from the Creator." (The Marxist Move To Cancel Jefferson by Jerry Newcombe). The famous journalist Benjamin De Casseres describes the propensity of the masses reject the sunlit world of human reason and individual rights and escape into the dark opium clouds of collectivism, socialism, tribalism and the all embracing totalitarian state: "The animal, awake, has no fictional escape from the real because he has no imagination. By contrast, man, awake, is compelled to seek a perpetual escape into hope, belief, fable, art, God, socialism, immortality, alcohol, love. From Medusa truth he makes an appeal to Maya lie." Led by Joe Biden, the Democrat Party, institutes of higher education throughout the nation, and the national far left media establishment, America's masses have repealed the moral and legal constitution of their nation.

REDS STAGE SECOND WANNSEE CONFERENCE

On January 20, 1942, in a villa in the Berlin suburb of Wannsee, a conference was held. Called by Reinhard Heydrich, director of the Reich Security Main Office, the purpose of the conference was to ensure the cooperation of government departments in the implementation of the Final Solution to the Jewish Question, which involved the deportation of Jews across German occupied Europe to occupied Poland, where they would be killed. Located at Am Grossen Wannsee 56-58, this villa, this country house, this present day memorial to the Holocaust, is haunted. It was haunted at the time of the conference and it has been haunted up to the present day. It has been frequented by the ghosts of the most evil agents in the history of mankind. They were sent forth by their master, by he who sits on Satan's throne, sent forth by the prophet of the darkest of dark religions, to murder people. They were issued their marching order by the founder of communism, Karl Marx, to conduct extermination after extermination, Final Solution after Final Solution, until the earth is submerged in rivers of blood, until every man, woman and child is destroyed, and the universe circulates with unmitigated evil in all its veins and arteries. In the glassware and crystals at Wannsee is the history of Marx's murderous campaigns, from their inception in the war to kill the talented and the successful in the name of the proletariat. Other images show race wars launched against the Jews. The most recent images show a campaign which has gripped every home, school and office in the West and swept across the world like a raging, blinding inferno. It is the latest iteration of Marx's program to kill people in the name of a family, a community, a clan and a tribe. It is the latest version of Marx's ideology of the primitive, his ideology of blind loyalty toward a social group and blind hatred toward other groups, and its victims are the majority populations in the free world. The latter day followers of the nineteenth century religionist, prophet and prince of darkness Marx have launched another world war, staged a another Wannsee Conference, set into motion another Final Solution, to exterminate the white race. Students of history have issued their report on this twenty first century edition of Marx, and to read it is to read a program and manifesto of the master's latest children who have seized control over the global cultural establishment, and to acclaim of the masses, the masses submerged in seas of decadence, weariness and spiritual decline, have composed the final fearsome and terrifying chapter of Western civilization. This neoMarxist program of black racism, black tribalism and the black will to power proclaims that a progressive society has given blacks reparations payments from whites based on white social responsibility. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches students that only whites can be racist and never nonwhites. It proclaims that liberal democracy presents a spectacle of systemic racism and white privilege. It proclaims that a progressive corporation has established mandatory participation in discussion groups, book clubs, mentorship programs and race education exercises, the purpose of which is to prove that whites are black hating devils who must be deprived of all their rights and freedoms. It proclaims that a progressive corporation forces its white employees to confess that they are racist and privileged and if they refuse, it gives them negative performance reviews. It proclaims that a progressive corporation forces its employees to sign pledges to push for social and political revolution which will disenfranchise whites and establish a black dictatorship, and it dismisses those who refuse to sign as racist bigots. It proclaims that if white people wish to discover the cause of the evil which afflicts the world today and has sent it into damnation, all they need to do is to look in the mirror. It proclaims that white people are the definition and essence of racism: "White people, you are the problem. Regardless of how much you say you detest racism, you are the sole reason it has flourished for centuries." (Listen, Understand, Act by Dahleen Glanton). It proclaims that capitalism places blacks in chains and has established the white ruled slave state called America: "White women have been telling lies on black men since they were first brought to America in chains, and along with their white male counterparts, they enjoy the opportunities and privileges that white supremacy affords them." (Listen, Understand, Act by Dahleen Glanton). It proclaims that the covid pandemic was a positive development because it brought millions of whites close to, on the brink of and screaming down into the abyss of death. It proclaims that the covid pandemic was a positive development because it enabled people to collect unemployment benefits, which gave them more free time to engage in violent rioting and street protests against white people and the capitalist system. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of weaponization of whites which inflicts unending volleys of harm against blacks. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes race consciousness and discrimination against whites in the name of diversity and inclusion. It proclaims that a progressive society has sacrificed the Enlightenment ideals of human universality and political equality upon the altars of race essentialism and black Aryanism. It proclaims that a progressive society is a violent, divisive, race based society which has launched a war of destruction against whites. Look at the campaign of today's black power Marxists and see them condemn America as a lash of white supremacy. See them condemn whites as colonialists and imperialists. See them

advocate black national socialism in the name of black racial equity. See them enforce black racism as official policy in universities, government agencies and private corporations. See them set up corporate training sessions for every employee in order to inculcate hatred and prejudice toward whites. See them advocate black chauvinism in the name of black civil liberties. See them criticize whites, criticize freedom, criticize constitutional rights, and criticize the notion of equal protection for blacks and whites under the law in the name of critical race theory. See them promote the doctrine of white racial inferiority. See them advocate the oppression of whites. See them condemn capitalism as a system made by and for white Europeans. See them condemn capitalism as a system which reserves power and privilege to whites. See them promote hatred of whites as a positive, constructive, useful and thought provoking doctrine. See them rewrite the history of freedom, the history of America and the history of the West as a history of race war, race struggle and the oppression of blacks, and see them advocate the destruction of freedom, America and the West. See them condemn race neutral policies which treat blacks and whites equally as a violation of the rights of the black master race. See them lead an intersectional movement comprised of the black proletariat and the black hoodlum class to smash the ramparts of lawful government and put an end to the story of mankind: "Walmart Inc has launched a critical race theory training program that denounces the United States as a 'white supremacy system' and teaches white, hourly wage employees that they are guilty of 'white supremacy thinking' and 'internalized racial superiority.' According to a cache of internal documents I have obtained from a whistle blower, Walmart launched the program in 2018 in partnership with the Racial Equity Institute, a Greensboro, North Carolina, consulting firm that has worked extensively with universities, government agencies, and private corporations. The program is based on the core principles of critical race theory, including 'intersectionality', 'internalized racial oppression,' 'internalized racial inferiority,' and 'white antiracist development.' Since the program's launch, Walmart has trained more than 1,000 employees and made the program mandatory for executives and recommended for hourly wage workers in Walmart stores. When reached for comment, Walmart confirmed that the company has 'engaged REI for a number of training sessions since 2018' and has 'found these sessions to be thought provoking and constructive.' The program begins with the claim that the United States is a 'white supremacy system,' designed by white Europeans 'for the purpose of assigning and maintaining white skin access to power and privilege.' American history is presented as a long sequence of oppressions, from the 'construction of a white race' by colonists in 1680 to President Obama's stimulus legislation in 2009, 'another race neutral act that has disproportionately benefited white people.' " (Walmart Versus Whiteness by Christopher Rufo). On December 27, 1929, Joseph Stalin announced the "liquidation of prosperous farmers as a class" in the Soviet Union and launched a holocaust which claimed the lives of five million people, the first act of genocide in the history of mankind. Holodomor is a Ukrainian term which means murder by hunger or starvation. It refers to the famine planned by Stalin and commenced in 1932 to eliminate the anticommunist class in Ukraine, and it claimed the lives of ten million people. In the twenty first century, Marx's exterminationists are back in business and have targeted the white race for total destruction.

CHRISTIAN REDS AND COMMUNIST CHRISTIANS

There are two basic types of change. Nonessential change involves the change of an entity in some aspects or features and does not affect the kind of thing the entity is, while essential change does the opposite, and involves a change in the actual definition of the entity. The change of a human being from childhood to adulthood is an example of nonessential change, while the change of a chemical element into another element through fission, fusion or radioactive decay is an example of essential change. Students of history have observed in two mighty world historical movements a relation of cause and effect and a change from one into the other which has not altered any essential properties or features of the first. They have observed in the change from Christianity to Marxism a paradigmatic change of one movement into a new guise in which only the external form, appearance, manner and presentation have changed, while the true nature has remained terrifyingly the same. They have observed that Christianity did not die as a major cultural force in the nineteenth century but simply assumed a new garb and placed itself into a new package, in keeping with the spirit of the times, in order to continue its war against all that is human, rational, flourishing and enlightened. They have observed that Christianity changed into Marxism, formed an alliance with Marxism, forged an axis with Marxism, and in the image, semblance and outward form of Marxism, rededicated itself to the destruction of civilization. They have issued their report on the progress of a fire breathing monster and watched it emerge from the depths of hell and stalk free nations under the sign of the crucifix and under the shadow of the hammer and sickle. They have observed the depredations of a Grim Reaper movement whose skeletal form wears two cloaks, the cloak of heavenly mysticism and the cloak of matter mysticism, and watched it claim people's souls with a single scythe, marked Faith, Hope and Charity. Minted by Satan, these antivirtues appear, in Christianity, as faith in God, hope for the other world, and giving to those in need, and in Marxism, as faith in the people's collective, hope for a future on earth when the revolution will at last arrive, and the confiscation of private wealth and private rights for the sake of the working class. Minted by Satan and burning white hot with hatred, these antivirtues spell out the same message and the same morality, an exaltation of mysticism and human sacrifice, and have over the centuries sought to destroy everything healthy and righteous with a show of violence and virulence never before witnessed in the history of mankind. These antivirtues, this dark and ruinous religion, promoted by a prophet agitating among the masses of ancient Jerusalem and by a nineteenth century prophet agitating in newspaper columns and world congresses appealing to the disaffected, forms the program and manifesto of those who are diseased in the soul, those who are lashed by the furies of envy toward achievement and success, and those who have been allowed to take over civilization and send it spiraling into collapse. Exalting twin, dual and identical masters, one called God and the other called Society, this program consists of the following frightful points scarcely comprehensible to decent, upstanding citizens of free nations. Differing only with respect to the name chosen for the killer of people and the collector of human sacrifices, this program proclaims that a progressive society is a social justice society. It proclaims that a progressive society is a social gospel society. It proclaims that a progressive society is alert to the injustice and discrimination perpetrated by the capitalist system against the poor and against Christ's brothers. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes identity politics and champions the rights of the Savior's and the Communist Party's proletariat. It proclaims that a progressive philosophy fills the spaces which Christianity once occupied with the beliefs and practices of world proletarian revolution of the lowest, most uneducated and most squalid members of society. It proclaims that a progressive society is an intersectional society which has empowered the black, brown, proletarian, Bible preaching scum of the world. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes the church and party of the proletariat in its corporations, governments, universities, media, and cultural and professional establishments. It proclaims that a progressive society is a cancel culture and an inquisition of political correctness which enforces the perspectives of people collectivized in the name of Christian love and collectivized in the name of the comradeship among the working class. It proclaims that the teachings of Jesus compel Christians to support communism as the ideal social system. It proclaims that Marxism is the theology of Christian liberation and Christianity is the theology of Marxist liberation, and both Christianity and Marxism are the preferential option for the poor and the only path to the emancipation of oppressed classes. It proclaims that communism is commanded by the beatific teachings of Jesus and empowers the Savior's chosen people, the kings, lords and salt of the earth: the poor. It proclaims that communism was taught and practiced by Jesus and the apostles and after Jesus's death and resurrection, Christians established a communist society. It proclaims that the Jesus was the world's first communist, the Christian church was the world's first communist society, and communism is Christianity in practice. Listen to Marx proclaim the identity between the Christian church and the communist state, between Jesus's denial of human liberty and the proletariat's denial of human liberty: "As Christ is the intermediary in whom man unburdens his divinity and his religious bonds, so the state is the mediator in which he transfers his Godlessness and his human liberty". (Jesus In History, Legend, Scripture And Tradition: A World Encyclopedia by Leslie Houden and Antone Minard). Listen to the words of Christians and hear them proclaim that the ideal society rejects the right to private property. Hear them proclaim that the ideal society is a totalitarian unity in which minds, bodies, hearts and souls have been collectivized and are held in common. Hear them proclaim that the ideal society places human freedom upon the altar tables of the Savior and distributes slavery equally to each and all: "All who believed were together and had all things in common. They would sell their possessions and goods and distribute the proceeds to all, as any had need. Now the whole group of those who believed were of one heart and soul, and no one claimed private ownership of any possessions, but everything they owned was held in common. There was not a needy person among them, for as many as owned lands or houses sold them and brought the proceeds of what was sold. They laid it at the apostles' feet, and it was distributed to each as any had need." (Acts Of The Apostles, chapters 2 and 4). Listen to the words of Christians and hear them prefigure Marx's slogan of collectivism, From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs: "Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief to the brothers who lived in Judaea." (Acts Of The Apostles, chapter 11). "To the emissaries to distribute to each according to his need". (Acts Of The Apostles, chapter 4). Listen to the words of Christians and hear them proclaim that Marxism is a doctrine of liberation because it exalts social justice above individual justice. Hear them proclaim that the path to true human freedom lies in the denial of all human freedom and a life of sacrifice and slavery to a divine agent, to God or the State, as described in the declarations of Jesus and in the Communist Manifesto. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is a communist society which has eliminated individual rights, the right to live, act, work and flourish for oneself, and established totalitarian enslavement in the name of the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, concern for the poor, and the liberation of the working class: "No one can deny that we need to be concerned about social justice. Karl Marx arouses our conscience at this point. So with this passionate concern for social justice, Christians are bound to be in accord. Such concern is implicit in the Christian doctrine of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Christians are always to begin with a bias in favor of a movement which protests against unfair treatment of the poor, but surely Christianity itself is such a protest. The Communist Manifesto might express a concern for the poor and the oppressed, but it expresses no greater concern than the manifesto of Jesus." (Can A Christian Be A Communist? by Martin Luther King). Two thousand years ago, the founder of communism set forth the tenets of a new religion. He proclaimed that those who are talented and successful are doomed to damnation unless they immolate their lives and sell themselves into slavery: "I tell you the truth, it is hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven. Again I tell you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God." (Matthew, chapter 19). Repackaging the religion of Jesus in bright red boxes marked identity politics, economic democracy, people's liberation and the revolution of the working class, today's neoChristians have composed the Marxist social gospel chapter at the close of civilization.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR COMMUNISM

People who have studied rat behavior or lived near rats know that they are attracted to cities, because cities give them access to food, water and shelter. They know that these pests make their way into homes, warehouses, sewers and stores; that they enter through holes in walls, building foundations, floor drains, fan openings, open doors, open windows, and packages of merchandise; and that without proximity to masses of people, they would soon die. Students of history have seen in the manner in which rats conduct themselves, in the ways in which they work and function, a fearsome and terrifying analogy, warning and signpost of the future. They have seen in the hordes and nests of these destructive rodents a picture of today's institutes of higher education. They have seen in the urban centers of university education a force of subversion which is nourished by the masses, which requires the masses to flourish and prosper, and without mass sustenance and support faces extinction, as surely as rats die out when isolated from mass human urban settlements. They have issued their report on the state of higher education today and to read it is to read what happens when a civilization is taken over by those who seek to undermine legitimate authority and establish the systems and institutions of communist power. To read it is to read what happens when the masses adopt red philosophies, stampede into the citadels of academic instruction, sweep away subjects and courses of study dedicated to the pursuit of truth, and install agitators and propagandists as teachers and administrators to send liberal institutions spiraling into collapse. They have issued their report on a mass invasion of colleges and universities and revealed a program and manifesto for the mauling of students and the discrediting of liberal traditions by marauding, cosmopolitan, red devils intent on nothing save the destruction of civilization. Composed by those who have declared a red war against the training and disciplining of the mind, this program consists of the following points, the following missiles of black light, the following items of treachery and domestic destabilization which are scarcely comprehensible to decent, civilized, education oriented people, the following assassins' shots blasted into the darkness of a civilization engulfed in smoke and ashes. This program proclaims that a progressive university renounces the legacies of the Enlightenment, the advancement of truth and science, and seeks to create communist nations across the world. It proclaims that a progressive university condemns open inquiry and unfettered debate as corrupt liberal values. It proclaims that a progressive university demands uniformity of viewpoint, uniformity of Marxist viewpoint and identity politics viewpoint, and silences the voices of rational, antiMarxist dissent. It proclaims that a progressive university has been captured by ideologies of red intolerance and commands subservience by every student and professor. It proclaims that a progressive university evicts independent thinkers who are repelled by the lockstep environment of blind adherence to political correctness. It proclaims that a progressive university has hunted down and expelled the heretics within its ranks, those who stubbornly cling to the notion that the goal of a university should be to train students how to think, and not order them what to think. It proclaims that a progressive university prohibits students from thinking for themselves, from examining all sides of issues, from engaging in objective, neutral analyses, from speaking truth to red power, and from seeking to wrest control over classrooms from red ideologues. It proclaims that a progressive university is not a liberal university and rejects the notions of free inquiry, philosophic pluralism, the open competition of ideas, and the civilizational achievements of centuries. It proclaims that a progressive university rejects all theories of constitutional government and checks on power and teaches students the primacy of the people's unlimited collectivist state. It proclaims that a progressive university rejects the ideas which founded America and for centuries kept societies free and teaches students the superior values of social responsibility. It proclaims that a progressive university teaches students how to intrude on other people's affairs, how to manage other people's lives without their permission or consent, and how to take hold of the reins of power and supervise the people's totalitarian state. It proclaims that a progressive university teaches what is popular to teach, red politics, and what is conventional, red orthodoxy, and viciously attacks those who are doggedly determined to resist the global onslaught of anticapitalist attitudes and beliefs. It proclaims that a progressive university rejects the transmission of knowledge and has commandeered the study of philosophy, literature, history, politics, economics, mathematics, the natural sciences and the fine arts to serve the aims of red political indoctrination. Look at the campaigns of today's university reds and see them defend antiliberal, anticapitalist, antienlightenment cultures. See them condemn as an act of genocide the extermination of human appearing animals who never understood such a thing as law. See them condemn as an act of mass murder the eradication of savages who never discovered such a thing as human rights. See them condemn as an atrocity the expansion of freedom into the New World by the defeat of cruel indigenous hordes. See them advocate the reversion of civilization to barbarism as an act of restorative justice. See them collaborate with native cultures which worship at the altars of tribal tyranny and festivals of violence. See them condemn as the massacre of noble primitives the victory of reason over ignorance and science over superstition won by Western imperialists. See them proffer a moral case for the elimination of morality and the revival of brute force embodied in the native tribes of America. See them take over academic boards of directors and redirect the resources of universities to the dissemination of communist, indigenous rights and antiWestern propaganda. See them change the names of colleges, universities, institutes, faculties, departments and law schools to a single placard, a single tablet, a single slogan and a single catchphrase, which reads: Class War, Race War And Indigenous War Against Human Social And Cultural Development: "Leaders of UC Hastings College of the Law recently voted to remove the name of its founder, citing his links to the killings of Native Americans in the 1850s. The law school, the oldest in California, was founded in 1878 by Serranus Clinton Hastings, who board leaders say 'perpetrated genocidal acts against Native Californians.' 'It is time to change the name of the law school,' prominent alumnus Joseph Cotchett told The College Fix in an interview. 'I clearly think, and I've talked to many many alumni, both judges and lawyers, that are absolutely delighted that we are changing the name. Because look, we're living in a time now when you can't recognize and promote someone that did the atrocities that were done.' In a news release announcing the decision, made November 2, Hastings administrators said that because the name is written into state law, a change will require legislation. 'UC Hastings has collaborated with the Yuki People and members of other affected tribes for the last four years in pursuit of restorative justice,' said Carl Robertson, chair of the Board of Directors. The goal of our collaborations with the tribes is to bring the educational resources of the College to help address the generational trauma inflicted by Serranus Hastings.' The controversy over the name began in July 2017, when the San Francisco Chronicle published a column titled The Moral Case For Renaming Hastings College Of Law. The piece alleged that Hastings had incited a massacre of a native tribe called the Yuki in 1859. It prompted an investigation into Hastings' life and dealings. Hastings, a Democrat, was a one term member of the US House of Representatives for Iowa, where he was also chief justice of the state's highest court, the college reports. In California, drawn by the Gold Rush, he was appointed as the first Chief Justice of the California Supreme Court. Following his time on the bench, he was elected as the state's third attorney general." (California's Oldest Law School To Scrub Founder's Name Over Ties To Native American Killings by Garrett Touhill). The phrase ivory tower refers to a university environment which is disconnected from political pressure and popular agitation. It refers to a place and an atmosphere dedicated to the pursuit of truth and not beholden to the demands of the majority. In the twenty first century, the ivory tower of academia has been razed and burned to the ground by an invasion of radical masses. It lies charred and smoldering, a victim of red incendiaries of gender, race and class politics.

