the example of the Riga Central Library

Consortium led by DAAD

Riga Central Library (RCL) and branch libraries are located in buildings that are not designed as public libraries:

- premises of fashion show,
- schools,
- wooden private houses,
- administrative buildings, that were built during soviet times, etc.

In order to develop RCL and branch libraries it is important:

1. To be critical and to notice the problems of public library building and functional layout!
2. To follow changes in society and to be ready to improve the public library functional layout to meet the needs of public library!
3. To be attentive and never lose the identity of the public library!

Problem: Poor environment
accessibility of the public library.

Solution: Building пандuses, wider doors, wc for disabled people and baby rooms for young parents, etc.

RCL still has many libraries to be improved, because even a 2,5 cm high threshold is an obstacle for disabled people and parents with small children.

Problem: Inadequate room layout – for example, many small size rooms, narrow rooms, rooms with small windows, etc.

Solution: Be creative when planning a library functional layout! There is always a good solution for small spaces!

To be attentive and never lose the identity of the public library!

1. There are temptations to integrate different entertaining functions, such as climbing walls, kitchens for cooking, sauna, etc. in the layout of public library, but it brings a huge pressure on the main identity of a public library.
2. The identity of public library is reading, life-long learning, communication with friends, spending free time in a cultural space, education, finding new hobbies, senseful way of spending time spare time.
3. Promote, develop and maintain literacy.

In conclusion:

1. RCB has done considerable work to renovate, improve and reorganize branch libraries to meet the requirements of contemporary public libraries.
2. We still have a lot of work to do to improve our libraries.
3. We continue to monitor library usage habits of library users / readers. We have concluded, that the functional planning of every public library must be reviewed at least every 5 years in order to adapt the functional zoning, furniture layout and functionality to the current library situation.