RED TIDE SUBMERGES FREE NATIONS

A hurricane is a violent storm whose winds have reached 120 kilometers per hour. An awesome and destructive force of nature, hurricanes are fueled by sea surface temperatures which have reached thirty degrees Celsius. When a hurricane moves over land, its hot sea fuel supply is cut off, and it weakens and dissipates. Students of history have seen in hurricanes a fitting, appropriate and terrifying analogy to the social and political situation which afflicts the world today. They have seen a white hot fuel supply in the masses, the multitudes and the people next door ignite the storms of red revolution and have seen these storms smash and sweep away the houses of freedom and liberty constructed during the Age of Enlightenment. They have seen a global movement of overthrow fueled by mass passions and prejudices, without which fearsome material, without which satanic coal, gas and oil, without which power source of criminal aims and intents, the movement would disappear in an instant, as a hurricane disappears when it makes landfall. They have issued their report on the movements and activities of the majority which have inundated every aspect and sphere of society, and to read it is to read what happens when a civilization becomes world weary, descends into moral exhaustion, and allows the lowest elements of subhuman mass existence to ride in the saddle of social, cultural and political power. To read it is to read a program and manifesto propounded by the reds, voted on unanimously by the masses, supported by the raised fists of the malcontents who presently lord over free nations, and enacted during the final stages of Western civilization. This program, this philosophy, this plan of action for the destruction of all that is free, liberal, human and flourishing, consists of a series of points shouted out from the rivers of envy, hatred, rage and rejection which course through the souls of the masses and blacken them as overflowing sewer grease and excessive soot blacken the streets and smokestacks of cities spiraling into ruin. This program proclaims that a progressive society is a cancel culture which has enabled Marxism to take over the political system. It proclaims that a progressive society is run by Big Tech socialist billionaires who have steered the masses away from the values of the Enlightenment and established communist propaganda control over the media. It proclaims that a progressive society is run by the Frankfurt school, whose leading lights, Theodore Adorno, Max Horkheimer and Herbert Marcuse, proselytize for a neoMarxist religion of gender, race and class. It proclaims that a progressive society is a postEnlightenment society whose philosophers such as Jacques Derrida have deconstructed truth and knowledge into endless iterations of tribal politics and national socialist balkanization. It proclaims that a progressive society accepts the tenets of critical theory, according to which all culture and literature, all social, historical and ideological forces, must be viewed and criticized through the prism of tribal struggle and seen as the products of the gender, race and class will to power. It proclaims that a progressive society is a red tyranny and slave society in which blacks rule over whites, women rule over men, the unsuccessful rule over the successful, the poor rule over the rich, and the antiliberal antiWesterners rule over liberal Westerners. It proclaims that race is the basis of all morality, a person's skin color determines whether he is good or evil, and whites are a race of devils who must be eradicated from the face of the earth. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the liberal doctrine of equal protection under the law without regard to gender, race, class, creed or national origin and promotes a doctrine of legal discrimination based upon tribal group membership. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the liberal doctrine that race is not the qualification for a job or a student placement, and that character and merit alone are the determinants. It proclaims that a progressive society accepts the tenets of critical race theory, according to which people and institutions must be evaluated on the basis of race, and white people and their liberal institutions must be condemned as inherently racist and oppressive and cast into the dustbin of history. It proclaims that a progressive society encourages women to hate men and to file false charges of sexual assault against them, charges based on the word of the accuser or accusers, charges which allege acts which occurred decades and decades before, charges which allege acts which took place in the context of consensual sexual relations with the accused and acts which were followed by consensual sex, and charges which allege frivolous, nonviolent acts such as nonconsensual kissing, touching or groping. It proclaims that a progressive society condemns Western imperialism because it spread freedom across the world and tamed savage continents with the scythes of reason and law. It proclaims that a progressive society is an authoritarian society which restrains all forms of speech which run contrary to Marxism and calls its regime of censorship repressive tolerance. It proclaims that a progressive society sanctions election fraud in the pursuit of socialist aims and cheated Donald Trump out of victory in the 2020 presidential election by the following means: through back dating mail in ballots, allowing unregistered voters to vote, counting vote dumps which manufactured over one million votes for Joe Biden, counting votes cast past election day, and deleting Trump votes and manufacturing Biden votes through the actions of the Dominion Smartmatic voting system founded by officials in the Chavez government and supported by Antifa. Look at the campaigns of today's reds and see them promote communism in the name of antiracism. See them take power by force and fraud and establish a race based dictatorship in the name of Black Lives Matter. See them transform schools into indoctrination camps which teach that America, whose founding documents are manifestos of liberty, was founded in racism because capitalism is a racist system. See them condemn parents who oppose communist brainwashing in schools as domestic terrorists. See them promote hatred and persecution of men at women's marches. See them rewrite history books and delete facts and truths which run counter to communist narratives, myths and legends. See them support Soviet totalitarianism and garner Soviet war prizes. See them advocate for Leninism and Stalinism in the name of racial equality and the liberation of the working class. See them promote the panthers of black racism, black violence, black rioting and black terror. See them invade courtrooms, benches and judges' chambers and gun down the rule of law. See them stock arsenals of rage and open fire on streets and squares. See them lead an intersectional movement of black supremacists and proletarian activists to overthrow the liberal democratic order. See them unlock the jails and unleash hordes of malefactors against decent, law abiding citizens. See them march under the banners of the Communist Party and the proSoviet left and spray homes, schools and offices with automatic weapons fire. See them package genocide, package the deliberate killing of a race and a class, package the mass murder of whites and the mass murder of successful people, in bright red boxes marked Marxist Economic Analysis and Marxist Theory of Revolution: "During the 2020 campaign, Angela Davis supported Joe Biden as the candidate 'who can be most effectively pressured into allowing more space for the evolving antiracist movement.' As parents have noticed, the Biden Junta is all in with BLM and 1619 Project indoctrination. Embattled parents, smeared by the Biden DOJ as domestic terrorists, might wonder about this person who wields such influence. In her Women's March speech in January, 2017, Davis proclaimed 'history cannot be deleted like Web pages'. That invites review of episodes from Davis's own history. Davis gained fame for supporting Black Panther George Jackson, who killed a guard at Soledad Prison. In 1970, Davis brought the arsenal of weapons for Jackson's brother Jonathan, who charged into a Marin County courtroom and took hostages. In the ensuing shootout, four people were killed and judge Harold Haley's head blown off. Davis fled but was arrested in New York. At her 1972 trial, more than 20 witnesses implicated her in the plot but Davis gained acquittal. The African American feminist was also a devotee of the all male, all white Soviet dictatorship, which awarded Davis the Lenin Peace Prize in 1979. The following year, Davis ran for vice president on the Communist Party USA ticket under white Stalinist Gus Hall. Davis and Hall lost to Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush in 1980 and again in 1984." (Biden's Influential Lenin Sisters by Lloyd Billingsley). Carpet bombing is large area bombardment perpetrated to inflict damage to every part of the target. As a carpet covers a floor, these explosions are designed to obliterate an entire area, its towns, cities and civilians, and this form of attack has been condemned as a war crime. Targeting every free person, free institution, free tradition, free aspiration and free society as an enemy position, the reds have brought darkness and devastation upon the face of the earth.

RED MEDIA MASTERS SHUT DOWN THE WEST

Viktor Vasnetsov was a world famous Russian painter who specialized in mythological and historical subjects. His most celebrated painting was produced in 1887 and is entitled Four Horseman Of The Apocalypse. The work depicts the Biblical legend of four allegorical mounted figures, Pestilence, War, Famine and Death, whose arrival heralds the hour of doom and the end of the world. Students of history have observed in this legend and painting a picture of the present day. They have observed, active and working among them, agents of imminent catastrophe and catastrophe now arrived, and have counted down to zero and watched civilization blow up. They have observed killers of truth and information placed on their saddles by the masses and sent forth to slay the voices of reason and the defenders of liberal democratic order. They have observed four punishments visited upon mankind, punishments brought by the masses' rejection of the legacies which for centuries animated the West, the legacies of the Enlightenment, and have observed a war of mental destruction without precedent in the history of nations. They have observed this masses' war, these figures' war, blaze out with an intensity which is matched only by the darkness which has engulfed the channels of communication, and have heard a roar of silence and censorship drown out the free and open exchange of ideas which once was the hallmark of discourse in the West. They have issued their report on the campaign against enlightenment conducted by the masses' designated proxies and to read it is to read a program and manifesto of red suppression voted upon unanimously by main street man and by the people next door. To read it is to read a program and manifesto of the masses' designated horsemen, subscribed to and accessed by billions across the planet in their efforts to stamp out honest reportage and unfettered discussion, and install red ideological lockstep in their place. To read it is to read the program and manifesto propounded by Google, Facebook, Twitter and Instagram as they run wildly and uncontrollably, as they gallop at a pace faster than the speed of light, into the hell they have constructed of mass, total, global ignorance, brought down during the final stage of Western civilization. This program proclaims that a progressive media has prohibited free speech and quashed antired dissent. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment is a radical left establishment which has seized control over the internet, burned its books, smashed its printing presses and arrested those who have dared to challenge communist orthodoxy. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment engages in content moderation and deletes articles, videos and social media posts which do not conform to the radical party line. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment prohibits users from posting blogs which support capitalism. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment encourages blogs which threaten Trump supporters with violence. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment blacklists anticommunist content and excludes it from its news feeds and YouTube videos. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment takes down content which challenges gender, race and class ideologies and bans the challengers with messages stating that their content has come into conflict with the platforms' terms of service. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment utilizes radio, television, films and the internet exclusively to spread the message of social responsibility and the rejection of individual liberty. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment prevents conservatives and libertarians from communicating with their freedom loving colleagues via social media. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment utilizes machine learning and artificial intelligence to identify and suppress what it terms fake news, which is news which is fair, objective and not biased toward antiTrump and antilibertarian viewpoints. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment is an engine of censorship which promotes critical race theory, the theory which states that whites are born racists and must be eradicated along with the white capitalist system, and promotes this in the name of Machine Learning Fairness. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment changes the results of internet searches to excludes the presentation of the global enemies of social justice and popular liberation: white males. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment utilizes a PageRank algorithm which determines how high on a results list a website will appear and positions leftist websites at the top of the list. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment utilizes autocomplete predictions of searches which steer searchers in directions promoting gender, race and class politics. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment promotes the line that conservative and libertarian speech is by definition hate speech and must be prohibited and that those who promote conservative and libertarian ideas, such as Donald Trump, must be deprived of all social media platforms. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment has established illegal aliens as a protected class of people about which nothing negative can be posted; it prohibits all statements that illegal aliens should be deported or denied access to public welfare benefits; it prohibits all criticism of illegal immigration; and it encourages postings which advise migrants on how to enter the country illegally. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment allows death threats against people of whom the reds disapprove and prohibits death threats against those of whom the reds approve. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment encourages death threats against Donald Trump and celebrates images of Trump's throat being slashed. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment has promulgated a Civic Harassment policy which protects leftist public figures from all forms of criticism. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment suppresses all evidence that Joe Biden and his family were engaged in corrupt activities in Ukraine and China. It proclaims that a progressive media establishment has banished Donald Trump from all its platforms for advocating insurrection against a lawless gang calling itself a government which certified Joe Biden's victory in an election which two thousand depositions, affidavits, reels of surveillance footage, pages of public testimony, still photographs, tabulation analyses and investigations of computer software has established as fraudulent. Look at the campaigns of today's red media masters and see them set up regimes of open and unabashed censorship. See them control the flow of information to ensure the enactment of communist laws and the election of communist candidates. See them utilize search engines and ad space power to black out the voices of conservatives, libertarians and Donald Trump. See them manipulate the electronic transmission of news to suppress antisocialist content. See them extinguish every last outlet for the free dissemination of ideas and opinions. See them establish a tyranny of political correctness whose first casualty is truth and enlightenment. See them fight against those who fight for freedom and ban the expression of viewpoints which exalt the rights of the individual against the state. See them provide platforms to fundamentalist Marxist and Muslim movements while deplatforming movements promoting constitutional rights and Western liberal order: "Just as bad as the censorship, or perhaps worse, is the propensity of Big Tech to control the flow of information to influence political outcomes. Google execs were openly speaking of using the company's search engine and ad power to ensure that Donald Trump never happened again. Facebook rigged its newsfeed, stifling conservative content. Patriots and conservatives have a right—a duty—to throw off the Big Tech oligarchs and provide new outlets for their future free speech. As Trump said in an October 20 press release, 'I created TRUTH Social and TMTG [Trump Media and Technology Group] stand up to the tyranny of Big Tech. We live in a world where the Taliban has a huge presence on Twitter, yet your favorite American president has been silenced. This is unacceptable. I am excited to send out my first TRUTH on TRUTH Social very soon. TMTG was founded with a mission to give a voice to all. I'm excited to soon begin sharing my thoughts on TRUTH Social and to fight back against Big Tech. Everyone asks me why doesn't someone stand up to Big Tech? Well, we will be soon!' " (The Spirit Of The Founders And Freedom From Big Tech Tyranny by John Larabell). Hurling out from the black expanses of Satan's antiuniverse, meteors of red revolution have crashed and exploded in the twenty first century. Those who have touched and picked up the fragments have undergone spiritual petrification and are no longer morally alive. Gazing at the pages and screens projected by the mass media reds in control of all communication, the masses have embarked upon a mission of destruction of freedom and civilization.

REDS LAUNCH RACE WAR AND CLASS WAR

In the late 1950s and early 1960s, in Arlington County, Virginia, there was a late Victorian house bedecked with swastikas. It was the barracks of the American National Socialist Party. Patrolled round the clock by rifle wielding party members and echoing with Sieg Heil salutes, it was known by its friends and enemies as Hatemonger Hill. Students of history have seen in this infamous property on Wilson Boulevard a terrifying symbol and portrait of the present day. They have seen it as the home of the West. They have seen it as the place where people throughout the world live permanently as members of a family and household dedicated to the pursuit and promotion of a virulent philosophy. In this dark place of residence, this evil accommodation, this building of inhuman habitation where hate flourishes as it never has before, the brownshirts have all been removed and the Sieg Heils have all been silenced. They have been replaced by their heirs and successors, by redshirts raising clenched fists, by the promoters of black racism and proletarian revolution, by a coalition of original Marxists and their latest black race war iterations, who have in these guises carried on the national socialist war against the liberal democratic order. Students of history have seen the house which Hitler built redecorated with the banners of old time Marxism and contemporary neoMarxism, and have seen the hammer and sickle and the black racist hands pressed tightly together cast an ugly shadow across the world, and enact the final stage of Western civilization. They have issued their report on the take over of the West by radical masses and Marxist progeny and to read it is to read the obituary of a civilization which had grown weary of existence, senescent from spiritual decay, morally and psychologically exhausted, and had lain down to rest in the graveyards of failed human social development. To read it is to read the program and manifesto of the latest proselytizers of tribal politics who have read Marx, and proclaimed that man and society must be viewed through the prism of class struggle, and read Hitler, and proclaimed that man and society must be viewed through the prism of racial struggle, and have launched black proletarian race and class war to smash the centers of law and order and return mankind to the rule of primitive social existence. Thundering with explosions from the cannons of identity politics and world anticapitalist revolution, this program proclaims that a progressive school system teaches students to hate white people and discriminate against them in the name of establishing an equitable learning environment. It proclaims that racism is an inherent part of capitalist civilization. It proclaims that the liberal notions of colorblindness, neutrality of the law and equal opportunity for all are instruments for maintaining white bourgeois power. It proclaims that the liberal notion of meritocracy empowers white people. It proclaims that a progressive society is governed by the religion of critical race theory, according to which whites are born as racist devils and have established the capitalist system to oppress and exploit the black working class. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches the tenets of critical race in the name of fighting white capitalist racism, white capitalist inequity, and white capitalist power and privilege: "Critical race theory has proven an important analytic tool in the field of education, offering critical perspectives on race, and the causes, consequences and manifestations of race, racism, inequity, and the dynamics of power and privilege in schooling." (Memorandum To Virginia Public Schools by James Lane, State Superintendent of Public Instruction). The reds' program proclaims that whites exhibit the attitudes, behaviors, beliefs and feelings of colonialists and imperialists and must be eradicated along with the imperialist system of liberal freedom, the merciless lash of white privilege. It proclaims that the only way to fight white supremacy is to overthrow the capitalist system. It proclaims that the notions of truth, objectivity, empiricism and individual rights, born in the Age of Enlightenment, are the scourges of Western white supremacy culture. It proclaims that limited government is a system of structural racism. It proclaims that society is divided into two camps, blacks and whites, and blacks are the oppressed and whites are the oppressors, and the oppressed blacks must dislodge and defeat their white oppressors. It proclaims that society is divided into two camps, the proletariat and the bourgeois, and the proletariat are the oppressed and the bourgeois are the oppressors, and the proletariat must dislodge and defeat their bourgeois oppressors. It proclaims that what a person is and who he is, his character and worth, are determined by the color of his skin and the economic class to which he belongs. It proclaims that every free nation in the West is systemically racist because freedom and liberty are systemically racist. Look at the campaigns of today's reds and see them openly and unabashedly advocate class genocide. See them proclaim that talented, successful people must be liquidated in the name of fighting climate change. See them proclaim that the producers of wealth must be eradicated in the name of reducing carbon dioxide emissions. See them proclaim that Earth is overpopulated with those who are dynamic and industrious and this class must be eliminated in the name of advancing sustainable growth. See them proclaim that diligent, ambitious, energetic people are a drain on energy systems, a burden on national resources and a smokestack of global environmental catastrophe, and must be massacred along with human freedom, progress and Western civilization: "Suspended Labor MP Claudia Webbe said that the 'rich must be abolished' in order to confront overpopulation and the so-called climate crisis. Taking to social media on Tuesday evening, Webbe wrote that the 'Earth is overpopulated; there are too many rich people,' adding: 'To solve the climate crisis; the rich must be abolished'. Her comments came in response to a report from the Cambridge Sustainability Commission on Scaling Behavior Change, which claimed that the wealthiest five per cent of the global population were responsible for 37 per cent of carbon dioxide emissions growth between the years 1990 and 2015, more than double that of the bottom 50 per cent of the world's population. The lead author of the report, Professor Peter Newell of Sussex University told the BBC: 'Rich people who fly a lot may think they can offset their emissions by tree planting schemes or projects to capture carbon from the air. But these schemes are highly contentious and they're not proven over time.' Professor Newell said that wealthy people 'simply must fly less and drive less. Even if they own an electric SUV that's still a drain on the energy system and all the emissions created making the vehicle in the first place'. Echoing the demand, the far left MP wrote: 'Eliminating energy and resource intensive lifestyles of the richest would by far rapidly reduce emissions.' The irony of Webbe's call to abolish the rich was not lost on social media users, who pointed out that with her salary as an MP she is in the top one per cent of earners globally. ConservativeHome's Mark Wallace noted that she earns £81,932 per year as an MP, which even accounting for taxes puts her in the top income bracket in the world. 'I'm not kidding, Claudia Webbe has just called for herself to be abolished,' Wallace quipped." (Abolish The Rich' To Combat Climate Crisis And Overpopulation, Says Far Left MP Claudia Webbe by Kurt Zindulka). Look at the campaigns of today's reds and see them advocate class war and class murder. See them condemn successful people as figures of horror. See them condemn free societies as systems of oppression and exploitation. See them condemn capitalists as child killers. See them condemn anticommunists as child abusers. See them spread envy and hatred across the world and lower the curtain on the world of human flourishing: "Left wing activists from the group Class War doorstepped Jacob Rees-Mogg and his family, abusing his young children, repeatedly telling them that people hate their daddy. The abusers turned up outside the leading Brexiteer's London home Tuesday afternoon, and also took aim at his nanny, telling her she has 'Stockholm syndrome' and is not paid enough. Speaking to the children, some of whom are infants, the older male activist from the group Class War said, 'your daddy is a totally horrible person' and a 'Latin eating toff. Lots of people don't like your daddy, do you know that? Lots of people hate him! You know the nanny that looks after you, Daddy doesn't pay her very much.' " (Class War Leftists Abuse Rees-Mogg's Children by Liam Deacon). Thomas Hobbes describes the state of human existence absent the rule of reason and law as a jungle of bestial license and a war of all against all. Rejecting the liberal tradition of individual dignity and the liberal culture of meritocracy, today's reds have enacted the nightmare vision of Hobbes. Rejecting the Enlightenment contract between the individual and the state according to which the latter agrees to protect the rights and freedoms of the former, the reds have launched a campaign of tribalist tyranny and violence and blasted civilization off the face of the earth.

REDS KILL THE RICH

Cannibalism is the act of human beings eating the flesh of other human beings. The practice is well documented in barbarian cultures throughout the world. From the Island Carib people of Lesser Antilles to New Guinea to Solomon Islands to the flesh markets of Melanesia to the Cannibal Isles of Fiji to the Amazon Basin to Congo to the Maori people of New Zealand to the indigenous peoples Christopher Columbus liberated, the death shroud of cannibalism has lain over nations and societies which never grasped what it means to be human. Students of history have seen in the cannibal's plunge into the darkness and abyss of that which is beyond the pale of civilized behavior a fearsome and terrifying portrait of the present day. They have seen the monster of cannibalism reanimated by the reds stalk the world and revive the evil practices of the past. They have seen governments, supported by the masses, and speaking on behalf of society, claim the right to sacrifice the rich to the poor, the successful to the unsuccessful, the producers to the nonproducers, and make cannibalism the official religion and law of the land. They have seen a class of moral cannibals rise up from the maelstroms of horror of the primitive ages, don the mantles of modern words, such as socialism, communism, egalitarianism, equalitarianism and Marxism, and recommence a rampage which submerged the wild people in nonWestern cultures in torrential rivers of blood. They have issued their report on the rise of a class of red cannibals who proclaim the right of the masses to be exempt from moral law and to dispose of the property of the rich. They have issued their report on the human flesh eaters of the present day and to read it is to read a program and manifesto of mob politics and mass democracy during its final stages of development. To read it is to read a statement of the philosophy, policies, aims and intentions of the denizens of the swamps, sewers and street corner agitations who have taken over the councils of state. To read it is to read a transcription of the words and thoughts of the new horsemen of the apocalypse, Envy, Jealousy, Covetousness, Hatred and Discontent, as they gallop into the raging storms of majority rule and main street consensus and compose the final chapter of Western civilization. Composed by today's emperors and their mobs, this program proclaims that a progressive society taxes unrealized capital gains or simply static, accumulated wealth. It proclaims that a progressive society makes everything free for the poor because it makes the rich pay for everything. It proclaims that a progressive society has enacted a plan to tax the rich and is proud that it is immoral, confiscatory, invasive and unconstitutional. It proclaims that a progressive society levies a one hundred percent tax on the superrich, the supersuccessful, the supertalented, the superambitious and the superindustrious. It proclaims that a progressive society taxes people not only on what they have earned through work or earned through selling their property, but on what they could possibly earn if they sold their property, and thus taxes everything they own. It proclaims that a progressive society forces people to sell their assets in order to pay a property tax assessed on income they never earned. It proclaims that a progressive society taxes the appreciating assets of billionaires. It proclaims that a progressive society taxes the valuable property owned by wealthy people. It proclaims that a progressive society taxes the value of assets and not merely actual income. It proclaims that a progressive society levies poll taxes, capitation taxes, direct taxes, wealth taxes and taxes on human existence. It proclaims that a progressive society taxes the whole property of individuals, their whole estates and their whole lives. It proclaims that a progressive society levies taxes on Rembrandts, diamonds, yachts and on everything which occupies space, subsists through time, and possesses physical existence. It proclaims that a progressive society taxes, in addition to actual income, potential income and nonincome income. It proclaims that the wealth of individuals is in actuality the wealth of society and must be taken away from individuals and given back to its rightful owners. It proclaims that a progressive society is not constrained by the liberal principle that people should pay taxes only on their income, which can be either earned through work or earned through the selling of assets, and in addition, imposes taxes on assets, taxes on income before it becomes income, and imposes a continual tax on the wealth and existence of all people. Look at the campaigns of today's reds and see them peddle class hatred as the highest qualification for citizenship in a progressive society. See them raise taxes on the class of the wealthy and the successful and tax them out of existence. See them condemn wealth earned by the mind as wealth stolen from the proletariat. See them seize private affluence with the pseudoauthority of the mob. See them condemn the talented and the intelligent as the parasites of the working class. See them condemn the rich as the plunderers of the poor. See them raise tax rates on the prosperous to one hundred percent in the name of justice and fairness to the loss makers and the failed. See them abolish the right to produce abundance by the use of one's skills and abilities and the right to lead a private existence free from public invasion. See them reject the right of the individual to own valuable possessions and see them seek to restructure society by sweeping freedom into the dustbin of history: "Long shot Democratic White House contender Bill de Blasio wasted no time at Wednesday's debate in highlighting his progressive credentials and in launching a broadside against the two top contenders standing center stage--former Vice President Joe Biden and Senator Kamala Harris of California. The New York City mayor vowed in his opening statement that he would raise taxes on wealthy Americans if he makes it to the White House. 'For forty years the working people have taken it on the chin in this country. For forty years the rich got richer and they paid less and less in taxes. It cannot go on this way, When I am president we will even up the score. We will tax the hell out of the wealthy to make this a fairer country.' De Blasio--who's no sure bet to make the debate stage for the upcoming third and fourth rounds of debates in September and October--also quickly targeted Biden and Harris. 'Joe Biden told wealthy donors that nothing fundamentally would change if he were president. Kamala

Harris said she's not trying to restructure society. Well, I am,' de Blasio said--as he touted his progressive credentials." (De Blasio: 'We Will Tax The Hell Out Of The Wealthy' by Paul Steinhauser). Look at the campaigns of the reds and see them lead a movement of envy gathered from the dregs of society. See them proclaim that society and not individuals creates all wealth. See them proclaim that those who do not produce wealth are entitled to the enjoy the wealth of those who produce it. See them peddle the narrative that entrepreneurial success is made possible by the mystical organism of the people. See them peddle the narrative that the masses pay for the success of the rich. See them peddle the narrative that the masses do the work of the rich. See them peddle the narrative that the lowest orders of subhuman existence protect, educate, feed, clothe and provide transportation and infrastructure to the highest orders of human achievement and are entitled to all their wealth and property. See them organize the police forces, fire forces and marauding bands of the mob and storm the offices, factories and places of business of the rich and smash and burn down the structures and accomplishments of freedom and civilization: "The Massachusetts GOP reacted to Senator Elizabeth Warren (D-MA) attributing her desire for a mass wealth tax to an 'underlying social contract' and concluded that her campaign is built entirely upon envy. Warren on Friday tweeted a flashback clip featuring remarks she made on the campaign trail in Andover, Massachusetts, in 2011. 'It's a point I've made since my very first campaign: Nobody in this country got rich on their own. They relied on infrastructure we all paid for, employees we all paid to educate. So if you're successful, good for you—now pay it forward so everyone has a chance at success.' The flashback features Warren stumping with her hallmark 'you didn't build that' narrative: 'You built a factory out there? Good for you. But I want to be clear: you moved your goods to market on the roads the rest of us paid for; you hired workers the rest of us paid to educate; you were safe in your factory because of police forces and fire forces that the rest of us paid for.'" (Massachusetts GOP: Warren Running 'Entire Presidential Campaign Based Upon Envy' by Hannah Bleau). The Clock That Went Backward is a famous fantasy story written by Edward Page Mitchell. It describes the adventures of two boys who get hold of their aunt's sixteenth century clock, run it backwards, reverse the flow of time, and step into celebrated historical events. Proclaiming that wealth is created by the hands of the masses and not by the minds of individuals, the reds have sent the clock of history racing backward into the year zero and have lowered the curtain of tribal night upon the noonday world of liberty.

BOY HERO BATTLES THE REDS

Adolescence is the period after puberty when a young person develops from a child into an adult. In this pure innocence of youth, boys and girls, on the way to becoming men and women, typically spend their time in school, working part time, playing sports, being with friends and caring for their appearance. Having neither experience nor knowledge of the complex, unpleasant aspects of life, the adolescent frolics in gardens of lightheartedness and frivolity and gives little thought for the world or the morrow. But now and again there arises, amidst this sweet, sparkling fountain of simple, unserious, carefree enjoyment, an adolescent who has grown beyond his years and has heard the call of duty. There arises a youth who sees what the youths around him do not see, who hears what the boys and girls around him do not hear, and is driven by natural law, by moral law, by the law written in the conscience of civilized people, to defend the cause of righteousness and confront the forces of evil. On August 25, 2020, one such youth, spiritually, emotionally and psychologically a grown adult far beyond his chronological years, watching communist mobs ravage Kenosha, Wisconsin, a town thirty two kilometers away from his hometown in Antioch, Illinois, decided to travel to Kenosha with a rifle to protect the lives and property of innocent people which the embattled police were unable to protect. As midnight approached in Kenosha, Kyle Rittenhouse was confronted by a member of the mob. Backing Rittenhouse into a corner, this individual tried to grab the barrel of his rifle. Rittenhouse shot him in self defense. After the individual was shot, Rittenhouse sought to turn himself in to the police. But the mob was in close and intense pursuit of him. Another member of the mob hit him on the head and he fell to the ground. Another member jumped on him, kicked him in the face, stomped his head on the pavement and tried to grab his gun. Rittenhouse shot him in self defense. Another member hit him on the head with a skateboard and tried to grab his gun. Rittenhouse shot him in self defense. Another member aimed a pistol at his face. Rittenhouse shot him in self defense. The evidence presented at the trial incontrovertibly established that Rittenhouse had shot these individuals in self defense. One of the individuals testified that Rittenhouse did not shoot him until he aimed the pistol at his face. The state's medical examiner testified that the first individual who attacked Rittenhouse must have reached for Rittenhouse's rifle. A video of the shooting showed the individual in fact reaching for the rifle. A photographer who covered the trial testified that prosecutors forced him to change his original statement to the police that Rittenhouse had shot his attackers in self defense. The story of Rittenhouse's acts of heroism and bravery and his commitment to the rule of law commenced when he first saw mobs in Kenosha set a dumpster ablaze. He sees them pushing it toward a gasoline station. He sees one of the members of the mob who would soon be the first to shoot him hurl communist rants at one of the neighborhood guards. He sees the individual set fires all around the city. He sees him burn, loot and attempt to kill. Rittenhouse gets hold of a fire extinguisher and runs to the fires. A member of the mob fires a gunshot. The first shooter of Rittenhouse, his face concealed, pursues Rittenhouse and traps him between two cars. A mob armed with bats close in on Rittenhouse. He faces the first shooter and the latter reaches for Rittenhouse's rifle barrel. After Rittenhouse shoots him in self defense, the mob shouts for an attack on Rittenhouse, shouting 'Cranium that boy!', which is street slang for "shoot him in the head". Rittenhouse runs down the street to contact the police. Another member of the mob jumps on him and he fires two shots into the air. Another member hits Rittenhouse on the back of the head with the sharp edge of a skateboard and then reaches for Rittenhouse's rifle. Rittenhouse fires a single shot at him in self defense which strikes him in the chest. Another member of the mob tries to trick Rittenhouse by faking a surrender. He then advances with a pistol aimed at Rittenhouse and Rittenhouse fires a single shot at him in self defense, hitting him in the leg. This individual later told his friend: "My only regret was not killing the kid, hesitating to pull the trigger, and not emptying the entire magazine into him." Another member of the mob raises his arms in genuine surrender and Rittenhouse holds his fire. As Rittenhouse moves toward the police, multiple gunshots are fired behind him. The next day, Rittenhouse surrenders to the police. Look at the exploits of a young soldier of liberty and see him declare war on hammer and sickle supremacists. See him hoist the flag of victory for the rule of law. See him repulse the tides of communist mobs who seized control over the streets. See him endure the slanders launched against him, stand up to the red masters in control of the cultural, political and media establishment, and champion the right of decent, law abiding citizens to resist a red onslaught which has burned, looted and destroyed the people and institutions of civilized society: "Media leftists called him a vigilante and domestic terrorist. The Smear Bund on Twitter called him a racist and murderer. The sleepy occupant of the White House called him a white supremacist. But the jury in the case against Kyle Rittenhouse did not agree. In a victory for the rule of law and a crushing defeat for the communist mobs who think they rule American streets, twelve jurors at the Kenosha County Courthouse acquitted the eighteen year old on all charges for defending himself against rioting thugs during last year's Blake riots. The verdict doesn't just free Rittenhouse to get on with this life. It sends a message to the communist mobs and their masters in the Deep State and Democrat Party: Don't think you will burn, loot, and destroy property, and get away with it, when you attack those who stand in the way." (Message From Rittenhouse Jury: Communist Mobs Will Not Rule the Streets by R. Cort Kirkwood). Look at the exploits of a young soldier of liberty and see him fight back against the enforcers of red tyranny who have expelled law and order from society. See him overcome by a show of fierce determination the communist enemies of the free world. See him risk life and limb to defend the homes and businesses of people under attack by red brigades without moral or legal authority. See him fearlessly confront the armies of communists, fascists and black power racists which have surged across the world and smashed the houses of liberal democracy. See this brave boy and paragon of courage and nobility do battle with all his heart and soul, and with all the weapons at his disposal, to crush the red daggers of treason reaching up to the highest levels of government, and the armed thugs of Antifa and Black Lives Matter which have taken over the streets, to ensure the success and survival of freedom and civilization: "Of course Kyle Rittenhouse is an American hero. His home town and the country he loved were under attack by fascist vigilantes because a treasonous governor and president refused to call out the national guard to protect the citizens and businesses of Kenosha. Though only 17, Rittenhouse risked his life to do so. If that's not an American hero, I don't know what is. The battle we are facing and will face for years to come is about the survival of our country, and every patriot will be counted." (Kyle Rittenhouse Is An American Hero by David Horowitz). Look at the exploits of a young soldier of liberty and see him triumph in a corrupt legal system hijacked by the reds. See him kill Marxist thugs in self defense. See him combat waves of violence and destruction set into motion by the storm troops of communist revolution. See him carry bravery and heroism to new heights by wading into rivers of blood and repulsing a red assault emanating from the streets, the squares, the cabinet offices, the executive suites and the ivory towers of treason: "Against all odds, the verdict came down just the way it would have before there came to be a two tier justice system in America, with leftists enjoying the privilege that they claim white people enjoy, and evading all legal consequences no matter how egregiously they flout the law. Kyle Rittenhouse was acquitted of all charges, as was only fitting and proper: it was abundantly clear from video evidence that he acted in self defense in the killings of Anthony Huber and Joseph Rosenbaum, and the wounding of Gaije Grosskreutz. It was so clear that he was defending himself, in fact, that he should never have been tried in the first place, and only was put on trial in order to appease leftists outraged that he had dared to resist the violent rioters they have appallingly likened to the heroes who stormed the Normandy beaches." (Kyle Rittenhouse is Free--And The Left Is Enraged by Robert Spencer). Human history affords few examples of youthful heroism and moral seriousness. When they appear, they shine out as points of light amidst the darkness of adolescent mediocrity and send forth a radiance which is as rare as it is magnificent. In the early fifteenth century, a young woman appeared in France guided by the voices of righteousness. She endured torture and faced death by fire for the liberation of her homeland. Civilized people who read the story of Joan of Arc shake their heads in wonder and amazement. They see the flames of her martyrdom race down the corridors of time and light up the life of Kyle Rittenhouse.

THE REDS' COVID POLICE

The doctrine that the end justifies the means has blighted and pockmarked the history of politics since time immemorial. Given its present formulation by Sergey Nechayev, the nineteenth century Russian communist revolutionary, the doctrine has been in circulation since ancient times and has shocked and dismayed the philosophers of righteousness for thousands of years. The doctrine proclaims that social goals are morally primary goals and any methods whatever are acceptable for achieving them. It proclaims that social aims justify any form of cruelty employed to realize them. It proclaims that social policies must be judged according to their outcomes and all means whatever are permissible to reach them. It proclaims that there are no limitations whatever upon the use of public power to attain social ends and nothing whatever to prevent red tyranny from unleashing untold horrors upon the world in the pursuit of the good of society. Students of history have seen this monster stalk civilized people in every nation on earth. They have seen it harass the defenders of individual rights. They have seen it persecute the voices of constitutional liberty. They have seen it sacrifice the individual upon the altar of the state and incinerate legal frameworks dedicated to the protection of man as a free born agent with a right to live, work and flourish for himself. They have seen the latest manifestation of this monster appear in the twenty first century in the form of a red despot abusing the offices of state for the protection of public health, and have seen violations of human rights commence once again, and now be placed on lockdown, shut down, home invasion, forcible vaccination and violations of associational freedom by a series of executive orders, emergency proclamations and legislative statutes promulgated in the name of fighting the covid 19 pandemic. They have issued their report on this latest violation of the rights of the individual by a red god called the Community and to read it is to read what happens when a civilization, pushed by its masses, accelerates into free fall and abandons the traditions and institutions which keep man free. To read it is to read a program and manifesto of a red abuse of governmental authority perpetrated in the name of public health which has rivaled red crimes against humanity perpetrated in the name of the working class, social justice, economic democracy and popular liberation. Composed of a series of points blasted out of the barrels of mass democracy and the man next door's desire to be protected by the state from all the risks and ills attendant upon life, this program proclaims that a progressive society overreaches and violates constitutionally protected rights in the name of stopping the spread of covid 19. It proclaims that a progressive society is ruled by an executive who has been empowered to do whatever he desires, and to violate people's rights, in the name of a public health emergency. It proclaims that a progressive society empowers the national government to infringe upon local control and personal freedom in order to combat covid 19. It proclaims that a progressive society mandates the wearing of health masks without regard to freedom of choice. It proclaims that a progressive society orders people to keep two meters away from each other in public without regard to the right of individuals to place themselves in physical closeness or contact with others in any consensual manner they wish. It proclaims that a progressive society invades private homes and dictates the number of occupants the owners may have in the name of protecting public health. It proclaims that a progressive society forces people to be vaccinated against covid 19 without regard to their personal rights or desires. It proclaims that the choice to vaccinated or not is not a choice which the individual should be allowed to make but which society alone, as the owner of the individual, should be allowed to make. It proclaims that a progressive society violates fundamental constitutional choices in order to protect the public against a disease pandemic. It proclaims that a progressive society violates the separation of powers, individual rights and the rule of law by placing unlimited power in the hands of an executive in order to stop the spread of covid infections. It proclaims that a progressive society deprives people of personal freedoms and choices in the name of public health and public safety. It proclaims that a progressive society promulgates intrusive, invasive and unconstitutional health mandates. It proclaims that a progressive society places the safety of families above the protection of individual rights. It proclaims that a progressive society is run by radicals and extremists who disvalue citizens' freedoms because such present insuperable obstacles to the maintenance of perfect public health. It proclaims that a progressive society gives legal force to executive orders concerning public health which violate the rights of individuals. It proclaims that a progressive society sanctions overreaches in state power in the name of protecting public health. It proclaims that a progressive society is prepared to decimate its workforces from refusals of workers to obey vaccine mandates. It proclaims that a progressive society controls personal decisions in the name of controlling disease. It proclaims that a progressive society grants the state the power to force people to do things which violate their personal beliefs in the name of mitigating the spread of covid 19. It proclaims that a progressive society has declared war on liberal culture and the liberal way of life, in which power and sovereignty belong to the individual and not to the state or community, in the name of protecting public health. It proclaims that a progressive society forces government officials to violate their oaths to defend the constitution, which limits the power of the government and protects the freedoms of the people, in the name of containing the covid pandemic. It proclaims that a progressive society forces people to inject drugs into their body as a legitimate exercise of its police power for the protection of public health. Look at the campaigns of the reds' covid police and see them feed freedom into the ravenous maw of state dictatorship. See them force people to take covid vaccines against their will. See them open up the prison gates for those who resist. See them place people and businesses under never ending lockdowns and shutdowns. See them treat those who have chosen not to be vaccinated as Stalin treated the enemies of the proletariat and Hitler treated the Jews: as contemptible dross unworthy of human rights. See them place free people under house arrest, confine them to their homes, and allow them to leave only for purposes deemed acceptable by the state. See them launch a fundamental attack on human rights and liberties. See them commit an intrusion surpassing all other intrusions. See them violate the physical integrity of the human person by subjecting people to a regime of compulsory vaccinations. See them cross a fearsome and terrifying line, the line of all embracing totalitarian control, and send Western civilization collapsing past the point of no return: "The Austrian government has announced it will be forcing all residents to take a Wuhan virus vaccine. Those who refuse will face heavy fines and possible prison sentences starting in February. Austria will be the first major country in Europe to force its citizens to take the vaccine or face fines or potential prison sentences for not doing so. The move comes as the government has also placed the entire country under a strict twenty day lockdown, just days after it locked down the unvaccinated nationwide. The new lockdown measures will begin on Monday, November 22nd, according to a report from the newspaper Kronen Zeitung and will see Austrians largely confined to their homes and only allowed to travel for essential purposes such as purchasing food or outdoor exercise, although schools and kindergartens will remain open. Although the general lockdown is scheduled to end on December 12th, it will remain in place for those who are not vaccinated against the coronavirus indefinitely and, as mentioned previously, from February 2022 all Austrian residents will be mandated by law to take the vaccine. Austrian Chancellor Alexander Schallenberg commented on the drastic new measures, saying that previously there had been 'a political consensus that we do not want compulsory vaccination, and I also assumed that people should be persuaded to be vaccinated.' He stated that 'too many political forces, flimsy opponents of vaccination and fake news' had contributed to Austria having one of the lowest vaccination rates in Europe. Herbert Kickl, the leader of the populist Freedom Party (FPO) and former interior minister, said the mandatory vaccination proposal crossed a 'dark red line' and declared 'Austria is a dictatorship today!' " (Austria: Unvaccinated Could Face Prison As Country Locks Down And Announces Vaccine Mandate by Chris Tomlinson). In the concentration camps of the Third Reich, scientists used inmates to test immunization compounds and antibodies for the treatment of contagious diseases, such as malaria, typhus, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, yellow fever and infectious hepatitis, without the inmates' consent. Secrets photographs of these medical crimes were taken behind the barracks of the camps and horrified those among whom they later circulated. From the houses of red political tyranny staffed by the commissars of the Soviet Union and the Third Reich have come the spirits of civilizational decline. Riding on horses marked The Protection Of Public Health and The Fight Against Covid 19, they are wailing like banshees of the death of free born man.

HR BILL 5376: THE BUILD BACK COMMUNISM BETTER ACT

Resurrection is the religious notion of coming back to life after death. It is standard belief in Judaism, Christianity and Islam, while Haitian folklore projects a world of the undead created through the reanimation of human corpses. The zombie in the traditional Haitian belief is a dead person brought back to life through magic. Common sense understands that death is a state of cessation and finality, a permanent end of vital processes, and that death can no more be changed into life than death can be nondeath and A can be non A. Students of history have observed that ideas and doctrines which were once thought to be dead were never really so, and were never resurrected or brought back to life, but merely changed their form and appearance, and continued to haunt and stalk nations and societies. They have observed that a paradigmatic illustration of the eternal life of a doctrine, a life in which a doctrine merely changes its outer clothing and garb while maintaining its inner form and essence, is communism. They have observed that communism is a monster which never dies as long as the masses possess power and walk the earth. They understand that as long as the demons of envy, hatred, rage and discontent are allowed to ride in the saddles of government and to place the masses and their proxies in public office, communism will never cease its depredations and will live a thousand lives and appear in untold guises to rain down misery and hardship upon the earth. They understand that communism is the immortal soul of the masses and can only be slayed and buried if the masses themselves are put out of business and prevented from running the affairs of mankind. They have observed the latest manifestation of communism appear in the world's arsenal of human hope, which arsenal has presently been raided by the masses, and its guns and ammunition taken out and deployed cut down the voices of freedom and liberty. They have observed that communism has reappeared in America in a bill passed by the United States House of Representatives, and that the ugly, frightening, unpleasant creature of legalized criminal violence has raised up its head again and composed the obituary of the nation. They have issued their report on this bill and to read it is to read a notice of death of a once preeminent land of freedom. It is to read a tragedy of immense significance and far reaching ramifications for the cause of liberty throughout the world. It is to read a program and manifesto of passion and prejudice which has been the signature and trademark of the masses since the days of the Roman emperors and their masses, and since the time before those dark, tyrannical days. Passed in November 2021, passed with overwhelming support from the Democrat Party, from the national cultural, political, media and academic establishment, and from the American citizen next door and the denizens of America's Main Street, the bill is the marquee legislation of the Biden administration and the loudest signpost around of the moral cancer which is sweeping the nation. The bill proclaims that a progressive society has established socialist price controls which involve the federal government setting the price of prescription drugs. It proclaims that a progressive society has established an expansive banking surveillance apparatus whose agents bring civil and criminal cases against successful, hardworking Americans. It proclaims that a progressive society provides public funding for medical schools which hire faculty and recruit students based on race and give preferential treatment to nonwhites. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes the view that white Americans are inherently racist and the capitalist system deprives nonwhites of freedom and opportunity. It proclaims that a progressive society provides public funding for radical environmental groups which plant trees and roll back progress in the name of achieving "tree equity". It proclaims that a progressive society promotes critical race theory, according to which race should be the prism of all social criticism, and whites along with their capitalist system are inherently oppressive and bigoted. It proclaims that a progressive society provides public funding for job training curricula which promote black racism and discrimination against whites. It proclaims that a progressive society refers to pregnant women as "pregnant individuals" in the name of recognizing the existence of transgender individuals. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes the myth that gender can be changed and is not determined by genes and chromosomes. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished modern industry in the name of fighting climate change. It proclaims that a progressive society expands welfare entitlements for nonwhites and homosexuals. It proclaims that a progressive society subjects businesses which conduct more than 600 dollars in transactions to extra tax penalties. It proclaims that a progressive society grants Internal Revenue Service agents the power to issue tax penalties without the approval of their supervisors. It proclaims that a progressive society provides public funding for Community Based Violence Intervention Initiatives whose goal is to violate the constitutional right to keep and bear arms. It proclaims that a progressive society grants welfare benefits to able bodied adults without work requirements imposed of any kind. It proclaims that a progressive society provides public funding to colleges and universities to indoctrinate students in Green New Deal policies which seek to repeal the Industrial Revolution in the name of advancing "environmental justice". It proclaims that a progressive society provides student aid and tax credits to illegal immigrants. It proclaims that a progressive society imposes massive financial penalties on businesses which hire workers who have exercised their constitutional right to refuse the covid vaccine. It proclaims that a progressive society imposes massive financial penalties on businesses which do not meet union demands for control over the workplace. It proclaims that a progressive society provides public subsidies for union dues. It proclaims that a progressive society provides public funding to schools to procure "culturally appropriate foods" in order to achieve the aims of politically correct food consumption. It proclaims that a progressive society imposes massive taxes on natural gas in the pursuit of the radical left antiindustrial agenda. It proclaims that a progressive society provides public funding in the form of "environmental and climate justice block grants" to repeal technological and industrial progress. It proclaims that a progressive society engages in social engineering and establishes "green energy" tax credits for the purchase of politically correct electric vehicles. It proclaims that a progressive society provides public funding for multifarious "equity and social justice initiatives" to promote preferential treatment on the basis of gender, race, class and culture. It proclaims that a progressive society grants deportation protection, work permits, travel permits, drivers' licenses and release from jail to illegal aliens. It proclaims that a progressive society has prohibited mineral and energy exploration on federal lands and prohibited energy production in the Arctic, and has made America in consequence an energy dependent nation. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a paid worker leave entitlement regime which mandates four weeks of paid leave under which employees may self attest their eligibility. It proclaims that a progressive society has expanded Affordable Car Act subsidies and included millions more in its health care entitlement program. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a welfare benefits program for individuals experiencing "loneliness" and "social isolation". It proclaims that a progressive society has expanded employer mandates to provide health coverage to employees. It proclaims that a progressive society provides public funding in the form of Community Climate Incentive Grants to states which advance the radical left agenda of limiting automobile travel, factory production and industrial development. It proclaims that a progressive society has established a global socialist regime which imposes a global minimum tax on corporations to prevent individual nations from offering greater freedom. It proclaims that a progressive society has increased health care taxes on small businesses. It proclaims that a progressive society has established an 87,000 man Internal Revenue Service army to violate the constitutionally guaranteed right of privacy of Americans and review all bank accounts which register more than 10,000 dollars worth of transactions per year. Common sense understands the principle that every event has a cause as a fundamental principle of reality. It understands that nothing in nature occurs causelessly or by chance and that without a cause nothing can happen, commence or arise. Students of history have identified causal links and tie ins operating in the realm of human affairs. They have identified iron necessities which cannot be violated or evaded. They have identified the law that democracy leads to communism, that mass voting establishes totalitarian government, and that majorities everywhere and throughout the ages have raised their fists and voted yes to the destruction of civilization.

THE RED CULT OF DEATH

Ulrike Meinhof. Andreas Baader. Gudrun Ensslin. Jan-Carl Raspe. Holger Meins. Ingrid Schubert. Adolf Hitler. Joseph Goebbels. Heinrich Himmler. Herman Goering. Robert Ley. Martin Bormann. These leading political figures are holding up a tent. It is an evil tent which has stretched across the decades. Dying by suicide at the hands of their beliefs, these figures from the netherworld of Marxist and neoMarxist politics, these faces of death reaching from the Third Reich to the Red Army Faction, have woven a cloth from the garment of the Grim Reaper. They have raised up this cloth with mighty poles, stretched it tight with cords and loops attached to pegs driven into the Devil's ground, and brought down the Death Night of the West during the wintertime of its existence. These figures are the symbols of an age, a society, a culture and a civilization during its final, fearsome stages of development. These figures lived their lives in accordance with their beliefs, went down to destruction, voluntarily, by their own hands, in accordance with their beliefs, and returning to the maelstrom of horror from whence they arose, symbolized a terrifying religion of death and destruction which had taken control over the world and paraded its worship of nonbeing and negation under the doctrines of gender, race and class politics. These figures killed themselves because they were in love with death and sought to return to the arms of their master. Deprived of rational intelligence and moral conscience, they trained their bayonets upon themselves after they blew up the world around them, and celebrated in their hearts and souls as they and the world they assaulted descended into the funeral pyres of total incineration. A catalog of death by suicide among the membership of the Red Army Faction and the leadership of the Third Reich is without precedent in the history of politics and comprises a veritable who's who of these movements. Reaching into high double digit figures, it serves as a stark warning and reminder of the sweeping, pervasive, merciless character of the red cult of death which has seized control over society. The program and manifesto of these reds who died by suicide is the program and manifesto of the world today as it spirals into collapse from its worship of death. It is the program and manifesto of reds of all stripes and varieties who are united in their hatred of existence and their desire to see themselves and the world around them go up in flames upon altars marked Class Genocide, Race Genocide and Gender Genocide. Composed by figures who sought the destruction of the world and the destruction of themselves, this is a program and manifesto of red philosophy in its monstrous essence as a cult of mass suicide committed in a setting of soul malaria and intoxicated fever induced by the narcotics of red propaganda. This program proclaims that there is no objective existence, truth, morality, value or meaning but only that which is relative to gender, race or class. It proclaims that outside the prisms of gender, race and class, values are baseless, life is meaningless, knowledge is impossible and physical entities do not exist. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes political terrorism to achieve human liberation. It proclaims that a progressive society is free of all universal moral authority and exempt from all universal moral law. It proclaims that a progressive political movement is a militant, leftist movement which stages kidnappings, assassinations and bomb attacks in the pursuit of its agenda. It proclaims that a progressive political movement kills judges, politicians and captains of industry in order to avenge the exploitation of the working class. It proclaims that a progressive political movement kills business people, tourists, and airline passengers in its struggle against Western imperialism. It proclaims that a progressive political movement kills passengers on commuter trains and crowds on double decker buses in its struggle to protect the victimized and marginalized people of the earth. It proclaims that a progressive political movement kills pedestrians, onlookers and people who happen to be in the wrong place at the wrong time in order to fight the pig state of capitalism and liberal democracy. It proclaims that a progressive political movement kills anyone who supports the free market on the grounds that he is guilty of the murder of women, nonwhites and the poor. It proclaims that a progressive political movement kills people randomly and kills the citizens of the free world in protest against rampant consumerism and capitalist opportunity. It proclaims that a progressive political movement demands the release of mass murderers from jail and threatens to kill innocent people if they are not released and follows through on its threats. It proclaims that a progressive political movement is an army of suicide bombers whose target is the world of stability, integrity and rational existence, who die on peaks of euphoria induced by thoughts of the harm caused to themselves and to others. It proclaims that a progressive political movement is a gang of rebels dedicated to the destruction of liberal laws and human flourishing. Look at the campaigns of today's reds and see far left extremist groups spreading terror across the globe. See red operations designed to instigate chaos and crime. See red hooligans disrupt peaceful gatherings of law abiding citizens. See the bearers of red banners throw cities and nations into convulsions and upheavals. See Stalinists work assiduously to complete the program of their Soviet Marshal and extend the reach of mass extermination into every sector of society. See red brigades clash with the law and kill as many innocent people as they can. See Maoist red guards launch campaign of turbulence and disruption which seek to put an end to advanced humanity. See red militant organizations pummel free nations with bombings, assassinations, kidnappings and shoot outs with the police. See red factions commit criminal offenses in the name of political action and worship at the altars of the communist working class. See red urban guerrillas commit murder and mayhem in the name of anticolonialism and antiimperialism. See red riots break out in the name of equity and inclusion for women and nonwhites. See red rampages roar like wildfire and consume free people in the white heat of revolutionary eruptions. See red extermination squads commit crimes against humanity in the name of justice for the disadvantaged and the oppressed. See the students of Antonio Gramsci, Frantz Fanon, Che Guevara, the Frankfurt school and the new left declare their support for a red regime of property destruction, coercion of people and killing helter skelter without precedent in the annals of political history. See the heirs and successors of Marx listen faithfully to their master's voice and meticulously carry out his plan of world destruction, the overthrow of human freedom and total rejection of the legacies of the Enlightenment: "Janez Jansa, prime minister of of Slovenia, has labeled the far left extremist group Antifa an 'international terrorist organization' following violence in France over the weekend Prime Minister Jansa made his comments on social media network Twitter, saying: 'Antifa is a global terrorist organization. Supported by the capital of financial speculators forging profits at the expense of the chaos caused by the operation.' The Slovenian leader was reacting to a post by American journalist Andy Ngo which highlighted Antifa violence over the weekend in the French city of Nantes which saw the far left extremists attempt to disrupt a meeting of the conservative writer and French presidential hopeful Eric Zemmour. According to a report from the newspaper Le Figaro, around 600 far left extremists gathered in Nantes to oppose Zemmour on Saturday and some chanted for his death and clashed with police. 'We know who Joseph Stalin was, we know the hundreds of thousands of deaths he caused, these people are only his distant descendants,' Zemmour said in reaction to the far left extremists. Footage of the violence, as well as graffiti calling for Zemmour to be murdered, was reported by French journalist Clement Lanot. Prime Minister Janez Jansa is not the first world leader to label Antifa as a terrorist group. Former U.S. President Donald J. Trump urged former Secretary of State Mike Pompeo to designate Antifa as a terrorist group earlier this year before leaving office. The year prior, former US Attorney General William Barr stated that Antifa members were involved in violence that amounted to domestic terrorism. 'The violence instigated and carried out by Antifa and other similar groups in connection with the rioting is domestic terrorism and will be treated accordingly,' Barr said. In 2019, when President Trump first discussed declaring Antifa a terrorist group, left wing figures across Europe, particularly in Germany, reacted by declaring their support for the extremist group." (Slovenian Prime Minister: Antifa Is 'International Terrorist Organization' by Chris Tomlinson). Paul Merwart was a French painter and illustrator whose most famous work was The Nihilist, painted in 1882. Students of history have gazed into the face of the subject as he lies dead in a dark forest and have seen the faces of red terror pass through their minds. They have seen the faces of Marxist insurgency, violence, mania and psychosis pull the trigger and kill the world around them and kill themselves on the final page of the final chapter of the story of mankind.

RED ACID DISSOLVES BORDERS

Descriptions of the ocean abound in the literature of the world. In The Sea And The Hills, Rudyard Kipling describes the ocean as heaving, crashing, halting and unbounded. In Moby Dick, Herman Melville describes it as a panting, remorseless tiger. In The Little Mermaid, Hans Christian Andersen describes it as pure infinite depth without ground. In 20,000 Leagues Under The Sea, Jules Verne describes it as an immense, living, stirring desert. Students of history have seen in these literary images a fearsome and terrifying representation of the state of a nation's borders when the nation is caught in the death throes and death agony of decline into nothingness. They have seen world powers and arsenals of freedom throughout the West crumble from within, knifed in the back by their red masses, their borders subjected to erosion and dissolution, their shining souls hurled by the mob into the dustbin of history. They have observed the nations of the West careen ignominiously down the road which ancient Rome traveled, down the road which every nation and society in a state of free fall has traveled, and crash into their final destination as overtaxed, overspent hulks, ravaged by the cancer of inflation, stripped of their boundaries and borders, invaded by alien peoples and beliefs, and drained of all freedom by the vampires of welfare entitlement, executive dictatorship and unfettered majority rule. They have seen the nations of the West die at their own hands, die by allowing hordes of foreign pests to enter and settle within their precincts, die by losing their fundamental will to exist. They have issued their report on the dissolution of Western nations into raging, formless oceans of anarchy and iniquity and to read it is to read what happens when the masses take over societies and storm the ramparts of liberty and law. To read it is to read a program and manifesto of mass control over the structures and traditions of civilization, crushing them within a vice grip of red treachery and subversion, and depriving them of the moral oxygen needed to exist. Composed in the homes, offices, colleges, parliaments, editorial rooms and street corners of the far left establishment which rules over the West, this program proclaims that a progressive society allows caravan marches comprised of 70,000 pathogens from its southern neighbors to cross a border which no longer exists and step through a wall left unfinished by the opponents of Donald Trump. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has rolled out a welcome mat for undocumented migrants because they are undocumented communists, with the attitude of the more, the better, in order swamp the voices of constitutional liberty. It has proclaimed that a progressive society pays illegal rat parents who have been separated from their rat children under Donald Trump's zero tolerance policy 450,000 dollars per rat parent in reparations and compensation. It has proclaimed that a progressive society allows 700 million people from South and Central America to settle in the United States and transform its political character and coloration. It has proclaimed that a progressive society allows raw sewage sporting sombreros to scale its walls, walk through its portals, receive amnesty and become naturalized. It has proclaimed that illegal migrants who engage in gang warfare, run drug cartels and organize global terror networks are human individuals, human persons and human faces who must be listened to, respected and given citizenship papers. It has proclaimed that a progressive society extends maximum hospitality toward illegal migrants and exalts them as the angels of the earth. It has proclaimed that the benefits of allowing illegal migrants to settle in society far outweigh the costs and include the enrichment of society with the leaven of a solid, unswerving, multimillion strong socialist voting bloc. It has proclaimed that illegal immigration should be allowed from political considerations to help advance the radical left agenda. It has proclaimed that the scum of the earth, the typhoons of human regression, the carriers of random violence and the crusaders of religious extremism, are all members of the human family, and all should be allowed to settle freely in the West and become citizens. It has proclaimed that the requirement that migrants be carefully and critically examined, and if necessary, rejected on the basis of moral character, is an excessively restrictive policy and has no place in a progressive, tolerant and equitable society. It has proclaimed that a progressive society has abolished its border checkpoints, removed its migrant detention camps, and allowed the free movement of criminal networks erupting from the bowels of the earth. Look at the campaigns of today's reds and see the enactment of policies to increase immigration to stratospheric heights and include the families, and families of families, of political subversives. See a campaign to radically change immigration policy and allow the sworn enemies of liberal democracy a legal route to settlement. See leftist coalitions flash the lights of red revolution into the faces of the people and lead them, mesmerized, to open up the borders and unleash an invasion of insurgents. See migrants from distant deserts swirling with fear and superstition granted maximum protection by host nations in the name of inclusion, diversity and multiculturalism. See a campaign to grant asylum and refugee status to individuals promoting ideologies of hatred and fanaticism. See a campaign to create humanitarian corridors to migrants who have rejected all forms of humaneness and benevolence in their worship of violence under the banners of the red crescent and the red star. See a campaign to grant residency permits to nationals from lands of moral and political squalor. See a campaign to prevent the deportation of criminals listed in the top ranks of international wanted lists. See a campaign to encourage illegal immigration and sanction immigration abuse. See a campaign to invite illegal migrants to devastate free nations and undermine their social systems. See a campaign to unlock the gates protecting free nations, exclude no one who seeks to enter, and abolish national existence. See a campaign to make migrants with the education, training, experience and social circumstances of political and religious psychotics eligible for permanent citizenship. See a campaign to prevent the governments of free societies from protecting their citizens by stopping the flow of illegal immigration and forcing the soldiers of terror to remain outside the nation. See a campaign to allow the enemies of enlightenment to cross the channels into civilized societies and bring about the downfall and defeat of liberal humanity: "The incoming German leftist coalition government has vowed to increase immigration to Germany by allowing more migrants to bring family members to the country, a phenomenon known as chain migration. The coalition plan between the Social Democrats (SPD) led by incoming Chancellor Olaf Sholz, the Free Democrats (FPD), and the Greens will radically change Germany's immigration policy, with the coalition parties agreeing to create more legal routes for migration in hopes of deterring illegal migration. According to a report from the European Union funded news website InfoMigrants, the new leftist coalition, nicknamed the traffic light coalition, will allow not only more recognized refugees to bring family members to Germany but will allow those with subsidiary protection—a lesser form of refugee status typically afforded to those in jeopardy of harm if the return to their country— to do the same. Subsidiary protection makes up a large section of migrants who have been granted some form of residency in Germany, with figures from 2019, alone, showing that 19,419 people were given subsidiary protection compared to 45,053 who were granted refugee status that year. The coalition has also agreed to make attempts to decrease asylum case waiting times, while at the same time claiming that they will work to ensure that those in Germany illegally are deported from the country. Another expected major change in Germany's migration policy is a proposal to create so-called humanitarian corridors for those fleeing their countries, such as Afghans fleeing the rule of the Taliban. Some have claimed that as many as three million Afghan nationals may attempt to reach Europe in the near future after the fall of the country to the Taliban in August. The coalition deal will also allow any migrants living in Germany for five years the right to a one year residency permit as long as they have no criminal background. Some who have been in Germany for as few as three years could be eligible for German citizenship as well. The coalition also wants to introduce measures to allow residents to hold dual citizenship with other countries." (Incoming Leftist Coalition Government in Germany To Open Doors To Mass Chain Migration by Chris Tomlinson). On August 29, 1945, the Soviet Union conducted its first nuclear weapons test at the Semipalatinsk Test Site in Kazakhstan. Code named First Lightning by the Soviets and Joe I, after Joseph Stalin, by the Americans, the bomb's heat, blast, radiation and radioactive debris inflicted moral and political destruction throughout the world. This was the world wide triumph of the red menace and its onslaught against the borders, fences, gates and walls defending freedom and civilization.

ABORTION RIGHTS PROPERLY GROUNDED

A premise is a statement from which another statement is logically inferred or logically follows as a conclusion. From the premise that people who use narcotics have psychological problems follows the conclusion that Peter who uses narcotics has psychological problems. From the premises that Peter is a man and that man is a rational animal follows the conclusion that Peter has the capacity to reason. Since contradictions cannot exist, if one arrives at an error in one's conclusions, there is an error in the premises, and the failure to find the error will sabotage one's thinking. Legal scholars who have studied court decisions on abortion rights have discovered a paradigmatic instance of false, unchecked premises leading arguments astray. They have detected an error in the premises of abortion rights advocates which has led to incoherent conclusions. The premise is that a fetus which is merely viable or merely able to live outside the womb possesses on that account a right to life which is recognizable by the state. The conclusion is that abortion is a right before the fetus becomes viable and is not a right after the fetus becomes viable. This standard of viability in the determination of the legal rights of a fetus is proclaimed in Roe versus Wade (1973), the landmark decision handed down by the United States Supreme Court which established the right to an abortion. According to the court, if a fetus has the capability of existing independently outside the womb, then it enjoys a right to life protectable by the state, whether or not it actually exists as a rational person: "With respect to the state's important and legitimate interest in potential life, the compelling point is at viability. This is so because the fetus then presumably has the capability of meaningful life outside the mother's womb. State regulation protective of fetal life after viability thus has both logical and biological justifications. If the state is interested in protecting fetal life after viability, it may go so far as to proscribe abortion during that period, except when it is necessary to preserve the life or health of the mother." Listen to the court in Roe versus Wade proclaim that the right to abortion only exists before the time at which a fetus becomes viable, and that after such time, a fetus has a constitutionally protected right to life, even though it exists only as a potentially human person and not as an actually human person. Hear it proclaim that the state has a legitimate interest in protecting the potentiality of human life and not only the reality of human life: "(a) For the stage prior to approximately the end of the first trimester, the abortion decision and its effectuation must be left to the medical judgment of the pregnant woman's attending physician. (b) For the stage subsequent to approximately the end of the first trimester, the State, in promoting its interest in the health of the mother, may, if it chooses, regulate the abortion procedure in ways that are reasonably related to maternal health. (c) For the stage subsequent to viability, the state in promoting its interest in the potentiality of human life may, if it chooses, regulate, and even proscribe, abortion except where it is necessary, in appropriate medical judgment, for the preservation of the life or health of the mother." (Roe versus Wade (1973)). Legal scholars have observed that the question of when life begins or when a fetus becomes viable is irrelevant in the determination of abortion rights. They have observed that a viable fetus is not necessarily a human fetus, and that it is a human fetus alone which possesses legal rights. They have observed that it is as plain as daylight that a fifteen week old fetus, held by the Gestational Age Act passed by Mississippi in 2018, to be viable and thus subject to legal protection, lacks the actuality of human reasoning powers which alone define personhood and distinguish human beings from animals. They have observed that nonhuman life forms may potentially be human beings but in their present actual state cannot reasonably be held to enjoy constitutional protection. The definition of human personhood as the state of possessing rationality, and the distinction between potential human life and actual human life, was recognized in Classical culture. It is illustrated by Aristotle's doctrine that the change from potential human life to actual human life takes place in an instant called ensoulment, which occurs at some time after conception. Prior to this essential change, the potential human entity, although able to survive outside the womb, does not have a right to life, while after ensoulment, the new person has a right to life. Listen to the definition of fetal viability and see how it excludes the properties of actual human existence. See how it describes beings which are living, growing, developing and functional, but not possessed of the power of reason, which demarcates man as a rational animal. See how it describes a being which is capable of living outside the uterus but cannot be described as a being in any human sense of the term: "Nonviable fetus is a fetus that not capable of living or developing. It can be an expelled or delivered fetus which, although living, cannot possibly survive to the point of sustaining life independently, even with support of the best available medical therapy. Nonviable means not capable of living, growing, or developing and functioning successfully. It is antithesis of viable, which is defined as having attained such form and development of organs as to be normally capable of living outside the uterus. (Wolfe versus Isbell, Alabama Supreme Court, 1973). Listen to the false defense of abortions rights which allows the abortion of fetuses which are simply not viable and grant legal protection to fetuses which are viable: "No person should intentionally, knowingly, or recklessly perform or induce an abortion when the unborn child is viable. However, if an abortion is performed by a physician and that physician reasonably believes that the unborn child is not viable, then there is no penalty." (Code of Alabama, § 26-22-3). Listen to the focus on fetal viability by both the proponents and opponents of abortion rights today. Listen to the focus on whether a fetus can feel pain and live outside the womb, and the exclusion of all concern with whether the fetus is a human person capable of thinking and reasoning. Listen to a debate which focuses upon advancements in medical knowledge determining fetal viability and excludes medical knowledge determining the point at which a fetus can be held to be a rational, spiritual person. Listen to a debate which focuses upon the point of fetal viability and excludes all concern with the point of fetal personhood or the point of fetal humanity: "At the heart of it is a Mississippi law—passed in 2018 but blocked by the lower courts—that would ban most abortions after fifteen weeks of pregnancy, allowing them only in medical emergencies or cases of severe fetal abnormality. Supporters say the law is intended to regulate 'inhumane procedures' and argue that a fetus is capable of detecting and responding to pain by that point. The case presents an attack on the court's landmark Roe v. Wade ruling in 1973 and a follow on decision in Planned Parenthood v. Casey about two decades later. The court held that a state can impose some restrictions on abortion provided they do not present an 'undue burden,' but cannot ban the procedure before fetal viability, generally considered to be 23 to 24 weeks into the pregnancy. Mississippi said it must be free to take account of advancements in medical knowledge that would shift the point of viability earlier in the pregnancy. But abortion rights advocates said viability, defined as the time at which a life could be sustained outside the womb, has remained the same since Roe was decided." (Supreme Court To Take Up Mississippi Challenge To Roe v. Wade by Pete Williams). The premise that a fetus has to be merely viable and not actually human in order to possess a right to life has led to the absurd conclusion that nonhuman life forms which are potentially human are entitled to protection from the state. A viable fetus is not on the grounds of mere viability an actual human person. A fetus has the potential to become a person, but is not yet a person, and should not be treated like a person. The development phases proceeding from a zygote to a born infant involve an essential change from a potential human life to an actual human life. The entity created at the moment of conception is a nonhuman entity which is identical in essence to the entity which exists just prior to the entrance of rationality, and is not identical in essence to the human entity created at the point of rational ensoulment. A potential state is not identical to an actual state. An acorn is not identical to an oak tree nor is a potential president of the United States an actual commander in chief of the nation's armed forces. Medical science has established that fetal viability commences at around the twenty fourth week of pregnancy. It has established that human personhood commences at around the thirty second week of pregnancy. The standard of viability employed to determine the rights of the fetus is fallacious and must be replaced by a standard of essentialism. Until an essentialist standard replaces a viabilist standard, abortion rights will continue to be improperly grounded and will continue to place undue restrictions on women who exercise them.

THE HISTORY OF CINEMA: DEGENERACY FROM DAY ONE

A stillbirth is the birth of an infant which has died in the mother's womb. The baby is born without signs of life. Occurring after seven months of pregnancy, stillbirths are chiefly caused by the mother's consumption of psychoactive drugs, which alter perception, mood, consciousness and cognition. Students of cinema have seen in the phenomenon of the stillbirth a terrifying picture of the history of motion pictures. They have seen an art form born in the midst of a collapsed and disintegrated civilization and born spiritually and morally without life. They have seen potential greatness never allowed to achieve actuality in a culture drugged by the intoxicants of a revolt against reason. They have issued their report on the decline and fall of motion pictures which commenced at the very instant motion pictures came into being, and to read it is to read a program and manifesto of antiart and nonart which consumed all the arts in the twentieth century, and to read the story of a tragedy of criminal proportions in which an art form which could have inspired and edified millions of people never had a chance to live and breathe. Composed with the fearsome electricity of Faustian currents, with the dark energy of subjectivism and romanticism which have animated the arts since the birth of the West a thousand years ago and brought into being a rampaging monster, this program describes motion picture stillbirth and rolls the credits for the destruction of civilization in the flickering light of the picture house. Composed with the evil stylus of Faust upon German evening lands which rejected the Apollonian noonday of the Greeks and Romans, the program proclaims that a progressive film takes place in a wild, nonrealistic, geometrically absurd setting. It proclaims that a progressive film features plots and stories which exalt psychosis and derangement. It proclaims that a progressive film is a cabinet of horrors characterized by dark, twisted visual styles, slanting, curving lines, leaning and twisting landscapes, and shadows and streaks of light painted onto sets. It proclaims that a progressive film rejects the distinction between sanity and insanity. It proclaims that a progressive film exalts the subjective perception of reality. It proclaims that a progressive film rejects the view of man as a rational animal and projects man as dangerous, deviant and deformed. It proclaims that a progressive film projects a world of distorted forms and spiraling streets. It proclaims that a progressive film projects a world in which traditions and institutions are inherently unstable and can collapse and explode at any moment. It proclaims that a progressive film projects a world of tilted walls and windows, staircases climbing mad diagonals, trees whose leaves look like spikes and grass whose blades look like knives. It proclaims that a progressive film condemns reason as brutal and inhuman. It proclaims that a progressive film employs light and shade to create a sense of ongoing, never ending chaos. It proclaims that a progressive film projects warped perspectives, inconceivable dimensions and abnormal scales. It proclaims that a progressive film is a pure director's art in which content and story possess no importance whatever and what matters alone are scenes and photography presented without meaning or purpose of any kind. It proclaims that a progressive film consists of unconnected segments in which the characters sit around, drink coffee, smoke cigarettes and discuss the joys and sorrows of life. It proclaims that a progressive film follows a day in the life of a group of bohemians and misfits and presents characters, conversations and scenes without connection or progression. It proclaims that a progressive film is a conversational mood piece during which the characters randomly cross paths. It proclaims that a progressive film follows a character who rides a lawn tractor for 385 kilometers and presents a stream of landscapes, music and conversations. It proclaims that a progressive film follows a school day of five students conversing in a detention room. It proclaims that a progressive film follows a group of high school students over the course of a night just after they graduate from high school. It proclaims that a progressive film is a random exploration of the main character's consciousness, and rummaging through his mind, presents his thoughts on his childhood years, his caring mother, his uncaring father, his younger brother, the origin of the universe, the evolution of human life, and his visions of God. It proclaims that a progressive film presents an hour of improvised dialogue between a man and a woman who had an affair nine years before. It proclaims that a progressive film is a celebration of graphic, upfront violence. It proclaims that a progressive film is a celebration of rampant sadism. It proclaims that a progressive film is an enactment of the frightening fantasies of juvenile delinquents. It proclaims that a progressive film honors an underworld of massacre, mutilation and ceaseless suffering. Listen to the words of today's filmmakers and hear them proclaim their deep, undying affection for the brute force which kills innocent people. Hear them condemn the defenders of righteousness as blind to the supreme God who rules the universe: haphazard, helter skelter violence. Hear them exalt as the highest manifestation of cinematic art the assault of the audience with endless drum rolls of meaningless carnage and the regression of man to a beast of prey: "I like violence. I love violence. I hear the weak person going to films who says 'Oh, that hurt me'. Why do I make pictures for that person? They're blind. Poetry is violent. Reality: there is so much violence in the world, so much They don't want to see that. I am in the middle of a television screen which shows the violence of the world every day." (Alejandro Jodorowsky, 1990). Look at the world of today's films and see violence studied, examined and placed on display as a good, perfection and end in itself. See film content plunging into depths of unabashed evil and see careers of hurting, damaging, mauling and murdering placed on black thrones of pornographic excitement. See trajectories of recklessness and irresponsibility burning and exploding into spectacular fireworks of sadism and cruelty. See savagery praised as the supreme passion and calling of the enlightened. See inveterate, remorseless, dyed in the wool psychopaths paraded as the highest specimens of humanity. See a pure, unapologetic exaltation of life as a river of blood and an invasion of barbarians: "With a title that offers no explanation as to the content within (and a meaning that is only explained in its Burgess' source novel), A Clockwork Orange serves both esteem and notoriety upon its mention in conversation, arguably the oldest cinematic title to still boast such a public claim. Kubrick deduced that the most appropriate content for a film wholly dedicated to a study of violence, and the methods and means with which authorities attempt control of violence, was to showcase a protagonist whom derived intense passion and recreation from acts of ultra violence. Better yet, an unapologetic, unfiltered portrayal of Alex's actions, from battery, to reckless driving to home invasion and rape, and all within this film's opening segments, he deemed important in solidifying his audience's understanding of what a true, objective view on violent actions ought to entail." (Twenty Greatest Movies That Feature Notably Excessive Violence by Charles Barnes). The program and manifesto of today's motion picture establishment proclaims that a progressive film exalts criminal psychopaths, young hoodlums, confused teenagers, disturbed adolescents and rebels without a cause. It proclaims that a progressive film exalts the prophets of the working class in their struggle to overthrow the liberal democratic order. It proclaims that a progressive film portrays communism as a noble political ideal which unites people of different races and social backgrounds in a struggle to smash the fascist system of personal freedom. It proclaims that a progressive film portrays Joseph Stalin as a noble and reliable ally in the fight for human liberty. It proclaims that a progressive film offers a rose tinted view of communist tyranny. It proclaims that a progressive film defends the Moscow Purge trials as just condemnations of fascist fifth columnists at work in the people's liberation state of Soviet Russia. It proclaims that a progressive film portrays communism as preferable to national socialism, Stalin as preferable to Hitler, and the Soviet Union as contributing force to the cause of world peace and security. It proclaims that a progressive film sings a song of socialism and portrays socialist societies are places never marked by fear or terror, places where people are never afraid to look at each other, and places where the tree of liberty is ever nourished and spreads its wings across the sky. It proclaims that a progressive film portrays collective slave farms as idyllic communes where freedom loving people fight heroically against the brutal forces of fascism and capitalism. The silver screen was a type of projection screen popular in the early days of cinema. The term passed into popular use as a symbol for the motion picture industry, and comes from the actual silver embedded in the screen's reflective surface. From the lustrous surface of the silver screen four horsemen of the motion picture apocalypse have galloped out over the past century. Packaged in shiny silver boxes marked The Cabinet Of Dr Caligari, 2001: A Space Odyssey, A Clockwork Orange, Easy Rider and Mission To Moscow, their productions have aborted the birth and development of the seventh art.

EARTH OPENS IN CALIFORNIA

In primitive cultures, witchcraft was held to be the use of supernatural powers to cause harm to others. Witches were held to be capable to inflicting harm through curses, which were utterances invoking the powers of Satan. Students of history have seen the wheel of history turn round and bring the belief in witchcraft back to the world. They have seen the practice of magic for evil purposes with the use of curses return, invoked by the reds in their fearsome and terrifying indoctrination of students. They have seen the monsters and gargoyles of the distant past come back to life in a small corner of the earth and stalk the halls of Campbell Union High School District in San Jose, California. Serving the Silicon Valley communities of San Jose, Campbell, and Saratoga, this district has come under attack by neoMarxist forces peddling black power and seeking to overthrow the liberal democratic order. Students of history have issued their report on the take over of students' classrooms and students' minds by race haters riding under red banners who teach their students how to place curses on those who believe that all lives matter and not just black lives matter, and on those who make statements in support of equal protection for all under the law. They have issued their report on the abolition of liberal education in a major school district in America and to read it is read to what happens when radical majorities are allowed to storm the gates of civilization and place themselves in positions of unchecked power. To read it is to read a program and manifesto of unapologetic illiberal education, the overt giving of systematic instruction in antienlightenment, the inculcation of the dogmas of mysticism, tribalism and black Aryan national socialism, set forth and shouted out during the final hours of Western civilization. Ensnaring 8000 students spread out over five campuses and eight schools in its net of mental corruption, with the aid of 550 ideologues and tub thumpers masquerading as teachers and administrators, this program consists of the following spine chilling points. It proclaims that a progressive school system seeks to raise race consciousness in children. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches that liberal values are lashes of oppression. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches students the primacy of racial identity above individual merit. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches that racism can only be perpetrated by white people and that blacks by definition can never be racist. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches the black rioting is an imperative of social justice and black looting makes perfect moral sense. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches that white people should throw themselves before hails of police bullets and put their bodies on the line for the sake of black racial justice. It proclaims that a progressive school system teaches that capitalism is a system of white supremacy and must be swept away by the people's red guards promoting black Hitlerism. Listen to a former student in the Campbell Union High School District and hear him describe the operation of a black swastika religion in the classroom. Hear him describe a curriculum of criminal abuse in which black activists bore holes into students' minds, pour in the hot flowing lava of black identity politics, and make students explode with hatred toward whites and commence a rampage to destroy them: "The idea that white students must dismantle themselves in the context of their personality is cultish. Not only is it cultish, but it is deliberate in that this school system wants its white students to hate themselves. Do these people honestly think that drilling racial identitarianism into childrens' heads from a young age is going to make them less racist?" (Samuel Martin, quoted in Critical Race Theory Trove From California District Tells Students How To Use Witchcraft On People Who Say All Lives Matter by Spencer Lindquist). The reds' program of black power proclaims that capitalism is a system of police brutality and racist violence. It proclaims that utopia is a world without capitalist police and capitalist military in which black proletarian hordes have become violent, uncontrolled and unhinged. It proclaims that white people have been in power too long and must be removed and reduced to the status of subalterns of the black master race. It proclaims that a progressive school system inculcates students in the tenets of critical race theory. According to this theory, the notion of human universality must be criticized from the standpoint of race; black racism and anticapitalism must be established as official orthodoxies; and these orthodoxies must proclaim that every white person who walks the earth is an intrinsic, oppressive, racist bigot who must be swept into the dustbin of history along with the capitalist system he created. Listen to the words of a black power Marxist and hear him utter words which civilized people can scarcely bring themselves to utter and can comprehend only with horror and revulsion. These are the words of racial killing, racial extermination and a holocaust against whites. These are the words of black supremacists, black royalists, black klan riders and black hate groups dedicated to the legalization of genocide. These are the words of black revolutionaries and the overthrow of rational human order: "The goal of abolishing the white race is on its face so desirable that some may find it hard to believe that it could incur any opposition other than from committed white supremacists. Of course we expected bewilderment from people who still think of race as biology. We frequently get letters accusing us of being racists, just like the KKK, and have even been called a hate group. Our standard response is to draw an analogy with antiroyalism: to oppose monarchy does not mean killing the king; it means getting rid of crowns, thrones, royal titles, etc " (Abolish The White Race by Noel Ignatiev). Listen to the words of today's black power Marxists and hear them proclaim the primacy of racial differences over the universal human essence. Hear them proclaim that children must notice each other's race and not each other's character. Hear them reject the liberal ideal of a color blind society not influenced by racial prejudice and advocate the establishment of a black racist autocracy: "The goal of teaching about race and racism is to help students understand the historical context and current manifestations of racism in the US. There are many white people who believe the best way to eliminate racism is to not talk about it and not notice racial differences at all (ie, be colorblind). They may want to tell young people not to notice differences because they conflate noticing differences with having bias. It may also be a way to avoid dealing with discussions of race because they are uncomfortable. It is completely natural to notice race and other physical characteristics; telling children not to see it is incorrect and confusing." (How Should I Talk About Race In My Mostly White Classroom? AntiDefamation League). Listen to the words of today's black power Marxists and hear them proclaim that movements of black racism and communist subversion are movements of freedom, liberation and justice for the black community. Hear them proclaim that a progressive school system establishes safe spaces in which black hoodlums can howl out their hatred of whites and their desire to kill them, and can plan crimes against whites, without fear of suffering disciplinary action. Hear them promote prejudice, discrimination and antagonism toward whites in the name restorative justice, bias training and Black Lives Matter. Hear them proclaim that a progressive school system establishes ethnic studies programs which study differences in race and ethnicity and promote hatred of whites and the capitalist system. Hear them proclaim that capitalism is a system of institutionalized racism and that a progressive school system has mobilized students and staff in a global race war to overthrow capitalism, disenfranchise the white people who maintain it, and reduce whites to the status of noncitizens: "BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Campbell Union High School District proudly declares that Black Lives Matter and joins the movement to fight for freedom, liberation and justice for the black community; and BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Campbell Union High School District is committed to providing safe spaces for discussions on race and injustice; and BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Campbell Union High School District is committed to restorative justice practices, implicit bias training, Ethnic Studies, and resources that foster dialogue around the guiding principles of #BlackLivesMatter; and FINALLY, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Campbell Union High School District will work tirelessly and collaboratively with staff, students, and families to dismantle institutionalized racism in our society and school district." (CAMPBELL UNION HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT RESOLUTION #59-06-18-20). Schools throughout the world are removing analog clocks because students can no longer read them and are replacing them with digital clocks. Promoting a doctrine of black swastika politics in the name of black equity, safety and well being, the Campbell Union High School District in California has removed the clocks of progress and enlightenment from its classrooms. Enshrouded in a new Marxist religion in which race revolution and has replaced class revolution as the engine of mass murder, the Campbell Union High School District has fallen into the abyss of primitive eons and shown the face of a civilization in free fall.

CRIME WAVE HITS THE WEST

An epidemic is the rapid spread of a disease to a large number of people within a short period of time. The causes of an epidemic are increased virulence and an increase in host susceptibility to the infectious agent. Students of history have observed an epidemic strike the greatest arsenals freedom the world has ever known. They have observed the spread of a moral disease across the nations of the West which has led to an epidemic of crime without precedent in the history of these nations. They have observed this disease strike every civilization in history in a state of decline; they have observed it strike the Classical world during Rome's descent into the abyss; but they have observed this disease assume a unique virulence in the West due to the West's heightened susceptibility to it. This is the disease of moral relativism and it is especially severe, harmful, poisonous and infective in the West due to the West's unique Faustian premises of subjectivism and worship of the will. Unreservedly condemned in the noonday world of Apollo which bathed the meadows of Greece and Rome in the springtime of their existence, and struck only when the Classical world became senescent, decayed and weary of life, subjectivism has been the guiding principle of the West since its emergence in the dark, gloomy, soaring, storming, tearing forests of the diabolical Faust in the evening lands of Germany a thousand years ago. From the Faustian West's premise of subjectivism and the worship of the will came the doctrine that there are no universal, objective moral standards based upon man's rational nature, that every culture, class, race, gender and individual may develop the moral standards it finds acceptable, and that these cannot be judged by the standards of any other group or individual. This doctrine was always present in Classical civilization but only achieved prominence and respectability during the final stages of its existence, while it has been present in the West from the earliest hours of its birth as a corollary of its Faustian premises. Moral subjectivism in Classical culture never reached the fever and intensity it reached in the West, a fever which has engulfed the West in a torrent of crime and violence such as the world has never seen before. Students of history have issued their report on the wave of crime surging through the West and to read it is to read a case study of the law of causality operating in human affairs and to see the fearsome and terrifying consequences which ensue whenever people renounce the rule of reason. To read it is to read the doctrine of Immanuel Kant, which states that the good is obedience to the categorical imperatives issued by the will, by the noumenal voice and feeling emanating from within, which must be obeyed come what may, despite the counsels of reason and common sense, and though all manner of evil and injustice be unleashed upon the world. It is to read the doctrine of Friedrich Nietzsche, which states that the good is the ruthless pursuit of the will to power staged by man, the savage of the steppes and the beast of prey. It is to read the doctrine of Karl Marx, which states that the good is the revolutionary overthrow of liberal democracy by the proletariat, which will establish a communist society through the use of brute force and a campaign of class extermination. To read it is to read the doctrines of Marx's offshoots and derivatives, the peddlers of race theory and gender theory, who proclaim that the will to power of nonwhites and the will to power of women take precedence over rational flourishing and the universal human life and essence. These are the causes of the surging criminality which has gripped the West today and composed the epitaphs by which students of history will remember a diseased culture. These are the engines and motive forces of the social breakdown and invasion of law and order which have placed the twenty first century under a state of siege. These are points of dark, satanic light which for centuries had ignited brushfires of criminality and in the present day have detonated a global conflagration. This end state of skyrocketing crime which has befallen the West, as it befell the Classical world in its death throes, has seen violent crime in America surge by twenty three percent in 2021. It has seen homicides increase by fifty eight percent in Atlanta. It has seen homicides increase by 533 percent in Portland. It has seen homicides increase by thirty seven percent in Philadelphia. It has seen homicides increase by thirteen percent in New York City. It has seen homicides increase by twenty two one percent in Los Angeles. It has seen homicides increase by five percent in Chicago. Look at the crime wave sweeping across the West and see the phenomenon of smash and grab burglaries. See flash mobs, organized through social media, run into stores, smash glass cases and run out with thousands of dollars worth of merchandise. See stores plundered by the new barbarians and the stolen loot shipped across state lines and sold over the internet. See shoppers and businesses placed in the grip of fear by hoodlums who wipe out inventories and wipe out lives. See law enforcement rendered a dead letter by invasions of masked psychopaths. See police forces chased out of cities by hordes of vandals and thieves. See random killing become commonplace and honest citizens run for their lives before a kaleidoscopic whirlwind of criminal horror. See shots fired from the guns of mankind's mortal enemies, the madmen of moral relativism, and blast panic into crowded malls. See those whose souls live and breathe in the black forests of Faust, those who study in the schools of Kant, Marx and Nietzsche, scale peaks of pleasure and excitement by committing acts of bloody violence. See the hammers of Faust and the thunder of Thor burst and shatter the institutions of civilization and set into motion combustion and decomposition which has engulfed every nation in the West: "California has faced two weeks of sustained smash and grab burglaries around the state involving flash mobs of thieves running into stores, smashing glass cases, and running out with thousands of dollars worth of jewelry, purses, electronics, and other goods. While smash and grab burglaries have become commonplace in California—particularly in San Francisco—the quick succession of the crimes has put shoppers and businesses on edge. Law enforcement say thieves are being recruited for up to $1,000 to steal goods that are then shipped across state lines and sold on the internet, making it hard for cops to track the criminals. 'We're not talking about someone who needs money or needs food. These are people who go out and do this is for high profit, and for the thrill,' said Ben Dugan, president of the Coalition of Law Enforcement and Retail, according to the outlet. On Monday, November 15 at around 7:30 pm PST, nine suspects wearing masks entered the Iceberg Diamonds store located in the Sun Valley Mall in the East Bay Area suburb of Concord, California, and 'wiped out the inventory,' according to SF Gate. The burglary took place while the mall was open, according to the Concord Police Department. Mall customers believed they heard gunshots, but it was the sound of hammers smashing glass, the police said. When employees tried to intervene, the suspects 'held them off with their hammers,' according to police. The suspects fled before police were on scene." (California Faces Wave Of Flash Mob Smash and Grab Thefts by Kristina Wong). Look at the crime wave sweeping across the West and see an outbreak of murder engulf France. See criminologists chart a plague of violence which has rendered town and cities uninhabitable. See experts in the scientific study of crime track a trend of lawlessness which has placed fear in charge of the streets. See mass killing and terrorist attacks, previously unfamiliar and atypical in France, become the new frightening standard. See murder rates increases by leaps and bounds as they grind civilization into dust: "The number of homicides in France has nearly doubled in the last 20 years, with one criminologist stating that the country is undergoing an epidemic of murder cases. In total, France saw an historic 4,472 cases of homicide in 2020, with criminologist Alain Bauer comparing the growing violence to that of the United States. 'While we are rightly moved by the crisis of mass murders and violence that is returning to the United States, a similar movement that is not very visible, but more and more pronounced, is affecting France,' Bauer said, according to Le Figaro. Bauer stated that many expected the number of murders to go down following the terrorist attacks in Paris in 2015 and Nice in 2016, as both saw many casualties. But instead, the number of killings has continued to rise. According to Le Figaro, the only comparable rise in murders took place from 1972 to 1983 when the rate grew from 2,093 to 3,183, a 52 per cent increase." (French Homicides Increased 91 Per Cent From 2000 To 2020 by Chris Tomlinson). There is a seven hundred year old expression whose original form was: "Curses are like chickens; they always come home to roost". The old saying that "the chickens have come home to roost" means that the evil deeds an individual has committed in the past have come back to haunt and hurt him. Rejecting the notions of truth and objectivity, the West has careened down the path of moral relativism. Proclaiming that morality is a product gender, race, class, culture, the will to power and the categorical imperatives commanding from within, the Faustian philosophies of the West have fired a rifle which has recoiled in rising rivers of blood.

THE WORLD'S FIRST TERROR NETWORK

A template is a shaped piece of material which is used as a pattern for painting, shaping, drilling and cutting out. Types of templates include dies in manufacturing, molds in molding processes and stencils to replicate letters, shapes and designs. Students of history have observed the formation of a political template one hundred years ago at a congress held in Moscow in 1919. This was a template of world destruction created by newly ascendant red majorities appearing during the sunset period of Western civilization. Advocating world communism under the control of the Soviet Union, the Communist International would serve as a template for the creation of its successor global organizations promoting totalitarian creeds, Antifa, Black Lives Matter, Al Qaeda and the Islamic State, formed in the late twentieth and early twenty first centuries. Students of history have issued their report on the Communist International and to read it is to read the story of a popular uprising staged by the masses against the Enlightenment traditions of freedom and liberty. It is to read about a political faction composed of the world's restive majorities; composed of the people next next door unable to stay orderly and impossible to control; composed of society's hordes animated by the monsters of envy, hatred, rage and frustration who proclaimed that freedom was unfair and unjust to them and that the community owed them a living, owed them a complete range of material necessities, and owed them cradle to grave welfare support. Founded as the successor to the First International and the Second International, the Third or Communist International was the culmination of the reds' mission to overthrow by an international undertaking the liberal democratic systems which governed the free world. The Comintern was the general staff of communist world revolution. It was a federation of national communist parties, and an international red party composed of national sections. The parties or sections obeyed the decisions of an Executive Committee which was dominated by the Russians. The movement proclaimed that freedom is a worldwide evil which must be attacked on a worldwide basis. It proclaimed that this attack will be staged in the name of proletarian internationalism and the rights of the oppressed and the exploited. Listen to the words of the Communist International and hear it advocate the use of force and violence to overthrow liberal freedom and the rule of law. Hear it seek to create upon the rubble of freedom and law a red totalitarian tyranny in the hands of an unchecked, lawless actor, a private people's gang, a group of Soviet criminals, called the Communist Party: "Our objective is to struggle by all available means, including armed force, for the overthrow of the international bourgeois and the creation of an international Soviet republic, as a transition stage to the complete abolition of the state." (Communist International, Second World Congress, 1920). The Communist International proclaimed that the workers of the world must serve the interests of Soviet Russia, which was the fatherland of the workers, and must take orders from the Soviet foreign office. After the Sixth World Congress in 1928, Stalin's agents assumed total control over the organization. In 1943, while the Soviets were collaborating with the West in the war against Germany, a collaboration which civilized people beheld in horror inasmuch as the Soviets had murdered and were murdering far more people than the Third Reich, Stalin ostensibly dissolved the Comintern but kept it secretly alive. In 1947 after the onset of the Cold War, it reappeared under a new name: the Cominform or the Communist Information Bureau. Opening their founding congress with a tribute to Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxembourg, leaders of the Spartacus Uprising which convulsed Berlin, the first delegates to the Comintern condemned the liberal system of constitutional rights as a regime of bourgeois democracy and advocated an unprecedented, world historical regime of class extermination in the name of the dictatorship of the proletariat. The Comintern was involved in communist revolutions across Europe. It sent hundreds of agitators together with massive financial aid to Bela Kun, leader of the Hungarian Communist Party, and organized the Terror Group of the Revolutionary Council of the Government. Known as the Lenin Boys, this group opened the pages of Satan's black book of death and spilled its contents across Hungary. In Germany in 1923, the Comintern mobilized the Red Army and sent three hundred soldiers to attack police stations across the nation. Beginning in the 1920s, the Comintern helped to establish communist front organizations throughout the world, which promoted communism while concealing their true nature and identity. These included United Front groups, Popular Front groups, the World Committee Against War And Imperialism, the American Student Union, the World Federation Of Democratic Youth, the International Union Of Students, the World Federation Of Trade Unions, the Women's International Democratic Federation, the World Peace Council, the International Federation Of Resistance Fighters, the World Federation Of Scientific Workers, the International Organization Of Journalists, the World Federation Of Trade Unions, the World Federation Of Teachers Unions, the Organization Of Solidarity With The People Of Asia, Africa and Latin America, the International Radio And Television Organization, and the Pan Pacific Trade Union Secretariat. To supervise and coordinate the activities of its communist front organizations, the Comintern set up the following groups: the Young Communist International for youth, Profintern for trade unions, Krestintern for farm workers, Sportintern for organized sports, and International Red Aid for humanitarian organizations. Listen to the voices of the Communist International and hear them condemn liberal freedom as a system of racial and national prejudice. Hear them condemn individual rights as a system of bourgeois trash and violence. Hear them advocate an alliance of the malcontents and miscreants of the world in a revolutionary movement of universal destruction. Hear them condemn human liberty as a regime of enslavement to capital. Hear them promote proletarian mobocracy as the highest form of human liberation. Hear them promote Soviet dictatorships, popular dictatorships, republican dictatorships, democratic dictatorships and workers' dictatorships, throwing off the crosspieces of freedom and liberty, as the highest stage of human social development. Hear them condemn free laborers as wage slaves and advocate the creation of a class of rightless toilers for the sake of the people. Hear the languages of the world echo with the cries and slogans of red totalitarians who exalt vassalage to a class, a party, a state and a community as the advancement of real human freedom and the onset of a shining new era of human history. Hear the streets of Europe and America shatter before gunshots fired by red supremacists and hear a centuries long march of socialism culminate in a global rampage against civilization: "The Third International has gathered the fruits of the work of the Second International, discarded its opportunist, social-chauvinist, bourgeois and petty bourgeois dross, and has begun to implement the dictatorship of the proletariat. The international alliance of the parties which are leading the most revolutionary movement in the world, the movement of the proletariat for the overthrow of the yoke of capital, now rests on an unprecedentedly firm base, in the shape of several Soviet republics, which are implementing the dictatorship of the proletariat and are the embodiment of victory over capitalism on an international scale. The epoch making significance of the Third Communist International lies in its having begun to give effect to Marx's cardinal slogan, the slogan which sums up the centuries old development of socialism and the working class movement, the slogan which is expressed in the concept of the dictatorship of the proletariat. This prevision and this theory—the prevision and theory of a genius—are becoming a reality. The Latin words have now been translated into the languages of all the peoples of contemporary Europe—more, into all the languages of the world. A new era in world history has begun. Mankind is throwing off the last form of slavery: capitalist, or wage, slavery. By emancipating himself from slavery, man is for the first time advancing to real freedom." (The Third International And Its Place In History by Vladimir Lenin). A virus is an infectious agent which replicates inside the cell of a living organism. Once inside the cell, the virus rapidly multiplies to produce thousands of copies of itself. Headquartered in Moscow and operating in every country in the world was a virus. Its objective was to conquer the world. Its tactics included conspiracy, penetration, infiltration, espionage, demonstrations, political strikes, front organizations, guerrilla warfare, open street violence, the forceful seizure of power and total war. The Communist International replicated itself in the host organism of a senescent civilization. Its fearsome and terrifying copies, the Antifa, Black Lives Matter, Al Qaeda and Islamic State actors of the present day, have sealed the West in Satan's catacombs and made Satan's tunnels and galleries the permanent home of the living dead.

THE VANISHED VOICE OF FREEDOM

A dragon is a mythical monster represented as a giant reptile. It breathes fire and symbolizes the forces of chaos and evil. A unicorn is a mythical creature represented as a horse with a straight horn projecting from its forehead and symbolizes goals which are unachievable. Students of history have seen in dragons and unicorns symbols of the absence of freedom in the present day. They have seen that freedom today is as mythical as the dragons and unicorns created in ancient folklore and exists only in the pages of books which describe the European Age of Enlightenment and the shining eras in history in which the individual was not viewed as the property of the state. They have seen that the decline and fall of freedom commenced in the twentieth century when mass values were allowed by a senescent culture which had grown weary of existence to take control over the centers of power. They have seen that freedom commenced its downward slide into the abyss when those who proclaimed that the world owed them a living and owed them the necessities and luxuries of life became the voices of the cultural establishment and constructed temples to socialism as the supreme religion of a frightening new age. They have issued their report on the disappearance of freedom into thin air before the raised fists launched and the bomb blasts detonated by those who proclaimed that the purpose of the producers is to live and work for the sake of the nonproducers, and to read it is to read a program and manifesto of a moral, spiritual, cultural and psychological evil which has invaded homes, schools, offices and parliaments, and spread like a cancer through every aspect of society. To read it is to read what happens when a civilization becomes extinct and its ruins, wrecks, debris and empty, bankrupt structures serve as satanic skeletal forms which claim the mind and body of the individual and place his life and soul upon dark altars marked Social State, Total State, Tribal State, Politically Correct State, Gender, Race And Class State, Collective Responsibility and Welfare Entitlements For All. Composed by the masses under the shadow of a dead civilization, this terrifying program of totalitarian power consists of a series of points nailed by the reds to the cross of souls whose only crime was the defense of liberty. It proclaims that a progressive society suppresses the natural born freedoms of the individual and forces people to wear masks, maintain social distancing, work from their homes, limit visitors to their homes, stay off the streets, shut down their businesses and vaccinate themselves in the name of public health and welfare. It proclaims that a progressive society has established health care as a universal human right to be financed by the state confiscation of wealth. It proclaims that a progressive society has mandated zero net carbon emissions and the phasing out of technological progress in the name of fighting global climate change. It proclaims that a progressive society has dissolved its borders and allowed an invasion of drug traffickers, criminal gangs, terror networks and the enemies of civilization marching under alien, Eastern, desert flags. It proclaims that a progressive society has mandated the teaching of critical race theory in homes, schools, offices and the military. According to this theory, truth and reality are relative to race and human history must be viewed through the prism of racial struggle and the racial will to power. White people must be criticized and condemned because they are inherent, intrinsic, racist bigots, and white social structures such as capitalism must be assessed from the standpoint of race and be swept into the dustbin of history. It proclaims that a progressive society has defunded the police, abolished the right of the people to own guns, and sanctioned violent nationwide rioting. It proclaims that a progressive society denies that sex is determined by genes and cannot be changed, and allows people who claim to have changed their sex to be treated legally as members of the opposite sex, and to use the facilities and play on the sports teams reserved for members of the opposite sex. It proclaims that a progressive society prints money by the trillions in order to finance socialist welfare programs and allows inflation to ravage the savings and incomes of the people. It proclaims that a progressive school system has replaced the acquisition of knowledge by the learning of leftist language and attitudes which deny the value of the individual and exalt the mystical rights of gender, race and class tribes. It proclaims that a progressive society is a nightmare world predicated upon social responsibility, a collective farm of people reduced to the level of toiling animals, and a brazen and unmitigated road to human serfdom. It proclaims that a progressive society trains its military staff on how to disseminate social justice propaganda and not on how to fight as effective soldiers on fields of battle. It proclaims that a progressive society seeks to extirpate the impulse to freedom present in healthy human beings and to remake man from a rational animal to a social animal who debases himself before a god called Society. It proclaims that a progressive society is a Soviet society, a Maoist society, and a gender, race and class based society which enforces collectivization, thought control and restricts all thoughts and actions which run contrary to the masses' party line. It proclaims that a progressive society imposes expansive government upon the people and coerces them into sacrificing themselves for the sake of their neighbor, for the sake of their nation and for the sake of the districts, communities and hamlets of the world. It proclaims that a progressive society exalts those who promote totalitarian tyranny and places Marxists, mullahs, Talibans and terrorists in the senior ranks of cultural and political power. It proclaims that a progressive society is a mound built by ants actuated by service to the people down the street and by slavery to the savages of the global village. It proclaims that a progressive society rewards those who do not work, promotes dependency on the state, and redistributes the wealth of the producing classes into the hands of the nonproducing classes. It proclaims that a progressive society seizes property earned by honest work and tolerates criminals who loot and vandalize homes and businesses. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the liberal principle of employee selection by merit and school admission by good grades and establishes proportional representation of races and genders in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the world of reason and enlightenment and replaces God in heaven with the State on earth and installs the General

Will as dictator over the people. Listen to the red enemies of freedom today and hear them proclaim that a progressive society is a far left society which has crushed human liberty beneath the steam rollers of socialist revolution. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society stages endless days of violent demonstrations in every country in the world in the name of achieving climate justice. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is staffed by hoodlums wearing black hoods and by parties waving red flags. Hear them proclaim that the lovers of freedom are the oppressors of the working class and must be exterminated. Hear them proclaim that freedom is unworkable and unjust and socialist tyranny is the only antidote to the ills and evils which beset the world. Hear them proclaim that modern capitalism is the cause of climate crisis and catastrophe and the only way to protect the planet is to revert mankind to the rule of primitive tribalism and cave dweller kingdoms. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is who's who and cross section of the world's career criminals who commit their deeds under the guise of red activism. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is a democratic socialist, democratic communist and democratic fascist fever swamp designed, built and maintained by the engineers of total evil. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society condemns freedom and progress as the enemies of the people and is focused upon collective enslavement, renewable energy and the destruction of civilization: "Far left climate activists called for a socialist revolution—supposedly to help the environment—at the Global Day of Action for Climate Justice protest in Glasgow, Scotland. Tens of thousands poured out onto the streets of Glasgow outside the United Nations' COP26 climate summit taking place in the city. Organizers claimed that as many as 100,000 turned out for the Saturday demo, however, the figure has not been confirmed by police who monitored the event. The demonstration featured a cross section of leftist activists, with the flags of Antifa and the Scottish Socialist Party being held high at the march. Two activists told Breitbart London that socialism was the answer to the alleged climate crisis, shouting out 'system change, not climate change'. 'We need a socialist revolution,' one of the demonstrators said, adding that the world needs to 'get rid of all these capitalist bastards'. The other activist told said that 'fossil fuel companies can go and drown in their fossil fuels'. He claimed that a socialist system would be a democratic society in which all engineers are retrained to focus on renewable energy." (System Change, Not Climate Change Green Activists Call For Socialist Revolution At COP26 by Kurt Zindulka). The Anatomy Lesson Of Dr Nicolaes Tulip is an oil painting on canvas painted by Rembrandt in the seventeenth century. In this world famous work, a prominent surgeon explains the performance of an autopsy to a group of doctors. The pathologists of the West have issued their report on the cause of death of the culture: the masses rejection of liberty, their degradation into animality and their descent into slavery.

COVID FOREVER

Justification is a defense in a criminal case by which the defendant claims he did no wrong because his crime advanced a social interest which outweighed the wrongfulness of the act. When an act is held to be justified, the defendant is not held to be criminally liable for acts which would otherwise constitute a crime. Students of history have seen in the restrictions imposed to combat the covid pandemic an attempt at the justification of a crime. They have seen that the pandemic has been used as a justification to concentrate power into the hands of the government to a degree without precedent in the history of free nations and to commit constitutional crimes which have shocked the conscience of civilized people. They have issued their report on an invasive, oppressive and unreasonable use of state power paraded in the name of protecting public health, and to read it is to read the program and manifesto of today's masses marching under red totalitarian banners in the twilight age of Western civilization. Demanding expansive government action, and demanding that government do something decisive to control the spread of covid, the masses have empowered their governments to bring freedom to its knees and violate the traditions and institutions of human rights which formed the shining legacy of the Age of Enlightenment. Proclaiming that the end justifies the means and that the common good takes precedence over the rights of the individual, the masses have set forth a program of governmental abuse which reveals with the stark clarity the perennial popular contempt for liberty as it shines a burning light on the final stages of a civilization grown senescent, exhausted and weary of existence. This program consists of a series of points blasted out of the cannons of mass fear, mass hysteria and the desire of morally stunted masses who have not grown and developed properly to be cosseted by the government and reduced to the level of wards of the state. This program proclaims that fighting a disease in which 99.95 percent of those infected under the age of 70 recover justifies taking away every freedom a human being possesses. It proclaims that a progressive society abrogates constitutional rights in the fighting a fearsome monster called Covid And Its Variants. It proclaims that a progressive society fights the nonlethal covid pandemic by ordering shutdowns, lockdowns, school closures, the wearing of masks and the injection of vaccines. It proclaims that because covid and its infinite number of variants will never be eliminated, the regime of overarching state control and totalitarian tyranny can never be eliminated. It proclaims that a progressive society requires, in its campaign to eliminate the nonlethal covid pandemic, that every individual provide proof of vaccination in order to participate in daily life and live as a human being. It proclaims that the right to privacy is of no concern whatever in the people's fight against the nonlethal covid pandemic because it runs contrary to the collective good. It proclaims that a progressive society has a right to know who is vaccinated and who is not vaccinated against the nonlethal covid pandemic. It proclaims that a progressive society empowers the Occupational Health and Safety Administration to force businesses to require employee vaccinations. It proclaims that a progressive society empowers the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services to require all employees, volunteers and third party contractors to receive a covid vaccination. It proclaims that a progressive society has the right to violate bodily existence and integrity and require covid vaccinations. It proclaims that a progressive society has the right to burden liberty and force people to choose between getting a vaccination and losing their job. It proclaims that a progressive society empowers the executive branch of government to deprive people of their constitutional freedoms for an indefinite period of time to fight the nonlethal covid pandemic. It proclaims that a progressive society fights the nonlethal covid pandemic by establishing an indefinite state of emergency and abolishing all civil liberties. It proclaims that a progressive society forces people to wear masks and maintain social distancing in their own homes in order to prevent the spread of the nonlethal covid pandemic. It proclaims that a complete vaccination against the nonlethal coronavirus consists of two initial doses together with regular and ongoing booster injections taken for the duration of one's life and these must be mandated by the government. Look at the world of the covid police and see them open up the jail cells and thrown in unvaccinated people by the thousands. See them spread a virus of fear and hysteria and a mass epidemic of total insanity. See them place society in the iron grip of public health administrators. See them empower vaccine enforcers to invade the private homes and bodies of the people. See them

violate the natural right to liberty and bodily wholeness and enact a mandatory coronavirus vaccination policy. See them imprison people who refuse to be vaccinated and force them to pay for their imprisonment. See them throw constitutional rights to the winds and give government ministers the unchecked power of people's commissars. See them give courts the power to detain people who dissent from the reigning covid vaccination orthodoxy. See them reduce those who decide not to take the covid vaccine to the status of outcasts and pariahs and force them to wear the Yellow Badge. See them round up those who refuse to follow the fearsome orders of the covid police and refuse to obey the draconian laws passed by covid parliaments, and send them into the outer darkness of civil nonexistence. See them punish with fines and imprisonment those who assert their inherent, inborn and inalienable right to lead a private existence. See them weaponize the legal system on the grounds of medical necessity and smash moral, natural and constitutional law. See them destroy the credibility of the law by ordering free citizens to surrender the security of their persons. See them lead the communist consensus of the masses on a mighty campaign to overthrow the legacies of the Enlightenment, to break through the defensive walls of civilization, and to reduce the individual to a chattel slave of the state, the people and the public health and safety commissars: "A member of the populist Austrian Freedom Party (FPO) has expressed concern that amendments to a law on administrative enforcement could be used to imprison unvaccinated people for as long as a year. Susanne Furst of the FPO fears that an amendment to the Administrative Enforcement Act could be used to enforce the proposed mandatory coronavirus vaccination policy against the unvaccinated. The new amendment would raise fines from €726 (£617/$818) to €2,000 (£1,701/$2,255) and would also increase prison time for refuseniks from just four weeks to up to a year in prison. Those jailed may also be ordered to pay for their own imprisonment under the new amendment, which states: 'If detention is carried out by the courts, the associated costs shall be recovered by the courts from the obligated party in accordance with the provisions existing for the recovery of the costs of enforcing judicial penalties.' While the amendment makes no specific mention of the Wuhan virus or the mandatory vaccine policy, Ms Furst expressed concern that it would be used on those who do not take the vaccine and said such a policy should be ruled out. Constitutional Minister Caroline Edtstadler, meanwhile, stated that there was a political consensus on the issue and that while the government desired to persuade people to take the vaccine, the possibility of punishment must exist to preserve the credibility of the legal system. Despite Ms Furst's protest, the motion to amend the Administrative Enforcement Act was passed by all parties except the FPO, who voted against it. Since Austria announced it would be ordering citizens to take coronavirus vaccines last month, there have been varying reports on how much violators would be fined or how long they could be imprisoned, with media reporting penalties of up to €7,200 (£6,136/$8,142) were possible. A poll released last week revealed that 55 percent of Austrians support the vaccine mandate policy, while 40 per cent were opposed." (Fears New Austrian Law Could Be Used To Imprison Unvaccinated for Up To A Year by Chris Tomlinson). In the twenty first century, people across the West have gathered together and bored a hole in the ground. It is the opening to an entrance. This entrance swirls with bats, vultures and scavengers from the sky. At the front of the entrance stands a cloaked skeletal figure wielding a scimitar. The Grim Reaper has screamed out a series of messages to all mankind. NY Governor Hochul On Including Booster In Fully Vaccinated Requirement: 'We Will Make it Happen'. *New Hampshire City Council Votes To Fine People Up To $250 For Not Wearing Masks. TWO LADS FROM LINZ

The Linz Realschule is a secondary school located in the city center of Linz, Austria. The capital of the state of Upper Austria and designated a European Capital of Culture, the city has been home to the realschule for over 150 years. A small state school with three hundred pupils, the school hosted two students from 1903 to 1904 who would go on to transform the world. A school photograph shows them together, one boy at the top right corner and the other boy at the bottom left. The two boys knew each other, spoke to each other, and frequently passed each other in the hallways and schoolyard. One of the boys described the other in his autobiography Mein Kampf: "Likewise at school I found no occasion which could have led me to change this inherited picture of antisemitism. At the Realschule, to be sure, I did meet one Jewish boy who was treated by all of us with caution, but only because various experiences had led us to doubt his discretion and we did not particularly trust him; but neither I nor the others had any thoughts on the matter." Destiny had placed Adolf Hitler and Ludwig Wittgenstein together in the same high school and decreed that they would become the leading dark lights pointing the way into the death caverns of Western civilization. Destiny decreed that that these two boys, school mates for two years in the early twentieth century, would grow up and bring the story of the West to its fearsome and terrifying conclusion. One boy would study in the school of Marx and the other boy would study in the school of Kant, and they would in their careers write the final chapter of Marxist philosophy and Kantian philosophy and launch a war against reason and reality without precedent in the history of mankind. Hitler gave Marxism its final development and Wittgenstein gave Kantianism its final development, and together, as schoolmates and soulmates of their master Faust who created the Germanic West, they would launch the armies whose rampages would overrun and destroy civilization. The background to Hitlerism is the Marxist doctrine that groups and not individuals are the primary existents, and that man and society must be viewed from the standpoint of tribes, and specifically, class tribes. According to Marx, all truth and reality are relative to class; all explanations of social change must be made in terms of class struggle; and the culmination of history will bring about the overthrow of free societies, represented by the class of the bourgeois, and the triumph of communist power and the dictatorship of the proletariat. Developing this tribal collectivism in the direction of race as opposed to class, Hitler laid the groundwork for the the leading racist philosophical doctrines established over the past eight decades. The latest and most virulent expression of this neoHitlerian racism is critical race theory, which has engulfed the West in a conflagration which has spelled the doom of the culture. The new Hitlerites of black racism have set forth a program and manifesto hatred and war which seeks to transfer power into the hands of a new Aryan master race and consign liberal democracy to the dustbin of history. According to critical race theory, the only proper assessment and critique of society is one which assumes the primacy of race in human affairs and exalts the racial will to power. The theory proclaims that white people are inherent, incorrigible, racist bigots and must be criticized, condemned and eradicated along with the scourge they created which faithfully serves their interests, the capitalist system. It proclaims that reality is not discovered by the senses but is invented by the sharing of racial stories, theatrics and narratives. It proclaims that the only truths are black truths, the only justice is black justice and the only merit is the merit of black people. It proclaims that the political system which is based upon individual liberty and equality of all before the law is a a cat o' nine tails of white oppression and must be replaced by a regime of special privileges for blacks and official discrimination against whites. It proclaims that a progressive society is a social justice society which distributes wealth, opportunities, rights and freedoms on the basis of race and ensures that blacks wield unchecked power. It proclaims that capitalism is a system of economic deprivation, police brutality and voting rights violations which victimize blacks. It proclaims that race is the only proper tool for examining the liberal order and understanding its essentially white racist character. It proclaims that a progressive society is run by race activists who have organized nonstop violence against whites. It proclaims that a progressive society has replaced the liberal, Enlightenment discourse of civil rights with the national socialist discourse of black racial supremacy. It proclaims that capitalism is a system which exploits people of color. It proclaims that racist cruelty is a normal, necessary and ongoing feature of the capitalist system. It proclaims that a progressive society is an intersectional movement of blacks and communists dedicated to the destruction of the liberal system of colorblind law and the protection of individual rights. It proclaims that judging people on the basis of their character and not their race serves the interests of dominant white groups and must be replaced by a regime of biased, race conscious selection which gives preferential treatment to blacks. It proclaims that a progressive society makes race a plus factor and an exclusive factor in the admission of college students and the recruitment of employees at the workplace, and has set up a system of wide ranging affirmative action for blacks. The background of Wittgenstein's doctrine is the doctrine of Kant that physical objects are products of subjective forms of perception and the world of things in themselves, or things as they really are, is unperceivable and unknowable. According to Kant, the objects of perception are mere appearances and appearances of nothing real; they are universal, collective delusions and when man perceives objects, he perceives nothing; and man is blind by virtue of the fact that he sees and possesses eyes which function. What is called physical reality is a product of our "forms of intuition" of space and time and possesses no extramental existence. Inspired by Kant's subjectivism, Wittgenstein proclaims that reality is a product of man's language and there are as many different realities as there are languages, no one of which may be held to be more real or true than any other. Wittgenstein's Kantian based subjectivism proclaims that physical objects are the products of speech activities and systems of communication and are not real. It proclaims that language is a game played according to arbitrary rules and has no relation to any extralinguistic reality. It proclaims that the meaning of a word is simply how the word is understood within a language game and refers to nothing in reality. It proclaims that words are not defined by reference to external objects but simply by reference to how they are used. It proclaims that meaning consists in pragmatic use as opposed to objective reference. It proclaims that linguistic meaning represents nothing which could be called real: "For a large class of cases in which we employ the word meaning it can be defined thus: the meaning of a word is its use in the language." (Philosophical Investigations by Ludwig Wittgenstein, Section 43). It proclaims that philosophy consists in an analysis of language and not an investigation of reality. It proclaims that words name nothing, define nothing, say nothing and refer to nothing and are meaningless sounds and marks. It proclaims that reality is a product of culture, society and forms of life. It proclaims that reality is a product of social backdrops, social situations and social cognition. It proclaims that philosophical teaching is the teaching of nothing, philosophical explanations are explanations of nothing, philosophical techniques are techniques for doing nothing, and philosophical criteria are devoid of all standards of objective correctness. It proclaims that the task of philosophy is to analyze the meanings of words and expose the errors of those who believe that words can say something about the nature of reality. Listen to Wittgenstein and hear him proclaim that the meaning of a word is not any object or essence existing in reality but simply its function, operation and use within a social context. Hear him proclaim that words can be successfully used without knowing what they actually mean because they actually mean nothing: "I send someone shopping. I give him a slip marked 'five red apples'. He takes the slip to the shopkeeper, who opens the drawer marked apples, then he looks up the word 'red' in a table and finds a color sample opposite it; then he says the series of cardinal numbers—I assume that he knows them by heart—up to the word five and for each number he takes an apple of the same color as the sample out of the drawer. It is in this and similar ways that one operates with words. 'But how does he know where and how he is to look up the word red and what he is to do with the word five?' Well, I assume that he acts as I have described. Explanations come to an end somewhere. But what is the meaning of the word five? No such thing was in question here, only how the word five is used." (Philosophical Investigations by Ludwig Wittgenstein, Section 1). On August 29, 1945, the Soviet Union conducted its first nuclear bomb test. Known in the West as Joe-1, after Joseph Stalin, it was detonated at the Semipalatinsk Test Site in Kazakhstan. As the fire and fury of the explosion ascended to the heavens, the monster of the red menace appeared in the sky and exclaimed: "I have become death, the destroyer of worlds". A two headed philosophic monster appeared in the twentieth century and stalks and oppresses the present day. Emerging from the satanic whirlpools of Marx and Kant, this Hitler creature promoting black racial supremacy and this Wittgensteinian form promoting the obliteration of language and consciousness has brought death to mankind and trampled civilization into dust.

ARISTOTLE AND THE HIGGS FIELD

Twenty three centuries ago, in another civilization and another universe, human sanity sat upon its glorious throne and common sense ruled the thoughts of the people. Symbolized by the god Apollo, god of reason and science and patron of spiritual health and well being, the civilization and universe of the Greeks and Romans championed a world view predicated upon the good sense and sound judgment of people possessed of normal mental equipment. The tenets of this world view included the following points. There is no nothing, only something. There is no nonexistence, only existence. There is no zero, only bodies. There is no negation, only presence. There is no void, only being. The notion that zero can be reified, that nothingness is a thing, that nonexistence is a special kind of existence, that negative determinations exist on the same footing as positive determinations, that presence and absence possess equal power, and that being and nonbeing are equivalent, were regarded by the Classical world as symptoms of psychosis and derangement and were exiled to the outer darkness of cultural nonexistence. The impossibility of the existence of a void is explained by Aristotle. The void is void, for A is A, and a thing is as it is. There exists no nonexistence; only existence exists; and everywhere and at all times, there is only existence and never nonexistence: "The void is not being, and no part of what is is a not being. For what is in the strict sense of the term is an absolute plenum. This plenum, however, is not one, but on the contrary, is a many infinite in number and invisible owing to the minuteness of the particles' bulk." (Physics by Aristotle). The primacy of existence is explained by Aristotle. Existence and nothing else but existence exists. Existence is uncreated, eternal and endless, for there is nothing before, after or outside of existence except more existence. Existence came from more existence and not from nothingness, because A is A and nothingness is nothing, and there exists no nothingness. The notion of creation from nothing is incoherent because nothing is not an entity from which anything can emerge but is the absence of all entities, and all change is thus the change from something to something else. The universe is existence and is all of existence; it had no beginning and will have no end; and there is nothing beyond it or bordering it. On all sides of existence there is always existence; on all sides of time, before and after, there is always time; and on all sides of change, before and after a change, there is always change. The universe, existence, time and change: all are endless, eternal, uncreated and distinguished from nothingness which has no existence whatever: "Further, how can there be any before and after without the existence of time? Or how can there be any time without the existence of change? If, then, time is the measure of change or itself a kind of change, it follows that, if there is always time, change must also be eternal. But so far as time is concerned we see that all with one exception are in agreement in saying that it is uncreated. In fact, it is just this that enables Democritus to show that all things cannot have had a beginning, for time, he says, is uncreated. Plato alone asserts the creation of time, saying that it had a beginning together with the universe. Now since time cannot exist and is unthinkable apart from the moment, and the moment a kind of middle point, uniting as it does in itself both a beginning and an end, a beginning of future time and an end of past time, it follows that there must always be time, for the extremity of the last period of time that we take must be found in some moment, since time contains no point of contact for us except the moment. Therefore, since the moment is both a beginning and an end, there must always be time on both sides of it. But if this is true of time, it is evident that it must also be true of change, time being a kind of property of motion." (Physics, Book VIII, Part 1). Twenty three centuries after Classical philosophers made the self evident, common sense identification that there is no nothing and thus no vacuum or empty space existing in the universe, the predictions, measurements and calculations of physicists have confirmed and corroborated this identification. Twenty three centuries after Aristotle championed the cause of sane human thinking against the assaults launched by the mystics of nothingness and the void, physicist Peter Higgs discovered the existence of a universal plenum or physical medium which excludes the existence of absolute space. Various named the Higgs field, the Higgs boson and the Higgs particle, a material body and carrier which pervades the universe was discovered at the Large Hadron Collider at the European Organization for Nuclear Research in 2012, and a year later, Higgs was awarded the Nobel Prize in Physics for the prediction he had made of the body decades before. Higgs' discovery refuted the results of the famous Michelson-Morley experiment conducted in the late nineteenth century. The experiment proclaimed that there is no difference in the speed of light when measured in different directions of motion. It proclaimed that that there is no support for the common sense view that there exists an absolute frame of reference in the universe constituted by a physical ether. It proclaimed that there is no difference in the speed of light when it travels in the direction of motion of an alleged ether and when it travels in the opposite direction. It proclaimed that space is empty and void and is not permeated with existence, not full of an ether which is everywhere between bodies: "Michelson and Morley built a Michelson interferometer, which essentially consists of a light source, a half silvered glass plate, two mirrors, and a telescope. The mirrors are placed at right angles to each other and at equal distance from the glass plate, which is obliquely oriented at an angle of 45 degrees relative to the two mirrors. In the original device, the mirrors were mounted on a rigid base that rotates freely on a basin filled with liquid mercury in order to reduce friction. Prevailing theories held that the ether formed an absolute reference frame with respect to which the rest of the universe was stationary. It would therefore follow that it should appear to be moving from the perspective of an observer on the sun orbiting Earth. As a result, light would sometimes travel in the same direction of the ether, and others times in the opposite direction. Thus, the idea was to measure the speed of light in different directions in order to measure speed of the ether relative to Earth, thus establishing its existence. Michelson and Morley were able to measure the speed of light by looking for interference fringes between the light which had passed through the two perpendicular arms of their apparatus. These would occur since the light would travel faster along an arm if oriented in the same direction as the ether was moving, and slower if oriented in the opposite direction. Since the two arms were perpendicular, the only way that light would travel at the same speed in both arms and therefore arrive simultaneous at the telescope would be if the instrument were motionless with respect to the ether. If not, the crests and troughs of the light waves in the two arms would arrive and interfere slightly out of synchronization, producing a diminution of intensity. Of course, the same effect would be achieved if the arms of the interferometer were not of the same length, but these could be adjusted accurately by looking for the intensity peak as one arm was moved. Changing the orientation of the instrument should then show fringes. Although Michelson and Morley were expecting measuring different speeds of light in each direction, they found no discernible fringes indicating a different speed in any orientation or at any position of the Earth in its annual orbit around the Sun." (The Michelson-Morley Experiment by Leonardo Motta). The supporters of the common sense view that there exists no absolute space or emptiness because nothing is nothing sought to explain the null results of the Michelson-Morley experiment by positing a contraction of the lengths of objects as they traveled in the direction opposite to the ether and encountered resistance from it. This contracted length of the objects produced by resistance, by reducing the distance traveled by light in one direction, would account for the uniform speed of light measured in all directions. The speed was the same because the distance traveled by light was shorter in one direction, making the time elapsed in travel the same in all directions. But the mystics of nothingness and the void led by Albert Einstein carried the day and consigned common sense to the dustbin of history: "In 1895, Hendrik Lorentz concluded that the null results obtained by Michelson and Morley was caused by an effect of contraction made by the ether on their apparatus and introduced the length contraction equation. Although the main interpretation of Lorentz for this equation was rejected later, the equation is still correct and was the first of a sequence of new equations developed by Henri Poincare, Lorentz and others and others, resulting in a new branch of physics ultimately brought to fruition by Albert Einstein in special relativity. Einstein's idea of space-time contraction replaced Lorentz's interpretation of the contraction equation, and once and for all relegated the ether to the history books." (The Michelson-Morley Experiment by Leonardo Motta). The discovery of the Higgs field rehabilitated the common sense physics of the Classical world. The field offers resistance to particles when they move through it, which serves to measure their mass, as it affirms the self evident fact, known to sane people for thousands of years, that there is no nothing. Interacting with particles and offering resistance as they move through it, the Higgs field is a shining testament to the honesty and integrity of a community of empiricists led by Peter Higgs who spoke truth to the scientific establishment.

JOE BIDEN'S AMERICA

The Codex Gigas is the largest surviving medieval illuminated manuscript in the world. At a length of almost one hundred centimeters, the manuscript is also known as the Devil's Bible, due to its full page portrait of Satan. Students of history have seen in this thirteenth century creation of Herman the Recluse in a Benedictine monastery in Czechia a fearsome and terrifying book for the present day. They have seen in the opening page of the manuscript, from which it received its alternate name, a portrait of the state of America in the twenty first century and a signpost of doom of the world's arsenal of freedom, following its abject surrender to the forces of evil. They have seen in the opening page the form and image of America as it winds down its story and lays itself to rest in a graveyard dug by its ascendant red majority. They have seen in the portrait of the Devil a portrait of every voter in the nation who allowed it to decline into tyranny, a portrait of the nation's cultural establishment which does the bidding of the masses, a portrait of the social and political institutions which reflect mass passions and prejudices, and a portrait of one man, one leader, one executive, one statesman, one page, the opening page, in a book about contemporary America, which like the opening page of the Devil's Bible, serves to introduce the content of the work. This book is about American civilization disintegrating and disintegrated in the twenty first century, and this opening page, this opening portrait, this opening summation, features the present president of the United States. Students of history have issued their report on Joe Biden and the nation fashioned in his image, the nation which looks like his spirit and soul, and bears the portrait his politics in its homes, schools and offices, and to read it is to read the program and manifesto of an end stage movement. This is a movement of red dyed manhaters who believe that the world owes them a living and a complete range of cradle to grave welfare benefits, that the individual is not a free born agent but is the rightless property of the state and tribe, and that a progressive society rejects the liberal principle of equal protection and opportunity and is a regime of gender, race and class discrimination whose lords and masters are women, nonwhites and the poor. Led by Joe Biden and painted, drawn and signed by him, America today proclaims that a progressive society prints money by the trillions to finance socialist programs and makes inflation soar by double digit numbers, the highest rate in three decades. It proclaims that a progressive society has injected mass quantities of money into the economy and made the price of automobile fuel and the price of daily necessities unaffordable and has wiped out people's bank savings. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes the doctrine of moral subjectivism, allows crime waves to surge and explode from coast to coast, sets records for shootings, stabbings, robberies and murders, and has empowered flash mobs to invade and plunder stores in cities across the nation. It proclaims that a progressive society is in favor of crime, is opposed to law and order, and is dedicated to the proposition that the use of force is justified if it advances the will to power of a gender, race, class, indigenous community or global network of Islamist terror. It proclaims that a progressive society is a smash and grab society which is permeated with an attitude of brazen lawlessness and promotes the thrill of making people afraid as it traffics in the pornography of random violence. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes the doctrine of cultural relativism and hatred of liberal order and has allowed an inundation of illegal migrants into the country. It proclaims that a progressive society has dissolved its borders and allowed them to bleed with the scum of the earth. It proclaims that a progressive society allows illegal aliens to cross its borders at a rate of two million per year. It proclaims that a progressive society allows the denizens of the sewers south of the border to invade the homeland by the millions and evade all contact with law enforcement authorities. It proclaims that a progressive society allows the layers of dirt which have darkened Mexico, the Northern Satanic Triangle, comprised of Honduras, Guatemala and El Salvador, and the benighted areas of every continent and country on earth, to make America their homeland and transform a liberal based melting pot into an unassimilated, illiberal, polycultural, polymoral, polyglot boarding house for the world. It proclaims that a progressive society, in the pursuit of socialist goals, inflates its currency, reduces its currency's purchasing power, devalues its currency to zero, and declares national bankruptcy. Look at Joe Biden's America and see Marxist and neoMarxist regimes turn back the clock to the nameless eons of primitive tribal rule. See a popular revolution roll through the streets and establish a totalitarian state. See people's homes, offices and bodies invaded by the covid public health police. See the Industrial Revolution repealed by the neighbors next door marching under the banners of climate change. See opposition to communism shouted down by the megaphones of red propaganda. See the opponents of enslavement in the name of social justice placed under round the clock state surveillance. See the voices of liberal dissent rounded up and placed in permanent detention. See the soldiers of liberty condemned as social dangers and mortal enemies of the state. See communities of conservatives and libertarians beaten by red cudgels and silenced by red censors. See the supporters of human essentialism, and the opponents of gender, race and class balkanization, condemned as racist, sexist, antigay, antipoor bigots. See cultural Marxism surge across the nation on the wings of mass approbation. See social and political regression paraded as a great leap forward. See Satan's constituency elect a president as chairman and commissar of a collectivist dystopia. See Satan's multitudes elect a chief executive who has swept away liberal institutions and submerged the nation in a rising tide of alien ideologies. See red agitators intimidate decent, honest, hard working citizens and place fear and terror in charge of the streets. See red activists launch an assault against reality and proclaim that sex is not based upon genes and chromosomes but can be changed by human beings and that such impossibilities as a transgender man and a transgender woman must be treated as a real man and a real woman. See men who claim to be women granted the legal right to use female pronouns and women who claim to be men granted the legal right to use male pronouns. See red theologians declare war on natural facts and champion the myth of gender changeability and the myth of transgender rights. See a spiritually exhausted nation reject reason, order and civilization and unleash the wolves of primitive war. See the reds launch a class war, a race war and a gender war led by the Stalins and Maos of identity politics and see a national campaign to exterminate successful, white males. See Satan's body of voters elect a head of state who has nullified constitutional rights, made America morally and politically unrecognizable, sent the hands of time racing backward faster than the speed of light, built communism back better and stronger and installed it in every locale in the nation, and perfected the red apparatus of state compulsion, suppression and control: "It's not hard to predict the future in a Marxist system: Just study the current strategies, tactics and narratives with an eye toward the history of prior Marxist regimes like George Orwell did. We now recognize that his book 1984 was prophecy framed as fiction. The Marxist strategy behind this current revolution is obviously the global pandemic of countless COVID variants, with a longer term (and preferred) fallback strategy of climate change running parallel in the background. The tactics for neutralizing opposition are many but include relentless fear mongering propaganda, ever expanding police state surveillance and intimidation, aggressive ideological censorship and physical containment of the population, and the characterization of dissenters as dangerous enemies of the state. The narrative signposts that show their path forward are all variations on the old street activist chant: 'Racist, Sexist, Anti Gay, Born Again Bigots Go Away.' These categories of people-- as they define them--must go away. Permanently. In the sense that the intelligentsia went away under Chairman Mao, whose Build Back Better campaign was called The Great Leap Forward. As has always been true for cultural Marxists, the LGBT agenda has the highest priority because race wars and radical feminism can only take you so far in destabilizing societies. But sexual anarchy leads ultimately to transhumanism: the literal abandonment of male/female human identity, which is the deepest foundation stone of civilization. That's where an increasing number of young people are today spiritually and ideologically. Pushing them into that voluntary rejection of civilization is the real goal--the Satanic goal." (Zombie Apocalypse Now by Scott Lively). A black light is a lamp which emits long wave, ultraviolet light and is invisible to the human eye. Black lights constitute serious health hazards. Their ultraviolet light causes skin to age and wrinkle, causes skin cancer, and inflicts permanent damage to the eyes. Marching under banners marked blacks, hispanics, women, the poor, transgenders, homosexuals, illegal migrants, indigenous communities and Islamic terrorists, the nation led by Joe Biden has directed the black light of anticivilization into the dark night of national collapse.

THE SPANISH CIVIL WAR: REDS SENT BACK TO RUSSIA

A cumulonimbus is a dense, towering, vertical cloud formed from mighty upward air currents. It is a thunderhead and produces lightning, tornadoes, blizzards, torrential rain, copious snow and flash floods. Cumulonimbus storms last for hours before their energy finally dissipates. Students of history have seen in these storms a symbol and picture of the most fearsome and terrifying political movement active in modern times. They have seen its onslaught claim nation after nation and place the free world in the grip of fear. They have seen it defeated in only a few theaters of war and seen it triumph in spirit and soul throughout the West in the establishment of the present day, social regulatory, welfare state. They have issued a report on one noteworthy defeat the international communist movement suffered, noteworthy because it occurred in the heart of Europe and prevented twenty five million people from falling into the movement's murderous jaws, and to read it is to read about a brave stand free people took in an ancient land whose conquistadors centuries before had spread freedom into the savage world of the Americas. To read it is to read about the triumph of will and determination in Spain at the conclusion of the Civil War in 1939, and the successful struggle of a civilized European nation to remain true to itself, to honor its roots and origins, and to preserve itself as a civilized European nation. To read it is to read about a victory which was not perfect, because it was made possible by the actions of the communists' rival brother movement whose members donned black shirts instead of red shirts and wore Falangist arrows on their uniforms instead of Soviet red stars and hammers and sickles, but was a victory nonetheless, because the authoritarian rule imposed by the fascists was infinitely less severe than the totalitarian tyranny and Soviet satellite status which would have been imposed upon Spain by the communists. Under the leadership of General Francisco Franco, the Nationalists defeated the communist controlled Republicans. Franco's Nationalists defeated a movement loyal to the communist Popular Front government of the Second Republic. Organized by the Communist International and known in Catalonia as the Front of the Left, the Popular Front included the following: the Communist Party of Spain, the Spanish Socialist Workers' Party, the Republican Left, the

Republican Left of Catalonia, the Workers' Party of Marxist Unification, the Workers' General Union and the National Confederation of Labor. In May 1936, the red masses of Spain voted for the Popular Front led by Manuel Azana. In July, Franco instigated a coup d'etat to save Spain from itself by saving it from communism. Issuing a pronunciamento, a declaration of military opposition to communism, Franco went on to defeat the forces of communist class struggle. He defeated the forces of communist revolution. He defeated the forces of communist dictatorship. He defeated the International Brigades, military units set up by the Communist International to assist the Popular Front, which consisted of 50,000 soldiers. He defeated tanks, airplanes, firearms, ammunition, armored cars and artillery pieces supplied by the Soviets by the thousands, and defeated Soviet pilots, soldiers and sailors supplied by the hundreds. He defeated America's reds led by Franklin Roosevelt who recognized the Republicans, shipped food, oil, gasoline and trucks to them, and bypassed America's arms embargo and policy of nonintervention by shipping aircraft to them via France. He defeated the international cultural establishment which supported the communists in paintings such as Guernica by Pablo Picasso and The Reaper by Joan Miro; in sculptures such as The Spanish People Have A Path That Leads To A Star by Alberto Sánchez Pérez and The Mountain by Julio Gonzalez; in books such as For Whom The Bell Tolls by Ernest Hemingway; and in films such as The Spanish Earth produced by Hemingway and Lillian Hellman. Listen to the words of the Spanish reds and hear them proclaim that totalitarian regimentation is a utopia of free people. Hear them proclaim that communist enslavement will bring about the emancipation of the working class. Hear them proclaim that the march of capitalist freedom is an invasion of mankind's oppressors. Hear them proclaim that the use of force is justified in order to exterminate the enemies of the proletariat. Hear them proclaim that a future cleansed of exploitation and oppression can only be secured by the guillotines and firing squads manned by the red enemies of freedom and civilization: "Comrades! Your condition as free men is in danger. Spain is invaded by the tyrants of all humanity, who want to make her into another Abyssinia. All have decided to defend our future. All have decided never to tolerate this civilization of whip and ax on the neck of the workers. We must be generous in the use of force, remembering the saying of the teacher Karl Marx: 'The emancipation of the workers is a work done by the workers'." (Communist Party of Spain, 1936). Listen to the words of the Spanish reds and hear them proclaim that individual freedom spells slavery for the working class. Hear them proclaim that in a progressive society, the democratic masses have raised their fists and voted unanimously to establish a people's republic of totalitarian tyranny. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is ruled by red militants who battle freedom fighters on behalf of the workers. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is ruled by red fascists who exalt the murderers of the prosperous and the successful as the caudillos of the proletariat. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is ruled by red hangmen who have marched constitutional rights up to the gallows and sprung open the trap door. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is ruled by a red popular front which has extinguished the voices human dignity and human flourishing. Hear them shout out words and slogans exalting communist power and condemning government under the rule of law. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is ruled by red barbarians who have taken over the streets and smashed the traditions and institutions of free people. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is a staging point for red combatants en route to a frightening destination: a global insurrection of the disaffected against human social and cultural development. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is an abyss of terror and death blasted open by the

heroism and fighting spirit exhibited by communist psychopaths. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is a red foe, a red menace and a red monster which has drawn and quartered the cause of human liberty and dragged it across hot coals ignited by red farmers, red peasants and the red toiling masses. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is ruled by communists, socialists, red anarchists, red soldiers, red patriots, and red republican democrats who have joined together to inflict a final, conclusive defeat of the forces of liberal democracy. Hear them proclaim that a progressive society is encircled by walls, watch towers and barbed wire fences which have sent out a message to the world that the achievements of centuries, the torches of reason, enlightenment, human rights and liberal civilization, shall not and shall never pass through: "Workers! Farmers! Antifascists! Spanish patriots! Confronted with the fascist military uprising, all must rise to their feet, to defend the republic, to defend the people's freedoms as well as their achievements towards democracy! Through the statements by the government and the Popular Front, the people understand the graveness of the moment. In Morocco, as well as in the Canary Islands, the workers are battling, united with the forces still loyal to the republic, against the uprising militants and fascists. Under the battle cry, Fascism shall not pass! The hangmen of October shall not pass!, workers and farmers from all Spanish provinces are joining in the struggle against the enemies of the republic that have arisen in arms. Communists, socialists, anarchists, and republican democrats, soldiers and other forces remaining loyal to the republic combined have inflicted the first defeats upon the fascist foe, who drags through the mud the very same honorable military tradition that it has boasted to possess so many times. The whole country cringes in indignation at these heartless barbarians that would hurl our democratic Spain back down into an abyss of terror and death. However, THEY SHALL NOT PASS!" (They Shall Not Pass! by Dolores Ibarurri). A conditional sentence expresses one thing as contingent or dependent upon something else; for example, "if it rains, we will cancel the picnic." The sentence is so-called because the main clause, "we will cancel the picnic" is conditional upon the cause phrase, "if it rains". In their studies of the Spanish Civil War, students of history have filled in the blanks of a conditional sentence. They have understood that if the Nationalists had been defeated and the Republicans had prevailed, Spain would have become a communist tyranny, supported by Stalin and the first satellite of a Soviet empire which would consume the nations of Eastern Europe.

GERMANY 1919 TO 1933: AN ARC OF RED TERROR HURTLES ACROSS THE NATION

A meteor is a small body of matter from outer space which enters the earth's atmosphere. Soon after it enters, it becomes incandescent as a result of friction and appears as a streak of light, and leaves a trail of glowing particles in its wake. Students of history have seen in the fiery trajectory of the meteor a vivid picture of a terrifying phenomenon which gripped Germany in the early decades of the twentieth century and portended the chaos and violence which would soon sweep across the West. They have seen in the fire, light and course of this visitor from the sky the face of the communist movement as it enveloped the West in total destruction. They have seen in these shooting stars from distant realms the career of a mass movement inhabited by disaffected people conceived in moral sewers who envy and hate their betters and superiors and proclaim that the world owes them a living and has a duty to cosset them with cradle to grave welfare benefits. Students of history have issued a report on the envelopment of a European heartland in the flames of communism and to read it is to read what happens when the majority in any nation is allowed to have its way and to indulge its passions and prejudices during the twilight stages of civilization. The story of the communist attack on Germany is the story of an uprising staged by the Spartacist League, the precursor of the German Communist Party, in Berlin in 1919, moved by the spreading cancer of the communist revolution in Russia. On January 5 of that year, hundreds of thousands of armed communists poured into the city center and sought to overthrow the government. They occupied the train stations and the newspaper district and smashed the offices of the Forward, the newspaper published by the Social Democratic Party which was hostile to the communists. The leaders of the uprising assembled at police headquarters at Alexander Square and formed an Interim Revolutionary Committee. On January 7, a half a million communists staged a general strike and surged through the city. They seized key office buildings and factories. In March, communists staged another general strike in which they demanded the legal recognition of the communist Workers' and Soldiers' Councils, the organization of a communist Workers' Guard, the release of all communists from jail, and diplomatic recognition of the new Soviet Republic in Russia. The communist forces ravaging Berlin were led by the Republican Soldiers' Army and the Red Army Confederation. Communists stormed the Lichtenberg post office and police headquarters and took twenty police officers prisoner. Communist atrocities were condemned by government's minister of defense, Gustav Noske: "The brutality and bestiality of the Spartacists who fight against us compel me to give the following order: any person who is caught with arms in his hands in the struggle against the government will be shot on the spot." The communist siege of Germany and the nationwide movement of red subversion is described by Ralf Hoffrogge in The German Revolution's Bloody End: "Unlike the January Uprising, the March strikes were a supraregional movement and therefore far more dangerous for the government. In the Ruhr area, central Germany and Berlin, mass strikes called for the recognition of workers councils and the immediate socialization of key industries. The National Assembly in Weimar was virtually surrounded by the general strike and unable to act." In 1919 in Bremen, communists established a Workers' Council and took over city hall. The council sought to nationalize the economy and set up a dictatorship of the proletariat. In 1919 in Bavaria, communist mobs proclaimed a Soviet Republic and installed Ernst Toller as chief of state. Well known communist playwright, politician and revolutionary, Toller called on the Bavarian Red Army to establish a dictatorship of the proletariat and ruthlessly crush the voices of dissent. He promoted the new red tyranny as a Bavarian Revolution of Love. Soon after the establishment of the Toller regime, the Communist Party of Germany set up a government under the leadership of Eugene Levine. At the 1919 May Day celebrations on Red Square, Soviet leader Vladimir Lenin eagerly awaited communist victory in Germany: "The liberated working class is celebrating its anniversary not only in Soviet Russia but in Soviet Bavaria". Organizing a Red Army among factory workers, Levine confiscated cash, food supplies, large apartments and guns from the people and placed factories under the control of communist mobs. In the face of severe food shortages brought about by the confiscations, Levine proclaimed that the starvation of the bourgeois was an act of class extermination demanded by the working class: "What does it matter? Most of it goes to the children of the bourgeois anyway. We are not interested in keeping them alive. No harm if they die--they'd only grow into enemies of the proletariat." Levine took over churches and converted them into communist temples which peddled the new cult of proletarian mysticism and irrationalism as a command of the Goddess of Reason. Obeying Lenin's orders, he arrested members of the upper and middle classes and held them hostage to his demands that the legitimate government in Bavaria resign. Civilized people condemned the communist regimes set up in Bavaria as Schreckensherrschaften or Reigns of Terror and antigovernments of privation, shortages, censorship, suppression, violence and disorder. They condemned regimes controlled by the Soviet Politburo via the Communist International, condemned their rejection of liberal democracy as a system of "social fascism", and condemned their plans to slaughter the defenders of freedom as an imperative of social justice. In 1919 in the Ruhr region of Germany, 50,000 members of the Ruhr Red Army staged a general strike and uprising and sought to "win political power by a dictatorship of the proletariat." Across the region, communists set up Executive Councils, Workers' Councils and Central Committees and toppled local governments, from Dortmund to Essen to Hagen. In 1923 in Hamburg, the Communist Party staged a rebellion against the government. Insurrectionists stormed twenty six police precincts in the city center and seized their weapons. In the outlying areas of Altona, Schiffbek and Bramfeld, communists stormed police stations and seized their weapons. In Schiffbek, communists posted placards proclaiming, "Long live Soviet Germany! Long live the Federation of Soviet states of the world! Long live the world revolution!" The rebellion spread to the nearby cities of Bad Oldesloe, Ahrensburg and Rahlstedt, where communists blockaded streets and train tracks. In the town of Bargteheide, communists arrested local government leaders and proclaimed a Soviet Republic of Stormarn. The meteor of red terror crashed into its final destination in the blazes of the Reichstag in 1933. Home of the German parliament in Berlin, the Reichstag was struck by an arson attack staged by Marinus van der Lubbe, a Dutch council communist who was caught red handed clutching burning rags doused in gasoline. The red assault against Germany culminated in the shrill sounds of breaking glass, in the roar of flames erupting from the building, in the wail of fire engines speeding to the scene, in the gutted remnants of the parliamentary debating chamber, in the shattered cupola adorning the roof of the building, and in tens of millions of dollars of property damage inflicted. Listen to the words of the red arsonist and hear him proclaim his undying hatred of the liberal democratic system. Hear him proclaim his desire to see fire and smoke engulf the institutions of freedom. Hear him proclaim his plan to reduce the official building and preeminent symbol of constitutional rights in Germany to a hot glowing body ignited by the flames of communist revolution: "Since the workers would do nothing, I had to do something by myself. I considered arson a suitable method. I did not wish to harm private people but something that belonged to the system itself: official buildings, the welfare office for example, for that is a building in which the workers come together, or the city hall, because it is a building belonging to the system, and further the palace, because it lies in the center of the city, and if it goes up, the huge flames can be seen from far away. When these three fires failed to come off, that is to say when my protest did not come off, I decided on the Reichstag as the center of the whole system." (Statement of Marinus van der Lubbe to police, March 3, 1933). In the moral horror of mass culture, monsters never die but only change their form and shape. No grave can hold them and nothing can stop them. In 1933 in Germany, the monster of communism, which stalked the land for fourteen years, mutated into the monster of national socialism and continued its assault. Brought back to its original form by the watchtowers, barbed wire fences and fearsome encircling walls constructed by the communist government of East Germany beginning in 1949, and enduring in the welfare state of a united Germany, the creature of collectivist tyranny has buried the land of Goethe and Schiller in the rubble of a failed civilization.

COMMUNISM: THE END STAGE OF DEMOCRACY

The Trans Siberian Railway is the longest direct rail route in the world. Requiring six days and running for 10,000 kilometers, it passes through a kaleidoscopic splendor painted by the Ural Mountains, the birch forests of Siberia and Lake Baikal. Students of history have seen in this world renowned train journey a symbol of something dark, criminal and evil. They have seen it as the symbol of a long journey into civilizational collapse on board a train called democracy. This train does not pass through a multicolored pageantry of human flourishing but passes through successive stages of statism until it crashes into its final destination of all encompassing red totalitarian tyranny. The passengers, conductors and engineers on board this train of moral death and destruction are the people, the masses and the neighbors next door, and students of history have known for thousands of years that a political system made by and for the majority is a political system which is headed for total rejection of the rights of man. They have long known that a political system established by those who proclaim and believe, down to the depths of their being, that the world owes them a living and that their betters and superiors have a duty to provide them with the necessities and luxuries of life, and to cosset them with cradle to grave welfare benefits, is a political system which has declared war on human social development and is a system which has hurled human freedom and dignity into a black hole of cultural nonexistence. They have known that the destruction of human freedom by the votes of the masses has been decreed in the firmament of human destiny, and just as the emperors of ancient Rome repealed freedom and enacted statism in the circuses of mob rule, so the majoritarian repeal of freedom has arrived in the West in the present day and deafened its streets with the megaphones of red agitation. The journey of democracy is a centuries long journey into the extirpation of freedom by the unanimous consent of the masses, and is as long as it is tragic in its slow but steady march into a nightmare horror world in the which the individual is reduced to the level of a chattel slave in the service of the state and community. Passing through stages of ever increasing regulation of the thoughts and actions of the individual, of his freedom of contract and enterprise, of his right to enjoy property, and of his right to speak freely, openly and without fear of reprisal, democracy in its final stage of development, centuries after its ominous birth, enacts a form of government which has assumed total control over the minds, bodies and markets of the people and has peddled its oppression, to the wild applause of the people, as an imperative of social justice. Five centuries after democracy became an established system throughout the West, the end of line has been reached in the present day and the results, plainly visible for all to see, stare out with a gaze of murderous cruelty like the empty eye sockets of a human skull. Tabled, voted upon and enacted by the mobs of the twenty first century, the red oppression which has encircled and enchained the world has composed the final chapter of the story of the West and forms a program and manifesto of the fearsome new political religion. This religion has converted free nations into churches of the Devil and this program has ignited a conflagration which has swept up the traditions and institutions of the Age of Enlightenment in a whirlpool of fire and made them go up in white hot sheets of flame. This program, this religion, this belief in and worship of the masses' faith peddled under the names of Marxism and neoMarxism consists of the following tenets. It proclaims that a progressive society has eliminated the liberal system of independence, entrepreneurship and human liberty. It proclaims that a progressive society has placed the social, political and economic traditions of free people in dark, airless chambers and made them crack and powder from moral dry rot. It proclaims that a progressive society has eliminated individual freedom and autonomy and submerged homes, schools and offices in a swampland of collectivism, anonymity and nonresponsibility. It proclaims that a progressive society allows the majority to vote itself unlimited funds from the pockets of the producers and bankroll their entitlement wish lists with it. It proclaims that a progressive society is characterized by a socialist mindset which views people as members of gender, race and class tribes and forces them to descend into slavery. It proclaims that a progressive society is a collectivist dystopia modeled after Cuba, North Korea, Soviet Russia and Maoist China which has established dependence on the state through force and aggression as it has criminalized the inborn human impulse to live in freedom. It proclaims that a progressive society moves year by year into greater and greater government control until it arrives at the final destruction of individual rights in the name of justice for the downtrodden. It proclaims that a progressive society recognizes that people are not capable of making decisions for themselves and must be directed and supervised from cradle to grave by all knowing state bureaucrats. It proclaims that there is something bigger and greater than the individual self, and that is the nation and the community, and service to this almighty social organism constitutes the highest aim of human existence. It proclaims that a progressive society is a slave society in which the individual is instrumentalized to serve his neighbor's needs and wants in the name of social responsibility. It proclaims that a progressive society is a welfare society which expropriates the producing classes and uses the plunder to provide daycare for all, food for all, clothing for all, housing for all, education for all, jobs for all, vacations for all, medical care for all and old age pensions for all. It proclaims that a progressive society views individuals through the refracting lenses of gender, race and class and defines morality as tribal loyalty and service to one's comrades. It proclaims that a progressive society has cut down the tree of liberty and ground it into sawdust and reduced free people to rightless serfs of their tribal parties and chieftains. It proclaims that the ends justify the means and that a progressive society has the right to enforce social distancing, mask wearing, limitations on home gatherings, remote working and vaccine injections in the name of protecting public health and fighting disease pandemics. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the notion of individual merit and achievement and in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion establishes preferential treatment on the basis of race and gender, affirmative action on the basis of race and gender, proportional representation on the basis of race and gender, and makes race and gender plus factors and deciding factors in all selections and admissions procedures. It proclaims that a progressive society is a tribal supremacist society which has installed women, nonwhites and the poor as Aryan master races and the lord's chosen people, placed the Yellow Badge upon the backs of successful, white men, and launched a Final Solution against them. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished the right to private property and required private businesses to establish nondiscrimination policies against their wishes and desires. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the findings of science that gender is determined by genes and chromosomes and cannot be changed, and has concocted a new tribe called transgender and given its members full legal rights and recognition. Look at the world of today's reds and see the sick glitter of decadence blind people to the facts of reality. See mental corruption darken sane understanding. See ideologues place barriers and stanchions on the highways of knowledge and deny the fundamental principles of biology. See roundly denied and suppressed that which the enlightened have known since time immemorial, that which the common fund of experience and intelligence of mankind has identified for ages, that A is A,

that a thing is as it is, and that the notions of gender fluidity and gender reassignment are contradictions in terms since gender is inborn and innate. See Western civilization accelerating in moral free fall and those who dare to challenge the transgender orthodoxy promoted by the reds canceled, censored, deprived of their callings and careers, and banished to the Arctic wastelands of civil nonexistence: "During his marathon annual year end press conference Q&A, which this year lasted about four hours, Russian President Vladimir Putin once again vowed to defend Russian society against the intrusion of the corrupted values of the West, in particular blasting the 'gender obscurantism' pushed by the United States and Europe. 'I am a proponent of the traditional approach that a woman is a woman and a man is a man,' Putin laid out, which it goes without saying also reflects basic Biology 101 and humans' self understanding for thousands upon thousands of years. He continued in the remarks on gender: 'A mother is a mother, a father is a father.' Throughout the remarks he called it basic common sense--which strongly suggested that the opposite is currently the rule of the day in America and the West generally, where people fear being canceled in their jobs and during public discourse if they don't confirm concepts of 'gender fluidity' and Frankenstein reassignment surgeries, which is even increasingly being pushed on children. ("A Woman Is A Woman, Man Is A Man": Putin Vows To Protect Russia From West's "Gender Obscurantism" by Tyler Durden). Philosophers have long known that democracy lacks moral justification because it substitutes the rule of the majority for the rule of the best. They have further known that democracy is not only theoretically indefensible but catastrophic in practice. Identity statements express fundamental facts about reality. They explain the fact that water boils at 100 degrees Celsius by identifying the fact that A is A, that water is water, and is not quicksilver. Philosophers have discovered an identity operative in the realm of man and society. They have observed its fearsome and terrifying actuality bludgeon free peoples and free institutions to death. It is the identity: democracy equals communism.

BISHOP OF HATE

Rabies is a viral disease which attacks the brain and spinal cord. An animal infected with rabies exhibits fever, seizures, aggression, foaming at the mouth and a desire to bite other animals. Once the symptoms of rabies appear, the disease is fatal. Students of history have observed in their journeys through the corridors of time leading public figures afflicted with rabies. They have observed the careers of fanatics and extremists in the service of hate ideologies spread violence and destruction in their wake. They have observed the latest case of rabies appear in a figure beloved and exalted by the global red establishment. They have observed in an occupation and profession marked by round the clock attacks, assaults and vicious biting the very definition of a deranged, disturbed leader and a terrifying picture of the sickness of our times. They have issued a report on the late archbishop of the South African Anglican Church and to read it is to read a program and manifesto of the red declaration of war against the free world. To read it is to read a statement of the aims, intentions, ideals and policies of a blasting megaphone of the reds who was awarded by the reds a Nobel Peace Prize in 1984 and a United States Presidential Medal of Freedom in 2009, and was elevated by the reds to the stature of his fellow communists Martin Luther King and Mahatma Gandhi. On December 26, 2021, at the Oasis Care Center, in Cape Town, South Africa, Desmond Tutu, afflicted by rabies throughout his life, left his mortal
